and you will call His name Jesus. [f] 32 He will be great and will be called the Son of the Most High, [g] and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David. [h]

33 He will reign over the house of Jacob [i] forever, and His kingdom will have no end. [j] 34 Mary asked the angel, “How can this be, since I have not been intimate with a man? ” [H]
35 The angel replied to her:
“The Holy Spirit will come upon you, [k]
and the power of the Most High will overshadow you.
Therefore, the holy One to be born will be called the Son of God. [l]
36 And consider your relative Elizabeth — even she has conceived a son in her old age, and this is the sixth month for her who was called childless. 37 For nothing will be impossible with God.” [m] 38 “I am the Lord’s •slave ,” [I] said Mary. “May it be done to me according to your word.” Then the angel left her.

Mary’s Visit to Elizabeth

39 In those days Mary set out and hurried to a town in the hill country of Judah 40 where she entered Zechariah’s house and greeted Elizabeth. 41 When Elizabeth heard Mary’s greeting, the baby leaped inside her, [J] and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit. [n] 42 Then she exclaimed with a loud cry:
“You are the most blessed of women, and your child will be blessed! [K]
43 How could this happen to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me? 44 For you see, when the sound of your greeting reached my ears, the baby leaped for joy inside me! [L] 45 She who has believed is blessed because what was spoken to her by the Lord will be fulfilled! ”

Mary’s Praise

46 And Mary said:

My soul proclaims the greatness of [M] the Lord, [o]
47 and my spirit has rejoiced [p] in God my Savior, [q]
48 because He has looked with favor on the humble condition of His slave.
Surely, from now on all generations will call me blessed, [r] 49 because the Mighty One [s] has done great things for me, [t]

and His name [u] is holy.
50 His mercy is from generation to generation [v] on those who fear Him.
51 He has done a mighty deed with His arm; [w]
He has scattered the proud because of the thoughts of their hearts;
52 He has toppled the mighty from their thrones and exalted the lowly.
53 He has satisfied the hungry with good things [x]
and sent the rich away empty.
54 He has helped His servant Israel, mindful of His mercy, [y] 55 just as He spoke to our ancestors, to Abraham and his descendants [N] forever.

56 And Mary stayed with her about three months; then she returned to her home.

The Birth and Naming of John

57 Now the time had come for Elizabeth to give birth, and she had a son. 58 Then her neighbors and relatives heard that the Lord had shown her His great mercy, [O, z] and they rejoiced with her.

59 When they came to circumcise the child on the eighth day, [a] they were going to name him Zechariah, after his father. 60 But his mother responded, “No! He will be called John.” [b]

61 Then they said to her, “None of your relatives has that name.” 62 So they motioned to his father [c] to find out what he wanted him to be called. 63 He asked for a writing tablet and wrote:

HIS NAME IS JOHN.

And they were all amazed. 64 Immediately his mouth was opened [d] and his tongue set free, and he began to speak, praising God. 65 Fear came on all those who lived around them, and all these things were being talked about throughout the hill country of Judea. 66 All who heard about him [e] took it to heart, saying, “What then will this child become? ” For, indeed, the Lord’s hand was with him.

Zechariah’s Prophecy

67 Then his father Zechariah was filled with the Holy Spirit [f] and prophesied:

[g]

[68] Praise the Lord, the God of Israel, [h] because He has visited and provided •redemption for His people. [i] [69] He has raised up a •horn of salvation [j] for us [k] in the house of His servant David, [l] [70] just as He spoke by the mouth of His holy prophets in ancient times; [m] [71] salvation from our enemies and from the clutches [P] of those who hate us.
[72] He has dealt mercifully with our fathers [n] and remembered His holy covenant [o] — [73] the oath that He swore to our father Abraham. [p]
He has given us the privilege, [74] since we have been rescued from our enemies' clutches, [Q] to serve Him without fear [75] in holiness and righteousness in His presence all our days.
[76] And child, you will be called a prophet of the Most High, [q] for you will go before the Lord to prepare His ways, [r] [77] to give His people knowledge of salvation through the forgiveness of their sins. [s] [78] Because of our God's merciful compassion, the Dawn from on high [t] will visit us [79] to shine on those who live in darkness and the shadow of death, [u]
to guide our feet into the way of peace.

[80] The child grew up and became spiritually strong, [v] and he was in the wilderness until the day of his public appearance to Israel.

The Birth of Jesus

2 In those days a decree went out from Caesar Augustus [a,] [b] that the whole empire [A] should be registered. [2] This first registration took place while [B] Quirinius was governing Syria. [c] [3] So everyone went to be registered, each to his own town.

[4] And Joseph also went up from the town of Nazareth in Galilee, to Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and family line of David, [d] [5] to be registered along with Mary, who was •engaged to him [e] and was pregnant. [6] While they were there, the time came for her to give birth. [7] Then she gave birth to her firstborn Son, and she wrapped Him snugly in cloth and laid Him in a feeding trough — because there was no room for them at the lodging place.

The Shepherds and the Angels

8 In the same region, shepherds were staying out in the fields and keeping watch at night over their flock. 9 Then an angel of the Lord [f] stood before [C] them, [g] and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were terrified. [D] 10 But the angel said to them, “Don’t be afraid, [h] for look, I proclaim to you good news of great joy that will be for all the people: [E] 11 Today a Savior, [i] who is •Messiah [j] the Lord, [k] was born for you in the city of David. 12 This will be the sign for you: [l] You will find a baby wrapped snugly in cloth and lying in a feeding trough.”

13 Suddenly there was a multitude of the heavenly host with the angel, praising God and saying:

14 Glory to God in the highest heaven, [m] and peace on earth [n] to people He favors! [o, F, p]

15 When the angels had left them and returned to heaven, the shepherds said to one another, “Let’s go straight to Bethlehem and see what has happened, which the Lord has made known to us.”

16 They hurried off and found both Mary and Joseph, and the baby who was lying in the feeding trough. 17 After seeing them, they reported the message they were told about this child, 18 and all who heard it were amazed at what the shepherds said to them. 19 But Mary was treasuring up all these things [G] in her heart [q] and meditating on them. 20 The shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God [r] for all they had seen and heard, just as they had been told.

The Circumcision and Presentation of Jesus 21 When the eight days were completed for His circumcision, [s] He was named Jesus [t] — the name given by the angel before He was conceived. [H] 22 And when the days of their purification according to the law of Moses were finished, [u] they brought Him up to Jerusalem to present Him to the Lord 23 (just as it is written in the law of the Lord: Every firstborn male [I] will be dedicated [J] to the Lord [v, w]) 24 and to offer a sacrifice (according to what is stated in the law of the Lord: a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons [x, y]).

Simeon’s Prophetic Praise

25 There was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon. This man was righteous and devout, [z] looking forward to Israel’s consolation, [a, b] and the Holy Spirit was on him. 26 It had been revealed to him by the Holy Spirit [c] that he would not see death before he saw the Lord's Messiah. [d] [27] Guided by the Spirit, he entered [K] the •temple complex. When the parents brought in the child Jesus to perform for Him what was customary under the law, [28] Simeon took Him up in his arms, praised God, and said:

[29] Now, Master,
You can dismiss Your •slave in peace,
as You promised.
[30] For my eyes have seen Your salvation. [e] [31] You have prepared it in the presence of all peoples — [32] a light for revelation to the Gentiles [L, f]
and glory to Your people Israel. [g]

[33] His father and mother [h] were amazed at what was being said about Him. [34] Then Simeon blessed them and told His mother Mary: "Indeed, this child is destined to cause the fall and rise of many in Israel [i] and to be a sign that will be opposed [M] — [35] and a sword will pierce your own soul — that the thoughts [N] of many hearts may be revealed."

Anna's Testimony

[36] There was also a prophetess, [j] Anna, a daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher. [k] She was well along in years, [O] having lived with her husband seven years after her marriage, [P, l] [37] and was a widow for 84 years. [Q] She did not leave the temple complex, serving God night and day with fasting and prayers. [m] [38] At that very moment, [R] she came up and began to thank God and to speak about Him to all who were looking forward to the •redemption of Jerusalem. [n, o]

The Family's Return to Nazareth [39] When they had completed everything according to the law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, to their own town of Nazareth. [p] [40] The boy grew up and became strong, filled with wisdom, and God's grace was on Him. [q]

In His Father's House

[41] Every year His parents traveled to Jerusalem for the •Passover Festival. [r] [42] When He was 12 years old, they went up according to the custom of the festival. [s] [43] After those days were over, [t] as they were returning, the boy Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem, but His parents [u] did not know it. [44] Assuming He was in the traveling party, they went a day's journey. Then they began looking for Him among their relatives and friends. [45] When they did not find Him, they returned to Jerusalem to search for Him. 46 After three days, they found Him in the temple complex sitting among the teachers, listening to them and asking them questions. 47 And all those who heard Him were astounded at His understanding and His answers. 48 When His parents saw Him, they were astonished, and His mother said to Him, [v] "Son, why have You treated us like this? Your father and I have been anxiously searching for You." [w]

49 "Why were you searching for Me? " He asked them. "Didn't you know that I had to be in My Father's house? " [x] 50 But they did not understand what He said to them. [y]

In Favor with God and with People 51 Then He went down with them and came to Nazareth and was obedient to them. His mother kept all these things in her heart. [z] 52 And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and with people. [a]

The Messiah's Herald

3 In the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar, [a] while Pontius •Pilate was governor of Judea, [b] •Herod was tetrarch [A] of Galilee, [c] his brother Philip tetrarch of the region of Iturea [d] and Trachonitis, [e] and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene, [f] 2 during the high priesthood of Annas [g] and Caiaphas, [h] God's word came to John the son of Zechariah in the wilderness. [i] 3 He went into all the vicinity of the Jordan, [j] preaching a baptism of repentance [B] for the forgiveness of sins, 4 as it is written in the book of the words of the prophet Isaiah:

A voice of one crying out in the wilderness:
Prepare the way for the Lord;
make His paths straight!
5 Every valley will be filled, and every mountain and hill will be made low; [C]
the crooked will become straight,
the rough ways smooth,
6 and everyone [D] will see the salvation of God. [k, l]

7 He then said to the crowds who came out to be baptized by him, "Brood of vipers! [m] Who warned you to flee from the coming wrath? 8 Therefore produce fruit consistent with repentance. And don't start saying to yourselves, 'We have Abraham as our father,' [n] for I tell you that God is able to raise up children for Abraham from these stones! 9 Even now the ax is ready to strike [E] the root of the trees! Therefore, every tree that doesn't produce good fruit will be cut down and thrown into the fire." [o]

10 "What then should we do? " [p] the crowds were asking him.

11 He replied to them, "The one who has two shirts [F] must share with someone who has none, and the one who has food must do the same." [q] 12 Tax collectors also came to be baptized, and they asked him, "Teacher, what should we do? " [r]

13 He told them, "Don't collect any more than what you have been authorized."

14 Some soldiers also questioned him: "What should we do? "

He said to them, "Don't take money from anyone by force or false accusation; be satisfied with your wages."

15 Now the people were waiting expectantly, and all of them were debating in their minds [G] whether John might be the •Messiah . [s] 16 John answered them all, [t] "I baptize you with [H] water, but One is coming who is more powerful than

I. I am not worthy to untie the strap of His sandals. He will baptize you with [I] the Holy Spirit and fire. [17] His winnowing shovel [u, v] is in His hand to clear His threshing floor and gather the wheat into His barn, but the chaff He will burn up with a fire that never goes out." [w] [18] Then, along with many other exhortations, he proclaimed good news to the people. [19] But Herod the tetrarch, [x] being rebuked by him about Herodias, his brother's wife, and about all the evil things Herod had done, [y] [20] added this to everything else — he locked John up in prison. [z]

The Baptism of Jesus

21 When all the people were baptized, [a] Jesus also was baptized. As He was praying, [b] heaven opened, 22 and the Holy Spirit descended on Him in a physical appearance like a dove. And a voice came from heaven:

You are My beloved Son.
I take delight in You! [c]

The Temptation of Jesus

4 Then Jesus [a] returned from the Jordan, [b] full of the Holy Spirit, and was led by the Spirit in the wilderness [2] for 40 days to be tempted by the Devil. He ate nothing during those days, and when they were over, [A] He was hungry. [3]
The Devil said to Him, “If You are the Son of God, tell this stone to become bread.”

[4] But Jesus answered him, “It is written: Man must not live on bread alone.” [c, d, e]

[5] So he took Him up [f] and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. [6] The Devil said to Him, “I will give You their splendor and all this authority, because it has been given over to me, [g] and I can give it to anyone
I want. [7] If You, then, will worship me, [B] all will be Yours.”

[8] And Jesus answered him, [h] “It is written:

Worship the Lord your God, and serve [i] Him only.” [j]

[9] So he took Him to Jerusalem, had Him stand on the pinnacle of the temple, and said to Him, “If You are the Son of God, throw Yourself down from here.
[10] For it is written:

He will give His angels orders concerning you, to protect you, [k, l] [11] and they will support you with their hands, so that you will not strike your foot against a stone.” [m, n]

[12] And Jesus answered him, “It is said: Do not test the Lord your God.” [o, p]

[13] After the Devil had finished every temptation, he departed from Him for a time.

Ministry in Galilee

14 Then Jesus returned to Galilee in the power of the Spirit, [q] and news about Him spread throughout the entire vicinity. [r] 15 He was teaching in their •synagogues , [s] being acclaimed [C] by everyone.

Rejection at Nazareth

16 He came to Nazareth, where He had been brought up. [t] As usual, He entered the synagogue on the Sabbath day [u] and stood up to read. [v] 17 The scroll of the prophet Isaiah was given to Him, and unrolling the scroll, He found the place where it was written:

> 18 The Spirit of the Lord is on Me, > because He has anointed Me > to preach good news to the poor.
> He has sent Me [w] > to proclaim freedom [x] to the captives > and recovery of sight to the blind,
> to set free the oppressed,
> 19 to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor. [y, z, a]

20 He then rolled up the scroll, gave it back to the attendant, and sat down. [b] And the eyes of everyone in the synagogue were fixed on Him. 21 He began by saying to them, "Today as you listen, this Scripture has been fulfilled."

22 They were all speaking well of Him [D] and were amazed by the gracious words that came from His mouth, yet they said, "Isn't this Joseph's son? " [c]

23 Then He said to them, "No doubt you will quote this proverb [d] to Me:
'Doctor, heal yourself. So all we've heard that took place in Capernaum, [e] do here in Your hometown also.' "

24 He also said, "•I assure you: No prophet is accepted in his hometown. [f] 25
But I say to you, there were certainly many widows in Israel in Elijah's days, [g] when the sky was shut up for three years and six months while a great famine came over all the land. 26 Yet Elijah was not sent to any of them — but to a widow at Zarephath in Sidon. 27 And in the prophet Elisha's time, there were many in Israel who had serious skin diseases, yet not one of them was healed [h]
— only Naaman the Syrian." [i]

28 When they heard this, everyone in the synagogue was enraged. 29 They got up, drove Him out of town, [j] and brought Him to the edge [E] of the hill that their town was built on, intending to hurl Him over the cliff. 30 But He passed right through the crowd and went on His way. [k]

Driving Out an Unclean Spirit

31 Then He went down to Capernaum, [l] a town in Galilee, and was teaching them on the Sabbath. 32 They were astonished at His teaching because His message had authority. [m] 33 In the synagogue there was a man with an •unclean demonic spirit who cried out with a loud voice, [n] 34 "Leave us alone! [F] What do You have to do with us, [G] Jesus — •Nazarene ? Have You come to destroy us? I know who You are — the Holy One of God! "

35 But Jesus rebuked him [o] and said, "Be quiet and come out of him! "

And throwing him down before them, the demon came out of him without hurting him at all. 36 Amazement came over them all, and they kept saying to one another, "What is this message? For He commands the unclean spirits with authority and power, and they come out! " 37 And news about Him began to go out to every place in the vicinity.

Healings at Capernaum

38 After He left the synagogue, He entered Simon's house. [p] Simon's mother-in-law was suffering from a high fever, and they asked Him about her. 39 So He stood over her and rebuked the fever, and it left her. She got up immediately and began to serve them.

40 When the sun was setting, all those who had anyone sick with various diseases brought them to Him. As He laid His hands on each one of them, He would heal them. [q] 41 Also, demons were coming out of many, shouting and saying, "You are the Son of God! " [r] But He rebuked them and would not allow them to speak, because they knew He was the •Messiah . [s]

Preaching in Galilee

42 When it was day, He went out and made His way to a deserted place. [t] But the crowds were searching for Him. They came to Him and tried to keep Him from leaving them. 43 But He said to them, “I must proclaim the good news about the kingdom of God to the other towns also, because I was sent for this purpose.” 44 And He was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee. [u, v]

The First Disciples

5 As the crowd was pressing in on Jesus to hear God's word, [a] He was standing by Lake Gennesaret. [b, c] 2 He saw two boats at the edge of the lake; [A] the fishermen had left them and were washing their nets. 3 He got into one of the boats, [d] which belonged to Simon, and asked him to put out a little from the land. Then He sat down and was teaching the crowds from the boat.

4 When He had finished speaking, He said to Simon, "Put out into deep water and let down [e] your nets for a catch." [f]

5 "Master," [g] Simon replied, "we've worked hard all night long and caught nothing! But at Your word, I'll let down the nets." [h]

6 When they did this, they caught a great number of fish, and their nets [i] began to tear. 7 So they signaled to their partners in the other boat to come and help them; they came and filled both boats so full that they began to sink.

8 When Simon Peter saw this, he fell at Jesus' knees and said, "Go away from me, because I'm a sinful man, Lord! " 9 For he and all those with him were amazed [B] at the catch of fish they took, 10 and so were James and John, Zebedee's sons, who were Simon's partners.

"Don't be afraid," [j] Jesus told Simon. "From now on you will be catching people! " [k] 11 Then they brought the boats to land, left everything, and followed Him. [l]

A Man Cleansed

12 While He was in one of the towns, a man was there who had a serious skin disease all over him. [m] He saw Jesus, fell facedown, and begged Him: “Lord, if You are willing, You can make me •clean .” 13 Reaching out His hand, He touched him, saying, “I am willing; be made clean,” and immediately the disease left him. 14 Then He ordered him to tell no one: “But go and show yourself to the priest, and offer what Moses prescribed for your cleansing as a testimony to them.” 15 But the news [C] about Him spread even more, and large crowds would come together to hear Him and to be healed of their sicknesses. 16 Yet He often withdrew to deserted places and prayed. [n]

The Son of Man Forgives and Heals 17 On one of those days while He was teaching, •Pharisees and teachers of the law [o] were sitting there who had come from every village of Galilee and Judea, and also from Jerusalem. And the Lord’s power to heal was in Him. [p] 18 Just then some men came, [q] carrying on a mat a man who was paralyzed. They tried to bring him in and set him down before Him. 19 Since they could not find a way to bring him in because of the crowd, they went up on the roof and lowered him on the mat through the roof tiles into the middle of the crowd before Jesus.
20 Seeing their faith He said, “Friend, [r] your sins are forgiven you.” 21 Then the •scribes and the Pharisees [s] began to think: “Who is this man who speaks blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God alone? ” [t] 22 But perceiving their thoughts, Jesus replied to them, “Why are you thinking this in your hearts? [u] 23 Which is easier: to say, ‘Your sins are forgiven you,’ or to say, ‘Get up and walk’? 24 But so you may know that the •Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins” — He told the paralyzed man, “I tell you: Get up, pick up your mat, and go home.” 25 Immediately he got up before them, picked up what he had been lying on, and went home glorifying God. 26 Then everyone was astounded, and they were giving glory to God. And they were filled with awe [v] and said, “We have seen incredible things today! ”

The Call of Matthew

27 After this, Jesus went out and saw a tax collector named Levi sitting at the tax office, [w] and He said to him, “Follow Me! ” 28 So, leaving everything behind, he got up and began to follow Him.

Dining with Sinners

29 Then Levi hosted a grand banquet for Him at his house. Now there was a large crowd of tax collectors and others who were guests [D] with them. [x] 30 But the Pharisees and their scribes [y] were complaining to His disciples, “Why do you eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners? ”

31 Jesus replied to them, “The healthy don’t need a doctor, but the sick do. 32 I have not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.”

A Question about Fasting

33 Then they said to Him, “John’s disciples fast often and say prayers, and those of the Pharisees do the same, but Yours eat and drink.” [z] 34 Jesus said to them, “You can’t make the wedding guests [a] fast while the groom is with them, can you? 35 But the time [b] will come [c] when the groom will be taken away from them — then they will fast in those days.” 36 He also told them a parable: “No one tears a patch from a new garment and puts it on an old garment. Otherwise, not only will he tear the new, but also the piece from the new garment will not match the old. 37 And no one puts new wine into old wineskins. Otherwise, the new wine will burst the skins, it will spill, and the skins will be ruined. 38 But new wine should be put into fresh wineskins. [d] 39 And no one, after drinking old wine, wants new, because he says, ‘The old is better.’ ” [e]

Lord of the Sabbath

6 On a Sabbath, [a] He passed through the grainfields. [b] His disciples were picking heads of grain, rubbing them in their hands, and eating them. 2 But some of the •Pharisees said, “Why are you doing what is not lawful on the Sabbath? ”
3 Jesus answered them, “Haven’t you read what David and those who were with him did when he was hungry — 4 how he entered the house of God, and took and ate the •sacred bread, which is not lawful for any but the priests to eat?
[c] He even gave some to those who were with him.” [d] 5 Then He told them, “The •Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath.”

The Man with the Paralyzed Hand

6 On another Sabbath [e] He entered the •synagogue and was teaching. A man was there whose right hand was paralyzed. 7 The •scribes and Pharisees were watching Him closely, [f] to see if He would heal on the Sabbath, so that they could find a charge against Him. [g] 8 But He knew their thoughts [h] and told the man with the paralyzed hand, “Get up and stand here.” [i] So he got up and stood there. 9 Then Jesus said to them, “I ask you: Is it lawful on the Sabbath to do what is good or to do what is evil, to save life or to destroy it? ” [j] 10 After looking around at them all, [k] He told him, “Stretch out your hand.” [l] He did so, and his hand was restored. [m] 11 They, however, were filled with rage and started discussing with one another what they might do to Jesus.

The 12 Apostles

12 During those days He went out to the mountain to pray [n] and spent all night in prayer to God. 13 When daylight came, He summoned His disciples, [o] and He chose 12 of them — He also named them apostles: [p]

14 Simon, whom He also named Peter, and Andrew his brother;
James and John;
Philip and Bartholomew;
15 Matthew and Thomas; [q]
James the son of Alphaeus,
and Simon called the Zealot; 16 Judas the son of James,
and Judas Iscariot, who became a traitor.

Teaching and Healing

17 After coming down with them, He stood on a level place with a large crowd of His disciples and a great number of people from all Judea and Jerusalem and from the seacoast of Tyre and Sidon. r 18 They came to hear Him and to be healed of their diseases; and those tormented by •unclean spirits were made well.
19 The whole crowd was trying to touch Him, s because power was coming out from Him and healing them all. t

The Beatitudes

20 Then looking up at [A] His disciples, He said: [u]

You who are poor are blessed, because the kingdom of God is yours.
21 You who are now hungry are blessed,
because you will be filled.
You who now weep are blessed,
because you will laugh.
22 You are blessed when people hate you,
when they exclude you, [v] insult you,
and slander your name as evil [w]
because of the Son of Man. [x]

23 “Rejoice in that day and leap for joy! Take note — your reward is great in heaven, for this is the way their ancestors used to treat the prophets. [y]

Woe to the Self-Satisfied

24 But woe to you who are rich, for you have received your comfort.
25 Woe to you who are now full,
for you will be hungry.
Woe to you [z] who are now laughing,
for you will mourn and weep.
26 Woe to you [a]
when all people speak well of you, for this is the way their ancestors used to treat the false prophets. [b]

Love Your Enemies

27 “But I say to you who listen: Love your enemies, do what is good to those who hate you, 28 bless those who curse you, pray for those who mistreat you. [c] 29 If anyone hits you on the cheek, [d] offer the other also. And if anyone takes away your coat, don’t hold back your shirt either. 30 Give to everyone who asks you, and from one who takes your things, don’t ask for them back. 31 Just as you want others to do for you, do the same for them. [e] 32 If you love those who love you, what credit is that to you? Even sinners love those who love them. [f] 33 If you do what is good to those who are good to you, what credit is that to you?
Even sinners do that. 34 And if you lend to those from whom you expect to receive, what credit is that to you? [g] Even sinners lend to sinners to be repaid in full. 35 But love your enemies, do what is good, and lend, expecting nothing in return. Then your reward will be great, and you will be sons of the Most High. [h]
For He is gracious to the ungrateful and evil. 36 Be merciful, just as your Father also is merciful. [i]

Do Not Judge

37 “Do not judge, and you will not be judged. [j] Do not condemn, and you will not be condemned. Forgive, and you will be forgiven. [k] 38 Give, and it will be given to you; a good measure — pressed down, shaken together, and running over — will be poured into your lap. [l] For with the measure you use, [m] it will be measured back to you.” [n]

39 He also told them a parable: “Can the blind guide the blind? Won’t they both fall into a pit? [o] 40 A disciple is not above his teacher, but everyone who is fully trained will be like his teacher. [p]

41 “Why do you look at the speck in your brother’s eye, but don’t notice the log in your own eye? 42 Or how can you say to your brother, ‘Brother, let me take out the speck that is in your eye,’ when you yourself don’t see the log in your eye? Hypocrite! First take the log out of your eye, and then you will see clearly to take out the speck in your brother’s eye.

A Tree and Its Fruit

43 “A good tree doesn’t produce bad fruit; on the other hand, a bad tree doesn’t produce good fruit. ¶ 44 For each tree is known by its own fruit. Figs aren’t gathered from thornbushes, or grapes picked from a bramble bush. 45 A good man produces good out of the good storeroom of his heart. An evil man produces evil out of the evil storeroom, for his mouth speaks from the overflow of the heart.

The Two Foundations

46 “Why do you call Me ‘Lord, Lord,’ and don’t do the things I say? [r] 47 I will show you what someone is like who comes to Me, hears My words, and acts on them: [s] 48 He is like a man building a house, who dug deep [t] and laid the foundation on the rock. When the flood came, the river crashed against that house and couldn’t shake it, because it was well built. 49 But the one who hears and does not act is like a man who built a house on the ground without a foundation. The river crashed against it, and immediately it collapsed. And the destruction of that house was great! ” [u]

A Centurion's Faith

7 When He had concluded all His sayings in the hearing of the people, He entered Capernaum. [a] 2 A •centurion 's •slave , who was highly valued by him, was sick and about to die. 3 When the centurion heard about Jesus, he sent some Jewish elders to Him, requesting Him to come and save the life of his slave. 4 When they reached Jesus, they pleaded with Him earnestly, saying, "He is worthy for You to grant this, 5 because he loves our nation and has built us a •synagogue ." [b] 6 Jesus went with them, and when He was not far from [A] the house, the centurion sent friends to tell Him, "Lord, don't trouble Yourself, since I am not worthy to have You come under my roof. 7 That is why I didn't even consider myself worthy to come to You. But say the word, and my servant will be cured. [c, d] 8 For I too am a man placed under authority, having soldiers under my command. [B] I say to this one, 'Go! ' and he goes; and to another, 'Come! ' and he comes; and to my slave, 'Do this! ' and he does it."

9 Jesus heard this and was amazed at him, and turning to the crowd following Him, He said, "I tell you, I have not found so great a faith even in Israel! " 10 When those who had been sent returned to the house, they found the slave in good health.

A Widow's Son Raised to Life

11 Soon afterward He was on His way to a town called Nain. His disciples and a large crowd were traveling with Him. 12 Just as He neared the gate of the town, a dead man was being carried out. He was his mother's only son, and she was a widow. [e] A large crowd from the city was also with her. 13 When the Lord saw her, He had compassion on her [f] and said, "Don't cry." 14 Then He came up and touched the open coffin, [C] and the pallbearers stopped. And He said, "Young man, I tell you, get up! " [g]

15 The dead man sat up and began to speak, and Jesus gave him to his mother.
[h] 16 Then fear [D] came over everyone, [i] and they glorified God, [j] saying, "A great prophet has risen among us," [k] and "God has visited [E] His people." [l] 17 This report about Him went throughout Judea and all the vicinity.

In Praise of John the Baptist

18 Then John's disciples told him about all these things. [m] So John summoned two of his disciples 19 and sent them to the Lord, asking, "Are You the One [n] who is to come, or should we look for someone else? "

20 When the men reached Him, they said, "John the Baptist sent us to ask You,
'Are You the One who is to come, or should we look for someone else? ' "

21 At that time Jesus healed many people of diseases, [o] plagues, and evil spirits, [p] and He granted sight to many blind people. [q] 22 He replied to them, “Go and report to John the things you have seen and heard: The blind receive their sight, the lame walk, those with skin diseases are healed, [r] the deaf hear, [s] the dead are raised, and the poor are told the good news. [t] 23 And anyone who is not •offended because of Me is blessed.” 24 After John’s messengers left, He began to speak to the crowds about John: “What did you go out into the wilderness to see? A reed swaying in the wind? 25 What then did you go out to see? A man dressed in soft robes? Look, those who are splendidly dressed [u] and live in luxury are in royal palaces. 26 What then did you go out to see? A prophet? [v] Yes, I tell you, and far more than a prophet. 27 This is the one it is written about:

Look, I am sending My messenger ahead of You; [w]
he will prepare Your way before You. [x, y]

28 I tell you, among those born of women no one is greater than John, [z] but the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.”

29 (And when all the people, including the tax collectors, heard this, they acknowledged God’s way of righteousness, [F] because they had been baptized with John’s baptism. [a] 30 But since the •Pharisees and experts in the law [b] had not been baptized by him, they rejected the plan of God for themselves. [c])

An Unresponsive Generation

31 “To what then should I compare the people of this generation, and what are they like? 32 They are like children sitting in the marketplace and calling to each other:

We played the flute for you,
but you didn’t dance;
we sang a lament,
but you didn’t weep!

33 For John the Baptist did not come eating bread or drinking wine, [d] and you say, ‘He has a demon! ’ 34 The •Son of Man has come eating and drinking, and you say, ‘Look, a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners! ’ [e] 35 Yet wisdom is vindicated [f] by all her children.”

Much Forgiveness, Much Love

36 Then one of the Pharisees invited Him to eat with him. He entered the Pharisee’s house and reclined at the table. [g] 37 And a woman in the town who was a sinner found out that Jesus was reclining at the table in the Pharisee’s house. [h] She brought an alabaster jar of fragrant oil 38 and stood behind Him at His feet, weeping, and began to wash His feet with her tears. She wiped His feet with the hair of her head, kissing them and anointing them with the fragrant oil. [i]

39 When the Pharisee who had invited Him saw this, he said to himself, “This man, if He were a prophet, would know who and what kind of woman this is who is touching Him — she’s a sinner! ” [j]

40 Jesus replied to him, “Simon, I have something to say to you.”

“Teacher,” he said, “say it.”

41 “A creditor had two debtors. One owed 500 •denarii , [k] and the other 50.
42 Since they could not pay it back, [l] he graciously forgave them both. So, which of them will love him more? ”

43 Simon answered, “I suppose the one he forgave more.”

“You have judged correctly,” He told him. 44 Turning to the woman, He said to Simon, “Do you see this woman? I entered your house; you gave Me no water for My feet, [m] but she, with her tears, has washed My feet and wiped them with her hair. 45 You gave Me no kiss, [n] but she hasn’t stopped kissing My feet since
I came in. 46 You didn’t anoint My head with olive oil, [o] but she has anointed My feet with fragrant oil. 47 Therefore I tell you, her many sins have been forgiven; that’s why [p] she loved much. But the one who is forgiven little, loves little.” 48 Then He said to her, “Your sins are forgiven.” [q]

49 Those who were at the table with Him began to say among themselves, “Who is this man who even forgives sins? ” [r]

50 And He said to the woman, “Your faith has saved you. [s] Go in peace.” [t]

Many Women Support Christ's Work

8 Soon afterward He was traveling from one town and village to another, [a] preaching and telling the good news of the kingdom of God. [b] The Twelve were with Him, 2 and also some women who had been healed of evil spirits and sicknesses: [c] Mary, called •Magdalene (seven demons had come out [d] of her); 3 Joanna the wife of Chuza, •Herod 's steward; Susanna; and many others who were supporting them from their possessions.

The Parable of the Sower

4 As a large crowd was gathering, and people were flocking to Him from every town, He said in a parable: [e] 5 "A sower went out to sow his seed. As he was sowing, some fell along the path; it was trampled on, and the birds of the sky ate it up. 6 Other seed fell on the rock; when it sprang up, it withered, since it lacked moisture. 7 Other seed fell among thorns; the thorns sprang up with it and choked it. 8 Still other seed fell on good ground; when it sprang up, it produced a crop: 100 times what was sown." [f] As He said this, He called out, "Anyone who has ears to hear should listen! " [g]

Why Jesus Used Parables

9 Then His disciples asked Him, “What does this parable mean? ” [h] 10 So He said, “The •secrets of the kingdom of God have been given for you [i] to know, but to the rest it is in parables, so that

Looking they may not see,
and hearing they may not understand. [j, k]

The Parable of the Sower Explained

11 “This is the meaning of the parable: [l, m] The seed is the word of God. [n] 12 The seed along the path are those who have heard and then the Devil comes and takes away the word from their hearts, so that they may not believe and be saved. 13 And the seed on the rock are those who, when they hear, welcome the word with joy. Having no root, these believe for a while and depart in a time of testing. [o] 14 As for the seed that fell among thorns, these are the ones who, when they have heard, go on their way and are choked with worries, riches, and pleasures of life, [p] and produce no mature fruit. 15 But the seed in the good ground — these are the ones who, [q] having heard the word with an honest and good heart, hold on to it and by enduring, [r] bear fruit.

Using Your Light

16 “No one, after lighting a lamp, [s] covers it with a basket or puts it under a bed, but puts it on a lampstand so that those who come in may see its light. [t] 17 For nothing is concealed that won’t be revealed, and nothing hidden that won’t be made known and come to light. [u] 18 Therefore take care how you listen. For whoever has, more will be given to him; [v] and whoever does not have, even what he thinks he has will be taken away from him.”

True Relationships

19 Then His mother and brothers [w] came to Him, [x] but they could not meet with Him because of the crowd. 20 He was told, “Your mother and Your brothers are standing outside, wanting to see You.”

21 But He replied to them, “My mother and My brothers are those who hear and do the word of God.” [y]

Wind and Wave Obey the Master

22 One day He and His disciples got into a boat, [z] and He told them, “Let’s cross over to the other side of the lake.” [a] So they set out, 23 and as they were sailing He fell asleep. Then a fierce windstorm came down on the lake; they were being swamped and were in danger. 24 They came and woke Him up, saying, “Master, Master, we’re going to die! ” Then He got up and rebuked the wind and the raging waves. So they ceased, and there was a calm. [b] 25 He said to them, “Where is your faith? ”

They were fearful and amazed, asking one another, “Who can this be? [A, c] He commands even the winds and the waves, and they obey Him! ”

Demons Driven Out by the Master

26 Then they sailed to the region of the Gerasenes, [d, e] which is opposite Galilee. 27 When He got out on land, a demon-possessed man from the town met Him. For a long time he had worn no clothes and did not stay in a house but in the tombs. 28 When he saw Jesus, he cried out, [f] fell down before Him, and said in a loud voice, “What do You have to do with me, [B, g] Jesus, You Son of the Most High God? [h] I beg You, don’t torment me! ” 29 For He had commanded the •unclean spirit to come out of the man. Many times it had seized him, and though he was guarded, bound by chains and shackles, he would snap the restraints and be driven by the demon into deserted places.

30 “What is your name? ” Jesus asked him.

“Legion,” [i] he said — because many demons had entered him. 31 And they begged Him not to banish them to the •abyss . [j]

32 A large herd of pigs was there, feeding on the hillside. The demons begged Him to permit them to enter the pigs, and He gave them permission. 33 The demons came out of the man and entered the pigs, and the herd rushed down the steep bank into the lake and drowned. 34 When the men who tended them saw what had happened, they ran off and reported it in the town and in the countryside. 35 Then people went out to see what had happened. They came to Jesus and found the man the demons had departed from, sitting at Jesus' feet, [k] dressed and in his right mind. And they were afraid. 36 Meanwhile, the eyewitnesses reported to them how the demon-possessed man was delivered. [l] 37 Then all the people of the Gerasene region [m] asked Him to leave them, [n] because they were gripped by great fear. So getting into the boat, He returned.

38 The man from whom the demons had departed kept begging Him to be with Him. But He sent him away and said, 39 "Go back to your home, and tell all that God has done for you." And off he went, proclaiming throughout the town all that Jesus had done for him.

A Girl Restored and a Woman Healed

40 When Jesus returned, the crowd welcomed Him, [o] for they were all expecting Him. [p] 41 Just then, a man named Jairus came. He was a leader of the •synagogue . [q] He fell down at Jesus' feet and pleaded with Him to come to his house, 42 because he had an only daughter [r] about 12 years old, and she was at death's door. [C]

While He was going, the crowds were nearly crushing Him. [s] 43 A woman suffering from bleeding [t] for 12 years, [u] who had spent all she had on doctors [v] yet could not be healed by any, 44 approached from behind and touched the •tassel of His robe. [w] Instantly her bleeding stopped.

45 "Who touched Me? " Jesus asked.

When they all denied it, Peter [x] said, "Master, [y] the crowds are hemming You in and pressing against You." [z]

46 "Someone did touch Me," said Jesus. "I know that power has gone out from Me." [a] 47 When the woman saw that she was discovered, [D] she came trembling and fell down before Him. In the presence of all the people, she declared the reason she had touched Him and how she was instantly cured. 48 "Daughter," He said to her, "your faith has made you well. [b] Go in peace." [c]

49 While He was still speaking, [d] someone came from the synagogue leader's house, saying, "Your daughter is dead. Don't bother [e] the Teacher [f] anymore."

50 When Jesus heard it, He answered him, "Don't be afraid. Only believe, and she will be made well." 51 After He came to the house, He let no one enter with Him except Peter, John, James, [g] and the child's father and mother. 52 Everyone was crying [h] and mourning for her. [i] But He said, "Stop crying, for she is not dead but asleep." [j]

53 They started laughing at Him, because they knew she was dead. 54 So He [k]

took her by the hand [l] and called out, “Child, get up! ” [m] 55 Her spirit returned, [n] and she got up at once. Then He gave orders that she be given something to eat. 56 Her parents were astounded, but He instructed them to tell no one what had happened. [o]

Commissioning the Twelve

9 Summoning the Twelve, [a] He gave them power and authority over all the demons, and power to heal [b] diseases. [c] 2 Then He sent them to proclaim the kingdom of God and to heal the sick. [d] 3 "Take nothing for the road," [e] He told them, "no walking stick, [f] no traveling bag, no bread, no money; and don't take an extra shirt. 4 Whatever house you enter, stay there and leave from there. 5 If they do not welcome you, when you leave that town, shake off the dust from your feet as a testimony against them." [g] 6 So they went out and traveled from village to village, proclaiming the good news and healing everywhere.

Herod's Desire to See Jesus

7 •Herod the tetrarch [h] heard about everything that was going on. [i] He was perplexed, because some said that John had been raised from the dead, 8 some that Elijah had appeared, [j] and others that one of the ancient prophets had risen.
[k] 9 "I beheaded John," Herod said, "but who is this I hear such things about? "
And he wanted to see Him. [l]

Feeding 5,000

10 When the apostles returned, [m] they reported to Jesus all that they had done.
[n] He took them along and withdrew privately to a [o] town called Bethsaida. [p] 11 When the crowds found out, they followed Him. He welcomed them, [q] spoke to them about the kingdom of God, and cured [A] those who needed healing.
12 Late in the day, [B,] [r] the Twelve approached and said to Him, "Send the crowd away, [s] so they can go into the surrounding villages and countryside to find food and lodging, because we are in a deserted place here." 13 "You give them something to eat," He told them.
"We have no more than five loaves [t] and two fish," they said, "unless we go and buy food for all these people." 14 (For about 5,000 men were there.) Then He told His disciples, "Have them sit down [u] in groups of about 50 each." 15 They did so, and had them all sit down. 16 Then He took the five loaves and the two fish, and looking up to heaven, [v] He blessed and broke them. [w] He kept giving them to the disciples to set before the crowd. 17 Everyone ate and was filled. Then they picked up [C] 12 baskets of leftover pieces.

Peter's Confession of the Messiah 18 While He was praying in private [x] and His disciples were with Him, He asked them, "Who do the crowds say that I am? " 19 They answered, "John the Baptist; others, Elijah; still others, that one of the ancient prophets has come back.” [D, y]

[20] “But you,” He asked them, “who do you say that I am? ”
Peter answered, “God’s •Messiah ! ” [z]

His Death and Resurrection Predicted [21] But He strictly warned and instructed them to tell this to no one, [a] [22] saying, [b] “The •Son of Man [c] must suffer many things [d] and be rejected [e] by the elders, •chief priests, and •scribes , [f] be killed, and be raised the third day.” [g]

Take Up Your Cross

23 Then He said to them all, “If anyone wants to come with [h] Me, he must deny himself, [i] take up his cross daily, [j] and follow Me. [k] 24 For whoever wants to save his •life will lose it, but whoever loses his life because of Me will save it. [l] 25 What is a man benefited if he gains the whole world, yet loses or forfeits himself? [m] 26 For whoever is ashamed of Me and My words, [n] the Son of Man will be ashamed of him when He comes in His glory [o] and that of the Father and the holy angels. [p] 27 I tell you the truth: There are some standing here who will not taste death [q] until they see the kingdom of God.” [r]

The Transfiguration

28 About eight days after these words, [s] He took along Peter, John, and James [t] and went up on the mountain to pray. [u] 29 As He was praying, the appearance of His face changed, [v] and His clothes became dazzling white. [w] 30 Suddenly, two men were talking with Him — Moses and Elijah. 31 They appeared in glory and were speaking of His death, [E] which He was about to accomplish in Jerusalem.

32 Peter and those with him were in a deep sleep, [F,] [x] and when they became fully awake, they saw His glory and the two men who were standing with Him.
33 As the two men were departing from Him, Peter said to Jesus, "Master, [y] it's good for us to be here! Let us make three •tabernacles : one for You, one for Moses, and one for Elijah" — not knowing what he said. [z]

34 While he was saying this, a cloud appeared and overshadowed [a] them.
They became afraid as they entered the cloud. 35 Then a voice came from the cloud, [b] saying:

> This is My Son, [c] the Chosen One; [d, e]
> listen to Him! [f]

36 After the voice had spoken, only Jesus was found. They kept silent, and in those days told no one what they had seen.

The Power of Faith over a Demon

37 The next day, [g] when they came down from the mountain, a large crowd met Him. 38 Just then a man from the crowd cried out, "Teacher, I beg You to look at my son, because he's my only child. [h] 39 Often a spirit seizes him; suddenly he shrieks, and it throws him into convulsions until he foams at the mouth; [G] wounding [H] him, it hardly ever leaves him. 40 I begged Your disciples to drive it out, but they couldn't." [i]

41 Jesus replied, "You unbelieving and rebellious [j] generation! [k] How long will I be with you and put up with you? [l] Bring your son here."

42 As the boy was still approaching, the demon knocked him down and threw him into severe convulsions. But Jesus rebuked the •unclean spirit, cured the boy, [m] and gave him back to his father. [n] 43 And they were all astonished at the greatness of God. [o]

The Second Prediction of His Death While everyone was amazed at all the things He was doing, [p] He told His disciples, 44 "Let these words sink in: [q] The Son of Man is about to be betrayed into the hands of men.” [r]

45 But they did not understand this statement; [s] it was concealed from them so that they could not grasp it, [t] and they were afraid to ask Him about it. [I]

Who Is the Greatest?

46 Then an argument started among them about who would be the greatest of them. [u] 47 But Jesus, knowing the thoughts of their hearts, [v] took a little child and had him stand next to Him. 48 He told them, “Whoever welcomes [w] this little child in My name welcomes Me. And whoever welcomes Me welcomes Him who sent Me. [x] For whoever is least among you — this one is great.” [y]

In His Name

49 John responded, [z] “Master, we saw someone driving out demons in Your name, [a] and we tried to stop him because he does not follow us.” [b] 50 “Don’t stop him,” Jesus told him, “because whoever is not against you is for you.” [c, d]

The Journey to Jerusalem

51 When the days were coming to a close for Him to be taken up, [e, f] He determined [J, g] to journey to Jerusalem. [h] 52 He sent messengers ahead of Him, [i] and on the way they entered a village of the •Samaritans [j] to make preparations for Him. 53 But they did not welcome Him, because He determined to journey to Jerusalem. [k] 54 When the disciples James and John saw this, they said, “Lord, do You want us to call down fire from heaven to consume them? ” [l, m]

55 But He turned and rebuked them, [n] 56 and they went to another village.

Following Jesus

57 As they were traveling on the road someone said to Him, [o] “I will follow
You wherever You go! ”

58 Jesus told him, “Foxes have dens, and birds of the sky [p] have nests, but the Son of Man has no place to lay His head.” 59 Then He said to another, “Follow Me.”

“Lord,” he said, “first let me go bury my father.” [q]

60 But He told him, “Let the dead bury their own dead, but you go and spread the news of the kingdom of God.” [r]

61 Another also said, “I will follow You, Lord, but first let me go and say good-bye to those at my house.” [s]

62 But Jesus said to him, “No one who puts his hand to the plow and looks back is fit for the kingdom of God.”

Sending Out the Seventy

10 After this, the Lord appointed 70 [a] others, and He sent them ahead of Him in pairs to every town and place where He Himself was about to go. 2 He told them: [b] “The harvest [c] is abundant, but the workers [d] are few. Therefore, pray to the Lord of the harvest to send out workers into His harvest. [e] 3 Now go;
I’m sending you out like lambs among wolves. [f] 4 Don’t carry a money-bag, [g] traveling bag, [h] or sandals; [i] don’t greet anyone along the road. 5 Whatever house you enter, first say, ‘Peace [j] to this household.’ 6 If a son of peace [k] is there, your peace [l] will rest on him; but if not, it will return to you. 7 Remain in the same house, eating and drinking what they offer, for the worker is worthy of his wages. [m] Don’t be moving from house to house. 8 When you enter any town, and they welcome you, eat the things set before you. [n] 9 Heal the sick [o] who are there, and tell them, ‘The kingdom of God [p] has come near [q] you.’ 10 When you enter any town, and they don’t welcome you, go out into its streets and say, 11 ‘We are wiping off as a witness against you [r] even the dust of your town that clings to our feet. Know this for certain: The kingdom of God has come near.’ 12
I tell you, on that day [s] it will be more tolerable for Sodom [t] than for that town.
[u]

Unrepentant Towns

13 “Woe [v] to you, [w] Chorazin! [x] Woe to you, Bethsaida! [y] For if the miracles [z] that were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, [a] they would have repented long ago, sitting in •sackcloth and ashes! [b] 14 But it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment [c] than for you. 15 And you, Capernaum, [d] will you be exalted to heaven? [e] No, you will go down to •Hades ! [f] 16 Whoever listens to you listens to Me. [g] Whoever rejects you rejects Me. [h] And whoever rejects Me rejects the One who sent Me.” [i]

The Return of the Seventy

17 The Seventy [j], [k] returned with joy, saying, [l] “Lord, even the demons [m] submit to us in Your name.” [n]

18 He said to them, “I watched Satan [o] fall from heaven like a lightning flash. [p] 19 Look, I have given you the authority [q] to trample [r] on snakes [s] and scorpions [t] and over all the power of the enemy; [u] nothing will ever harm you. [v] 20 However, don’t rejoice that [w] the spirits [x] submit to you, [y] but rejoice that your names are written [z] in heaven.”

The Son Reveals the Father

21 In that same hour [a] He [b] rejoiced in the Holy [c] Spirit [d] and said, “I praise [e] You, Father, [f] Lord of heaven and earth, [g] because You have hidden these things from the wise and the learned [h] and have revealed them to infants. [i] Yes, Father, because this was Your good pleasure. [j, k] 22 All things have [l] been entrusted to Me by My Father. No one knows who the Son is except the Father, and who the Father is except the Son, and anyone to whom the Son desires [m] to reveal Him.” [n]

23 Then turning to His disciples He said privately, “The eyes that see the things you see are blessed! 24 For I tell you that many prophets and kings wanted to see the things you see yet didn’t see them; to hear the things you hear yet didn’t hear them.” [o]

The Parable of the Good Samaritan

25 Just [p] then an expert in the law [q] stood up to test [r] Him, saying, “Teacher, [s] what must I do to inherit eternal life? ” [t]

26 “What is written in the law? ” He asked him. “How do you read it? ”

27 He answered:

> Love the Lord your God [u] with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your strength, and with all your mind; [v] and your neighbor as yourself. [w, x]

28 “You’ve answered correctly,” He told him. “Do this and you will live.” [y]

29 But wanting to justify himself, [z] he asked Jesus, “And who is my neighbor? ” [a]

30 Jesus took up the question and said: “A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell into the hands of robbers. They stripped him, beat him up, and fled, leaving him half dead. 31 A priest happened to be going down that road. When he saw him, he passed by on the other side. 32 In the same way, a Levite, when he arrived at the place and saw him, passed by on the other side. 33 But a •Samaritan [b] on his journey came up to him, and when he saw the man, he had compassion. [c] 34 He went over to him and bandaged his wounds, pouring on olive oil [d] and wine. Then he put him on his own animal, brought him to an inn, and took care of him. 35 The next day [e] he took out two •denarii , gave them to the innkeeper, and said, ‘Take care of him. When I come back I’ll reimburse you for whatever extra you spend.’

36 “Which of these three do you think proved to be a neighbor to the man who fell into the hands of the robbers? ”

37 “The one who showed mercy [f] to him,” he said.

Then Jesus told him, “Go and do the same.”

Martha and Mary

38 While they were traveling, He entered a village, and a woman named Martha [g] welcomed Him into her home. [h] 39 She had a sister named Mary, who also sat at the Lord's [i] feet [j] and was listening to what He said. [A] 40 But Martha was distracted by her many tasks, and she came up and asked, "Lord, don't You care [k] that my sister has left me to serve alone? So tell her to give me a hand."
[B], [l]

41 The Lord [m] answered her, "Martha, Martha, you are worried and upset about many things, [n] 42 but one thing is necessary. [o] Mary has made the right choice, [p] and it will not be taken away from her."

The Model Prayer

11 He was praying [a] in a certain place, and when He finished, one of His disciples said to Him, “Lord, teach us to pray, just as John also taught his disciples.” [b]

2 He said to them, “Whenever you pray, say: [c]

Father, [d, e]
Your name [f] be honored as holy. [g]
Your kingdom come. [h, i]
3 Give us each day our daily bread. [j, k]
4 And forgive us our sins, [l] for we ourselves also forgive everyone in debt to us. [m, n]
And do not bring us into temptation.” [o, p]

Keep Asking, Searching, Knocking

5 He also said to them: “Suppose one of you [q] has a friend and goes to him at midnight and says to him, ‘Friend, lend me three loaves of bread, 6 because a friend of mine on a journey has come to me, and I don’t have anything to offer him.’ [r] 7 Then he will answer from inside and say, ‘Don’t bother me! The door is already locked, and my children and I have gone to bed. I can’t get up to give you anything.’ 8 I tell you, even though he won’t get up and give him anything because he is his friend, yet because of his friend’s persistence, [s] he will get up and give him as much as he needs. [t]

9 “So [u] I say to you, keep asking, [v, w] and it will be given to you. Keep searching, [x, y] and you will find. Keep knocking, [z, a] and the door will be opened to you. 10 For everyone who asks receives, and the one who searches finds, and to the one who knocks, the door will be opened. 11 What father among you, if his son [b] asks for a fish, will give him a snake instead of a fish? 12 Or if he asks for an egg, will give him a scorpion? 13 If you then, who are evil, [c] know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will the heavenly Father [d] give [e] the Holy Spirit [f] to those who ask Him? ”

A House Divided

14 Now [g] He was driving out a demon [h] that was mute. [i, j] When the demon came out, the man who had been mute, spoke, and the crowds were amazed.
15 But some of them said, “He drives out demons by •Beelzebul , [k] the ruler [l] of the demons! ” [m] 16 And others, as a test, [n] were demanding of Him a sign [o] from heaven.
17 Knowing their thoughts, [p] He told them: “Every kingdom divided [q] against itself is headed for destruction, and a house divided against itself falls. 18 If Satan [r] also is divided against himself, how will his kingdom [s] stand? For you say I drive out demons by Beelzebul. 19 And if I drive out demons by Beelzebul, who is it your sons [t, u] drive them out by? For this reason they will be your judges. 20 If I drive out demons by the finger of God, [v] then the kingdom of God [w] has come to you. 21 When a strong man, fully armed, guards his estate, his possessions are secure. [x] 22 But when one stronger than he attacks and overpowers [y] him, he takes from him all his weapons [z, a] he trusted [b] in, and divides up his plunder. [c] 23 Anyone who is not with Me is against Me, [d] and anyone who does not gather with Me scatters.

An Unclean Spirit’s Return

24 “When [e] an •unclean spirit [f] comes out of a man, it roams through waterless places looking for rest, [g] and not finding rest, it then [h] says, ‘I’ll go back to my house where I came from.’ 25 And returning, it finds the house swept and put in order. 26 Then it goes and brings seven other spirits [i] more evil than itself, and they enter and settle down there. As a result, that man’s last condition is worse than the first.” [j]

True Blessedness

27 As He was saying these things, a woman from the crowd [k] raised her voice and said to Him, “The womb that bore You and the one who nursed You [l] are blessed! ”

28 He said, “Even more, those who hear the word of God [m] and keep it [n] are blessed! ”

The Sign of Jonah

29 As the crowds were increasing, He began saying: “This generation [o] is an evil generation. [p] It demands a sign, [q] but no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah. [r, s] 30 For just as Jonah became a sign to the people of Nineveh, so also the •Son of Man [t] will be to this generation. 31 The queen of the south [u] will rise up at the judgment [v] with the men of this generation and condemn [w] them, because she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon, [x] and look — something greater than Solomon is here! 32 The men of Nineveh will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because they repented at Jonah’s proclamation, and look — something greater than Jonah is here!

The Lamp of the Body

33 “No [y] one lights a lamp [z] and puts it in the cellar or under a basket, [a] but on a lampstand, so that those who come in may see its light. 34 Your eye is the lamp of the body. [b] When your eye is good, your whole body is also full of light.
But when it is bad, [c] your body is also full of darkness. 35 Take care then, that the light in you is not darkness. 36 If, therefore, your whole body is full of light, with no part of it in darkness, it will be entirely illuminated, as when a lamp shines its light on you.” [d]

Religious Hypocrisy Denounced

37 As He was speaking, a •Pharisee [e] asked Him to dine with him. So He went in and reclined at the table. 38 When the Pharisee saw this, he was amazed that He did not first perform the ritual washing [A, f] before dinner. [g] 39 But the Lord said to him: "Now you Pharisees •clean the outside of the cup and dish, but inside you are full of greed [h] and evil. [i] 40 Fools! [j] Didn't He who made the outside make the inside too? 41 But give from what is within to the poor, [k, l] and then everything is clean [m] for you.

42 "But woe [n] to you Pharisees! You give a tenth [o, p] of mint, rue, and every kind of herb, and you bypass [q] justice [r] and love for God. [s, t] These things you should have done without neglecting the others.

43 "Woe to you Pharisees! You love the front seat [u] in the •synagogues [v] and greetings in the marketplaces.

44 "Woe to you! [w] You are like unmarked graves; [x] the people who walk over them don't know it."

45 One of the experts in the law [y] answered Him, "Teacher, when You say these things You insult us too."

46 Then He said: "Woe also to you experts in the law! You load people with burdens [z] that are hard to carry, yet you yourselves don't touch these burdens with one of your fingers. [a]

47 "Woe to you! You build monuments [b] to the prophets, [c] and your fathers killed [d] them. 48 Therefore, you are witnesses [e] that you approve [f, g] the deeds of your fathers, for they killed them, and you build their monuments. [h] 49 Because of this, the wisdom of God [i] said, 'I will send them prophets and apostles, [j] and some of them they will kill and persecute,' [k] 50 so that this generation [l] may be held responsible for the blood of all the prophets shed since the foundation of the world [m, n] — 51 from the blood of Abel [o] to the blood of Zechariah, [p] who perished between the altar and the sanctuary.

"Yes, I tell you, this generation will be held responsible. [q]

52 "Woe to you experts in the law! You have taken away the key of knowledge! [r] You didn't go in yourselves, and you hindered [s] those who were going in."

53 When He left there, [t] the •scribes and the Pharisees began to oppose [u] Him fiercely and to cross-examine Him about many things; 54 they were lying in wait [v] for Him to trap Him in something He said. [w, x]

Beware of Religious Hypocrisy

12 In these circumstances, [A] a crowd of many thousands came together, so that they were trampling [a] on one another. He began to say to His disciples first: [b] “Be on your guard [c] against the yeast [d, e] of the •Pharisees , which is hypocrisy. [f] 2 There is nothing covered that won’t be uncovered, [g] nothing hidden that won’t be made known. [h] 3 Therefore, whatever you have said in the dark will be heard in the light, and what you have whispered in an ear in private rooms [i] will be proclaimed on the housetops. [j]

Fear God

4 “And I say to you, My friends, [k] don’t fear [l] those who kill the body, and after that can do nothing more. 5 But I will show you the One to fear: Fear [m] Him who has authority to throw people into •hell [n] after death. Yes, I say to you, this is the One to fear! 6 Aren’t five sparrows sold for two pennies? [o] Yet not one of them is forgotten in God’s sight. [p] 7 Indeed, the hairs of your head are all counted. Don’t be afraid; you are worth more than many sparrows!

Acknowledging Christ

8 “And I say to you, anyone who acknowledges [q] Me before men, the •Son of Man [r] will also acknowledge him before the angels of God, [s] 9 but whoever denies Me before men will be denied before the angels of God. [t] 10 Anyone who speaks a word against the Son of Man will be forgiven, [u] but the one who blasphemes against the Holy Spirit [v] will not be forgiven. 11 Whenever [w] they bring you before •synagogues and rulers and authorities, [x] don’t worry [y] about how you should defend [z] yourselves or what you should say. 12 For the Holy Spirit will teach you at that very hour what must be said.” [a]

The Parable of the Rich Fool

13 Someone from the crowd said to Him, “Teacher, [b] tell my brother to divide the inheritance with me.”

14 “Friend,” [c] He said to him, “who appointed Me a judge or arbitrator over you? ” 15 He then told them, “Watch out and be on guard [d] against all greed [e] because one’s life is not in the abundance of his possessions.” [f]

16 Then He told them a parable: [g] “A rich [h] man’s land was very productive. 17 He thought to himself, ‘What should I do, since I don’t have anywhere to store my crops? 18 I will do this,’ he said. ‘I’ll tear down my barns and build bigger ones and store all my grain and my goods there. 19 Then I’ll say to myself, “You [i] have many goods stored up for many years. Take it easy; [j] eat, drink, and enjoy yourself.” ’ [k]

20 “But God said to him, ‘You fool! [l] This very night your •life is demanded of you. And the things you have prepared — whose will they be? ’ [m]

21 “That’s how it is with the one who stores up treasure [n] for himself and is not rich toward God.” [o]

The Cure for Anxiety

22 Then He said to His disciples: “Therefore I tell you, [p] don’t worry about your life, what you will eat; or about the body, what you will wear. [q] 23 For life is more than food and the body more than clothing. 24 Consider the ravens: [r]
They don’t sow or reap; they don’t have a storeroom or a barn; yet God feeds them. [s] Aren’t you worth much more than the birds? 25 Can any of you add a •cubit to his height [t] by worrying? [u] 26 If then you’re not able to do even a little thing, why worry about the rest?

27 “Consider how the wildflowers grow: They don’t labor or spin thread. Yet I tell you, not even Solomon [v] in all his splendor was adorned like one of these!
28 If that’s how God clothes the grass, which is in the field today and is thrown into the furnace tomorrow, how much more will He do for you — you of little faith? [w] 29 Don’t keep striving for what you should eat and what you should drink, and don’t be anxious. 30 For the Gentile world eagerly seeks [x] all these things, and your Father [y] knows that you need them.

31 “But seek His kingdom, [z] and these things will be provided for you. [a] 32 Don’t be afraid, [b] little flock, [c] because your Father delights [d] to give you the kingdom. [e] 33 Sell [f] your possessions and give to the poor. [g] Make money-bags [h] for yourselves that won’t grow old, an inexhaustible treasure [i] in heaven, where no thief comes near and no moth destroys. 34 For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also. [j]

Ready for the Master’s Return

35 “Be ready for service [k] and have your lamps lit. [l] 36 You must be like people waiting for their master [m] to return [n] from the wedding banquet [o] so that when he comes and knocks, they can open the door for him at once. [p] 37 Those •slaves the master will find alert [q] when he comes will be blessed. •I assure you:
He will get ready, [r] have them recline at the table, then come and serve them. [s]
38 If he comes in the middle of the night, or even near dawn, [t] and finds them alert, those slaves are blessed. 39 But know this: If the homeowner had known at what hour the thief was coming, [u] he would not have let his house be broken into. 40 You also be ready, [v] because the Son of Man [w] is coming at an hour that you do not expect.” [x]

Rewards and Punishment

41 “Lord,” Peter asked, “are You telling this parable to us or to everyone? ”

42 The Lord said: “Who then is the faithful and sensible manager [y] his master will put in charge of his household servants to give them their allotted food [z] at the proper time? 43 That slave whose master finds him working when he comes will be rewarded. 44 I tell you the truth: He will put him in charge of all his possessions. 45 But if that slave says in his heart, ‘My master is delaying his coming,’ [a] and starts to beat the male and female slaves, and to eat and drink and get drunk, 46 that slave’s master will come on a day he does not expect him and at an hour he does not know. He will cut him to pieces [b] and assign him a place with the unbelievers. [c] 47 And that slave who knew his master’s will and didn’t prepare himself or do it [d] will be severely beaten. [e] 48 But the one who did not know and did things deserving [f] of blows will be beaten lightly. Much will be required of everyone who has been given much. And even more will be expected of the one who has been entrusted with more. [g, h]

Not Peace but Division

49 “I came [i] to bring fire on the earth, and how I wish it were already set ablaze! 50 But I have a baptism to be baptized with, [j] and how it consumes [k] Me until it is finished! [l] 51 Do you think that I came here to give peace to the earth?
[m] No, I tell you, but rather division! 52 From now on, five in one household will be divided: three against two, and two against three.

53 They will be divided, father against son,
son against father,
mother against daughter,
daughter against mother,
mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and daughter-in-law against mother-in-law.” [n, o]

Interpreting the Time

54 He also said to the crowds: [p] “When you see a cloud rising in the west, right away you say, ‘A storm is coming,’ and so it does. [q] 55 And when the south wind is blowing, you say, ‘It’s going to be a scorcher! ’ and it is. 56 Hypocrites!
[r] You know how to interpret the appearance of the earth and the sky, but why don’t you know how to interpret this time? [s]

Settling Accounts

57 “Why don’t you judge for yourselves what is right? [t] 58 As you are going with your adversary [u] to the ruler, make an effort to settle with him on the way.
Then he won’t drag you before the judge, [v] the judge hand you over to the bailiff, and the bailiff throw you into prison. [w] 59 I tell you, you will never get out of there until you have paid the last cent.” [x, y]

Repent or Perish

13 At that time, [a] some people came and reported to Him about the Galileans [b] whose blood •Pilate [c] had mixed with their sacrifices. 2 And He [d] responded to them, “Do you think that these Galileans were more sinful than all Galileans because they suffered these things? [e] 3 No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish as well! 4 Or those 18 that the tower in Siloam [f] fell on and killed — do you think they were more sinful than all the people who live in Jerusalem? 5 No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish as well! ”

The Parable of the Barren Fig Tree

6 And He told this parable: [g] “A man had a fig tree that was planted in his vineyard. He came looking for fruit on it and found none. [h] 7 He told the vineyard worker, ‘Listen, for three years I have come looking for fruit on this fig tree and haven’t found any. Cut it down! [i] Why should it even waste the soil? ’ [j]

8 “But he replied to him, ‘Sir, [k] leave it this year also, until I dig around it and fertilize it. [l] 9 Perhaps it will bear fruit next year, but if not, you can cut it down.’ ”

Healing a Daughter of Abraham

10 As He was teaching in one of the •synagogues on the Sabbath, [m] 11 a woman was there who had been disabled by a spirit [A, n] for over 18 years. She was bent over and could not straighten up at all. [B] 12 When Jesus saw her, He called out to her, [C] "•Woman , you are free of your disability." 13 Then He laid His hands on her, [o] and instantly she was restored [p] and began to glorify God. [q]

14 But the leader of the synagogue, indignant [r] because Jesus had healed on the Sabbath, responded by telling the crowd, "There are six days when work should be done; [s] therefore come on those days and be healed and not on the Sabbath day."

15 But the Lord answered him and said, "Hypocrites! [t] Doesn't each one of you untie his ox [u] or donkey from the feeding trough [v] on the Sabbath and lead it to water? [w] 16 Satan [x] has bound [y] this woman, a daughter of Abraham, [z] for 18 years — shouldn't she be untied from this bondage on the Sabbath day? "

17 When He had said these things, all His adversaries [a] were humiliated, [b] but the whole crowd was rejoicing over all the glorious things He was doing. [c]

The Parables of the Mustard Seed and of the Yeast 18 He said, therefore, "What is the kingdom of God like, [d] and what can I compare it to? 19 It's like a mustard seed that a man took and sowed in his garden. It grew and became a tree, and the birds of the sky nested in its branches."

20 Again He said, "What can I compare the kingdom of God [e] to? 21 It's like yeast [f] that a woman took and mixed into 50 pounds [g] of flour until it spread through the entire mixture." [h]

The Narrow Way

22 He went through one town and village after another, teaching and making His way to Jerusalem. [i] 23 "Lord," someone asked Him, "are there few being saved? " [D, j]

He said to them, 24 "Make every effort to enter through the narrow door, [k] because I tell you, many will try to enter and won't be able 25 once the homeowner gets up and shuts the door. [l] Then you will stand [m] outside and knock on the door, saying, 'Lord, open up for us! ' He will answer you, 'I don't know you or where you're from.' 26 Then you will say, [n] 'We ate and drank in Your presence, and You taught in our streets! ' 27 But He will say, 'I tell you, I don't know you or where you're from. Get away from Me, [o] all you workers of unrighteousness! ' 28 There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth [p] in that place, [q] when you see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom of God [r] but yourselves thrown out. 29 They will come from east and west, from north and south, and recline at the table [s] in the kingdom of God. 30
Note this: Some are last who will be first, and some are first who will be last." [t]

Jesus and Herod Antipas

31 At that time some •Pharisees came and told Him, “Go, get out of here! •Herod [u] wants to kill You! ” [v]

32 He said to them, “Go tell that fox, ‘Look! I’m driving out demons and performing healings today and tomorrow, and on the third day [w] I will complete My work.’ [x, y] 33 Yet I must [z] travel today, tomorrow, and the next day, because it is not possible for a prophet [a] to perish [b] outside of Jerusalem!

Jesus’ Lamentation over Jerusalem

34 “Jerusalem, Jerusalem! [c] She who kills the prophets and stones [d] those who are sent to her. [e] How often I wanted to gather your children [f] together, as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, [g] but you were not willing! [h] 35 See, your house [i] is abandoned to you. [j] And I tell you, you will not see Me until the time comes when you say, ‘He who comes in the name of the Lord is the blessed One’!” [k, l]

A Sabbath Controversy

14 One Sabbath, when He went to eat [A] at the house of one of the leading •Pharisees , [a] they were watching Him closely. [b] 2 There in front of Him was a man whose body was swollen with fluid. [c] 3 In response, Jesus asked the law experts [d] and the Pharisees, “Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath or not? ” [e] 4 But they kept silent. He took the man, healed him, and sent him away. 5 And to them, He said, “Which of you whose son or ox falls into a well, will not immediately pull him out on the Sabbath day? ” [f] 6 To this they could find no answer.

Teachings on Humility

7 He told a parable [g] to those who were invited, when He noticed how they would choose the best places [h] for themselves: 8 “When you are invited by someone to a wedding banquet, don’t recline at the best place, because a more distinguished person [i] than you may have been invited by your host. [j] 9 The one who invited both of you may come and say to you, ‘Give your place to this man,’ and then in humiliation, you will proceed to take the lowest place.

10 “But when you are invited, go and recline in the lowest place, so that when the one who invited you comes, he will say to you, ‘Friend, move up higher.’ You will then be honored [k] in the presence of all the other guests. [l] 11 For everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, and the one who humbles himself will be exalted.” [m]

12 He also said to the one who had invited Him, “When you give a lunch or a dinner, don’t invite your friends, your brothers, your relatives, or your rich neighbors, because they might invite you back, and you would be repaid. 13 On the contrary, when you host a banquet, [n] invite those who are poor, maimed, lame, or blind. [o] 14 And you will be blessed, because they cannot repay you; for you will be repaid [p] at the resurrection of the righteous.” [q]

The Parable of the Large Banquet

15 When [r] one of those who reclined at the table with Him heard these things, he said to Him, “The one who will eat bread in the kingdom of God [s] is blessed! ”

16 Then He told him: “A man was giving a large banquet and invited many. 17 At the time of the banquet, he sent his •slave to tell those who were invited, ‘Come, because everything is now ready.’

18 “But without exception [t] they all began to make excuses. The first one said to him, ‘I have bought a field, and I must go out and see it. I ask you to excuse me.’

19 “Another said, ‘I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I’m going to try them out. I ask you to excuse me.’

20 “And another said, ‘I just got married, [u,] [v] and therefore I’m unable to come.’

21 “So the slave came back and reported these things to his master. Then in anger, the master of the house told his slave, ‘Go out quickly into the streets and alleys of the city, and bring in here the poor, maimed, blind, and lame! ’ [w]

22 “ ‘Master,’ the slave said, ‘what you ordered has been done, and there’s still room.’

23 “Then the master told the slave, ‘Go out into the highways and lanes and make them come in, so that my house may be filled. 24 For I tell you, not one of those men who were invited will enjoy my banquet! ’ ”

The Cost of Following Jesus

25 Now [x] great crowds were traveling with Him. So He turned and said to them: 26 “If anyone comes to Me [y] and does not hate [z] his own father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters — yes, and even his own life — he cannot be My disciple. 27 Whoever does not bear his own cross [a] and come after Me cannot be My disciple.

28 “For which of you, wanting to build a tower, doesn’t first sit down and calculate the cost [b] to see if he has enough to complete it? 29 Otherwise, after he has laid the foundation and cannot finish it, all the onlookers will begin to make fun of him, 30 saying, ‘This man started to build and wasn’t able to finish.’

31 “Or what king, going to war against another king, will not first sit down and decide if he is able with 10,000 to oppose the one who comes against him with 20,000? 32 If not, while the other is still far off, he sends a delegation and asks for terms of peace. 33 In the same way, therefore, every one of you who does not say good-bye to [c] all his possessions [d] cannot be My disciple.

34 “Now, [e] salt [f] is good, but if salt should lose its taste, how will it be made salty? 35 It isn’t fit for the soil or for the manure pile; they throw it out. Anyone who has ears to hear should listen! ” [g]

The Parable of the Lost Sheep

15 All [a] the tax collectors [b] and sinners were approaching to listen to Him.
2 And the •Pharisees and •scribes were complaining, “This man welcomes sinners [c] and eats with them! ” 3 So He told them this parable: [d] 4 “What man among you, who has 100 sheep and loses one of them, [e] does not leave the 99 in the open field [f] and go after the lost one until he finds it? 5 When he has found it, he joyfully puts it on his shoulders, 6 and coming home, he calls his friends and neighbors together, saying to them, ‘Rejoice with me, because I have found my lost sheep! ’ 7 I tell you, in the same way, there will be more joy in heaven [g] over one sinner who repents than over 99 righteous people who don’t need repentance.

The Parable of the Lost Coin

8 “Or what woman who has 10 silver coins, [h] if she loses one coin, does not light a lamp, sweep the house, and search carefully until she finds it? 9 When she finds it, she calls her women friends and neighbors together, saying, ‘Rejoice with me, because I have found the silver coin I lost! ’ 10 I tell you, in the same way, there is joy in the presence of God’s angels [i] over one sinner who repents.”

The Parable of the Lost Son

11 He also said: “A man had two sons. 12 The younger of them said to his father, ‘Father, give me the share of the estate I have coming to me.’ So he distributed the assets [j] to them. 13 Not many days later, the younger son gathered together all he had and traveled to a distant country, where he squandered [k] his estate in foolish living. [l] 14 After he had spent everything, a severe famine struck that country, and he had nothing. [m] 15 Then he went to work for [n] one of the citizens of that country, who sent him into his fields to feed pigs. [o] 16 He longed to eat his fill from [p] the carob pods [q] the pigs were eating, but no one would give him any. 17 When he came to his senses, [r] he said, ‘How many of my father’s hired hands have more than enough food, and here I am dying of hunger! [s] 18 I’ll get up, go to my father, and say to him, Father, I have sinned [t] against heaven [u] and in your sight. 19 I’m no longer worthy [v] to be called your son. Make me like one of your hired hands.’ 20 So he got up and went to his father. But while the son was still a long way off, his father saw him and was filled with compassion. [w] He ran, threw his arms around his neck, [x] and kissed [y] him. 21 The son said to him, ‘Father, I have sinned against heaven and in your sight. I’m no longer worthy to be called your son.’
22 “But the father told his •slaves , ‘Quick! Bring out the best robe [z] and put it on him; put a ring [a] on his finger [b] and sandals [c] on his feet. 23 Then bring the fattened calf [d] and slaughter it, and let’s celebrate with a feast, 24 because this son of mine was dead and is alive again; [e] he was lost and is found! ’ So they began to celebrate.

25 “Now his older son was in the field; as he came near the house, he heard music and dancing. 26 So he summoned one of the servants and asked what these things meant. 27 ‘Your brother is here,’ he told him, ‘and your father has slaughtered the fattened calf because he has him back safe and sound.’ [f]

28 “Then he became angry and didn’t want to go in. So his father came out and pleaded with him. 29 But he replied to his father, ‘Look, I have been slaving many years for you, and I have never disobeyed your orders, yet you never gave me a young goat so I could celebrate with my friends. 30 But when this son of yours came, who has devoured your assets [g] with prostitutes, [h] you slaughtered the fattened calf for him.’

31 “ ‘Son,’ [i] he said to him, ‘you are always with me, [j] and everything I have is yours. 32 But we had to celebrate and rejoice, because this brother of yours was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found.’ ”

The Parable of the Dishonest Manager

16 He also said to the disciples: “There was a rich [a] man who received an accusation that his manager [b] was squandering [c] his possessions. 2 So he called the manager in and asked, ‘What is this I hear about you? Give an account of your management, [d] because you can no longer be my manager.’ 3 “Then the manager said to himself, ‘What should I do, since my master is taking the management away from me? I’m not strong enough to dig; I’m ashamed to beg. 4 I know what I’ll do so that when I’m removed from management, people will welcome me into their homes.’
5 “So he summoned each one of his master’s debtors. ‘How much do you owe my master? ’ he asked the first one.
6 “ ‘A hundred measures of olive oil,’ he said.
“ ‘Take your invoice,’ he told him, ‘sit down quickly, and write 50.’
7 “Next he asked another, ‘How much do you owe? ’
“ ‘A hundred measures of wheat,’ he said.
“ ‘Take your invoice,’ he told him, ‘and write 80.’ 8 “The master praised the unrighteous manager [e] because he had acted astutely. For the sons of this age [f] are more astute than the sons of light [g] in dealing with their own people. [h] 9 And I tell you, make friends [i] for yourselves by means of the unrighteous money [j] so that when it fails, [k] they may welcome you into eternal dwellings. 10 Whoever is faithful [l] in very little [m] is also faithful in much, and whoever is unrighteous in very little is also unrighteous in much. 11 So if you have not been faithful with the unrighteous money, who will trust you with what is genuine? 12 And if you have not been faithful with what belongs to someone else, who will give you what is your own? 13 No [n] household slave can be the •slave of two masters, since either he will hate [o] one and love the other, or he will be devoted to one and despise the other. You can’t be slaves to both God and money.”

Kingdom Values

14 The •Pharisees , who were lovers of money, [p] were listening to all these things and scoffing [q] at Him. 15 And He told them: “You are the ones who justify [r] yourselves in the sight of others, but God knows your hearts. [s] For what is highly admired by people is revolting [t] in God’s sight.

16 “The [u] Law and the Prophets [v] were [w] until John; since then, the good news of the kingdom of God [x] has been proclaimed, and everyone is strongly urged to enter it. [y] 17 But it is easier [z] for heaven and earth to pass away than for one stroke of a letter in the law to drop out.

18 “Everyone [a] who divorces [b] his wife and marries another woman commits adultery, [c] and everyone who marries a woman divorced from her husband commits adultery.

The Rich Man and Lazarus

19 “There was a rich man who would dress in purple and fine linen, [d] feasting lavishly every day. 20 But a poor man named Lazarus, covered with sores, was left at his gate. [e] 21 He longed to be filled [f] with what fell from the rich man’s table, [g] but instead the dogs [h] would come and lick his sores. 22 One day the poor man died and was carried away by the angels to Abraham’s side. [i, j] The rich man also died and was buried. 23 And being in torment [k] in •Hades , [l] he looked up and saw Abraham a long way off, with Lazarus at his side. 24 ‘Father Abraham! ’ [m] he called out, ‘Have mercy on me and send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue, because I am in agony [n] in this flame! ’

25 “ ‘Son,’ [o] Abraham said, ‘remember that during your life you received your good things, [p] just as Lazarus received bad things, but now he is comforted here, [q] while you are in agony. 26 Besides all this, a great chasm has been fixed between us and you, so that those who want to pass over from here to you cannot; neither can those from there cross over to us.’

27 “ ‘Father,’ he said, ‘then I beg you to send him to my father’s house — 28 because I have five brothers — to warn [r] them, so they won’t also come to this place of torment.’

29 “But Abraham said, ‘They have Moses and the prophets; [s] they should listen to them.’

30 “ ‘No, father Abraham,’ he said. ‘But if someone from the dead goes to them, they will repent.’

31 “But he told him, ‘If they don’t listen to Moses and the prophets, they will not be persuaded if someone rises from the dead.’ ” [t]

Warnings from Jesus

17 He [a] said to His disciples, “Offenses [b] will certainly come, [c] but woe [d] to the one they come [e] through! 2 It would be better for him if a millstone [f] were hung around his neck and he were thrown into the sea than for him to cause one of these little ones to •stumble . [g] 3 Be [h] on your guard. If your brother sins, [i] rebuke [j] him, and if he repents, forgive [k] him. 4 And if he sins against you seven times in a day, and comes back to you seven times, saying, ‘I repent,’ you must forgive him.”

Faith and Duty

5 The [l] apostles [m] said to the Lord, “Increase our faith.” [n]

6 “If you have faith the size of [o] a mustard seed,” [p] the Lord said, “you can say to this mulberry tree, ‘Be uprooted and planted in the sea,’ and it will obey you.

7 “Which one of you having a •slave tending sheep or plowing will say to him when he comes in from the field, ‘Come at once and sit down to eat’? 8 Instead, will he not tell him, ‘Prepare something for me to eat, get ready, [q] and serve me while I eat and drink; later you can eat and drink’? [r] 9 Does he thank that slave because he did what was commanded? [s] 10 In the same way, when you have done all that you were commanded, you should say, ‘We are good-for-nothing [t] slaves; we’ve only done our duty.’ ”

Ten Men Healed

11 While traveling to Jerusalem, [u] He passed between [A] Samaria and Galilee.
[v] 12 As He entered a village, 10 men with serious skin diseases [w] met Him. They stood at a distance 13 and raised their voices, saying, “Jesus, Master, [x] have mercy on us! ”

14 When He saw them, He told them, “Go and show yourselves to the priests.” [y] And while they were going, they were healed. [B]

15 But one of them, seeing that he was healed, returned and, with a loud voice, gave glory to God. [z] 16 He fell facedown [a] at His feet, thanking Him. And he was a •Samaritan . [b]

17 Then Jesus said, “Were not 10 cleansed? Where are the nine? 18 Didn’t any return [c] to give glory to God except this foreigner? ” 19 And He told him, “Get up and go on your way. Your faith has made you well.” [d, e]

The Coming of the Kingdom

20 Being [f] asked by the •Pharisees when the kingdom of God will come, [g] He answered them, "The kingdom of God is not coming with something observable; 21 no one will say, [h] 'Look here! ' or 'There! ' For you see, the kingdom of God is among you."

22 Then He told the disciples: "The days are coming [i] when you will long to see one of the days of the •Son of Man, but you won't see it. [j] 23 They will say to you, [k] 'Look there! ' or 'Look here! ' Don't follow or run after them. [l] 24 For as the lightning flashes from horizon to horizon and lights up the sky, so the Son of Man will be in His day. [m] 25 But first He must suffer many things and be rejected by this generation. [n]

26 "Just as it was in the days of Noah, [o] so it will be in the days of the Son of Man: 27 People went on eating, drinking, marrying and giving in marriage [p] until the day Noah boarded the ark, [q] and the flood came and destroyed them all. 28 It will be the same as it was in the days of Lot: [r] People went on eating, drinking, buying, selling, planting, building. 29 But on the day Lot left Sodom, fire and sulfur rained from heaven and destroyed [s] them all. 30 It [t] will be like that on the day the Son of Man is revealed. [u] 31 On that day, a man on the housetop, whose belongings are in the house, must not come down to get them. Likewise the man who is in the field must not turn back. 32 Remember Lot's wife! [v] 33 Whoever tries to make his •life secure [w, x] will lose it, and whoever loses his life will preserve it. [y] 34 I tell you, on that night [z] two will be in one bed: One will be taken and the other will be left. 35 Two women will be grinding grain together: One will be taken and the other left. [36 Two will be in a field: One will be taken, and the other will be left.]" [a]

37 "Where, Lord? " [b] they asked Him.

He said to them, "Where the corpse is, there also the vultures [c] will be gathered."

The Parable of the Persistent Widow

18 He then told them a parable on the need for them to pray [a] always and not become discouraged: [b] 2 “There was a judge in a certain town who didn’t fear God [c] or respect man. 3 And a widow [d] in that town kept coming to him, saying, ‘Give me justice against my adversary.’

4 “For a while he was unwilling, but later he said to himself, ‘Even though I don’t fear God or respect man, 5 yet because this widow keeps [e] pestering me, [f] I will give her justice, so she doesn’t wear me out [g] by her persistent coming.’ ”

6 Then the Lord said, “Listen to what the unjust judge says. 7 Will not God grant justice [h] to His elect [i] who cry out to Him day and night? [j] Will He delay [k] to help them? [l] 8 I tell you that He will swiftly grant them justice. Nevertheless, when the •Son of Man comes, [m] will He find that faith [n] on earth? ”

The Parable of the Pharisee and the Tax Collector 9 He [o] also told this parable to some who trusted in themselves [p] that they were righteous [q] and looked down [r] on everyone else: 10 “Two men went up to the •temple complex to pray, [s] one a •Pharisee and the other a tax collector. 11 The Pharisee took his stand [t, u] and was praying like this: ‘God, I thank You that I’m not like other people [v] — greedy, [w] unrighteous, [x] adulterers, [y] or even like this tax collector. 12 I fast [z] twice a week; I give a tenth [a, b] of everything I get.’

13 “But the tax collector, standing far off, [c] would not even raise his eyes to heaven [d] but kept striking his chest [e, f] and saying, ‘God, turn Your wrath from me [g, h] — a sinner! ’ [i] 14 I tell you, this one went down to his house •justified [j] rather than the other; because everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, but the one who humbles himself will be exalted.” [k]

Blessing the Children

15 Some [l] people were even bringing infants to Him so He might touch them, but when the disciples saw it, they rebuked them. 16 Jesus, however, invited them: “Let the little children come to Me, [m] and don’t stop them, because the kingdom of God belongs to such as these. 17 •I assure you: [n] Whoever does not welcome [o] the kingdom of God like a little child [p] will never enter it.”

The Rich Young Ruler

18 A [q] ruler [r] asked Him, “Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life? ” [s]

19 “Why do you call Me good? ” Jesus asked him. “No one is good but One — God. 20 You know the commandments:

Do not commit adultery;
do not murder;
do not steal;
do not bear false witness;
honor your father and mother.” [t, u]

21 “I have kept all these from my youth,” he said.

22 When Jesus heard this, He told him, “You still lack one thing: Sell all that you have and distribute it to the poor, [v] and you will have treasure in heaven. [w] Then come, follow Me.” [x]

23 After he heard this, he became extremely sad, [y] because he was very rich.

Possessions and the Kingdom

24 Seeing that he became sad, [z] Jesus said, “How hard it is for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God! 25 For it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter the kingdom of God.”
26 Those who heard this asked, “Then who can be saved? ” [a] 27 He replied, “What is impossible with men is possible with God.” [b]
28 Then Peter said, “Look, we have left what we had and followed [c] You.”
29 So He said to them, “I assure you: There is no one who has left a house, wife or brothers, parents or children because of the kingdom of God, 30 who will not receive many times more at this time, [d] and eternal life in the age to come.”

The Third Prediction of His Death

31 Then [e] He took the Twelve aside and told them, “Listen! We are going up to Jerusalem. [f] Everything that is written [g] through the prophets about the Son of Man will be accomplished. [h] 32 For He will be handed over to the Gentiles, [i] and He will be mocked, [j] insulted, spit [k] on; 33 and after they flog Him, they will kill Him, and He will rise on the third day.” [l] 34 They understood none of these things. [m] This saying [n, o] was hidden [p] from them, and they did not grasp what was said.

A Blind Man Receives His Sight

35 As [q] He drew near Jericho, a blind man was sitting by the road begging.
36 Hearing a crowd passing by, he inquired what this meant. 37 “Jesus the •Nazarene [r] is passing by,” they told him.
38 So he called out, [s] “Jesus, Son of David, [t] have mercy [u] on me! ” 39 Then those in front told him to keep quiet, [A] but he kept crying out all the more, “Son of David, have mercy on me! ” 40 Jesus stopped and commanded that he be brought to Him. When he drew near, He asked him, 41 “What do you want Me to do for you? ” “Lord,” he said, “I want to see! ”
42 “Receive your sight! ” [v] Jesus told him. “Your faith has healed you.” [w, x] 43 Instantly he could see, and he began to follow Him, glorifying God. [y] All the people, [z] when they saw it, gave praise to God.

Jesus Visits Zacchaeus

19 He entered Jericho and was passing through. 2 There was a man named Zacchaeus who was a chief tax collector, and he was rich. 3 He was trying to see who Jesus was, but he was not able because of the crowd, since he was a short man. 4 So running ahead, he climbed up a sycamore tree to see Jesus, since He was about to pass that way. 5 When Jesus came to the place, He looked up and said to him, “Zacchaeus, hurry and come down because today I must stay at your house.”
6 So he quickly came down and welcomed Him joyfully. 7 All who saw it began to complain, [a] “He’s gone to lodge with a sinful man! ” 8 But Zacchaeus stood there and said to the Lord, “Look, I’ll give [A] half of my possessions to the poor, [b] Lord! And if I have extorted [c] anything from anyone, I’ll pay [B] back four times as much! ” [d] 9 “Today salvation [e] has come to this house,” Jesus told him, “because he too is a son of Abraham. [f] 10 For the •Son of Man has come to seek and to save the lost.” [g, h]

The Parable of the 10 Minas

11 As [i] they were listening to this, He went on to tell a parable because He was near Jerusalem, [j] and they thought the kingdom of God was going to appear right away. [k] 12 Therefore He said: “A nobleman traveled to a far country to receive for himself authority to be king [l] and then return. 13 He called 10 of his •slaves , gave them 10 minas, [m] and told them, ‘Engage in business until I come back.’ 14 “But his subjects hated him and sent a delegation after him, saying, ‘We don’t want this man to rule over us! ’ 15 “At his return, having received the authority to be king, [n] he summoned those slaves he had given the money to, so he could find out how much they had made in business. 16 The first came forward and said, ‘Master, your mina has earned 10 more minas.’
17 “ ‘Well done, good [o] slave! ’ he told him. ‘Because you have been faithful [p] in a very small matter, have authority over 10 towns.’
18 “The second came and said, ‘Master, your mina has made five minas.’ 19 “So he said to him, ‘You will be over five towns.’
20 “And another came and said, ‘Master, here is your mina. I have kept it hidden away in a cloth 21 because I was afraid of you, for you’re a tough man:
you collect what you didn’t deposit and reap what you didn’t sow.’ [q]

22 “He told him, ‘I will judge you by what you have said, [r] you evil slave! If you knew I was a tough man, collecting what I didn’t deposit and reaping what I didn’t sow, 23 why didn’t you put my money in the bank? And when I returned, I would have collected it with interest! ’ 24 So he said to those standing there, ‘Take the mina away from him and give it to the one who has 10 minas.’
25 “But they said to him, ‘Master, he has 10 minas.’ 26 “ ‘I tell you, that to everyone who has, more will be given; and from the one who does not have, even what he does have will be taken away. [s] 27 But bring here these enemies of mine, [t] who did not want me to rule over them, and slaughter [u] them in my presence.’ ”

The Triumphal Entry

28 When [v] He had said these things, He went on ahead, going up to Jerusalem. [w] 29 As He approached Bethphage and Bethany, at the place called the •Mount of Olives, [x] He sent two of the disciples 30 and said, "Go into the village ahead of you. As you enter it, you will find a young donkey tied there, on which no one has ever sat. Untie it and bring it here. 31 If anyone asks you, 'Why are you untying it? ' say this: 'The Lord needs it.' "

32 So those who were sent left and found it just as He had told them. [y] 33 As they were untying the young donkey, its owners said to them, "Why are you untying the donkey? "

34 "The Lord needs it," they said. 35 Then [z] they brought it to Jesus, and after throwing their robes on the donkey, they helped Jesus get on it. [a] 36 As He was going along, they were spreading their robes on the road. [b] 37 Now He came near the path down the Mount of Olives, and the whole crowd of the disciples began to praise God joyfully with a loud voice for all the miracles they had seen:

38 The King [c] who comes in the name of the Lord [d, e, f] is the blessed One.
Peace in heaven
and glory [g] in the highest heaven! [h]

39 Some of the •Pharisees from the crowd told Him, "Teacher, rebuke Your disciples."

40 He answered, "I tell you, if they were to keep silent, the stones would cry out! " [i]

Jesus' Love for Jerusalem

41 As He approached and saw the city, He wept [j] over it, 42 saying, "If you knew [k] this day what would bring peace — but now it is hidden [l] from your eyes. 43 For the days will come on you [m] when your enemies will build an embankment against you, surround you, and hem you in on every side. [n] 44 They will crush you and your children within you to the ground, [o] and they will not leave one stone on another [p] in you, because you did not recognize the time of your visitation." [q]

Cleansing the Temple Complex

45 He [r] went into the •temple complex and began to throw out those who were selling, [s] 46 and He said, “It is written, My house will be a house of prayer, [t] but you have made it a den of thieves! ” [u, v]

47 Every day He was teaching [w] in the temple complex. The •chief priests, the •scribes , and the leaders of the people were looking for a way to destroy [x] Him, 48 but they could not find a way to do it, because all the people [y] were captivated by what they heard. [C]

The Authority of Jesus Challenged

20 One [a] day [A] as He was teaching [b] the people in the •temple complex and proclaiming the good news, [c] the •chief priests and the •scribes , with the elders, [d] came up [2] and said to Him: “Tell us, by what authority are You doing these things? Who is it who gave You this authority? ” [3] He answered them, “I will also ask you a question. Tell Me, [4] was the baptism of John from heaven or from men? ” [5] They discussed it among themselves: “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ He will say, ‘Why didn’t you believe him? ’ [6] But if we say, ‘From men,’ all the people [e] will stone us, because they are convinced that John was a prophet.” [f] [7] So they answered that they did not know its origin. [B] [8] And Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things.”

The Parable of the Vineyard Owner

[9] Then [g] He began to tell the people this parable: “A man planted a vineyard, [h] leased it to tenant farmers, and went away for a long time. [10] At harvest time he sent a •slave to the farmers so that they might give him some fruit from the vineyard. But the farmers beat him and sent him away empty-handed. [11] He sent yet another slave, but they beat that one too, treated him shamefully, and sent him away empty-handed. [12] And he sent yet a third, but they wounded this one too and threw him out.
[13] “Then the owner of the vineyard said, ‘What should I do? I will send my beloved [i] son. Perhaps [j] they will respect him.’ [14] “But when the tenant farmers saw him, they discussed it among themselves and said, ‘This is the heir. Let’s kill him, so the inheritance will be ours! ’ [k] [15] So they threw him out of the vineyard and killed him.
“Therefore, what will the owner of the vineyard do to them? [16] He will come and destroy [l] those farmers and give the vineyard to others.”
But when they heard this they said, “No — never! ” [m] [17] But He looked at them and said, “Then what is the meaning of this Scripture: [n, o]

The stone that the builders rejected —
this has become the cornerstone? [p, q , r]

[18] Everyone who falls on that stone will be broken to pieces, and if it falls on anyone, it will grind him to powder! ” [s] [19] Then the scribes and the chief priests [t] looked for a way to get their hands on Him [u] that very hour, because they knew He had told this parable against them, but they feared the people. [v]

God and Caesar

20 They [w], [x] watched closely [y] and sent spies [z] who pretended to be righteous, [C] so they could catch Him in what He said, [D], [a] to hand Him [b] over to the governor's [c] rule and authority. 21 They questioned Him, "Teacher, we know that You speak and teach correctly, [d] and You don't show partiality, [E], [e] but teach truthfully the way of God. [f] 22 Is it lawful [g] for us to pay taxes [h] to Caesar [i] or not? "

23 But detecting their craftiness, He said to them, [j] 24 "Show Me a •denarius . Whose image and inscription does it have? "

"Caesar's," they said.

25 "Well then," He told them, "give back to Caesar [k] the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's."

26 They were not able to catch Him in what He said [F] in public, [G] and being amazed at His answer, they became silent. [l]

The Sadducees and the Resurrection

27 Some [m] of the •Sadducees , who say there is no resurrection, [n] came up and questioned Him: 28 “Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man’s brother has a wife, and dies childless, his brother should take the wife and produce •offspring for his brother. [o, p] 29 Now there were seven brothers. The first took a wife and died without children. 30 Also the second [q] 31 and the third took her.
In the same way, all seven died and left no children. 32 Finally, the woman died too. 33 In the resurrection, therefore, whose wife will the woman be? For all seven had married her.” [H]

34 Jesus told them, “The sons of this age [r] marry and are given in marriage. [s] 35 But those who are counted worthy [t] to take part in that age [u] and in the resurrection from the dead neither marry nor are given in marriage. 36 For they cannot die anymore, [v] because they are like angels and are sons of God, [w] since they are sons of the resurrection. 37 Moses even indicated in the passage about the burning bush that the dead are raised, where he calls the Lord the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob. [x, y] 38 He is not God of the dead but of the living, because all are living to [z] Him.” [a]

39 Some of the scribes answered, “Teacher, You have spoken well.” 40 And they no longer dared to ask Him anything.

The Question about the Messiah

41 Then [b] He said to them, “How can they say that the •Messiah is the Son of David? [c] 42 For David himself says in the Book of Psalms: [d]

The Lord declared to my Lord,
‘Sit at My right hand
43 until I make Your enemies Your footstool.’ [e, f]

44 David calls Him ‘Lord’; how then can the Messiah be his Son? ” [g]

Warning against the Scribes

45 While [h] all the people were listening, He said to His disciples, 46 “Beware [i] of the scribes, who want to go around in long robes and who love greetings in the marketplaces, the front seats in the •synagogues , and the places of honor at banquets. [j] 47 They devour widows’ houses and say long prayers just for show. These will receive greater punishment.” [k]

The Widow's Gift

21 He [a] looked up and saw the rich dropping their offerings into the temple treasury. [b] 2 He also saw a poor widow dropping in two tiny coins. [A, c]
3 “I tell you the truth,” He said. “This poor widow has put in more than all of them. [d] 4 For all these people have put in gifts out of their surplus, but she out of her poverty has put in all she had to live on.”

Destruction of the Temple Predicted

5 As [e] some were talking about the •temple complex, how it was adorned with beautiful stones and gifts dedicated to God, [f] He said, 6 "These things that you see — the days will come [g] when not one stone will be left on another that will not be thrown down! " [h]

Signs of the End of the Age

7 "Teacher," they asked Him, "so when will these things be? And what will be the sign when these things are about to take place? " [i]

8 Then He said, "Watch out that you are not deceived. [j] For many will come in My name, [k] saying, 'I am He,' [l] and, 'The time is near.' Don't follow them. [m] 9 When you hear of wars and rebellions, [n] don't be alarmed. Indeed, these things must take place first, but the end won't come right away."

10 Then He told them: "Nation will be raised up against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. [o] 11 There will be violent earthquakes, [p] and famines and plagues [q] in various places, and there will be terrifying sights and great signs from heaven. [r] 12 But before all these things, they will lay their hands on you [s] and persecute [t] you. They will hand you over to the •synagogues [u] and prisons, [v] and you will be brought before kings and governors [w] because of My name.
13 It will lead to an opportunity for you to witness. [x, y] 14 Therefore make up your minds [z] not to prepare your defense ahead of time, [a] 15 for I will give you such words [b, c] and a wisdom [d] that none of your adversaries will be able to resist or contradict. [e] 16 You will even be betrayed by parents, brothers, relatives, and friends. [f] They will kill some of you. 17 You will be hated by everyone because of My name, [g] 18 but not a hair of your head will be lost. [h] 19 By your endurance gain [i] your •lives . [j]

The Destruction of Jerusalem

20 “When you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, [k] then recognize that its desolation [l] has come near. 21 Then those in Judea must flee [m] to the mountains! [n] Those inside the city [o] must leave it, and those who are in the country must not enter it, 22 because these are days of vengeance [p] to fulfill all the things that are written. 23 Woe to pregnant women and nursing mothers in those days, [q] for there will be great distress in the land [r] and wrath against this people. 24 They will fall by the edge of the sword [s] and be led captive into all the nations, and Jerusalem will be trampled by the Gentiles [t, u] until the times of the Gentiles [v] are fulfilled.

The Coming of the Son of Man

25 “Then there will be signs in the sun, moon, and stars; [w] and there will be anguish on the earth among nations bewildered by the roaring sea and waves. [x] 26 People will faint from fear and expectation of the things that are coming on the world, because the celestial powers will be shaken. [y] 27 Then they will see the •Son of Man coming in a cloud [z] with power and great glory. [a] 28 But when these things begin to take place, stand up and lift up your heads, because your •redemption is near! ” [b]

The Parable of the Fig Tree

29 Then He told them a parable: “Look at the fig tree, and all the trees. 30 As soon as they put out leaves you can see for yourselves and recognize that summer is already near. 31 In the same way, when you see these things happening, recognize [c] that the kingdom of God is near. 32 •I assure you: This generation will certainly not pass away until all things take place. [d] 33 Heaven and earth will pass away, [e] but My words will never pass away. [f]

The Need for Watchfulness

34 “Be on your guard, [g] so that your minds are not dulled [h] from carousing, [i] drunkenness, [j] and worries of life, [k] or that day will come on you unexpectedly [l] 35 like a trap. For it will come on all who live on the face of the whole earth.
36 But be alert at all times, [m] praying that you may have strength [n] to escape [o] all these things that are going to take place and to stand before the Son of Man.”

37 During [p] the day, He was teaching in the temple complex, [q] but in the evening He would go out and spend the night on what is called the •Mount of Olives. [r] 38 Then all the people would come early in the morning to hear Him in the temple complex. [s]

The Plot to Kill Jesus

22 The [a] Festival of •Unleavened Bread, [b] which is called •Passover , [c] was drawing near. 2 The •chief priests and the •scribes were looking for a way to put Him to death, [d] because they were afraid of the people. [e]

3 Then [f] Satan entered Judas, [g] called Iscariot, [h] who was numbered among the Twelve. 4 He went away and discussed with the chief priests and temple police [i] how he could hand Him over [j] to them. 5 They were glad and agreed to give him silver. [A] 6 So he accepted the offer and started looking for a good opportunity to betray Him to them when the crowd was not present.

Preparation for Passover

7 Then [k] the Day of Unleavened Bread came when the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed. [l] 8 Jesus sent Peter and John, [m] saying, “Go and prepare the Passover meal for us, so we can eat it.”

9 “Where do You want us to prepare it? ” they asked Him.

10 “Listen,” He said to them, “when you’ve entered the city, a man carrying a water jug will meet you. Follow him into the house he enters. 11 Tell the owner of the house, ‘The Teacher asks you, “Where is the guest room where I can eat the Passover with My disciples? ” ’ 12 Then he will show you a large, furnished room upstairs. [n] Make the preparations there.”

13 So they went and found it just as He had told them, [o] and they prepared the Passover.

The First Lord’s Supper

14 When [p] the hour came, He reclined at the table, and the apostles with Him. 15 Then He said to them, “I have fervently desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer. 16 For I tell you, I will not eat it again [q] until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God.” [r] 17 Then He took a cup, [s] and after giving thanks, [t] He said, “Take this and share it among yourselves. 18 For I tell you, from now on I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God comes.”

19 And He took bread, gave thanks, broke it, gave it to them, and said, “This is My body, [u] which is given for you. Do this in remembrance [v] of Me.”

20 In the same way He also took the cup after supper and said, “This cup is the new covenant [w] established by My blood; [x] it is shed for you. [y] 21 But [z] look, the hand of the one betraying Me is at the table with Me! [a] 22 For the •Son of Man will go away as it has been determined, [b] but woe to that man by whom He is betrayed! ”

23 So they began to argue [c] among themselves which of them it could be who was going to do this thing.

The Dispute over Greatness

24 Then a dispute also arose among them about who should be considered the greatest. [d] 25 But He said to them, [e] "The kings of the Gentiles dominate them, and those who have authority over them are called [f] 'Benefactors.' [g] 26 But it must not be like that among you. On the contrary, whoever is greatest among you must become like the youngest, [h] and whoever leads, like the one serving. 27 For who is greater, the one at the table or the one serving? Isn't it the one at the table? But I am among you as the One who serves. [i] 28 You are the ones who stood by Me in My trials. [j] 29 I bestow on you a kingdom, [k] just as My Father bestowed one on Me, 30 so that you may eat and drink at My table in My kingdom. [l] And you will sit on thrones judging the 12 tribes of Israel. [m]

Peter's Denial Predicted

31 "Simon, Simon, [n] look out! Satan [o] has asked to sift you [p] like wheat. [q] 32 But I have prayed [r] for you [s] that your faith may not fail. And you, when you have turned back, strengthen [t] your brothers."

33 "Lord," [u] he told Him, "I'm ready to go with You both to prison and to death! "

34 "I tell you, Peter," He said, "the rooster will not crow today until [v] you deny three times that you know Me! "

Be Ready for Trouble

35 He also said to them, “When I sent you out [w] without money-bag, traveling bag, or sandals, did you lack anything? ”

“Not a thing,” they said.

36 Then He said to them, “But now, whoever has a money-bag should take it, and also a traveling bag. And whoever doesn’t have a sword should sell his robe and buy one. 37 For I tell you, what is written must be fulfilled in Me: And He was counted among the outlaws. [x, y] Yes, what is written about Me is coming to its fulfillment.” [z]

38 “Lord,” they said, “look, here are two swords.”

“Enough of that! ” [a] He told them.

The Prayer in the Garden

39 He went out and made His way [b] as usual [c] to the •Mount of Olives, [d] and the disciples followed Him. 40 When He reached the place, [e] He told them, “Pray that you may not enter into temptation.” [f] 41 Then He withdrew from them about a stone’s throw, knelt down, and began to pray, [g] 42 “Father, if You are willing, take this cup [h] away from Me — nevertheless, not My will, but Yours, be done.”

[43 Then an angel from heaven [i] appeared to Him, strengthening Him. 44 Being in anguish, [j] He prayed more fervently, and His sweat became like drops of blood falling to the ground.] [k] 45 When He got up from prayer and came to the disciples, He found them sleeping, exhausted from their grief. [B] 46 “Why are you sleeping? ” He asked them. “Get up and pray, so that you won’t enter into temptation.”

The Judas Kiss

47 While [l] He was still speaking, suddenly a mob was there, and one of the Twelve named Judas was leading them. He came near Jesus to kiss Him, 48 but Jesus said to him, “Judas, are you betraying the Son of Man with a kiss? ”

49 When those around Him saw what was going to happen, they asked, “Lord, should we strike with the sword? ” 50 Then one of them struck the high priest’s •slave and cut off his right ear.

51 But Jesus responded, “No more of this! ” [m] And touching his ear, He healed him. 52 Then Jesus said to the chief priests, temple police, and the elders who had come for Him, “Have you come out with swords and clubs as if I were a criminal? [n] 53 Every day while I was with you in the •temple complex, [o] you never laid a hand on Me. But this is your hour [p] — and the dominion of darkness.” [q]

Peter Denies His Lord

54 They seized Him, led Him away, and brought Him into the high priest's house. Meanwhile Peter [r] was following at a distance. 55 They [s] lit a fire in the middle of the courtyard [t] and sat down together, and Peter sat among them.
56 When a servant saw him sitting in the firelight, and looked closely at him, she said, "This man was with Him too."

57 But he denied it: "Woman, I don't know Him! "

58 After a little while, someone else saw him and said, "You're one of them too! "

"Man, I am not! " Peter said.

59 About an hour later, another kept insisting, "This man was certainly with Him, since he's also a Galilean."

60 But Peter said, "Man, I don't know what you're talking about! " Immediately, while he was still speaking, a rooster crowed. 61 Then the Lord turned and looked at Peter. [u] So Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how He had said to him, "Before the rooster crows today, you will deny Me three times." [v] 62 And he went outside and wept bitterly.

Jesus Mocked and Beaten

63 The men who were holding Jesus started mocking and beating Him. [w]
64 After blindfolding Him, they kept [x] asking, “Prophesy! Who hit You? ” 65 And they were saying many other blasphemous [y] things against Him.

Jesus Faces the Sanhedrin

66 When daylight came, [z] the elders [C] of the people, both the chief priests and the scribes, [a] convened and brought Him before their •Sanhedrin . [b] 67 They said, [c] "If You are the •Messiah , tell us."

But He said to them, "If I do tell you, you will not believe. 68 And if I ask you, you will not answer. 69 But from now on, the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of the Power of God." [d]

70 They all asked, "Are You, then, the Son of God? " [e]

And He said to them, "You say that I am." [f]

71 "Why do we need any more testimony," they said, "since we've heard it ourselves from His mouth? "

Jesus Faces Pilate

23 Then [a] their whole assembly rose up and brought Him before •Pilate . [2] They began to accuse Him, saying, “We found this man subverting our nation, opposing payment of taxes [b] to Caesar, and saying that He Himself is the •Messiah , a King.”

[3] So Pilate asked Him, [c] “Are You the King of the Jews? ” [d]

He answered him, “You have said it.” [e]

[4] Pilate then told the •chief priests and the crowds, “I find no grounds [f] for charging this man.”

[5] But they kept insisting, “He stirs up the people, [g] teaching throughout all Judea, from Galilee [h] where He started even to here.”

Jesus Faces Herod Antipas

6 When Pilate [i] heard this, [j] he asked if the man was a Galilean. 7 Finding that He was under •Herod 's jurisdiction, he sent Him to Herod, [k] who was also in Jerusalem during those days. 8 Herod was very glad to see Jesus; for a long time he had wanted to see Him because he had heard about Him and was hoping to see some miracle [A] performed by Him. 9 So he kept asking Him questions, but Jesus did not answer him. [l] 10 The chief priests and the •scribes stood by, vehemently accusing Him. 11 Then Herod, with his soldiers, treated Him with contempt, mocked [m] Him, dressed Him in a brilliant robe, [n] and sent Him back to Pilate. 12 That very day Herod and Pilate became friends. [B,] [o] Previously, they had been hostile toward each other.

Jesus or Barabbas

13 Pilate called together the chief priests, the leaders, and the people, [p] 14 and said to them, “You have brought me this man as one who subverts the people. [q] But in fact, after examining Him in your presence, I have found no grounds [r] to charge this man with those things you accuse Him of. 15 Neither has Herod, because he sent Him back to us. Clearly, He has done nothing to deserve death. 16 Therefore, I will have Him whipped [C, s] and then release Him.” [17 For according to the festival he had to release someone to them.] [t, u]

18 Then [v] they all cried out together, “Take this man away! [w] Release Barabbas to us! ” 19 (He had been thrown into prison for a rebellion that had taken place in the city, and for murder.) 20 Pilate, wanting to release Jesus, [x] addressed them again, 21 but they kept shouting, “Crucify! Crucify Him! ”

22 A third time he said to them, “Why? What has this man done wrong? [y] I have found in Him no grounds [z] for the death penalty. Therefore, I will have Him whipped and then release Him.”

23 But they kept up the pressure, demanding with loud voices that He be crucified. And their voices [a] won out. 24 So [b] Pilate decided to grant their demand [c] 25 and released the one they were asking for, who had been thrown into prison for rebellion and murder. But he handed Jesus over to their will. [d]

The Way to the Cross

26 As [e] they led Him away, they seized Simon, a Cyrenian, [f] who was coming in from the country, and laid the cross [g] on him to carry behind Jesus. 27 A large crowd of people followed Him, including women who were mourning and lamenting Him. [h] 28 But turning to them, Jesus said, “Daughters of Jerusalem, [i] do not weep for Me, but weep for yourselves and your children. 29 Look, the days are coming [j] when they will say, ‘The women without children, the wombs that never bore and the breasts that never nursed, are fortunate! ’ [k] 30 Then they will begin to say to the mountains, ‘Fall on us! ’ and to the hills, ‘Cover us! ’ [l], [m] 31 For if they do these things when the wood is green, what will happen when it is dry? ” [n]

Crucified between Two Criminals

32 Two others — criminals [o] — were also led away to be executed with Him.
33 When [p] they arrived at the place called The Skull, they crucified Him there, along with the criminals, one on the right and one on the left. [34 Then Jesus said, “Father, [q] forgive [r] them, because they do not know what they are doing.”
[s]] [t] And they divided His clothes and cast lots. [u]

35 The [v] people stood watching, and even the leaders kept scoffing: [w] “He saved others; let Him save Himself if this is God’s Messiah, the Chosen One! ” [x] 36 The soldiers also mocked Him. They came offering Him sour wine [y] 37 and said, “If You are the King of the Jews, [z] save Yourself! ”

38 An inscription was above Him: [a]

THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

39 Then [b] one of the criminals hanging there began to yell insults at [D] Him:
“Aren’t You the Messiah? Save Yourself and us! ”

40 But the other answered, rebuking him: “Don’t you even fear God, [c] since you are undergoing the same punishment? 41 We are punished justly, because we’re getting back what we deserve for the things we did, but this man has done nothing wrong.” [d] 42 Then he said, “Jesus, remember me [e, f] when You come into Your kingdom! ” [g]

43 And He said to him, “•I assure you: Today you will be with Me in paradise.” [h]

The Death of Jesus

44 It [i] was now about noon, [E] and darkness came over the whole land [F] until three, [G] 45 because the sun's light failed. [j] The curtain [k] of the sanctuary was split down the middle. 46 And Jesus called out with a loud voice, "Father, into Your hands I entrust My spirit." [l, m] Saying this, He breathed His last.

47 When the •centurion saw what happened, he began to glorify [n] God, saying, "This man really was righteous! " 48 All the crowds that had gathered for this spectacle, when they saw what had taken place, went home, striking their chests. [o, p] 49 But [q] all who knew Him, including the women who had followed Him from Galilee, stood at a distance, [r] watching these things.

The Burial of Jesus

50 There [s] was a good and righteous man named Joseph, a member of the •Sanhedrin , 51 who had not agreed with their plan [t] and action. He was from Arimathea, a Judean town, and was looking forward to the kingdom of God. [u] 52 He approached Pilate and asked for Jesus' body. 53 Taking it down, he wrapped it in fine linen and placed it in a tomb cut into the rock, where no one had ever been placed. H, [v] 54 It was preparation day, and the Sabbath was about to begin. I 55 The women [w] who had come with Him from Galilee followed along and observed the tomb and how His body was placed. 56 Then they returned and prepared spices and perfumes. [x] And they rested on the Sabbath according to the commandment. [y]

Resurrection Morning

24 On [a] the first day of the week, [b] very early in the morning, they [c] came to the tomb, bringing the spices they had prepared. 2 They found the stone rolled away from the tomb. 3 They went in but did not find the body [d] of the Lord Jesus. [e] 4 While they were perplexed about this, suddenly two men stood by them in dazzling [f] clothes. 5 So the women were terrified and bowed down to the ground. [A]

"Why are you looking for the living among the dead? " asked the men. 6 "He is not here, but He has been resurrected! [g] Remember how He spoke to you when He was still in Galilee, [h] 7 saying, 'The •Son of Man must be betrayed [i] into the hands of sinful men, be crucified, and rise [j] on the third day'? " 8 And they remembered His words.

9 Returning from the tomb, they reported all these things to the Eleven [k] and to all the rest. 10 •Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, [l] and the other women with them were telling the apostles [m] these things. 11 But these words seemed like nonsense to them, and they did not believe [n] the women.
12 Peter, [o] however, got up and ran to the tomb. When he stooped to look in, he saw only the linen cloths. [p, q] So he went home, amazed [r] at what had happened.

The Emmaus Disciples

13 Now [s] that same day two of them were on their way to a village called [B] Emmaus, which was about seven miles [C, t] from Jerusalem. [u] 14 Together they were discussing everything that had taken place. 15 And while they were discussing and arguing, Jesus Himself came near and began to walk along with them. 16 But they [D] were prevented from recognizing Him. [v] 17 Then He asked them, "What is this dispute that you're having [w] with each other as you are walking? " And they stopped walking and looked discouraged.

18 The one named Cleopas answered Him, "Are You the only visitor in Jerusalem who doesn't know the things that happened there in these days? " [x]

19 "What things? " He asked them.

So they said to Him, "The things concerning Jesus the •Nazarene , [y] who was a Prophet [z] powerful in action and speech [a] before God and all the people, [b] 20 and how our •chief priests and leaders [c] handed Him over to be sentenced to death, [d] and they crucified Him. [e] 21 But we were hoping that He was the One who was about to •redeem [f] Israel. Besides all this, it's the third day [g] since these things happened. 22 Moreover, some women from our group astounded us. They arrived early at the tomb, 23 and when they didn't find His body, they came and reported that they had seen a vision of angels who said He was alive. 24 Some of those who were with us went to the tomb and found it just as the women had said, but they didn't see Him." [h]

25 He said to them, "How unwise and slow you are to believe in your hearts all that the prophets have spoken! [i] 26 Didn't the •Messiah have to suffer [j] these things and enter into His glory? " [k] 27 Then beginning with Moses [l] and all the Prophets, [m] He interpreted for them the things concerning Himself in all the Scriptures. [n]

28 They came near the village where they were going, and He gave the impression that He was going farther. [o] 29 But they urged Him: "Stay with us, because it's almost evening, and now the day is almost over." So He went in to stay with them.

30 It was as He reclined at the table with them that He took the bread, blessed and broke [p] it, and gave it to them. 31 Then their eyes were opened, [q] and they recognized Him, but He disappeared from their sight. [r] 32 So they said to each other, "Weren't our hearts ablaze within us while He was talking with us on the road and explaining the Scriptures [s] to us? " 33 That very hour they got up and returned to Jerusalem. Introduction

Emmaus or Imwas (24:13-35). According to the Sinai manuscript, Emmaus is thought to be the site of the house of Cleopas. Ruins of a Byzantine church now stand on the site of the house.

The Gospel of Luke is the longest book in the New Testament. Focusing on the life and ministry of Jesus Christ, this Gospel is part one of a two-part history, the book of Acts being part two. Both were dedicated to "most honorable Theophilus" (Lk 1:3; Ac 1:1).

Circumstances of Writing Author: The author of the Third Gospel is not named. Considerable evidence points to Luke as its author. Much of that proof is found in the book of Acts, which identifies itself as a sequel to Luke (Ac 1:1-3). A major line of evidence has to do with the so-called "we" sections of the book (Ac 16:10-17; 20:5-15; 21:1-18; 27:1-37; 28:1-16). Most of Acts is narrated in third-person plural ("they," "them"), but some later sections having to do with the ministry of the apostle Paul unexpectedly shift to first-person plural ("we," "us"). This indicates that the author had joined the apostle Paul for the events recorded in those passages. Since there are no "we" passages in the Gospel of Luke, that fits with the author stating that he used eyewitness testimony to the life of Jesus (1:2), indicating he was not such an eyewitness himself.

Among Paul's well-known coworkers, the most likely candidate is Luke, the doctor (see Col 4:14; Phm 24). That is also the unanimous testimony of the earliest Christian writers (e.g., Justin Martyr, the Muratorian Canon, and Tertullian). Since Luke is not named among the workers who were "of the circumcision" (i.e., a Jew; Col 4:11), he was almost certainly a Gentile. That explains the healthy emphasis on Gentiles in Luke (6:17; 7:1-10). Luke also reflects an interest in medical matters (e.g., 4:38; 14:2).

Background: Traditionally, the Gospel of Luke is believed to have been written after both Matthew and Mark. Those who date Matthew and Mark in the 60s or 70s of the first century A.D. have tended to push the dating of Luke back to the 70s or 80s.

Since Luke wrote both the Third Gospel and the book of Acts (Ac 1:1-3), it is relevant to consider the dating of both books together. The events at the end of Acts occurred around A.D. 62-63. That is the earliest point at which Acts could have been written. If Acts was written in the early 60s from Rome, where Paul was imprisoned for two years (Ac 28:30), the Third Gospel could date from an earlier stage of that period of imprisonment. The other reasonable possibility is during Paul's earlier two-year imprisonment in Caesarea (Ac 24:27). From that location, Luke would have been able to travel and interview the eyewitnesses to Jesus' life and ministry who were still alive.

The Third Gospel is addressed to "most honorable Theophilus" (Lk 1:3), about whom nothing else is known other than that he is also the recipient of the book of Acts (Ac 1:1). The Greek name Theophilus means "lover of God" or "friend of God" and implies that he was a Gentile, probably Greek. He seems to have been a relatively new believer, recently instructed about Jesus and the Christian faith (Lk 1:4). The title "most honorable" indicates that, at the least, he was a person of high standing and financial substance. It may also reflect that he was an official with some governmental authority and power.

Message and Purpose The Gospel of Luke is a carefully researched (1:3), selective presentation of the person and life of Jesus Christ, designed to strengthen the faith of believers (1:3-4) and to challenge the misconceptions of unbelievers, especially those from a Greek background. Its portrait of Jesus is well-balanced, skillfully emphasizing His divinity and perfect humanity.

Contribution to the Bible Nearly 60 percent of the material in the Gospel of Luke is unique. Thus, there is a great deal that readers of Scripture would not know if the Third Gospel were not in the Bible. Notable among the larger distinctive portions are: (1) much of the material in Luke 1-2 about the births of John the Baptist and Jesus, (2) the only biblical material on Jesus' childhood and pre-ministry adult life (2:40-52), (3) a genealogy for Jesus (3:23-38) that is significantly different from the one in Matthew 1:1-17, (4) most of the "travelogue" section about Jesus' journey to Jerusalem (Lk 9:51-19:44), (5) a considerably different slant on the destruction of the temple (21:5-38) from the Olivet Discourse in Matthew 24-25 and Mark 13, and (6) quite a bit of fresh material in the post-resurrection appearances, including the Emmaus Road, a distinctive statement of the Great Commission, and the only description in the Gospels of Jesus' ascension into heaven (Lk 24:13-53).

Structure Luke's distinctive "narrative about the events" (1:1) of the life of Jesus is written in "orderly sequence" (1:3), though not strict chronological sequence in many cases (as the notes will explain at various points). Generally, after the key events leading up to the beginning of Christ's public ministry (1:5-4:13), the flow of the book is from His early ministry in and around Galilee (4:14-9:50), through an extended description of ministry related to His journey to Jerusalem (9:51-19:44), climaxing in the events of Passion Week and post-resurrection appearances in and around Jerusalem (19:45-24:53).

Study Notes 1:1-4 Using elegant Greek, Luke began his narrative about the events of Jesus’ life and ministry with a formal preface. This was a common practice in historical works of Luke’s era. His prologue: (1) acknowledged previous treatments of the subject, (2) stated his methodology, (3) identified the recipient, and (4) articulated his purpose in writing.

1:1 Many have undertaken to compile a narrative means that a number of others had previously written about the life and works of Jesus. This may include the Gospels of Mark and Matthew since they preceded Luke's writing. Events . . . fulfilled among us speaks of how Jesus fulfilled many OT prophecies (see note at 24:44-45).

1:2 Original eyewitnesses included Mary, the mother of Jesus, about whom Luke wrote more than any other NT author. Mary may have still been alive when Luke wrote his Gospel. Servants of the word refers to the apostles of Jesus but may also include His brothers, James and Jude. Tradition says both brothers wrote NT books.

1:3 It also seemed good to me does not mean that Luke found the previous narratives (v. 1) to be erroneous or inadequate. Rather, he wrote his Gospel to complement what was already written. Carefully investigated everything from the very first means Luke studied the life and ministry of Jesus in meticulous detail ("carefully") and with comprehensive scope ("everything"), including many aspects related to the births of John the Baptist and Jesus ("from the very first") that are not found in the other Gospels. Orderly sequence does not mean strict chronological sequence, but in an orderly manner, whether chronological (generally) or topical. On most honorable Theophilus, see Introduction.

1:4 Luke's stated purpose in writing his Gospel was to provide historical certainty and theological clarity for Theophilus in regard to what he had been taught (instructed) about Jesus.

1:5 King Herod the Great was an Idumean appointed by the Roman emperor who ruled from 37-4 B.C. His realm covered not only Judea, but also Samaria, Galilee, and parts of Perea and Syria. In the days of indicates that the events that immediately follow probably occurred in 7-6 B.C. The priesthood of Israel was made up of 24 divisions, including the house of Abijah (1Ch 24:10). Daughters of Aaron reveals that Elizabeth and her husband Zechariah were from priestly families. It is also the first instance of Luke's regular emphasis on the vital role that women played throughout Jesus' life.

1:6-7 The words righteous . . . living without blame refers to consistent obedience to God's commands and requirements, but more foundationally to living by faith. This is how Abraham was justified in God's sight (Gn 15:6; Gl 3:6-7,9). Like Abraham and Sarah, despite their godliness, Zechariah and Elizabeth had no children and were well along in years (past the age of child-bearing). It was considered a curse from God for a woman to be unable to bear children (see note at vv. 24-25).

1:8-9 Twice a year the priestly division of Abijah (see note at v. 5) was on duty at the Jerusalem temple for a week. Out of hundreds of priests in his division, Zechariah was chosen by the casting of a lot (see notes at Pr 16:33; Ac 1:24-26) to burn incense on the altar in front of the holy of holies (the sanctuary), a privileged duty that a priest could perform only once in his life. In fact, many never enjoyed this privilege because the lot never fell to them.

1:10 The hour of incense occurred at 9:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m. daily. The presence of a sizeable assembly of the people makes it more likely that this incident took place in the afternoon.

1:11-12 On an angel of the Lord, see note at verse 19. To be overcome with fear upon seeing an angel is common in Luke (v. 29; 2:9) and elsewhere in Scripture (Jdg 6:22-23; Dn 8:16-17).

1:13 Your prayer may refer to Zechariah and Elizabeth praying to have a child (your wife . . . will bear you a son), or it could have been the prayer a priest was to offer at the altar for the redemption of Israel. John means "the Lord is gracious."

1:14-15 Joy is the prevailing mood of the first two chapters of Luke's Gospel (vv. 44,47,58; 2:10). As great in the sight of the Lord as John would be, he was still only the forerunner for the coming Messiah. Never drink wine or beer indicates that John the Baptist was under a lifelong Nazirite vow (Nm 6:1-21). On filled with the Holy Spirit . . . in his mother's womb, see note at verse 41. On the meaning of being filled with the Holy Spirit, see Eph 5:18.

1:16-17 Turn . . . to the Lord their God speaks of conversion, the result of repentance, which John the Baptist preached forcefully (3:3). Go before Him . . . to make ready for the Lord a prepared people echoes the essence of the prophecy in Is 40:3-5 (see Lk 3:4-6). Malachi 4:5-6 prophesied that an Elijah-like figure would come and turn the hearts of fathers to their children. That new "Elijah" would be John the Baptist.

1:18 Like Abraham (Gn 15:8) and Sarah (Gn 18:10-15), Zechariah had a difficult time believing God would fulfill His promise in his old age.

1:19 Gabriel means "(mighty) man of God." He is one of only two angels named in Scripture. The other is Michael (Dn 12:1; Rv 12:7).

1:20 As punishment for doubting the angel's pronouncement, Zechariah was rendered mute (silent and unable to speak) and possibly deaf as well (v. 62). The day these things take place was the time that began at John's birth and culminated at his circumcision (vv. 57-64).

1:21-22 The people . . . waiting for Zechariah to come out of the sanctuary were surprised because he did not emerge when expected. Since Gabriel had rendered him speechless (v. 20), Zechariah was unable to pronounce the traditional Aaronic blessing (Nm 6:24-26) upon the crowd. They realized he had seen a vision, likely because they noted his facial expressions and the excited signs he made with his hands.

1:23 Since each priest was only on duty for a week at a time, Zechariah would have been able to go home soon after his encounter with Gabriel (vv. 10-20). His home was located in the Judean hill country, not far from Jerusalem (v. 39).

1:24-25 Elizabeth withdrew and kept herself in seclusion for five months after she miraculously conceived. Why did she do this? Some speculate that she feared miscarrying during the early months of pregnancy. More likely she recognized that her unusual pregnancy would draw unwelcome attention if it became widely known. Better to have a restful start to a pregnancy that came so late in life.

1:26-38 Here the announcement of Jesus' coming birth is told from Mary's perspective. Matthew gives it from Joseph's vantage point (Mt 1:18-23).

1:26 In the sixth month of Elizabeth's pregnancy, Gabriel, the same angel who had appeared to Zechariah previously (v. 19), was dispatched by God to Nazareth. This was a small village in Galilee, a region north of Judea and Samaria.

1:27 Virgin (Gk parthenos) may echo the prophecy of the virgin birth in Is 7:14 (Mt 1:18-25). According to Jewish law, being engaged was just as legally binding as being married (Mt 1:18-19). The house of David refers to the tribe of Judah, from which prophecies said the Messiah would come (Gn 49:9-10).

1:28-30 Mary was favored because the Lord set His undeserved grace upon her, not because she had earned good standing. Understandably, she was deeply troubled (Gk diatarasso; "confused, perplexed") by Gabriel's visit and greeting, wondering how she had come to receive such an honor. Gabriel's admonishment that Mary not be afraid was the same thing he said to Zechariah (v. 13).

1:31-33 The miracle that would cause Mary to conceive and give birth to a son would be a far greater miracle than the one that caused Elizabeth to conceive in old age (vv. 13,18) because, unlike Elizabeth, Mary was still a virgin (v. 34). The name Jesus (Gk Iesous) is equivalent to the Hebrew Yehoshua (Joshua), meaning "the Lord is salvation." Being the Son of the Most High means Jesus was the Son of God Himself (v. 35) because God created the life in Mary's womb without the aid of a human father (see note at vv. 34-35). Humanly speaking, though, Jesus' lineage would be traced legitimately through the royal family of David (see note at 3:23-28) because Joseph, Jesus' adoptive father, was a descendant of David. This made Jesus heir to David's throne according to God's eternal covenant (forever . . . His kingdom will have no end, v. 33; see 2Sm 7:13,16).

1:34-35 The difference between Mary's response (how can this be) and Zechariah's (v. 18) is that Mary asked her question not from unbelief but from puzzlement (v. 38; see note at v. 20). The answer to Mary's question about how she could get pregnant without being intimate with a man is that the Holy Spirit would overshadow (Gk episkiazo ; "to fall upon [as a shadow]") her and cause her to conceive (see note at vv. 31-33). Because the Holy Spirit was the agent of conception, the child (the holy One; 2Co 5:21; Heb 4:15) would be the Son of God.

1:36-37 There is no way of knowing whether your relative Elizabeth means Elizabeth was Mary's aunt or cousin. On she has conceived . . . the sixth month, see note at verses 24-25. If ever Mary was tempted to doubt God's promise to her, she could recall Gabriel's words that nothing will be impossible with God, as had been shown in the lives of Abraham and Sarah (Gn 18:14).

1:38 Mary's response is a classic model of humble commitment (I am the Lord's slave) and willing obedience (may it be done to me according to your word).

1:39-40 Shortly after Gabriel left, Mary traveled to Judah to check on her relative, Elizabeth, whom she had just learned (from the angel) was pregnant (see note at vv. 36-37).

1:41-45 The baby (John) being filled with the Holy Spirit (v. 15) fulfilled Gabriel's prediction to Zechariah. But Elizabeth was filled with the Spirit also (v. 41), and the Spirit's revelations to her were apparently the source of her knowledge about the blessed roles and identities of Mary and her unborn child. When baby John leaped inside Elizabeth, she understood that he had experienced great joy at Mary's presence.

1:46-55 Mary's hymn of praise is known as the "Magnificat," so named for the Latin term rendered as proclaims the greatness (Gk megaluno). It is similar in tone to the song of Hannah (1Sm 2:1-10).

1:46-49 There is a beautiful balance in Mary's hymn of praise. She expressed humble recognition of the greatness and holy nature of God and His grace (favor) on His voluntary slave, but also an awareness that God's unique calling on her life would result in all future generations calling her blessed. She viewed herself as both humbled and exalted.

1:50-53 These verses recall the descriptions of God's justice found throughout the Psalms (e.g., Ps 100:5; 103:11). Those who fear Him is an OT expression that is equivalent to the NT idea of faith. Fear of God is faith in God. His arm is figurative for God's power. God is a Spirit being (Jn 4:24) and does not have a physical body, but bodily metaphors are effective in communicating some of God's attributes and actions. God is against the proud . . . the mighty, and the rich, who imagine themselves self-sufficient. By contrast, He champions the cause of the lowly and the hungry, for they acknowledge their need for Him.

1:54-55 In sending Jesus to be born to Mary, God mercifully helped . . . Israel, in keeping with promises He had made centuries earlier to Abraham and his descendants (see Gn 12:1-3; 22:15-18).

1:56-57 Mary visited Elizabeth shortly after hearing she was "in the sixth month" of her pregnancy (vv. 36,39-40) and stayed with her about three months. Mary may have returned to Nazareth either shortly before or after the birth of Elizabeth's son, John. Given their spiritual bond and the great roles their sons would play in God's plan, it seems likely that Mary stayed for John's birth.

1:58 Since Elizabeth remained secluded for the early months of her pregnancy (see note at vv. 24-25), it is possible that many of her neighbors and relatives first learned of God's great mercy toward her at or near the time of John's birth. The birth of a son was seen as favor from God.

1:59-63 In the OT, a child's name was more often given at birth. Perhaps Zechariah's inability to speak at John's birth caused the delay. Because Luke was writing for a Gentile audience that was unfamiliar with Jewish rites, he explained that Mosaic law (Lv 12:3) required parents to circumcise a male child (i.e., cut off the foreskin of his sex organ) on the eighth day. It was customary to name a boy baby after his father, in this case Zechariah, or his grandfather. Elizabeth had apparently already learned from Zechariah in writing that God wished for them to name the baby John. That neighbors and relatives motioned to Zechariah (rather than spoke) may imply that he was temporarily deaf as well as mute (vv. 20,22). A writing tablet was a small wooden board covered with wax. A wooden stylus was used to etch words into the wax.

1:64 That Zechariah was again able to speak fulfilled Gabriel's prediction (see note at v. 20).

1:65-66 The overall outcome of the preceding episode is that it was clear that the Lord's hand was with the newborn John in a remarkable way and that everyone living in the region continued to ponder (took . . . to heart) the question, What . . . will this child become?

1:67 On the meaning of filled with the Holy Spirit, see Eph 5:18. It is ironic that Zechariah, being a priest (v. 5) and having prophesied, set the stage for the ministry of his son, John the Baptist. Though John hailed from a priestly family, he was called to serve as a prophet of the Most High (v. 76).

1:68-70 The births of John the Baptist, the forerunner (v. 17; Is 40:1-5; Mal 4:5-6), and Jesus, the Messiah, marked the initiation of the final stages of God's plan of salvation for His people. This salvation would require a payment of redemption on the cross by Jesus. An animal's horn symbolized strength or power (Dt 33:17). Jesus was from the house of . . . David (see v. 27; 3:30).

1:71-75 The ministries of John the Baptist and Jesus fulfilled God's covenant with David (v. 69; 2Sm 7:12-16) and the oath that He swore to . . . Abraham (see Gn 12:1-3). As a result, in the Messiah's future reign, Israel would have full salvation from their enemies and would serve God in holiness and righteousness.

1:76 John was to be the prophet of the Most High who would go before Jesus, "the Son of the Most High" (see note at vv. 31-33) to prepare His ways (see Is 40:3; Mal 3:1).

1:77 To give knowledge of salvation through the forgiveness of sins was the emphasis of John the Baptist's preaching (see note at 3:2-3).

1:78-79 Dawn from on high speaks of the coming of Messiah (Mal 4:2). The Lord's visitation began with John's birth. The next part of that visit would be Jesus' birth (2:1-20). The phrase those who live in darkness and the shadow of death probably echoes Is 9:1-2, which is cited in Mt 4:16. The way of peace with God is through faith in Christ (Rm 5:1).

1:80 This verse about John's upbringing is parallel to Lk 2:51-52, which is about Jesus' upbringing. Because Zechariah and Elizabeth were already quite old when John was born (see note at 1:6-7), they probably died while he was fairly young, which may explain why he grew up . . . in the wilderness of Judea, between Jerusalem and the Dead Sea. The day of his public appearance is recounted in 3:1-3. Since ministry for a Levite (which John was) began at 30 years old (Nm 4:46-47), this is probably when he launched his ministry, as did Jesus (3:23).

Jesus' Birth and Early Childhood 2:1 Augustus (meaning "Exalted," a title approved by the Roman Senate in 27 B.C. ) was the Roman Caesar from 31 B.C. to A.D. 14. This decree . . . that the whole empire should be registered was a census for the purposes of taxation and military service.

2:2 It is thought that Quirinius served two terms as Roman governor of Syria: from 6-4 B.C., and then A.D. 6-9. Jesus was born during the period of the first registration. There was also a census registration in Quirinius's second term (Ac 5:37).

2:3-4 His own town refers not to where Joseph presently lived (Nazareth in Galilee), but to the town of his ancestral roots (Bethlehem in Judea), which was called the city of David because King David grew up there (1Sm 16:1). Joseph was descended from David (1:27). The trip from Nazareth to Bethlehem would have taken three days and covered roughly 90 miles.

2:5-6 As months before in 1:27, Mary at this time was still only engaged to Joseph because they had not yet consummated their marriage via intercourse. Nevertheless, she was pregnant (see note at 1:31-33) and ready to give birth.

2:7 The words her firstborn Son naturally implies that Mary later had other children (Mt 13:55-56). In that day, a newborn was wrapped . . . snuggly in cloth to keep its arms and legs straight. That baby Jesus was laid . . . in a feeding trough indicates that the family was forced to stay in a stable, or perhaps a cave that served as a stable, because there was no other room available in Bethlehem.

2:8 The sheep used for temple sacrifices in Jerusalem were kept in fields outside Bethlehem. The work of shepherds was more important at night because of the threats from thieves and predators.

2:9-10 Though not named in the present passage, the angel of the Lord was Gabriel (1:11-20). The glory of the Lord was a bright light (in the midst of the darkness of night), indicating God's glorious presence. It is only natural to be terrified at the sight of an angel (see note at 1:11-12), not to mention a sudden, overwhelming light from the sky. The angel spoke to calm the shepherds and refocus their attention on the proclamation of the gospel (good news). All the people could refer to Israel, but given Luke's emphasis on the gospel spreading to the Gentiles, it probably means "all nations."

2:11-12 Savior (Gk soter) means "deliverer, redeemer." Messiah (Gk christos, equivalent to the Hb meshiach) means "anointed one," especially focusing on being anointed as king. Lord (Gk kurios) was used of secular rulers, but it is also the standard translation of the primary name of God in Hebrew, Yahweh. The shepherds would have been shocked to hear that a divine messianic ruler had been born, but to be told He was lying in a feeding trough and born to a man and woman of humble means would have seemed preposterous.

2:13-14 The hymn sung by the choir of angels (heavenly host) is well-known today as the "Gloria in Excelsis Deo," from the first words of verse 14 in the Latin Vulgate (glory to God in the highest). To give "glory to God" does not give Him something He otherwise lacks. Rather, it is a confession of the wondrous glory He forever possesses. The peace to be found on earth was not the Pax Romana (the "universal peace" of the Roman Empire), but peace with God through faith in Jesus Christ (Rm 5:1; see note at Lk 1:78-79). The people whom God favors are those who have found God's undeserved favor, or grace, through Christ.

2:15 What has happened refers to the birth of the Savior, who is Christ and Lord (see note at vv. 11-12).

2:16 On lying in the feeding trough, see note at verse 7.

2:17 On the message they were told about this child, see note at verses 9-10.

2:18 All who heard it included anyone in or around Bethlehem with whom the shepherds had the opportunity to share their story (vv. 8-14).

2:19 It is possible that Luke gained much of his knowledge about what happened in chapters 1 and 2 from talking to Mary, who recalled the things she had "treasured" (Gk suntereo; "to treasure, keep in mind") in her heart.

2:20 The shepherds returned to the fields outside Bethlehem to tend their flocks. They were glorifying and praising God because everything they found in Bethlehem was just as the angel said it would be (vv. 10-12).

2:21 On eight days and circumcision, see note at 1:59-63. On the name Jesus, see note at 1:31-33.

2:22-24 The days of their purification lasted another 33 days after the child's circumcision (Lv 12:2-8). To present Him to the Lord was what was done with every firstborn male in Israel (Ex 13:2,12). On the sacrifice of turtledoves or pigeons, see Lv 12:8 and note there.

2:25-26 Like Zechariah and Elizabeth (see note at 1:6-7), Simeon was a righteous person. Israel's consolation spoke of the comfort and hope the people had in regard to God's plan for His people, but, more specifically, it referred to Messiah's role in that plan. In the OT, the Holy Spirit came on a few selected people (Nm 24:2; 1Sm 10:10; 16:13). After the day of Pentecost, the Spirit has indwelt all believers (Jn 14:16-17; 1Co 3:16). The Holy Spirit filled Zechariah so he could prophesy about John (Lk 1:67-79). In this case, the Spirit assured Simeon that he would live long enough to see the Messiah, so that he would be in a position to do the same in regard to Jesus (2:29-32).

2:27 The Holy Spirit guided Simeon to the right place (the temple) at the right time (when the child Jesus was brought to perform . . . what was customary under the law). See notes at verses 21 and 22-24.

2:29-32 Simeon's words here are traditionally called the "Nunc Dimittis," from wording in the Latin Vulgate translation. Simeon's Divine Master had kept

His promise that he would live to see Christ (i.e., Your salvation), so he could now die (dismiss Your slave). God's salvation in Christ (v. 30) is for all peoples (the Gentiles and Israel). The worldwide scope of the gospel is Luke's ongoing theme in both of his writings (his Gospel and the book of Acts).

2:33-35 Legally, Joseph was Jesus' father (see note at 3:23-38) even though it was the Holy Spirit who caused Mary to conceive (see note at 1:34-35). Jesus was a spiritual divider of society (a sign . . . opposed). In considering the gospel about Christ, many in Israel "fell" eternally due to unbelief and others rose by faith to eternal life. Mary would suffer great pain in watching Jesus be rejected and executed. How people respond to Jesus is the difference between pardon and condemnation, eternity in heaven or hell.

2:36-38 The immediate shift of focus from Simeon, a male who prophesied, to Anna, the prophetess, fits with Luke's emphasis on women. The other prophetesses mentioned in the NT are Philip's daughters (Ac 21:8-9). If Anna had been married for seven years and a widow for 84 years, she was well over 100 years old. The Greek text can also be read to mean that she was a widow until age 84, but that reading does not fit the circumstances well. Besides being a prophetess, Anna's other ministry included devotion to prayer. Since Jerusalem was the Jewish capital, the redemption of Jerusalem means the redemption of all the people of Israel.

2:39 Luke did not include several of the well-known incidents that appear in the Gospel of Matthew, including the visit of the magi and the trip to Egypt to avoid an attempt by Herod the Great to kill the infant Messiah (Mt 2:1-23).

2:40 This description of Jesus as a young boy is similar to that of John the Baptist in Lk 1:80. The additional elements emphasized that Jesus was filled with wisdom, and God's grace was on Him (see the similar description of Stephen in Ac 6:8,10).

2:41-42 This is the only incident Scripture reports about Jesus' life between the time He was a small child and His baptism by John (3:21-22). Adult Jewish males and their families were expected to make a pilgrimage to Jerusalem for the annual feasts of Passover, Pentecost, and Tabernacles. The Bar Mitzvah (Hb "son of the commandment") ceremony at age 13 marked the time when a Jewish male was recognized as a man. Since Jesus was now 12 years old, this was His last Passover before adulthood.

2:43-45 Joseph and Mary went a day's journey before worrying about Jesus because they assumed He was with the traveling party. It was completely out of character (see v. 51) for Him not to obey them in every respect.

2:46-47 Three days included one day traveling from Jerusalem, one coming back, and the third searching for Jesus in the city. The teachers were rabbis who were scholars of the Mosaic law. It was highly unusual for a boy to be welcomed by a group of rabbis, much less amaze them with brilliant scriptural understanding.

2:48-50 Joseph and Mary did not understand that Jesus was referring to His heavenly Father (My Father's house; i.e., the temple), whom He also had to obey even when such obedience entailed giving His parents' concerns less priority.

2:51 The phrase kept all these things in her heart, like verse 19, implies that Mary herself was Luke's source for much of the unique material in chapters 1 and 2.

2:52 During the years in which Jesus lived in obedience to Joseph and Mary, He continually increased in wisdom (intellect and practical holiness), stature (growing to adult size), favor with God (spiritual closeness to the Father) and favor with people (social respect). Jesus' wisdom was already noteworthy as a young boy (see note at v. 40), and the rabbis marveled at His understanding at age 12. His advancement would have been astounding by the time He began His ministry.

3:1 The fifteenth year of . . . Tiberius Caesar could be as early as A.D. 26 or as late as 29 because Tiberius had been delegated some of the authority of his stepfather, Augustus (see note at 2:1), several years before he died. Pontius Pilate was governor of Judea, Samaria, and Idumea (south of Judea, west of the Dead Sea), A.D. 26-36. He was responsible for regional administration and tax collection. At the death of Herod the Great (4 B.C.), his son, Herod Antipas, became tetrarch (a secondary prince) of Galilee and Perea (east of the Jordan River), while another son, Herod Philip, was tetrarch . . . of Iturea and Trachonitis (east and northeast of the Sea of Galilee), A.D. 4-34. Nothing else is known about Lysanius tetrarch of Abilene (the area near Damascus).

3:2-3 Technically, the high priesthood of Annas ended by A.D. 18. However, he continued to use the title and exercise considerable influence while his son-in-law Caiaphas was high priest during most of the period until 37. John the Baptist lived in the wilderness of Judea for a number of years before this (see note at 1:80), then moved a few miles northeast to the vicinity of the Jordan River, probably not far north of the Dead Sea. John preached repentance (a change of mind and heart, in this case toward Jesus and one's personal sins) for the forgiveness of sins, with water baptism being the outer sign of inner cleansing.

3:4-6 The quotation from Is 40:3-5 shows that John was the forerunner of the Messiah (prepare the way for the Lord; see Mal 3:1; 4:5). The apocalyptic language figuratively depicts the earth becoming level (every mountain . . . made low) and all paths straight before the coming Christ. Everyone (lit "all flesh") indicates that both Gentiles and Jews would see God's salvation.

3:7 Some among the crowds who flocked to hear John preach (see note at vv. 2-3) and be baptized (Gk baptizo; "to wash, dip") were not sincere. John called them poisonous snakes and warned them to change their attitudes and flee . . . the coming wrath (judgment based on God's righteous anger). Jesus rescues believers from "the coming wrath" (1Th 1:10).

3:8-9 The fruit (behavioral impact) of repentance (see note at vv. 10-14), or the lack of it, proves whether or not a person has truly repented. At the time of judgment (the ax is ready is strike), the claim of Jewish lineage (Abraham as our father) will mean nothing unless a person's faith is genuine, like Abraham's (see Gn 15:6; Gl 3:6-7).

3:10-14 The question the crowds asked John (what then should we do?) is the same as the one addressed to Peter on the day of Pentecost (Ac 2:37). To the general population, John answered: be compassionate (share with someone who has none); to the tax collectors (who were allowed to raise taxes to cover "expenses"): don't collect any more than is owed; to the soldiers: don't abuse military power but instead be satisfied with your wages.

3:15-17 John knew that the throngs of people wondered if he was the long-awaited Messiah. He answered that there was no comparison between him baptizing with water and Messiah baptizing with the Holy Spirit (see Ac 1:5; 2:4; 1Co 12:13) and fire of judgment. On winnowing, see Ru 3:1-3. Chaff (symbolizing unbelievers) is the worthless husk that covers wheat (standing for believers); it is separated at harvest and burned. A fire that never goes out refers, ultimately, to the eternal lake of fire (Rv 20:10,14-15).

3:18 As well as preaching related to repentance (v. 3), John also proclaimed good news (Gk euangelizo ; "to preach the gospel"), consistent with the message Messiah was prophesied to deliver (see note at 4:18).

3:19 On Herod Antipas, the tetrarch, see note at verse 1. Antipas divorced his wife, the daughter of King Aretas IV of Arabia, so he could marry the wife of his brother Philip (Mt 14:3; see note at Lk 3:1). Such a marriage was forbidden by Mosaic law (Lv 18:16; 20:21).

3:20 The events here are not given in chronological sequence, since John could not have baptized Jesus (see note at vv. 21-22) while he was in prison. Luke wrapped up his discussion of John's ministry before moving on to the beginning of Jesus' ministry. John was arrested at some point after Jesus began His public ministry (Jn 3:22-24). Josephus, the Jewish historian, stated John was held in the Machaerus prison, east of the Dead Sea.

3:21-22 Jesus was not baptized for the forgiveness of sins, as were all the other people whom John baptized. Rather, Jesus was baptized to identify Himself and His ministry with the ministry and message of His forerunner (see notes at vv. 4-6 and vv. 15-17). Prayer, especially Jesus' praying, is a strong emphasis of Luke's Gospel. This is the first of three times in the Gospels when a voice from heaven spoke about Jesus. The other two were at the transfiguration (see note at 9:34-35) and in the temple during Passion Week (Jn 12:28). This is a relatively rare scriptural passage in which all three persons of the Godhead are mentioned: (1) the Father who said, You are My beloved Son, (2) Jesus the Divine Son, who was being baptized, and (3) the Holy Spirit who was in physical appearance like a dove. The words "You are My beloved Son" echo Ps 2:7, while I take delight in You looks back to a key prophecy of the messianic Servant in Is 42:1.

3:23-38 The family tree of Jesus in the Gospel of Luke is considerably different from the one in Mt 1:1-17. Luke's genealogy traced Jesus' lineage all the way back to Adam, emphasizing Jesus' relation to all humankind, while Matthew's version started with Abraham and moved forward to Jesus, emphasizing Jesus' relation to Israel (i.e., that He was the Son of Abraham, fulfiller of the Abrahamic promises, and the messianic Son of David). In Luke, the family tree moved through Nathan, a younger son of David (Lk 3:30), while in Matthew it went through Solomon (Mt 1:6-7), inheritor of Israel's throne after David. Since Lk 1-2 narrates events from Mary's point of view, Lk 3:23-38 follows Jesus' physical line through Mary since verse 23 says Jesus was only "thought to be the son of Joseph." By contrast, Mt 1:1-17, in the midst of a section from Joseph's point of view (Mt 1-2), tracked Jesus' legal lineage. This demonstrated His right to the throne of David through His adoptive father, Joseph.

3:23 Jesus began His ministry at about 30years old—the age when a Levite began priestly service (Nm 4:46-47; see note at Lk 1:80). Thought to be the son of Joseph affirms the prophecy of the virgin birth of Jesus (see notes at 1:31-33 and 1:34-35). Jesus was not Joseph's physical son, as everyone around them mistakenly assumed (see note at 4:22).

3:38 Adam is called son of God in this genealogy because he was directly created by God (see Gn 2:7).

4:1-2 When Jesus returned from being baptized by John (see note at 3:21-22), He was full of the Holy Spirit and was led by the Spirit to His encounter with the Devil in the wilderness. The role of the Holy Spirit here is significant for at least three reasons: (1) the Spirit's role in driving Jesus to the wilderness shows Jesus' face-off with the Devil was ordained by God; (2) the Spirit's activity is a repeated emphasis in Luke's Gospel; (3) the Spirit's involvement in Jesus' life highlights Jesus' genuine humanity. The filling (Eph 5:18) and leading of the Spirit (Gl 5:18) are key aspects of empowerment for the Christian life. The wilderness is where Israel failed its test of faith before God (Nm 14). Jesus would pass the wilderness test that Israel could not. Also, Jesus was being tested as "the last Adam" (1Co 15:45), the One who would succeed where the first Adam failed. The Greek word translated tempted (peirazo) is more commonly rendered "tested."

4:3-4 Satan tested Jesus at the point of His physical weakness—hunger ("tell this stone to become bread," v. 2). The phrase if you are the Son of God expresses no doubt that Jesus is God, and is best understood as, " Since you are the Son of God." The Devil tried to bait Jesus into satisfying His extreme hunger by exercising His divine powers. Jesus' duty, however, was to suffer and patiently endure hardship as a perfectly obedient human who waited for God's deliverance and empowerment (v. 1). Jesus answered by citing the written Word of God (Dt 8:3). The context of this citation deals with Israel's needs being met in the wilderness for 40 years, physically through the manna and spiritually by the presence and Word of God.

4:5-12 The order of the second and third tests is reversed in Lk 4 from Mt 4. The obvious reason would be that the wider structure of the Gospel of Luke depicted Jesus moving toward Jerusalem, with the final test in Luke taking place on the pinnacle of the temple in Jerusalem.

4:5-8 As Messiah, Jesus will rule over all the kingdoms of the world at the end of the age (see Rv 11:15). The Devil tried to entice Jesus with a shortcut to that kind of worldwide authority. Even though Satan is called "the ruler of this world" (Jn 12:31), his claim that the world was given over to him and that he can give it to anyone he wants is untrue. The Devil is a usurper of God's realm. It is no surprise that he did not tell the truth here, for he is "a liar and the father of liars" (Jn 8:44). Jesus quoted Dt 6:13 to make clear that only God is worthy of worship, a point that echoes the first of the Ten Commandments (Ex 20:3).

4:9-12 After two failed tests (vv. 3-8), the Devil attempted to catch Jesus off balance by quoting Scripture. In challenging Jesus to throw Himself from the pinnacle of the temple (from which the fall may have been over 100 feet), the Devil referred to Ps 91:11-12, claiming that angels would rush to the rescue if Jesus jumped. Jesus did not deny the truth of the Scripture the Devil quoted, just the application he gave it. In clear contrast, He cited Dt 6:16, which recalls the tragedy of Israel's complaining and testing God at Meribah and Massah (Ex 17:1-7).

4:13 Only three tests are recorded in Mt 4 and Lk 4, but the wording every temptation may imply that there were more. The Devil was thwarted this time, but he departed from Jesus only to wait for the right time (Gk kairos ; "time"—as an occasion or opportunity) to try again.

4:14-15 The same power of the Holy Spirit (see note at vv. 1-2) by which Jesus countered every test thrown at Him by the Devil, was present in His teaching in the synagogues throughout Galilee, bringing initial acceptance by virtually everyone.

4:16-17 Jesus lived (was brought up) in Nazareth in Galilee from the time He was a small boy (2:39,51) until He began His public ministry, when He was "about 30 years old" (see note at 3:23). When Jesus lived at His family home in Nazareth, He always worshiped in this synagogue on the Sabbath (the Sabbath lasted from Friday night at sundown to Saturday night at sundown). From what is known about synagogue services of that era, the reading from the Mosaic law (Hb torah) was usually prescribed, while the person chosen to read from the books of the Prophets (Hb nebi'im) had the latitude to choose any passage he wished. When Jesus was given the Isaiah scroll, He unrolled it and began reading from Is 61:1.

4:18 Jesus' ministry throughout Galilee demonstrated that the Spirit of the Lord was on Him (v. 14). As Messiah, He was anointed as the rightful king of Israel. But here the anointing was as a prophet (to preach good news). Even though the message Jesus preached was first to those who were captivated by sin, the mention of the poor . . . the captives . . . the blind, and the oppressed is in keeping with Luke's emphasis on the poor and downtrodden.

4:19-21 Jesus stopped reading from Is 61 in the middle of verse 2 and sat down (the normal posture for reading Scripture was standing; teaching was done while sitting). He ended the reading precisely at the phrase to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor because this is exactly what His preaching proclaimed: the season of God's grace had come in Messiah's ministry. The very next phrase in Is 61:2, which Jesus did not read, is "and the day of our God's vengeance." This refers to the second coming of Christ and His judgment of the world (Rv 19:11-21). Thus Jesus read in the synagogue the part of Is 61:1-2 that was being fulfilled at that time, but held off on reading the portion that would not be fulfilled until the time of judgment.

4:22 The immediate response to Jesus' message in the synagogue was mostly positive, as it had been elsewhere in Galilee (see note at vv. 14-15). But knowing Is 61 was a messianic prophecy, it greatly troubled the people that the young preacher whom they thought of merely as Joseph's son (see note at 3:23-28) was claiming to be the long-awaited Messiah.

4:23-24 The people in Jesus' hometown of Nazareth, motivated by curiosity rather than genuine spiritual interest, expected to see Him heal, as they had heard about Him doing in nearby Capernaum. Instead of satisfying them, Jesus illustrated a principle that often proved true in OT times: A prophet (see 4:18; Is 61:1) is not accepted in his hometown.

4:25-27 Jesus' first example of a prophet being rejected by his own people was Elijah, who was so unpopular in Israel during the three years and six months of a drought that he had to seek refuge in the home of a widow in the Gentile town of Zarephath in Phoenicia, on the Mediterranean coast, northwest of Galilee (1Kg 17:1-24). The second example was the prophet Elisha, who skipped over all the lepers of Israel in his time and only healed . . . Naaman the Syrian, a Gentile general (2Kg 7:1-19).

4:28-30 The crowd in the synagogue was enraged because Jesus' examples implied God's acceptance of Gentiles and His rejection of Israel. Jesus foiled their attempt at mob violence by walking right through the crowd, an odd circumstance that may imply a miracle. Alternatively, it may only indicate that Jesus' presence was so forceful that the people, though angry, willingly stepped aside and let Him through.

4:31-32 Luke does not elaborate on the exact nature of the authority that Jesus demonstrated through His teaching in Capernaum on the Sabbath. Most likely the authority derived from the fact that Jesus' message was directly from God, not merely from the religious authorities of earlier generations whom Jewish teachers typically cited.

4:33-36 This is an example of the far-reaching authority Jesus displayed in Capernaum. He cast out an unclean demonic spirit that had possessed a man in the synagogue. Jesus did this simply by the rebuke, Be quiet and come out of him. The crowds wondered about Jesus, His message, and His power over the demonic realm, but the demon knew exactly who Jesus was—the Holy One of God—a title that Simon Peter also used of Jesus (Jn 6:69).

4:38-40 Jesus' authority also extended to physical illness. As He had done with the demon, Jesus rebuked the fever, and Simon Peter's mother-in-law was immediately healed. As a result, word of Jesus' authority over sickness spread through Capernaum. He laid His hands on many people with various diseases, healing all of them.

4:41 As He healed the physical diseases of many people in Capernaum, Jesus also cast out more demons. This leaves the strong impression that demons were able to cause some diseases. As with the demon in the man in the synagogue (vv. 33-36), the demons identified Jesus as divine. Jesus rebuked the demons for revealing that He was the Messiah because they were attempting to assert control over Him by revealing who He was before the appropriate time.

4:42-44 This is the first of more than 30 times that the kingdom of God is mentioned in Luke's Gospel. A full-blown concept of the kingdom includes: (1) the King (ruler), (2) the rule itself (sovereignty to rule), (3) the realm being ruled (this world), and (4) those ruled (individuals who believe the good news of Jesus Christ). In addition, some passages in the Gospels present the kingdom of God as already present in at least some senses (Mt 12:28) while others speak of it as being still future (Mt 6:10).

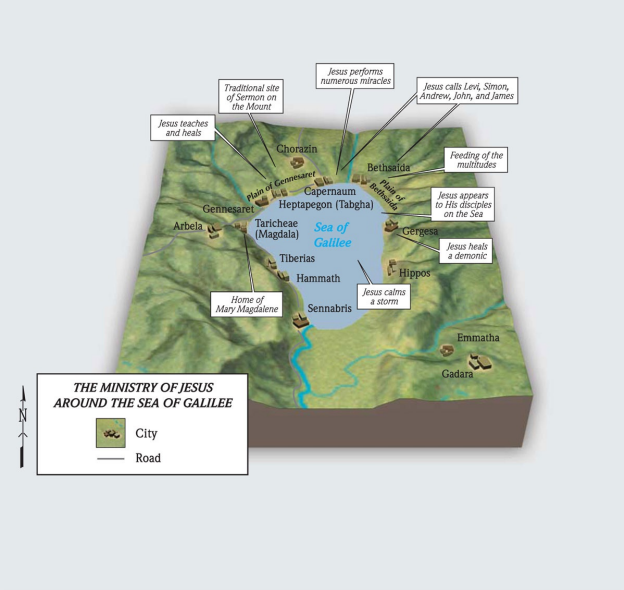
5:1-3 Lake Gennesaret was an alternate name for the Sea of Galilee, which is also called the Sea of Tiberias (Jn 6:1; 21:1). The boat Jesus chose belonged to Simon Peter, whose mother-in-law He had recently healed (4:38-39). Jesus sat down in the boat; this was the normal posture for a teacher (see note at 4:19-21).



5:4-7 In spite of the fact that his night labors had been fruitless, at Jesus' command Peter responded in faith (at Your word, I'll let down the nets). His faith was rewarded with a catch so big that their nets tore and the boats almost sank.

5:8-11 Peter's realization of Jesus' divine power and holiness through the catch of fish was essentially the same as that of Job (Jb 42:6) and Isaiah (Is 6:5). James and John, along with Simon Peter, formed Jesus' inner circle (9:28; Mt 26:37). Jesus used the huge catch of fish to illustrate the kind of evangelistic impact Simon would have (catching people; see Ac 2:41; 4:4). Peter and the other fishermen left everything and followed Jesus. This thoroughgoing commitment is the essence of true discipleship (14:26).

5:12-14 Jesus responded to the faith of a leper (a man with a serious skin disease) and immediately healed him. However, He did not want word about the miracle to spread. He ordered the man to act according to the law of Moses (Lv 14:1-32) for cleansing and let the visual proof of his healing take the place of verbal testimony before a Jewish priest.

5:15-16 These verses reflect the difference between the public and private life of Jesus during His early ministry. On the one hand, large crowds heard Him preach and were healed of their sicknesses. On the other hand, Jesus often sought out remote places where He could pray without interruption.

5:17-20 The Pharisees were the legalistic Jewish religious party. The teachers of the law of Moses were also known as "the scribes." They functioned essentially as lawyers who worked closely with the Pharisees. These leaders had heard about Jesus' preaching and power to heal, and they decided that He needed to be observed carefully. The persistence of the paralyzed man's friends to get him into the presence of Jesus reflects strong faith. But Jesus focused on the man's greatest need—forgiveness of sins through faith in God's Son.

5:21-25 The scribes and Pharisees understood that Jesus was acting as if He were God when He claimed to forgive the sins of the paralyzed man. Not only did they not believe He was God, they viewed His claims as blasphemies. Jesus was perceiving their thoughts because He knew what is in man (Jn 2:25). In verse 23 Jesus expressed the heart of their doubt. It was much easier to just say your sins are forgiven than to heal a paralytic since there could be no visible proof of whether sins had been forgiven. To demonstrate that He had power to do the invisible miracle of forgiving sins, Jesus performed the visible miracle of healing the paralytic: I tell you: Get up . . . and go home. The man got up immediately and went home glorifying God.

5:26 The Pharisees and scribes together with everyone else in the crowd were astounded at Jesus' miracle. The "they" of they were giving glory to God apparently included unbelieving scribes and Pharisees. There was simply no denying the wonder of what Jesus had done, but submitting to Jesus and the far-reaching implications of His claims was another thing altogether.

5:27-28 A tax collector would sit in a toll booth (tax office) and collect customs or duties, in this case likely on the international highway that ran through Galilee. Levi is another name for Matthew (Mt 9:9; 10:3). He demonstrated the discipleship commitment that Simon, James, and John had shown earlier (leaving everything behind . . . to follow Him; see note at vv. 8-11).

5:29-30 Levi's becoming a disciple was very open. He hosted a grand banquet in honor of Jesus, to which he invited his fellow tax collectors. The Pharisees and scribes (see note at vv. 17-20) were incensed because tax collectors were considered ritually unclean. Tax collectors and sinners (others who were ritually unclean) were socially off-limits to devout Jews. Although Levi was a fellow Jew, he was despised because he worked for the Roman government.

5:31-32 Jesus referred to the Pharisees and their allies as the healthy and righteous. In contrast, He labeled tax collectors and their associates as the sick and sinners. He did not mean that the Pharisees were actually righteous, but only that they saw themselves that way. By contrast, those whom the Pharisees viewed as sinners realized they were spiritually sick and desperately needed a spiritual doctor who could guide them to repentance (see note at 3:2-3). Thus Jesus had higher regard for the sick and sinners.

5:33 The Pharisees were offended at the behavior of Jesus' disciples as compared to their own disciples and those of John the Baptist. Jesus was not opposed to fasting (Mt 4:2; 6:16-18), but He also allowed His disciples to attend banquets (eat and drink), like that given by Levi (see note at vv. 29-30). This was in stark contrast to the Pharisees' rigid schedule of fasting. They fasted twice weekly (18:12), on the Day of Atonement (Lv 16:29), four times a year to remember the destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians (Zch 8:19), plus any other time it was deemed appropriate.

5:34-35 Jesus applied the issue of fasting to a wedding, as if He were the groom. It was not appropriate to fast during the joy of a wedding or before the divine groom was taken away (i.e., before the cross, resurrection, and ascension).

5:36-37 The first of Jesus' two parables applied the principle that you cannot patch an old garment with new cloth. It will tear the new cloth and it won't match the old garment. On the heels of the controversy about fasting, Jesus illustrated the point that His message was radical (the new) and could not serve as a patch for the existing form of Judaism (the old garment).

5:38-39 Jesus' second parable initially made the same point as the first, but then proceeded further. New (not fully fermented) wine cannot be put into old wineskins because it will burst and ruin them. New wine (the message of Jesus) must be put into fresh wineskins (the church of Jesus Christ; see Mt 16:18). But there was a natural reason why many of Jesus' hearers continued to cling to Judaism: old (properly fermented and aged) wine (the established traditions of Judaism) tastes better (more familiar and comfortable).

6:1 -2 The controversy with the Pharisees shifts to the issue of keeping the Sabbath day. Deuteronomy 23:25 permitted going through a neighbor's field and picking . . . grain, as long as a person did not use a sickle. The issue here was the permissibility of such behavior on the Sabbath.

6:3-5 Jesus' argument in answering the Pharisees was that there are exceptions even to important religious standards. He cited the example of David eating the sacred bread (the "bread of the Presence" of God, kept in the holy place of the temple; 2Ch 2:4), which only priests were to eat. David once used this consecrated bread to feed himself and those who were with him (1Sm 21:1-6) in a time of need. Son of Man is a messianic title (see Dn 7:13) that Jesus often used of Himself (Lk 5:24; 19:10). As Messiah, Jesus was the same Lord who instituted the Sabbath regulations. Thus He had full authority to make an exception to the observance of this special day.

6:6-7 The second Sabbath controversy occurred in a synagogue while Jesus was teaching and a man affected by paralysis (cp. 5:17-25) was present. The scribes and Pharisees began watching His every move. They saw this as an opportunity to have Jesus charged and arrested.

6:8-10 On He knew their thoughts, see note at 5:21-25. When Jesus had the man with the paralyzed hand get up and stand near Him, He thrust the man's situation into the spotlight and confronted the Pharisees and scribes head-on. The answer to Jesus' rhetorical question was obvious. Everyone should agree that it was lawful to do . . . good or save life on the Sabbath. Because healing was doing good, it would be wrong not to heal this man, even on the Sabbath. By stretching out his hand in obedience to Jesus' command, the man's hand was restored.

6:11 The Pharisees and scribes were filled with rage that Jesus had outwitted them again. The parallel passages in Mt 12:14 and Mk 3:6 state that they wanted to "destroy" Jesus.

6:12-13 Although this is another example of Luke's emphasis on prayer, it is the only time it is said that Jesus spent all night in prayer. That Jesus prayed all night indicates the importance of the choice of the 12 . . . apostles from the wider group of His disciples. While disciple (Gk mathetes) means "learner, pupil, follower," the meaning of apostle (Gk apostolos) is literally "sent one," with the idea of being sent with a commission. It is not stated why He chose 12 apostles, though the fact that Israel had 12 tribes was likely the reason.

6:14-16 Other lists of the apostles appear in Mt 10:2-4; Mk 3:16-19; and Ac 1:13. Although certain details vary among the lists, Simon . . . Peter is always listed first and the traitor . . . Judas Iscariot, is listed last. "Iscariot" (Gk iskarioth) may be derived from Judas's hometown of Kerioth or an Aramaic word meaning "assassin." Bartholomew is probably another name for Nathanael (Jn 1:45). Matthew is an alternate name for Levi (5:27,29). Judas the son of James seems to be the same as Thaddaeus (Mt 10:3).

6:17-49 This section of Luke's Gospel is often referred to as the Sermon on the Plain. It has many similarities to the Sermon on the Mount in Mt 5-7, but it is much shorter. The two best explanations for the similarities and differences are: (1) after becoming acquainted with the material found in Matthew, Luke selected and shaped the content to fit his purposes in writing (see notes at Lk 1:1; 1:2; 1:3; and 1:4 in regard to Luke's editorial approach), or (2) since Jesus undoubtedly preached the same material in various locations, it is possible that the Sermon on the Mount and the Sermon on the Plain were presented on different occasions.

6:17 If this is the same event as the Sermon on the Mount (Mt 5-7), the level place would be a plateau on the side of a mountain where Jesus went up to pray in 6:12. In Matthew, the message is directed only to the disciples of Jesus (Mt 5:1), while Luke added two other groups: (1) a great number of people from all Judea and Jerusalem (i.e., where Jesus would minister later), and (2) many people from the seacoast of Tyre and Sidon (these were probably Gentile regions).

6:18-19 The crowd did not gather just to hear Jesus preach. Many came to be healed of physical diseases or spiritual oppression by unclean spirits (demons). Since power (Gk dunamis) was coming out from Him, all who touched Jesus were healed.

6:20-26 Verses 24-26 in this section are the exact counterpart to verses 20-23 (blessed vs. woe; poor vs. rich; hungry vs. full; when people hate you vs. when all people speak well of you). In Matthew, it is "the poor in spirit" and "those who hunger . . . for righteousness" who are blessed. The same is true here, because the reward for the blessed ones is in heaven. Jesus noted that rejection was the way those in earlier generations used to treat the prophets, while speaking well was the way they treated the false prophets. The implication is that Jesus' growing rejection by the religious leaders is proof that He was a true prophet.

6:27-49 The remainder of the Sermon on the Plain in this section deals with the attitudes and actions of those who are followers of Jesus.

6:27-30 Christ's disciples are to be characterized by actions of love (loving enemies, doing good to those who hate you, blessing those who curse you, praying for those who mistreat you, not retaliating against violence) and generosity (lit "giving the shirt off your back," lending and not expecting repayment).

6:31 This verse is usually referred to as the Golden Rule. This is apparently a restatement of the second commandment: "Love your neighbor as yourself" (Lv 19:18).

6:32-34 Jesus discussed the logic of selfless love. It is not the kind of love His disciples display if they just return the love someone has shown them, or do . . . good to someone as a sort of repayment, or lend when they are certain to be repaid. There is no spiritual credit in God's eyes for such behavior since even many unsaved sinners behave this way. Christians are to practice a deeper, selfless love.

6:35-36 The reward for obeying Jesus' command to love your enemies, do . . . good and lend without expecting repayment will be great, though much of it will not be in this life. But your selfless love will reflect that you are sons of the Most High (children of God). He is gracious and merciful to all people, and disciples of Jesus are to follow His example.

6:37 The problems here are hypocritical judgment, short-sighted condemnation, and an unforgiving spirit. These warnings do not mean that Jesus' followers should not practice careful discernment (judgment).

6:38 "Measure" involves weighing and judging. Be fair to others, because the measure you use will return to you. If you are generous, generosity will be returned to you in full measure. If you are stingy and uncharitable, such will be the standards by which you are judged.

6:39-40 This parable is a warning about following the wrong person. Spiritually blind leaders mislead disciples.

6:41-42 A person is a hypocrite (Gk hupokrites; "one who pretends to be someone else") if he harshly criticizes a small weakness (a speck) in another person's life while overlooking a large fault (a log) in his own. We are in no position to criticize another person until we have dealt with our own shortcomings.

6:43-45 The type of fruit produced is determined by the type of tree that produces it. A person's actions and words come from the heart, whether good or evil.

6:46-49 The illustration of building on a solid foundation versus building without a foundation points out the necessity for a disciple's behavior to be consistent with his stated commitment. The difference between a life that can withstand storms and one that cannot depends not just on whether one comes to Christ and hears His words, but also whether one acts on His teachings.

7:1 Capernaum was Jesus' headquarters for His ministry in Galilee (4:14-9:50).

7:2-3 A centurion was a commander of 100 men in the Roman army. This centurion was apparently a compassionate man, deeply concerned about the illness of his servant. He reached out to Jesus through some local Jewish elders (either recognized leaders in the community or respected older men). In the parallel passage in Mt 8:5-10, the centurion approached Jesus directly.

7:4-8 The Jewish elders were willing to intervene with Jesus because they considered the centurion a truly worthy man. Though he was a Gentile, he loved Israel and had spent time and money constructing a synagogue in Capernaum. The centurion did not consider himself worthy of being in Jesus' presence, but he had faith that Jesus could heal his servant, even at a distance. He understood the spiritual authority Jesus commanded because he understood military authority (I . . . am . . . under authority, having soldiers under my command).

7:9-10 Jesus was amazed that the faith of the Gentile centurion was greater than the faith of any He had found in Israel. The centurion's faith was rewarded; his slave was restored to good health by Jesus.

7:11-12 Nain was about six miles south of Nazareth, where Jesus grew up. Jesus' arrival coincided with a funeral procession for the son of a widow, who was left childless and without a means of financial support.

7:13-15 Jesus acted out of compassion for the widow in bringing her son back from the dead. By custom Jewish funerals included an open coffin, but anyone who touched the corpse became ceremonially unclean (Nm 19:11). This is the first of several times that Jesus raised a person from the dead (Lk 8:40-56; Jn 11:38-44).

7:16-17 The phrase a great prophet has risen probably refers to Elijah (1Kg 17:17-24) and Elisha (2Kg 4:18-37) raising people from the dead. God has visited His people does not necessarily mean that the people at this early date believed that God had become a man in the person of Jesus (Jn 1:14). It can mean simply that the power of God had been experienced among His people. The fact that the report about this miracle reached Judea looks ahead to Jesus' journey to Jerusalem (9:51-19:44).

7:18-20 John the Baptist had to be told all these things because he was in prison (see note at 3:20). John's question grew out of confusion more than doubt. On the one hand, Jesus certainly did the works of the Messiah. On the other hand, He had not acted to overturn Roman rule or free righteous prisoners, as the Jews expected Messiah to do. So John decided to send two of his disciples to clear up the confusion by asking Jesus, Are you the One?

7:21-23 Verse 21 is a summary of the miracles Jesus was doing in His ministry, serving as a lead-in to His response to the question from John the Baptist's disciples. The things Jesus told John's disciples to report that they had seen and heard went beyond the prophecy of the Messiah in Is 61:1-2 (e.g., the dead are raised). Blessed looks back to 6:22.

7:24-28 The crowds were apparently asking Jesus why John the Baptist's messengers had come to Him. So Jesus explained the significance of John and his ministry. He was not one who fit in with current thought or comfortable surroundings, and he had nothing to do with royalty and its excesses. Instead, he was a prophet and, beyond that, the forerunner for Messiah (My messenger ahead of You; see Mal 3:1). No mere human to that point was greater than John the Baptist. However, even the least Christian of the new covenant era (the coming form of the kingdom of God), beginning with the day of Pentecost (Ac 2), would have greater spiritual resources than John due to the permanent indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

7:29-30 All of those who had repented and been baptized (see note at 3:2-3) by John acknowledged God's way of righteousness (John's message as forerunner to Jesus). But the Pharisees and experts in the law, who would not repent and humble themselves to be baptized by John, rejected the plan of God regarding salvation.

7:31-35 Jesus declared that it was impossible to please the people of His generation. They would not respond to the playing of a flute (a happy sound) or the singing of a lament (a sad sound). John the Baptist led a very strict lifestyle, but he was accused of having a demon. By contrast, Jesus was accused of living loosely and eating with sinners, and thus was called a glutton and a drunkard.

7:35 The phrase wisdom is vindicated by all her children means that the teachings of John the Baptist and Jesus will be shown correct by all those who live (and live well) by following their teachings.

7:36-38 It is not clear whether the Pharisee who invited Jesus into his home wanted to learn from Him, as did Nicodemus (Jn 3:1-2), or was seeking to trap Him. The unnamed woman was probably a prostitute (sinner) who heard Jesus preach and repented. Reclining meant resting on your side, with your feet facing away from the table. Though she said nothing, her tears and her willingness to give the expensive fragrant oil to anoint Jesus' feet were an eloquent testimony of her gratitude to Jesus.

7:39 The Pharisee who had invited Jesus into his home could not conceive that a true prophet would associate with this kind of woman—a known sinner. Being a Pharisee required him to be separated from sin and sinners like her.

7:40-43 Jesus showed that He knew what Simon, the Pharisee, was thinking. The point of Jesus' story was simple: a person who is forgiven more appreciates it more.

7:44-47 Jesus drew a contrast between the Pharisee and the woman. Simon had failed to provide water to wash His feet, had given Him no kiss of hospitality, and did not anoint His head with oil—all things she had done. Jesus did not mean that the Pharisee had little sin to be forgiven, but that he did not think of himself as a sinner while the woman was profoundly aware of her sinfulness.

7:48-50 Based on her actions, which reflected true repentance of sins, Jesus forgave the woman who anointed His feet. He made it clear that her faith had saved her (see Eph 2:8-9). Once again, His authority to forgive sins was questioned (see note at 5:21-25).

8:1-3 As Jesus was traveling and preaching in Galilee, He was accompanied by the Twelve (see note at 6:14-16) and several well-to-do women who, out of gratitude for being healed by Jesus, financially supported Him and the apostles.

Mary . . . Magdalene (i.e., of the town of Magdala), who became a well-known follower (Mt 27:61), is introduced here. Joanna, who is also mentioned in 24:10, was married to a man who held a responsible position under Herod Antipas, the tetrarch of Galilee (see note at 3:1). Nothing else is known about Susanna.

8:5-8 From this point forward, Jesus used the parable approach much more, the purpose of which is explained in verses 9-10. In an agricultural society, everyone would have understood what happened when a sower went out into a field to sow his seed. At least one path ran through most fields, and much of the terrain in Israel was rocky under a thin layer of topsoil. Dropping seeds along such paths was futile. Many fields had thorn bushes along the perimeters. Seeds falling there had no chance to grow and survive until harvest time. Others, however, did fall on fertile soil and produced a bumper crop (100 times what was sown). Anyone who has ears to hear should listen is a challenge to carefully consider the story and its hidden meaning and practical implications (Rv 2:7).

8:9-10 Jesus' disciples could not understand the point of the story, so they asked Him its meaning. Quoting from Is 6:9, Jesus explained that He used parables as a way to reveal the truths of the kingdom of God to believers but that the story by itself actually concealed the meaning from unbelievers.

8:11-12 The key to the parable is that the seed being sown stands for the preaching of the word of God. The seeds that fell on the hard dirt along the path did not penetrate the hearts of those who heard God's Word because the Devil stole the seed away. So they remained unsaved.

8:13-14 The seeds on the rocky soil seemed to flourish at first, but they could not put down roots, so they soon withered and died. The seed . . . among thorns that produce no mature fruit may be: (1) those whose unbelief is revealed by their response to worries, riches, and the pleasures of life, or (2) believers who are not fruitful (1Co 3:10-15).

8:15 The seed in the good ground represents fruitful believers (Jn 15:2) who receive God's word with an open heart and persevere in the faith.

8:16-18 How a person responds to God's revelation determines whether he will receive more light or lose what he has. In the end, God will bring everything to light.

8:19-21 Human relationships built upon mutual faith in Christ, spiritual openness to one another, and shared obedience to the word of God are more important than relationships with physical family members, especially if the family members are unbelievers.

8:22-25 When a boat trip across the Sea of Galilee ran into a fierce windstorm, Jesus slept in the boat while His disciples faced the storm and feared they would die. When Jesus was awakened, He demonstrated full authority over wind and waves by calming the storm. He also chided His disciples for their lack of faith. Had they genuinely trusted Jesus, they would not have feared even the fiercest winds and waves.

8:26 The region of the Gerasenes was probably around the town of Gergesa (or Khersa), on the eastern coast of the Sea of Galilee. The name for this predominantly Gentile region came from the city of Gerasa, located about 35 miles to the southeast.

8:27 In the parallel account in Mt 8:28, two demon-possessed men are mentioned. Apparently, Luke chose to focus on the one who did the talking. The phrase did not stay in a house but in the tombs may refer to an outdoor burial ground, but since the man was naked, it is more likely this refers to a cave, several of which have been found in that area.

8:28-31 The demon who spoke identified Jesus, just as the demons had in 4:34 and Ac 16:17. Son of the Most High was the wording used by the angel in speaking to Mary (see note at 1:31-33). Don't torment me probably refers to sending the demon to the abyss, a place where some of the demons are currently confined (Rv 9:1-2,11). Demons enabled people whom they possessed to perform feats of great strength (he would snap the restraints). It is not clear whether Jesus was asking the name of the man or the demon, but the demon answered. A legion of Roman soldiers was a force of 6,000. Thus, many demons possessed this man.

8:32-33 The presence of a large herd of pigs indicates that the region of the Gerasenes was heavily Gentile because Jews considered pigs to be unclean animals (Lv 11:7-8) and would never herd them. The cruel destructiveness of demons is seen in that, as soon as Jesus permitted them to enter the pigs, they caused them to drown in the lake (the Sea of Galilee).

8:34-37 Sitting at Jesus' feet is the position of a disciple (i.e., the pupil; see 10:38-42). The people were afraid when the demon-possessed man returned to normal, for Jesus had exercised a power that revealed His supernatural identity.

8:38-39 Because He had been asked to leave, Jesus told the healed man to stay in that region and testify to what God had done for him. The man obeyed by proclaiming all that Jesus had done for him.

8:40-42 Jesus returned to Galilee. He likely had met this Jairus before. He had spoken in most of the synagogues in Galilee, and Jairus was a leader (Gk archon , "ruler"; probably the chief elder who conducted the services) in the local synagogue.

8:43-46 The account of the woman suffering from bleeding for 12 years interrupts the narrative to show that delay during a critical hour of the girl's illness could not keep Jesus from healing her. As for the woman, her bleeding was probably menstrual hemorrhaging, which had made her ceremonially unclean for all this time (Lv 15:25-31). As a doctor, Luke was especially sensitive to the fact that this woman had spent all her resources on doctors yet could not be healed. Even with the crowd pressing against Jesus from all sides, He was immediately aware of the touch of the woman who was instantly healed of her bleeding. No explanation is given for how He knew that healing power had gone out from Him.

8:47-48 The woman was instantly cured, but she was understandably fearful when Jesus singled her out. After hearing her explanation, Jesus stated that her faith in Him had brought about her healing.

8:49-50 During the delay caused by Jesus' interaction with the bleeding woman, the daughter of the synagogue leader died. The natural conclusion was that she was now beyond the help of Jesus. However, He stated that the same kind of faith that had brought about the healing of the bleeding woman would bring the dead girl back to life.

8:51-53 In this passage Peter, John, and James, are set apart by Jesus as the inner circle of the apostles (9:28; Mt 26:37). The sense of finality by the child's parents and, apparently, even the apostles was so profound that the people in the house started laughing at Jesus when He seemingly denied that the girl was dead (she is not dead but asleep).

8:54-56 When Jesus commanded, Child, get up, her spirit returned to her body. Then she got up and had something to eat. It is not known why Jesus insisted that her parents not tell about Him raising their daughter from the dead. The crowd outside knew that the girl had genuinely died. Now she was alive just after Jesus went in to see her. There could be no hiding the fact that Jesus raised her.

9:1-2 After the Twelve had observed Jesus' ministry for several months, He delegated power and authority over demons and diseases to them (see note at 6:12-13). Their other mission (Gk apostello; "to send out") was to proclaim the kingdom of God. In the parallel passage in Mt 10, the apostles were specifically instructed to avoid the Samaritans and Gentiles and to go only to "the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Mt 10:5-6), but Luke did not include this restriction.

9:3-5 The apostles were to be dependent on whom they lodged with (take nothing) and were to move on if a family or town did not welcome them. Shake off the dust from your feet was a gesture of judgment against those who rejected the apostles and their message about Jesus.

9:6 Proclaiming the good news (Gk euangelizo; "to preach the gospel") is paralleled here with "proclaim the kingdom of God" in v. 2. The message of the gospel of Jesus Christ is the means of entry into the kingdom of God.

9:7-9 Herod Antipas (see note at 3:1) was at a loss (perplexed) to decide whether Jesus was John the Baptist raised from the dead. The parallel passages (Mt 14:2; Mk 6:16) indicate he decided that Jesus was indeed the risen John. Others around Antipas, however, thought Jesus was the prophet Elijah (see Mal 4:5). John himself had partially fulfilled this prophecy (Mt 11:14). Still others believed that some other OT prophet had come back.

9:10-11 After the apostles returned from their mission, they reported their deeds, and Jesus again took the lead over the ministry of preaching and healing. Bethsaida was a town on the northeastern coast of the Sea of Galilee that had recently been rebuilt by Herod Philip (see note at 3:1). The attempt to find a private place outside Bethsaida where the apostles could rest and confer with Jesus was foiled by the following crowds.

9:12-17 Other than His resurrection from the dead, the feeding of the 5,000 is the only miracle of Jesus that appears in all four Gospels (Mt 14:13-21; Mk 6:30-44; Jn 6:5-14).

9:12-14 According to John's Gospel, Jesus, already knowing what He was going to do, was the one who expressed concern initially over where the crowd would find food and lodging so late in the day (Jn 6:5-6). Here in Luke, Jesus responded to the question by the Twelve by challenging them to give them something to eat. The apostles had already surveyed the crowd and found only five loaves of bread and two fish to feed about 5,000 men (who, with women and children, could easily have totaled 15,000 or more). To better manage distribution, Jesus had the apostles organize the huge crowd into groups of about 50 people.

9:16-17 It is likely that when Jesus looked up to heaven and blessed and broke the loaves, He uttered the traditional Jewish mealtime prayer: "Blessed are You, Lord our God, King of the world, who brings out bread from the earth." The miracle of the multiplying of the loaves and fish took place in the hands of Jesus as He broke the food and kept giving it to the disciples to distribute. At the end, it appears that each of the 12 apostles picked up a full basket of leftover pieces, even after feeding thousands of people. The Jews were required to pick up scraps of food that fell during any meal.

9:18-20 These verses are another example of Luke's emphasis on prayer. The answers the disciples gave to Jesus' question about His identity prove that Herod Antipas was not the only person who was perplexed on this point (see note at vv. 7-9). When Jesus asked the disciples their personal opinion, Peter answered as spokesman for the group. His answer, that Jesus is God's Messiah, is the conclusion to which everything in Luke's Gospel points.

9:21-22 Jesus was not ready to present Himself openly as the Messiah. In popular Jewish views of that time, Messiah was expected to overthrow Roman rule and, in a wave of popularity, take over as king of Israel. Contrary to this, Jesus' mission was to suffer and be rejected by the Jewish leadership before being killed and raised from the dead. This was the first of several predictions by Jesus of His death and/or resurrection (v. 44; 12:50; 17:25; 18:31-33).

9:23 To be a true disciple of Jesus requires self-denial. The cross was the most painful and humiliating form of execution of the Roman era. Thus, to take up one's cross daily is to expect painful situations every day because of allegiance to Christ.

9:24 The principle that one must lose one's life to save it as opposed to living only for this world is Jesus' most common refrain in the Gospels (14:26-27; 17:33; Mt 10:38-39; 16:24-25; Mk 8:34-35; Jn 12:25). To follow Him, we must lay down our devotions to this world and live for Christ and His mission.

9:25 No matter how wealthy a person is in this life (gains the whole world), he will be bankrupt eternally (forfeits himself) if he dies without Christ.

9:26 To be ashamed of Christ and His words indicates unbelief, which will bring eternal judgment (12:9; 2Tm 2:12) at His second coming. It is also possible for believers to temporarily cower in fear around unbelieving peers and act "ashamed" of Jesus, as Peter did in his denials of Christ. In such cases a believer may suffer loss of heavenly reward (1Co 3:10-15; 2Co 5:10), but not suffer eternal punishment.

9:27 This cryptic statement refers to the next event in the book—the transfiguration of Jesus (vv. 28-35). Some standing here indicates Peter, James, and John, who were with Jesus at His transfiguration (v. 28). See the kingdom of God apparently means that the glorious appearance of Jesus (vv. 29,32) was a preview of the coming kingdom.

9:28-29 On Peter, John, and James, see note at 8:51-53. The traditional candidate for the mountain in these verses is Mount Tabor, six miles east of Nazareth and about 1,900 feet in elevation. However, it is more likely that it was Mount Hermon, located between Caesarea Philippi and Damascus, which rises to 9,000 feet above sea level. We are not told in what sense the appearance of Jesus' face changed. His clothes are described as dazzling white (gleaming, like a bolt of lightning). There may be an intended similarity here to Moses after he was with God on Mount Sinai (Ex 34:29-35) or to the vision of the Son of Man in Rv 1:13-16.

9:30-31 Jewish tradition expected Moses and Elijah (see Mal 4:5-6) to return before the arrival of the kingdom of God. Like Jesus, their appearances were almost blinding in this special appearance. The word translated death (Gk exodos) means “departure,” though it can also refer to the OT exodus from Egypt. The choice of this word may be an association with the presence of Moses. In Jerusalem makes it clear that the “exodus” would be Jesus’ death on the cross.

9:32-33 It is not clear whether Peter, James, and John were in a deep sleep because it was in the middle of the night, or if they were caused to fall asleep as Daniel was when angels came (Dn 8:18; 10:9). Peter spoke as Moses and Elijah were departing in an attempt to prolong the glorious scene. But his idea was shortsighted for two reasons: (1) to make three equal tabernacles (temporary structures for housing) was to place Moses and Elijah on a level with Jesus, and not to worship Him exclusively (Rv 19:10; 22:8-9); and (2) Jesus’ discussion of His coming “exodus” in Jerusalem (see note at Lk 9:30-31) meant there was no room for delay in God’s plan of redemption.

9:34-35 The cloud that overshadowed the scene recalls the cloud that came over the tabernacle in the wilderness (Ex 40:34-35). The voice . . . from the cloud combines an echo of 3:22, at Jesus’ baptism, and an allusion to Dt 18:15, where Israel was told to listen to the prophet like Moses who would come (the Messiah).

9:36 Luke did not state why the three apostles were silent about what they had experienced, though Mt 17:9 states that Jesus commanded them to tell no one until after His resurrection. In 2Pt 1:16-18, Peter recalled his experience at the transfiguration.

9:38-42 It is not known whether the disciples who could not heal the boy afflicted with seizures by a demon were the nine apostles who did not see Jesus’ transfiguration or some of the wider group of disciples. It is not explained whether it was just the onlookers, or also the disciples, who were unbelieving. The boy was immediately cured when Jesus rebuked the demon.

9:44-45 In the aftermath of the healing of the demon-possessed boy (vv. 38-43), Jesus shifted gears and announced that He would soon be betrayed (Gk paradidomi; “to be handed over, delivered”) and captured. The disciples were confused by Jesus’ words. Luke stated that it was concealed from them until after Jesus’ death and resurrection. Meanwhile, their fear of Jesus’ talk about betrayal and death kept them from asking Him what He meant.

9:46-48 The question about who would be the greatest among the apostles came up more than once (22:24). Jesus knew the competitive pride that fostered the argument and was quick to point out that, spiritually, whoever was least (truly humble as a disciple of Christ) was great.

9:49-50 Apparently the man casting out demons in Jesus’ name was a true disciple, even though he did not follow Jesus from town to town. The spiritual principle here is to be careful about judging, because certain people who are not against you may be on your side. The opposite point is made in 11:23.

9:51 The phrase the days . . . for Him to be taken up refers to Jesus' ascension to heaven and the events leading up to it. Determined means literally "to fix your face," a Hebrew expression for firmness of purpose in spite of danger. The mention of traveling to Jerusalem begins the third major section of Luke's Gospel (9:51-19:27).

9:52-56 The Samaritans would not welcome Jesus because He was headed to Jerusalem to worship in the temple and not to Mount Gerizim, their preferred site of worship (see Jn 4:20-21). In Mk 3:17, the apostles James and John were nicknamed by Jesus Boanerges, meaning "Sons of Thunder," likely indicating that they had fiery tempers. Call down fire from heaven recalls Elijah's action in 2Kg 1:9-16.

9:57-58 Jesus warned this would-be disciple to count the cost before committing to follow Him. After all, even Christ Himself had no place to call home. To follow Christ is to loosen your grip on the things that normally provide physical and emotional security.

9:59-60 It is doubtful that this man's father had already died. If he had, the man would have been involved in burial rites instead of talking to Jesus. Thus, the man's words were an excuse to delay, possibly for years, his responsibility to follow Jesus and spread the news of the kingdom of God.

9:61-62 In 14:26, Jesus made it clear that He must be the top priority in a disciple's life, even above one's family. Puts his hand to the plow and looks back means looking over your shoulder while plowing, making it impossible to plow a straight furrow. Christians cannot follow Christ by looking back. We must focus on serving Him as we move ahead at His command.

10:1 Though not mentioned in 9:1-6, Jesus had apparently sent out the apostles previously in pairs (see Mk 6:7). In this verse He sent out 70 other followers to cover Judea with the message of good news in advance of His coming.

10:2 Christ seems to be saying that, as abundant as the spiritual harvest was, the 70 whom He sent out to preach were not enough. There was need for many more to take the message, and prayers must be offered to meet this need.

10:3 Lambs among wolves was a common metaphor in Judaism for being in a dangerous situation.

10:4 On items for the journey, see note at 9:3-5.

10:5-6 Peace (Hb shalom) was a traditional Jewish greeting. But the word actually speaks of wholeness or well-being. Son of is a Jewish expression meaning "one characterized by" (Ac 4:36). In this context, "son of peace" and your peace appear to relate to the 70 followers who were offering the message of peace with God through faith in Jesus Christ (Rm 5:1).

10:7 On remain in the same house, see note at 9:3-5. The worker is worthy of his wages is a basic principle of fairness. This was quoted by the apostle Paul in making his case for ministers of God's Word being paid for their work (1Tm 5:17-18).

10:8-9 If the 70 disciples were made welcome in a town, it indicated that the hearts of the people were open to the gospel message. In some sense, the present tense aspects of the kingdom of God were present in the preaching of the gospel and the healing ministry delegated by Jesus to the 70.

10:10-11 On wiping dust off the feet, see note at 9:3-5. On the kingdom of God has come near, see note at verses 8-9.

10:12 That day is the day of judgment. Sodom was destroyed by the Lord because of its sin (Gn 19:23).

10:13-14 Chorazin and Bethsaida were towns in Galilee near Capernaum. Tyre and Sidon were Gentile cities in Phoenicia on the Mediterranean coast northwest of Galilee. Sackcloth and ashes were worn by those in mourning, sometimes as an expression of repentance from sin (Neh 9:1; Jnh 3:5).

10:15 Jesus spent more time in ministry in Capernaum than anywhere else in Galilee. Yet, in their arrogance (exalted to heaven), the people of this city rejected Jesus and, as a result of their unbelief, would be sent to Hades (death, the realm of death or punishment beyond the grave).

10:16 The principle here is that rejection of the disciples is ultimately rejection of God the Father (the One who sent Me), for the Father sent the Son and the Son in turn sent out the 70 disciples to preach and heal (vv. 1,9). Since they were commissioned by Christ, to listen to the 70 was like listening to Jesus Himself. Likewise, to reject the 70 was to reject Jesus. Finally, to reject Jesus was to reject God the Father.

10:17-20 Part of the healing that the Seventy disciples performed (v. 9) had to do with casting out demons. The phrase Satan fall from heaven is probably an echo of Ezk 28:16-17, speaking of the initial judgment upon the Devil after he rebelled against God. This passage speaks of a further defeat suffered by Satan as Jesus' disciples were victorious in ministry over the power of the enemy (Satan), symbolized here by snakes and scorpions. As awesome as the power to cast out demons was, it was even more significant that the disciples' names were written in the listing of the elect of God—the Lamb's book of life in heaven (see Rv 13:8).

10:21-22 The mention of the Holy Spirit here is part of Luke's emphasis on the Spirit. The wise and learned people of the area had rejected the ministry of the 70 disciples, but the insignificant and children (infants) had accepted their message. This was part of the plan of God. In His good pleasure (see Eph 1:3-11), these things were hidden (Gk apokrupto; "to keep secret") from some and revealed to others. It is impossible for spiritually dead humans to know God the Father or His Son unless the Son reveals both.

The old Roman road from Jerusalem to Jericho was legendary for the dangers it posed to first-century travelers. The road is part of the precipitous drop from the east side of the Mount of Olives down to the Jordan Valley. A Roman aqueduct that is still used today is in the lower portion of the photo.

10:23-24 It was a truly blessed circumstance to see the ministry of Christ and even His delegated authority in healing and casting out demons. Peter stated that, beyond OT prophets and kings, even angels wanted to see and hear the things that Jesus was doing (see 1Pt 1:12).

10:25 Expert in the law refers to a scribe (11:45-46,52-53), many of whom were also Pharisees. The question asked was a standard one in Judaism and was intended to test Jesus. To inherit (Gk kleronomeo; "to receive an allotted share") eternal life shows that many Jews thought their eternal destiny was based on their Jewish bloodline and their good deeds.

10:26-28 Jesus turned the tables on the scribe by asking him to answer his own question, then complimented the man on correctly citing Lv 19:18 and Dt

6:5. Jesus did not say that it is possible to earn eternal life by loving God and your neighbor. No human other than Jesus has been able to love perfectly in every situation. Since heart . . . soul, and mind are sometimes used interchangeably in Scripture, the terms here are not intended to speak of separate aspects of human existence. Rather, they describe the total person.

10:29 Having correctly answered the first question, this man asked for an important clarification. Certain kinds of neighbors are of course easy to love, while others, being argumentative or of different religious and moral persuasions, can be very hard to love. It seems that the man hoped Jesus would justify his bias against certain kinds of neighbors.

10:30-32 The road from Jerusalem to Jericho, a distance of 17 miles with a descent of more than 3,000 feet in elevation, was a dangerous route through desert country. It had many places where robbers could lie in wait. It is possible that the priest and the Levite . . . passed by on the other side of the road because they thought the wounded man was dead and they would become ritually unclean by touching him, but it is more likely that they were afraid of being attacked by the same robbers or simply did not want to be bothered with the inconvenience of helping the man.

10:33-35 The Jews considered the Samaritans to be physical half-breeds who had intermarried with foreigners and who were guilty of false worship. For such a sworn enemy of the Jews to show compassion on an injured Jew and pay the expenses of his recuperation, while two Jewish religious officials did not, would deeply humiliate a Jew.

10:36-37 Now Jesus got back to the question with which this story began: Who is my neighbor? (see note at v. 29). His point was that the Samaritan proved he was a good neighbor by his gracious actions toward the man who had been attacked by robbers. It was impossible for the scribe to avoid acknowledging that it was the Samaritan who showed mercy. Jesus' reply to go and do the same emphasized that Jews should love their Samaritan neighbors even as the good Samaritan in the story had acted in love toward a Jew.

10:38-39 The village in v. 38 was Bethany, just over the Mount of Olives and two miles east of Jerusalem. Martha and Mary were the sisters of Lazarus, whom Jesus raised from the dead (Jn 11:1-44). Sat at the Lord's feet . . . listening was the posture of a committed disciple.

10:40-42 Martha was distracted from what should have been her highest priority—learning from Jesus. She was worried and upset about all the household chores that needed to be done and irritated with her sister Mary because it was the role of women to serve men in such a setting. Jesus indicated that Martha's exclusive focus should be the same as her sister's—discipleship,

11:1-4 This model prayer for Jesus' disciples is similar to the one in the Sermon on the Mount (Mt 6:9-13), but much shorter. Apparently, the disciples were motivated to learn to pray by both Jesus' example and that of John the Baptist and his disciples. It was unusual for Jews to refer to God as Father. Such an address would seem too personal and familiar. Even though Luke emphasized the offer of the kingdom of God (4:43) and the nearness of the kingdom in Jesus' ministry (10:9,11), some aspects of the kingdom are still future (Your kingdom come). All people are dependent on the Lord to meet their daily needs, as in give us . . . our daily bread. In debt refers to what is "owed" to us spiritually (i.e., having been sinned against). The phrase do not bring us into temptation is in contrast with Christ Himself, who was led by the Holy Spirit to be tested by Satan (see note at 4:1).

11:5-8 The point of this story is that bold persistence pays off. But, as with the story of the widow and the judge in 18:1-8, it must not be understood that God is like the hesitant homeowner in the story. If bold persistence is rewarded even by someone who is disposed against granting our request, how much more so will God, who cares about His children, delight in responding generously to our persistent prayers.

11:9-10 Asking, searching, and knocking visualize different aspects of prayer, all of which are valid. Keep asking . . . searching . . . knocking reflects the persistence theme emphasized in the story of verses 5-8. The assurance that everyone who asks receives does not mean that every prayer is answered as we want it to be. Rather, it means that if we persist in prayer, our prayers will eventually be answered according to God's best for us.

11:11-12 No human father who really loved his child would be so uncaring as to give him a snake in place of a fish or a scorpion in place of an egg.

11:13 The parallel passage in Mt 7:11 reads, "Give good things to those who ask Him." If those good things are related to the Holy Spirit, the wording may be speaking of spiritual gifts (Rm 12; 1Co 12). This verse reflects Luke's emphasis on the Holy Spirit. Leading up to the day of Pentecost, the apostles and other believers waited in prayer (Ac 1:14) for the baptism of the Spirit to come. In that instance, the heavenly Father gave the Holy Spirit to those who asked Him.

11:14-16 Instead of praising God for Jesus' healing of the mute demon-possessed man, some in the crowd accused Him of casting out demons by the power of Satan. Beelzebul, the god worshiped by Philistines in Ekron, had become a nickname for Satan. Others were trying to trap Jesus by asking Him to perform a miraculous sign.

11:17-20 A kingdom or house divided against itself is self-destructive. Jesus made two key points in His defense: (1) It is nonsense to think that Satan would divide his own "house" by casting out his own demons, and (2) it is unlikely that Jewish exorcists were drawing on a different source of power than Jesus. Thus, the best explanation of what happened was that Jesus drove out demons by the finger of God (God's power active in the world).

11:21-22 The stronger man can usually overpower the weaker man and disarm him. The implication is that Jesus, being stronger than Satan, was in the process of disarming him. Divides up his plunder may refer to the same thing as the giving of gifts related to Christ's victory in Eph 4:8.

11:23 This is the opposite principle from what is stated in 9:50. Since the context has to do with demonic activity and power, anyone who did not believe that Jesus cast out demons by the power of God was against Christ. Anyone who does not gather with Me scatters is a reference to a shepherd gathering or scattering a flock of sheep. This could refer to either Israel or the church as a flock since Luke wrote his Gospel after the church's beginning.

11:24-26 These verses warn that the exorcism of a demon is incomplete unless Christ enters by faith and indwells the person who is healed. Otherwise, there is nothing to prevent the demon and seven other spirits from reentering and possessing the person. In that case, this person's last condition is even worse than it was initially.

11:27-28 Jesus did not deny that His mother, Mary, was greatly blessed. Instead, He stated that a person who hears God's word and acts upon it in faith is even more blessed than anyone who has mere family ties to Him (Rv 1:3).

11:29-32 There are two possible meanings of the sign of Jonah. (1) Since Jonah's preaching prompted repentance by the people of Nineveh (Jnh 3), such preaching was the only sign Israel would receive from Jesus, or (2) Jonah's three days and nights in the large fish (Jnh 1:17) was a foreshadowing of Jesus' death and resurrection, which was the sign that would be given to that evil generation. The queen of Sheba (queen of the south) responded to the wisdom of Solomon, which was not equal to the wisdom and salvation offered by Jesus, the Son of Man. If Nineveh repented at Jonah's proclamation, how much more should the crowds repent at Jesus' preaching!

11:33-36 Jesus held forth the light of the gospel for all to see. Those who rejected Him and His message had bad spiritual eyes, which turned the light of Christ into darkness. But those who received Christ by faith were filled with light.

11:37-38 The ritual washing that took place before a meal was an ancient Jewish tradition, but it was not commanded in the Mosaic law (Mk 7:3).

11:39-41 Jesus declared that the problem of uncleanness on our inside is not taken care of by cleansing our outside (hands, feet, etc.). The way to make sure everything is clean in God's eyes is to give freely from a heart devoted to God.

11:42-44 The first woe pronounced by Jesus on the Pharisees was not because they tithed everything, but because they did not practice justice and love. The second woe was because they loved the spotlight, not the Lord. Regarding the third woe, if Jews walked over unmarked graves, they became defiled. Ironically, Jesus said that following the teachings of the Pharisees was like walking over an unmarked grave; you would become defiled without even knowing it. The teachings of the Pharisees seemed genuine and true, but in reality they were corrupted and misleading.

11:45-46 The scribe (expert in the law) standing by realized that the three woes Jesus had just pronounced against the Pharisees also reflected negatively on the scribes. So Jesus leveled an additional woe on the scribes. They burdened the average Jew with a load that they themselves did not carry. This could mean that the scribes were hypocritical in their keeping of the law or that they had no compassion for the people who tried to live by their burdensome regulations.

11:47-48 Jesus' point in these verses is that the scribes and Pharisees were pleased to honor the prophets with monuments, now that the prophets were dead and silenced. The scribes and Pharisees were like their fathers, who killed God's prophets.

11:49-51 The Lord was not surprised when some of His prophets and apostles were persecuted or killed. Because of the presence of Jesus—who was far greater than prophets or apostles—that generation of Israel was held responsible (see the similar statement about Babylon the Great in Rv 18:20). The judgment for that responsibility was apparently the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. Abel was the victim of the first murder in Scripture (Gn 4:8), while Zechariah's murder is recorded in 2Ch 24:20-25. Since 2 Chronicles was the last book in the Hebrew Bible, that would make it the last murder in the Bible of Jesus' day.

11:52 In Mt 23:13, Jesus accused the scribes (experts in the law) of locking up "the kingdom of heaven." Here in Luke, the key of knowledge is the Scriptures, which the scribes and Pharisees mishandled. Thus the people were locked out from understanding the things of God.

11:53-54 The Pharisees and scribes reacted with accusations and hostile questions. Their intent was to trap Jesus by some statement for which He could be arrested.

12:1-3 In the NT, yeast is normally a symbol of corruption or evil (Mt 16:6,11; 1Co 5:6-8; Gl 5:9). Here the symbol is defined as the evil of hypocrisy. Hypocritical behavior fools many people, but it will eventually be uncovered and made known by God, who is never fooled. Everything said in private will become public knowledge.

12:4-5 There are many people who can kill you physically, but that is the limit of the harm they can do. As natural as it is to fear such people, it makes more sense to fear God, for He presides over not just life and death but eternity. Those who remain opposed to Him by their unbelief and unrepentant sins will be punished in hell.

12:6-7 If God does not overlook even the most insignificant birds (sparrows), He is aware of all the details of life (the hairs of your head) of every human being. Pennies translates the Greek word for a coin that was similar to a nickel.

12:8-9 These verses add a positive element to Jesus' statement in 9:26. There, if a person is "ashamed" of Jesus (here it is denies Me before men), he will face shame when Christ comes in judgment. Here, it is also stated that if a person acknowledges (Gk homologeo; "to confess") Christ, He will do likewise in heaven (in the presence of the angels of God).

12:10 Apparently, speaking against Jesus could be forgiven because of His human appearance (one aspect of the meaning of Son of Man). According to the parallel passage in Mk 3:28-30, blasphemy against the Holy Spirit is to attribute to Satan the works of the Spirit. That is the unforgivable sin.

12:11-12 These verses speak of the persecution the apostles would face at the hands of rulers and authorities. Classic examples where the Holy Spirit did teach them what must be said are Ac 4:8-12; 5:29-32.

12:13-15 Disputes over family inheritance were normally handled by rabbis (teachers) in Jewish society, and Jesus was recognized as such. The person who approached Jesus was probably a younger brother who was upset because his older brother received twice the inheritance, the Jewish tradition. Jesus refused to be drawn into the matter, realizing that the man's motivation was greed.

12:16-20 This parable is about the danger of greed, measured by the abundance of possessions (v. 15). The rich man was infatuated with hoarding his goods. In his self-centered perspective (there are at least 10 self-references in vv. 17-19), he thought this was an effective strategy for a long life of leisure and pleasure. But God views such an outlook as foolish and shortsighted. When a person dies—which could be at any time—"you cannot take it with you."

12:21 Rich toward God is what verse 33 and Mt 6:20 refer to as "treasures in heaven." Being "rich toward God" means living to glorify God and investing our earthly assets to make an eternal difference.

12:22-26 Jesus' advice to His disciples was not to be overcome with anxiety over the basic needs of life. Worrying won't change even a little thing. Since God feeds the ravens, who have no storeroom, will He not care for humans, His most valuable and beloved creatures?

12:27-32 If God "dresses" (clothes) nature so beautifully, He will certainly meet a disciple's basic needs. Unbelievers (the unsaved Gentile world) pursue provision and wealth as if life were all about these things and as if God is unconcerned about their needs, but this is not to be the focus of the Christian. In the parallel passage in Mt 6:33, Jesus declared, "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness." Thus, at least a key part of seeking God's kingdom for the believer is to strive to live by His standards. In regard to other benefits of the kingdom, believers can rest assured that the Father will give them to His children with joy.

12:33-34 If a disciple is living for God's glory and His kingdom (v. 31), he or she will choose priorities for this life that are designed to reap inexhaustible heavenly dividends. These become the treasure of one's heart. Wealth on this earth can be stolen or destroyed, but heavenly treasures are eternally secure.

12:35-40 The point of this story is that we must practice constant readiness. Waiting for the master to return means waiting for Christ's second coming. It is not known when the return will take place, so it is necessary to be constantly vigilant. If a thief can come unexpectedly, how much more can the coming of Christ catch His servants by surprise?

12:41-44 Jesus previously told His disciples that His parables held secrets that were only for His followers (see note at 8:9-10). Jesus did not answer Peter's question directly. Instead, He told another story about a master and his manager. The story in verses 35-40 emphasized that the master's servant should be watching, but this story made it clear that the servant must also be working. Disciples who persevere in faithfulness will be rewarded by the master.

12:45-48 If a servant of the master does not faithfully watch and work, there will be severe consequences when the master comes. The reason for the difference in punishments is the principle of accountable stewardship. More is expected of those who have been given much.

12:49-50 Fire in these verses symbolizes judgment on the earth at the second coming of Christ. A baptism to be baptized with refers to the suffering of Christ, specifically His agony on the cross (Mk 10:38). Consumes (Gk sunecho; "to control, distress") expresses how focused Jesus was on completing His mission. It is finished are the words Jesus used on the cross to signal that redemption was accomplished (Jn 19:30).

12:51-53 Jesus Christ made peace with God possible for anyone who will choose to follow as His disciple (Rm 5:1). Unbelievers, however, remain at odds with God and His requirements for holiness. There will be such division over the gospel of Christ that some families will be split down the middle. The spiritual family of God is more important than family bloodlines.

12:54-56 Storms in Palestine usually blow in from the west, off the Mediterranean Sea, or from the deserts to the south. A cloud coming from the west usually brought rain or a storm, while a south wind was dry and hot. In this context, interpret (Gk dokimazo) means "to discern." Time (Gk kairos) refers to "the opportune moment," in this case the presence of Messiah in their midst.

12:57-59 The need to settle accounts before undergoing judicial punishment pictures the need to be reconciled to God (Rm 5:10) before facing His judgment. At that point, it will be too late to seek reconciliation.

13:1-5 It is not known why Pontius Pilate (see note at 3:1) killed the Galileans mentioned here. The mention of their sacrifices specifies that their deaths took place in the temple area, probably in relation to a major religious festival, when all Jewish men were required to make a pilgrimage to Jerusalem. Nor is anything else known about the 18 people killed by the collapse of the tower in Siloam in the southeastern part of Jerusalem. Jesus' questions about the sinfulness of the Gl ileans and those killed by the tower was apparently inspired by widespread opinion that such things happen only as punishment for specific sins. Jesus countered this notion but nevertheless emphasized that every person must repent (see note at 3:2-3) or else perish spiritually for eternity.

13:6-9 The fig tree is often used as a symbol for the nation of Israel (Mt 24:32-33; Mk 11:12-14). Though young fig trees are slow to begin bearing fruit, three years was a sufficient length of time for trees to become mature and thus fruitful. The extra year requested by the vineyard worker represented one final chance for the trees to become fruitful. Otherwise they would be cut . . . down. This parable thus referred to Israel's last chance before judgment. If they rejected Jesus' message and miracles, the time for patience would be ended. But a future hope for Israel remains (Rm 11).

13:10-13 The mention of the Sabbath as the time of this healing calls to mind the earlier controversy between Jesus and the religious leaders (6:1-11). The woman He healed had severe curvature of the spine, caused somehow by a demon (an evil spirit). The healing involved two acts: (1) the casting out of the demon, and (2) the straightening of the spine. This verse does not imply that deformities or illnesses are commonly caused by demons. This was apparently a very rare case, reflective of the heightened spiritual warfare during the time of Christ's earthly stay.

13:14-16 The leader of the synagogue rejected the healing as it was work done in violation of the Sabbath day (see note at Ex 20:8-11). Jesus' use of the plural hypocrites shows that He knew the leader spoke for many others who shared his view. He revealed their hypocrisy by showing that it was necessary for everyone to do some work on the Sabbath, notably related to the tending of farm animals. Should not a Jewish woman (daughter of Abraham) under bondage to Satan for such a long time also be untied on the Sabbath?

13:17 Those who had sided with the leader of the synagogue were humiliated because it made them look as if they had more compassion for animals than for a demonized, disfigured woman.

13:18-21 Both of these parables allude to the astonishing advancement of the kingdom of God (God's rule in this world) that Jesus initiated. The first story focused on the kingdom's small beginning (like a mustard seed, which was proverbially considered the smallest seed in the ancient world) and dramatic spread (a tree . . . its branches) through Jesus' ministry. The second parable reinforced the first, with the implication that the kingdom of God would eventually permeate the entire earth much as yeast can spread through even 50 pounds of flour. While it is true that leaven, or yeast, often symbolizes evil in the Bible (1Co 5:6), this passage is a clear exception. Here leaven is used positively and calls to mind the potency of Jesus' message and works on behalf of humanity.

13:22-23 Luke structured his Gospel in a way that emphasizes that Jesus was making His way to Jerusalem in order to die on the cross. The question are there few being saved? may reflect two important realities about Jesus' ministry: (1) Many of His teachings insisted that true discipleship comes with many difficult challenges, and (2) though large crowds came to hear Jesus in every town and village, there were relatively few who authentically followed Him as disciples.

13:24-27 Jesus' story here answered the question in verse 23 about why so few people were being saved. It is because they were not entering by the narrow door (faith in Jesus) while the Lord gave them opportunity (in this case, while Jesus was present, preaching the gospel). Unbelievers may appeal that they knew Jesus in His social life (we ate and drank) and public ministry (You taught in our streets), but they don't know the Lord personally as Savior (I don't know you or where you're from). Because they had not been justified (declared righteous) through faith in Christ (Rm 5:1), they were ultimately workers of unrighteousness.

13:28-29 An irony of eternal life in the kingdom of God is that many Jews, though they were the original people of God's covenant, will be excluded due to their unbelief, while many believing Gentiles will recline at the table in full fellowship because they have accepted God's offer of reconciliation in Jesus. There will be much anguish (weeping and gnashing of teeth) among excluded Jews.

13:30 The kingdom of God reverses many of the world's values. In the present context, the inversion apparently refers to the fact that believing Gentiles, though they were historically not part of God's covenant people Israel, became the first to receive the Messiah en masse. By contrast, the Jews were chronologically first in God's plan, but they became spiritually last since the bulk of their numbers rejected Christ. Jews will only receive Jesus widely near the end of the age (Rm 11:25-27).

13:31-34 Jesus seemed to take the warning of these Pharisees at face value, though it is doubtful that they really wished to protect Jesus from Herod Antipas (see note at 3:1). Most likely they simply wanted Him to leave their region. Though verse 32 makes it seem that Jesus stayed put for three days more, the subsequent mention of travel to Jerusalem in order to die there makes it likely that this verse was a veiled reference to His coming resurrection. The mention of Jerusalem and His coming death as a prophet allowed Jesus to review the city's history of killing the prophets whom God sent to her. Jerusalem had repeatedly rejected God's compassionate outreach (pictured as a mother hen gathering her chicks). The city would soon do the same thing again by rejecting Jesus, God's Son.

13:35 Your house is abandoned (Gk aphiemi; "to forsake") reveals that God's blessing and protection would be removed, leading ultimately to judgment in the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans in A.D. 70. He who comes in the name of the Lord is the blessed One quoted Ps 118:26 and was later cited in regard to Jesus' "triumphant entry" (see note at Lk 19:37-38). However, here it looks beyond that to the second coming of Christ (see Zch 12:10; Rv 1:7).

14:1-4 These verses continue the theme (see 6:1-11) of the Pharisees seeking to trap Jesus. Swollen with fluid describes a condition known as "dropsy," the major symptom of which was swollen limbs. Jesus performed five miracles on the Sabbath in Luke (vv. 1-4 ; 4:31,38; 6:6; 13:10,14). The probable reason why the scribes (law experts) and Pharisees refused to answer Jesus' question about whether it was lawful to heal on the Sabbath was that others had been humiliated previously when they tried to debate Jesus on this topic (see note at 13:17).

14:5 The commandment not to work on the Sabbath day (Dt 5:12-14) should not have been taken to mean that rescue efforts (for people or animals) were forbidden on the Sabbath.

14:7-10 The best places at a dinner were next to the host. Jesus' parable made the point that the danger of arrogantly taking the best place at a banquet was that the person who invited you—here representing God—could ask you to move to the lowest place at the banquet table, causing humiliation rather than honor. It was wiser to sit in the seat of the humble and then be asked to move up to a seat of higher honor.

14:11 The principle that arrogance leads to humiliation appears repeatedly in the OT Wisdom Literature, especially Proverbs. That humility can lead to exaltation is a common theme in the NT (Lk 18:14; Jms 4:10; 1Pt 5:6).

14:12-14 True hospitality (hosting a dinner or a banquet) will be blessed by the Lord if you invite those who cannot return the favor. The resurrection of the righteous is the positive side of the resurrection mentioned in Dn 12:2 and Jn 5:28-29. It is probably the same thing as "the first resurrection" mentioned in Rv 20:4-6.

14:15 The statement about being blessed to eat bread in the coming kingdom of God is true. However, the person who said this probably assumed (wrongly) that many at the table in the Pharisee's home (v. 1) would experience this blessing. The story Jesus told next (vv. 16-24) reflected a different reality.

14:16-20 This story symbolizes being invited to the messianic banquet in the future kingdom of God (v. 15). Those who were initially invited (the religious leaders of the Jewish people) all made excuses about why they could not attend.

14:21-24 After being rejected by those who symbolized the religious leaders, the unfortunate ones to whom Jesus came to minister (Is 61:1) were invited. However, there was still room for others. So a wider group (those from the highways) was also invited. These stand for Gentiles. Non-Jewish participation in the gospel is a common theme in Luke's Gospel.

14:26 Hate his own here hyperbolically expresses the same principle found in Matthew 10:37, where Jesus says, "The person who loves father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me." Both Luke and Matthew convey the same point. Disciples must love Jesus more than they love their own family members.

14:27 On bearing a cross, see note at 9:23.

14:28-32 It is necessary to calculate the cost to be a disciple of Christ. Like a person who does not foresee the full cost of building a tower and suffers ridicule for starting something he cannot finish, a disciple must understand what it will take to complete the Christian life before he makes the commitment. Similarly, a king must soberly consider the odds before deciding between war and peace.

14:33 The essence of being a disciple of Christ is unreserved commitment to Him. This involves holding loosely the material things of this world.

14:34-35 Most salt of the ancient world was impure and lost its taste easily, making it unfit to use even as fertilizer or as a catalyst for burning manure. The danger for a person who lets his witness become "unsalty" is that he or she may be discarded from the Lord's service. On ears to hear, see note at 8:5-8.

15:1-2 On tax collectors and sinners, see note at 5:29-30. Then and now, to share a meal with someone typically indicates that you accept them.

15:3-7 Though it might be considered reckless to leave a flock of 99 sheep to search for the lost one, Jesus' story emphasizes how much God cares for every lost sinner and how joyfully He responds when each one is found.

15:8-10 To search for a lost coin (Gk drachma; worth about a day's wage for the average worker) indoors required lighting a lamp since very few homes had windows. This search also required sweeping the house, because the floor was earthen. Joy in the presence of God's angels speaks of God's joy over a repentant sinner.

15:11-12 Although this well-known parable (vv. 11-32) is usually called the parable of the prodigal son, the other son and the father are also important characters. It was unusual, but not unheard of, for a father to settle his estate before his death. Since the older son got a double portion of his father's estate, the younger son's share (share . . . I have coming to me) would have been one-third of the estate.

15:13-15 The younger son had no intention of returning to his family. It is impossible to know whether his foolish living included "prostitutes" (v. 30), or if that was just an angry accusation made by the older brother. The irony of the penniless younger son's new job was that pigs were unclean animals to Jews (Lv 11:7). He was at rock bottom in his new life.

15:17-19 It took extreme poverty and hunger to prompt the younger son to come to his senses and realize that, in spite of all he had done, the correct course of action was to return and become one of his father's hired hands. To do so, however, it would be necessary to confess that he had sinned greatly and was not worthy to be called his son. This is a vivid picture of a person "hitting bottom" and finally realizing the magnitude of his sin.

15:20-23 That the father saw his son coming from a long way off indicates that he habitually looked for his return. Perhaps the normal parental reaction to the younger son's return would be anger or at least deep disappointment, but this father's response displayed: (1) compassion, (2) love (threw his arms around his neck and kissed him), (3) celebration (a feast), and (4) joyful restoration of status for his son (a robe of distinction, signet ring of family authority, sandals worn by a son, in contrast to barefoot slaves).

15:24 This is the point at which the parable ties in to the two previous stories about God's joy in saving the lost. The father's celebratory attitude depicts the way in which God the Father receives repentant sinners. This contrasts with the contempt the Pharisees and scribes displayed for sinners who came to Jesus (v. 2).

15:25-30 Instead of the story ending on a note of joy and celebration, as might be expected, the spotlight shifts to the older brother. Unlike the father's positive attitude, the older brother (1) was surprised at the return of his sinning brother,

(2) was offended and jealous at the father's celebration, (3) became angry at the father's forgiving love, (4) declared his own self-righteousness, and (5) focused on his brother's sinfulness rather than his newfound repentance. Jesus' representation of the religious leaders in the character of the older brother was a scathing rebuke of their self-righteousness.

15:31-32 The rebuke of the religious leaders continues. They did not understand (1) the opportunity for a close relationship with God, (2) the generosity of His grace, (3) His joy at the salvation of sinners, or (4) the profound transformation of conversion. Perhaps most crucial of all, however, is the reminder of kinship to the sinners intended in the phrase this brother of yours. The religious leaders refused to accept their Jewish brethren, the "sinners," as the older brother in this story.

16:1-2 A rich man would often employ a manager (Gk oikonomos; "steward, administrator") who handled all the business affairs of his estate. The charge that this manager had squandered the rich man's possessions, indicating either neglectful management or criminal misconduct, must have been true. After all, the manager offered no defense when questioned. The landowner demanded a careful accounting of his assets, possibly so the next manager would have accurate data from the outset.

16:3-4 Realizing that he was being fired, the manager had to find a way to support himself. Since he was not in condition to do physical labor and too proud to beg, he focused on a way to make his former clients willing to offer him hospitality.

16:5-7 Four explanations are offered for the manager's tactics in lowering these debts: (1) He dropped the price enough to ingratiate himself with the debtors, (2) he removed the interest charges on the debt, (3) he removed his commission on the transactions, or (4) he reduced the debt back to what it should have been in the first place, after having overcharged them previously in a bid to cover his mismanagement. All four tactics are possible, but it should be remembered that the manager was required to present a full accounting to the landowner. Therefore, his tactics here must have been legitimate.

16:8-9 Because the Greek word translated master is kurios ("lord"), some have thought that it was God who praised the unrighteous manager. However, it is much more likely that the story ends in the middle of verse 8. Thus, it was the landowner rather than God who offered praise, and he did so only because the manager acted astutely (Gk phronimos; "shrewdly, wisely") in response to his errors. In the last half of verse 8 and all of verse 9, Jesus shares an implication of the story: the sons of this age (unbelievers) typically deal shrewdly with each other and win friends by this means, whereas the sons of light (believers) often fail to utilize their financial resources to win people to faith, who thus become friends forever (welcome you into eternal dwellings). Thus Jesus encouraged His followers to use their money shrewdly (but innocently) in order to advance God's kingdom.

16:10-12 A second lesson that this story teaches is the need to be faithful before the Lord. Spiritually, every believer is a steward of the gifts God has given. If you are faithful with small amounts of money, the Lord may trust you with much more, including things of priceless eternal value. If you cannot be trusted with only a little, you would also be a poor steward if more were entrusted to you.

16:13 On slave of two masters, see Mt 6:24.

16:14-15 The Pharisees, because they were lovers of money, were scoffing (Gk ekmukterizo; "to sneer at, show contempt") at Jesus, for they believed it was possible to serve both God and money (v. 13). In response, Jesus told the Pharisees that their desire to be admired by people was an abomination in God's sight, for He does not approve of the world's values.

16:16-17 The Law and the Prophets is a way of referring to the entire OT (v. 29; 24:27,44). The ministry of John the Baptist marked the end of the old covenant era. The ministry of Jesus began the offer of the gospel (good news), the new covenant era, and embodied the nearness of the kingdom of God. In this context, everyone is strongly urged probably refers to the urgency expressed by the evangelistic preaching efforts of John the Baptist, Jesus, and His apostles. On one stroke of a letter, see Mt 5:17-20.

16:18 Remarriage after divorce constitutes adultery if the former marriage was dissolved for illegitimate reasons or motivations; hence the strict terms of this verse. The parallel passages in Mt 5:31-32 and 19:9 are more detailed. They indicate that remarriage is legitimate in cases where the former marriage was dissolved due to sexual immorality.

16:19-21 The rich man (called Dives, Latin for "rich man") clearly did not use his wealth to make friends in the "eternal dwellings" (see note at vv. 8-9). Covered with sores (Gk elkoo; "to be ulcerated") is a medical term used only here in the NT, perhaps reflecting Luke's background as a physician (Col 4:14). It is ironic that the suffering poor man was named Lazarus since a man by that name would later rise from the dead (Jn 11:1-44). On dress in purple, see Ac 16:14.

16:22-24 The circumstances were reversed after both men died. The Jewish Talmud refers to both paradise (23:43; 2Co 12:4) and Abraham's side (or "bosom") as names for the place of blessedness beyond the grave. Hades, the Greek equivalent of the Hebrew sheol, is, generally, "the place of the dead." In this case, however, because of the mention of being in torment, Hades must be viewed as hell, the place of the unrighteous dead. In this flame refers to the eternal lake of fire (Mt 25:41).

16:25 This verse is an application of the principle in 13:30. The rich man had been "first" in this life, having enjoyed many good things, but was now "last," referring to his agony in the afterlife. By contrast, Lazarus had been "last" during his earthly existence (vv. 20-21), but now was "first" (eternally comforted).

16:26 In the afterlife, there is a separation between believers and unbelievers which cannot be spanned. It is not possible to cross over from heaven to hell or hell to heaven.

16:27-29 Not being able to improve his own lot, the rich man finally showed concern for the eternal destiny of his five brothers. The phrase Moses and the prophets is another way of referring to the entire OT (see note at vv. 16-17).

16:30-31 The irony here is that Luke, writing from a time after Jesus' resurrection, knew that very few people would be persuaded to repent even through witnessing the miracle of someone rising from the dead (Lazarus or Jesus). They must listen with "ears to hear" to the message of salvation in the Scriptures. On Moses and the prophets, see notes at verses 16-17 and 27-29.

17:1-2 Offenses (Gk skandalon; "that which causes sin") are unavoidable in life. However, divine judgment awaits the person who causes a disciple of Christ (one of these little ones) to sin. A millstone was a large round stone used to grind grain. A large stone around the neck would cause a person thrown into the sea to sink and drown.

17:3-4 The purpose of rebuking a sinner is to get him to repent of his sin. If there is true repentance, there should be full forgiveness. Seven is the biblical number of completeness. To forgive "seven times" means to keep forgiving, no matter what (see Mt 18:21-22).

17:5-6 Genuine faith is powerful even in small quantities. The mustard seed was thought by farmers in Palestine to be the smallest of seeds. A mulberry tree has such an extensive and deep root system that it might live for several hundred years. It took a very powerful force to uproot such a tree.

17:7-10 A slave who only did his job, or what was commanded, got no special commendation since all he had done was to fulfill his responsibilities. Similarly, a disciple of Christ (v. 1) should not expect special commendation for doing what is required. We serve the Lord because this is what it means to follow Him as disciples. It is our duty.

17:11 Jesus apparently walked along the border between Samaria and Galilee, then crossed the Jordan River at the nearest point, proceeding down the eastern bank of the Jordan toward the crossing point opposite Jericho (see note at 19:1-2), which is the next location mentioned in the narrative (18:35).

17:12-14 On show yourselves to the priests after being healed from serious skin diseases, see note at 5:12-14.

17:15-19 It is striking that the only one of the 10 men healed who returned and thanked Jesus was a foreigner . . . a Samaritan. This is in keeping with Luke's theme of the universal outreach of the gospel. Jesus' statement your faith has made you well implies that the Samaritan was healed physically and spiritually.

17:20-21 The Jews were looking for a kingdom of God that would come with signs in the sky and miracles (Jl 2:28-32), but that was yet future. The aspect of God's kingdom that Jesus emphasized in His ministry was not observable in that sense. The presence of the King (Jesus) and His offer of the kingdom through the gospel meant that the kingdom was already among them.

17:22-24 Jesus' disciples must not be led astray by false predictions of His coming. Instead, when He comes, it will be as obvious as the lightning flashing across the sky.

17:25 This is one of numerous predictions Jesus made about His suffering and rejection in Luke's Gospel (5:35; 9:22,43-44; 13:32-33; 18:32; 24:7).

17:26-29 Before Christ comes back, there will be no clear-cut warning signs that signal the end. Rather, it will be like (1) the days of Noah, when business as usual was carried on until the unexpected destruction of the flood, and (2) the days of Lot, when the status quo continued until, suddenly, fire and sulfur rained down on Sodom.

17:30-33 When Jesus returns, those on earth must not be attached to their possessions and earthly comforts, as was Lot's wife (see Gn 19:26). Commitment to Christ involves attachment only to spiritual and eternal realities. These provide the greatest security available.

17:34-36 The three aspects of life mentioned here cover the normal routine in an agricultural society: sleeping, grinding grain, and working in a field. It is not certain whether the one who is taken will be a believer taken by the Lord (see 1Th 4:15-17) or an unbeliever taken in judgment (Mt 13:40-42).

17:37 Jesus answered the disciples' question about where His coming would take place with a proverbial saying. It is easy to find a corpse by noting where the vultures are circling. Similarly, there will be no hiding Christ's second coming. It will be obvious to the entire world.

18:1 This parable speaks to the common tendency to become discouraged and stop praying before receiving an answer from God.

18:2-3 This judge was not a religious or compassionate man. A widow in that culture was almost helpless. Her only hope was that her persistent plea for justice would be granted.

18:4-5 Though the judge was unprincipled and unwilling to grant the widow's request (perhaps he was waiting for the widow to offer a bribe) he eventually caved in and granted her justice because she was persistent and he knew she would soon wear him out.

18:6-8 Jesus intends to make a contrast between the unjust judge and God. Unlike the unjust judge, God will not only grant justice to His children who are praying consistently, but will act swiftly in doing so. The last part of verse 8 refers to the fact that at the time just before Christ's second coming, genuine faith will be rare on earth (Mt 24:12-13).

18:9 The following parable focuses on a Pharisee (vv. 10-11). The phrase some who trusted in themselves describes the self-righteous outlook of the average Pharisee (vv. 11-12,14).

18:10-14 There were times around the morning and evening sacrifices at the temple when people could pray, although private prayer at other times was allowed. The Pharisee apparently kept the requirements of the Mosaic law and beyond (giving a tenth of earnings was all that was required). He was proud of his actions and his religious superiority to people such as the tax collector. By contrast, the tax collector knew that, as a sinner, he deserved only God's wrath. Jesus emphasized that God's justification is available to the humble, while the self-exalting will be brought low.

18:15-17 Jesus' disciples apparently thought His time was too precious to be taken up with infants. Jesus responded that little children coming to Him demonstrate the kind of childlike faith that is necessary to enter the kingdom of God.

18:18-23 The ruler was under the impression that eternal life could be earned by works (what must I do). Jesus shifted the focus by asserting that goodness only comes from God. Either the ruler had kept all the commandments listed in verse 20 or Jesus preferred not to argue about that. The latter is most likely, especially since Jesus' follow-up command revealed that the man was more interested in wealth on earth than treasure in heaven (where he would have eternal life). His unwillingness to distribute his wealth to the poor kept him from becoming Jesus' disciple.

18:24-27 Jesus contradicted the conventional wisdom that those with wealth were blessed by God and would certainly be in His kingdom. A camel trying to go through the eye of a needle was apparently a proverbial saying for what was impossible; this explains the question from Jesus' hearers. His response was that people cannot be saved by their own efforts, but only by salvation that comes by God's grace.

18:28-30 After hearing the earlier discussions, Peter—as spokesman for the apostles—indicated that they had done precisely what Jesus had instructed the rich ruler to do in verse 22. They had left everything and followed Him. Jesus replied that not only would they have eternal life in the age to come, but they would also be greatly blessed in this life. To leave wife and children means itinerant ministry, not divorce or abandonment of domestic responsibilities.

18:31-34 As is true through the entire middle portion of Luke's Gospel, the movement of the narrative is toward Jerusalem. The only passage in the OT prophets that deals with the Son of Man is found in Dn 7:13 and its context. However, there are several major prophecies about the sufferings of the Messiah, notably Ps 22 and Is 53. Handed over and rise on the third day give a preview of Luke's narrative from 22:63 to 24:12. The disciples did not understand what Jesus meant about these things until after His resurrection (24:25-27,44-46).

18:35-43 In Lk 17:11, Jesus apparently crossed the Jordan River to the east near the border between Galilee and Samaria. Now He crossed back to the west opposite Jericho. When the blind man inquired about the crowd, he was only told that Jesus the Nazarene (from Nazareth, in Galilee, a town of little significance) was near. There is nothing messianic about such an identification. However, when he cried out that Jesus was the Son of David (see Mt 1:1), he was confessing Jesus as Messiah. His faith became the basis for his healing. His cry, Have mercy on me, prompted Jesus to restore his sight. It is ironic that the formerly blind man, who now became a disciple of Jesus, could see immediately, while the 12 apostles had no insight into where Jesus and His ministry were headed (see note at vv. 31-34).

19:1-2 Jericho was one of the most ancient cities in the world. Today its ruins date back more than 10,000 years. It was located about five miles west of the Jordan River, 10 miles northwest of the Dead Sea, and about 17 miles by winding road from Jerusalem. Chief tax collector refers to a supervisor of other tax collectors in a certain tax district. Zacchaeus was rich because he had taken advantage of his position by extorting money (see note at vv. 5-9).

19:3-4 A sycamore tree might grow to be 30 to 40 feet tall. However, it had low, spreading branches that even a short man could climb and that would support his weight.

19:5-9 Must (Gk dei ; "it is necessary") implies divine necessity in Jesus' statement about staying at Zacchaeus's house. The Jews greatly resented tax collectors because they worked for the Roman government that had invaded Israel, turning her into a subject nation. Thus Jesus' decision to stay overnight with such a sinful man as Zacchaeus, who had sold out and mistreated his own people, seemed outrageous. But Zacchaeus's words and actions were those of a transformed man. It was considered extremely generous to give one-fifth of your possessions to the poor, but Zacchaeus stated he would give half. Also, while repayment for extortion was 20 percent over what had been extorted, Zacchaeus promised to repay four times as much. Zacchaeus had become a son of Abraham and gained salvation through faith in Jesus Christ (Gl 3:7).

19:10 Son of Man was both a messianic title for Jesus and a reflection of His full humanity. His mission was to seek and to save those who were lost.

19:11 In keeping with the messianic expectation of that day, Jesus' disciples believed that as soon as He arrived in Jerusalem, He would be declared ruler and overturn the Romans. Then the kingdom of God would appear in its glory.

19:12-13 This parable is similar to the one in Mt 25:14-30 in some respects, but different enough that it was almost certainly told at a time distinct from the Matthew account. Jesus told the story to emphasize that He must go away in order to receive full authority (see Mt 28:18). Only after this would He return in the fullness of His glory and kingdom. A mina was equivalent to 100 drachmas. A drachma was essentially a day's wages for an ordinary worker. So each mina would be worth about 100 days' pay, roughly four months' wages. The command (engage in business until I come back) describes an undefined duration of absence by the nobleman (Jesus). This fits with the nearly 2,000 years that have elapsed since Jesus ascended to heaven (24:50-53).

19:15-19 Ten slaves had been entrusted with one mina each, but only three were questioned about how much they had earned while the new king was gone. The first earned 10 more minas, and his faithfulness resulted in his being given authority over 10 towns in the kingdom. The second earned five minas and was also granted wider authority. Both servants are examples of the principle of verse 26: "To everyone who has, more will be given."

19:20-25 The third slave hid his mina because he feared his Master. It is also possible that he hoped the king would not return. In that case the money would become his. The Master did not accept his excuses, saying that even the small interest earned in a bank account would have been more useful. That the evil slave had to hand over his mina to the slave who had 10 minas demonstrates the principle of verse 26: "From the one who does not have, even what he does have will be taken away."

19:26-27 There is great reward for faithfulness to the Lord. Conversely, poor stewardship is punished by great loss. Those who do not want the Lord to rule their lives will be severely punished. It is likely that slaughter them refers to the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

19:28-44 These verses describe Jesus' "triumphal entry" into Jerusalem. Though He was not accepted as Messiah by most Jews, His entry was nevertheless "triumphant" insomuch as (1) the palm branches (Jn 12:13) that were waved and placed on the ground symbolized royalty and victory, and (2) His entry into Jerusalem represented the fulfillment of OT prophecy (Zch 9:9) and the triumph of God's plan of redemption.

19:28 Over the course of the 17 miles from Jericho (see note at vv. 1-2) to Jerusalem, the elevation rises about 3,300 feet. Thus, to travel that road was going up at the average rate of almost 200 feet per mile.

19:29 Bethphage and Bethany were small villages near the road from Jericho to Jerusalem. Bethany, the hometown of Lazarus, Mary, and Martha (Jn 11:1) was only two miles east of Jerusalem, just over the Mount of Olives, a ridge across the Kidron Valley from the temple in Jerusalem. The two . . . disciples are not named in any of the Gospels.

19:30-34 Religious or political leaders in that time often borrowed property (a young donkey) for a short time, as here. Matthew 21:7 says that the mother donkey was also commandeered. This action fulfilled the prophecy of Zch 9:9: "Daughter Jerusalem . . . your King is coming to you . . . humble and riding on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey."

19:35-36 The robes (outer garments) were cast down by the two disciples and by the crowd. Spreading their robes on the road was a way to honor special dignitaries, as was done for Jehu when he was acclaimed king of Israel (2Kg 9:13).

19:37-38 As Jesus passed over the Mount of Olives (see note at v. 29) and began His descent into Jerusalem, the crowd of disciples praised God for all the miracles they had seen. The Gospel of John reports that the miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead had recently occurred in Bethany, near the beginning point of the triumphal entry (Jn 11:1-44). The crowd was shouting Ps 118:26, which is messianic. In addition, they added the word King to their recitation of the OT Scripture, showing that they believed Jesus was the Messiah.

19:39-40 The Pharisees asked Jesus to rebuke His disciples because they understood that the repetition of Ps 118:26 was a confession that Jesus was both Messiah and rightful king of Israel. Jesus replied that, even if His disciples were to keep silent, God would make the truth known some other way (the stones would cry out), even if it took a miracle.

19:41-44 Jesus wept before Lazarus's tomb (Jn 11:35), and here He wept at the thought of His rejection by the city of Jerusalem. True, lasting peace with God comes through faith in Jesus Christ (Rm 5:1). The Jews enjoyed a temporal though imperfect peace under Roman rule, but such a peace cannot be secured forever, as the destructive events of A.D. 70 proved. Due to their unbelief, many Jews did not open their eyes to see Christ as Messiah (2Co 4:4) or recognize His coming as the time (Gk kairos; "opportune time") of God's visitation and offer of salvation.

19:45-46 The court of the Gentiles in the temple complex was where sacrificial animals were sold for outrageously high prices. According to Is 56:7, the temple (My house) was to be a house of prayer. The other quote (a den of thieves) is from Jr 7:11, which reflects a time when the corruption of the nation and its religious system was about to be judged by God in the Babylonian captivity. Now, as Jesus beheld the corruption of the temple and the opposition arrayed against Him, the nation faced an even greater season of judgment.

19:47-48 The religious leaders of Israel were increasingly desperate to get rid of Jesus, but they were hesitant to act because Jesus had gained considerable popularity among the masses.

20:1-2 Luke did not specify which day of the Passion Week is in view here, but the parallel account in Mk 11:19-20,27-33 indicates it was Tuesday. Chief priests . . . scribes, and elders were part of the Jewish ruling council, the Sanhedrin (see note at 22:66). The Jewish religious leaders questioned Jesus' authority for throwing the merchants out of the temple complex (19:45) because such an act was a direct attack on the heart of Jewish religion. To their mind, none but a blasphemer would dare do such a thing. Thus they sought to discredit Jesus in the eyes of the people gathered for Passover (see note at 19:47-48).

20:3-8 As He often did, Jesus turned the attention back on His questioners by asking them about the authority of John the Baptist's baptism. Finding themselves in a "no-win" situation, the religious leaders stated that they did not know the basis of John's authority. Having caught His opponents in a trap, Jesus also refused to answer their question.

20:9-12 The vineyard was a symbol of Israel (Is 5:7), and its owner was God. The tenant farmers stood for the people of Israel, notably its religious leaders. The successive slaves who suffered mistreatment from the tenants stood for the OT prophets who were sent from God but were rejected and even killed by Israel.

20:13-18 My beloved son stands for Jesus (see note at 3:21-22). The Jewish religious leaders did not kill Jesus to claim His inheritance, but rather to forcefully and finally reject Him as Messiah and heir to David's throne. The destruction of the farmers (Israel) by the owner of the vineyard (God) looks ahead to Gentiles being added to God's plan for His new covenant people, the church. This is one of Luke's major focuses in his next book, the Acts of the Apostles. The people in the temple area who were listening to Jesus (v v. 1,9) could not imagine God doing such a thing. In this quote from Ps 118:22, Jesus is the stone and cornerstone (see Ac 4:11; Eph 2:20; 1Pt 2:7). The builders are not identified, but they were undoubtedly Israel's religious leaders (vv. 1,19).

20:19-21 The religious leaders (scribes . . . chief priests) understood that Jesus' preceding parable referred to them, and so they wanted to get rid of Him immediately. But in order not to anger the people, they sought to trap Him through a question that would allow them to turn Him over to the Roman authorities. So, while attempting to sound pious and respectful, they asked for Jesus' view on one of the most divisive issues of the day—the Roman poll tax.

20:22-26 The religious leaders thought they had found the perfect way to trap Jesus, no matter how He answered. If He said it was lawful to pay the poll tax to Caesar, it would turn the Jewish people against Him. If He said it was not lawful, it would provide grounds for the Romans to arrest Him for treason. But Jesus did not fall into their trap. By asking for a denarius, the specific coin used to pay the poll tax, Jesus demonstrated that the religious leaders themselves found it necessary to cooperate with the ruling Roman government. Give back to Caesar the things that are Caesar's was a proper recognition of the legitimate role of human government in God's plan (Rm 13:1-7). To God the things that are God's does not divide life into secular and sacred, which would imply that God is indifferent about some aspects of human existence. Rather, Jesus' statement demonstrates that all facets of life have reference to God, including the need to submit to governmental rule. This answer amazed the scribes and chief priests (v. 26), thwarting their efforts to catch Jesus in a self-condemning statement.

20:27-33 Another group among the religious leaders attempted to trap Jesus. The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection from the dead because it was not taught in the Torah (Genesis through Deuteronomy). They asked Jesus a question that was designed to discredit the idea of resurrection by reducing it to absurdity. If a man's brother . . . dies childless refers to the law of levirate marriage in Dt 25:5. The Sadducees mistakenly assumed that life after the resurrection of the body would include the same basic structures as earthly life.

20:34-36 Jesus answered that marriage is confined to this age. Those who are counted worthy are those who place faith in Christ because faith in Messiah is the only means by which anyone can be accepted by God (Rm 5:1; Gl 2:16). In heaven we will be like angels, who enjoy many meaningful relationships but do not marry or reproduce. After the resurrection, the human life cycle (birth, marriage, reproduction, death) is forever changed.

20:37-40 Jesus quoted Ex 3:1-6 to draw in the Sadducees, who revered the books of Moses. Jesus' logic is as follows: God could identify Himself to Moses as the God of Abraham . . . Isaac, and Jacob only if they were still living in

Moses' day. Since these men had died many years previously, there must be an afterlife. The religious leaders no longer dared to bait Jesus after this because He had spoken well and made them look foolish.

20:41-44 Jesus then asked His own difficult theological question: how could the Christ (Messiah) be both the Son of David and the divine Lord of David? Though not given here, the answer is that Jesus, the Messiah, was both fully God (Lord) and fully human (Son of David).

20:45-47 The long robes of the scribes were of white linen and had a decorative fringe. The front seats were where a person could be seen by everyone in attendance at the synagogue. Devour widows' houses probably means that some scribes defrauded helpless widows of their homes and their limited resources. Matthew 23:1-36 is an extended parallel passage describing the sins for which the scribes and Pharisees would be judged by God.

21:1-4 There were 13 coffers shaped like inverted trumpets in the court of women in the temple and a treasury room nearby where supplicants could deposit their offerings. The poor widow did not have much to give, unlike the rich who made a great show of their offerings. Tiny copper coins called mites were the smallest Jewish currency at that time. Jesus commended the widow for giving sacrificially.

21:5 Herod the Great began renovating the temple complex in 20 B.C. The work was completed in A.D. 63, some 30 years after Jesus' crucifixion. Some of the stones used for the foundation were 40 feet long. Others were overlaid with gold.

21:6 Jesus hyperbolically declared that not one stone will be left on another. In A.D. 70, the Roman armies fulfilled this prophecy by leveling the temple and the city of Jerusalem. Many of the huge stones of the temple were toppled into lower areas surrounding the complex.

21:7 The parallel passages in Mt 24 and Mk 13 focus primarily on the end of the age, while Luke is concerned mostly about the near-term destruction of the temple (these things). But verses 25-28 do speak of the second coming of Christ. The events leading to the destruction of the temple in A.D. 70 foreshadow the later time that leads up to Jesus' return.

21:8-10 The appearance of false messiahs and date-setting schemes (the time is near), as well as widespread wars, will continue throughout the present age. However, these things must occur and are part of an expected delay before the end of the age.

21:11 Earthquakes . . . famines, and plagues of varied intensity will occur through history all the way to the end of the age. Great signs from heaven probably refer to such cosmic phenomena as that prophesied in Jl 2:28-32 and fulfilled in Rv 6:13-14.

21:12-15 These verses return to discussion of the immediate circumstances of the apostles and their co-laborers in the gospel. Persecution by Jews (the synagogues) and Gentiles (kings and governors) will lead to opportunities to witness for Christ (Ac 4; 7; 22-24; 26). I will give you such words basically repeats Jesus' earlier promise in 12:11-12.

21:16-19 When troubles came upon them after Jesus' death, the disciples would draw comfort from their recollection of Jesus' forewarning that they would be hated and even betrayed by those closest to them. Not a hair of your head refers to spiritual security. Endurance (Gk hupomone; "patience, steadfastness") is not to be understood to mean that we earn salvation by our efforts to persevere. Rather, perseverance is required of every true believer in Jesus Christ. Ultimately the strength to endure is supplied by God.

21:20-22 The words Jerusalem and its desolation indicate that this is the point where the questions in verse 7 are answered. Surrounded by armies is the "sign" that the temple and the city are about to be destroyed. Matthew 24:15 refers to "the abomination of desolation" spoken of by Daniel (Dn 9:27; 11:31; 12:11) that will be set up in the holy place in the temple. Luke spoke only of the desolation of Jerusalem. When the city was surrounded, it was imperative that its inhabitants and those in the surrounding areas (Judea) flee for their lives because the siege of the city was part of God's planned vengeance (Gk ekdikesis; "rendering of justice, retribution") against Jerusalem.

A.D. 70 (21:6).

"Where is this city that was believed to have God himself inhabiting therein? It is now demolished to the very foundations, and hath nothing but that monument of it preserved, I mean the camp of those that hath destroyed it, which still dwells upon its ruins. . . . I cannot but wish that we had all died before we had seen that holy city demolished by the hands of our enemies, or the foundations of our holy temple dug up after so profane a manner."

- Flavius Josephus, The Wars of the Jews VII.8.7

21:23-24 Matthew 24:21 uses the phrase "great tribulation," taken from Dn 12:1, to refer to the intensity of the suffering during this time of judgment. Luke called it great distress (Gk anagke; "trouble"). Wrath is God's anger against sin expressed as righteous judgment. The survivors of the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70 were spread all over the known world, even more extensively than the Diaspora which occurred during the Babylonian exile hundreds of years earlier. From 70 until the emergence of the modern state of Israel in the mid-twentieth century, Jerusalem was controlled by Gentiles. The times of the Gentiles refers to the current opportune time (Gk kairoi) in which Gentile nations embrace the gospel. Meanwhile, Israel is spiritually hardened and will remain so until near the end (Rm 11:25-26).

21:25-26 Signs in the sun, moon, and stars, probably referring to Jl 2:28,31, were mentioned earlier (Lk 21:11). These cosmic effects will cause great anxiety among the world population.

21:27 The second coming of Christ is described in words that echo the prophecy of Dn 7:13 (the Son of Man coming . . . with . . . great glory). This passage is also cited in relation to Christ's return in Rv 1:7.

21:28-31 Instead of cowering in the face of these signs, believers should be encouraged because they indicate that the divine plan for redemption is being completed and the advent of the kingdom of God is near. It is like watching trees sprouting leaves in the spring and knowing that summer is at hand.

21:32-33 This generation probably refers to those who will be alive when the various phenomena described by Jesus begin to take place in rapid succession. Since "generation" (Gk genea) occasionally means "family" or "posterity," some believe that it refers specifically to the people of Israel. On heaven and earth . . . but My words, see Mt 5:17-18.

21:34-36 That day refers to the time of Christ's return. Those caught up in a worldly lifestyle (carousing, drunkenness) or the worries of life will be caught off guard when Christ comes back. The proper outlook is prayerful alertness (18:8), which will prepare the believer to stand and not be ashamed before the Son of Man at His return (see 1Jn 2:28).

21:37-38 During the day . . . in the evening refers to the schedule that Jesus kept during each day of Passion Week. The mention of the Mount of Olives previews the incident in which He was betrayed and arrested (22:39,47-54).

22:1 By NT times, the Festival of Unleavened Bread and Passover had come to be almost interchangeable ideas. For the Jews, Passover was a meal commemorating the night the angel of death "passed over" those Jewish homes in Egypt whose doorposts were covered by the blood of a Passover lamb (Ex 12:1-14; Lv 23:5). "Unleavened Bread" was a week-long feast immediately following Passover that commemorated the exodus (Ex 12:14-20; Lv 23:6-8).

These feasts were celebrated during our months of March or April.

22:2-6 The religious leaders (chief priests . . . scribes) were committed to finding a way to put Jesus to death because they feared His popularity among the people. The perfect opportunity presented itself when Judas . . . Iscariot, one of the apostles (see note at 6:14-16), motivated by Satanic influence and money, agreed to betray Jesus.

22:7 All leaven, or yeast, was excluded from Jewish households from the beginning of the week of Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread. In that sense, the day when the Passover lamb was sacrificed was called the Day of Unleavened Bread. The lambs were sacrificed from mid afternoon to late afternoon in the court of the priests at the temple complex. This was on Thursday of Passion Week.

22:8-12 The effect of Jesus' words here is the same as when He sent two disciples for the donkey on which He rode during the triumphal entry (see note at 19:30-34). God had the details worked out in advance. A man carrying a water jug would have been a strange sight since that chore was typically performed by women. Many homes in Jerusalem had an upstairs guest room with an outside entrance which could be rented to pilgrims observing a feast in the city. The wording suggests that the owner of this room knew Jesus or was even a disciple.

22:14 The Passover meal began at sundown. Participants reclined on their sides on low couches, leaning over the low table to eat.

22:15-18 By saying that He fervently desired to eat this Passover with His disciples before suffering (going to the cross), Jesus encouraged them to interpret the following events in light of Passover imagery. The cup here could have been the first or second cup of the traditional Jewish Passover ritual.

22:19 To institute a new memorial meal (the Lord's Supper), Jesus chose the unleavened bread of the Passover meal to represent His physical body, which would be broken on the cross much as bread was broken during the meal. His death would be offered (given for you) as a substitute for sinners, all of whom deserve to die for their sins.

22:20 The new memorial meal also lent fresh meaning to the cup after supper (probably the third of four cups in the Passover ritual). The cup was reinterpreted to refer to the blood of Christ, shed as a payment for sins by Jesus, the ultimate Lamb of God (Jn 1:29). The mention of the new covenant related to Christ's shed blood means that the prophesied new covenant (Jr 31:31-34) would be ratified by Jesus' death on the cross.

22:21-22 Judas was guilty as the one betraying Jesus (vv. 3-6), yet it remains the case that his actions were determined (planned, ordained) by God as part of the plan that would culminate in Jesus' crucifixion (Ac 2:23).

22:23-24 Luke is tenacious and honest about the immaturity of the disciples. After so great a spiritual experience as the Passover meal, conducted by the Lord Himself, they argued over who was greatest among them. Had they misunderstood everything?

22:25-27 The wording in these verses is significantly different than that in Mt 20:25-28, suggesting that the apostles argued about greatness more than once. Greatness in the world is based on power and public recognition, but Christ taught that spiritual greatness requires humility and self-sacrifice. Jesus is our example because He came among us as the One who serves.

22:28-30 Because the apostles stood by Jesus in His trials (i.e., His troubles generally, not the trials He would soon face before Roman and Jewish authorities), they would be rewarded by the rights and privileges of leadership in the coming kingdom, including close fellowship with the King and rulership over eschatological Israel (Mt 19:28).

22:31-34 In these verses Jesus addressed Simon Peter as the leader of the apostles and their spokesman. The plural you indicates Satan wanted to sift all the apostles like wheat, a rough action that symbolizes tempting them to spiritual ruin. Peter protested that nothing would cause him to deny Jesus, but Jesus knew better. When you have turned back demonstrates that Jesus also knew that Peter's denial would be temporary, and that he would play a significant role in church history.

22:35-38 On when I sent you out without, see notes at 9:1-2 and 9:3-5. Because of the rejection they would face, Jesus emphasized that the apostles must prepare to take care of their own needs (money-bag, traveling bag) and protect themselves physically (a sword). By arming themselves, Jesus' apostles unintentionally paved the way for Jesus to fulfill the outlaws prophecy of Is 53:12. Jesus' call for a sword was likely only figurative, but the apostles responded that they had two swords among them.

22:39-41 Throughout Passion Week, Jesus and the apostles spent the nights on the Mount of Olives (Lk 21:37). John 18:1 says the location of this incident was a garden and Mt 26:36 calls the place Gethsemane. On this occasion, Jesus instructed the apostles to linger in prayer so they would not be tempted by the Devil and so their faith would not fail (Lk 22:32). Jesus then met the Father in prayer in order to seek strength in a time of deep suffering.

22:42 This cup refers to Jesus' upcoming judicial trials and execution on the cross (Mt 20:22-23). Jesus addressed God as Father, just as He had instructed His disciples to do (see note at 11:1-4). If you are willing, take this cup shows that Jesus, fully aware of the suffering that awaited Him, struggled with going to the cross. He resolved His struggle in favor of doing God's will, which was always His focus (Jn 6:38).

22:43-44 Though God the Father would not allow Jesus to bypass the upcoming suffering (v. 42), He did send an angel to minister to Him. However, this did not eliminate Jesus' anguish. As He prayed, Jesus' sweat poured off His body as if He were bleeding. Some believe Luke is describing a condition called hematidrosis, in which sweat and blood mingle in extreme cases of anxiety, but most likely his language is only figurative.

22:45-46 Human physical weakness (hunger, fatigue, etc.) can lead to spiritual weakness and temptation (see note at vv. 39-41).

22:47-48 Knowing exactly where Jesus would be spending the night (see note at 21:37-38), Judas Iscariot led a group of Jesus' enemies to arrest Him. They are described as a mob because they carried swords and clubs. A kiss on the cheek was a common greeting between friends and family. Thus Judas used his intimacy with Jesus and His disciples as a platform for betraying the Son of Man.

22:49-51 The apostles' earlier misunderstanding about wielding the sword (see note at vv. 35-38) now came to a climax. Luke did not name the apostle who cut off the ear of the high priest's slave, but Jn 18:10 discloses that it was Peter. Jesus immediately healed the man's ear, averting certain disaster if the mob had attacked Peter.

22:52-53 That Jesus was viewed as a criminal fulfilled Is 53:12 (see note at Lk 22:35-38). Jesus' prior awareness of the time (this is your hour) and place (not in the temple complex) of His arrest indicates that everything was according to God's design even though the chief priests and elders were in league with the dominion of darkness (Satan and the demons) in carrying out the arrest.

22:54 John 18:13 says that Jesus was first taken to the house of Annas, a former high priest who was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, the current high priest (see note at 3:2-3). Most of the apostles fled from Gethsemane, though Peter circled back and tracked down the arresting group, all the while careful to keep a safe distance in the darkness. John 18:15 indicates that "another disciple" (probably the apostle John) also followed.

22:55-62 In a period of only slightly over an hour, Peter disowned three years of discipleship. Jesus had predicted this only a few hours earlier (see note at vv. 31-34), and when a rooster crowed after Peter's denials, Jesus turned and looked at him. Immediately Peter remembered Jesus' prophecy and wept tears of shame and regret. Since Jesus was inside the high priest's house (v. 54), there must have been an open window or door through which He could look into the courtyard and catch Peter's eye.

22:63-65 Jesus' horrific treatment at the hands of the soldiers is also described in Mt 26:67; Mk 14:65.

22:66 By rule it had to be daylight outside for the Sanhedrin (ruling council of the Jews) to hold a trial in which they decided on the death penalty (which could only be carried out by the Roman government). This explains why they waited for daylight. However, in several other respects the trial was illegal: (1) No trial could be held on the morning of a feast day (i.e., Passover), (2) there was no formal defense offered for Jesus, and (3) the verdict was reached in one day, not the two days required for capital offenses.

22:67-69 In a tactical move that may have been designed to keep Rome from thinking Jesus intended to ascend Israel's vacant throne, Jesus did not give a direct answer to the question of whether He was the Messiah. Since He knew He could not expect fair treatment from the members of the Sanhedrin, Jesus identified Himself as the Son of Man who would sit as judge over them in a much higher court in heaven (at the right hand).

22:70-71 The Sanhedrin understood Jesus' previous claim to be Messiah, but they wanted to catch Him in what they thought was a more clear-cut blasphemy: the claim that He was the Son of God. Jesus' response seems vague to modern readers, but those present understood it as a clear confession. Having this in hand, they concluded there was no need for any more testimony.

23:1 On Pontius Pilate, see note at 3:1. Pilate's normal residence was in Caesarea Maritima, but he came to Jerusalem during the Jewish feasts to keep an eye on things. Since Jesus was crucified along with two criminals (vv. 32-33), a punishment that only the Romans could render, it seems that a couple of executions were already scheduled even before Jesus' sentencing. Thus Pilate came to town planning to execute criminals, but he left town having executed an innocent man.

23:2-4 The three charges the Jews brought against Jesus in Pilate's presence were fabrications. It was true that huge crowds had flocked to hear Jesus speak, but His teachings were not aimed at subverting Israel. The claim that He was opposing payments of taxes to Caesar was an outright lie (see note at 20:22-26). Jesus was the Messiah, but He carefully avoided giving the impression that He meant to topple Rome or ascend the throne as King of Israel. Pilate had undoubtedly heard about Jesus, and he saw right through the Sanhedrin's "rush to judgment."

23:5-7 When Pilate heard that Jesus was from Galilee, he saw a convenient way to excuse himself from the Sanhedrin's headhunt. He turned Jesus over to the proper jurisdiction, that of Herod Antipas, the ruler over Galilee (see note at 3:1). Like Pilate, Herod was in Jerusalem for the feasts of Passover and Unleavened Bread.

23:8-11 At an earlier time, Herod Antipas had been anxious to meet Jesus (9:7-9), and the Pharisees had claimed that Herod wanted to kill Jesus (13:31). Jesus' silence before Herod may have been designed to fulfill the prophecy in Is 53:7-8. In spite of the serious accusations of the Sanhedrin, Herod Antipas simply made sport of Jesus and sent Him back to Pilate for final legal disposition. He dressed Jesus in a brilliant robe in order to ridicule Him as a fake king and irritate the Sanhedrin since they charged Him with claiming to be king (see note at vv. 2-4).

23:12-15 Herod Antipas and Pontius Pilate became friends because they both made the same assessment (no grounds to charge this man) of Jesus (vv. 14-15). Apparently they also shared the same low opinion of the Jewish Sanhedrin for pursuing a death sentence against Jesus.

23:16-19 In order to placate the Sanhedrin, Pilate was willing to have Jesus severely whipped and set free. It was his custom to release a prisoner in honor of Passover (Jn 18:39). However, the crowd demanded that a dangerous criminal named Barabbas be released instead.

23:20-25 Pilate tried two more times to release Jesus, finding no valid basis for the death penalty. But he was repeatedly shouted down by a chorus of crucify Him. Finally, Pilate caved in to the crowd's demand, releasing Barabbas and handing Jesus over to be executed.

23:26 Simon of Cyrene was staying outside Jerusalem and coming in from the country to worship each day during the feast of Unleavened Bread. Jesus was unable to carry the cross any farther after His earlier beating (22:63), so it was placed on Simon's back. Simon may have been part of the synagogue of the Cyrenians mentioned in Ac 6:9. Mark 15:21 mentions the names of Simon's sons (Rm 16:13 may refer to one of those sons).

23:27-31 Jesus told the crowds who were mourning His unjust crucifixion that they should weep for their own families because of the future destruction of Jerusalem. It would be preferable not to have children in such awful times. Jesus then cited Hs 10:8, where it is said that people will request landslides to hide them from the military onslaught. The proverbial statement in Luke 23:31 implies that if things are this bad for an innocent man in a time of peace (when the wood is green), they will be much worse for those who deserve judgment during a time of war (when it is dry).

23:32-33 Being executed between two . . . criminals fulfilled the prophecy of Is 53:12, as well as Jesus' words in Lk 22:37. The place where Jesus was crucified was called The Skull. In Aramaic, the name is Golgotha. The Latin equivalent is Calvary.

23:34 Jesus forgave His executioners because they acted in ignorance of who

He really was. Some early manuscripts do not include the first part of this verse. The phrase they divided His clothes and cast lots fulfilled Ps 22:18.

23:35-39 Four different groups (the people in general, the leaders, the soldiers, and one of the criminals being crucified) scoffed at Jesus and challenged Him to save Himself. None of them believed that Jesus was the Messiah . . . the King of the Jews, even though the official inscription above His head on the cross charged Him with posing as "the King of the Jews."

23:40-43 In the midst of this display of unbelief and mockery, the other criminal came to understand the difference between his own guilt and Jesus' innocence (this man has done nothing wrong). He also realized that Jesus was the Messiah and asked to take part in His coming kingdom. Jesus assured him that, after death, he would immediately be reunited with Him in paradise (eternal life beyond the grave; see 2Co 12:4).

23:44-45 The three hours of darkness at midday (from noon . . . until three) was a sign of divine judgment against sin (which Jesus became on the cross) and the sinners who unjustly executed the Son of God. Matthew 27:51 explains that the splitting of the curtain of the sanctuary (between the holy place and the holy of holies in the temple) was caused by a great earthquake. The torn curtain symbolized open access to God, made possible by the death of Christ (see note at 22:20).

23:46 While expressing faith in God by reciting Ps 31:5, Jesus breathed His last. Jesus was placed on the cross at about 9:00 a.m. (Mk 15:25) and died after only six hours—an unusually short time. Crucifixion victims sometimes lingered for two or three days before death occurred.

23:47 Compared to the parallel accounts, Luke muted the centurion's confession. Here the centurion merely observed that Jesus was truly righteous (not a criminal in any respect), whereas in Mt 27:54 and Mk 15:39 he is reported as acknowledging that Jesus is the Son of God.

23:48-49 Striking their chests could be a sign of grief, though in Lk 18:13 it appears to reflect contrition before the Lord. Significantly, the women disciples from Galilee, who had generously supported Jesus' ministry financially (see note at 8:1-3), are spotlighted among those who were watching Him die on the cross. They stuck with Him even after the male disciples abandoned Him.

23:50-53 Even though Joseph of Arimathea was a member of the Sanhedrin, he had disagreed with their decision to execute Jesus (22:71-23:1). He was a good and righteous man, but he was also a secret disciple of Jesus (Jn 19:38). Jesus was laid in the tomb of the wealthy Joseph instead of the shallow common grave reserved for criminals. This fulfilled the prophecy of Is 53:9. Matthew (27:65-66) stated that soldiers were assigned to guard Jesus' tomb and that the stone rolled in front of the tomb was stamped with the Roman seal of authority.

23:54-56 Preparation day (from Thursday sundown to Friday sundown), was the last day before the Sabbath when preparations for the Sabbath were completed. Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus did much to prepare Jesus' body for burial (Jn 19:39-40), but the women disciples from Galilee planned to finish the task (prepared spices and perfumes). They had to wait for the Sabbath to pass before they could carry out their plan.

24:1 The first day of the week was Sunday. It was so early in the morning that it was still dark (Jn 20:1) when the women arrived at Jesus' tomb to anoint His body.

24:2 On their way to the tomb, the women pondered the difficultly the sealing stone would present. Who would move it for them (Mk 16:3)? However, when they arrived, they found the stone rolled away from the entrance. The stone had been moved by "a violent earthquake" (Mt 28:2).

24:3-8 Jesus' body was nowhere to be found, and the women had no answer for why it was missing. The two men who suddenly appeared and terrified them were angels (v. 23; Jn 20:12). Matthew 28:2-3 and Mk 16:5 mention only one angel. The angels announced the resurrection of Jesus to the women and reminded them that He had predicted this would happen. As soon as they were reminded of Jesus' assertion that He would rise on the third day, they remembered His words. Now they were better prepared to understand and believe the radical things Jesus had said.

24:9-12 In Jesus' day women were not considered to be credible witnesses. This is why the Eleven (the apostles who remained after Judas' act of betrayal) did not believe the women's report about what had happened at Jesus' tomb, viewing it as nonsense. However, Peter was curious enough to run to the tomb and look for himself. When he saw only the linen cloths in which Jesus had been wrapped (23:53), he was amazed, but still skeptical.

24:13-14 Of the two disciples traveling from Jerusalem to Emmaus that Sunday, one was named Cleopas (v. 18). He was possibly the husband of one of the women disciples who watched Jesus die on the cross (Jn 19:25). They had heard about the women's report and Peter's experience at the empty tomb (Lk 24:19-24) before leaving Jerusalem.

24:15-16 That the two men were arguing (Gk suzeteo; "to argue, question") about what had happened indicates that there was no agreement among Jesus' disciples about what had occurred and why. Like Peter at the tomb, many were amazed and yet unconvinced. It is not known how God prevented the two disciples from recognizing Jesus at this point, but He eventually "opened their eyes" to recognize Him (v. 31).

24:17-18 The men were discouraged (Gk skuthropos; "sad, sullen") and shocked that the stranger (Jesus) seemed to know nothing about what had happened the past few days, though it was the talk of all Jerusalem.

24:19-20 The description of Jesus by the two disciples is short on both insight and faith. Jesus is referred to in relation to His hometown (the Nazarene) and as a Prophet and miracle worker, but not as the Son of God. In addition, nothing is said about the unjust nature of Jesus' betrayal, trials, and crucifixion—just that the chief priests and leaders got Him sentenced to death and crucified. These disciples had not fully grasped Jesus' identity, nor had they understood the divine necessity of His death.

24:21-24 Jesus' death had dashed these men's hopes that He was the Messiah (the One . . . to redeem Israel), but the reports from the tomb that morning astounded them and made them wonder what was going on. The reports said: (1) the women disciples didn't find Jesus' body at the tomb, (2) the women had seen a vision of angels proclaiming His resurrection, and (3) some male disciples had verified that the tomb was indeed empty.

24:25-29 The stranger (Jesus) rebuked the two disciples for not believing the OT prophecies about the Messiah, particularly about His suffering and following glory. Then, during the remainder of the walk to Emmaus, Jesus worked His way through all the major messianic prophecies in the Hebrew Bible (Moses and all the Prophets refers to the entire OT), carefully interpreting their meaning to His hearers. Then, when Jesus gave the impression that He was not going to stop in Emmaus, they invited Him to spend the night with them, probably so they could hear more.

24:30-33 During the evening meal, Jesus blessed and broke the bread. At that point, the two disciples were allowed to recognize Jesus, but He immediately disappeared from sight. Their first thought was to recall the things He had taught them as they walked along the road to Emmaus. With hearts ablaze, they ventured to Jerusalem through the darkness of night to meet with the apostles and tell them about their experience.

24:34-35 Unknown to the two disciples, the risen Christ had appeared to Simon Peter (an appearance mentioned elsewhere only in 1Co 15:5) some time earlier in the day. This was a decisive event for Peter and the church because he led the apostles and the early church in the years to come. Now, in a room full of eager listeners, these men told about their experiences on the road to Emmaus and the meal that followed. It had been a day of many wonders, but an even greater wonder would soon visit them all.

24:36-37 It is ironic that the group of disciples was startled and terrified and thought they were seeing a ghost when the risen Christ suddenly appeared in their midst. After all, they had been rejoicing about His resurrection (v. 34) and swapping stories about His several appearances that day. But their fear is understandable since Jesus appeared suddenly in the middle of a crowd in what was surely a locked room. Peace to you was a traditional Jewish greeting.

24:38-40 Jesus calmed the fears and doubts of His disciples with evidence of His resurrection body. In His hands and feet the nail scars were clearly visible. The crowd of disciples could touch Him and verify that He had a human body and that He was not a ghost.

24:40-43 It is understandable that some were slow to believe. This was a highly unusual and unexpected event. Realizing their doubts, Jesus offered an additional piece of evidence. He showed them that He could eat food (a piece of a broiled fish), something no ghost could do.

24:44-45 The Law of Moses, the Prophets, and the Psalms represent the three major divisions of the Hebrew Bible. Jesus now did for the wider group of disciples essentially what He had already done for the two on the road to Emmaus. He explained the Scriptures (see note at vv. 25-29).

24:46-49 OT passages that clearly prophesy the suffering of the Messiah are Ps 22 and Is 53. A key OT passage for Messiah's resurrection, cited several times in the NT, is Ps 16:10. Significant OT passages that Jesus may have had in mind about repentance . . . proclaimed . . . to all the nations, beginning at Jerusalem are Is 2:1-4 and 49:6. Luke 24:47 is Luke's version of the Great Commission (Mt 28:19-20; Mk 16:15; Jn 20:21-22; Ac 1:8). These verses echo Ac 1:4-8. Since Luke wrote both this Gospel and the book of Acts, he skillfully intertwined the conclusion of his first volume with the beginning of his second volume. The city refers to Jerusalem.

24:50-51 Bethany was located just over the Mount of Olives, about two miles from Jerusalem. Acts 1:12 specifies that the ascension of Christ occurred at the Mount of Olives.

24:52-53 As Jesus had requested (v. 49), the disciples returned to Jerusalem and stayed there until the events of the day of Pentecost (Ac 2). Although at least some disciples were continually in the temple complex praising God during that time and later (Ac 2:46; 3:1), it should not be assumed that all of them were always there. Acts 1:13-14 also speaks of the apostles, some of the women disciples, and Jesus' brothers (the sons of Joseph and Mary) being "continually united in prayer" in an upper room in Jerusalem. Such devotion to prayer was a fitting prelude and precondition to the wonderful things God would do through Christ's earliest messengers. Christ's church was set to explode onto the scene as a beacon of light and hope in a spiritually dark world.

Word Studies parthenos Greek Pronunciation [pahr THEHN ahss]

HCSB Translation virgin Uses in Luke's Gospel 2
Uses in the NT 15
Focus passage Luke 1:27,34

In the Greek NT, parthenos (virgin) connotes an unmarried female virgin of marriageable age. Once, the term refers to a male virgin (Rv 14:4). Both Matthew and Luke acknowledge that Mary was a parthenos at the time she conceived Jesus (Mt 1:20,23; Lk 1:27,34), and Matthew indicates that she remained a virgin while she carried the child to term (Mt 1:25). Both books mention the salvific significance of Jesus' birth (Mt 1:21; Lk 1:31-32). However, Matthew alone indicates the prophetic significance of Jesus' birth by a virgin (Mt 1:23). According to Matthew, Mary was the fulfillment of a prophecy given through the prophet Isaiah, who described a virgin (Is 7:14; parthenos occurs here in the Greek OT) who would give birth to a child to be named Immanuel. Matthew applies this prophecy to Messiah's birth.

dei Greek Pronunciation: [DAY]
HCSB Translation: must Uses in Luke's Gospel: 18
Uses in the NT: 101
Focus passage: Luke 9:22

The Greek word dei is a special form of the verb deo, meaning to bind, and refers to something that is a binding obligation upon someone. In the Gospels the term dei normally occurs in contexts related to some aspect of salvation, and the binding obligation comes from the decree of God—though this is not stated but is clearly implied. Thus, in Luke's Gospel dei indicates that Jesus must do the Father's will (2:49); preach (4:43); keep a divine appointment with a tax collector (19:5); suffer, die, and rise again (9:22; 17:25; 24:7,26; see Mt 16:21; Mk 8:31; Ac 17:3); and that the Scriptures must be fulfilled (Lk 24:44; see Jn 20:9; Ac 1:16). Luke continued the theme of divine necessity in Acts: Jesus must remain in heaven until the appointed time (Ac 3:21), everyone must believe in Jesus for salvation (Ac 4:12; 16:30-31), and believers must suffer for Jesus' sake (Ac 9:16; 14:22).

geenna Greek Pronunciation: [GEH ehn nah]
HCSB Translation: hell Uses in Luke's Gospel: 1
Uses in the NT: 12

Focus passage: Luke 12:5

Geenna (hell) is the Greek form of Hb gey'-hinnom (Valley of Hinnom) via Aramaic geyhinnam, a valley located just south/southwest of Jerusalem's Old City. In the days of Ahaz and Manasseh, it was the location where children were dedicated and/or sacrificed to Molech (2Kg 23:10; 2Ch 28:3; 33:6; Jr 7:31), and by NT times it had become a place for burning trash. Because of its sordid history, the Hinnom Valley became associated in Jewish thought with hell, the place of final punishment. Geenna is described primarily with images of fire (Mt 5:22; 18:9; Mk 9:43,45,48), and though the term does not occur in Revelation, it is a prominent theme there (cp. the lake of fire; Rv 19:20; 20:10,14-15; 21:8). At the final resurrection, the souls of the ungodly (in Hades) will be reunited with their resurrected bodies, and thrown into Geenna (Mt 10:28).

miseo Greek Pronunciation: [mih SEH oh]
HCSB Translation: hate Uses in Luke's Gospel: 7
Uses in the NT: 40
Focus passage: Luke 14:26

The Greek verb miseo is the basic word meaning to hate, the exact antonym of love (agapao). The essence of love is caring more about others than about self, even to the point of great sacrifice—including death (Jn 15:13). Hate, on the other hand, is the opposite; it cares little or nothing about others and actually wishes them harm or even death (Mt 24:9). With only one exception (Lk 1:71), miseo in the Gospels is always used by Jesus. By far the most difficult occurrence of miseo is Luke 14:26—difficult both to understand and to practice. In this passage Jesus seems to demand hatred, even toward one's parents, wife, children, and siblings—those whom we are specifically told elsewhere in Scripture to honor, protect, and love. Jesus' statement is best understood as the willingness to choose Him above all else. The context is Jesus' challenge to measure the cost of being His disciple (see 14:26-35).

metanoeo Greek Pronunciation: [meh tuh nah EH oh]
HCSB Translation: repent Uses in Luke's Gospel: 9
Uses in the NT: 34
Focus passage: Luke 15:7

The Greek verb for repent (metanoeo) and the related noun for repentance (metanoia) signify a change of mind (meta, meaning after or change; and nous, meaning mind). More than just an intellectual change of mind is in view; rather, both terms refer to a change in one's way of thinking that results in different beliefs and a change in the direction of one's life. The verb pisteuo (meaning believe) is much more common than metanoeo, though both words refer to concepts foundational to salvation (15:7,10; Mt 4:17; Jn 3:16). Repent and believe may be understood as opposite sides of the same coin. Repent means to turn from one's allegiance to sin and unbelief, whereas believe means to place one's trust in Christ. Thus, when one is mentioned the other is implied.

kurios Greek Pronunciation: [KUHR ee ahss]
HCSB Translation: Lord Uses in Luke's Gospel: 104
Uses in the NT: 717
Focus passage: Luke 19:30-34

The word kurios is the twenty-second most common word in the Greek NT and the third most common noun (after the words for 'God' and 'Jesus'). Kurios can mean lord, master (both with reference to either deity or humans), and even sir (see Jn 4:11; 5:7). In the Greek OT, however, kurios was used to translate two significant Hebrew words: Yahweh (over six thousand times), the personal name for God (normally translated Lord or God); and adonai (over seven hundred times; over three hundred in reference to God), a title of respect and honor (normally translated Lord/lord or Master/master). Thus, two important ideas from the OT carry over into the NT's use of kurios: deity and lordship. Yahweh is God and demands absolute loyalty to Himself as Master. The NT teaches that Jesus, God's Son, is deity and demands loyalty to Himself as absolute Lord—His deity being the basis of His lordship.

orge Greek Pronunciation: [ohr GAY]
HCSB Translation: wrath Uses in Luke's Gospel: 2
Uses in the NT: 36
Focus passage: Luke 21:23

The most common Greek word in the NT to describe God's wrath is orge, normally translated wrath or anger. Only five occurrences of orge in the NT do not refer to God's wrath (Eph 4:31; Col 3:8; 1Tm 2:8; Jms 1:19,20). Mark alone refers specifically to the orge ('anger') of Jesus (3:5); Matthew refers to God's orge once (3:7); and Luke does so twice (3:7; 21:23).

A three-fold dynamic exists as an expression of God's orge : (1) His wrath is a present reality for everyone who does not believe in His Son (Jn 3:36; Rm 1:18-32), but unbelievers do not recognize God's wrath when they see it; (2) His wrath on unbelievers will intensify as the day of Christ's return approaches (1Th 5:9; Rv 6:16,17; 11:18; 16:19); and (3) the complete and final demonstration of His wrath is reserved for the time of Christ's personal presence on earth as King and Judge (Rv 14:10; 19:15).

paradeisos Greek Pronunciation: [pah RAH day sahss] HCSB Translation: paradise Uses in Luke's Gospel: 1
Uses in the NT: 3
Focus passage: Luke 23:43

The word 'paradise' in Luke 23:43 is transliterated directly from the Greek word paradeisos, which occurs in only two other places in the NT. In the Greek world paradeisos could refer to a garden, a grove, or a park; thus, it is the word found in the Greek OT for the Garden of Eden (11 times in Gn 2-3). Luke 23:43 and 2 Corinthians 12:4 use paradeisos to refer to the place where God especially manifests His presence, which we call heaven. Revelation 2:7 refers to paradeisos as the place where believers (those who 'conquer') eat from 'the tree of life,' which is in the new Jerusalem (see Rv 22:2,14,19).

Essays Christ in the Old Testament Craig Blaising In Luke 24 Jesus showed Himself alive to His disciples and explained that the cross and resurrection, and indeed much else in His life, were predicted in Scripture. Verse 27 states: "Then beginning with Moses and all the Prophets, He interpreted for them the things concerning Himself in all the Scriptures." Then in verse 44, He told them "that everything written about Me in the Law of Moses, the Prophets, and the Psalms must be fulfilled."

In the preaching of the apostles in Acts, the evidence given in the Gospels, and the rest of the New Testament, many (OT) texts are applied to Jesus. This practice likely reflects Jesus' own teachings about how the OT relates to Him. Furthermore, because themes are repeated and developed in Scripture, the application of a particular text to Jesus is suggestive of other texts that relate to or repeat that theme. In this way we can see a rich portrait of OT patterns, types, allusions, and predictions that present to us the Person and Work of Christ.

From beginning to end the OT exudes an expectation that someone is coming. Genesis 3:15 speaks of the "seed" of the woman who comes to crush the tempter's head (Gn 3:15). To Abraham the promise was made that through his "offspring" blessing or curse would come to all nations (Gn 12:1-3; 22:15-18). Among the descendants of Abraham many patterns and types pointed to a Coming One. Isaac, born of promise (Gn 15:3-6; 17:19), was offered to God as a sacrifice but was redeemed by a substitute (Gn 22:1-14). Joseph, raised up to bless all peoples, was first rejected by his brothers but later was sought by them for forgiveness (Gn 37; 41-48; 50:15-21). Judah offered himself in place of his brother and received a promise of a scepter and the obedience of all peoples (Gn 49:1,9-12). Moses failed to enter the promised land despite all his works, but it was said that a prophet like him would arise in the future (Dt 18:15-19). David, of the tribe of Judah, was raised up by God to deliver and shepherd Israel. God made a covenant to raise up David's son and seat him on his throne, establishing his kingdom forever (2Sm 7:8-17; 1Ch 17:7-15). God would be his Father, and he would be His son (2Sm 7:14).

The covenant with David is the key to messianic prophecy. It incorporates all former prophecies of a coming king, such as Balaam's prophecy that a star would arise from Jacob and exercise dominion (Nm 24:15-19; cp. 23:24; 24:7-9), plus it serves as the basis for later prophecies such as Isaiah 9:6-7 of a son who establishes the throne of David forever with peace, justice, and righteousness; Isaiah 11:1-10 of a "shoot . . . from the stump of Jesse" upon whom the Spirit rests and who destroys the wicked, brings peace, righteousness, and extends the knowledge of God to the entire earth; Jeremiah 23:5 and 33:15 of a righteous "Branch" of David who will reign with justice and wisdom; and Zechariah 9:9-10 of a humble, righteous king, bringing salvation, speaking peace to the nations and ruling from sea to sea.

David's experiences of suffering, deliverance, and exaltation become types and patterns replayed and brought to a higher level of fulfillment in the experiences of his later son (descendant), Jesus. These include the rejected stone that becomes the cornerstone (Ps 118); the suffering that becomes a literal depiction of the cross (Ps 22); and the soul not abandoned to Sheol, the flesh that does not see decay (Ps 16).

Key among the prophecies of Isaiah are predictions of a coming servant who will bring Israel to God and be a light for the nations (Is 49), who will bear our sorrows, our griefs, be wounded for our iniquities, be bruised for our transgressions, and by whose stripes we will be healed. He would be like a lamb led to slaughter, and yet resurrected (Is 53:3-12). Through this prophecy, we are able to see types and images of Christ in the sacrificial system, especially the Passover and Day of Atonement.

But we see more. In the house of David, One became incarnate whom we know across the pages of the OT: One who forgives sins and heals diseases (Ps 103:3), feeds bread to a multitude in the wilderness (Ex 16), stills the sea (Jb 26:12), and is coming to reign as King (Zch 14). That son of David, son of Abraham, seed of Eve, is none other than the eternal Son of God.

Messianic Expectations Craig A. Evans "Messianism" and "messianic expectation" are ways of describing the expectation that an anointed person will come to redeem Israel and/or the Church. Christians believe that Messiah has already come in the person of Jesus of Nazareth. The appearance of Messiah is understood to be part of a larger eschatological drama whereby human activity on earth is appreciably altered by the in-breaking of the "kingdom of God," a TIME WHEN GOD'S WILL ON EARTH IS MORE TANGIBLY AND PERMANENTLY EXPERIENCED. IT IS USUALLY BELIEVED THAT THIS ANOINTED FIGURE IS PART OF THE CLIMAX OF HUMAN HISTORY.

The word "messiah" comes from the Greek messias (cp. Jn 1:41; 4:25), which is itself a transliteration of the Hebrew mashiach (2Sm 22:51; 23:1), meaning one who is "smeared" or "anointed" (with oil). The Greek equivalent is christos (cp. LXX 2Sm 22:51; 23:1), which occurs some 500 times in the New Testament. The nominal form of christos is derived from the verbs mashach (Hebrew) and chriein (Greek), which means "to anoint" or "to smear (with oil)."

The Origin of Messianic Expectation The messianic expectations in the Jewish and Christian faiths are traced back to God's covenant with King David (2Sm 7) and the aftermath of exile and cessation of the Davidic dynasty. Hope arose that God would someday restore a godly king to Israel. Some of Israel's prophets foretold the coming of a regal Davidic descendant, and their descriptions seem to portray him as far more than a mere mortal. Isaiah foretold the coming of a "child" and "son" who "will be named Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Eternal Father, Prince of Peace," and whose kingdom will never end (Is 9:6-7). Again Isaiah prophesied the coming of a Branch of David, on whom the Spirit of God will rest, who will rule the earth with justice and equity (Is 11:1-5). Descriptions such as these hinted that the coming anointed one, the Messiah, would be God Himself.

In the intertestament period (ca 400 B.C. to the birth of Christ) several passages of Old Testament Scripture are interpreted in the light of the messianic hope. Besides Isaiah 11:1-5, Genesis 49:10 ("The scepter will not depart from Judah or the staff from between his feet.") and Numbers 24:17 ("A star will come from Jacob, and a scepter will arise from Israel") are often appealed to. First-century philosopher Philo of Alexandria and Josephus, historian and survivor of the great rebellion (A.D. 66-70), both allude to these passages as pertaining to Messiah.

Isaiah 11 is of special interest in the Dead Sea Scrolls. 1QSb 5 applies portions of Isaiah 11:2-5 to the awaited Messiah, while 4Q161, a major commentary on the book of Isaiah, interprets Isaiah 10:34-11:5 as a prophecy of the coming Messiah, called the "Branch of David," who will destroy Israel's enemies, the Romans (called the "Kittim"). 4Q285 quotes Isaiah 10:34-11:1 and interprets it as a reference to the coming Messiah, called the "Branch of David" and "leader of the community" (that is, the leader of the Qumran community). It is said that he will put to death the "king of the Kittim," or the Roman emperor (see also the parallel 11Q14).

Jesus and Messianic Expectation Jesus' willingness to suffer and die stands in marked contrast to the widespread expectation of a coming Messiah who would slay His enemies. The fact that He did not attempt to overthrow the Roman occupiers and reclaim Israel's throne may explain in part why He was widely rejected by Jewish authorities. They wished for Him to pursue violent, military goals whereas He came instead to usher in the merciful, forgiving rule of God. As for Jesus' fulfillment of the Bible's messianic expectations, it must not be missed that He came first to suffer and die on behalf of sinners (as predicted in Is 52:13-53:12), but will come again as conquering King (2Th 1:7-10).

4 Life was in Him, [g, h]

6 There was a man named John [l]

9 The true light, [n] who gives light to everyone, was coming into the world. [D, o] 10 He was in the world,

He has revealed Him. [q]

John the Baptist's Testimony

19 This is John's testimony when the •Jews from Jerusalem [r] sent priests [s] and Levites [t] to ask him, "Who are you? "
20 He did not refuse to answer, but he declared: "I am not the •Messiah ." [u]
21 "What then? " they asked him. "Are you Elijah? " [v]
"I am not," he said.
"Are you the Prophet? " [w, x]
"No," he answered.
22 "Who are you, then? " they asked. "We need to give an answer to those who sent us. What can you tell us about yourself? "
23 He said, "I am a voice of one crying out in the wilderness: Make straight the way of the Lord [y, z] — just as Isaiah [a] the prophet said."
24 Now they had been sent from the •Pharisees . [b] 25 So they asked him, "Why then do you baptize if you aren't the Messiah, or Elijah, or the Prophet? "
26 "I baptize with [M] water," [c] John answered them. "Someone stands among you, but you don't know Him. 27 He is the One coming after me, [d, e] whose sandal strap I'm not worthy to untie."
28 All this happened in Bethany [f] across the Jordan, [g, h] where John was baptizing.

The Lamb of God

29 The next day John saw Jesus coming toward him and said, "Here is the Lamb of God, [i] who takes away the sin [j] of the world! 30 This is the One I told you about: ‘After me comes a man who has surpassed me, because He existed before me.’ 31 I didn’t know Him, [k] but I came baptizing with [N] water so He might be revealed [l] to Israel.”

32 And John testified, “I watched the Spirit [m] descending from heaven like a dove, and He rested on Him. [n] 33 I didn’t know Him, but He [O] who sent me to baptize with [P] water told me, ‘The One you see the Spirit descending and resting on — He is the One who baptizes with [Q] the Holy Spirit.’ [o] 34 I have seen and testified that He is the Son of God! ” [p, q]

35 Again the next day, John was standing with two of his disciples. 36 When he saw Jesus passing by, he said, “Look! The Lamb of God! ”

37 The two disciples heard him say this and followed Jesus. 38 When Jesus turned and noticed them following Him, He asked them, “What are you looking for? ”

They said to Him, “•Rabbi ” [r] (which means “Teacher”), “where are You staying? ”

39 “Come and you’ll see,” He replied. So they went and saw where He was staying, and they stayed with Him that day. It was about 10 in the morning. [R]

40 Andrew, [s] Simon Peter’s brother, was one of the two who heard John and followed Him. 41 He first found his own brother Simon and told him, “We have found the Messiah! ” [S, t] (which means “Anointed [u] One”), 42 and he brought Simon to Jesus.

When Jesus saw him, He said, “You are Simon, son of John. [v] You will be called •Cephas ” [w] (which means “Rock”).

Philip and Nathanael

43 The next day He [T] decided to leave for Galilee. Jesus found Philip [x] and told him, “Follow Me! ”

44 Now Philip was from Bethsaida, [y] the hometown of Andrew and Peter. 45 Philip found Nathanael [z, a] and told him, “We have found the One Moses wrote about in the Law (and so did the prophets [b]): Jesus the son of Joseph, [c] from Nazareth! ” [d]

46 “Can anything good [e] come out of Nazareth? ” Nathanael asked him.

“Come and see,” Philip answered.

47 Then Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward Him and said about him, “Here is a true Israelite; [f] no deceit is in him.”

48 “How do you know me? ” Nathanael asked.

“Before Philip called you, when you were under the fig tree, I saw you,” Jesus answered.

49 “Rabbi,” [g] Nathanael replied, “You are the Son [h] of God! You are the King of Israel! ” [i]

50 Jesus responded to him, “Do you believe only because I told you I saw you under the fig tree? You [j] will see greater things than this.” 51 Then He said, “•I assure you: You [k] will see heaven opened and the angels of God [l] ascending and descending [m] on the •Son of Man.” [n]

The First Sign: Turning Water into Wine

2 On the third day a wedding took place in Cana [a] of Galilee. [b] Jesus' mother [c] was there, and 2 Jesus and His disciples were invited to the wedding as well. 3 When the wine ran out, Jesus' mother told Him, "They don't have any wine."

4 "What has this concern of yours to do with Me, [d, e] •woman ? " [f] Jesus asked. "My hour [g] has not yet come."

5 "Do whatever He tells you," His mother told the servants.

6 Now six stone water jars had been set there for Jewish purification. [h] Each contained 20 or 30 gallons. [A]

7 "Fill the jars with water," Jesus told them. So they filled them to the brim. 8 Then He said to them, "Now draw some out and take it to the chief servant." [i] And they did.

9 When the chief servant tasted the water (after it had become wine), he did not know where it came from — though the servants who had drawn the water knew. He called the groom 10 and told him, "Everyone sets out the fine wine first, then, after people have drunk freely, the inferior. But you have kept the fine wine until now."

11 Jesus performed this first sign [B] in Cana [j] of Galilee. [k] He displayed [l] His glory, [m] and His disciples believed in Him.

12 After this, He went down to Capernaum, [n] together with His mother, His brothers, [o] and His disciples, and they stayed there only a few days.

Cleansing the Temple Complex 13 The Jewish •Passover [p] was near, so Jesus went up to Jerusalem. [q] 14 In the •temple complex [r] He found people selling oxen, sheep, and doves, and He also found the money changers sitting there. 15 After making a whip out of cords, [s] He drove everyone out of the temple complex with their sheep [t] and oxen. He also poured out the money changers' coins and overturned the tables. 16 He told those who were selling doves, "Get these things out of here! Stop turning My Father's [u] house [v] into a marketplace! " [w, x]

17 And His disciples remembered that it is written: Zeal [y] for Your house will consume [z] Me. [a, b]

18 So the •Jews replied to Him, "What sign of authority will You show us for doing these things? "

19 Jesus answered, "Destroy this sanctuary, [c] and I will raise it up in three days." [d]

20 Therefore the Jews said, “This sanctuary took 46 years to build, and will You raise it up in three days? ” [e] 21 But He was speaking about the sanctuary of His body. [f] 22 So when He was raised from the dead, [g] His disciples remembered that He had said this. [h] And they believed the Scripture [i] and the statement Jesus had made.
23 While He was in Jerusalem [j] at the Passover Festival, [k] many trusted in His name [l] when they saw the signs He was doing. 24 Jesus, however, would not entrust Himself to them, since He knew them all 25 and because He did not need anyone to testify about man; for He Himself knew what was in man. [m]

Jesus and Nicodemus

3 There was a man from the •Pharisees [a] named Nicodemus, [b] a ruler [c] of the •Jews . [2] This man came to Him at night and said, "•Rabbi , [d] we know that You have come from God [e] as a teacher, [f] for no one could perform these signs You do unless God were with him." [g]

[3] Jesus replied, "•I assure you: Unless someone is born again, [h, i] he cannot see the kingdom of God." [j]

[4] "But how can anyone be born when he is old? " Nicodemus asked Him. "Can he enter his mother's womb a second time and be born? "

[5] Jesus answered, "I assure you: Unless someone is born [k] of water and the Spirit, [l, m] he cannot enter the kingdom of God. [6] Whatever is born of the flesh [n] is flesh, and whatever is born of the Spirit [o] is spirit. [7] Do not be amazed that I told you that you [p] must be born [q] again. [8] The wind [r] blows where it pleases, and you hear its sound, but you don't know where it comes from or where it is going. [s] So it is with everyone born of the Spirit." [t]

[10] "Are you a teacher [u] of Israel and don't know these things? " Jesus replied. [11] "I assure you: [v] We speak what We know and We testify to what We have seen, but you [w] do not accept Our testimony. [x] [12] If I have told you about things that happen on earth and you don't believe, how will you believe if I tell you about things of heaven? [13] No one has ascended [y] into heaven [z] except the One who descended from heaven [a] — the •Son of Man. [b, c] [14] Just as Moses [d] lifted up the snake in the wilderness, [e] so the Son of Man must be lifted up, [15] so that everyone who believes in Him will [f] have eternal life. [g]

[16] "For God loved [h] the world in this way: He gave His •One and Only [i] Son, [j] so that everyone who believes in Him will not perish but have eternal life. [k] [17] For God did not send His Son into the world that He might condemn [l] the world, but that the world might be saved through Him. [18] Anyone who believes in Him is not condemned, but anyone who does not believe is already condemned, [m] because he has not believed in the name [n] of the One and Only Son [o] of God.

[19] "This, then, is the judgment: The light [p] has come into the world, [q] and people loved darkness rather than the light because their deeds were evil. [20] For everyone who practices wicked things hates [r] the light and avoids it, [s] so that his deeds [t] may not be exposed. [21] But anyone who lives by [u] the truth comes to the light, so that his works [v] may be shown to be accomplished by God." [w]

Jesus and John the Baptist

22 After this, Jesus and His disciples went to the Judean countryside, where He spent time with them and baptized. 23 John [x] also was baptizing in Aenon near Salim, because there was plenty of water there. People were coming and being baptized, 24 since John had not yet been thrown into prison. [y]

25 Then a dispute arose between John's disciples [z] and a Jew [a] about purification. [b] 26 So they came to John and told him, "Rabbi, [c] the One you testified about, and who was with you across the Jordan, [d] is baptizing — and everyone is flocking to Him." [e]

27 John responded, "No one can receive a single thing unless it's given to him from heaven. 28 You yourselves can testify that I said, 'I am not the •Messiah , [f] but I've been sent ahead of Him.' [g] 29 He who has the bride [h] is the groom. But the groom's friend, who stands by and listens for him, rejoices greatly [A] at the groom's voice. So this joy [i] of mine is complete. 30 He must increase, but I must decrease."

The One from Heaven

31 The One who comes from above [j] is above all. The one who is from the earth is earthly and speaks in earthly terms. [B] The One who comes from heaven is above all. [k] 32 He testifies [l] to what He has seen and heard, yet no one accepts His testimony. 33 The one who has accepted His testimony has affirmed that God is true. [m] 34 For God sent Him, and He speaks God's words, since He [n] gives the Spirit [o] without measure. 35 The Father loves the Son [p] and has given all things into His hands. [q] 36 The one who believes in the Son has eternal life, but the one who refuses to believe in the Son will not see life; instead, the wrath of God remains on him. [r]

Jesus and the Samaritan Woman

4 When Jesus [a] knew that the •Pharisees [b] heard He was making [c] and baptizing more disciples than John [d] 2 (though Jesus Himself was not baptizing, but His disciples were), 3 He left Judea [e] and went again to Galilee. [f] 4 He had to travel through Samaria, [g] 5 so He came to a town of Samaria called Sychar near the property [A] that Jacob [h] had given his son Joseph. [i] 6 Jacob's well [j] was there, and Jesus, worn out from His journey, sat down at the well. It was about six in the evening. [B]

7 A woman of Samaria came to draw water. [k]

"Give Me a drink," Jesus said to her, 8 for His disciples had gone into town to buy food.

9 "How is it that You, a Jew, [l] ask for a drink from me, a •Samaritan [m] woman? " she asked Him. For Jews do not associate with [C] Samaritans. [n]

10 Jesus answered, "If you knew the gift of God, [o] and who is saying to you,
'Give Me a drink,' you would ask Him, and He would give you living water." [p] 11 "Sir," [q] said the woman, "You don't even have a bucket, and the well is deep. So where do You get this 'living water'? 12 You aren't greater than our father Jacob, [r] are You? He gave us the well and drank from it himself, as did his sons and livestock."

13 Jesus said, "Everyone who drinks from this water will get thirsty again. 14
But whoever drinks from the water that I will give him will never get thirsty again — ever! [s] In fact, the water I will give him will become a well [t, u] of water springing up within him for eternal life." [v]

15 "Sir," the woman said to Him, "give me this water so I won't get thirsty and come here to draw water."

16 "Go call your husband," He told her, "and come back here."

17 "I don't have a husband," she answered.

"You have correctly said, 'I don't have a husband,' " Jesus said. 18 "For you've had five husbands, and the man you now have is not your husband. What you have said is true."

19 "Sir," the woman replied, "I see that You are a prophet. 20 Our fathers worshiped on this mountain, [w, x] yet you Jews say that the place to worship is in Jerusalem." [y]

21 Jesus told her, "Believe Me, •woman , an hour is coming when you will worship the Father neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem. 22 You Samaritans [z] worship what you do not know. We worship what we do know, because salvation is from the Jews. [a] 23 But an hour is coming, and is now here,

[b] when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth. Yes, the Father wants such people to worship Him. 24 God is spirit, [c] and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and truth." [d]

25 The woman said to Him, "I know that •Messiah [D,] [e] is coming" (who is called Christ [f]). "When He comes, He will explain everything to us."

26 "I am He," [g] Jesus told her, "the One speaking to you."

The Ripened Harvest

27 Just then His disciples arrived, and they were amazed that He was talking with a woman. Yet no one said, “What do You want? ” or “Why are You talking with her? ”

28 Then the woman left her water jar, went into town, and told the men, 29 “Come, see a man who told me everything I ever did! Could this be the Messiah? ” [h] 30 They left the town and made their way to Him. [i]

31 In the meantime the disciples kept urging Him, “•Rabbi , [j] eat something.”

32 But He said, “I have food to eat that you don’t know about.”

33 The disciples said to one another, “Could someone have brought Him something to eat? ”

34 “My food is to do the will of Him [k] who sent Me [l] and to finish His work,” [m] Jesus told them. 35 “Don’t you say, ‘There are still four more months, then comes the harvest’? Listen to what I’m telling you: Open [n] your eyes and look at the fields, for they are ready [o] for harvest. 36 The reaper is already receiving pay and gathering fruit for eternal life, [p] so the sower and reaper can rejoice together. 37 For in this case the saying is true: ‘One sows and another reaps.’ [q] 38 I sent you to reap what you didn’t labor for; others have labored, and you have benefited from [r] their labor.”

The Savior of the World

39 Now many Samaritans [s] from that town believed in Him because of what the woman said [E] when she testified, [t] "He told me everything I ever did." 40 Therefore, when the Samaritans came to Him, [u] they asked Him to stay with them, and He stayed there two days. 41 Many more believed because of what He said. [F] 42 And they told the woman, "We no longer believe because of what you said, for we have heard for ourselves and know that this really is the Savior [v] of the world." [w]

A Galilean Welcome

43 After two days He left there for Galilee. [x] 44 Jesus Himself testified [y] that a prophet has no honor in his own country. [z] 45 When [a] they entered Galilee, the Galileans [b] welcomed Him because they had seen everything He did in Jerusalem [c] during the festival. [d] For they also had gone to the festival.

The Second Sign: Healing an Official's Son 46 Then He went again to Cana [e] of Galilee, where He had turned the water into wine. There was a certain royal official whose son was ill at Capernaum. [f] 47 When this man heard that Jesus had come from Judea [g] into Galilee, he went to Him and pleaded with Him to come down and heal his son, for he was about to die.

48 Jesus told him, "Unless you people see signs and wonders, [h] you will not believe." [i]

49 "Sir," [j] the official said to Him, "come down before my boy dies! "

50 "Go," Jesus told him, "your son will live." The man believed what [G] Jesus said to him and departed.

51 While he was still going down, his •slaves met him saying that his boy was alive. 52 He asked them at what time he got better. "Yesterday at seven in the morning [H] the fever left him," they answered. 53 The father [k] realized this was the very hour at which Jesus had told him, "Your son will live." Then he himself believed, along with his whole household.

54 This, therefore, was the second sign [l] Jesus performed after He came from Judea to Galilee. [m]

The Third Sign: Healing the Sick

5 After this, a Jewish festival took place, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. [a] 2 By the Sheep Gate [b] in Jerusalem there is a pool, called Bethesda [c] in •Hebrew , which has five colonnades. [d] 3 Within these lay a large number of the sick — blind, lame, and paralyzed [— waiting for the moving of the water, 4 because an angel would go down into the pool from time to time and stir up the water. Then the first one who got in after the water was stirred up recovered from whatever ailment he had]. [e]

5 One man was there who had been sick for 38 years. 6 When Jesus saw him lying there and knew he had already been there a long time, [f] He said to him, "Do you want to get well? "

7 "Sir," [g] the sick man answered, "I don't have a man to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up, but while I'm coming, someone goes down ahead of me."

8 "Get up," Jesus told him, "pick up your mat and walk! " 9 Instantly the man got well, picked up his mat, and started to walk.

Now that day was the Sabbath, [h] 10 so the •Jews [i] said to the man who had been healed, "This is the Sabbath! [j] It's illegal for you to pick up your mat."

11 He replied, "The man who made me well [k] told me, 'Pick up your mat and walk.' "

12 "Who is this man who told you, 'Pick up your mat and walk'? " they asked. 13 But the man who was cured did not know who it was, [l] because Jesus had slipped away into the crowd that was there. [A]

14 After this, Jesus found him in the •temple complex [m] and said to him, "See, you are well. Do not sin anymore, so that something worse doesn't happen to you." 15 The man went and reported to the Jews that it was Jesus who had made him well. [n]

Honoring the Father and the Son

16 Therefore, the Jews began persecuting [o] Jesus [p] because He was doing these things on the Sabbath. [q] 17 But Jesus responded to them, "My Father [r] is still working, and I am working also." 18 This is why the Jews began trying all the more to kill Him: [s] Not only was He breaking the Sabbath, but He was even calling God His own Father, making Himself equal with God.

19 Then Jesus replied, "•I assure you: The Son is not able to do anything on His own, but only what He sees the Father doing. For whatever the Father [t] does, the Son also does these things in the same way. [u] 20 For the Father loves the Son and shows Him everything He is doing, and He will show Him greater works [v] than these so that you will be amazed. 21 And just as the Father raises [w] the dead and gives them life, so the Son also gives life to anyone He wants to. [x] 22 The Father, [y] in fact, judges no one but has given all judgment to the Son, 23 so that all people will honor the Son just as they honor the Father. [z] Anyone who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent Him. [a]

Life and Judgment

24 “I assure you: Anyone who hears My word and believes Him who sent Me has eternal life [b] and will not come under judgment but has passed from death to life.
25 “I assure you: An hour is coming, and is now here, [c] when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear will live. [d] 26 For just as the Father has life in Himself, so also He has granted to the Son [e] to have life in Himself. 27 And He has granted Him the right to pass judgment, [f] because He is the •Son of Man. [g] 28 Do not be amazed at this, because a time is coming when all who are in the graves will hear His voice 29 and come out — those who have done good things, to the resurrection of life, but those who have done wicked things, to the resurrection of judgment.
30 “I can do nothing on My own. I judge only as I hear, and My judgment [h] is righteous, [i] because I do not seek My own will, but the will of Him who sent Me. [j]

Four Witnesses to Jesus

31 “If I testify about Myself, My testimony is not valid. [k] 32 There is Another who testifies about Me, and I know that the testimony He gives about Me is valid. [l, m] 33 You have sent messengers to John, and he has testified to the truth. [n] 34 I don’t receive man’s testimony, but I say these things so that you may be saved. 35 John [o, p] was a burning and shining lamp, [q] and for a time you were willing to enjoy his light. [r]

36 “But I have a greater testimony than John’s because of the works that the Father has given Me to accomplish. [s] These very works I am doing testify about Me that the Father has sent [t] Me. 37 The Father who sent Me has Himself testified [u] about Me. You have not heard His voice at any time, and you haven’t seen His form. [v] 38 You don’t have His word living in you, because you don’t believe the One He sent. 39 You pore over [w] the Scriptures [x] because you think you have eternal life in them, yet they testify about Me. [y] 40 And you are not willing [z] to come to Me [a] so that you may have life.

41 “I do not accept glory [b] from men, 42 but I know you — that you have no love for God [c] within you. 43 I have come in My Father’s name, [d] yet you don’t accept Me. [e] If someone else comes in his own name, you will accept him.
44 How can you believe? While accepting glory from one another, you don’t seek the glory that comes from the only [f] God. [g] 45 Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father. Your accuser is Moses, [h] on whom you have set your hope. 46 For if you believed Moses, you would believe Me, because he wrote about Me. 47 But if you don’t believe his writings, [i] how will you believe My words? ” [j]

The Fourth Sign: Feeding 5,000

6 After [a] this, Jesus crossed the Sea of Galilee [b] (or Tiberias [c]). 2 And a huge crowd was following Him because they saw the signs that He was performing by healing the sick. 3 So Jesus went up a mountain and sat down there with His disciples.

4 Now the •Passover , a Jewish festival, was near. 5 Therefore, when Jesus looked up and noticed a huge crowd coming toward Him, [d] He asked Philip, [e]
"Where will we buy bread so these people can eat? " 6 He asked this to test him, [f] for He Himself knew what He was going to do.

7 Philip answered, "Two hundred •denarii [g] worth of bread wouldn't be enough for each of them to have a little."

8 One of His disciples, Andrew, [h] Simon [i] Peter's [j] brother, said to Him, 9
"There's a boy here who has five barley loaves and two fish — but what are they for so many? "

10 Then Jesus said, "Have the people sit down."

There was plenty of grass in that place, so they sat down. The men numbered about 5,000. [k] 11 Then Jesus took the loaves, and after giving thanks He distributed them to those who were seated — so also with the fish, as much as they wanted. [l]

12 When they were full, He told His disciples, "Collect the leftovers so that nothing is wasted." [m] 13 So they collected them and filled 12 baskets with the pieces from the five barley loaves that were left over by those who had eaten.

14 When the people saw the sign [n] He had done, they said, "This really is the Prophet [o] who was to come [p] into the world! " [q] 15 Therefore, when Jesus knew that they were about to come and take Him by force to make Him king, [r] He withdrew again [s] to the mountain by Himself.

The Fifth Sign: Walking on Water

16 When [t] evening came, His disciples went down to the sea, 17 got into a boat, and started across the sea to Capernaum. [u] Darkness had already set in, but Jesus had not yet come to them. 18 Then a high wind arose, and the sea began to churn. 19 After they had rowed about three or four miles, [A] they saw Jesus walking on the sea. He was coming near the boat, and they were afraid.

20 But He said to them, "It is I. [v,] [w] Don't be afraid! " 21 Then they were willing to take Him on board, and at once the boat was at the shore where they were heading.

The Bread of Life

22 The next day, the crowd that had stayed on the other side of the sea knew there had been only one boat. [x, y] They also knew that Jesus had not boarded the boat with His disciples, but that His disciples had gone off alone. 23 Some boats from Tiberias [z] came near the place where they ate the bread after the Lord gave thanks. 24 When the crowd saw that neither Jesus nor His disciples were there, they got into the boats and went to Capernaum looking for Jesus.

25 When they found Him on the other side of the sea, they said to Him,
"•Rabbi , [a] when did You get here? "

26 Jesus answered, "•I assure you: You are looking for Me, not because you saw [b] the signs, but because you ate the loaves and were filled. 27 Don't work for the food that perishes [c] but for the food that lasts for eternal life, [d] which the •Son of Man [e] will give you, because God the Father [f] has set His seal of approval on Him."

28 "What can we do to perform the works of God? " they asked.

29 Jesus replied, "This is the work [g] of God — that you believe in the One He has sent." [h]

30 "What sign then are You going to do so we may see and believe You? " they asked. "What are You going to perform? 31 Our fathers ate the manna [i] in the wilderness, [j] just as it is written: He gave them bread from heaven to eat." [k, l, m]

32 Jesus said to them, "I assure you: Moses [n] didn't give you the bread from heaven, but My Father gives you the real bread from heaven. 33 For the bread of God is the One who comes down from heaven and gives life to the world."

34 Then they said, "Sir, give us this bread always! "

35 "I am [o] the bread of life," Jesus told them. "No one who comes to Me [p] will ever be hungry, [q] and no one who believes in Me [r] will ever be thirsty [s] again. 36 But as I told you, you've seen Me, [t] and yet you do not believe. 37 Everyone the Father gives Me will come to Me, and the one who comes to Me I will never cast out. [u] 38 For I have come down from heaven, [v] not to do My will, but the will of Him [w] who sent Me. 39 This is the will of Him who sent Me: that I should lose none of those He has given Me but should raise [x] them up on the last day. 40 For this is the will of My Father: [y] that everyone who sees the Son [z] and believes in Him may have eternal life, and I will raise [a] him up on the last day."

41 Therefore the •Jews started complaining about Him because He said, “I am the bread that came down from heaven.” 42 They were saying, “Isn’t this Jesus the son of Joseph, [b] whose father and mother we know? How can He now say, ‘I have come down from heaven’? ” 43 Jesus answered them, “Stop complaining among yourselves. 44 No one can come to Me unless the Father who sent Me draws [c] him, and I will raise him up on the last day. 45 It is written in the Prophets: [d] And they will all be taught by God. [e, f] Everyone who has listened to and learned from the Father [g] comes to Me — 46 not that anyone has seen the Father [h] except the One who is from God.
[i] He has seen the Father. [j] 47 “I assure you: Anyone who believes [k] has eternal life. 48 I am the bread of life. 49 Your fathers ate the manna [l] in the wilderness, [m] and they died. 50 This is the bread that comes down from heaven so that anyone may eat of it and not die.
[n] 51 I am the living bread that came down from heaven. If anyone eats of this bread he will live [o] forever. [p] The bread that I will give for the life [q] of the world is My flesh.” [r] 52 At that, the Jews argued [s] among themselves, [t] “How can this man give us His flesh to eat? ”
53 So Jesus said to them, “I assure you: Unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man [u] and drink His blood, [v] you do not have life in yourselves. 54 Anyone who eats My flesh and drinks My blood [w] has eternal life, and I will raise [x] him up on the last day, 55 because My flesh is real food and My blood is real drink.
56 The one who eats My flesh and drinks My blood lives in Me, and I in him. [y] 57 Just as the living [z] Father sent Me and I live because of the Father, so the one who feeds on Me will live [a] because of Me. 58 This is the bread that came down from heaven; it is not like the manna [b] your fathers ate — and they died. The one who eats this bread will live forever.” [c] 59 He said these things while teaching in the •synagogue [d] in Capernaum. [e]

Many Disciples Desert Jesus

60 Therefore, when many of His disciples heard this, they said, “This teaching is hard! Who can accept [B] it? ”

61 Jesus, knowing in Himself [f] that His disciples were complaining about this, asked them, “Does this •offend you? 62 Then what if you were to observe the Son of Man [g] ascending [h] to where He was before? 63 The Spirit [i] is the One who gives life. The flesh doesn’t help at all. The words that I have spoken to you are spirit and are life. 64 But there are some among you who don’t believe.” (For Jesus knew from the beginning [j] those who would not [k] believe and the one who would betray [l] Him.) 65 He said, “This is why I told you that no one can come to Me [m] unless it is granted to him by the Father.”

66 From that moment many of His disciples turned back and no longer accompanied Him. 67 Therefore Jesus said to the Twelve, [n] “You don’t want to go away too, do you? ”

68 Simon Peter [o] answered, “Lord, who will we go to? You have the words of eternal life. 69 We have come to believe and know that You are the Holy One of God! ” [p, q]

70 Jesus replied to them, “Didn’t I choose you, the Twelve? [r] Yet one of you is the Devil! ” [s] 71 He was referring to Judas, [t] Simon Iscariot’s son, [u, C] one of the Twelve, because he was going to betray [v] Him.

The Unbelief of Jesus' Brothers

7 After this, Jesus traveled in Galilee, [a] since He did not want to travel in Judea [b] because the •Jews [c] were trying to kill Him. [d] 2 The Jewish Festival of Tabernacles [A, e] , [f] was near, 3 so His brothers [g] said to Him, “Leave here and go to Judea so Your disciples can see Your works [h] that You are doing.
4 For no one does anything in secret while he’s seeking public recognition. If You do these things, show Yourself to the world.” 5 (For not even His brothers believed in Him.) 6 Jesus told them, “My time [i] has not yet arrived, but your time is always at hand. 7 The world cannot hate [j] you, but it does hate Me because I testify about it — that its deeds are evil. 8 Go up to the festival yourselves. I’m not going up to the festival yet, [k] because My time has not yet fully come.” 9 After He had said these things, He stayed in Galilee.

Jesus at the Festival of Tabernacles

10 After His brothers had gone up to the festival, then He also went up, not openly but secretly. 11 The Jews were looking for Him at the festival and saying, “Where is He? ” 12 And there was a lot of discussion about Him among the crowds. Some were saying, “He’s a good [l] man.” Others were saying, “No, on the contrary, He’s deceiving [m] the people.” 13 Still, nobody was talking publicly about Him because they feared the Jews.

14 When the festival was already half over, Jesus went up into the •temple complex [n] and began to teach. 15 Then the Jews were amazed and said, “How does He know the Scriptures, [o] since He hasn’t been trained? ”

16 Jesus answered them, “My teaching isn’t Mine but is from the One who sent Me. [p] 17 If anyone wants to do His will, [q] he will understand whether the teaching is from God or if I am speaking on My own. 18 The one who speaks for himself seeks his own glory. [r] But He who seeks the glory [s] of the One who sent Him is true, [t] and there is no unrighteousness in Him. [u] 19 Didn’t Moses [v] give you the law? Yet none of you keeps the law! [w] Why do you want to kill Me? ”

20 “You have a demon! ” the crowd responded. “Who wants to kill You? ”

21 “I did one work, [x] and you are all amazed,” Jesus answered. 22 “Consider this: Moses has given you circumcision [y] — not that it comes from Moses but from the fathers [z] — and you circumcise a man on the Sabbath. [a] 23 If a man receives circumcision on the Sabbath [b] so that the law of Moses [c] won’t be broken, are you angry at Me because I made a man entirely well on the Sabbath?
24 Stop judging [d] according to outward appearances; rather judge according to righteous judgment.”

The Identity of the Messiah

25 Some of the people of Jerusalem [e] were saying, “Isn’t this the man they want to kill? 26 Yet, look! He’s speaking publicly and they’re saying nothing to Him. Can it be true that the authorities [f] know He is the •Messiah ? [g] 27 But we know where this man is from. [h] When the Messiah comes, nobody will know where He is from.”

28 As He was teaching in the temple complex, [i] Jesus cried out, “You know Me and you know where I am from. Yet I have not come on My own, but the One who sent Me [j] is true. You don’t know Him; [k] 29 I know Him because I am from Him, and He sent Me.” [l]

30 Then they tried to seize Him. Yet no one laid a hand on Him because His hour [m] had not yet come. 31 However, many from the crowd believed in Him and said, “When the Messiah comes, He won’t perform more signs than this man has done, [n] will He? ”

32 The •Pharisees [o] heard the crowd muttering these things about Him, so the •chief priests [p] and the Pharisees sent temple police to arrest Him.

33 Then Jesus said, “I am only with you for a short time. [q] Then I’m going to the One who sent Me. [r] 34 You will look for Me, but you will not find Me; and where I am, you cannot come.” [s]

35 Then the Jews [t] said to one another, “Where does He intend to go so we won’t find Him? He doesn’t intend to go to the Dispersion [u,] [v] among the Greeks [w] and teach the Greeks, does He? 36 What is this remark He made: ‘You will look for Me, and you will not find Me; and where I am, you cannot come’ [x]

The Promise of the Spirit

37 On the last and most important day of the festival, [y] Jesus stood up and cried out, “If anyone is thirsty, he should come to Me [z, a] and drink! [b] 38 The one who believes in Me, [c] as the Scripture [d] has said, [e] will have streams of living water [f] flow [g] from deep within him.” 39 He said this about the Spirit. [h]
Those who believed in Jesus were going to receive the Spirit, [i] for the Spirit [j] had not yet been received [k, B] because Jesus had not yet been glorified.

The People Are Divided over Jesus

40 When some from the crowd heard these words, they said, “This really is the Prophet! ” [l, m] 41 Others said, “This is the Messiah! ” But some said, “Surely the Messiah doesn’t come from Galilee, does He? 42 Doesn’t the Scripture [n] say that the Messiah comes from David’s [o] offspring [C] and from the town of Bethlehem, [p] where David once lived? ” 43 So a division [q] occurred among the crowd because of Him. 44 Some of them wanted to seize Him, [r] but no one laid hands on Him.

Debate over Jesus’ Claims

45 Then the temple police [s] came to the chief priests [t] and Pharisees, who asked them, “Why haven’t you brought Him? ”

46 The police answered, “No man ever spoke like this! ” [u, v]

47 Then the Pharisees responded to them: “Are you fooled [w] too? 48 Have any of the rulers [x] or Pharisees believed in Him? 49 But this crowd, which doesn’t know the law, is accursed! ”

50 Nicodemus [y] — the one who came to Him previously, being one of them — said to them, 51 “Our law doesn’t judge a man before it hears from him and knows what he’s doing, does it? ” [z]

52 “You aren’t from Galilee [a] too, are you? ” they replied. “Investigate and you will see that no prophet arises from Galilee.” [b, c]

[53 So each one went to his house.

8 But Jesus went to the •Mount of Olives. [a]

An Adulteress Forgiven

2 At dawn He went to the •temple complex [b] again, and all the people were coming to Him. [c] He sat down [d] and began to teach them.

3 Then the •scribes and the •Pharisees [e] brought a woman caught in adultery, [f] making her stand in the center. 4 "Teacher," they said to Him, "this woman was caught in the act of committing adultery. [g] 5 In the law Moses [h] commanded us to stone such women. [i] So what do You say? " 6 They asked this to trap Him, [j] in order that they might have evidence to accuse Him.

Jesus stooped down and started writing on the ground with His finger. 7 When they persisted in questioning Him, He stood up and said to them, "The one without sin [k] among you [l] should be the first to throw a stone at her." [m]

8 Then He stooped down again and continued writing on the ground. 9 When they heard this, they left one by one, starting with the older men. Only He was left, with the woman in the center. 10 When Jesus stood up, He said to her, "•Woman , where are they? Has no one condemned you? "

11 "No one, Lord," [A] she answered.

"Neither do I condemn you," [n] said Jesus. "Go, and from now on do not sin anymore."] [o]

The Light of the World

12 Then Jesus spoke to them again: “I am [p] the light [q] of the world. Anyone who follows Me will never walk in the darkness but will have the light of life.” [r]

13 So the Pharisees said to Him, “You are testifying about Yourself. Your testimony is not valid.” [s]

14 “Even if I testify about Myself,” Jesus replied, “My testimony is valid, [t] because I know where I came from and where I’m going. But you don’t know where I come from or where I’m going. [u] 15 You judge [v] by human standards. [w, x] I judge no one. [y] 16 And if I do judge, My judgment is true, because I am not alone, but I and the Father who sent Me judge [z] together. [a] 17 Even in your law it is written that the witness of two men is valid. [b] 18 I am the One who testifies [c] about Myself, and the Father who sent Me testifies about Me.”

19 Then they asked Him, “Where is Your Father? ”

“You know neither Me nor My Father,” [d] Jesus answered. “If you knew Me, you would also know My Father.” [e] 20 He spoke these words by the treasury, [f, g] while teaching in the temple complex. But no one seized Him, because His hour [h] had not come.

Jesus Predicts His Departure

21 Then He said to them again, “I’m going away; [i] you will look for Me, and you will die in your sin. [j] Where I’m going, you cannot come.” [k] 22 So the •Jews said again, “He won’t kill Himself, will He, since He says, ‘Where I’m going, you cannot come’ [l] ? ” 23 “You are from below,” He told them, “I am from above. [m] You are of this world; [n] I am not of this •world . [o] 24 Therefore I told you that you will die in your sins. For if you do not believe that I am He, [p] you will die in your sins.”
25 “Who are You? ” they questioned.
“Precisely what I’ve been telling you from the very beginning,” Jesus told them. 26 “I have many things to say and to judge about you, but the One who sent Me [q] is true, and what I have heard from Him — these things I tell the world.” [r]
27 They did not know He was speaking to them about the Father. 28 So Jesus said to them, “When you lift up the •Son of Man, [s] then you will know that I am [t] He, and that I do nothing on My own. [u] But just as the Father taught Me, I say these things. 29 The One who sent Me is with Me. He has not left Me alone, [v] because I always do what pleases Him.”

Truth and Freedom

30 As He was saying these things, many believed in Him. 31 So Jesus said to the Jews who had believed Him, “If you continue in My word, [w, x] you really are My disciples. 32 You will know the truth, [y] and the truth will set you free.”

33 “We are descendants [B] of Abraham,” [z] they answered Him, “and we have never been enslaved to anyone. How can You say, ‘You will become free’? ”

34 Jesus responded, “•I assure you: Everyone who commits sin is a •slave of sin. [a] 35 A slave does not remain in the household forever, [b] but a son does remain forever. [c] 36 Therefore, if the Son sets you free, you really will be free. 37
I know you are descendants [d] of Abraham, [e] but you are trying to kill Me because My word [f] is not welcome among you. 38 I speak what I have seen [g] in the presence of the Father; [h, i] therefore, you do what you have heard from your father.”

39 “Our father is Abraham! ” they replied.

“If you were Abraham’s children,” Jesus told them, “you would do what Abraham did. [j] 40 But now you are trying to kill Me, a man who has told you the truth [k] that I heard from God. Abraham did not do this! 41 You’re doing what your father does.” [l]

“We weren’t born [m] of sexual immorality,” [n] they said. “We have one Father — God.” [o]

42 Jesus said to them, “If God were your Father, you would love Me, [p] because I came from God [q] and I am here. For I didn’t come on My own, but He sent Me. 43 Why don’t you understand what I say? Because you cannot listen to [r] My word. [s] 44 You are of your father the Devil, [t] and you want to carry out your father’s desires. He was a murderer [u] from the beginning [v] and has not stood in the truth, [w] because there is no truth in him. When he tells a lie, he speaks from his own nature, [x] because he is a liar and the father of liars. [y] 45 Yet because I tell the truth, you do not believe Me. 46 Who among you can convict Me of sin? [z] If I tell the truth, why don’t you believe Me? 47 The one who is from God listens to God’s words. This is why you don’t listen, because you are not from God.”

Jesus and Abraham

48 The Jews responded to Him, “Aren’t we right in saying that You’re a •Samaritan [a] and have a demon? ” [b]

49 “I do not have a demon,” Jesus answered. “On the contrary, I honor My Father and you dishonor Me. 50 I do not seek My glory; [c] the One who seeks it also judges. 51 I assure you: If anyone keeps My word, [d] he will never see death — ever! ”

52 Then the Jews said, “Now we know You have a demon. Abraham died and so did the prophets. You say, ‘If anyone keeps My word, he will never taste death — ever! ’ 53 Are You greater than our father Abraham who died? Even the prophets died. Who do You pretend to be? ” [C]

54 “If I glorify Myself,” Jesus answered, “My glory is nothing. My Father — you say about Him, ‘He is our God’ — He is the One who glorifies Me. 55 You’ve never known Him, but I know Him. If I were to say I don’t know Him, [e] I would be a liar like you. But I do know Him, [f] and I keep His word. 56 Your father Abraham was overjoyed that he would see My day; he saw it [g] and rejoiced.”

57 The Jews replied, “You aren’t 50 years old yet, and You’ve seen Abraham? ” [h]

58 Jesus said to them, “I assure you: Before Abraham was, I am.” [i, j]

59 At that, they picked up stones [k] to throw at Him. [l] But Jesus was hidden [D, m] and went out of the temple complex. [n, o]

The Sixth Sign: Healing a Man Born Blind

9 As He was passing by, He saw a man blind from birth. 2 His disciples questioned Him: "•Rabbi , [a] who sinned, this man [b] or his parents, [c] that he was born blind? "

3 "Neither this man nor his parents sinned," Jesus answered. "This came about so that God's works [d] might be displayed in him. 4 We [e] must do the works [f] of Him who sent Me [g] while it is day. [h] Night is coming when no one can work. 5 As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world." [i]

6 After He said these things He spit on the ground, made some mud [j] from the saliva, and spread the mud on his eyes. 7 "Go," He told him, "wash in the pool of Siloam" [k] (which means "Sent"). So he left, washed, and came back seeing. [l]

8 His neighbors and those who formerly had seen him as a beggar said, "Isn't this the man who sat begging? " 9 Some said, "He's the one." "No," others were saying, "but he looks like him."

He kept saying, "I'm the one! "

10 Therefore they asked him, "Then how were your eyes opened? "

11 He answered, "The man called Jesus made mud, spread it on my eyes, and told me, 'Go to Siloam [m] and wash.' So when I went and washed I received my sight." [n]

12 "Where is He? " they asked.

"I don't know," he said.

The Healed Man's Testimony

13 They brought the man who used to be blind to the •Pharisees . [o] 14 The day that Jesus made the mud and opened his eyes was a Sabbath. [p] 15 So again the Pharisees asked him how he received his sight.

"He put mud on my eyes," he told them. "I washed and I can see."

16 Therefore some of the Pharisees said, "This man is not from God, [q] for He doesn't keep the Sabbath! " But others were saying, "How can a sinful man [r] perform such signs? " And there was a division [s] among them.

17 Again they asked the blind man, [t] "What do you say about Him, since He opened your eyes? "

"He's a prophet," [u] he said.

18 The •Jews did not believe this about him — that he was blind and received sight — until they summoned the parents of the one who had received his sight.

19 They asked them, "Is this your son, the one you say was born blind? How then does he now see? "

20 “We know this is our son and that he was born blind,” his parents answered.
21 “But we don’t know how he now sees, and we don’t know who opened his eyes. Ask him; he’s of age. He will speak for himself.” 22 His parents said these things because they were afraid of the Jews, since the Jews had already agreed that if anyone confessed Him as •Messiah , [v] he would be banned from the •synagogue . 23 This is why his parents said, “He’s of age; ask him.”
24 So a second time they summoned the man who had been blind and told him, “Give glory [w] to God. [A, x] We know that this man is a sinner! ” 25 He answered, “Whether or not He’s a sinner, I don’t know. One thing I do know: I was blind, and now I can see! ” 26 Then they asked him, “What did He do to you? How did He open your eyes? ” 27 “I already told you,” he said, “and you didn’t listen. Why do you want to hear it again? You don’t want to become His disciples too, do you? ” 28 They ridiculed him: “You’re that man’s disciple, but we’re Moses’ [y] disciples. 29 We know that God has spoken to Moses. But this man — we don’t know where He’s from! ” [z] 30 “This is an amazing thing,” the man told them. “You don’t know where He is from, yet He opened my eyes! 31 We know that God doesn’t listen to sinners, [a] but if anyone is God-fearing and does His will, [b] He listens to him. [c]
32 Throughout history [B] no one has ever heard of someone opening the eyes of a person born blind. [d] 33 If this man were not from God, He wouldn’t be able to do anything.” [e] 34 “You were born entirely in sin,” [f] they replied, “and are you trying to teach us? ” Then they threw him out. [g, h]

The Blind Man’s Sight and the Pharisees’ Blindness 35 When Jesus heard that they had thrown the man out, He found him and asked, “Do you believe in the •Son of Man? ” [i, j]
36 “Who is He, Sir, [k] that I may believe in Him? ” he asked.
37 Jesus answered, “You have seen Him; in fact, He is the One speaking with you.”
38 “I believe, Lord! ” he said, and he worshiped Him.
39 Jesus said, “I came into this world [l] for judgment, [m] in order that those who do not see will see and those who do see will become blind.” [n] 40 Some of the Pharisees who were with Him heard these things and asked Him, “We aren’t blind too, are we? ”

41 “If you were blind,” Jesus told them, “you wouldn’t have sin. [o, p] But now that you say, ‘We see’ — your sin remains.

The Ideal Shepherd

10 “•I assure you: Anyone who doesn’t enter the sheep pen by the door but climbs in some other way, is a thief and a robber. [a] 2 The one who enters by the door is the shepherd [b] of the sheep. [c] 3 The doorkeeper opens it for him, and the sheep hear his voice. He calls his own sheep by name and leads them out. 4 When he has brought all his own outside, he goes ahead of them. The sheep follow him because they recognize his voice. 5 They will never follow a stranger; instead they will run away from him, because they don’t recognize the voice of strangers.”
6 Jesus gave them this illustration, but they did not understand [d] what He was telling them.

The Good Shepherd

7 So Jesus said again, “I assure you: I am [e] the door of the sheep. [f] 8 All who came before Me [g] are thieves and robbers, but the sheep didn’t listen to them. 9 I am the door. If anyone enters by Me, he will be saved and will come in and go out and find pasture. 10 A thief comes only to steal [h] and to kill and to destroy. [i]
I have come so that they may have life and have it in abundance.

11 “I am the good shepherd. [j] The good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep. [k] 12 The hired man, since he is not the shepherd and doesn’t own the sheep, leaves them [l] and runs away when he sees a wolf [m] coming. The wolf then snatches and scatters them. 13 This happens because he is a hired man and doesn’t care about the sheep.

14 “I am the good shepherd. I know My own sheep, and they know Me, 15 as the Father knows Me, and I know the Father. [n] I lay down My life [o] for the sheep. 16 But I have other sheep [p] that are not of this fold; I must bring them also, and they will listen to My voice. Then there will be one flock, one shepherd. [q] 17 This is why the Father loves Me, [r] because I am laying down My life [s] so I may take it up again. 18 No one takes it from Me, but I lay it down on My own. I have the right to lay it down, and I have the right to take it up again. I have received this command from My Father.” [t]

19 Again a division [u] took place among the •Jews because of these words. 20
Many of them were saying, “He has a demon [v] and He’s crazy! Why do you listen to Him? ” 21 Others were saying, “These aren’t the words of someone demon-possessed. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind? ” [w]

Jesus at the Festival of Dedication

22 Then the Festival of Dedication [A] took place in Jerusalem, and it was winter. 23 Jesus was walking in the •temple complex in Solomon’s Colonnade.
[x, y] 24 Then the Jews surrounded Him and asked, “How long are You going to keep us in suspense? [B] If You are the •Messiah , [z] tell us plainly.” [C, a]

25 “I did tell you and you don’t believe,” Jesus answered them. “The works [b] that I do in My Father’s name testify about Me. 26 But you don’t believe because you are not My sheep. [c, d] 27 My sheep hear My voice, I know them, and they follow Me. 28 I give them eternal life, [e] and they will never perish [f] — ever! No one will snatch [g] them out of My hand. 29 My Father, [h] who has given them to Me, is greater than all. No one is able to snatch them out of the Father’s hand. 30 The Father and I are one.” [i, j]

Renewed Efforts to Stone Jesus

31 Again the Jews picked up rocks to stone Him. [k]

32 Jesus replied, “I have shown you many good works [l] from the Father. Which of these works are you stoning Me for? ”

33 “We aren’t stoning [m] You for a good work,” the Jews answered, “but for blasphemy, because You — being a man — make Yourself God.”

34 Jesus answered them, “Isn’t it written in your scripture, [n] I said, you are gods? [o, p] 35 If He called those whom the word [q] of God came to ‘gods’ — and the Scripture [r] cannot be broken — 36 do you say, ‘You are blaspheming’ to the One the Father set apart and sent into the world, because I said: I am the Son of God? [s] 37 If I am not doing My Father’s works, [t] don’t believe Me. 38 But if I am doing them and you don’t believe Me, believe the works. This way you will know and understand [u] that the Father is in Me and I in the Father.” [v] 39 Then they were trying again to seize Him, [w] yet He eluded their grasp. [x]

Many beyond the Jordan Believe in Jesus 40 So He departed again across the Jordan [y] to the place where John [z] had been baptizing earlier, and He remained there. 41 Many came to Him [a] and said, “John never did a sign, but everything John said about this man was true.” 42 And many believed in Him there.

Lazarus Dies at Bethany

11 Now a man was sick, Lazarus, from Bethany, [a] the village of Mary and her sister Martha. [b] 2 Mary was the one who anointed the Lord with fragrant oil and wiped His feet with her hair, [c] and it was her brother Lazarus who was sick. 3 So the sisters sent a message to Him: “Lord, the one You love is sick.”

4 When Jesus heard it, He said, “This sickness will not end in death but is for the glory of God, [d] so that the Son of God [e] may be glorified through it.” 5 Now Jesus loved Martha, her sister, and Lazarus. 6 So when He heard that he was sick, He stayed two more days in the place where He was. 7 Then after that, He said to the disciples, “Let’s go to Judea [f] again.”

8 “•Rabbi ,” [g] the disciples told Him, “just now the •Jews tried to stone You, [h] and You’re going there again? ”

9 “Aren’t there 12 hours in a day? ” Jesus answered. “If anyone walks during the day, he doesn’t stumble, because he sees the light of this world. [i] 10 If anyone walks during the night, [j] he does stumble, because the light is not in him.” 11 He said this, and then He told them, “Our friend Lazarus has fallen •asleep , [k] but I’m on My way to wake him up.”

12 Then the disciples said to Him, “Lord, if he has fallen asleep, he will get well.”

13 Jesus, however, was speaking about his death, but they thought He was speaking about natural sleep. 14 So Jesus then told them plainly, “Lazarus has died. 15 I’m glad for you that I wasn’t there so that you may believe. But let’s go to him.”

16 Then Thomas [l] (called “Twin”) said to his fellow disciples, “Let’s go so that we may die with Him.”

The Resurrection and the Life

17 When Jesus arrived, He found that Lazarus had already been in the tomb [m] four days. 18 Bethany was near Jerusalem [n] (about two miles [A] away). 19 Many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary to comfort them about their brother. 20 As soon as Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went to meet Him. But Mary remained seated in the house.

21 Then Martha said to Jesus, “Lord, if You had been here, my brother wouldn’t have died. 22 Yet even now I know that whatever You ask from God, God will give You.”

23 “Your brother will rise [o] again,” Jesus told her.

24 Martha said, “I know that he will rise again in the resurrection at the last day.” [p]

25 Jesus said to her, “I am [q] the resurrection and the life. The one who believes in Me, [r] even if he dies, will live. [s] 26 Everyone who lives and believes in Me will never die — ever. [t] Do you believe this? ”

27 “Yes, Lord,” she told Him, “I believe You are the •Messiah , [u] the Son [v] of God, who comes into the world.” [w]

Jesus Shares the Sorrow of Death

28 Having said this, she went back and called her sister Mary, saying in private, “The Teacher is here and is calling for you.”

29 As soon as she heard this, she got up quickly and went to Him. [x] 30 Jesus had not yet come into the village but was still in the place where Martha had met Him. 31 The Jews who were with her in the house consoling her saw that Mary got up quickly and went out. So they followed her, supposing that she was going to the tomb [y] to cry there.

32 When Mary came to where Jesus was and saw Him, she fell at His feet [z] and told Him, “Lord, if You had been here, my brother would not have died! ”

33 When Jesus saw her crying, and the Jews who had come with her crying, He was angry [B] in His spirit [a] and deeply moved. 34 “Where have you put him? ” He asked.

35 Jesus wept. [b]

36 So the Jews said, “See how He loved [c] him! ” 37 But some of them said, “Couldn’t He who opened the blind man’s eyes [d] also have kept this man from dying? ”

The Seventh Sign: Raising Lazarus from the Dead 38 Then Jesus, angry C in Himself again, came to the tomb. It was a cave, and a stone was lying against it.
e 39 “Remove the stone,” Jesus said.

Martha, the dead man’s sister, told Him, “Lord, he’s already decaying. D It’s been four days.”

40 Jesus said to her, “Didn’t I tell you that if you believed you would see the glory f of God? ” g

41 So they removed the stone. Then Jesus raised His eyes and said, “Father, I thank h You that You heard Me. i 42 I know that You always hear Me, but because of the crowd standing here I said this, so they may believe You sent j Me.” 43 After He said this, He shouted with a loud voice, “Lazarus, come out! ” 44 The dead man came out bound hand and foot with linen strips and with his face wrapped in a cloth. Jesus said to them, “Loose him and let him go.”

The Plot to Kill Jesus

45 Therefore, many of the Jews who came to Mary and saw what He did believed in Him. [k] 46 But some of them went to the •Pharisees [l] and told them what Jesus had done.

47 So the •chief priests and the Pharisees convened the •Sanhedrin [m] and said,
"What are we going to do since this man does many signs? 48 If we let Him continue in this way, everyone will believe in Him! Then the Romans [n] will come and remove both our place [o] and our nation."

49 One of them, Caiaphas, [p] who was high priest [q] that year, said to them,
"You know nothing at all! 50 You're not considering that it is to your [r] advantage that one man should die for the people rather than the whole nation perish." [s] 51 He did not say this on his own, but being high priest that year he prophesied that Jesus was going to die [t] for the nation, 52 and not for the nation only, but also to unite the scattered children [u] of God. 53 So from that day on they plotted to kill Him. [v] 54 Therefore Jesus no longer walked openly [w] among the Jews but departed from there to the countryside near the wilderness, [x] to a town called Ephraim. And He stayed there with the disciples.

55 The Jewish •Passover [y] was near, and many went up to Jerusalem [z] from the country to purify [a] themselves before the Passover. 56 They were looking for Jesus and asking one another as they stood in the •temple complex: [b] "What do you think? He won't come to the festival, [c] will He? " 57 The chief priests [d] and the Pharisees had given orders that if anyone knew where He was, he should report it so they could arrest Him.

The Anointing at Bethany

12 Six days before the •Passover , Jesus came to Bethany [a] where Lazarus [b] was, the one Jesus had raised from the dead. [c] 2 So [d] they gave a dinner for Him there; Martha [e] was serving them, and Lazarus was one of those reclining at the table with Him. 3 Then Mary took a pound of fragrant oil — pure and expensive nard — anointed Jesus' feet, and wiped His feet with her hair. [f] So the house was filled with the fragrance of the oil.

4 Then one of His disciples, Judas Iscariot [g] (who was about to betray Him), said, 5 "Why wasn't this fragrant oil sold for 300 •denarii [h, i] and given to the poor? " 6 He didn't say this because he cared about the poor but because he was a thief. [j] He was in charge of the money-bag and would steal part of what was put in it.

7 Jesus answered, "Leave her alone; she has kept it for the day of My burial. [k] 8 For you always have the poor with you, [l] but you do not always have Me."

The Decision to Kill Lazarus

9 Then a large crowd of the Jews learned He was there. They came not only because of Jesus, but also to see Lazarus the one He had raised from the dead. [m] 10 Therefore the •chief priests decided to kill Lazarus also 11 because he was the reason many of the Jews were deserting them [A] and believing in Jesus.

The Triumphal Entry

12 The [n] next day, when the large crowd that had come to the festival heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, 13 they took palm branches [o] and went out to meet Him. They kept shouting: " • Hosanna! [p] He who comes in the name of the Lord is the blessed One [q, r] — the King of Israel! " [s]

14 Jesus found a young donkey [t] and sat on it, just as it is written: 15 Fear no more, [u] Daughter •Zion . Look, your King is coming, sitting on a donkey's colt. [v, w]

16 His disciples did not understand these things at first. However, when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things had been written about Him [x] and that they had done these things to Him. 17 Meanwhile, the crowd, which had been with Him when He called Lazarus out of the tomb [y] and raised him from the dead, continued to testify. [z] 18 This is also why the crowd met Him, because they heard He had done this sign.

19 Then the •Pharisees said to one another, "You see? You've accomplished nothing. Look — the world has gone after Him! " [a]

Jesus Predicts His Crucifixion

20 Now some Greeks were among those who went up to worship at the festival. 21 So they came to Philip, [b] who was from Bethsaida [c] in Galilee, [d] and requested of him, “Sir, [e] we want to see Jesus.”
22 Philip went and told Andrew; [f] then Andrew and Philip went and told Jesus.
23 Jesus replied to them, “The hour has come for the •Son of Man [g] to be glorified.
24 “•I assure you: Unless a grain of wheat [h] falls to the ground and dies, it remains by itself. But if it dies, it produces a large crop. [i, j] 25 The one who loves his life will lose it, [k] and the one who hates [l] his life [m] in this world will keep it for eternal life. 26 If anyone serves Me, he must follow Me. Where I am, there My servant [n] also will be. [o] If anyone serves Me, the Father will honor [p] him.
27 “Now My soul is troubled. What should I say — Father, save Me [q] from this hour? But that is why I came to this hour. 28 Father, glorify Your name! ” [r, s] Then a voice [t] came from heaven: [u] “I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again! ” [v] 29 The crowd standing there heard it and said it was thunder. Others said that an angel had spoken to Him.
30 Jesus responded, “This voice came, not for Me, but for you. [w] 31 Now is the judgment of this world. [x] Now the ruler of this •world [y] will be cast out. [z] 32
As for Me, if I am lifted up [a] from the earth I will draw all people to Myself.” [b]
33 He said this to signify what kind of death He was about to die. [c] 34 Then the crowd replied to Him, “We have heard from the scripture that the •Messiah will remain forever. [d] So how can You say, ‘The Son of Man [e] must be lifted up’? [B] Who is this Son of Man? ” 35 Jesus answered, “The light will be with you only a little longer. [f] Walk while you have the light [g] so that darkness doesn’t overtake you. [h] The one who walks in darkness doesn’t know where he’s going. [i] 36 While you have the light, [j] believe in the light so that you may become sons of light.” Jesus said this, then went away and hid from them. [k]

Isaiah’s Prophecies Fulfilled

37 Even though He had performed so many signs in their presence, they did not believe in Him. 38 But this was to fulfill [l] the word of Isaiah [m] the prophet, who said: [C]

Lord, who has believed our message?
And who has the arm [n] of the Lord been revealed to? [o, p]

39 This is why they were unable to believe, because Isaiah also said:

40 He has blinded [q] their eyes and hardened their hearts, [r]
so that they would not see with their eyes or understand with their hearts, and be converted, [s]
and I would heal them. [t, u]

41 Isaiah said these things because [v] he saw His glory [w] and spoke about Him.

42 Nevertheless, many did believe in Him even among the rulers, [x] but because of the Pharisees they did not confess Him, so they would not be banned from the •synagogue . 43 For they loved praise from men [y] more than praise from God. [D, z]

A Summary of Jesus' Mission

44 Then Jesus cried out, "The one who believes in Me [a] believes not in Me, but in Him who sent Me. 45 And the one who sees Me sees Him [b] who sent Me. 46 I have come as a light into the world, so that everyone who believes in Me would not remain in darkness. 47 If anyone hears My words and doesn't keep [c] them, I do not judge him; for I did not come to judge the world [d] but to save the world. [e] 48 The one who rejects Me [f] and doesn't accept My sayings has this as his judge: [g] The word I have spoken will judge him on the last day. [h] 49 For I have not spoken on My own, but the Father [i] Himself who sent Me has given Me a command as to what I should say and what I should speak. 50 I know that His command is eternal life. [j] So the things that I speak, I speak just as the Father has told Me." [k]

Jesus Washes His Disciples' Feet

13 Before the •Passover Festival, Jesus knew that His hour had come to depart from this world to the Father. [a] Having loved His own who were in the world, [b] He loved them to the end. [c] 2 Now by the time of supper, the Devil [d] had already put it into the heart of Judas, [e] Simon Iscariot's son, to betray [f] Him. 3 Jesus knew that the Father had given everything into His hands, [g] that He had come from God, [h] and that He was going back to God. [i] 4 So He got up from supper, laid aside His robe, [j] took a towel, and tied it around Himself. [k] 5 Next, He poured water into a basin and began to wash His disciples' feet and to dry them with the towel tied around Him.
6 He came to Simon Peter, [l] who asked Him, "Lord, are You going to wash my feet? "
7 Jesus answered him, "What I'm doing you don't understand now, but afterward you will know." [m]
8 "You will never wash my feet — ever! " Peter said.
Jesus replied, "If I don't wash you, you have no part with Me."
9 Simon Peter said to Him, "Lord, not only my feet, but also my hands and my head."
10 "One who has bathed," Jesus told him, "doesn't need to wash anything except his feet, but he is completely •clean . You are clean, but not all of you." 11 For He knew who would betray Him. This is why He said, "You are not all clean."

The Meaning of Footwashing

12 When Jesus had washed their feet and put on His robe, He reclined [n] again and said to them, “Do you know what I have done for you? 13 You call Me Teacher and Lord. This is well said, for I am. 14 So if I, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another’s feet. [o] 15 For I have given you an example [p] that you also should do just as I have done for you.

16 “•I assure you: A •slave is not greater than his master, [q, r] and a messenger is not greater than the one who sent him. 17 If you know these things, you are blessed if you do them. [s] 18 I’m not speaking about all of you; I know those I have chosen. [t] But the Scripture [u] must be fulfilled: [v] The one who eats My bread [w] has raised his heel against Me. [x, y]

19 “I am telling you now before it happens, [z] so that when it does happen you will believe [a] that I am He. [b] 20 I assure you: Whoever receives anyone I send receives Me, and the one who receives [c] Me receives Him who sent Me.”

Judas’s Betrayal Predicted

21 When [d] Jesus had said this, He was troubled in His spirit [e] and testified, [f]
“I assure you: One of you will betray Me! ”

22 The disciples started looking at one another — uncertain which one He was speaking about. 23 One of His disciples, the one Jesus loved, [g] was reclining close beside Jesus. [A] 24 Simon Peter motioned to him to find out who it was He was talking about. 25 So he leaned back against Jesus and asked Him, “Lord, who is it? ”

26 Jesus replied, “He’s the one I give the piece of bread to after I have dipped it.” [h] When He had dipped the bread, [i] He gave it to Judas, Simon Iscariot’s son. [j] 27 After Judas ate the piece of bread, Satan [k] entered him. Therefore Jesus told him, “What you’re doing, do quickly.”

28 None of those reclining at the table knew why He told him this. 29 Since Judas [l] kept the money-bag, some thought that Jesus was telling him, “Buy what we need for the festival,” [m] or that he should give something to the poor. 30
After receiving the piece of bread, he went out immediately. And it was night. [n]

The New Commandment

31 When [o] he had gone out, Jesus said, “Now the •Son of Man [p] is glorified, and God is glorified [q] in Him. [r] 32 If God is glorified in Him, [s] God will also glorify Him in Himself and will glorify Him at once.
33 “Children, I am with you a little while longer. [t] You will look for Me, and just as I told the •Jews , ‘Where I am going you cannot come,’ [u] so now I tell you.
34 “I give you a new command: Love one another. Just as I have loved you, you must also love one another. 35 By this all people will know that you are My disciples, if you have love [v] for one another.”

Peter’s Denials Predicted

36 “Lord,” Simon Peter said to Him, “where are You going? ” Jesus answered, “Where I am going [w] you cannot follow Me now, but you will follow later.”
37 “Lord,” Peter asked, “why can’t I follow You now? I will lay down my life [x] for You! ” [y]
38 Jesus replied, “Will you lay down your life for Me? I assure you: A rooster will not crow until you have denied Me three times.

The Way to the Father

14 “Your heart must not be troubled. [a] Believe [b] in God; [c] believe also in Me.
2 In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; [d] if not, I would have told you. I am going away [e] to prepare a place for you. 3 If I go away and prepare a place for you, I will come back [f] and receive you to Myself, so that where I am you may be also. [g] 4 You know the way to where I am going.” [h, i] 5 “Lord,” Thomas [j] said, “we don’t know where You’re going. How can we know the way? ”
6 Jesus told him, “I am [k] the way, [l] the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through Me.

Jesus Reveals the Father

7 “If you know Me, you will also know [m] My Father. [n] From now on you do know Him [o] and have seen Him.”

8 “Lord,” said Philip, [p] “show us the Father, and that’s enough for us.”

9 Jesus said to him, “Have I been among you all this time without your knowing Me, Philip? The one who has seen Me has seen the Father. [q] How can you say, ‘Show us the Father’? 10 Don’t you believe that I am in the Father and the Father is in Me? [r] The words I speak to you I do not speak on My own. [s] The Father who lives in Me does His works. [t] 11 Believe Me that I am in the Father and the Father is in Me. Otherwise, believe [u] because of the works themselves. [v]

Praying in Jesus’ Name

12 “•I assure you: The one who believes in Me [w] will also do the works that I do. And he will do even greater works than these, [x] because I am going to the Father. [y] 13 Whatever you ask in My name, I will do it so that the Father may be glorified [z] in the Son. [a] 14 If you ask Me [b] anything in My name, [c] I will do it.
[d], [e]

Another Counselor Promised

15 “If you love Me, you will keep [f] My commands. [g] 16 And I will ask the Father, and He will give you another •Counselor [h] to be with you forever. 17 He is the Spirit [i] of truth. [j] The •world is unable to receive Him because it doesn’t see Him or know Him. But you do know Him, because He remains with you and will be [k] in you. [l] 18 I will not leave you as orphans; I am coming to you.

The Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit 19 “In a little while the world will see Me no longer, [m] but you will see Me. [n] Because I live, you will live [o] too. 20 In that day you will know that I am in My Father, [p] you are in Me, and I am in you.
21 The one who has My commands and keeps them is the one who loves Me. [q]
And the one who loves Me will be loved by My Father. [r] I also will love him and will reveal Myself to him.”

22 Judas [s] (not Iscariot) said to Him, “Lord, how is it You’re going to reveal Yourself to us and not to the world? ” [t]

23 Jesus answered, “If anyone loves Me, he will keep My word. My Father will love him, and We will come to him and make Our home with him. [u] 24 The one who doesn’t love Me will not keep My words. The word that you hear is not Mine but is from the Father who sent Me. [v]

25 “I have spoken these things to you while I remain with you. 26 But the Counselor, the Holy Spirit [w] — the Father will send [x] Him in My name — will teach you all things [y] and remind you of everything I have told you. [z]

Jesus’ Gift of Peace

27 “Peace I leave with you. My peace I give to you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Your heart must not be troubled or fearful. [a] 28 You have heard Me tell you, ‘I am going away [b] and I am coming to you.’ If you loved Me, you would have rejoiced that I am going to the Father, [c] because the Father is greater than I. [d] 29 I have told you now before it happens [e] so that when it does happen you may believe. 30 I will not talk with you much longer, because the ruler of the world [f] is coming. He has no power over Me. [g, h] 31 On the contrary, I am going away [i] so that the world may know that I love the Father. Just as the Father commanded Me, so I do.

“Get up; let’s leave this place.

The Vine and the Branches

15 “I am [a] the true vine, and My Father is the vineyard keeper. 2 Every branch in Me that does not produce fruit He removes, [b] and He prunes every branch that produces fruit so that it will produce more fruit. 3 You are already •clean [c] because of the word I have spoken to you. 4 Remain in Me, and I in you. Just as a branch is unable to produce fruit by itself unless it remains on the vine, so neither can you unless you remain in Me. [d]

5 “I am the vine; [e] you are the branches. The one who remains in Me and I in him produces much fruit, [f] because you can do nothing without Me. 6 If anyone does not remain in Me, he is thrown aside [g] like a branch and he withers. They gather them, throw them into the fire, [h] and they are burned. [i] 7 If you remain in Me and My words remain in you, ask whatever you want and it will be done for you. [j] 8 My Father is glorified [k] by this: that you produce much fruit and prove to be [l] My disciples.

Christlike Love

9 “As the Father has loved Me, I have also loved you. Remain in My love. [m] 10 If you keep My commands you will remain in My love, just as I have kept My Father’s commands and remain in His love. [n]

11 “I have spoken these things to you so that My joy may be in you and your joy may be complete. [o] 12 This is My command: Love one another as I have loved [p] you. 13 No one has greater love than this, that someone would lay down his life [q] for his friends. 14 You are My friends if you do what I command you. 15 I do not call you •slaves anymore, because a slave doesn’t know what his master [r, s] is doing. I have called you friends, because I have made known to you everything I have heard from My Father. 16 You did not choose Me, but I chose you. [t] I appointed you that you should go out and produce fruit and that your fruit should remain, so that whatever you ask [u] the Father in My name, [v] He will give you. [w] 17 This is what I command you: Love one another.

Persecutions Predicted

18 “If the •world hates [x] you, understand that it hated Me before it hated you.
19 If you were of the world, the world would love you as its own. However, because you are not of the world, but I have chosen [y] you out of it, the world hates you. 20 Remember the word I spoke to you: ‘A slave is not greater than his master.’ [z] If they persecuted Me, they will also persecute you. If they kept My word, [a] they will also keep yours. 21 But they will do all these things to you on account of My name, [b] because they don’t know [c] the One who sent Me. 22 If I had not come and spoken to them, they would not have sin. [d, e] Now they have no excuse for their sin. 23 The one who hates Me also hates My Father. [f] 24 If I had not done the works [g] among them that no one else has done, [h] they would not have sin. [i] Now they have seen and hated both Me and My Father. 25 But this happened so that the statement written in their scripture might be fulfilled: [j]
They hated Me for no reason. [k, l]

Coming Testimony and Rejection

26 “When the •Counselor [m] comes, the One I will send to you from the Father [n] — the Spirit of truth [o] who proceeds from the Father — He will testify about Me. 27 You also will testify, [p] because you have been with Me from the beginning.

16 “I have told you these things to keep you from •stumbling . 2 They will ban you from the •synagogues . [a] In fact, a time is coming when anyone who kills you will think he is offering service [b] to God. 3 They will do these things because they haven’t known [c] the Father or Me. 4 But I have told you these things so that when their time [d] comes you may remember [e] I told them to you. I didn’t tell you these things from the beginning, because I was with you.

The Counselor’s Ministry

5 “But now I am going away [f] to Him who sent Me, and not one of you asks Me, ‘Where are You going? ’ [g] 6 Yet, because I have spoken these things to you, sorrow has filled your heart. 7 Nevertheless, I am telling you the truth. [h] It is for your benefit that I go away, because if I don’t go away the •Counselor will not come to you. If I go, I will send Him to you. [i] 8 When He comes, He will convict the world about sin, righteousness, and judgment: 9 About sin, because they do not believe in Me; 10 about righteousness, because I am going to the Father [j] and you will no longer see Me; 11 and about judgment, [k] because the ruler of this •world [l] has been judged. [m]

12 “I still have many things to tell you, but you can’t bear them now. [n] 13
When the Spirit of truth [o] comes, He will guide you into all the truth. [p] For He will not speak on His own, but He will speak whatever He hears. He will also declare to you what is to come. 14 He will glorify Me, because He will take from what is Mine and declare it to you. 15 Everything the Father [q] has is Mine. [r] This is why I told you that He takes from what is Mine and will declare it to you. [s]

Sorrow Turned to Joy

16 “A little while [t] and you will no longer see Me; [u] again a little while and you will see Me.” [v]

17 Therefore some of His disciples said to one another, “What is this He tells us: ‘A little while and you will not see Me; again a little while and you will see Me’; and, ‘because I am going to the Father’ [w] ? ” 18 They said, “What is this He is saying, [x] ‘A little while’? We don’t know what He’s talking about! ”

19 Jesus knew they wanted to question Him, so He said to them, “Are you asking one another about what I said, ‘A little while and you will not see Me; again a little while and you will see Me’?

20 “•I assure you: You will weep and wail, [y] but the world will rejoice. You will become sorrowful, [z] but your sorrow will turn to joy. 21 When a woman is in labor she has pain [a] because her time has come. But when she has given birth to a child, [b] she no longer remembers the suffering because of the joy that a person has been born into the world. 22 So you also have sorrow [c] now. But I will see you again. Your hearts will rejoice, [d] and no one will rob you of your joy. [e] 23 In that day you will not ask Me anything.

“I assure you: Anything you ask the Father in My name, He will give you. [f] 24 Until now you have asked for nothing in My name. [g] Ask and you will receive, [h] so that your joy may be complete. [i]

Jesus the Victor

25 “I have spoken these things to you in figures of speech. A time is coming when I will no longer speak to you in figures, but I will tell you plainly about the Father. 26 In that day you will ask [j] in My name. [k] I am not telling you that I will make requests to the Father on your behalf. 27 For the Father Himself loves you, because you have loved [l] Me and have believed that I came from God. [m, n] 28 I came from the Father and have come into the world. Again, I am leaving the world and going to the Father.” [o]

29 “Ah! ” His disciples said. “Now You’re speaking plainly and not using any figurative language. 30 Now we know that You know everything [p] and don’t need anyone to question You. By this we believe that You came from God.” [q]

31 Jesus responded to them, “Do you now believe? 32 Look: An hour is coming, and has come, [r] when each of you will be scattered to his own home, and you will leave Me alone. Yet I am not alone, because the Father is with Me.
[s] 33 I have told you these things so that in Me you may have peace. You will have suffering in this world. Be courageous! I have conquered the world.”

Jesus Prays for Himself

17 Jesus spoke these things, looked up to heaven, and said:
Father,
the hour has come.
Glorify Your Son
so that the Son [a] may glorify You, [b] 2 for You gave Him authority over all flesh; [c, d]
so He may give eternal life [e] to all You have given Him. [f] 3 This is eternal life:
that they may know You, the only [g] true [h] God, and the One You have sent [i] — Jesus Christ. [j] 4 I have glorified You on the earth by completing the work You gave Me to do.
5 Now, Father, [k] glorify Me in Your presence with that glory [l] I had with You before the world existed. [m]

Jesus Prays for His Disciples

6 I have revealed Your name [n]
to the men You gave Me [o] from the world. [p]
They were Yours, You gave them to Me, [q] and they have kept Your word. [r]
7 Now they know that all things
You have given to Me are from You,
8 because the words that You gave Me, [s]
I have given them.
They have received them and have known for certain that I came from You. [t]
They have believed that You sent Me.
9 I pray [u] for them.
I am not praying for the •world but for those You have given Me, [v] because they are Yours.
10 Everything I have is Yours, and everything You have is Mine, [w]
and I have been glorified in them.
11 I am no longer in the world, but they are in the world,
and I am coming to You. [x]
Holy [y] Father, protect [z] them by Your name [a]
that You have given Me,
so that they may be one [b] as We are [c] one.
12 While I was with them,
I was protecting them by Your name
that You have given Me.
I guarded [d] them and not one of them is lost, except the son of destruction, [e]
so that the Scripture [f] may be fulfilled. [g] 13 Now I am coming to You, and I speak these things in the world
so that they may have My joy completed in them.

14 I have given them Your word.
The world hated [h] them because they are not of the world, [i] as I am not of the world. [j] 15 I am not praying that You take them out of the world but that You protect them from the evil one. [k] 16 They are not of the world, as I am not of the world. [l]
17 •Sanctify [m, n] them by the truth; [o]
Your word is truth.
18 As You sent Me into the world, [p]
I also have sent them into the world.
19 I sanctify Myself for them, so they also may be sanctified by the truth.

Jesus Prays for All Believers

20 I pray not only for these, but also for those who believe in Me through their message.
21 May they all be one, [q]
as You, Father, are in Me and I am in You. [r]
May they also be one [s] in Us, so the world may believe You sent Me.
22 I have given them the glory [t] You have given Me.
May they be one as We are one.
23 I am in them and You are in Me. [u]
May they be made completely one, so the world may know You have sent Me and have loved [v] them as You have loved Me. [w] 24 Father,
I desire those You have given Me to be with Me where I am. [x]
Then they will see My glory, which You have given Me because You loved Me before the world's foundation.
25 Righteous Father!
The world has not known You.
However, I have known You, [y]
and these have known that You sent Me.
26 I made Your name [z] known to them and will make it known, so the love You have loved Me with may be in them and I may be in them. [a]

Jesus Betrayed

18 After [a] Jesus had said these things, He went out with His disciples across the Kidron Valley, where there was a garden, and He and His disciples went into it. 2 Judas, [b] who betrayed [c] Him, also knew the place, because Jesus often met there with His disciples. 3 So Judas took a •company of soldiers and some temple police from the •chief priests and the •Pharisees [d] and came there with lanterns, torches, and weapons.

4 Then Jesus, knowing everything that was about to happen to Him, [e] went out and said to them, “Who is it you’re looking for? ”

5 “Jesus the •Nazarene ,” they answered.

“I am He,” [f, g] Jesus told them.

Judas, who betrayed Him, was also standing with them. 6 When He told them, “I am He,” they stepped back and fell to the ground.

7 Then He asked them again, “Who is it you’re looking for? ”

“Jesus the Nazarene,” they said.

8 “I told you I am He,” Jesus replied. “So if you’re looking for Me, let these men go.” 9 This was to fulfill [h] the words He had said: “I have not lost one of those You have given Me.” [i]

10 Then Simon [j] Peter, [k] who had a sword, [l] drew it, struck the high priest’s [m] •slave , and cut off his right ear. (The slave’s name was Malchus.) 11 At that, Jesus said to Peter, “Sheathe your sword! Am I not to drink the cup [n] the Father has given Me? ”

Jesus Arrested and Taken to Annas

12 Then the company of soldiers, the commander, and the Jewish temple police arrested Jesus and tied Him up. 13 First they led Him to Annas, [o] for he was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, [p] who was high priest that year. 14 Caiaphas was the one who had advised the •Jews that it was advantageous that one man should die for the people. [q]

Peter Denies Jesus

15 Meanwhile, Simon Peter [r] was following Jesus, as was another disciple.
That disciple was an acquaintance of the high priest; so he went with Jesus into the high priest's courtyard. 16 But Peter remained standing outside by the door.
So the other disciple, the one known to the high priest, went out and spoke to the girl who was the doorkeeper and brought Peter in.

17 Then the slave girl who was the doorkeeper said to Peter, "You aren't one of this man's disciples too, are you? "

"I am not! " he said. 18 Now the slaves and the temple police had made a charcoal fire, because it was cold. They were standing there warming themselves, and Peter was standing with them, warming himself.

Jesus before Annas

19 The high priest [s] questioned Jesus about His disciples and about His teaching.

20 "I have spoken openly to the world," Jesus answered him. "I have always taught in the •synagogue [t] and in the •temple complex, [u] where all the Jews congregate, and I haven't spoken anything in secret. 21 Why do you question Me? Question those who heard what I told them. Look, they know what I said."

22 When He had said these things, one of the temple police standing by slapped Jesus, saying, "Is this the way you answer the high priest? "

23 "If I have spoken wrongly," Jesus answered him, "give evidence [v] about the wrong; but if rightly, [w] why do you hit Me? "

24 Then [x] Annas [y] sent Him bound to Caiaphas the high priest.

Peter Denies Jesus Twice More

25 Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They said to him,
“You aren’t one of His disciples too, are you? ”

He denied it and said, “I am not! ”

26 One of the high priest’s slaves, a relative of the man whose ear Peter had cut off, said, “Didn’t I see you with Him in the garden? ”

27 Peter then denied it again. Immediately a rooster crowed. [z]

Jesus before Pilate

28 Then [a] they took Jesus from Caiaphas to the governor's •headquarters . [b] It was early morning. They did not enter the headquarters themselves; otherwise they would be defiled and unable to eat the •Passover .

29 Then •Pilate [c] came out to them and said, "What charge [d] do you bring against this man? "

30 They answered him, "If this man weren't a criminal, [A] we wouldn't have handed Him over to you."

31 So Pilate told them, "Take Him yourselves and judge Him according to your law."

"It's not legal [e] for us to put anyone to death," the Jews declared. 32 They said this so that Jesus' words might be fulfilled signifying what kind of death He was going to die. [f]

33 Then Pilate went back into the headquarters, summoned Jesus, and said to Him, "Are You the King of the Jews? " [g]

34 Jesus answered, "Are you asking this on your own, or have others told you about Me? "

35 "I'm not a Jew, am I? " Pilate replied. "Your own nation and the chief priests handed You over to me. What have You done? "

36 "My kingdom [h] is not of this •world ," said Jesus. "If My kingdom were of this world, [i] My servants [j, k] would fight, so that I wouldn't be handed over to the Jews. As it is, My kingdom does not have its origin here." [l, m]

37 "You are a king then? " Pilate asked.

"You say that I'm a king," Jesus replied. "I was born for this, and I have come into the world [n] for this: to testify [o] to the truth. [p] Everyone who is of the truth listens to My voice."

38 "What is truth? " said Pilate.

Jesus or Barabbas

After he had said this, he went out to the Jews again and told them, “I find no grounds [q] for charging Him. [39] You [r] have a custom that I release one prisoner to you at the Passover. So, do you want me to release to you the King of the Jews? ”

[40] They shouted back, “Not this man, but Barabbas! ” [s] Now Barabbas was a revolutionary. [B, t]

Jesus Flogged and Mocked

19 Then •Pilate took Jesus and had Him flogged. 2 The soldiers also twisted together a crown [a] of thorns, put it on His head, and threw a purple robe around Him. 3 And they repeatedly came up to Him [b] and said, “Hail, King of the Jews! ” and were slapping His face.

4 Pilate went outside again and said to them, “Look, I’m bringing Him outside to you to let you know I find no grounds [c] for charging Him.”

Pilate Sentences Jesus to Death

5 Then Jesus came out wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe. [d]
Pilate said to them, “Here is the man! ” [e]

6 When the •chief priests and the temple police saw Him, they shouted, “Crucify! Crucify! ”

Pilate responded, “Take Him and crucify Him yourselves, for I find no grounds for charging Him.”

7 “We have a law,” the •Jews replied to him, “and according to that law He must die, [f] because He made Himself [g] the Son of God.” [h]

8 When Pilate heard this statement, he was more afraid than ever. 9 He went back into the •headquarters [i] and asked Jesus, “Where are You from? ” But Jesus did not give him an answer. [j] 10 So Pilate said to Him, “You’re not talking to me? Don’t You know that I have the authority to release You and the authority to crucify You? ”

11 “You would have no authority over Me at all,” Jesus answered him, “if it hadn’t been given you from above. This is why the one who handed Me over to you has the greater sin.” [k, l]

12 From that moment Pilate made every effort [A] to release Him. But the Jews shouted, “If you release this man, you are not Caesar’s friend. Anyone who makes himself a king opposes Caesar! ”

13 When Pilate heard these words, he brought Jesus outside. He sat down on the judge’s bench in a place called the Stone Pavement (but in •Hebrew Gabbatha). 14 It was the preparation day for the •Passover , and it was about six in the morning. [B] Then he told the Jews, “Here is your king! ”

15 But they shouted, “Take Him away! Take Him away! Crucify Him! ”

Pilate said to them, “Should I crucify your king? ”

“We have no king but Caesar! ” the chief priests answered.

16 So then, because of them, he handed Him over to be crucified.

The Crucifixion

Therefore they took Jesus away. [m] [17] Carrying [n] His own cross, [o] He went out to what is called Skull Place, which in Hebrew is called Golgotha. [18] There they crucified Him and two others with Him, one on either side, with Jesus in the middle. [19] Pilate also had a sign lettered and put on the cross. The inscription was:

JESUS THE NAZARENE
THE KING OF THE JEWS.

[20] Many of the Jews read this sign, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city, [p] and it was written in Hebrew, [C] Latin, and Greek. [21] So the chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate, "Don't write, 'The King of the Jews,' [q] but that He said, 'I am the King of the Jews.' "

[22] Pilate replied, "What I have written, I have written."

[23] When the soldiers crucified Jesus, they took His clothes and divided them into four parts, a part for each soldier. They also took the tunic, which was seamless, woven in one piece from the top. [24] So they said to one another, "Let's not tear it, but cast lots for it, to see who gets it." They did this to fulfill [r] the Scripture [s] that says: They divided My clothes among themselves, and they cast lots for My clothing. [t, u] And this is what the soldiers did.

Jesus' Provision for His Mother

[25] Standing [v] by the cross [w] of Jesus were His mother, [x] His mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and •Mary Magdalene. [y] [26] When Jesus saw His mother and the disciple He loved [z] standing there, He said to His mother, "•Woman , here is your son." [27] Then He said to the disciple, "Here is your mother." And from that hour the disciple took her into his home.

The Finished Work of Jesus

28 After [a] this, when Jesus knew that everything was now accomplished [b] that the Scripture might be fulfilled, He said, “I’m thirsty! ” [c] 29 A jar full of sour wine was sitting there; so they fixed a sponge full of sour wine on hyssop [D, d] and held it up to His mouth.
30 When Jesus had received the sour wine, He said, “It is finished! ” [e] Then bowing His head, He gave up His spirit. [f]

Jesus’ Side Pierced

31 Since it was the preparation day, [g] the Jews did not want the bodies [h] to remain on the cross [i] on the Sabbath [j] (for that Sabbath was a special [E] day).
They requested that Pilate have the men’s legs broken and that their bodies be taken away. [k] 32 So the soldiers came and broke the legs of the first man and of the other one who had been crucified with Him. 33 When they came to Jesus, they did not break His legs since they saw that He was already dead. [l] 34 But one of the soldiers pierced [m] His side [n] with a spear, and at once blood and water [o] came out. 35 He who saw this has testified [p] so that you also may believe. His testimony is true, and he knows he is telling the truth. [q] 36 For these things happened so that the Scripture would be fulfilled: [r] Not one of His bones will be broken. [s, t] 37 Also, another Scripture says: They will look at the One they pierced. [u, v]

Jesus’ Burial

38 After [w] this, Joseph of Arimathea, who was a disciple of Jesus — but secretly because of his fear of the Jews — asked Pilate that he might remove Jesus’ body. [x] Pilate gave him permission, so he came and took His body away.
39 Nicodemus [y] (who had previously come to Him at night) also came, bringing a mixture of about 75 pounds [F] of myrrh and aloes. 40 Then they took Jesus’ body [z] and wrapped it in linen cloths [a] with the aromatic spices, according to the burial [b] custom of the Jews. 41 There was a garden in the place where He was crucified. A new tomb was in the garden; no one had yet been placed in it. 42
They placed Jesus there because of the Jewish preparation and since the tomb was nearby.

The Empty Tomb

20 On [a] the first day of the week [b] •Mary Magdalene [c] came to the tomb [d] early, while it was still dark. She saw that the stone [e] had been removed [A] from the tomb. 2 So she ran to Simon Peter [f] and to the other disciple, the one Jesus loved, and said to them, “They have taken the Lord out of the tomb, [g] and we don’t know where they have put Him! ” 3 At that, Peter and the other disciple went out, heading for the tomb. 4 The two were running together, but the other disciple outran Peter and got to the tomb first. 5 Stooping down, he saw the linen cloths [h] lying there, yet he did not go in. 6 Then, following him, Simon Peter came also. He entered the tomb and saw the linen cloths lying there. 7 The wrapping [i] that had been on His head was not lying with the linen cloths [j] but was folded up in a separate place by itself. 8
The other disciple, who had reached the tomb first, then entered the tomb, saw, and believed. 9 For they still did not understand the Scripture [k] that He must rise [l] from the dead. [m] 10 Then the disciples went home again.

Mary Magdalene Sees the Risen Lord 11 But [n] Mary stood outside facing the tomb, [o] crying. As she was crying, she stooped to look into the tomb. 12 She saw two angels [p] in white sitting there, one at the head and one at the feet, where Jesus’ body [q] had been lying. 13 They said to her, “•Woman , why are you crying? ”

“Because they’ve taken away my Lord,” [r] she told them, “and I don’t know where they’ve put Him.” 14 Having said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, though she did not know it was Jesus. [s] 15 “Woman,” Jesus said to her, “why are you crying? Who is it you are looking for? ”
Supposing He was the gardener, she replied, “Sir, if you’ve removed Him, tell me where you’ve put Him, and I will take Him away.”
16 Jesus said, “Mary.”
Turning around, she said to Him in •Hebrew , “Rabbouni!” [B] — which means “Teacher.” [t]
17 “Don’t cling to Me,” Jesus told her, “for I have not yet ascended [u] to the Father. [v] But go to My brothers [w] and tell them that I am ascending to My Father [x] and your Father — to My God [y] and your God.” 18 Mary Magdalene went and announced to the disciples, “I have seen the Lord! ” [z] And she told them what [C] He had said to her.

The Disciples Commissioned

19 In the evening of that first day of the week, [a] the disciples were gathered together with the doors locked because of their fear of the •Jews . Then Jesus came, stood among them, and said to them, “Peace to you! ” [b]

20 Having said this, He showed them His hands and His side. [c] So the disciples rejoiced when they saw the Lord.

21 Jesus said to them again, “Peace to you! As the Father has sent Me, [d] I also send you.” [e] 22 After saying this, He breathed on them [f] and said, [D] “Receive the Holy Spirit. [g] 23 If you forgive the sins of any, they are forgiven them; if you retain the sins of any, they are retained.” [h]

Thomas Sees and Believes

24 But one of the Twelve, Thomas [i] (called “Twin”), was not with them when Jesus came. 25 So the other disciples kept telling him, “We have seen the Lord! ”

But he said to them, “If I don’t see the mark of the nails in His hands, put my finger into the mark of the nails, [j] and put my hand into His side, [k] I will never believe! ” [l]

26 After eight days His disciples were indoors again, and Thomas was with them. Even though the doors were locked, Jesus came and stood among them. He said, “Peace to you! ”

27 Then He said to Thomas, “Put your finger here and observe My hands. Reach out your hand and put it into My side. Don’t be an unbeliever, but a believer.” [m]

28 Thomas responded to Him, “My Lord and my God! ”

29 Jesus said, “Because you have seen Me, you have believed. [n] Those who believe without seeing [o] are blessed.”

The Purpose of This Gospel

30 Jesus performed many other signs [p] in the presence of His disciples that are not written [q] in this book. [r] 31 But these are written so that you may believe Jesus is the •Messiah , [s] the Son [t] of God, [E,] [u] and by believing you may have life in His name. [v]

Jesus' Third Appearance to the Disciples

21 After this, Jesus revealed [a] Himself again to His disciples by the Sea of Tiberias. [A,] [b] He revealed Himself in this way:

2 Simon Peter, [c] Thomas [d] (called "Twin"), Nathanael [e] from Cana of Galilee, [f] Zebedee's [g] sons, and two others of His disciples were together.

3 "I'm going fishing," Simon Peter said to them.

"We're coming with you," they told him. They went out and got into the boat, but that night they caught nothing. [h]

4 When daybreak came, Jesus stood on the shore. However, the disciples did not know it was Jesus. [i]

5 "Men," [j] Jesus called to them, "you don't have any fish, do you? "

"No," they answered.

6 "Cast the net on the right side of the boat," He told them, "and you'll find some." So they did, [B] and they were unable to haul it in because of the large number of fish. 7 Therefore the disciple, the one Jesus loved, said to Peter, "It is the Lord! " [k]

When Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he tied his outer garment around him [C] (for he was stripped) and plunged into the sea. 8 But since they were not far from land (about 100 yards [D,] [l] away), the other disciples came in the boat, [m] dragging the net full of fish. 9 When they got out on land, they saw a charcoal fire there, with fish lying on it, and bread.

10 "Bring some of the fish you've just caught," Jesus told them. 11 So Simon Peter got up and hauled the net ashore, full of large fish — 153 of them. Even though there were so many, the net was not torn. [n]

12 "Come and have breakfast," Jesus told them. None of the disciples dared ask Him, "Who are You? " because they knew it was the Lord. 13 Jesus came, took the bread, and gave it to them. He did the same with the fish.

14 This was now the third time [o,] [p] Jesus appeared [E,] [q] to the disciples after He was raised from the dead.

Jesus' Threefold Restoration of Peter 15 When they had eaten breakfast, Jesus asked Simon Peter, "Simon, son of John, [r] do you love [s] Me more than these? "

"Yes, Lord," he said to Him, "You know that I love You."

"Feed [t] My lambs," [u] He told him.

16 A second time He asked him, "Simon, son of John, do you love [v] Me? " [w]

"Yes, Lord," he said to Him, "You know that I love You."

"Shepherd [x] My sheep," [y] He told him.

17 He asked him the third time, “Simon, son of John, do you love [z] Me? ”

Peter was grieved [a] that He asked him the third time, “Do you love Me? ” He said, “Lord, You know everything! [b] You know that I love You.”

“Feed [c] My sheep,” Jesus said. 18 “•I assure you: [d] When you were young, you would tie your belt and walk wherever you wanted. But when you grow old, you will stretch out your hands and someone else will tie you and carry you where you don’t want to go.” 19 He said this to signify by what kind of death [e] he would glorify God. [f, g] After saying this, He told him, “Follow Me! ” [h]

Correcting a False Report 20 So Peter turned around and saw the disciple Jesus loved [i] following them. That disciple was the one who had leaned back against Jesus at the supper and asked, “Lord, who is the one that’s going to betray You? ” [j] 21 When Peter saw him, he said to Jesus, “Lord — what about him? ”

22 “If I want him to remain until I come,” [k] Jesus answered, “what is that to you? As for you, follow Me.”

23 So this report [F] spread to the brothers [l, m] that this disciple would not die. [n] Yet Jesus did not tell him that he would not die, but, “If I want him to remain until I come, what is that to you? ”

Epilogue

24 This is the disciple who testifies to these things and who wrote them down.
We know that his testimony is true.
25 And there are also many other things that Jesus did, which, if they were written one by one, I suppose not even the world itself could contain the books G that would be written. o

JOHN

Introduction

The Northern Lights above an alpine lake. "All things were created through Him, and apart from Him not one thing was created that has been created" (1:3).

The Gospel of John is different from the Synoptic Gospels—Matthew, Mark, and Luke—in that over 90 percent of its material is unique. John's Gospel does not focus on the miracles, parables, and public speeches that are so prominent in the other accounts. Instead, the Gospel of John emphasizes the identity of Jesus as the Son of God and how we, as believers, should respond to His teachings.

Circumstances of Writing Author: A close reading of the Gospel of John suggests that the author was an apostle (1:14; cp. 2:11; 19:35); one of the Twelve ("the disciple Jesus loved": 13:23; 19:26; 20:2; 21:20; cp. 21:24-25); and, still more specifically, John, the son of Zebedee (note the association of "the disciple Jesus loved" with Peter in 13:23-24; 18:15-16; 20:2-9; 21; and in Lk 22:8; Ac 1:13; 3-4; 8:14-25; Gl 2:9). The church fathers, too, attested to this identification (e.g., Irenaeus). Since the apostolic office was foundational in the history of the church (Ac 2:42; Eph 2:20), the apostolic authorship of John's Gospel invests it with special authority as firsthand eyewitness (Jn 15:27; 1Jn 1:1-4).

Background: The most plausible date of writing is the period between A.D. 70 (the date of the destruction of the temple) and 100 (the end of John's lifetime), with a date in the 80s most likely. A date after 70 is suggested by the references to the Sea of Tiberias in 6:1 and 21:1 (a name widely used for the Sea of Galilee only toward the end of the first century); Thomas's confession of Jesus as "my Lord and my God" in 20:28 (possibly a statement against emperor worship in the time of Domitian); the reference to Peter's martyrdom, which occurred in 65 or 66 (21:19); the lack of reference to the Sadducees, who ceased to be a Jewish religious party after 70; and the comparative ease with which John equated Jesus with God (1:1,14,18; 10:30; 20:28).

The testimony of the early church also favors a date after A.D. 70. Clement of Alexandria (cited in Eusebius, Hist. eccl., 6.14.7) stated, "Last of all, John, perceiving that the external facts had been made plain [in the other canonical Gospels] . . . composed a spiritual gospel." The most likely place of writing is Ephesus (Irenaeus, Haer., 3.1.2; cp. Eusebius, Hist. eccl., 3.1.1), one of the most important urban centers of the Roman Empire at the time, though the envisioned readership of John's Gospel transcends any one historical setting.

John's original audience was probably composed of people in the larger Greco-Roman world in Ephesus and beyond toward the close of the first century A.D. Hence John frequently explained Jewish customs and Palestinian geography and translated Aramaic terms into Greek.

Message and Purpose The purpose statement in 20:30-31 indicates that John wrote with an evangelistic purpose, probably seeking to reach unbelievers through Christian readers of his Gospel. If the date of composition was after 70, the time of the destruction of the Jerusalem temple, it is likely that John sought to present Jesus as the new temple and center of worship for God's people in replacement of the old sanctuary.

The deity of Jesus: John emphasized the deity of Jesus from the beginning of his Gospel. The prologue affirms that He is the eternal Word (Gk logos) who was with God and was God. Jesus used the significant phrase "I am" seven times in John, claiming the personal name of God as His own. In John, Jesus is always in charge and knows what will happen in advance.

Know and believe: Eternal life is knowing God and Jesus Christ (17:3). Further knowledge of God comes from believing and knowing Jesus. "Knowing" and "believing" are key terms for John. Both occur over 90 times in this Gospel and are always used as verbs. Jesus' teaching in John reminds us that knowing God and believing in Jesus are expressed in action.

Contribution to the Bible Of all the Gospels and any of the New Testament books, the Gospel of John most clearly teaches the deity and preexistence of Christ (1:1-2,18; 8:58; 17:5,24; 20:28). Together with the Gospel of Matthew, it provides the most striking proofs of Jesus' messiahship. It does so by narrating seven messianic signs (see note at 2:11), by seven "I am" statements of Jesus (see note at 6:35,48), by specific fulfillment quotations, especially at Jesus' passion, and by showing how Jesus fulfilled the symbolism inherent in a variety of Jewish festivals and institutions. Jesus' messianic mission is shown to originate with God the Father, "the One who sent" Jesus (7:16,18,28,33; 8:26,29; 15:21), and to culminate in His commissioning of His new messianic community in the power of His Spirit (20:21-22). John's Trinitarian teaching is among the most overt presentations of the tri-unity of the Godhead—Father, Son, and Spirit—in the entire NT and has provided much of the material for early Trinitarian and Christological formulations in the history of the church.

Structure John is divided into two main parts. In the first section (chaps. 2-11) the focus is on both Jesus' ministry to "the world" and the signs He performed. Jesus performs seven signs that meet with varying responses. The second major section (chaps. 12-21) reveals Jesus' teaching to His disciples and the triumphant "hour" of His passion. John's record of the passion focuses on Jesus' control of the events. He had to instruct His adversaries on how to arrest Him (18:4-8). Pilate struggled with his decision, but Jesus knew what would happen. Jesus died as the Lamb and was sacrificed at the very time lambs were being sacrificed for Passover (19:14).

Study Notes 1:1-18 John's prologue presents Jesus as the eternal, preexistent Word-become-flesh (vv. 1,14) and as the one-of-a-kind Son of the Father who is Himself God (vv. 1,18). Jesus culminated God's plan of salvation. Previous to Jesus this plan included God giving the law through Moses (v. 17), His dwelling among His people in the tabernacle (v. 14), and the sending of John the Baptist (vv. 6-8,15). The prologue introduces several themes that are emphasized later in the Gospel, including Jesus as life, light, and truth, believers as God's children, and the world's rejection of Jesus.

1:1 In the beginning was the Word echoes Gn 1:1, "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." John located Jesus' existence in eternity past with God. "The Word" (Gk logos) conveys the notion of divine self-expression or speech (Ps 19:1-4). God's Word is effective. He speaks, and things come into being (Gn 1:3,9; Is 55:11-12).

1:4-5 The references to life . . . light, and darkness continue to draw on Genesis themes (cp. Gn 1:3-5,14-18,20-31; 2:7; 3:20). Light symbolism is also found in later OT messianic passages (Is 9:2; 42:6-7; 49:6; 60:1-5; Mal 4:2; cp. Lk 1:78-79).

1:7-8 On John as a witness to Jesus, see note at 5:31-47.

1:11 His own people did not receive Him refers to the Jewish people, the recipients of God's covenants, the law, and promises of a Messiah (Rm 9:4). Messiah's rejection by the Jews despite convincing proofs of His messiahship (esp. the "signs") is a major subject in the first half of John's Gospel (cp. 12:37).

1:12-13 Reference to children of God builds on the OT characterization of Israel as God's children (Dt 14:1; cp. Ex 4:22). Born, not of blood . . . but of God makes clear that true children of God come into being through faith in Messiah, not physical birth or ethnic descent (8:41-47; cp. 3:16). This opens the way for Gentiles to become God's children (11:51-52; cp. 10:16).

1:14 The Word continues the theme of 1:1. Became flesh does not mean the Word stopped being God; rather, the Word was made flesh. Took up residence among us literally means "pitched His tent" (Gk skenoo), an allusion to God's dwelling among the Israelites in the tabernacle (Ex 25:8-9; 33:7). In the past God demonstrated His presence to His people in the tabernacle and the temple. Now God has taken up residence among His people in the Word-made-flesh, Jesus Christ (Jn 1:17). The references to God's glory hark back to OT passages that describe the manifestation of God's presence and glory in theophanies (appearances of God), the tabernacle, or the temple (Ex 33:22; Nm 14:10; Dt

5:22). The Greek word monogenes underlying One and Only Son from the Father means "only child" (Jdg 11:34; Jr 6:26; Am 8:10; Zch 12:10). "Only" may mean "one of a kind," as in the case of Isaac, who is called Abraham's "one of a kind" son in Gn 22:2,12,16 (in contrast to Ishmael; cp. Heb 11:17). In the OT, the Son of David and Israel are called God's "firstborn" son (see Ps 89:27). The reference to God's "giving" of His "One and Only Son" in Jn 3:16,18 may allude to Abraham's willingness to sacrifice Isaac (Gn 22).

1:14 Full of grace and truth recalls "lovingkindness (Hb hesed) and truth (Hb emet)" in Ex 34:6 (cp. Ex 33:18-19), where the expression refers to God's covenant faithfulness to His people Israel. According to John, God's covenant faithfulness found ultimate expression in His sending of His One and Only Son, Jesus (see textual note at 1:14).

1:15 John the Baptist was six months older than Jesus (Lk 1:24,26), and he started his ministry earlier than Jesus (Lk 3:1-20). Usually, priority in time (such as being the firstborn) implied preeminence, but Jesus' preexistence overrode John's temporal precedence.

1:17 The contrast between the law and grace and truth is not that the law was bad and Jesus was good; rather, both the giving of the law and the coming of Jesus Christ mark stages in God's reaching out to humanity. Jesus, however, marks the final, definitive revelation of God's grace and truth. He is superior to Abraham (8:53), Jacob (4:12), and Moses (5:46-47; cp. 9:28).

1:18 The HCSB translation reads Son rather than "only God," which appears in many translations. Based on manuscript evidence, the Theos reading was judged to be an early transcriptional error in the Alexandrian manuscript tradition; hence the HCSB excludes it.

1:19-2:11 This introductory unit presents the first week of Jesus' ministry: Day 1, John's witness about Jesus (1:19-28); Day 2, John's encounter with Jesus (1:29-34); Day 3, John's referral of two of his disciples to Jesus (1:35-39); Day 4, Andrew's introduction of his brother Peter to Jesus (1:40-42); Day 5, the recruitment of Philip and Nathanael (1:43-51); and Day 7, the wedding at Cana (2:1-11). During this early stage Jesus was hailed by John the Baptist as the "Lamb of God" (1:29,36), gathered His first disciples, and performed His first "sign"—turning water into wine (2:11).

1:19-21 John denied being the Christ (cp. vv. 8,15; 3:28), Elijah, or the Prophet. "The Messiah" refers to the coming greater Son of David, predicted in the OT (2Sm 7:11-16; Hs 3:5). Elijah, who never died (2Kg 2:11), was expected to return in the end time (Mal 4:5) to "restore everything" (Mt 17:11; cp. Lk 1:17). John the Baptist resembled Elijah in his rugged lifestyle (Mt 3:4; cp. 2Kg 1:8) but denied being Elijah. Moses predicted the coming of "the Prophet" in Dt

18:15,18 (cp. Ac 3:22; 7:37), who was expected in Jesus' time (Jn 6:14; 7:40); John denied being this Prophet as well (though he was a prophet; see 10:40-41; Mt 11:11-14).

1:23 John was a voice . . . crying out in the wilderness: Make straight the way of the Lord in keeping with Isaiah's words (Is 40:3; cp. Mt 3:3; Mk 1:3; Lk 3:4). This messenger of God was to prepare the way for Yahweh's coming by preaching repentance and divine judgment. Isaiah's vision in Is 40-55 drew heavily on exodus typology and envisioned a new exodus of God's people in which God's glory would be revealed and His people delivered. This would be accomplished by the coming of the Servant of the Lord (see esp. Is 52:13-53:12).

1:28 John was baptizing at the Jordan River. Luke 3:1 places this event in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius (A.D. 14-37), or A.D. 29. John would have been about 33 years old. The Bethany across the Jordan (cp. 10:40) was probably not the village near Jerusalem where Lazarus was raised (cp. 11:1,18) but the region of Batanea in the northeast (called Bashan in the OT).

1:29 On the next day, see note at 2:1-2. John the Baptist's references to Jesus as the Lamb of God may echo the lamb led to the slaughter mentioned in Is 53:7. John may also have proclaimed Jesus as the apocalyptic warrior lamb who would bring judgment (Rv 5:6,12; 7:17; cp. Mt 3:7-12; Lk 3:7-17). Takes away the sin of the world refers to Jesus' sacrificial, substitutionary death, which appeased God's wrath against sin and sinners (1Jn 2:2; 4:10).

1:31 By I didn't know Him John probably meant that he did not know Jesus was the Messiah until he saw the sign from God mentioned in verses 32-33.

1:32-34 The Spirit did not just descend on Jesus, He rested on Him (cp. 3:34) —a sign of Jesus' divine anointing. In the OT, the Spirit came upon people to enable them to accomplish specific tasks. Isaiah predicted that Messiah would be full of the Spirit at all times (Is 11:2; 61:1; cp. Lk 4:18; see note at 5:31-47).

1:35 In 1:35-4:42 John narrated events that fell between Jesus' baptism and the start of His Gl ilean ministry. On the next day, see note at 2:1-2.

1:38 Rabbi (which means Teacher) is one of six instances where John translated an Aramaic term for his readers. The others are "Messiah" (Christ, v. 41; 4:25); "Cephas" (Peter, 1:42); "Siloam" (Sent, 9:7); "Thomas" (Didymus, "Twin"; 11:16; 20:24; 21:2); and "Place of the Skull" (Golgotha, 19:17).

1:40 Andrew was one of the two; the other disciple is not named. He was probably John, the son of Zebedee.

1:41 On Messiah . . . Anointed One, see note at verse 38.

1:42 Cephas is an Aramaic word meaning "rock" (cp. Mt 16:16-18; see note at Jn 1:38). In OT times, God frequently changed people's names to indicate their special calling.

1:43 On the next day, see note at 2:1-2. Jesus' calling of His disciples (follow Me) differed from customary practice. Usually it was a disciple who took the initiative to follow a rabbi (15:16).

1:44 Most likely, Andrew and Peter grew up in Bethsaida and later moved to Capernaum (Mk 1:29; cp. Mk 1:21), located only a few miles west. Similarly, Jesus was born in Bethlehem, grew up in Nazareth (Jn 1:45), and later moved to Capernaum (Mt 4:13).

1:45 Nathanael is also mentioned in 21:2. Nathanael may be the personal name of Bartholomew (Bar-Tholomaios = son of Tholomaios), who is linked with Philip in all three Synoptic lists (Mt 10:3; Mk 3:18; Lk 6:14). Philip's reference to the One Moses wrote about in the Law may allude to predictions of a coming prophet in Dt 18:15,18 (see note at Jn 1:19-21). The expression "the Law and the Prophets" commonly referred to the OT in its entirety (Mt 5:17; 7:12).

1:46 Nathanael, who hailed from the small village of Cana in Galilee (21:2; cp. 2:1-11), used something of a double standard when he displayed prejudice toward insignificant Nazareth. Nazareth was a small town of no more than 2,000 people.

1:48 Jesus displayed supernatural knowledge (I saw you), identifying Himself as Messiah.

1:49 Son of God and King of Israel are both messianic titles. "Son of God" identifies Jesus as the prophesied Messiah (2Sm 7:14; Ps 2:7); "King of Israel" likewise is a common OT designation for Messiah (Zph 3:15). The two terms also appear in Mt 27:42; Mk 15:32.

1:51 I assure you translates Hebrew amen, amen, a solemn affirmation emphasizing the authoritative nature of Jesus' pronouncement. The phrase appears 25 times in John's Gospel. Heaven opened and the angels of God ascending and descending recalls the story of Jacob in Gn 28:12-15. The greatness of the Son of Man will far surpass the vision of Jacob the patriarch (Jn 4:5-6,11-12). Jesus is the "new Bethel" where God is revealed, and the "new Israel." The expression Son of Man harks back to the mysterious figure of "One like a son of man" in Dn 7:13-14. The Son of Man would be "lifted up" by crucifixion (see note at Jn 3:14), provide divine revelation (6:27,53), and act with end-time authority (5:27; 9:39).

2:1-2 Third day is probably counted from Jesus' encounter with Nathanael. Cana of Galilee was later the site of Jesus' third sign ("the second sign" performed in Cana; 4:54). Jewish weddings were community events, a time of special focus not just on bride and groom but also on their extended families. Jesus' mother may have been a friend of the family, helping behind the scenes.

Jesus' disciples probably included the five mentioned in 1:35-51.

2:3 The wedding party's running out of wine ironically calls to mind the spiritual barrenness of first-century Judaism.

2:4 Jesus' use of woman to address His mother established a polite but firm distance between them, as did His question, What has this concern of yours to do with Me? On Jesus' hour has not yet come, cp. 7:6,8,30; 8:20. Because of misconceptions about the coming Messiah, Jesus chose not to reveal Himself openly to Israel (though He did perform numerous messianic "signs"; see note at 2:11). John portrayed Jesus as the "elusive Christ" via Jesus' pattern of occasional withdrawal (7:6-9; 10:40-41; 11:56-57), His realism about people's true motives (2:23-25), and His ability to elude His opponents when charged with blasphemy (7:44; 8:59; 10:39). Jesus remained elusive until His time finally arrived (12:23,27; 13:1; 16:32; 17:1).

2:5 Mary's instructions, Do whatever He tells you, recalls Pharaoh's instructions in Gn 41:55.

2:6 The number of jars (six) may indicate incompleteness since seven represented fullness. Since each contained 20 or 30 gallons, this added up to as much as 180 gallons. The Jewish purification ritual may have involved the washing of the guests' hands and certain utensils used at the wedding.

2:7 Filled them to the brim points to the abundance of Jesus' messianic provision (3:34).

2:9 The chief servant may have been the head waiter in charge of catering. He supervised the serving of food and drink, and employed several servants.

2:11 The fact that Jesus' turning of water into wine at the wedding is called the first sign in Cana of Galilee leads the reader to expect more signs to follow. The corresponding reference in 4:54 is to Jesus' healing of the royal official's son again while at Cana, "the second sign Jesus performed after He came from Judea to Galilee." Beyond this, Jesus' signs include the non-miraculous but prophetic temple clearing (2:13-22; one of Jesus' Judean signs; cp. v. 23; 3:2); His healing of a lame man (5:1-15); the feeding of the crowds (6:1-15); the healing of the man born blind (chap. 9); and the raising of Lazarus (chap. 11).

In each case, the emphasis is on the way the "sign" revealed Jesus' messianic nature (12:37-40; 20:30-31) and on the striking nature of the feat. These signs pointed unmistakably to Jesus as Messiah—whether it be the large quantity and high quality of wine (2:6,10); the short span required by Jesus to "rebuild" the temple (vv. 19-20); the long-distance healing of the royal official's son (4:47,49-50); the lame man's 38 years as an invalid (5:5); the abundance of food Jesus produced (6:13); the man's congenital blindness (9:1-2); or Lazarus's four days in the tomb (11:17,39). The phrases He displayed His glory, and His disciples believed in Him hark back to 1:14.

2:12 Jesus went down from Cana (in the hill country) to Capernaum (situated by the Sea of Galilee). Capernaum was about 15 miles northeast of Cana and could be reached in a day's journey. Capernaum served as Jesus' headquarters after John the Baptist's imprisonment (Mt 4:12-13; Lk 4:28-31; cp. Mt 9:1).

2:13-22 Jesus' first major confrontation with Jewish leaders in John's Gospel took place when He cleared the Jerusalem temple at Passover. The Synoptic Gospels record a later clearing, just before the crucifixion (Mk 11:15-19). By clearing the temple, Jesus displayed zeal for God's house (Jn 2:17; cp. Ps 69:9) and performed a sign of judgment on the Jewish leaders who had allowed worship to deteriorate into commerce. His action also prophetically foreshadowed His crucifixion and resurrection, which would establish Him as the new center of worship, replacing the old temple.

2:13 This is the first reference to a Jewish festival in John's Gospel and the first reference to Passover. Later, John referred to two more Passovers at 6:4 (Jesus in Galilee) and 11:55; 12:1 (Jesus' final Passover in Jerusalem). Beyond this, Mt 12:1 may refer to another Passover not recorded in John. If so, Jesus' ministry included four Passovers and extended over about three and one-half years, spanning from A.D. 29 to 33 (see note at Jn 1:28). Apart from these Passover references, John also mentioned Jesus' activities at an unnamed Jewish festival in 5:1 (possibly Tabernacles); at the Festival of Tabernacles (or Booths) in 7:2; and at the Festival of Dedication (or Hanukkah) in 10:22. People are described as traveling up to Jerusalem because it was located at a higher elevation than Galilee.

2:14 Temple complex (Gk hieron) denotes the area surrounding the temple, including the Court of the Gentiles, in distinction from the temple proper (Gk naos). Merchants (selling oxen, sheep, and doves) and money changers (exchanging idol-free coins for those tainted with pagan engravings) eased the logistical burden on pilgrims traveling to Jerusalem from afar by providing them with appropriate animals and coins for sacrifices and offerings. By conducting their business within the temple complex, however, they disrupted worship (esp. for Gentiles) and obstructed the temple's purpose.

2:17 Jesus' clearing of the temple reminded His disciples of the righteous sufferer in Ps 69:9. First-century Jews expected Messiah to purge and reconstitute the temple. Jesus was passionately concerned for the holiness and purity of God's house.

2:20 This sanctuary took 46 years to build seems to indicate that the reconstruction of the second temple had taken 46 years. Alternatively, it can be read: "This sanctuary was completed 46 years ago [and has stood since that time].” The Jews were amazed that Jesus claimed He could raise it up in three days, an impossibly short time. The misunderstanding is cleared up in verse 21.

2:22 The Scripture may be Ps 69:9 (cited in Jn 2:17). The statement Jesus had made refers to verse 19.

2:23-25 Trusted . . . would not entrust Himself is a wordplay in the original Greek. Jesus’ knowledge of people’s hearts was displayed in His encounters with Nicodemus and the Samaritan woman; see note at verse 4.

2:23-4:42 The bulk of chapters 3 and 4 is devoted to Jesus’ encounters with Nicodemus, a representative of the Jewish religious establishment, and an unnamed woman representing Samaritan religion. Interspersed are explanatory sections (3:16-21,31-36) and a vignette on John the Baptist (3:22-30). The encounters with Nicodemus and the Samaritan woman are a study in contrasts. Nicodemus’s status as a Sanhedrin member differs sharply from the lowly Samaritan woman who had a sinful past and present. Yet in both cases Jesus discerned deep spiritual need. He confronted Nicodemus about his need for regeneration and the woman about her sin.

3:1 Nicodemus was a common name in first-century Palestine. Ruler of the Jews refers to the Jewish governing body known as the Sanhedrin.

3:2 Nicodemus’s coming to Jesus at night may have negative overtones (“night” is probably negative in 13:30 but not in 21:3; see also the reference to the present event without apparent negative connotation in 19:39). Coming from a “teacher of Israel” (3:10), the address rabbi denoted respect, especially since it was known that Jesus did not have formal rabbinic training (7:15). The signs mentioned in John’s Gospel presumably included those performed in Jerusalem (2:23), possibly the temple clearing (cp. 2:18; see note at 2:11).

3:3-8 The discussion of the need for spiritual rebirth develops the reference to the “children of God” who are “born of God” in the prologue (1:12-13). On “children of God,” see 8:39-58 and 11:51-52. The phrase born of water and the Spirit probably refers to spiritual birth that cleanses from sin and brings spiritual transformation (Ezk 36:25-27). The kingdom of God, a major topic in the other Gospels, is mentioned by John only in verses 3,5 (see the reference to Jesus’ kingdom in 18:36).

3:7 You is plural, probably indicating Nicodemus and other Sanhedrin members (cp. vv. 1,11).

3:8 Jesus illustrated His pronouncement in verses 3-5 with an analogy between wind and a person born of the Spirit. Wind and Spirit translate the same Greek and Hebrew words (Gk pneuma; Hb ruach). While the wind’s origin is invisible, its effects can be observed; it is the same with those born of the Spirit.

3:10 Jesus may here be “returning the compliment” (see note at v. 2), though

He chastised Nicodemus for his lack of understanding.

3:13 Jesus' statement may allude to Pr 30:4. Only Jesus descended from heaven and returned there (Lk 24:51; Ac 1:9).

3:14 The reference to the Son of Man being lifted up is the first of three "lifted up" sayings in John (8:28;12:32). All three speak of the future "lifting up" of the Son of Man in double meaning (possibly inspired by the language of Is 52:13). The reference in this verse invokes Moses' lifting up of a serpent in the wilderness so that everyone who had been bitten by a poisonous snake and looked at the serpent in faith was healed (Nm 21:8-9). The third and final "lifted up" saying (Jn 12:32) emphasizes that the lifting up of the Son of Man refers to Jesus' crucifixion (cp. 12:33 and the similar reference to Peter's martyrdom in 21:19).

3:16-18 God, out of love, gave His One and Only Son (cp. 1:14,18), so that everyone who believes in Him will have eternal life (see notes at 5:26 and 14:6). John's favorite designation for Jesus is the Son sent by the Father (3:34-36; 5:19-26; 6:40; 8:35-36; 14:13; 17:1), imagery taken from the Jewish concept of the shaliach (messenger), according to which the sent one is like the sender himself and faithfully pursues the sender's interests (13:16,20). Jesus is that "Sent One" par excellence (9:7), and He in turn sends His disciples (see note at 20:21-22). Being sent implies that the commission, charge, and message are issued by the sender rather than originating with the ones sent. The messengers' role is to fulfill their commission according to their sender's will.

3:19-21 On Jesus as the light, see note at 8:12.

3:22 Jesus left the vicinity of Jerusalem and headed to the Judean countryside. In 4:3, Jesus left Judea altogether, returning to Galilee (2:12) by way of Samaria.

3:26 On John the Baptist as a witness to Jesus, see note at 5:31-47.

3:28 John's assertion that he had been sent ahead of the Messiah may allude to Mal 3:1 (cp. Mt 11:10; Mk 1:2; Lk 7:27).

3:29 John's reference to Jesus as the groom (cp. Mt 9:15) identified Jesus as Israel's long-awaited King and Messiah. In the OT, Israel is frequently depicted as God's "bride" (Is 62:4-5; Jr 2:2; Hs 2:16-20). John's role was that of the groom's friend, who selflessly rejoiced with the groom (1:6-9,15,19-36).

3:30 John the Baptist downplayed his disciples' concerns expressed in verse 26. Now that the Light had come (1:6-9), the "lamp" had done its work (see note at 5:35).

3:33 Has affirmed (Gk sphragizo) means literally "to seal" in the sense of confirming or authenticating something as true (see note at 6:27-29).

3:34 On Jesus as the recipient of God's Spirit, see note at 1:32-34 (see also Rv 3:1; 5:6).

3:36 Has eternal life indicates that eternal life is not just a future expectation but is already a present experience. The wrath of God remains on him makes it clear that unless a person believes in Jesus the Messiah, he remains under God's judgment (vv. 19-21).

4:1-42 Jesus' encounter with the Samaritan woman took place by divine necessity (v. 4). Unlike Nicodemus, the woman progressed in her understanding. She viewed Him first as a Jew (v. 9), then as someone who could make her life easier (v. 15), then as a prophet (v. 19), and then possibly as Messiah (v. 29). The woman's fellow townspeople concluded that Jesus was the Savior of the world (v. 42).

4:1 The Pharisees had investigated John the Baptist's credentials (1:19,24); now they were looking into those of Jesus.

4:2 John the evangelist, author of this Gospel, here clarified the earlier statement in 3:26.

4:3 On Jesus going from Judea to Galilee, see note at 3:22.

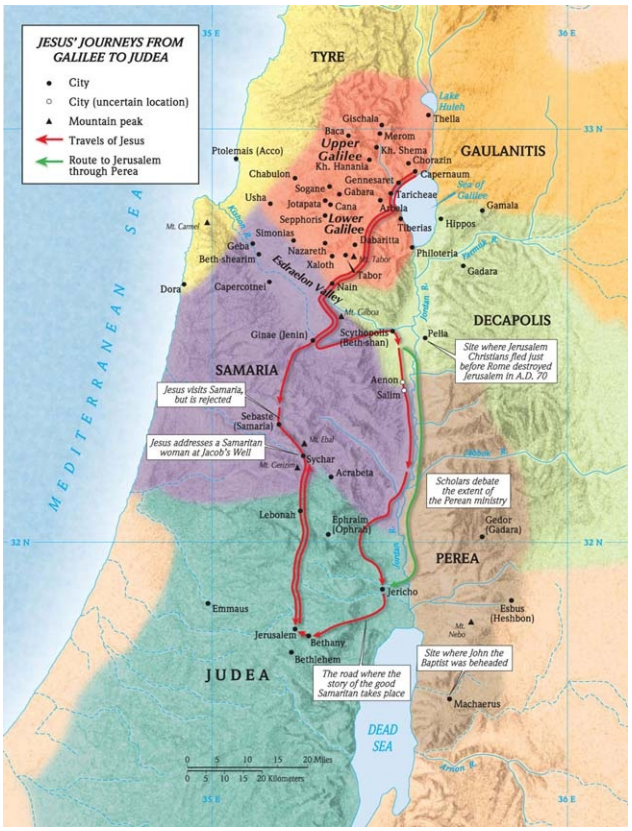
4:4 Had to travel may indicate that Jesus' itinerary was set by the sovereign plan of God (9:4; 10:16; 12:34; 20:9). Through Samaria was the most direct route from Judea to Galilee, but strict Jews, wishing to avoid defilement, bypassed Samaria by taking a longer, less direct route. This involved crossing the Jordan River and traveling across from Samaria on the eastern side of the river.

4:5 Sychar was located just east of Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal. The reference to the property that Jacob had given his son Joseph reflects the customary inference from Gn 48:21-22 and Jos 24:32 that Jacob gave his son Joseph the land at Shechem which he had bought from the sons of Hamor (Gn 33:18-19) and which later served as Joseph's burial place (Ex 13:19; Jos 24:32).

4:6 Jesus was worn out from His journey. This underscores His genuine, full humanity.

4:8 Jesus and His disciples usually carried little or nothing to eat on their journeys. Rather, they brought money to buy provisions along the way (12:6; 13:29). Purchasing food was a common assignment given to disciples. Jesus did not fear being defiled by food bought in a Samaritan village.

4:9 The author's aside that Jews do not associate with Samaritans explained to his Diaspora readership that rabbis considered Samaritans to be in a continual state of uncleanness.



4:10-15 The references to Jesus as the giver of living water involve double meaning (see notes at 3:3-8 and 3:14). Literally, the phrase refers to fresh spring water (Gn 26:19; Lv 14:6). God was known as the source of life (Gn 1:11-12,20-31; 2:7) and "the spring of living water" (Jr 2:13; see Is 12:3). In Nm 20:8-11, water gushed out of the rock, a much-needed provision for the Israelites.

4:11 Jacob's well may have been the deepest well in Palestine. It is more than 100 feet deep today and was probably deeper in Jesus' day.

4:12 The woman's account of Jacob giving the Samaritans the well and drinking from it himself was based on tradition, not Scripture. The book of Genesis does not record Jacob digging a well, drinking from it, and giving it to his sons.

4:14 The phrase will become a well of water springing up within him is reminiscent of Is 12:3 (cp. Is 44:3; 55:1-3).

4:17 While technically truthful, the woman's statement was potentially misleading because it could be taken to imply that she was unattached. Jesus knew the full truth.

4:18 The woman had had five husbands—or five "men" (the Gk aner can mean "husband" or "man")—having engaged in a series of illicit relationships, and she was not married to her current lover. Sexual relations outside of marriage are forbidden in both Testaments.

4:19 The woman recognized that Jesus knew her life circumstances without apparently having been told by anyone—hence He must be a prophet (cp. Lk 7:39).

4:20-21 The fathers who worshiped on this mountain—a reference to Mount Gerizim (Dt 11:29; 27:12), the OT setting for the pronouncement of blessings for keeping the covenant, and the mountain on which Moses commanded an altar to be built (Dt 27:4-6)—included Abraham (Gn 12:7) and Jacob (Gn 33:20), who built altars in this region.

4:24 Because God is spirit, the Israelites were not to make idols "in the shape of anything" as the surrounding nations did (Ex 20:4). Jesus' point was that since God is Spirit, proper worship of Him is also a matter of spirit rather than physical location.

4:25 On Christ as a title of Jesus, see note at 1:38.

4:27 The disciples' amazement that Jesus was talking with a woman stemmed from the common Jewish teaching that talking too much to a woman, even one's wife, was a waste of time, diverting one's attention from the study of Scripture and reflection on God.

4:28 The woman's water jar was probably a large earthenware pitcher carried on the shoulder or hip. She abandoned her original purpose for coming to the well in order to tell her townspeople about Jesus.

4:29 Who told me everything I ever did was an exaggeration —but understandable in light of her excitement. See note at verse 39.

4:31 Rabbi, eat something reflected the disciples' customary concern for their Master's well-being. Jesus had been worn out from His journey before His conversation with the Samaritan woman (see note at v. 6). He still had not had anything to eat.

4:32-34 The accomplishment of Jesus' mission was more important to Him than physical food (Mt 6:25; Mk 3:20-21). His statement may echo Dt 8:3 (cp. Mt 4:4; Lk 4:4). On Jesus' work, see note at 17:4.

4:35 In agriculture there is always a considerable separation in time between sowing and harvesting. The disciples needed to realize that with the coming of Jesus, sowing (preaching) and reaping (conversions) coincided. The immediate reference may be to the approaching Samaritans (vv. 39-42).

4:36 This saying is reminiscent of Am 9:13, which depicted the prosperity of the new age. Hence Jesus claimed that He was ushering in the messianic age, a time of swift, abundant harvest.

4:37 This saying may allude to Mc 6:15, "You will sow but not reap." Yet Jesus' adaptation left judgment unmentioned. The others who had labored were Jesus and His predecessors, most recently John the Baptist, the final prophet associated with the OT era. Jesus' followers were the beneficiaries of their work and would bring in the harvest.

4:39 That town refers to Sychar (see note at v. 5). Though people would naturally be skeptical about religious pronouncements made by an immoral woman such as this Samaritan, her sincerity (and perhaps a noticeable change in her morality) convinced her townspeople to take her seriously as she spoke about Jesus.

4:40 Jesus obviously did not share in the Jewish bias against Samaritans since He spent two days with them (see notes at vv. 4 and 9).

4:41-42 As others had done (1:40-41,45), the woman brought people to Jesus so they could see for themselves. Ultimately, it was on the basis of a personal encounter with Jesus that they believed. His large harvest among the Samaritans marked the first sign of the universal scope of His saving mission (10:16; 11:51-52). The early church also undertook a Samaritan mission (Ac 8:4-25; cp. Ac 1:8). In fact, the pattern of Jesus' mission from Judea (Nicodemus, Jn 3), to Samaria (Jn 4), to the Gentiles (vv. 46-54; cp. 12:20-33), anticipated the post-Pentecost mission of the early church (Ac 1:8).

4:43-54 The healing of the royal official's son completes the "Cana cycle" in John's Gospel, which spans from 2:1 to 4:54 and begins and ends with a "sign" performed by Jesus in Cana of Galilee (2:11; 4:54; see note at 2:11). The present sign is a rare instance of a long-distance healing performed by Jesus. The story resembles that of the Gentile centurion in Mt 8:5-13 and Lk 7:2-10, but this is not the same incident. All three signs featured in the Cana cycle (the turning of water into wine, the temple clearing, and the healing of the royal official's son) set forth Jesus as the Messiah, who showed convincing proofs of His divine commission.

4:43 Jesus left there [Sychar] and entered Galilee. From Sychar to Cana was about 40 miles, a trip of two or three days.

4:44 On a prophet's lack of honor in his own country, compare Mt 13:57; Lk 4:24.

4:45 Jesus' Gl ilean welcome must be understood in light of verses 44 and 48 (cp. 2:23-25).

4:46 The royal official was probably a Gentile centurion, possibly in service to Herod Antipas (Mk 6:14). His son's illness involved fever (Jn 4:52) and appears to have been terminal (vv. 47,49).

4:47 The distance from Capernaum to Cana was about 15 miles. The journey was mostly uphill (see note at 2:12). Conversely, from Cana Jesus would come down to Capernaum.

4:48 The expression signs and wonders probably harks back to the series of miracles performed by Moses at the exodus. Jesus rebuked people for their dependence on the miraculous; for John, miracles were "signs" pointing to Jesus' messianic identity (see note at 2:11).

4:49-50 This is a rare instance of a long-distance miracle. A similar incident is described in Mt 8:5-13 and Lk 7:1-10. The words your son will live may recall Elijah's statement in 1Kg 17:23. If so, Jesus' messianic activity is compared with the healing ministry of Elijah (Lk 4:23-27).

4:54 The second sign refers to signs done in Cana (see note at 2:11); in the interim, Jesus had performed signs in Jerusalem (2:23; 3:2; 4:45). Thus John closed the cycle of Jesus' first ministry circuit, starting and ending in Cana of Galilee (see note at vv. 43-54).

5:1-47 The "festival cycle" in John's Gospel spans from 5:1 to 10:42 and is characterized by escalating conflict between Jesus and the Jewish authorities. This cycle begins with yet another sign—Jesus' healing of a lame man at a feast in Jerusalem (see note at 2:11). The fact that the healing took place on a Sabbath provoked a major controversy. Jesus was accused of breaking the law by telling the man to pick up his mat (5:8-10). The controversy escalated to the point where the Jewish leaders charged Jesus with blasphemy for claiming to continue the work of God (v. 18). This provided an occasion for Jesus to defend His ministry and enumerate evidences for His identity.

5:1 After this marks the passing of an indefinite period of time. Up to a year and a half may have passed after the last recorded festival, the Passover, when Jesus cleared the temple and met with Nicodemus. The unnamed Jewish festival may have been the Feast of Tabernacles. On Jesus went up to Jerusalem, see note at 2:13.

5:2 Bethesda may mean "house of mercy," a fitting term given the desperate state of the people who lay there hoping for a miraculous cure; see note at 1:38.

5:3 Most likely official Judaism did not approve of the superstition associated with the alleged healing powers of the pool of Bethesda (see note at v. 7).

5:5 Sick probably means "paralyzed" or "lame" here (the Gk word expresses "disabled"). We do not know the invalid's age or how long he had been lying there, but he had been crippled for 38 years, which is longer than many people in antiquity lived and roughly as long as Israel's wilderness wanderings (Dt 2:14). On John's penchant for selecting "difficult" and striking miracles, see note at 2:11. For a similar healing, see Mt 9:1-8.

5:6 Knew probably indicates supernatural knowledge (see notes at 1:48 and 4:19). Jesus' conversation with the man may have been occasioned by his request for alms (Ac 3:1-5).

5:7 Superstition attributed the stirring of the water to the actions of an angel

(see the addition of v. 4 in some later mss).

5:8-9 A mat (Gk krabattos; as distinguished from "bed," Gk klinarion, e.g., Ac 5:15) was the poor man's bedding. Made of straw, it could be rolled up and carried. We are not told this day was the Sabbath until the miracle was performed. This sets the context for the tensions with the unbelieving Jews (cp. 9:14).

5:10 In a petty display of religious legalism, the Jewish leaders objected to the man's picking up his mat on the Sabbath. While not actually breaking any biblical Sabbath regulations, the man was violating a rabbinical code that prohibited the carrying of an object "from one domain into another" (m. Sabb . 7:2). Hence Jesus was accused of enticing the man to sin.

5:14 Jesus met the man again in the temple complex (see note at 2:14), a short distance from the site of his healing. Jesus' words may imply that the man's suffering was due to sin but do not suggest that all suffering is caused by personal sin (see note at 9:2). Something worse may refer to eternal judgment for sin (vv. 22-30).

5:17 While Gn 2:2-3 teaches that God rested (Hb shabath) on the seventh day of creation, Jewish rabbis agreed that God continually upheld the universe, yet without breaking the Sabbath. If God was above Sabbath regulations, so was Jesus (Mt 12:1-14). What is more, even the Jews made exceptions to the rule prohibiting work on the Sabbath, most notably in cases where circumcision occurred on a Sabbath (Jn 7:23).

5:18 Making Himself equal with God seemed to violate the OT teaching that there is only one God (Dt 6:4). Thus the Jewish leaders accused Jesus of blasphemy, which became the primary charge leveled against Jesus before Pilate (Jn 19:7).

5:19-26 On Jesus' relationship to the Father in these verses, see note at 3:16-18.

5:19 Jesus' claim that the Son is not able to do anything on His own echoes Moses' affirmation that "the Lord sent me to do all these things and that it was not of my own will" (Nm 16:28).

5:21 Jesus' statement that the Son also gives life to anyone He wants is significant since raising the dead and giving life are the prerogatives of God alone (Dt 32:39; 1Sm 2:6; 2Kg 5:7).

5:22 Like life (v. 21), judgment is the exclusive prerogative of God (Gn 18:25; Jdg 11:27).

5:23 Jesus characterized Himself as God's authorized messenger. This is similar to Moses and the prophets, who served as God's agents and spokesmen. Of designated messengers (Hb shaliach), Jews held that "a man's agent is like the man himself" (m. Ber . 5:5). The statement so that all people will honor the Son just as they honor the Father in effect established Jesus' right to be worshiped and amounted to a claim of deity.

5:25 Jesus' words are reminiscent of Ezekiel's vision of the valley of dry bones (Ezk 37).

5:26 The claim that Jesus had life in Himself echoes the affirmation in the prologue of John's Gospel that "life was in Him [Jesus]" (1:4; see note at 14:6). It is further supported by Jesus' statement, "I am the resurrection and the life" (11:25). Because He is "the life" and has life in Himself, Jesus is able to give life (abundant life now; eternal life in the future) to all who place their trust in Him (3:16; 10:10).

5:27 Because He is the Son of Man echoes Dn 7:13.

5:28-29 Compare these verses with Dn 12:2.

5:30 On I can do nothing on My own, see notes at verses 19 and 23.

5:31-47 Jesus spoke of several witnesses who bore testimony about Him: John the Baptist (vv. 32-36; cp. 1:7-8,15,19,32-34; 3:26); His own works (5:36; cp. 10:25,32,37-38; 15:24); God the Father (5:37-38; 8:18); and the Scriptures (5:39), particularly those written by Moses (vv. 45-47). Elsewhere in this Gospel, reference is made to the witness of Jesus Himself (3:11,32; 8:14,18; 18:37), the Spirit (chaps. 14-16, esp. 15:26), the disciples (15:27), and the fourth evangelist (19:35; 21:24). The "witness" theme in John's Gospel is part of a larger "trial motif." This reverses the world's perspective of Jesus being put on trial. It becomes clear that it is really the world, not Jesus, that is on trial, with a multitude of witnesses bearing testimony to His true identity as Messiah. This section also emphasizes the world's guilt for rejecting Jesus.

5:31 Jesus did not deny His reliability. He was alluding to the importance of having multiple witnesses (Dt 17:6; 19:15; cp. Nm 35:30).

5:32 Jesus was speaking of God the Father (v. 37) when He said, There is Another who testifies about Me. Avoiding God's name was a common way of showing reverence.

5:33 On Jesus as the truth, see note at 14:6 and the echo of this passage before Pilate (18:37). Compare 3Jn 3,12.

5:35 Jesus' characterization of John the Baptist as a burning and shining lamp seems to echo Ps 132:17 where God will "set up a lamp" for His Anointed One. John was a "lamp" but not the Light (Jn 1:7-9); his witness was comparatively small and temporary. The past tense may imply that John was now dead or imprisoned. See notes at 3:29 and 3:30.

5:37 The Father . . . has Himself testified may refer to the voice at Jesus' baptism (Mt 3:17), a passage not explicitly mentioned in John, though the primary reference may be to God's witness in Scripture (Jn 5:45-47; cp. Lk 24:27,44; Ac 13:27; 1Jn 5:9). Jesus' affirmation that His hearers had not heard God's voice or seen His form (cp. 1:18) seems to allude to wilderness Israel, which received the law at Mount Sinai without hearing God's voice or seeing His form.

5:38 Have His word living in you recalls the depiction of a God-fearing person who has the word of God living in his heart (Jos 1:8-9; Ps 119:11).

5:39 Scripture itself does not impart life, but it witnesses to the One who does —Jesus (cp. vv. 46-47).

5:43 Jesus predicted the proliferation of false Christs as a sign of the end times (Mt 24:5). The first-century Jewish historian Josephus reported a string of messianic pretenders in the years before A.D. 70.

5:45-47 Jesus' appeal to Moses prepares the way for chapter 6, where Jesus is presented as the new Moses providing the new "bread from heaven." The reference to Moses as a witness or accuser against the Jews may allude to Dt 31:26-27 where the law was invoked as a witness against the Israelites. The reference to Moses writing about Jesus in Jn 5:46 may allude to the Pentateuch (attributed to Moses) or to the prediction of a "prophet like" Moses in Dt 18:15.

6:1-71 The feeding of the crowds (cp. Mt 14:13-23; Mk 6:30-44; Lk 9:10-17) is yet another of Jesus' messianic "signs" (see note at Jn 2:11), aligning Jesus with God's provision of manna to wilderness Israel through Moses (6:30-31). In response to the people's demand that He perform a sign greater than Moses' signs at the exodus, Jesus claimed to be the "bread of life" that provides spiritual nourishment for all who believe in Him (eat and drink of Him). This controversial statement proved to be a watershed moment in Jesus' ministry, because many of His followers abandoned Him at this point (vv. 60-66). But the Twelve, through Peter their spokesman, reaffirmed their allegiance (vv. 68-69).

6:1 After this again indicates the passing of an indefinite period of time (5:1). Half a year may have passed since the previous event. Sea of Tiberias (cp. 21:1) was an alternate name for the Sea of Galilee. Herod Antipas founded Tiberias, the largest city on the Sea of Galilee, in honor of his patron, the Roman emperor Tiberius (A.D. 14-37). The name gained currency toward the end of the first century.

6:3 Mountain may not refer to a specific mountain. It could designate the hill country east of the lake, known today as the Golan Heights (Mt 14:23; Mk 6:46). Like other rabbis, Jesus sat down to teach (Mt 5:1; Mk 4:1; 9:35; Lk 4:20), although teaching is not mentioned here.

6:4 This is the second of three Passovers mentioned by John, and the only one Jesus spent in Galilee (see note at 2:13).

6:5 The huge crowd apparently walked several miles around the north side of the lake and caught up with Jesus and the disciples. Philip would be the natural choice for Jesus' question since he, like Andrew (v. 8) and Peter, was a native of nearby Bethsaida (see note at 1:44). Jesus' question echoes Moses' query in the wilderness: "Where can I get meat to give all these people?" (Nm 11:13). Other parallels between Jn 6 and Nm 11 are the people's grumbling (Nm 11:1; Jn 6:41,43); the description of the manna (Nm 11:7-9; Jn 6:31); the reference to the eating of meat/Jesus' "flesh" (Nm 11:13; Jn 6:51); and the overabundance of the provision (Nm 11:22; Jn 6:7-9).

6:9 Boy may refer to a kid, a teenager, or even someone in his early twenties. The same word is used to refer to young Joseph in Gn 37:30 and Daniel and his friends in Dn 1. Barley was common food for the poor (the well-to-do preferred wheat bread); the fish were probably dried or preserved, perhaps pickled. In a similar account, Elisha fed 100 men with 20 barley loaves (2Kg 4:42-44).

6:10 The men numbered about 5,000, plus women and children (Mt 14:21), totaling perhaps as many as 15,000 people. Plenty of grass may allude to the messianic age (10:9-10; Ps 23:2). Mark (Mk 6:39-40) mentioned that the grass was green, which points to springtime.

6:11 A common Jewish thanksgiving prayer was, "Blessed are you, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who brings forth bread from the earth."

6:12 Jesus' words echo Ruth 2:14:"She ate and was satisfied and had some left over." Jesus took the same care in providing for those whom the Father gave Him (Jn 10:28-29; 17:11-12,15).

6:13 The number of baskets may allude to Jesus' symbolic restoration of the 12 tribes of Israel.

6:14 The reference to the Prophet who was to come into the world alludes to Dt 18:15,18 (see notes at Jn 1:19-21 and 7:40-41).

6:15 On Jesus' withdrawal to the mountain, see note at v. 3.

6:16-24 Jesus' walking across the Sea of Galilee may echo Job 9:8 (LXX) where God is said to walk on the waters.

6:16-17 The disciples were on the eastern side of the lake, and they ventured to row the six or seven miles back across the sea to Capernaum on the western side.

6:19 They had rowed about three or four miles. If the feeding of the crowd occurred on the eastern shore, the shortest distance to Capernaum would have been five to six miles.

6:20 It is I may have overtones of epiphany (cp. Ex 3:14; see note at Jn

6:35,48). The statement may allude to Ps 77:16,19, describing God's manifestation to Israel during the exodus.

6:21 The reference to the boat reaching the shore at once may allude to Ps 107:23-32 (esp. 6:29-30).

6:23-24 Tiberias was and is the chief city on the western side of the lake (see note at v. 1). Whereas Capernaum was located on the northwestern edge of the lake, Tiberias is several miles to the south.

6:25 On the other side of the sea refers to the area in or around Capernaum (see note at vv. 23-24; cp. v. 59).

6:27-29 People misunderstood Jesus' statement and asked about the works God required. Jesus said the only "work" required by God is faith in Messiah. On seal of approval, see note at 3:33.

6:30 Again, the people misunderstood. They demanded a sign as evidence of Jesus' claims (cp. 1Co 1:22). Jesus pointed to the significance of the "sign" He had just performed—the feeding of the crowd (cp. 2:18). This revealed people's stubbornness, which led many of Jesus' disciples to leave (6:60-66) and prompted John to indict the Jews for unbelief at the close of Jesus' public ministry (12:37-40).

6:31 This verse links exodus and Passover motifs with Jesus as the Prophet like Moses and the expectation that God would again provide manna in the messianic age. The OT reference seems to involve several passages, with Ps 78:23-24 being most prominent (Ex 16:4,15; Neh 9:15; Ps 105:40).

6:35, 48 I am the bread of life is the first of Jesus' seven "I am" sayings in John. Subsequently He said He is "the light of the world" (8:12; 9:5); "the door" of the sheep (10:7,9); the "good shepherd" (10:11,14); "the resurrection and the life" (11:25); "the way, the truth, and the life" (14:6); and "the true vine" (15:1). Apart from these sayings, there are statements where Jesus referred to Himself as "I am" (6:20; 8:24,28,58; 18:5), a clear allusion to God's identification as "I am" (Ex 3:14).

6:37 , 44 Jesus affirmed the twin themes of election and perseverance of the saints, prominent topics in John's Gospel. Those predestined by God will come to Jesus, and Jesus will preserve His own. No one can come to Jesus apart from the Father's drawing him. These themes continue in the Good Shepherd discourse (10:28-29) and Jesus' final prayer (17:6,9,11-12).

6:40 On Jesus' promise of eternal life, see note at 3:16-18.

6:41 , 43 The references to the complaining of the Jews highlights the parallel between Jews of Jesus' day and wilderness Israel (cp. Ex 16:2,8-9; Nm 11:4-23; see note at Jn 6:5). The Israelites complained about the first giver of bread, Moses. Now they griped against the second giver, Jesus.

6:42 People showed no awareness of Jesus' virginal conception (Mt 1:18-25). They objected to Jesus' claim of descent from heaven since He was clearly human and was, they believed, conceived in the standard way (4:44).

6:44 On the "raising up" ministry of Jesus, see note at 12:32.

6:45 Citing Is 54:13, Jesus affirmed that, while His ministry fulfilled the prophetic vision that one day all people would be taught by God, this applied only to those who were drawn by the Father and who came to believe in Jesus as Messiah.

6:53 The Hebrew idiom "flesh and blood" refers to the total person.

6:63 Unaided by the Spirit, human reason cannot discern spiritual truth. The Jews wrongly believed study of Scripture (see note at 5:39) and doing "works of the law" (see note at 6:27-29) were sufficient for spiritual understanding.

6:68 Who will we go to may refer to transferring allegiance to another rabbi (cp. 1:35-37).

6:69 Peter's confession of Jesus as the Holy One of God anticipates later references to Jesus being set apart for God (10:36; 17:19). In the OT, God was called "the Holy One of Israel" (Ps 71:22; Is 43:3; 54:5). See similar confessions of Jesus in Mt 16:16; Mk 8:29; Lk 9:20.

6:70 This is the first reference to the Twelve in John's Gospel. Their existence and appointment are assumed from the testimony in the Synoptic Gospels. See notes at 1:43 and 15:16.

6:71 Judas, Simon Iscariot's son, likely was the only non-Galilean among the Twelve.

7:1-8 : 59 On the heels of the unbelief of many disciples (6:60-66), chapter 7 opens with the unbelief of Jesus' brothers and closes with the unbelief of the Jewish leaders (7:45-52). Chapters 7 and 8 convey Jesus' teaching at the Feast of Tabernacles in Jerusalem. Jesus' teaching is given in two cycles (7:10-24,37-39; 8:12-30), climaxing in His invitation to all who are thirsty to come to Him and drink. Once the Spirit was given, believers conveyed "streams of living water" (7:37-38). The second cycle begins with Jesus' startling affirmation that He is the "light of the world."

7:1 Galilee (under the jurisdiction of Herod Antipas) was safer than Judea (under the Roman prefect) for Jesus since the Jews were trying to kill Him.

7:2 The Jewish Festival of Tabernacles was celebrated in September or October, two months before the Feast of Dedication (see note at 10:22). It was also called the "Feast of Booths," because people temporarily lived in booths to remember God's faithfulness during Israel's wilderness wanderings (Lv 23:42-43; cp. Mt 17:4). See note at 2:13.

7:3-4 Jesus' brothers were naturally born sons of Mary. Their names were

James, Joseph, Judas, and Simon (Mt 13:55 and Mk 6:3). Their poor advice stemmed from unbelief (Jn 7:5) and revealed a fundamental misunderstanding of Jesus' messianic identity (Mt 4:5-7).

7:6-10 On My time has not yet arrived, see note at 2:4. In 7:8, Jesus stated, I'm not going up to the festival yet. In verse 10, we learn that He also went up, not openly but secretly (see note at v. 1). It surprises many readers to realize that Jesus used craft and subterfuge to combat opposition and false expectations.

7:12 The charge that Jesus was deceiving the people may hark back to Dt 13:1-11 (cp. Mt 27:63; Lk 23:2). Later Jewish literature called Jesus a deceiver.

7:13 The phrase they feared the Jews (cp. 9:22; 19:38; 20:19) refers to Jerusalem authorities represented by the Sanhedrin (see note at 3:1).

7:14 On the temple complex, see note at 2:14.

7:15 The Jews may include Judean crowds and Jewish authorities. Jesus lacked formal rabbinic training (as did His disciples; Ac 4:13), but His teaching and authority came from God (Jn 7:16; 8:28; cp. Mt 5:21-26; 7:28-29).

7:16 Unlike other rabbis, Jesus claimed direct knowledge from God (8:28).

7:18-19 Jesus as authoritative source contrasted Himself with vain, false prophets (Dt 18:9-22). The Jews were proud of the fact that Moses had given them the law (cp. 9:28; Rm 2:17; 9:4).

7:20 This is one of several instances where Jesus was charged with demon possession (8:48; 10:20; Mt 12:24); the same charge was leveled against John the Baptist (Mt 11:18). Other charges against Jesus included breaking the Sabbath (Jn 5:16,18; 9:16), blasphemy (5:18; 8:58-59; 10:31,33,39; 19:7), deceiving the people (7:12,47), being a Samaritan (i.e., apostate, 8:48), madness (10:20), and criminal activity (18:30).

7:21 The one work Jesus referred to was probably the healing in 5:1-15.

7:22 Circumcision was given by the fathers (i.e., Abraham; Gn 17:9-14) and Moses (Ex 12:44,48-49; Lv 12:3). Jesus' argument was "from the lesser to the greater." The Jews were to circumcise their males on the eighth day even if that day fell on the Sabbath (the "lesser" issue). If "perfecting" one part of a human body on the Sabbath was legitimate, how much more the healing of an entire person?

7:24 Jesus' statement about judging may allude to Lv 19:15 (cp. Dt 16:18-19; Is 11:3-4; Zch 7:9).

7:25-44 The next three scenes (vv. 25-31,32-36,37-44) center on the question, "Is Jesus the Christ?" Representative queries (in some cases involving misunderstanding) from the crowd serve as foils for dealing with this issue (vv. 27,31,42), in turn focusing on the supposedly unknown origins of Messiah, His performance of signs, and Bethlehem as Messiah's birthplace.

7:26 The authorities probably refers to the Sanhedrin (v. 48; 12:42; see notes at 3:1 and 7:13).

7:27 Some rabbis taught that Messiah would be wholly unknown until He set out to procure salvation for Israel. Others felt His birthplace was foreknown (v. 42; cp. Mt 2:1-6).

7:28 On the temple complex, see note at 2:14.

7:30 On Jesus' ability to elude His enemies, see note at 2:4.

7:31 Since Messiah would be a prophet like Moses (Dt 18:15,18) and Moses performed many miraculous signs at the exodus (Ex 7-11), Messiah was expected to perform miracles as well (see notes at Jn 6:30 and 6:31). It would have been natural for people to wonder, after witnessing Jesus' miracles, if He was the Messiah.

7:32 The chief priests and the Pharisees, representing the Sanhedrin, deployed the temple police to arrest Jesus. The police were drawn from the Levites and were charged with maintaining order in the temple precincts. The arrest of Jesus implied that He was a criminal (but see note at vv. 45-52). The leaders hoped this would discourage people from following Him.

7:33 Six months after Jesus issued this prediction, He was crucified.

7:35 People misunderstood Jesus' statement in verse 34. Ever since the exile, many Jews had not returned to Palestine but continued to live in the Dispersion (Gk diaspora). Greeks is synonymous with "Gentiles."

7:37 While verse 14 referred to the festival being "already half over," this was now the last and greatest day of the Feast of Tabernacles. Jesus' invitation harks back to OT prophetic passages such as Is 55:1 (see Is 12:3).

7:38-39 Streams of living water flowing from deep within Jesus' followers fulfill the end-time blessings predicted in the OT. John noted in verse 39 that these streams are emblematic of the Spirit, who would be given after Jesus' exaltation with the Father (20:22).

7:40-41 The Prophet is the figure referred to in Dt 18:15-18 (see note at Jn 1:19-21; cp. 6:14). This "Prophet" and the Messiah were thought to be different persons by some first-century Jews, but Jesus turned out to be both.

7:42 Bethlehem, south of Jerusalem in the heart of Judea, was foretold as Messiah's birthplace in Mc 5:2 (cp. Mt 2:5-6; see note at Jn 7:27). As David's city (1Sm 16:1,4; 20:6), Bethlehem had important messianic implications. In this verse the irony is apparent. Some people, knowing that Jesus hailed from Galilee, objected that Messiah was to be born in Bethlehem, not realizing that Bethlehem was in fact Jesus' birthplace.

7:44 On the right time for Jesus' death and resurrection, see note at 2:4.

7:45-52 The Sanhedrin's meeting highlighted the increasing threat that Jesus' popularity represented for the Jewish leadership. But Nicodemus's plea for fairness shows that the Sanhedrin was not yet united in opposition against Jesus.

7:45 On the attempt to arrest Jesus, see note at verse 32.

7:46 The temple police heard many people teach in the temple courts, but they recognized Jesus' teaching as unique (Mt 7:28-29; see note at Jn 7:15).

7:48 Rulers probably refers to members of the Sanhedrin (see note at 3:1).

7:49 The disparaging reference to this crowd, which doesn't know the law reveals the arrogant contempt many rabbis had for the unschooled masses.

7:50 Jesus' previous encounter with Nicodemus is described in 3:1-15.

7:51 Old Testament law charged judges to investigate accusations fairly (Dt 1:16) and thoroughly (Jn 17:4; 19:18). Nicodemus's plea for fairness was later duplicated by the rabbi Gamaliel (Ac 5:34-39).

7:52 Contrary to the Pharisees' implication, prophets occasionally did arise from Galilee. These included Jonah (2Kg 14:25), possibly Elijah (1Kg 17:1), and Nahum (Nah 1:1).

7:53-8 : 11 The story of Jesus and the adulteress may be authentic, but it is doubtful that the account is part of John's original Gospel. Reasons include: (1) the account is absent from all the oldest copies of John; (2) where it does occur in later manuscripts, it is found at various places (after Jn 7:36,44,52; at the end of John's Gospel; or after Lk 21:38); (3) virtually every verse from 8:1-11 (except for 8:5) features words not elsewhere found in John's Gospel, and standard vocabulary used in John is conspicuously absent; (4) the account appears to interrupt the narrative flow from 7:52 to 8:12, breaking the literary unit 7:1-8:59; and (5) the account was virtually unknown by early church fathers before the fourth century.

8:12 Jesus as the light of the world (see note at 6:35,48) develops further the affirmation in the prologue that Jesus was "the light of men" and that "that light shines in the darkness" (1:4-5). On this basis, Jesus exhorted His hearers to put their trust in the light while they had Him with them, so they might become "sons of light" (12:35-36). Jesus' concluding testimony is that He came into the world as light so that no one who believes in Him should remain in darkness (12:46). Yet, according to the evangelist, the verdict is this: Light has come into the world, but people loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil (3:19-21).

8:13-14 The Pharisees' challenge and Jesus' response continue the acrimony of 5:31-47. Again, Mosaic stipulations were in view (Dt 17:6; 19:15).

8:14 , 18 On Jesus' testimony about Himself, see note at 5:31-47.

8:15 Jesus' statement may echo 1Sm 16:7. People rejected Jesus because He did not come with regal fanfare, but appearances can be deceiving (Is 53:2-3).

8:17 On the testimony of two witnesses, see notes at Dt 17:6-7; 19:15.

8:20 On the timing of Jesus' hour, see note at 2:4.

8:24 , 28 These statements hint at Jesus' deity (see note at 6:35,48).

8:28 On the lifting up of Jesus, see note at 3:14.

8:33 The OT extols the blessings of being descendants of Abraham (Ps 105:6; Is 41:8).

8:35 The contrast between son and slave may allude to Abraham's sons through Sarah and Hagar (Gn 21:1-21; see Ex 21:2).

8:35-36 On Jesus as the life-giving Son, see note at 3:16-18.

8:37-38 Even in the OT, physical descent from Abraham was insufficient to establish one's lineage (Jr 9:25-26; cp. Rm 2:28-29; 9:7; Gl 4:21-31).

8:39-58 On children of God, see note at 3:3-8.

8:41 Though the OT calls the Israelites God's children (Ex 4:22; Dt 14:1-2; 32:6; Is 63:16; 64:8; Jr 31:9; Mal 2:10), John said only those born of God (through faith) are God's children (Jn 1:12-13; 3:3-8).

8:44 The Devil is a murderer from the beginning. He incited Cain to kill Abel (1Jn 3:15). He has not stood in the truth is a possible reference to Satan's fall (Is 14:12). At the fall of Adam and Eve, he blatantly contradicted God's word (Gn 3:3-4; cp. Gn 2:17).

8:46 Jesus always did what pleases God (v. 29; Is 53:9).

8:48 , 52 On the accusation that Jesus had a demon, see note at 7:20.

8:56 Jesus' statement refers to Abraham's joyful anticipation of the coming of the Messiah. See the later affirmation in 12:41 that Isaiah saw Jesus' glory.

8:58 On Jesus' I am statements, see note at 6:35,48.

8:59 Stoning was the prescribed punishment for blasphemy (Lv 24:16; cp. Dt 13:6-11; Jn 10:31-33; 11:8). However, this was never to be enacted by mob violence (Dt 17:2-7). In the OT, righteous men like Moses (Ex 17:4), Joshua and Caleb (Nm 14:10), and David (1Sm 30:6) were nearly stoned. As on previous occasions, Jesus evaded arrest (Jn 7:30,44; 8:20; see note at 2:4). His withdrawal from the Jews strikes a note of judgment similar to the removal of God's favor from King Saul (1Sm 15:23).

A section of the Pool of Siloam discovered in 2005. Pottery indicates this section of the pool was in use in the first century.

9:1-41 Jesus' identity as "the light of the world" was illustrated in His sixth and penultimate "sign" recorded in John's Gospel—the healing of a man born blind (see note at 2:11). As in chapter 5, Jesus healed on the Sabbath and thus suffered persecution from the Jewish leaders. But in contrast to the lame man of chapter 5, who showed no faith and reported Jesus to the authorities, the formerly blind man showed a progression of faith and ended up worshiping Jesus (9:38). Jesus condemned the Pharisees for their spiritual blindness (vv. 40-41).

9:2 The disciples' question reflected the assumption, customary in ancient Judaism, that suffering could be traced to specific sins (cp. Jb 4:7). The underlying concern of this assumption is to clear God of wrongdoing against innocent people (Ex 20:5; Nm 14:18; Dt 5:9). Yet the NT makes it clear that suffering is not always a direct result of a person's sin (Lk 13:2-3; 2Co 12:7; Gl 4:13). We should not speculate about the cause of a person's suffering but realize that even evil can contribute to the greater glory of God (esp. the crucifixion; cp. Jn 12:28,37-41; 17:1,5).

9:5 On Jesus as the light of the world, see notes at 6:35,48 and 8:12.

9:7 Jesus' sending the man to wash in the pool of Siloam is reminiscent of Elijah's sending Naaman to wash in the Jordan River (2Kg 5:10-13). The words which means "Sent" may echo the messianic reference in Gn 49:10 (cp. Is 8:6); see notes at Jn 1:38 and 3:16-18). After 9:7, Jesus is not heard from again until verse 35.

9:14 The mention of the Sabbath here (cp. 5:9) resumes the earlier Sabbath controversy in chapter 5. Jesus had moistened clay with His saliva and then kneaded it to make mud. Kneading dough, and by analogy kneading clay, was included among the 39 classes of work forbidden on the Sabbath by Jewish rabbinic tradition (m. Shabb. 7:2).

9:16 The division among the Pharisees follows the differing ways of reasoning observed by the schools of Shammai and Hillel. The former argued from foundational principles ("anyone who breaks the law is a sinner"), the latter from the established facts of a case ("Jesus has performed a good work").

9:22 On the Jews and their power, see note at 7:13.

9:24 The Pharisees' exhortation to the healed man, Give glory to God, was a solemn warning for him to tell the truth (Jos 7:19; 2Ch 30:8; Jr 13:16).

9:28 The Pharisees' claim of being Moses' disciples was undermined by their failure to listen to the One of whom Moses wrote (see note at 5:45-47).

9:29 The Pharisees' assertion, We know that God has spoken to Moses, harks back to God's giving Moses the law at Mount Sinai (Ex 33:11; Nm 12:2-8; cp. Jn 1:17).

9:31-33 The healed man's major premise, that God doesn't listen to sinners, is borne out by the OT (Ps 34:15; 66:20; 109:7; 145:19). His minor premise, that there was no precedent for opening the eyes of a person born blind, is also confirmed by the absence of such instances cited in OT or extrabiblical sources. The man's conclusion, If this man were not from God, He wouldn't be able to do anything (cp. 3:2), fit with the common Jewish view that miracles were performed in answer to prayer.

9:34 The Pharisees' charge against the healed man may allude to Ps 51:5. Threw him out refers to expulsion from the synagogue (see note at v. 22). The way this was done suggests an impulsive action rather than excommunication based on a formal procedure.

9:39-41 Giving sight to the righteous blind (Ps 146:8; Is 29:18; 35:5; 42:7,18) and blinding unrighteous persons who can see (Is 6:10; 42:19; Jr 5:21; cp. Mt 13:13-15; Jn 12:40) are common OT themes. Elsewhere, Jesus called the Pharisees "blind guides" (Mt 23:16; cp. 15:14; 23:26).

10:1-42 In this discourse, Jesus criticized the Jewish leaders for failing to give Israel proper spiritual guidance. By contrast, Jesus is the Good Shepherd who lays down His life for the sheep. Hence chapter 10 provides a commentary on the previous chapter which revealed the Jewish leadership's legal pettiness, rigidity, and hardness toward God. Not only is Jesus the Good Shepherd, He is also the door through which believers find abundant, eternal life (vv. 9-10). The following interchange, culminating in another attempt to stone Jesus for blasphemy, took place at the Feast of Dedication (vv. 22-39). It is followed by a final reference to John the Baptist, which closes out the "festival cycle" of chapters 5-10 and the entire section (1:19-10:42), which began with the ministry of John the Baptist and his witness to Jesus.

10:1 The sheep pen may have been a courtyard (18:15) near a house surrounded by a stone wall where several families kept their sheep. The gate would have been guarded by a hired doorkeeper (10:3). Thief may focus on the covert nature of entrance to the pen, and robber on violence (Lk 10:30,36).

10:2 The shepherd was the authorized caretaker of the flock.

10:3-4 On doorkeeper, see note at verse 1. The reference to the shepherd calling his own sheep by name and leading them out may allude to passages such as Nm 27:16-18 (esp. v. 17), possibly a messianic passage, or Ezk 34:13. Israel's exodus from Egypt is sometimes portrayed as a flock following its shepherd (Ps 77:20; Is 63:11,14; cp. Ps 78:52). Old Testament prophetic literature envisioned a similar end-time deliverance for God's people (Mc 2:12-13).

10:6 On illustration, see note at 16:21.

10:7 , 9 Jesus' reference to Himself as the door may hark back to messianic readings of passages such as Ps 118:20 (see notes at Jn 6:35,48 and 10:1).

10:8 All who came before Me may hint at messianic pretenders who promised their followers freedom but led them into armed conflict and doom instead (Ac 5:36-37; 21:38). The reference to thieves and robbers is reminiscent of the reference to Israel's shepherds "who have been feeding themselves" but not the flock (Ezk 34:2-4; see note at Jn 10:1).

10:9 Jesus is the door to salvation (cp. 14:6). The NT elsewhere speaks of "entering" God's kingdom as through a door (Mt 7:7,13; 25:10; Ac 14:22). Will come in and go out echoes covenant terminology, especially blessings for obedience (Dt 28:6; cp. Ps 121:8). It is also reminiscent of Moses' description of Joshua, who led Israel into the promised land (Nm 27:16-17). Find pasture depicts the assurance of God's provision (1Ch 4:40; Ps 23:2; Is 49:9-10; Ezk 34:12-15).

10:10 Jesus' promise of abundant life in the here and now brings to mind OT prophetic passages such as Ezk 34:12-15,25-31. See note at Jn 5:26.

10:11 Jesus is the good shepherd (see note at 6:35,48). In the OT, God as the true shepherd is contrasted with unfaithful shepherds whom God will judge (Jr 23:1-4; Ezk 34; Zch 11:4-17). David (or the Davidic Messiah) was also depicted as a good shepherd (2Sm 5:2; Ps 78:70-72; Ezk 37:24; Mc 5:4), as was Moses (Is 63:11; cp. Ps 77:20). The reference to the good shepherd who lays down his life for the sheep calls to mind young David (1Sm 17:34-37).

10:12 The hired man does not care for the sheep and abandons them in times of danger. The hired hands of Israel (Ezk 22:27) are contrasted with God and His Messiah, whose role is patterned after God's "good shepherd" par excellence, King David (1Sm 17:34-36).

10:14 On Jesus as the good shepherd, see note at verse 11.

10:16 The other sheep . . . not of this fold refers to Gentiles (Is 56:8). Jesus envisioned a future Gentile mission following His death on the cross. One flock, one shepherd alludes to Ezk 34:23; 37:24. Believing Jews and Gentiles will be united into one messianic community.

10:18 Received this command is covenantal language, relating Jesus' relationship with the Father to the OT depiction of God's relationship with Israel.

10:20-21 In ancient times insanity and demon possession were frequently linked. The reference to opening the eyes of the blind links the Good Shepherd discourse with the healing of the blind man in chapter 9. The charges of demon possession (which harks back to similar charges from earlier; see note at 7:20) and insanity were contradicted by OT teaching that it is the Lord who gives sight to the blind (Ps 146:8; cp. Ex 4:11).

10:22 The eight-day Festival of Dedication celebrated the rededication of the Jewish temple in December of 164 B.C. after its desecration by the Seleucid ruler Antiochus Epiphanes in 167 B.C. (1Macc 1:59). It was winter refers to December. See note at 2:13.

10:23 On the temple complex, see note at 2:14. Probably because of the cold winter weather, Jesus taught not out in the open but in the area called Solomon's Colonnade. The structure was commonly (though erroneously) thought to date back to Solomon's time. Later it became the gathering place for the early church (Ac 3:11; 5:12).

10:24-25 The demand, If you are the Messiah, tell us plainly seems like double talk (Lk 22:67). If they had not understood Jesus' claim to be the Messiah, why did they repeatedly try to kill Him? (Jn 5:18; 7:25; 8:59). Indeed, Jesus responded that He did make this claim. On Jesus' works testifying about Himself, see note at 5:31-47.

10:26-29 Snatch (vv. 28-29) denotes the use of force (see note at v. 1). The comment contrasts with the figure of the hired man in verses 12-13 who abandoned the flock in times of danger, and recalls OT statements that no one can rob from God's hand (Is 43:13).

10:30 Jesus' claim that He and the Father are one (cp. v v. 33-38; 5:17-18) echoes the Shema, the basic confession of Judaism (Dt 6:4) and amounts to a claim to deity. Jesus' unity with the Father is later said to be the basis on which Jesus' followers are to be unified (Jn 17:22).

10:31 On the attempt to stone Jesus for blasphemy, see notes at 5:18 and 8:59.

10:32 On Jesus' works as a testimony to Himself, see note at 5:31-47.

10:33 The charge against Jesus appears to be grounded in Lv 24:16 (cp. Nm 15:30-31; Mk 14:61-64; see notes at Jn 8:59 and 19:7).

10:34 Jesus' point in quoting Ps 82:6 was that if human judges can in some sense be called "god" in the Scriptures, this designation is even more appropriate for Himself.

10:35 Jesus' statement that the Scripture cannot be broken is evidence for His belief in the inviolability of God's written Word (in this case, the Hebrew Scriptures; cp. Mt 5:18). Jesus and many of His opponents upheld the authority of God's Word.

10:36 The reference to Jesus being set apart for His mission echoes language used of appointed men such as Moses the lawgiver, Jeremiah the prophet, and the Aaronic priests.

10:37-38 On Jesus' works testifying about Himself, see note at 5:31-47.

10:40-41 On the place where John was baptizing, see note at 1:28.

11:1-57 The raising of Lazarus is Jesus' seventh and climactic messianic sign in John's Gospel (see note at 2:11). This miracle (recorded only by John) anticipated Jesus' own resurrection and revealed Him as "the resurrection and the life" (11:25). Resurrections are rare in the OT (Elijah, 1Kg 17:17-24; Elisha, 2Kg 4:32-37; 13:21) and in the Gospels (Jesus' raising of Jairus's daughter, Mk 5:22-24,38-42; Jesus' raising of the widow's son at Nain, Lk 7:11-15). The raising of Lazarus served as the final event that triggered the Jewish leaders' resolve to arrest Jesus and try Him for blasphemy (Jn 11:45-57).

11:1 The introduction of Lazarus is similar to 5:5. Lazarus (which means "whom God helps") was a common name. Bethany, called a village (Gk kome) as is Bethlehem (7:42), was not the Bethany mentioned in 1:28 and alluded to in 10:40-42. Bethany, where Lazarus lived, was located east of the Mount of Olives less than two miles from Jerusalem (11:18; cp. Mt 21:17; 26:6). The village of Mary and her sister Martha and the reference to Mary's anointing of Jesus anticipates chapter 12 and seems to presuppose that readers knew these women, perhaps from Luke's Gospel (Lk 10:38-42).

11:6 Jesus stayed two more days . . . where He was. Puzzling as this delay seems, it served to reveal God's glory (v. 4) since it enabled Jesus to perform an even "harder" miracle (v. 17).

11:9 Most people worked as long as there was daylight; once it was dark, work was over.

11:11 Fallen asleep means "died," as the following interchange makes clear (vv. 12-14). The OT equivalent is "slept with his fathers." Occasionally, death is depicted as a deep sleep from which we will be awakened (Dn 12:2).

11:16 On Thomas's designation as Twin, see note at 1:38.

11:17 By comforting Martha and Mary after Lazarus's death, Jesus fulfilled one of the most essential obligations in the Jewish culture of His day—mourning with those who mourn. Burial usually followed shortly after death, so Lazarus had been dead four days.

11:18 On Bethany, see note at v. 1.

11:19 If the many Jews who had come to Martha and Mary to comfort them were from Jerusalem, this would indicate that their family had considerable social standing.

11:20 Seated in the house was the customary posture for those mourning a deceased loved one (Jb 2:8,13; Ezk 8:14).

11:24 Martha's belief in end-time resurrection agreed with Pharisaic beliefs (Ac 23:8), popular Jewish opinion, and Jesus' teaching (Jn 5:21,25-29; 6:39-44,54).

11:25 On I am the resurrection and the life, see notes at 5:26 and 6:35,48.

11:27 Martha's reference to the one who comes into the world took up the messianic expression derived from Ps 118:26 (cp. Jn 12:13).

11:28 The Teacher was a natural way for a disciple to refer to Jesus before His resurrection (v. 8; 1:38,49; 3:2; 4:31; 6:25; 9:2; 20:16).

11:33 Jesus was angry in His spirit (the Gk word for "angry," embrimaomai, connotes anger and snorting; cp. Lm 2:6; Dn 11:30). Jesus was upset in the face of human suffering and death (Jn 12:27; 13:21). Deeply moved means agitated and stirred up (Est 4:4).

11:35 Jesus wept, or perhaps even better, "burst into tears," as the term is regularly translated in extrabiblical sources.

11:39 While the Jews used spices at burials, this did not prevent decomposition of the body, as Martha pointed out.

11:41-42 Jesus' prayer finds an OT antecedent in Elijah's prayer (1Kg 18:37). Compare Jn 6:11.

11:43 Jesus raised Lazarus not by magic, incantations, or spells, but by the power of His word.

The traditional site of Lazarus's tomb in Bethany.

11:44 John did not record Lazarus's reaction or any of the aftermath of his raising. Instead, he immediately moved (v. 45) to focus on the plot against Jesus.

11:47 On the Sanhedrin, see notes at 3:1 and 7:45-52.

11:48 Our place almost certainly refers to the temple. Similar concerns resurface in Ac 6:13-14 and 21:28, where the temple is referred to as "this holy place" or "this place." Remove . . . our nation may refer to the feared removal of the Jews' semi-autonomous status by the Romans. Ironically, what the Sanhedrin sought to prevent by killing Jesus still came to pass when the Romans razed the temple and sacked Jerusalem in A.D. 70 (see note at 2:13-22).

11:49 That year need not imply that the high priestly office rotated annually. It simply indicates that Caiaphas happened to serve in this role the year Jesus was tried and crucified. In fact, Caiaphas was high priest for 18 years (A.D. 18-36), longer than any other first-century high priest.

11:50-51 Die for the people invokes memory of the Maccabean martyrs (2Macc 7:37-38). In the typical double meaning used in John's Gospel, Caiaphas's pronouncement anticipated the substitutionary atonement Jesus was to render. As the Jewish high priest, Caiaphas prophesied, speaking better than he knew.

11:52 The scattered children of God refers to the Gentiles (see note at 3:3-8).

11:55 This is the third and final Passover mentioned by John. See note at 2:13. People went up to Jerusalem early to purify themselves from any ceremonial uncleanness that would prevent them from celebrating Passover (Nm 9:4-14; 19:11-12).

11:56-57 On the timing of Jesus' arrest, see note at 2:4. On the temple complex, see note at 2:14.

12:1-11 The anointing by Mary of Bethany foreshadowed Jesus' imminent arrest, trial, condemnation, crucifixion, and burial (vv. 7-8). The account is closely linked with the raising of Lazarus, whose presence served as proof of Jesus' miracle-working power and thus fueled the Jewish leaders' hostility toward Jesus. What is more, the anointing also revealed Judas's antagonism toward Jesus (vv. 4-8). While only verse 3 is devoted to Mary's act of devotion, five verses speak of Judas's objection and Jesus' rebuke of Judas (vv. 4-8).

12:1 On this Passover, see notes at 2:13 and 11:55. Six days before the Passover most likely refers to Saturday, which began Friday evening at sundown.

12:2 Dinner (Gk deipnon) refers to the main meal of the day, which was usually held toward evening (Lk 14:12). The term may also refer to a festive banquet (Mt 23:6; Mk 6:21). It is used later of the Last Supper (Jn 13:2,4; 21:20). Reclining at the table may imply a banquet rather than a regular meal (13:2-5,23).

12:3 A pound or half a liter was a large amount of fragrant oil or perfume (11:2). Pure and expensive nard was imported from northern India and used by the Romans for anointing the head. The Synoptic Gospels indicate that the perfume was kept in an alabaster jar (Mt 26:7; Mk 14:3). Attending to the feet of a guest was the work of servants (1:27; 13:5), so Mary's actions showed humility and devotion. Her wiping of Jesus' feet with her hair is remarkable since Jewish women rarely unbound their hair in public.

12:5 A total of 300 denarii represents the modern-day equivalent of a year's wages (see note at 6:7). This was a lot of money for a jar of perfume and a lot of money to "waste" by breaking the jar, as Judas observed.

12:6 Judas's motivation was impure. Before he betrayed Jesus, he was already a thief.

12:8 Jesus' response may have been an allusion to Dt 15:11.

12:12-19 Jesus' triumphal entry, with people waving palm branches to greet Him, is celebrated in Christian tradition as Palm Sunday. Jesus' riding into Jerusalem on a donkey fulfilled OT Scripture (Zch 9:9; see Ps 118:25-26). The waving of palm branches, a symbolic act celebrating victory over one's enemy and/or reception of a king, may indicate that the people thought Jesus would take Israel's vacant throne and deliver the nation from Roman occupation and suppression. Yet Jesus' popular acclaim would not last; some people who now hailed Him as victor called for His crucifixion only a few days later.

12:12 The next day probably refers to Sunday of Passion Week, now known as Palm Sunday. The festival was the Passover celebration.

12:13 Palm branches were a Jewish national symbol. The people hailed Jesus as the Davidic king of Ps 118:26 (cp. Mt 21:4-9). Psalm 118 was part of the Hallel (Pss 113-118), sung by the temple choir at major Jewish festivals.

12:15 Jesus is depicted as the humble Shepherd-King of Zch 9:9 who came to the Holy City to take His rightful place. An early messianic prophecy spoke of a ruler from Judah who would command the obedience of nations and would ride on a donkey (Gn 49:10-11). Fear no more may be taken from Is 40:9, which refers to one who brings good tidings to Zion (Is 44:2).

12:19 The world was an obvious exaggeration, highlighting the Pharisees' frustration (Ac 17:6).

12:20-50 This section concludes the first major unit of John's Gospel, which narrates Jesus' mission to the Jews. The approach of some Greeks signaled that Jesus' mission was approaching the climax in which He would die and thus reach all nations. His "hour" was now at hand (vv. 23-26; see note at 2:4); the Son of Man would shortly be "lifted up" (crucified) by men and highly exalted by God the Father (12:32; see note at 3:14). After these things Jesus would be able to draw people (Jews and non-Jews) to Himself (12:32). Further, the Jewish nation would suffer judgment for rejecting Messiah, who had performed so many signs among them (vv. 37-40).

12:20 Greeks likely refers to Gentiles, not necessarily Grecians (see note at 7:35). They were "God-fearers" who came to Jerusalem to worship at the Passover festival.

12:21-22 On Andrew and Philip, see notes at 1:44 and 6:5. The Greeks may have singled out Philip (who in turn went to get Andrew) because he and Andrew were the only two members of the Twelve with Greek names.

12:23 , 27 On Jesus' hour, see note at 2:4.

12:24 The principle of life through death is illustrated by an agricultural example.

12:25 Following Christ involves self-sacrifice, shown supremely at the cross.

12:26 This truth extends beyond a disciple's earthly life to his eternal destiny (7:34,36; 14:3; 17:24).

12:27 Jesus' expression of anguish may invoke Davidic psalms such as Ps 6:3 or 42:5,11.

12:28 This is one of only three times during Jesus' earthly ministry when a heavenly voice attested to His identity (cp. His baptism and His transfiguration, Mt 3:13-17 and 17:1-13 and parallels).

12:29 God's revelation through thunder and angels is well documented in the OT. Thunder was part of God's appearance at Mount Sinai (Ex 19:16,19). Angels (or the angel of the Lord) spoke to Hagar (Gn 21:17), Abraham (Gn 22:11), Moses (Ac 7:38), Elijah (2Kg 1:15), and Daniel (Dn 10:4-11).

12:31 The ruler of this world in its fallen, sinful state is Satan (14:30; 16:11; 1Jn 5:19). Now, at the cross, the Devil would be cast out, or decisively defeated (Lk 10:18; Col 2:14-15).

12:32 This most explicit "lifted up" saying completes the earlier references in 3:14 (see note there) and 8:28. Very likely, the terminology echoes Is 52:13. All people, in the present context, means "all kinds of people"—both Jews and Gentiles (10:16; 11:52; cp. 12:20-21).

12:33 On the kind of death Jesus was about to die, see note at 21:19.

12:34 This is the final of several messianic misunderstandings featured in John's Gospel (cp. 7:27,31,41-42; see note at 7:25-44). This reference may find its basis in passages such as Ps 89:4,36-37 (which in turn is grounded in 2Sm 7:12-16); Ps 110:1; Is 9:7; and Dn 7:14.

12:35-36 , 46 Jesus' answer was indirect. In light of the fact that the light would be with people only a little longer, His crucifixion was near (7:33; 16:16-19). He urged that they believe in the light (9:4; 11:10; see note at 8:12) while there was still time.

12:36 When Jesus hid from them, He illustrated God's imminent judgment and completed His revelatory work to the people of Israel (1:18).

12:37-50 This indictment identified Israel's wilderness generation with the unbelieving Jews in Jesus' day. Just as the ancient Jews saw God's power (performed through Moses) at the exodus (Dt 29:2-4) and turned away, so the Jews in Jesus' day watched miraculous signs (performed by Jesus) and responded with grumbling (Jn 6:41,61; cp. Ex 17:3; Nm 11:1) and unbelief (Jn 12:39).

12:38-40 John cited Is 53:1 and 6:10 to indicate that the Jewish rejection of Jesus was predicted by Scripture and thus served to confirm rather than thwart God's plan. Isaiah 53:1 referred to the Servant of the Lord who was rejected by the people but exalted by God. Isaiah 6:10 attributed people's hardening ultimately to God Himself (similar to Pharaoh's; see notes at Rm 9:17 and 9:18). These verses are the first in a series of fulfillment quotations in the second half of John's Gospel.

12:41 The reference to Isaiah seeing His (Jesus') glory may indicate that Isaiah foresaw that God would be pleased with a Suffering Servant who would be "raised and lifted up and greatly exalted" (Is 52:13). Like Abraham, Isaiah saw "Jesus' day" (cp. Jn 8:58).

12:42 On fear of the Pharisees and the Sanhedrin, see notes at 7:13 and 9:22.

12:44-50 This section summarizes Jesus' message and conveys His final appeal, bringing closure to the first major section of John's Gospel. Sent Me presupposes the Jewish idea of representation, according to which a messenger's identity is indistinct from that of the one who sent him. Verses 48-50 echo Deuteronomy (Dt 18:19; 31:19,26).

13:1-17 : 26 In the second major unit of John's Gospel, Jesus prepared His messianic community (represented by the Twelve, minus Judas) for the time following His exaltation to the Father. The community was first cleansed literally (foot-washing, 13:1-17), then figuratively through the removal of the betrayer (13:18-30). Jesus' farewell discourse (13:31-16:33) conveys instructions to His followers, particularly about the coming "Helping Presence" (Gk parakletos), the Holy Spirit, and the disciples' need to remain in Jesus spiritually after His physical departure from earth. The discourse (unique to John's Gospel) concludes with Jesus' final prayer (chap. 17).

13:1-17 With His crucifixion imminent, Jesus washed His disciples' feet as a final proof of His love and to give them an example of humility and service. In a striking demonstration of love for His enemies, Jesus washed all of His disciples' feet, including Judas's. Jesus' act is all the more remarkable because washing people's feet was considered a task so low it could only be performed by non-Jewish slaves. In a culture where people walked long distances on dusty roads in sandals, it was customary for the host to provide water for foot-washing. This was usually done upon arrival, not during the meal. The disciples probably felt guilty that none of them had thought to do this.

13:1 References to Jewish religious festivals and the coming of Jesus' hour (see note at 2:4) now converge. Jesus' own refers to the Twelve, the representatives of His new messianic community (1:11).

13:4-5 The practice of foot-washing had a long OT tradition (Gn 18:4; 19:2; 24:32; 43:24; Jdg 19:21; 1Sm 25:41). Jesus' performance of this menial task exemplified His humility (Php 2:6-8).

13:16 On Jesus as the one sent as well as the sender, see note at 3:16-18.

13:18-30 Judas's betrayal of Jesus comes as no surprise to the alert reader. John repeatedly anticipated this treacherous act (vv. 10-11; 6:70-71; 12:4). It is shocking that one whom Jesus had chosen as an apostle would betray Him. But far from indicating that Jesus made a mistake, the betrayal actually fulfilled Scripture (13:18, citing Ps 41:9; see note at Jn 17:12). God's plan was right on track. This section also contains the first mention of "the one Jesus loved" (13:23). He is frequently featured side by side with Peter in the second half of John's Gospel.

13:18 Judas's treachery fulfilled OT typology. Jesus cited Ps 41:9, which dealt with Absalom's rebellion against King David. Judas's betrayal came as no surprise to Jesus (Jn 13:19). Eating someone's bread indicated close fellowship, and yet Judas raised his heel against Jesus, an idiom that describes betrayal. Not only did Jesus' public foes plot against Him; even His own disciples could not be trusted.

13:19 Jesus' statement is one of several references to His omniscience in this section (14:29; 16:1,4,32,33). I am He, as in 8:24,28 (see note there), very likely had overtones of deity.

13:21 Jesus' being troubled in His spirit (cp. 11:33; 12:27) parallels the emotions of David, who expressed anguish over the betrayal of a close friend (Ps 55:2-14; cp. Ps 31:9-10; 38:10).

13:23 The reference to one of His disciples, the one Jesus loved . . . reclining close beside Jesus (Gk kolpos) echoes the description of Jesus as "the One who is at the Father's side" (Gk kolpos) in 1:18. This disciple is mentioned again in 21:20. Clearly he was an integral member of Jesus' group. Tradition identifies him as John, author of this Gospel.

13:29 The supposition that Jesus may have sent Judas to give something to the poor harks back to 12:5, where Judas presented himself as a champion of charity. Almsgiving was an important part of Jewish piety (Mt 6:2-4).

13:30 The phrase it was night strikes an ominous note. Compare Lk 22:53: "This is your hour—and the dominion of darkness"; see Mt 26:20; Mk 14:17; 1Co 11:23.

13:31 This verse echoes Isaiah (Is 49:3; see note at Jn 2:4).

13:31-16 : 33 Jesus' farewell discourse in John's Gospel is patterned after Moses' farewell discourse in Deuteronomy 31-33. Such discourses typically include predictions of a person's death and departure; predictions of future challenges for his followers after his death; arrangements for succession; exhortations to moral behavior; a final commission; an affirmation and renewal of God's covenant promises; and a closing doxology. While Jesus' farewell discourse is generally true to this pattern, there are differences as well. Jesus' farewell was only temporary (His followers will see Him again after a little while, Jn 14:19), so His final words focused on the future rather than the past. Also, the vine allegory in John 15 is distinct from OT or second temple farewell discourses. Overall, Jesus made provision for the Holy Spirit to continue His mission through the disciples. Jesus Himself would continue to direct their mission from His exalted position with the Father.

13:34-35 Love must be the distinguishing mark of Jesus' disciples. Jesus' new command closely resembled the Mosaic commands to love the Lord (Dt 6:5) and one's neighbor as oneself (Lv 19:18; cp. Mk 12:28-33). Elsewhere Jesus said we must love even our enemies (Mt 5:43-48). While the command to love God and one's neighbor was thus not new, Jesus' example (as I have loved you) was unparalleled, as was His insistence that we should love our enemies.

14:1 Jesus' words echo similar admonishments in the OT (Dt 1:21,29; 20:1,3; Jos 1:9; cp. Jn 11:33; 12:27; 13:21). Believe denotes personal, relational trust in keeping with OT usage (Is 28:16).

14:2-3 Jesus elsewhere said His followers would be welcomed into "eternal dwellings" (Lk 16:9). The disciples' homecoming will be comparable to a son's return to his father's house (Lk 15:11-32). The words I will come back and receive you to Myself, so that where I am you may be also echoes the terminology in Sg 8:2. Jesus, the messianic bridegroom (Jn 3:29), said He would prepare a place for His followers in His Father's house and then come to take them home to be with Him.

14:6 Jesus is the way, the truth, and the life (see note at 6:35,48), and no one comes to the Father except through Him. Jesus alone is able to provide access to God because He alone paid the penalty for our sins (Is 53:5; Heb 1:3). He is the truth (Jn 1:14,17; 5:33; 18:37; cp. 8:40,45-46), and all contrary claims are false. He alone is the life (1:4), having life in Himself (5:26). He is thus able to confer eternal life on all those who believe in Him (3:16). Jesus is truth and life, and He is the one and only way of salvation.

14:7 The emphasis on truly knowing Jesus and God the Father harks back to OT covenant language (Jr 24:7; 31:34; Hs 13:4).

14:8 Philip apparently wanted some sort of revelation of God. In the OT, Moses asked and was given a limited vision of God's glory (Ex 33:18; cp. Ex 24:10); Isaiah received a similar vision (Is 6:1; see note at Jn 12:41). In keeping with OT teaching, however, Jesus denied the possibility of a direct vision of God (1:18; 5:37; 6:46).

14:12 The disciples' greater works are made possible because Jesus was going to the Father after His work on the cross (12:24; 15:13; 19:30). The works are greater because they are based on the totality of Jesus' work and will bear lasting fruit (Mt 11:11; Jn 15:8,16).

14:13 Praying in Jesus' name expresses alignment of one's desires and purposes with God (1Jn 5:14-15). See note at Jn 3:16-18.

14:15 Jesus' words echo the demands of the Deuteronomic covenant (Dt 5:10; 6:5-6; 7:9; 10:12-13; 11:13,22).

14:16-17 Another Counselor or the Spirit of truth is the Holy Spirit (v. 26), who guides disciples into all truth (16:13). The Spirit replaces Jesus' physical presence by permanently indwelling His followers. Divine presence for Jesus' followers includes the Spirit (14:15-17), Jesus (vv. 18-21), and the Father (v v. 22-24).

14:18 The Spirit's presence within disciples essentially amounts to Jesus' own presence, because the Spirit testifies about Jesus (15:26) and helps disciples understand the significance of what Jesus has done (16:14). Jesus' assurance, I will not leave you as orphans, echoes Moses' parting words to Israel (Dt 31:6; cp. Jos 1:5). By saying this, Jesus likely had in mind both His resurrection and the coming of the Spirit at Pentecost.

14:21 The references to the one who has My commands and keeps them and the phrase reveal Myself hark back to the giving of the law at Mount Sinai and to other OT appearances of God (Ex 33:13).

14:22 This Judas (not Iscariot) is probably "Judas the son of James," mentioned in Lk 6:16 and Ac 1:13, not Jude, the half-brother of Jesus (Mt 13:55; Mk 6:3).

14:23 Make Our home with him recalls God's dwelling among His people in the tabernacle (Ex 25:8; 29:45; Lv 26:11-12) and the temple (1Kg 8:10-11; cp. Ac 7:46-47), and points forward to the time when the Spirit would come at Pentecost (Ac 2).

14:26 The Holy Spirit (1:33; 20:22) is mentioned infrequently in the OT (Ps 51:11; Is 63:9-10). Jesus' focus here was on the Spirit's future teaching ministry (1Jn 2:20,27).

14:27 The expression peace (Hb shalom) could serve as a greeting or announce blessing upon those who enjoyed a right relationship with God (Nm 6:24-26; cp. Ps 29:11; Hg 2:9). The OT prophesied a period of peace following Messiah's coming, for He is the "Prince of Peace" (Is 9:6), who would "proclaim peace to the nations" (Zch 9:10; cp. 9:9). There would be tidings of peace and salvation (Is 52:7; cp. 54:13; 57:19), and God would establish an everlasting "covenant of peace" with His people (Ezk 37:26). Jesus' parting encouragement for His followers not to be troubled or fearful echoes Moses' parting counsel (Dt 31:6,8).

14:30 On the ruler of the world, see note at 12:31. Satan has no legal claim or hold on Jesus.

14:31 . Some scholars view the transition between 14:31 to 15:1 as a literary seam, which would indicate that John's Gospel was pieced together from different sources (one ending at 14:31; another beginning at 15:1). More likely, John is simply describing Jesus' transition (Get up; let's leave this place) from the upper room to the garden of Gethsemane, where He arrived in 18:1.

15:1-17 This allegory is at the heart of Jesus' farewell discourse to the disciples. The OT used the vineyard or vine as a symbol for Israel, God's covenant people, especially in two "vineyard songs" (Is 5:1-7; 27:2-6). However, Israel's failure to produce fruit issued in divine judgment. Jesus, by contrast, is the true vine, and His followers are to remain in Him and produce much fruit for God.

15:1 I am the true vine is the last of Jesus' seven "I am" sayings in John's Gospel (see note at 6:35,48). "True" contrasts Jesus with OT Israel (see note at 15:1-17). Joseph was called a "fruitful vine" in Gn 49:22. The reference to the Father as the vineyard keeper harks back to Isaiah's first vineyard song, where God is depicted as tending His vineyard, only to be rewarded with sour grapes (Is 5:1-7; cp. Ps 80:8-9).

15:2 To ensure maximal fruit production, the divine vineyard keeper removes dead branches and prunes all the others (Heb 6:7-8). In John's Gospel, Judas the betrayer is an example of the former scenario (Jn 13:10-11). Peter, who denied Jesus three times, is an example of the latter (18:15-18,25-27; 21:15-19).

15:3 On you are already clean, see 13:10-11.

15:4 The in terminology harks back to OT covenant theology, including prophetic texts about a future new covenant (Ex 25:8; 29:45; Lv 26:11-12; Ezk 37:27-28; 43:9).

15:4 , 5 , 8 The repeated reference to fruit underscores that fruitfulness is God's primary creative (Gn 1:11-12,22,28) and redemptive purpose (Jn 15:8,16). The OT prophets envisioned a time when God's people would "blossom and bloom and fill the whole world with fruit" (Is 27:6; cp. Hs 14:4-8).

15:6 This verse echoes Ezk 15:1-8, where a barren vine is said to be fit only for burning. Fire is a common symbol for divine judgment (Is 30:27; Mt 3:12; 5:22; 18:8; 25:41; see note at Jn 15:2).

15:10-11 Obedience is not all gloom and doom; rather, it's a source of joy. The OT prophets envisioned a period of great end-time rejoicing (Is 25:9; 35:10; 51:3; 61:10; 66:10; Zch 9:9).

15:12-17 On Jesus' "love commandment," see note at 13:34-35.

15:13-14 In the OT, only Abraham (2Ch 20:7; Is 41:8), and by implication Moses (Ex 33:11), are called "friends of God." Jesus extended this privilege to all obedient believers.

15:16 In first-century Palestine, disciples typically took the initiative in attaching themselves to a particular rabbi, not vice versa. As a well-known dictum declared, "Provide yourself with a teacher." Jesus broke with this custom and called His own disciples. Appointed recalls the OT description of God's appointment of Abraham (Gn 17:5; cp. Rm 4:17), the ordination of Levites (Nm 8:10), and Moses' commissioning of Joshua (Nm 27:18).

15:18-16 : 33 This final major unit in Jesus' farewell discourse deals with the world's hostility toward Himself and His followers and with the future ministry of the Holy Spirit.

15:18 Jesus' followers are to be known by their love (13:34-35 and note there).

15:24 On Jesus' works as a witness to Himself, see note at 5:31-47.

15:25 Jesus declared that the Jews' hatred of Him fulfilled OT Scripture, specifically Ps 69:4 (cp. Ps 35:19). This Davidic psalm depicts a righteous sufferer who is zealous for God but is persecuted by God's enemies for no reason. Thus Jesus saw David's experiences as a prefiguration of the hatred and rejection He suffered.

15:26 On Jesus' promise of the Holy Spirit, see notes at 14:16-17 and 14:26.

15:27 The call for Jesus' followers to serve as His witnesses recalls OT prophetic literature, where God's end-time people are called His "witnesses" to the nation (Is 43:10-12; 44:8). In the NT, believers are promised the Spirit's help in times of persecution (Mt 10:20; Mk 13:11; Lk 12:12), and the Spirit played a vital part in the church's mission (Ac 1:8; cp. Lk 24:48; Ac 5:32; 6:10).

16:2 The phrase a time is coming is reminiscent of prophetic or apocalyptic expressions such as "the days are coming" (Jr 7:32; 9:25; 16:14; 31:31,38; Am 9:13; Zch 14:1). On expulsion from the synagogue, see note at Jn 9:34. When anyone who kills you will think he is offering service to God most likely refers to Jewish rather than Roman persecution. Some rabbis believed that killing heretics was an act of divine worship.

16:7 Reference to the Counselor (see notes at 14:16-17 and 14:26) harks back to the anticipated coming of the Spirit and the inauguration of the age of the kingdom in OT prophetic literature (Is 11:1-10; 32:14-18; 42:1-4; 44:1-5; Jr 31:31-34; Ezk 11:17-20; 36:24-27; 37:1-14; Jl 2:28-32).

16:8-11 The Holy Spirit will judge the world's sin of unbelief on the basis of His righteousness. On the ruler of this world, see note at 12:31.

16:13 On the Spirit of truth, see note at 14:16-17. The Spirit's ministry of guiding Jesus' followers into all the truth will fulfill the psalmists' longing for divine guidance (Ps 25:4-5; 43:3; 86:11; 143:10). Isaiah recounted how God led His people in the wilderness by the Holy Spirit (Is 63:14) and predicted God's renewed guidance in the future (Is 43:19). The word declare (Gk anangello) occurs over 40 times in the book of Isaiah, where declaring things to come is said to be the exclusive domain of God (Is 48:14) and where God challenges pretenders to declare the things to come (Is 42:9; 44:7; 46:10; cp. Is 41:21-29, esp. vv. 22-23; 45:19).

16:16-19 A little while harks back to previous instances of this expression in John's Gospel (7:33; 12:35; 13:33; 14:19). Similar terms were used by OT prophets for announcing God's judgment (Is 10:25; Jr 51:33; Hs 1:4; Hg 2:6) and salvation (Is 29:17). In this situation the reference is to the brief period between Jesus' crucifixion and resurrection.

16:20 Jesus' prediction that His disciples' sorrow will turn to joy echoes the experiences of God's people in OT times (Est 9:22) and marks the fulfillment of OT prophecies (Is 61:2-3; Jr 31:13).

16:21 Jesus' illustration of a woman in childbirth resonates with human experience. While the labor preceding birth is intense, all anguish is forgotten the moment the new child is born. Jesus elsewhere spoke of the end-times as "the beginning of birth pains" and times of "great tribulation" (Mt 24:8,21,29).

16:28 The depiction of Jesus as having come from the Father . . . into the world and as leaving the world and going to the Father is patterned after the portrayal of the Word of God which is sent, accomplishes its purpose, and returns to the One who sent it (Is 55:11-12; see note at Jn 1:1).

16:32 Jesus' prediction of a coming hour at which His followers will be scattered (cp. 19:27) may allude to Zch 13:7 (quoted in Mt 26:31; cp. Mt 26:56; 1Kg 22:17). The sheep would desert the Shepherd and return home, and yet Jesus would not be alone due to the constant presence of His Father.

16:33 Jesus' farewell discourse ends on a note of triumph (1Jn 2:13-14; 4:4; 5:4-5).

17:1-26 In His final prayer in this chapter, Jesus gave an account of His earthly mission to the Father who sent Him. He prayed first for Himself (vv. 1-5), then for His disciples (vv. 6-19), and finally for all future believers (vv. 20-26). In His prayer, Jesus adopted the stance of one who has completed His mission (v. 4, cp. 4:34), having been sent by the Father and now preparing to return (13:1; 16:28). His prayer was fulfilled when He cried out from the cross, saying of the mission of redemption and revelation He had come to accomplish: "It is finished" (19:30).

17:1-5 The first unit in Jesus' prayer is His intercession for Himself.

17:1 Jesus looked up to heaven, striking a customary posture in prayer (Ps 123:1; Mk 7:34; Lk 18:13). On the hour has come, see note at 2:4. The opening petition, Glorify Your Son so that the Son may glorify You, is a claim to deity since the OT affirms that God will not give His glory to another (Is 42:8; 48:11). On Jesus as the sent Son, see note at Jn 3:16-18.

17:2 God's granting of authority to Jesus (5:27) marks the beginning of a new era (Is 9:6-7; Dn 7:13-14; see Mt 11:27; 28:18).

17:2-3 Eternal life comes from knowing God and Jesus the sent Son (1:4; 5:26; 20:31). Knowing God is not confined to intellectual knowledge; it involves living in fellowship with Him. That God is the only true God is affirmed in the Shema (Dt 6:4; cp. Jn 5:44; 1Jn 5:20). Jesus, in turn, is the One and Only sent by the Father (Jn 1:14,18; 3:16,18) and the only way to Him (14:6). The full name Jesus Christ is found only here and in 1:17, forming a literary inclusion. Note that in these verses Jesus referred to Himself in the third person.

17:4 The reference to Jesus' work in the singular harks back to 4:34, another inclusion.

17:5 Again, Jesus claimed preexistence (v. 24; 1:1,14; 3:13; 6:62; 8:58; 16:28).

17:6-19 The second unit of Jesus' prayer contains His intercession for His disciples, beginning with a rehearsal of His ministry to them (vv. 6-8). Jesus' prayer for His followers in verses 9-19 includes petitions for their protection (vv. 11-16) and for their consecration for service in the truth (vv. 17-19).

17:6 Jesus' revelation of God's name included making known the Father's works and words (1:18; 8:19,27; 10:38; 12:45; 14:9-11).

17:7-8 The portrayal of Jesus here is reminiscent of the description of the "prophet like" Moses in Dt 18:18.

17:12 Even Judas's betrayal happened in fulfillment of Scripture. The antecedent passage is probably Ps 41:9 (applied to Jesus in Jn 13:18; see note there). Other Scriptures fulfilled through Judas are Ps 69:25 and 109:8 (cited in Ac 1:20).

17:18 This verse looks forward to the commission that Jesus assigned His disciples after His resurrection (20:21).

17:20-26 Jesus did not stop at praying for Himself (vv. 1-5) and His disciples (vv. 6-19); His vision transcended the present (Dt 29:14-15). Jesus was concerned for His followers' unity (Jn 17:21-23) and love (v. 26). The vision of a unified people of God was previously expressed in 10:16 and 11:52. Unity among believers results from the indivisible unity of God (10:38; 14:10-11,20,23; 15:4-5). Once unified, believers are able to bear witness to the true identity of Jesus as the One sent by God.

17:25 Jesus addressed God as Righteous Father. The OT teaches that God is righteous and just (Ps 116:5; 119:137; Jr 12:1). Though His betrayal, torture, and death were looming, Jesus affirmed the righteousness of God His Father.

17:26 The phrase I may be in them is filled with covenantal overtones (v. 23; 14:20). After the giving of the law at Sinai, God came to dwell in the midst of Israel in the tabernacle (Ex 40:34). As they moved toward the promised land, God frequently assured His people that He was in their midst (Ex 29:45-46; Dt

7:21; 23:14).

18:1-19 : 42 John's Passion Narrative appears in these chapters. The familiar sequence of events starts with Jesus' betrayal by Judas (18:1-11), His informal hearing before Annas (18:12-14,19-24), Peter's denials (18:15-18,25-27), Jesus' Roman trial before Pilate (18:28-19:16a), and His crucifixion and burial (19:16b-42). Only John among all the Gospels featured Jesus' appearance before Annas, and His Roman trial is covered in more detail in John. On the other hand, John did not provide an account of Jesus' formal Jewish trial before Caiaphas and the Sanhedrin.

18:1 The Kidron Valley is mentioned frequently in the OT (2Sm 15:23; 1Kg 2:37; 15:13; 2Kg 23:4,6,12). The garden is called "Gethsemane" in the Synoptic Gospels (Mt 26:36; Mk 14:32). Went into it may suggest that it was a walled garden.

18:3 The company of soldiers was dispatched to prevent rioting. The temple police from the chief priests and the Pharisees were the primary arresting officers (see notes at 7:32 and 7:46). Lanterns and torches were needed to track down a suspect hiding in the dark garden. The presence of weapons shows that the arrest party anticipated resistance.

18:5 I am He connotes deity (see note at 6:35,48). This is shown by the soldiers' reaction in the following verse.

18:6 Falling to the ground was a common reaction to divine revelation (Ezk 1:28; 44:4; Dn 2:46; 8:18; 10:9; Ac 9:4; 22:7; 26:14; Rv 1:17; 19:10; 22:8).

18:8-9 Jesus' statement summarized 17:12, which harks back to 6:39 and 10:28. Jesus is portrayed as the Good Shepherd who chose death to save His sheep (10:11,15,17-18,28).

18:10 Peter's sword was short and could be hidden under his robe (Lk 22:38). The name Malchus (stated only in John) indicates a slave of Arabic origin.

18:11 Drink the cup is a metaphor for death.

18:12 On temple police, see note at verse 3. Tied him up is a customary expression in conjunction with arrest or imprisonment (Ac 9:2,14,21).

18:13 Annas, apart from being the father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was high priest that year, also had been high priest from A.D. 6-15. He continued to wield considerable influence.

18:14 On this description of Caiaphas, see notes at 11:49 and 11:50-51.

18:15-16 The other disciple was probably "the one Jesus loved" (20:2; see note at 13:23).

18:16-17 The girl who was the doorkeeper was probably one of the high priest's slaves.

18:18 The Roman soldiers had returned to their barracks, entrusting the task of guarding Jesus to the temple police (see note at v. 3). Another charcoal fire was lit at Peter's restoration in 21:9.

18:19 High priest refers to Annas (see note at v. 13). Questioning Jesus about His disciples and His teaching suggests that the primary concern was theological. Political charges were later added (19:7,12).

18:20 Jesus' words I haven't spoken anything in secret echo God's words in the book of Isaiah (Is 45:19; 48:16). Jesus did not mean that He never spoke in private with His disciples but that His message was the same in private as in public; He was not leading a conspiracy. John recorded instances of Jesus teaching both in the synagogue (cp. 6:59) and in the temple complex (Gk hieron ; cp. 2:14-21; 7:14,28; 8:20; 10:23; see note at 2:14).

18:21 Jesus' response is understandable, especially if the questioning of prisoners was considered improper in His day. Note also the legal principle that a person's own testimony about himself was inadmissible (see note at 5:31).

18:22 One of the temple police standing by was probably one of those who helped arrest Jesus (vv. 3,12). The slapping was likely a sharp blow with the flat of one's hand (Is 50:6 LXX; cp. Mt 26:67; Ac 23:1-5). The phrase, is this the way you answer the high priest may refer to Ex 22:28: "You must not blaspheme God or curse a leader among your people" (quoted by Paul in Ac 23:5).

18:23 When challenged about His response to the high priest, Jesus alluded to the law of Ex 22:28 and denied having violated it.

18:24 Before Jesus could be brought to the Roman governor, charges had to be confirmed by the official high priest, Caiaphas, in his function as chairman of the Sanhedrin (see note at 3:1).

18:26 On one of the high priest's slaves, see note at 18:10.

18:27 On the crowing of a rooster, compare 13:38.

18:28 The governor's headquarters may refer to Herod's palace on the western wall of the temple or the Fortress of Antonia northwest of the temple grounds. Early morning probably means shortly after sunrise, when the Sanhedrin met in formal session and pronounced its verdict (Mt 27:1-2). The reference to Passover may mean the entire Feast of Unleavened Bread, which lasted seven days (cp. Lk 22:1: "the Festival of Unleavened Bread, which is called Passover"). Eat the Passover probably means "celebrate the Feast" (see 2Ch 30:21).

18:29 Pilate was appointed by Emperor Tiberius, and he served as governor of Judea from A.D. 26 until 36/37. The famous "Pilate inscription," discovered in Caesarea in 1961, identified Pilate as prefect of Judea.

18:31 Like Gl lio after him (Ac 18:14-15), Pilate was not interested in judging internal Jewish disputes. The Sanhedrin did not have the power of capital punishment.

18:32 Crucifixion horrified Jewish sensibilities. It was considered to be the same as hanging (Ac 5:30; 10:39), for which Mosaic law enunciated the principle, "Anyone hung on a tree is under God's curse" (Dt 21:23; cp. Gl 3:13). If Jesus had been put to death by the Sanhedrin, He would have been stoned, the method of execution for blasphemy (Lv 24:16; cp. Jn 10:33; Ac 7:57-58).

18:33 On the headquarters, see note at verse 28. King of the Jews had political overtones. Pilate's question aimed at determining whether Jesus was a threat to Rome's imperial power.

18:36 Jesus' description of His kingdom echoes passages in Daniel (Dn 2:44; 7:14,27; cp. Jn 6:15).

18:37 On testify and truth, see notes at 5:31-47 and 14:6.

18:38 Ironically, the man charged with determining truth in the matter glibly dismissed the relevance of truth in the presence of the One who is truth incarnate (see note at 14:6). Pilate's comment may reflect disillusionment, if not bitterness, and a pragmatic viewpoint. On he went out to the Jews again, see verses 28-29. Pilate exonerated Jesus three times (cp. 19:4,6), but Jewish pressures convinced him to press the prosecution (19:12-16).

18:39 At the Passover refers to the entire festival (see note at v. 28).

18:40 Barabbas means "son of the father" (Gk bar-abbas). Ironically, people wanted Barabbas released rather than the true Son of the Father—Jesus. Revolutionary refers to an insurrectionist or domestic terrorist, perhaps engaged in Zealot-style political extremism (Mk 15:7; Lk 23:19).

19:1 After the Jewish phase of the trial and Jesus' interrogation by Pilate, the sentencing stage of His trial began. On Pilate, see note at 18:29. The flogging weakened Jesus so much that He could not carry His crossbeam very far.

19:2 The crown of thorns represented a mock crown ridiculing Jesus' messiahship. The thorns would sink into His skull, bloodying and distorting His face. The purple robe (cp. Mt 27:28; Mk 15:17) represented a mock royal robe. Purple was the imperial color (1Macc 8:14).

19:3 Hail, King of the Jews mimicked the "Ave Caesar" ("Hail, Caesar!") extended to the Roman emperor. Roman soldiers customarily played "mock king" games during the Saturnalia festival.

19:5 Here is the man (Lat ecce homo) conveys a sense of, "Look at the poor fellow!" In His mock regal clothes, Jesus made a heartrending sight. In the context of John's Gospel, the statement may also highlight Jesus' humanity and invoke messianic passages such as Zch 6:12.

19:6 Pilate used sarcasm, being fully aware that the Jews did not have the authority to impose the death penalty (see note at 18:31).

19:7 The Jews' comment may refer to Lv 24:16: "Whoever blasphemes the name of Yahweh is to be put to death" (see note at Jn 5:18; cp. 8:59; 10:31,33).

19:8 Pilate was more afraid than ever. Earlier that morning his wife's dream had disturbed him (Mt 27:19).

19:9 Jesus' origin was frequently an issue with His opponents (7:27-28; 8:14; 9:29-30). For John, there were clear spiritual overtones to Pilate's question, Where are You from? (cp. 18:36-37). Jesus' silence before Pilate is reminiscent of Is 53:7; cp. Mk 14:61; 15:5; 1Pt 2:22-23).

19:10-11 In typical Jewish fashion, Jesus used from above to refer to God.

19:12 Unconvinced of Jesus' guilt, Pilate sentenced Him to die only after intense Jewish pressure (vv. 13-16). Caesar, originally the surname of Gaius Julius Caesar (d. 44 B.C.), became the title of subsequent Roman emperors (cp. v. 15; Mt 22:17,21). Caesar's friend was a semiformal status indicating a person favored by the emperor. Pilate feared losing this status.

19:13 The judge's bench served as the platform for the judge's formal verdict (Ac 25:6,17). The kind of Stone Pavement mentioned here has been excavated on the lower level of the Fortress of Antonia, one of the two possible sites for the governor's residence (see note at 18:28).

19:14 The preparation day for the Passover may refer to the day before the Sabbath of Passover week (Mt 27:62; Mk 15:42; Lk 23:54; see note at Jn 18:28). If so, all four Gospels concur that Jesus' Last Supper was a Passover meal eaten on Thursday evening (which, by Jewish reckoning, was the beginning of Friday).

19:15 By professing to acknowledge Caesar alone as their king, the Jewish leaders betrayed their national heritage and denied their own messianic expectations based on the promises of Scripture.

19:16 Upon pronouncement of the sentence, the person was scourged and then executed.

19 : 16b - 42 The final unit in John's passion narrative describes Jesus' crucifixion and burial.

19:17 Jesus set out carrying His own cross until He collapsed. Simon of Cyrene was then pressed into service, and he carried it to the execution site (Mt 27:32). He went out means "out of the city," where Jewish custom prescribed that executions should take place (Lv 24:14,23; Nm 15:35-36; Dt 17:5; 21:19-21; 22:24; cp. Heb 13:12). Skull Place translates Hebrew Golgotha; the Latin equivalent used in the Vulgate is "Calvary" (see note at 1:38).

19:18 On crucifixion, see note at 18:32. Jesus' crucifixion between two criminals is reminiscent of Ps 22:16: "A gang of evildoers has closed in on me."

The passage also echoes Is 53:12: "counted among the rebels."

19:19 The inscription on Jesus' cross specified the crime for which He was executed, probably to discourage others from committing similar acts.

19:20 On the place . . . was near the city, see note at verse 17. Hebrew or Aramaic was the language most widely understood by the Jewish population of Palestine; Latin was the official language of the Roman occupying force; and Greek was the "international language" of the empire, understood by most Diaspora Jews as well as Gentiles. The trilingual inscription ensured that virtually anyone could read the crimes with which Jesus was charged.

19:22 Pilate was unwilling to give in to further Jewish pressures. For John, the inscription unintentionally confirmed Jesus' true kingship.

19:23 The seamless tunic may recall Joseph's robe (Gn 37:3,23). Similar to several later events at the crucifixion (Jn 19:28-37), the soldiers' division of Jesus' clothes and their casting of lots fulfilled Scripture (Ps 22:18). On other fulfillment quotations, see note at Jn 12:38-40.

19:24 Psalm 22, a lament psalm ascribed to David, is the most frequently quoted psalm in the NT. This is the first of several references to Jesus as the righteous sufferer in keeping with the experience of the psalmist (Jn 19:28,36-37). The soldiers did not want to tear Jesus' tunic because it was woven of one cloth (vv. 23-24). John may have purposefully shaped his account of Jesus' crucifixion in a way that highlighted the parallels and fulfillments between the experiences of David and Jesus. For instance, Ps 22:15-18 mentions the sufferer's thirst (v. 15), his pierced hands and feet (v. 16), and the preservation of all his bones (v. 17).

19:25 On Jesus' mother, see 2:1-5 and note at 19:26-27. His mother's sister may be Salome, the mother of the sons of Zebedee mentioned in Matthew and Mark. On Mary the wife of Clopas, cp. Lk 24:18. On Mary Magdalene, see 20:1-18 (cp. Lk 8:2-3).

19:26-27 In keeping with biblical injunctions to honor one's parents (Ex 20:12; Dt 5:16), Jesus made provision for His mother, who was almost certainly widowed and probably in her early fifties, with little or no personal income. On the word woman, see note at 2:4.

19:28-29 The reference to Scripture being fulfilled builds on verse 24 (see note there), most likely in allusion to Ps 69:21: "They gave me vinegar to drink" (cp. Mt 27:34,48; see Ps 22:15). Soldiers and laborers used sour wine to quench their thirst (Mk 15:36). It is different from the "wine mixed with myrrh" Jesus refused on the way to the cross (Mk 15:23). Hyssop was a plant classified in 1Kg 4:33 as a humble shrub. It was used for the sprinkling of blood on the doorpost at the original Passover (Ex 12:22).

19:30 Gave up may echo "submitted Himself to death," which was prophesied of the Suffering Servant (Is 53:12).

19:31 On preparation day, see note at verse 14. That Sabbath was . . . special because it was the Sabbath of Passover week. For the Jews, bodies of hanged criminals were not to defile the land by remaining on a tree overnight (Dt 21:22-23; cp. Jos 8:29).

19:31-33 The legs of crucifixion victims were broken to hasten death. This prevented them from pushing themselves up with their legs to open the chest cavity and thus breathe better. Since the victims would now have to pull themselves up by the arms instead, suffocation occurred once their arm strength failed. See note at verse 36.

19:34 The flow of blood and water proved that Jesus was dead (1Jn 5:6-8). The passage may also allude to Ex 17:6: "Hit the rock, water will come out of it and the people will drink" (cp. Nm 20:11). The spear was about three and one-half feet long and consisted of an iron spearhead joined to a shaft of wood.

19:35 On John's witness about Jesus, see notes at 5:31-47; 13:23; and 21:24.

19:36 After verses 24 and 28-29 (see notes there), this is the third scriptural proof that shows that Jesus' death fulfilled Scripture (Ex 12:46; Ps 34:20). Jesus escaped having His legs broken since He died so quickly, and the spear did not damage any of His bones.

19:37 The Roman soldiers again fulfilled prophecy without knowing it: "They will look at Me whom they pierced" (Zch 12:10; also cited in Rv 1:7).

19:38 Joseph of Arimathea, a wealthy member of the Jewish ruling council (Mt 27:57), asked Pilate for Jesus' body. Thus Jesus was killed alongside criminals and was buried in a rich man's tomb. This fulfilled another Scripture: "They made His grave with the wicked and with a rich man at His death" (Is 53:9).

19:39-40 The amount of aromatic spices brought by Joseph and Nicodemus —about 75 pounds of myrrh and aloes—was considerable (2Ch 16:14). Myrrh was a fragrant resin used by Egyptians in embalming; aloes were a powder of aromatic sandalwood; the mixture cloaked the smell of decay.

19:41 On the place where He was crucified, see notes at verses 17 and 20. The garden was apparently somewhat elaborate; note the mention of a gardener in 20:15. Garden burials are recorded in the OT (Manasseh in 2Kg 21:18; Amon in 2Kg 21:26).

19:42 On the Jewish day of preparation, see note at verse14. Sabbath was rapidly approaching, when all work ceased, including that of carrying spices or transporting a corpse. Thus we may see it as an instance of divine providence that the tomb was nearby (see note at 20:1).

20:1-21:25 The final two chapters of John's Gospel cover the aftermath of Jesus' crucifixion and burial, specifically the empty tomb, the risen Jesus' encounter with Mary Magdalene, three resurrection appearances to His disciples (21:14), the commissioning of the disciples (20:21), a special commissioning of Peter (21:15-23), conclusions to the Gospel proper (20:30-31), and the epilogue (21:24-25). The concluding statement in 20:30-31 rehearses some of the major themes of the Gospel, particularly Jesus' identity as Messiah and Son of God, His messianic "signs," the importance of believing in Jesus, and the gift of eternal life. The conclusion to the epilogue identifies the "disciple Jesus loved" (who was one of the Twelve; cp. 21:20; 13:23) as the writer of John's Gospel (21:24; cp. 19:35) and affirms the truth of his testimony about Jesus (21:24).

20:1 The first day of the week was Sunday. Mary Magdalene (and several other women) decided to attend to some matters that had been left undone because of the beginning of the Sabbath (see note at 19:42). The need to complete the care for the dead may have overridden the customary seven-day mourning period (see note at 11:20). On while it was still dark, compare the slightly different time frame depicted in Mt 28:1; Mk 16:2; and Lk 24:1.

20:2 At this point Mary had no thought of Jesus' resurrection. The Jewish charge that His disciples stole His body (Mt 27:62-66; 28:11-15) shows that grave robbery was not uncommon. The plural we suggests the presence of other women besides Mary. On the other disciple, see note at 18:15-16.

20:5 Apparently by now there was enough daylight to see inside the burial chamber through the small, low opening in the cave tomb. The other disciple did not go in, presumably in deference to Simon Peter, a leader among the Twelve.

20:7 Jesus' resurrection body apparently passed through the linen wrappings similar to the way in which He later appeared to His disciples in a locked room (vv. 19,26). The reference to the head wrapping being folded up in a separate place by itself counters the notion of grave robbers, who in their haste would not have taken the time to fold up this cloth.

20:8-9 The presence of two witnesses rendered the evidence admissible under Jewish law (Dt 17:6; 19:15). The other disciple believed based on what he saw, not on an understanding from Scripture that Jesus must rise from the dead. This lack of expectation of a resurrection shows that the disciples did not fabricate the resurrection story to fit their preconceived expectations. Rather, the resurrection shocked them and did not fit with what they understood from Scripture. Only later, aided by the Spirit's teaching (see notes at 14:26 and 16:13), did they come to see that Jesus' resurrection was foretold in the OT.

20:10 When the disciples went home, "the disciple Jesus loved" in all likelihood told the Lord's mother, whom he had taken "into his home" (19:27), that He was risen.

20:11 Mary was crying, not because Jesus had died, but because His body had vanished.

20:12She saw two angels in white. Angels often appeared in pairs (Ac 1:10) and are often depicted as dressed in white (Ezk 9:2; Dn 10:5-6; Rv 15:6).The angels were sitting . . . one at the head and one at the feet of the burial shelf.

20:15 Mary mistook Jesus for the gardener, which suggests that Jesus was indistinguishable from an ordinary person. Gardeners often tend to their grounds in the early morning.

20:17 My Father and your Father maintains a distinction between how Jesus and the disciples relate to God. Even so, Jesus called believers His brothers.

20:19 , 21 , 26 The common Jewish greeting Peace to you (representing Hb Shalom alekem) is still used today. Peace was Jesus' gift to His followers by virtue of His sacrificial death on the cross. On the disciples' fear of the Jews, see note at 7:13.

20:21-22 These verses contain the Gospel of John's version of the Great Commission, which culminates in the presentation of Jesus as the One sent from the Father (see note at 3:16-18). Now the sent One (Jesus) had turned Sender, commissioning His followers to serve as His messengers and representatives (17:18). All three persons of the Godhead are involved in this commissioning. As Jesus was sent by God the Father, so He, the Son, was sending out His disciples (20:21), equipping them with the Holy Spirit (v. 22). John thus demonstrated that each member of the Godhead is involved in the redemption plan and the mission of spreading the gospel to the world. The Holy Spirit was given dramatically and permanently a short time later (Ac 2).

20:23 The reference to forgiveness or lack thereof may echo the reference to "the key of the House of David" in Is 22:22 (cp. Rv 3:7). Jesus bestowed on His followers authority to announce access or disbarment from God's kingdom based on reception or denial of the gospel message. For those who reject Jesus, His messengers are commissioned to say that they do not have forgiveness of sins.

20:24 On Thomas as Twin, see note at 1:38.

20:25 Apparently Thomas thought the disciples had seen a ghost (Mt 14:26). Yet John was careful to affirm that Jesus' resurrection body was not that of a phantom or spirit apparition but a genuine (although glorified) human body (Jn 20:27).

20:26 After eight days refers to the following Sunday, one week after Easter (v. 19).

20:29 Readers of the Gospel of John may believe without seeing because John, by aid of the Holy Spirit, has written the truth about God's Son.

20:30-31 On Jesus' signs in John's Gospel, see note at 2:11.

21:1 - 25 This epilogue narrates Jesus' third and final resurrection appearance recorded in this Gospel and contrasts the callings of Peter and "the disciple Jesus loved."

21:1 With the week-long festival of Unleavened Bread now past, the disciples left Jerusalem and returned to Galilee (see note at 20:26; cp. Lk 2:43). On the Sea of Tiberias, see note at 6:1.

21:2 The names of Zebedee's sons are given in the Synoptic Gospels as James and John (Mt 4:21). Luke mentioned that they were "Simon's partners" in the fishing business before they were called to follow Jesus as disciples (see note at Jn 1:40).

21:3 Night was the preferred time for fishing in ancient times (Lk 5:5). This schedule allowed fish caught at night to be sold fresh in the morning market.

21:7 The disciple . . . Jesus loved must be one of the seven mentioned in verse 2, which included Zebedee's sons, and was almost certainly John the son of Zebedee, author of this Gospel (see note at v. 24).

21:9 On the charcoal fire, see note at 18:18.

21:11 Various attempts have been made to interpret the number 153 symbolically, but most likely it simply represents the actual number of fish. Large numbers elsewhere in John are meant literally as well (2:6; 12:3).

21:13 By taking the bread and fish and giving them to His disciples, Jesus acted as a Jewish host pronouncing the blessing at a meal (6:11,23).

21:15 On Simon, son of John, see note at 1:42. Jesus' question do you love Me more than these probably meant, "Do you love Me more than these disciples do?" rather than, "Do you love Me more than these fish [i.e., his profession]?" or "Do you love Me more than you love these men?" though each of the three meanings is possible.

21:15-17 Peter had denied Jesus three times (18:15-18,25-27); now Jesus asked him three times to reaffirm his love for Him before recommissioning him for gospel service.

21:18 Stretch out your hands refers to crucifixion, where a person's hands and arms are spread out and nailed to the crossbeam. Tradition says Peter chose to be crucified upside down because he felt himself unworthy of dying in the same exact manner as Jesus.

21:19 The reference to signify by what kind of death he [Peter] would glorify God echoes the reference "to signify what kind of death He [Jesus] was about to die" in 12:33. This verse therefore establishes a connection between the deaths of Jesus and Peter. As God's Lamb, Jesus died for the sins of the world

(1:29,36); Peter died a martyr's death, giving his life as a witness to his faith in Jesus.

21:20 On the disciple Jesus loved, see note at 13:23.

21:21-23 Like the final chapter of Matthew, the closing verses of John's Gospel dispel a rumor. Matthew denied that Jesus' disciples stole His body (Mt 28:11-15; cp. Mt 27:62-66) while John sought to lay to rest the rumor that Christ had promised to return during John's lifetime.

21:24 This is the disciple is a third-person authorial self-reference. Again, this is "the disciple Jesus loved" (cp. v. 7; see note at 13:23), one of the Twelve (cp. 21:20), John the son of Zebedee, the apostle John, who referred to himself by the epithet "the beloved disciple." We know represents an instance of the authorial "we," by which the author included himself along with his audience.

21:25 John acknowledged that he had to be selective, choosing from a vast amount of material about Jesus (specifically, the "signs"; cp. 20:30-31).

Like the related verb lego (to speak), the noun logos most often refers to either oral or written communication. It means statement or report in some contexts, but most often in John's Gospel (and in the NT in general) logos refers to God's Word (that is, the Old Testament) or to Jesus' words. Thus, the primary use of logos is to denote divine revelation in some form or another. John used the term in its most exalted sense when he personified logos to refer to Christ. The Logos eternally existed as God (the Son) and with God (the Father)—He was in fact the Creator (Jn 1:1-3)—but He became a human being (v. 14), Jesus of Nazareth, so that He could reveal the Father and His will for humanity (v. 18).

The expression born again comes from Jn 3:3, where Jesus tells Nicodemus that he must be born (gennao, the term used for the genealogy in Mt 1:1-17) again (anothen). The term anothen can mean again or from above. The meaning again for anothen occurs in Gl 4:9, which is the only clear instance of this meaning in the NT. All other uses of the term mean from above (see Jn 3:31; 19:11; Jms 1:17; 3:15,17) or something similar (such as top in Mt 27:51; Mk 15:38; Jn 19:23). It is likely that Nicodemus misunderstood Jesus' use of anothen, thinking He meant again as in a second time. This is why Nicodemus responded the way he did, by a reference to physical birth (3:4). But Jesus went on to indicate that He was referring to the other meaning of anothen, a birth from above, a birth from the Spirit (vv.5,6,8).

Focus Passage John 3:16,18

English translations have traditionally understood monogenes to be from monos (only) and gennao (beget), thus following the Latin Vulgate (unigenitus) and translating the word only begotten. This has caused great misunderstanding since God the Son did not have an origin and was not created by God. He is Himself an eternal being. It is best to understand monogenes to be from monos (only) and genos (kind, Latin genus), meaning the only one of its kind. This view is more consistent with John's five uses of the word, and support for this translation is found in Hb 11:17 where Isaac is called Abraham's monogenes. Isaac was not Abraham's only begotten son but he was the only one of his kind —the son of promise. In the Old Latin translation, monogenes was translated as unicus, from which we get our word unique. This is what is meant by monogenes in John's writings (Jn 1:14,18; 3:16,18; 1Jn 4:9): Jesus is God's unique Son in that His essential nature is the same as the Father's.

The Greek word pisteuo means to believe, trust, rely upon, and its related noun is pistis (faith). In his Gospel, John never used the words repent, repentance, or faith to describe the way people are saved. Instead, he used believe since this term included all these ideas. John preferred the verb form to emphasize the act that is necessary for someone to be saved—total dependence on the work of Another. John did indicate, however, that believing can be superficial; that is, it can be merely intellectual without resulting in true salvation (Jn 2:23-24; 12:42-43; see Jms 2:19). But John's main point is that complete reliance upon Jesus, the Messiah and Son of God (20:31), for salvation gives eternal life to the person who believes (3:16; 6:47). Jesus used a wordplay when He said that people must do 'the work of God' for salvation, for His point was that we must not try to work for it at all. We must simply ''believe in the One He has sent' (6:29).

The word phos is seldom used in the literal sense in the NT. Most often it is a metaphor referring to holiness, purity, or godliness. Jesus used the term in the Sermon on the Mount to describe His disciples and the holy standard of conduct that He expected them to model to the world (Mt 5:14-16; 6:23). In John's Gospel, however, Jesus Himself is 'the light,' as stated in the Prologue (1:4-5) and in Jesus' own words (8:12; 9:5). In this case, the light is revelatory and reflects God's character or holiness. In other words, the light refers to God's revelation or disclosure of Himself to the world in the incarnation (1:4-9). Incredibly, those in darkness prefer the darkness, at least until they accept the truth of God's revelation in His Son and believe in the light (3:19-21; 8:12; 12:46) hamartolos Greek Pronunciation [hah mahr toh LAHSS]

One of the key doctrines of the Christian faith is that every person is a sinner and must believe in Jesus as Savior to have eternal life. This teaching is consistent with the use of the word hamartolos (sinner) in several places and with other related passages about sin (Rm 3:9-23; 5:12). A special use of the term hamartolos occurs in the Gospels and refers to those who have a reputation for being guilty of grievous sins, such as tax collectors, prostitutes, and pagans (see Mt 9:10-11; Lk 6:32-34; 7:36-39). In the aftermath of Jesus' miracle of healing the man born blind (Jn 9), Jewish leaders used the term sinner in this especially derisive sense to describe Jesus (v. 24). In doing so they hoped to undermine the clear implication of this miracle—that Jesus was the Messiah—and to keep people from following Him.

The Greek noun anastasis is derived from the verb anistemi, meaning literally to stand up and then by extension 'to rise up.' Both words could be used metaphorically. The word anastasis was common in the ancient Greek world; but it rarely referred to the resurrection of the dead, which is the dominant meaning of its occurrences in the NT. Two major events are described with the word anastasis in the NT: the physical, bodily resurrection of Jesus in the past (Rm 1:4; 1Co 15:12-13), and the physical, bodily resurrection of believers in the future (Jn 5:29; 11:24-25; 1Co 15:42; Php 3:11; Rv 20:5-6).

It is also related to the noun paraklesis (comfort, exhortation). Both are much more common than parakletos but do not occur in John's writings, while parakletos occurs only in John's writings. In all four occurrences of parakletos in John's Gospel, Jesus used the term to refer to the Holy Spirit as our Counselor. The noun kosmos (English cosmos, cosmic), is normally translated world and most often has negative connotations, especially in John's writings. John provides the foundational verse about the kosmos in 1:10—'He [the Word] was in the world, and the world was created through Him, yet the world did not recognize Him." The kosmos is consistently described by John as hostile to Jesus and the things of God. The world needs the light (1:9; see 8:12) because it is in darkness (3:19). It is dead and needs life (6:33,51). The world hates Jesus (7:7) and His followers (15:18; 17:14), but it will be judged (9:39; 12:31), as will its prince (that is, Satan; 12:31; 16:11). But as 'the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world'' (1:29), Jesus 'conquered the world'' (16:33). God loved the world (despite its sins) and gave His Son to redeem the world (3:16-17).

The words ego eimi occur numerous times in the NT, but in John's Gospel they have a special meaning with two related connotations. First, I am often refers to Jesus' claim to be the Messiah. This is clear in John 4 where the woman at the well referred to the coming Messiah (v. 25) and Jesus responded, 'I am He [ego eimi]' (v. 26). This meaning of ego eimi also occurs in Jesus' words to the disciples, 'I am telling you now before it [Judas' betrayal] happens, so that when it does happen you will believe that I am He [ego eimi]' (13:19). Jesus' foreknowledge of Judas' betrayal provided evidence for the other disciples that He was indeed the Messiah. Second, ego eimi often refers to Jesus' claim to deity and probably reflects the burning bush episode when God revealed Himself to Moses as 'I am' (Ex 3:14).

Just before His death on the cross, Jesus uttered a single word of victory: tetelestai [teh TEHL ehs tigh], 'It is finished!' (Jn 19:30). The verb teleo is related to several other Greek words that refer to something being finished, accomplished, completed, or coming to an end. (The same verb is translated 'accomplished' in v. 28.) The perfect tense of the Greek verb Jesus used indicates that He understood His death at this point in time to have abiding or lasting results. Jesus' death on the cross on our behalf was His purpose for coming into the world. It is not surprising that Revelation uses the term eight times, more than any other NT book, to describe various events related to Jesus' second coming (Rv 10:7; 11:7; 15:1,8; 17:17; 20:3,5,7).

Although agapao (verb) and agape (noun) are normally considered the Greek

The phileo word family has over 30 terms in the NT, including philos (friend), philadelphia (brotherly love), and philema (kiss). But phileo is also used to describe the Father's love for the Son (Jn 5:20), the Father's love for believers (Jn 16:27), Jesus' love for believers (11:3; 20:2; Rv 3:19), and believers' love for the Lord (1Co 16:22) and for each other (Ti 3:15). Both agapao (Jn 13:23; 19:26; 21:7,20) and phileo (20:2) are used to describe 'the disciple Jesus loved,' and the meaning is the same. Thus, it is better not to make a sharp distinction in John 21:15-17 between agapao (Jesus' term in vv. 15,16) and phileo (Jesus' term in v. 17 and all three times by Peter). Peter's threefold confession of his love for Jesus, which corresponds to his earlier threefold denial of Him, should not be understood as a secondary form of love .

Essays Incarnation and Christology

Stephen J. Wellum

The word "incarnation" derives from a Latin word developed from in + caro [flesh], which literally means "in the flesh." In Christian theology the term refers to the supernatural act of God, effected by the Holy Spirit, whereby the eternal Son of God, the second person of the Triune Godhead, took into union with Himself a complete human nature apart from sin. As a result of that action, the Son of God became the God-man forever, the Word made flesh (Jn 1:1,14; Rm 1:3-4; 8:3; Gl 4:4; Php 2:6-11; 1Tm 3:16; Heb 2:5-18; 1Jn 4:2).

The means whereby the incarnation came about is the virgin conception, commonly known as the virgin birth—the miraculous action of the Holy Spirit in the womb of Mary—so that what was conceived was fully God and fully man in one person forever (Mt 1:18-25; Lk 1:26-38). He did this in order to become the Redeemer of the church, our Prophet, Priest, and King, and thus to save His people from their sins (Mt 1:21). By becoming one with us, the Lord of Gl ory not only shares our sorrows and burdens, He is also able to secure our redemption by bearing our sin on the cross as our substitute and being raised for our justification (see Rm 4:25; Heb 2:17-18; 4:14-16; 1Pt 3:18).

The Humanity and Deity of Jesus in Scripture Biblical evidence for the full deity and humanity of Christ is abundant. In regard to His humanity, Jesus is presented as a Jewish man who was born, underwent the normal process of growth and development (Lk 2:52), experienced a full range of human experiences (e.g. Mt 8:10,24; 9:36; Lk 22:44; Jn 19:28), including growth in knowledge (Mk 13:32), and the experience of death (Jn 19:30). Apart from His sinlessness, which Scripture unequivocally affirms (Jn 8:46; 2Co 5:21; Heb 4:15; 1Pt 1:19), He is one with us in every way.

Scripture also affirms that the man Christ Jesus is also the eternal Son of God and thus God equal with the Father and Spirit. From the opening pages of the NT, Jesus is identified as the L ord : the One who establishes the divine rule and inaugurates the new covenant era in fulfillment of OT expectation—something only God can do (e.g. Is 9:6-7; 11:1-10; Jr 31:31-34; Ezk 34). That is why Jesus' miracles are not merely human acts empowered by the Spirit of God; rather they are demonstrations of His own divine authority over nature (e.g. Mt 8:23-27; 14:22-23), Satan and his hosts (Mt 12:27-28), and all things (Eph 1:9-10,19-23). Because He is God the Son, Jesus has the authority to forgive sin (Mk 2:3-12), call Himself the fulfillment of Scripture (Mt 5:17-19; 11:13), view His relationship with the Father as one of equality and reciprocity (Mt 11:25-27; Jn 5:16-30; 10:14-30), and do the very works of God in creation, providence, and redemption (Jn 1:1-18; Php 2:6-11; Col 1:15-20; Heb 1:1-3).

Theological Expression of Jesus' Natures Later church reflection, especially at the Council of Chalcedon (A.D. 451), affirmed that we cannot do justice to Scripture without confessing that Jesus of Nazareth was fully God and fully man. God the Son, who gave personal identity to the human nature He had assumed and did so without putting aside or compromising His divine nature, must be confessed as one person who now exists in two natures. Additionally, Chalcedon affirmed that we must not think that the incarnation involved a change in the properties of each nature so that some kind of blending resulted which was neither divine nor human, as the Eutychians wrongly affirmed. Rather, we must affirm that the properties of each nature (human and divine) were preserved so that Jesus is all that God is in all of His perfections and all that we humans are except in terms of sin.

This affirmation entails at least two important points. First, the man Jesus from the moment of conception was personal by virtue of the union of the human nature in the person of the divine Son. At no point were there two persons or two centers of self-consciousness, as the Nestorians wrongly affirmed. That is why in our Lord Jesus Christ we come face-to-face with God. We meet Him, not subsumed under human flesh, not merely associated with it, but in undiminished moral splendor. The deity and humanity coincide, not because the human has grown into the divine, but because the divine Son has taken to Himself a human nature for our salvation. He is the divine Son who subsists in two natures, who has lived His life for us as our representative head, died our death as our substitute, and been raised for our eternal salvation. This is why the Lord Jesus is utterly unique and without parallel and thus the only Lord and Savior. Second, since in the incarnation the eternal Son took to Himself a human nature, He can now live a fully human life. Yet He was not totally confined to that human nature as if for a period of time the divine nature was divested of its attributes or function. That is why Scripture affirms that even as the incarnate One, the divine Son continued to uphold and sustain the universe (Col 1:15-17; Heb 1:1-3) even while He lived out His life on earth as a man dependent upon the Father and empowered by the Spirit (Jn 5:19-27; Ac 10:38).

Our affirmation of the biblical Jesus is beyond our full comprehension, but it is only in such a Jesus that we have One who can meet our every need. Apart from Him as God the Son incarnate, we do not have a Redeemer who can stand on our behalf as a man, let alone satisfy God's own righteous demand upon us due to our sin. After all, it is only God who can save us. By becoming one with us, our Lord not only becomes our sympathetic Savior, He also accomplishes a work that saves us fully, completely, and finally.

Is Jesus the Only Way?

Robert M. Bowman, Jr.

Is faith in Jesus Christ the only way of salvation—the only way to gain eternal life? In thinking about this question, here are some fixed biblical teachings to keep in mind: Not everyone will be saved. Some people will not make it to heaven (Mt 7:13-14; 25:41,46; 2Th 1:6-9; Heb 10:26-31; Rv 20:10-15).

People will be judged by their works. God does not condemn people who never heard of Jesus because they failed to believe in Him. Rather, God judges all people based on their works (Ps 62:12; Mt 16:27; Rm 2:6; Rv 2:23; 20:13). People who trust in Jesus are mercifully saved from God's just judgment by Jesus' death on their behalf.

None of us can be saved by doing good works. "For no one will be justified in His sight by the works of the law . . . For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Rm 3:20,23). Two important conclusions follow. First, God is not obliged to save anyone, for no sinner deserves eternal life. Second, everyone needs a Savior.

Jesus is the only Savior available. Only Jesus died to save us from our sins (Mt

1:21; 1Co 15:3; 1Tm 1:15; 2Tm 1:9-10). That is why Jesus is "the Savior of the world" (Jn 4:42; see 12:47; 1Jn 4:14). Jesus claimed to be the only way: "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through Me" (Jn 14:6). Peter agreed: "There is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given to people and we must be saved by it" (Ac 4:12).

Those who reject Jesus will be lost. Whatever may be said about those who have never heard the gospel, those who have heard and rejected it are in trouble. Jesus warned that those who reject Him are rejecting the Father (Lk 10:16; Jn 12:48). People who know that Christ died for them but refuse to follow Him face a terrifying judgment (Heb 10:26-27).

Does all this mean that no one who has not heard of Jesus can be saved? Not quite. We know that Old Testament believers were saved by trusting in God's mercy, even though they lived before Jesus came (Rm 4:1-7; Heb 11:4-32). The unborn, infants, young children, and people whose mental development is impaired are not capable of discerning good from evil or making moral choices (Is 7:15-16; Rm 9:11). We may presume that God does not condemn these souls even though they do not consciously choose to follow Jesus. Apart from these exceptions, it is clear that Jesus' command to take the gospel to all nations (Mt 28:19-20; Lk 24:47) assumes that people who do not know Christ as Savior are in spiritual darkness and need to hear and embrace the gospel (Ac 26:18; Eph 2:12). Every Christian should have a sense of urgency that all people everywhere need Jesus Christ as their Savior.

The Cross and the Gospel

Bruce A. Ware

The cross of Christ and the gospel of Christ are inextricably linked. Indeed, the gospel is the good news of what took place when Christ died on the cross. To understand what Jesus accomplished on the cross, then, is to understand the gospel. To believe personally that what Christ did on the cross He did for you, is to believe the gospel of Jesus Christ.

What Happened on the Cross?

What took place in Christ's death on the cross? The short answer is this: "Christ died for our sins" (1Co 15:3). Christ's death for our sin must be understood in two broad ways: First, when Jesus was nailed to the cross, the Father charged to Him all of our sin (2Co 5:21) and judged the full penalty of our sin in Jesus as He died (Col 2:14). Second, Jesus conquered the power of Satan, darkness, and death as He died for our sin (Col 2:15; Heb 2:14), thus establishing His supreme authority and power over everything in creation (Eph 1:20-23). To summarize, in His death on the cross Jesus fully paid the penalty for our sin, and He totally defeated the power of sin.

Jesus' subsequent resurrection from the dead was not just a nice ending to the story but rather necessary evidence that His death for sin really worked (1Co 15:17). The penalty of sin is death, and the greatest power that sin has over us is death. But since the penalty of sin is death, and since Christ paid the penalty of sin fully by His death on the cross, His resurrection from the dead demonstrated that the penalty had been paid in full. And since the greatest power of sin is death, and since Christ conquered all of sin's power in His death on the cross, His resurrection also demonstrated that the complete power of sin had been defeated as He arose victorious from the grave.

Erasing the Certificate of Debt It is only because Christ paid sin's penalty that He was able also to liberate us from sin's power. That is, His payment of sin's penalty (sometimes called "penal substitution") is the basis for His conquering of sin's power (sometimes called "Christus Victor").

Consider one sample passage that shows this to be true. Colossians 2:13-14 teaches that believers are forgiven of all their trespasses through the death of Christ on the cross. The thrust here is on expiation: the liability we owed before a holy God to suffer the penalty for our violation of His law is removed because Christ took upon Himself our record of debt. Jesus "erased the certificate of debt, with its obligations, that was against us and opposed to us, and has taken it out of the way by nailing it to the cross" (v. 14).

The substitutionary death Christ died, in which He cancelled out the debt of sinners, then, is the backdrop for the next glorious truth found in Colossians 2:15. Here it is said that Jesus "disarmed the rulers and authorities and disgraced them publicly," putting them to shame and triumphing over them. The death by which Satan is disarmed and put to shame, then, is a death that cancels our sin. The disarming of Satan and the death that cancels our sin are theologically linked in this way: the basis of Satan's power over sinners is sin itself; the only way to overthrow this power was for sin to be paid for and forgiven. Christ's forgiveness through penal substitution, therefore, is the means by which we are freed from Satan's power.

An Analogy of Our Freedom An analogy may assist in clarifying Scripture's teaching about the pardon Christ earned for believers on the cross. Under a just system of laws, a prisoner is jailed because he has been convicted of some crime whose penalty involves his incarceration. Notice, then, that his guilt forms the basis for his bondage. Only because he has been proven guilty of breaking the law does the state have the right to imprison him. Furthermore, if a prisoner can prove his actual innocence, such that the charge of guilt can be removed—e.g., if some forensic or DNA evidence available after his incarceration demonstrates his innocence—then the state is obligated to release him from prison. It is clear, then, that the power of the state to put criminals in bondage comes from the guilt they have incurred and the accompanying penalty directed at them as a result. Remove the guilt and its penalty, and you remove the just basis for the state's power to enforce bondage.

Similarly, Satan's power over sinners is tied specifically and exclusively to the sinner's guilt through sin. His hold on them is owing to their sinful rebellion against God. But remove the guilt through Christ's payment for their sin and you remove the basis for Satan's hold on them! So by His death Christ took upon Himself the sin of others and paid the full penalty for their sin. As a consequence, the hold that Satan had upon sinners is necessarily broken since the basis for this bondage is removed. Remove the guilt and you remove the bondage; accomplish penal substitution and you accomplish Christus Victor.

The Cross Is Good News The gospel is the good news that in the cross of Christ, the penalty of our sin was paid fully by Christ. By this, sin's powerful hold on our lives, which leads ultimately to death, has been completely defeated. If we will trust fully Christ's accomplishment for us—that He paid sin's penalty and conquered sin's power—and not look to our own works or accomplishments as if they could commend us to God, we will be saved (Eph 2:8-9).

THE MISSIONAL CHURCH

Ed Stetzer

"Peace to you! As the Father has sent Me, I also send you" (Jn 20:21).

Most believers readily grasp the idea of Jesus being sent to the world. While speaking to His disciples at the well of Samaria, Jesus said, "My food is to do the will of Him who sent Me." In John chapters 4-8 Jesus spoke of being sent by His Father on 14 separate occasions, such as saying, "I have come down from heaven, not to do My will, but the will of Him who sent Me" (6:38) and "I am the One who testifies about Myself, and the Father who sent Me testifies about Me" (8:18). Paul wrote of the same truth in Romans 8:3 referring to God's "sending His own Son in flesh like ours." When Jesus says, "the Father has sent Me," it is not a surprise. The fact that Jesus was the "sent One" is one of the most fundamental identifications of Jesus. The incarnation of Christ is the definitive occurrence of being sent on mission—and a model for us to represent Christ in the world.

Believers know that they are sent on mission into the world. The word "sent" is replete through Paul's epistles as he mentions those such as Timothy and Titus who have been entrusted with a message and a mission. In the book of Acts, sending is a common occurrence as well. Ananias is sent to pray for Paul and open his eyes. Paul and Barnabas are sent out from the church in Antioch as missionaries with the gospel. "As they were ministering to the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, 'Set apart for Me Barnabas and Saul for the work that I have called them to.' Then, after they had fasted, prayed, and laid hands on them, they sent them off " (Ac 13:2-3). Most know that Jesus "sent" some, but often do not consider the breadth and depth of that sending (cp. Gn 12:1-3; Ex 19:5,6; Is 6:8; Mt 24:14; 28:18-20; Lk 24:46-48; Ac 1:8; 1Pt 2:9-10).

All of God's people are sent on mission, the only questions are "where?" and "among whom?" So, God has a kingdom mission and He entrusts that mission to the church—in other words, the church does not have a mission, but the mission has a church. Some are sent cross-culturally as missionaries (we call that missions), but all are sent (we call that being missional).

To understand the depth of this sentness, consider that the source of our missional identity is located in the nature of God. Further consider that this sending is as central to God's nature as His love, forgiveness, righteousness, and holiness. It must be since we are given example after example of it in His Word. Without God's sending nature we would know little else of His other attributes. Without His sending nature, we would not see the "groom coming from the bridal chamber" in creation (Ps 19:5) culminating in Jesus "present[ing] the church to Himself in splendor" in the gospel (Eph 5:27).

God's sending is as tangible as any other attribute of the Godhead. And sending does belong to the Godhead: The Father sent His Son and the Holy Spirit. The Father, Son, and Spirit in indivisible unity send the church. We are to be missional, we are to live sent. Our sent-and-sending identity is connected ontologically with the very existence of the church. That is, just as it is the nature of God, it is in the nature of the church. When Jesus proclaimed, “As the Father has sent Me, I also send you” (Jn 20:21), His mandate was a commissioning act for the disciples of that day. His command then develops into the missional task described by Peter in his first letter. “But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for His possession, so that you may proclaim the praises of the One who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light” (1Pt 2:9).

The concept of a missional church is recognition that God is a sending God and we, the church and individual believers, are to live sent. The missional church is shaped by the idea that every believer is to live on mission. Being sent means that we move outside the walls of our church buildings and our Christian homes in order to engage all people with the gospel. The missional nature of the church calls for us to engage in and support the work of international missionaries to take the gospel across the world and the local mission-shaped believers to take the gospel and show the love of Christ across the street. There is a sentness inherent to being a follower of Jesus. It is the way of Jesus in us.

We are not sent on mission alone. God’s people join Him on His mission. We are commanded and empowered to participate with Him. We know this because Jesus promised, “I am with you always, to the end of the age” (Mt 28:20). We are sent on a mission with the Sender. As believers, we don’t decide if we are on mission. We are by our calling—and because of God’s nature. The only question is whether or not we are living up to the calling we have been given. Is our identity (sent on mission) aligning with our life (living on mission)?

Missional churches engage the people with the redemptive message of the gospel. To do so, the church emulates Christ in the engagement of the mission. He came announcing that He would serve the hurting (Lk 4) and save the lost (Lk 19:10). We are called to join Him on that mission and show and share the good news of Jesus to a world Jesus loves. The missional church contends for the truth.

The missional church engages and inhabits the culture while seeking to remain separate from its sin and sinful structures. Jesus Christ was a thoroughly Jewish, first-century man who engaged believers, doubters, scoffers, friends, and foes, yet never sinned. He was truly in the world without being of the world. We can engage the greedy without becoming greedy, the hateful without becoming hateful, and the proud without becoming prideful. The existence of temptation should not hinder us from missional living. Instead, we are to be a culturally relevant, counter-culture community for the kingdom.

Last, being sent by Jesus as the Father sent Him means that the seed of the gospel will take root. The seed of the gospel must be sown in the soil of the culture, which necessitates Christians being engaged there. Scripture calls us salt and light and that requires presence and proclamation.

The sending nature of the Father, the commission by Christ, and the empowerment of the Spirit creates a missional church. As believers, we should revel in the invitation by Christ to join His missional people.

ACTS

Prologue

1 I wrote the first narrative, Theophilus, about all that Jesus began to do and teach [a] 2 until the day He was taken up, after He had given orders through the Holy Spirit to the apostles He had chosen. [b] 3 After He had suffered, He also presented Himself alive to them by many convincing proofs, appearing to them during 40 days and speaking about the kingdom of God. [c]

The Holy Spirit Promised 4 While He was together [A] with them, He commanded them not to leave Jerusalem, but to wait for the Father's promise. [d] "This," He said, "is what you heard from Me; 5 for John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now." [e]

6 So when they had come together, they asked Him, "Lord, are You restoring the kingdom to Israel at this time? "

7 He said to them, "It is not for you to know times or periods that the Father has set by His own authority. [f] 8 But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come on you, and you will be My witnesses in Jerusalem, in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends [g] of the earth." [h]

The Ascension

9 After He had said this, He was taken up as they were watching, and a cloud took Him out of their sight. 10 While He was going, they were gazing into heaven, and suddenly two men in white clothes stood by them. [i] 11 They said, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking up into heaven? This Jesus, who has been taken from you into heaven, will come in the same way that you have seen Him going into heaven." [j]

United in Prayer

12 Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called the Mount of Olives, which is near Jerusalem — a Sabbath day's journey away. 13 When they arrived, they went to the room [k] upstairs where they were staying:

Peter, John,
James, Andrew,
Philip, Thomas,
Bartholomew, Matthew,
James the son of Alphaeus,
Simon the Zealot,
and Judas the son of James. [l]

14 All these were continually united [m] in prayer, [n] along with the women, including Mary [B] the mother of Jesus, and His brothers. [o]

Matthias Chosen

15 During these days Peter stood up among the brothers [p] — the number of people who were together was about 120 — and said: 16 "Brothers, the Scripture had to be fulfilled that the Holy Spirit through the mouth of David spoke in advance about Judas, who became a guide to those who arrested Jesus. [q] 17 For he was one of our number and was allotted a share in this ministry." [r] 18 Now this man acquired a field with his unrighteous wages. He fell headfirst and burst open in the middle, and all his insides spilled out. [s] 19 This became known to all the residents of Jerusalem, so that in their own language that field is called Hakeldama (that is, Field of Blood). 20 "For it is written in the Book of Psalms:

Let his dwelling become desolate;
let no one live in it; [t] and Let someone else take his position. [u, v]

21 "Therefore, from among the men who have accompanied us during the whole time the Lord Jesus went in and out among us — 22 beginning from the baptism of John until the day He was taken up from us — from among these, it is necessary that one become a witness with us of His resurrection." [w]

23 So they proposed two: Joseph, called Barsabbas, who was also known as Justus, and Matthias. [x] 24 Then they prayed, [y] "You, Lord, know the hearts of all; show which of these two You have chosen [z] 25 to take the place [a] in this apostolic service [b] that Judas left to go to his own place." 26 Then they cast lots [c] for them, and the lot fell to Matthias. So he was numbered with the 11 apostles.

Pentecost

2 When the day of Pentecost had arrived, they were all together in one place. [a] 2 Suddenly a sound like that of a violent rushing wind [b] came from heaven, and it filled the whole house where they were staying. [c] 3 And tongues, like flames of fire that were divided, appeared to them and rested on each one of them. 4 Then they were all filled [d] with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in different •languages , as the Spirit gave them ability for speech. [e] 5 There were Jews living in Jerusalem, devout men from every nation [f] under heaven. 6 When this sound occurred, a crowd came together and was confused because each one heard them speaking in his own language. 7 And they were astounded and amazed, saying, [g] "Look, aren't all these who are speaking Galileans? [h] 8 How is it that each of us can hear in our own native language?
9 Parthians, Medes, Elamites; those who live in Mesopotamia, in Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and •Asia , [i] 10 Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya near Cyrene; visitors from Rome, both Jews and •proselytes , [j] 11 Cretans and Arabs — we hear them speaking the magnificent acts of God in our own languages." 12 They were all astounded and perplexed, saying to one another, "What could this be? " 13 But some sneered and said, "They're full of new wine! " [k]

Peter's Sermon

14 But Peter stood up with the Eleven, raised his voice, and proclaimed to them: "Men of Judah and all you residents of Jerusalem, let me explain this [A] to you and pay attention to my words. 15 For these people are not drunk, as you suppose, since it's only nine in the morning. [B] 16 On the contrary, this is what was spoken through the prophet Joel:

> 17 And it will be in the last days, says God, > that I will pour out My Spirit on all humanity;
> then your sons and your daughters will prophesy,
> your young men will see visions,
> and your old men will dream dreams. [l] > 18 I will even pour out My Spirit > on My male and female •slaves in those days,
> and they will prophesy. [m] > 19 I will display wonders in the heaven above > and signs on the earth below:
> blood and fire and a cloud of smoke.
> 20 The sun will be turned to darkness and the moon to blood [n] before the great and remarkable Day of the Lord [o] comes.

21 Then everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved. [p, q]

22 "Men of Israel, listen to these words: This Jesus the •Nazarene was a man pointed out to you by God with miracles, wonders, and signs that God did among you through Him, just as you yourselves know. [r] 23 Though He was delivered up according to God's determined plan and foreknowledge, you used [s] lawless people [C] to nail Him to a cross and kill Him. [t] 24 God raised Him up, ending the pains of death, [u] because it was not possible for Him to be held by it. 25 For David says of Him:

I saw the Lord ever before me;
because He is at my right hand,
I will not be shaken.
26 Therefore my heart was glad,
and my tongue rejoiced.
Moreover, my flesh will rest in hope,
27 because You will not leave me in •Hades or allow Your Holy One to see decay. [v] 28 You have revealed the paths of life to me;
You will fill me with gladness
in Your presence. [w, x]

29 "Brothers, I can confidently speak to you about the patriarch David: He is both dead and buried, and his tomb is with us to this day. [y] 30 Since he was a prophet, he knew that God had sworn an oath to him to seat one of his descendants [z, D] on his throne. [a] 31 Seeing this in advance, he spoke concerning the resurrection of the •Messiah :

He [b] was not left in Hades,
and His flesh did not experience decay. [c, d]

32 "God has resurrected [e] this Jesus. We are all witnesses of this. 33 Therefore, since He has been exalted to the right hand of God [f] and has received from the Father the promised Holy Spirit, [g] He has poured out [h] what you both see and hear. 34 For it was not David who ascended into the heavens, but he himself says:

The Lord declared to my Lord,

‘Sit at My right hand
35 until I make Your enemies Your footstool.’ [i, j]
36 “Therefore let all the house of Israel know with certainty that God has made this Jesus, whom you crucified, both Lord and Messiah! ” [k]

Forgiveness through the Messiah

37 When they heard this, they came under deep conviction [E] and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles: “Brothers, what must we do? ” [l] 38 “Repent,” [m] Peter said to them, “and be baptized, [n] each of you, in the name [o] of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins, and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. 39 For the promise is for you and for your children, and for all who are far off, [p, q] as many as the Lord our God will call.” 40 And with many other words he testified and strongly urged them, saying, “Be saved from this corrupt [F] generation! ” [r]

A Generous and Growing Church

41 So those who accepted his message were baptized, and that day about 3,000 people were added to them. 42 And they devoted themselves to the apostles' teaching, [s] to the fellowship, to the breaking of bread, and to the prayers. [t] 43 Then fear came over everyone, and many wonders and signs were being performed through the apostles. [u] 44 Now all the believers were together and held all things in common. [v] 45 They sold their possessions and property and distributed the proceeds to all, as anyone had a need. [G] 46 Every day they devoted themselves to meeting together in the •temple complex, and broke bread from house to house. They ate their food with a joyful and humble attitude, [w] 47 praising God and having favor with all the people. And every day the Lord added to them [x] those who were being saved. [y]

Healing of a Lame Man

3 Now Peter and John were going up together to the •temple complex at the hour of prayer [a] at three in the afternoon. [A] 2 And a man who was lame from birth was carried there and placed every day at the temple gate called Beautiful, so he could beg from those entering the temple complex. [b] 3 When he saw Peter and John about to enter the temple complex, he asked for help. 4 Peter, along with John, looked at him intently and said, “Look at us.” 5 So he turned to them, [B] expecting to get something from them. 6 But Peter said, “I don’t have silver or gold, but what I have, I give you: In the name of Jesus Christ the •Nazarene , get up and walk! ” [c] 7 Then, taking him by the right hand he raised him up, and at once his feet and ankles became strong. 8 So he jumped up, stood, and started to walk, and he entered the temple complex with them — walking, leaping, and praising God. [d] 9 All the people saw him walking and praising God, 10 and they recognized that he was the one who used to sit and beg at the Beautiful Gate of the temple complex. So they were filled with awe and astonishment at what had happened to him. [e]

Preaching in Solomon’s Colonnade

11 While he [f] was holding on to Peter and John, all the people, greatly amazed, ran toward them in what is called Solomon’s Colonnade. [g] 12 When Peter saw this, he addressed the people: “Men of Israel, why are you amazed at this? Or why do you stare at us, as though we had made him walk by our own power or godliness? 13 The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our fathers, [h] has glorified His Servant Jesus, whom you handed over and denied in the presence of •Pilate , [i] when he had decided to release Him. 14 But you denied the Holy and Righteous One [j] and asked to have a murderer given to you. [k] 15 You killed the source [C] of life, whom God raised from the dead; we are witnesses of this. [l] 16 By faith in His name, His name has made this man strong, whom you see and know. So the faith that comes through Him has given him this perfect health in front of all of you.

17 “And now, brothers, I know that you did it in ignorance, just as your leaders also did. [m] 18 But what God predicted through the mouth of all the prophets — that His •Messiah would suffer — He has fulfilled [n] in this way. 19 Therefore repent [o] and turn back, so that your sins may be wiped out, [p] that seasons of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord, [q] 20 and that He may send Jesus, who has been appointed [r] for you as the Messiah. 21 Heaven must welcome [D] Him until the times of the restoration of all things, which God spoke about by the mouth of His holy prophets from the beginning. [s] 22 Moses said: [t]

> The Lord your God will raise up for you a Prophet like me from among your brothers. You must listen to Him in everything He will say to you. [23] And everyone who will not listen to that Prophet will be completely cut off from the people. [u, v]

[24] “In addition, all the prophets who have spoken, from Samuel and those after him, have also announced these days. [25] You are the sons of the prophets and of the covenant that God made with your ancestors, saying to Abraham, And all the families of the earth will be blessed through your offspring. [w, x] [26] God raised up His Servant [y] and sent Him first to you to bless you by turning each of you from your evil ways.” [z]

Peter and John Arrested

4 Now as they were speaking to the people, the priests, the commander of the temple police, and the •Sadducees confronted them, [a] 2 because they were provoked that they were teaching the people and proclaiming the resurrection from the dead, using Jesus as the example. [A, b] 3 So they seized them and put them in custody until the next day, since it was already evening. 4 But many of those who heard the message believed, and the number of the men came to about 5,000.

Peter and John Face the Jewish Leadership 5 The next day, their rulers, elders, and •scribes assembled in Jerusalem 6 with Annas the high priest, Caiaphas, John and Alexander, and all the members of the high-priestly family. [B, c] 7 After they had Peter and John stand before them, they asked the question: "By what power or in what name have you done this? "

8 Then Peter was filled with the Holy Spirit and said to them, "Rulers of the people and elders: [d, e] 9 If we are being examined today about a good deed done to a disabled man — by what means he was healed — 10 let it be known to all of you and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ the •Nazarene — whom you crucified and whom God raised from the dead — by Him this man is standing here before you healthy. [f] 11 This Jesus is the stone rejected by you builders, which has become the cornerstone. [C, g, h]

12 There is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given to people, and we must be saved by it." [i]

The Name Forbidden

13 When they observed the boldness of Peter and John and realized that they were uneducated and untrained men, they were amazed and recognized that they had been with Jesus. [j] 14 And since they saw the man who had been healed standing with them, they had nothing to say in response. 15 After they had ordered them to leave the •Sanhedrin , they conferred among themselves, 16 saying, “What should we do with these men? For an obvious sign, evident to all who live in Jerusalem, has been done through them, and we cannot deny it! [k] 17 However, so this does not spread any further among the people, let’s threaten them against speaking to anyone in this name again.” 18 So they called for them and ordered them not to preach or teach at all in the name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John answered them, “Whether it’s right in the sight of God for us to listen to you rather than to God, you decide; [l] 20 for we are unable to stop speaking about what we have seen and heard.” [m]

21 After threatening them further, they released them. They found no way to punish them, because the people were all giving glory to God over what had been done; [n] 22 for this sign of healing had been performed on a man over 40 years old.

Prayer for Boldness

23 After they were released, they went to their own people and reported everything the •chief priests and the elders had said to them. 24 When they heard this, they all raised their voices to God and said, “Master, You are the One who made the heaven, the earth, and the sea, and everything in them. o 25 You said through the Holy Spirit, by the mouth of our father David Your servant: p

Why did the Gentiles rage and the peoples plot futile things?
26 The kings of the earth took their stand and the rulers assembled together against the Lord and against His •Messiah . q, r

27 “For, in fact, in this city both •Herod and Pontius •Pilate , with the Gentiles and the people D of Israel, assembled together against Your holy Servant Jesus, whom You anointed, s 28 to do whatever Your hand and Your plan had predestined to take place. 29 And now, Lord, consider their threats, and grant that Your •slaves may speak Your message with complete boldness, t 30 while You stretch out Your hand for healing, signs, and wonders u to be performed through the name of Your holy Servant Jesus.” 31 When they had prayed, the place where they were assembled was shaken, and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak God’s message with boldness. v

Believers Sharing

32 Now the large group of those who believed were of one heart and mind, and no one said that any of his possessions was his own, but instead they held everything in common. [w] 33 And the apostles were giving testimony with great power to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great grace was on all of them. [x] 34 For there was not a needy person among them, because all those who owned lands or houses sold them, brought the proceeds of the things that were sold, [y] 35 and laid them at the apostles' feet. This was then distributed for each person's basic needs. [E, z]

36 Joseph, a Levite and a Cypriot by birth, the one the apostles called Barnabas, which is translated Son of Encouragement, [a] 37 sold a field he owned, brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet. [b]

Lying to the Holy Spirit

5 But a man named Ananias, with his wife Sapphira, sold a piece of property. 2 However, he kept back part of the proceeds with his wife's knowledge, and brought a portion of it and laid it at the apostles' feet. [a]

3 Then Peter said, "Ananias, why has Satan filled your heart [b] to lie to the Holy Spirit and keep back part of the proceeds from the field? 4 Wasn't it yours while you possessed it? And after it was sold, wasn't it at your disposal? Why is it that you planned this thing in your heart? You have not lied to men but to God! " 5 When he heard these words, Ananias dropped dead, and a great fear came on all who heard. [c] 6 The young men got up, wrapped his body, carried him out, and buried him. [d]

7 There was an interval of about three hours; then his wife came in, not knowing what had happened. 8 "Tell me," Peter asked her, "did you sell the field for this price? "

"Yes," she said, "for that price."

9 Then Peter said to her, "Why did you agree to test the Spirit of the Lord? Look! The feet of those who have buried your husband are at the door, and they will carry you out! " [e]

10 Instantly she dropped dead at his feet. When the young men came in, they found her dead, carried her out, and buried her beside her husband. 11 Then great fear came on the whole church and on all who heard these things.

Apostolic Signs and Wonders

12 Many signs and wonders were being done among the people through the hands of the apostles. [f] By common consent they would all meet in Solomon's Colonnade. [g] 13 None of the rest dared to join them, but the people praised them highly. [h] 14 Believers were added to the Lord in increasing numbers — crowds of both men and women. 15 As a result, they would carry the sick out into the streets and lay them on cots and mats so that when Peter came by, at least his shadow [i] might fall on some of them. 16 In addition, a large group came together from the towns surrounding Jerusalem, bringing sick people and those who were tormented by •unclean spirits, and they were all healed.

In and Out of Prison

17 Then the high priest took action. He and all his colleagues, those who belonged to the party of the •Sadducees , were filled with jealousy. j 18 So they arrested A the apostles and put them in the city jail. k 19 But an angel of the Lord opened the doors of the jail during the night, brought them out, and said, l 20 "Go and stand in the •temple complex, and tell the people all about this life." m 21 In obedience to this, they entered the temple complex at daybreak and began to teach.

The Apostles on Trial Again

When the high priest and those who were with him arrived, they convened the •Sanhedrin — the full Senate of the sons of Israel — and sent orders to the jail to have them brought. [n] 22 But when the temple police got there, they did not find them in the jail, so they returned and reported, 23 "We found the jail securely locked, with the guards standing in front of the doors, but when we opened them, we found no one inside! " 24 As [o] the commander of the temple police and the •chief priests heard these things, they were baffled about them, as to what could come of this.

25 Someone came and reported to them, "Look! The men you put in jail are standing in the temple complex and teaching the people." 26 Then the commander went with the temple police and brought them in without force, because they were afraid the people might stone them. [p] 27 After they brought them in, they had them stand before the Sanhedrin, and the high priest asked, 28 "Didn't we strictly order you not to teach in this name? [q] And look, you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching and are determined to bring this man's blood on us! " [r]

29 But Peter and the apostles replied, "We must obey God rather than men. 30 The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, [s] whom you had murdered by hanging Him on a tree. [t] 31 God exalted this man to His right hand as ruler and Savior, to grant repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins. [u] 32 We are witnesses of these things, and so is the Holy Spirit [v] whom God has given to those who obey Him."

Gamaliel's Advice

33 When they heard this, they were enraged and wanted to kill them. [w] 34 A •Pharisee named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law who was respected by all the people, stood up in the Sanhedrin and ordered the men [x] to be taken outside for a little while. [y] 35 He said to them, "Men of Israel, be careful about what you're going to do to these men. 36 Not long ago Theudas rose up, claiming to be somebody, and a group of about 400 men rallied to him. He was killed, and all his partisans were dispersed and came to nothing. [z] 37 After this man, Judas the Galilean rose up in the days of the census and attracted a following. [B] That man also perished, and all his partisans were scattered. 38 And now, I tell you, stay away from these men and leave them alone. For if this plan or this work is of men, it will be overthrown; [a] 39 but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow them. You may even be found fighting against God." So they were persuaded by him. [b] 40 After they called in the apostles and had them flogged, they ordered them not to speak in the name of Jesus and released them. [c] 41

Then they went out from the presence of the Sanhedrin, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to be dishonored on behalf of the Name. [d, e] 42 Every day in the temple complex, and in various homes, they continued teaching and proclaiming the good news that Jesus is the •Messiah .

Seven Chosen to Serve

6 In those days, as the number of the disciples [a] was multiplying, there arose a complaint by the Hellenistic Jews [b] against the Hebraic Jews [c] that their widows were being overlooked in the daily distribution. [d] 2 Then the Twelve summoned the whole company of the disciples and said, “It would not be right for us to give up preaching about God to handle financial matters. [A] 3 Therefore, brothers, select from among you seven men of good reputation, [e] full of the Spirit [f] and wisdom, whom we can appoint to this duty. 4 But we will devote ourselves to prayer and to the preaching ministry.” 5 The proposal pleased the whole company. So they chose Stephen, [g] a man full of faith and the Holy Spirit, and Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolaus, a •proselyte from Antioch. [h] 6 They had them stand before the apostles, who prayed [i] and laid their hands on [j] them. [k]

7 So the preaching about God flourished, the number of the disciples in Jerusalem multiplied [l] greatly, and a large group of priests became obedient to the faith.

Stephen Accused of Blasphemy

8 Stephen, full of grace and power, was performing great wonders and signs among the people. 9 Then some from what is called the Freedmen's •Synagogue , composed of both Cyrenians and Alexandrians, and some from Cilicia and •Asia , came forward and disputed with Stephen. 10 But they were unable to stand up against his wisdom and the Spirit by whom he was speaking.

11 Then they persuaded some men to say, "We heard him speaking blasphemous words against Moses and God! " m 12 They stirred up the people, the elders, and the •scribes ; so they came, dragged him off, and took him to the •Sanhedrin . 13 They also presented false witnesses who said, "This man does not stop speaking blasphemous words against this holy place and the law. n 14 For we heard him say that Jesus, this •Nazarene , will destroy this place and change the customs that Moses handed down to us." o 15 And all who were sitting in the Sanhedrin looked intently at him and saw that his face was like the face of an angel.

Stephen's Sermon

7 “Is this true? ” [A] the high priest asked.

2 “Brothers and fathers,” he said, “listen: The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he settled in Haran, [a] 3 and said to him:

Get out of your country and away from your relatives, and come to the land that I will show you. [b, c]

4 “Then he came out of the land of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. From there, after his father died, God had him move to this land you now live in. [d] 5 He didn’t give him an inheritance in it, not even a foot of ground, but He promised to give it to him as a possession, and to his descendants after him, [e] even though he was childless. 6 God spoke in this way:

His descendants would be strangers in a foreign country, and they would enslave
and oppress them 400 years.
7 I will judge the nation that they will serve as •slaves , God said.
After this, they will come out and worship Me in this place. [f, g]

8 Then He gave him the covenant of circumcision. After this, he fathered Isaac and circumcised [h] him on the eighth day; Isaac did the same with Jacob, and Jacob with the 12 patriarchs. [i]

The Patriarchs in Egypt

9 “The patriarchs became jealous of Joseph and sold him into Egypt, but God was with him [j] 10 and rescued him out of all his troubles. He gave him favor and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, who appointed him ruler over Egypt and over his whole household. [k] 11 Then a famine and great suffering came over all of Egypt and Canaan, [l] and our ancestors could find no food.
12 When Jacob heard there was grain in Egypt, he sent our ancestors the first time. 13 The second time, Joseph was revealed to his brothers, and Joseph’s family became known to Pharaoh. 14 Joseph then invited his father Jacob and all his relatives, 75 people in all, [m] 15 and Jacob went down to Egypt. He and our ancestors died there, [n] 16 were carried back to Shechem, and were placed in the tomb that Abraham had bought for a sum of silver from the sons of Hamor in Shechem. [o]

Moses, a Rejected Savior

17 “As the time was drawing near to fulfill the promise that God had made to Abraham, the people flourished and multiplied in Egypt [p] 18 until a different king who did not know Joseph ruled over Egypt. [q] 19 He dealt deceitfully with our race and oppressed our ancestors by making them leave their infants outside, so they wouldn’t survive. [r, s] 20 At this time Moses was born, and he was beautiful in God’s sight. He was cared for in his father’s home three months, 21 and when he was left outside, Pharaoh’s daughter adopted and raised him as her own son. [t] 22 So Moses was educated in all the wisdom of the Egyptians and was powerful in his speech and actions. [u]

23 “As he was approaching the age of 40, he decided [B] to visit his brothers, the Israelites. 24 When he saw one of them being mistreated, he came to his rescue and avenged the oppressed man by striking down the Egyptian. 25 He assumed his brothers would understand that God would give them deliverance through him, but they did not understand. 26 The next day he showed up while they were fighting and tried to reconcile them peacefully, saying, ‘Men, you are brothers. Why are you mistreating each other? ’ [v]

27 “But the one who was mistreating his neighbor pushed him [w] away, saying:

> Who appointed you a ruler and a judge over us? 28 Do you want to > kill me, the same way you killed the Egyptian yesterday? [x, y]

29 “At this disclosure, Moses fled and became an exile in the land of Midian, where he fathered two sons. [z] 30 After 40 years had passed, an angel [a] appeared to him in the wilderness of Mount Sinai, in the flame of a burning bush. 31 When Moses saw it, he was amazed at the sight. As he was approaching to look at it, the voice of the Lord came: 32 I am the God of your fathers — the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob. [b, c] So Moses began to tremble and did not dare to look.

33 "Then the Lord said to him:

> Remove the sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy ground. 34 I have observed the oppression of My people in Egypt; I have heard their groaning and have come down to rescue them. And now, come, I will send you to Egypt. [d, e]

35 "This Moses, whom they rejected when they said, Who appointed you a ruler and a judge? [f] — this one God sent as a ruler and a redeemer by means of the angel who appeared to him in the bush. [g] 36 This man led them out and performed wonders and signs in the land of Egypt, [h] at the Red Sea, and in the wilderness 40 years. [i]

Israel's Rebellion against God

37 "This is the Moses who said to the Israelites, God [j] will raise up for you a Prophet like me from among your brothers. [k, l] 38 He is the one who was in the congregation in the wilderness together with the angel who spoke to him on Mount Sinai, and with our ancestors. [m] He received living oracles to give to us. [n] 39 Our ancestors were unwilling to obey him, but pushed him away, and in their hearts turned back to Egypt. [o] 40 They told Aaron:

> Make us gods who will go before us. As for this Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we don't know what's happened to him. [p, q]

41 They even made a calf in those days, offered sacrifice to the idol, and were celebrating what their hands had made. [r] 42 Then God turned away [s] and gave them up to worship [t] the host of heaven, as it is written in the book of the prophets:

House of Israel, did you bring Me offerings and sacrifices 40 years in the wilderness?
43 No, you took up the tent of Moloch [u]
and the star of your god Rephan, [v]

the images that you made to worship.
So I will deport you beyond Babylon! [w, x]

God's Real Tabernacle

44 "Our ancestors had the tabernacle of the testimony in the wilderness, just as He who spoke to Moses commanded him to make it according to the pattern he had seen. [y] 45 Our ancestors in turn received it and with Joshua brought it in when they dispossessed the nations that God drove out before our fathers, [z] until the days of David. 46 He found favor in God's sight and asked that he might provide a dwelling place for the God [a] of Jacob. [b] 47 But it was Solomon who built Him a house. [c] 48 However, the Most High does not dwell in sanctuaries made with hands, as the prophet says: [d]

49 Heaven is My throne,
and earth My footstool.
What sort of house will you build for Me?
says the Lord,
or what is My resting place?
50 Did not My hand make all these things? [e, f]

Resisting the Holy Spirit

51 “You stiff-necked [g] people with uncircumcised hearts and ears! [h] You are always resisting the Holy Spirit; as your ancestors did, so do you. 52 Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute? [i] They even killed those who announced beforehand the coming of the Righteous One, whose betrayers and murderers [j] you have now become. 53 You received the law under the direction of angels [k] and yet have not kept it.”

The First Christian Martyr

54 When they heard these things, they were enraged in their hearts [C] and gnashed their teeth at him. 55 But Stephen, filled by the Holy Spirit, gazed into heaven. He saw God's glory, with [D] Jesus standing at the right hand of God, [l] and he said, 56 "Look! I see the heavens opened and the •Son of Man standing at the right hand of God! " [m]

57 Then they screamed at the top of their voices, covered their ears, and together rushed against him. 58 They threw him out of the city and began to stone [n] him. And the witnesses laid their robes at the feet of a young man named Saul. [o] 59 They were stoning Stephen as he called out: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit! " [p] 60 Then he knelt down and cried out with a loud voice, [q] "Lord, do not charge them with this sin! " And saying this, he fell •asleep . [r]

Saul the Persecutor

8 Saul agreed with putting him to death.

On that day a severe persecution broke out against the church in Jerusalem, and all except the apostles were scattered throughout the land of Judea and Samaria. [a] 2 Devout men buried Stephen and mourned deeply over him. 3 Saul, [b] however, was ravaging the church. He would enter house after house, drag off men and women, and put them in prison. [c]

Philip in Samaria

4 So those who were scattered went on their way preaching the message of good news. 5 Philip went down to a [d] city in Samaria and proclaimed the •Messiah to them. [e] 6 The crowds paid attention with one mind to what Philip said, as they heard and saw the signs he was performing. 7 For •unclean spirits, crying out with a loud voice, came out of many who were possessed, and many who were paralyzed and lame were healed. [f] 8 So there was great joy in that city.

The Response of Simon

9 A man named Simon had previously practiced sorcery in that city and astounded the •Samaritan people, while claiming to be somebody great. g 10
They all paid attention to him, from the least of them to the greatest, and they said, “This man is called the Great Power of God! ” A, h 11 They were attentive to him because he had astounded them with his sorceries for a long time. 12 But when they believed Philip, as he preached the good news about the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, both men and women were baptized. i 13
Then even Simon himself believed. And after he was baptized, he went around constantly with B Philip and was astounded as he observed the signs and great miracles j that were being performed.

Simon’s Sin

14 When the apostles who were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had welcomed God’s message, they sent Peter and John to them. k 15 After they went down there, they prayed for them, so the Samaritans might receive the Holy Spirit.
16 For He had not yet come down on C any of them; they had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. l 17 Then Peter and John laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit.

18 When Simon saw that the Holy m Spirit was given through the laying on of the apostles’ hands, he offered them money, 19 saying, “Give me this power too, so that anyone I lay hands on may receive the Holy Spirit.”

20 But Peter told him, “May your silver be destroyed with you, because you thought the gift of God could be obtained with money! n 21 You have no part or share in this matter, because your heart is not right before God. o 22 Therefore repent of this wickedness of yours, and pray to the Lord that the intent of your heart may be forgiven you. 23 For I see you are poisoned by bitterness and bound by iniquity.” p

24 “Please pray D to the Lord for me,” Simon replied, “so that nothing you have said may happen to me.” q

25 Then, after they had testified and spoken the message of the Lord, they traveled back to Jerusalem, evangelizing many villages of the Samaritans.

The Conversion of the Ethiopian Official 26 An angel of the Lord spoke to Philip: “Get up and go south to the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza.” (This is the desert road.) E, r 27 So he got up and went. There was an Ethiopian man, a eunuch s and high official of Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, [t] who was in charge of her entire treasury. He had come to worship in Jerusalem [u] [28] and was sitting in his chariot on his way home, reading the prophet Isaiah aloud.

[29] The Spirit told Philip, “Go and join that chariot.” [v]

[30] When Philip ran up to it, he heard him reading the prophet Isaiah, and said, “Do you understand what you’re reading? ”

[31] “How can I,” he said, “unless someone guides me? ” So he invited Philip to come up and sit with him. [32] Now the Scripture passage he was reading was this:

He was led like a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb is silent before its shearer,
so He does not open His mouth.
[33] In His humiliation justice was denied Him.
Who will describe His generation?
For His life is taken from the earth. [w, x]

[34] The eunuch replied to Philip, “I ask you, who is the prophet saying this about — himself or another person? ” [35] So Philip proceeded [F] to tell him the good news about Jesus, beginning from that Scripture. [y]

[36] As they were traveling down the road, they came to some water. The eunuch said, “Look, there’s water! What would keep me from being baptized? ” [[37] And Philip said, “If you believe with all your heart you may.” And he replied, “I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.”] [z] [38] Then he ordered the chariot to stop, and both Philip and the eunuch went down into the water, and he baptized him. [39] When they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord [a] carried Philip away, and the eunuch did not see him any longer. But he went on his way rejoicing. [40] Philip appeared in [G] Azotus, [H] and he was traveling and evangelizing all the towns until he came to Caesarea. [b]

The Damascus Road

9 Meanwhile, Saul was still breathing threats and murder against the disciples [a] of the Lord. He went to the high priest [b] 2 and requested letters [c] from him to the •synagogues in Damascus, so that if he found any men or women who belonged to the Way, [d] he might bring them as prisoners to Jerusalem. 3 As [e] he traveled and was nearing Damascus, a light from heaven suddenly flashed around him. 4 Falling to the ground, he heard a voice saying to him, “Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me? ”

5 “Who are You, Lord? ” he said.

“I am Jesus, the One you are persecuting,” He replied. 6 “But get up and go into the city, and you will be told what you must do.”

7 The men who were traveling with him stood speechless, hearing the sound but seeing no one. [f] 8 Then Saul got up from the ground, and though his eyes were open, he could see nothing. So they took him by the hand and led him into Damascus. 9 He was unable to see for three days and did not eat or drink.

Saul’s Baptism

10 There was a disciple in Damascus named Ananias. And the Lord said to him in a vision, “Ananias! ”

“Here I am, Lord! ” he said. [g]

11 “Get up and go to the street called Straight,” the Lord said to him, “to the house of Judas, and ask for a man from Tarsus [h] named Saul, since he is praying there. 12 In a vision [i] he has seen a man named Ananias coming in and placing his hands on him so he can regain his sight.” [j]

13 “Lord,” Ananias answered, “I have heard from many people about this man, how much harm he has done to Your •saints in Jerusalem. [k] 14 And he has authority here from the •chief priests to arrest all who call on Your name.” [l]

15 But the Lord said to him, “Go! For this man is My chosen instrument [m] to take My name to Gentiles, [n] kings, and the Israelites. [o] 16 I will show him how much he must suffer for My name! ” [p]

17 So Ananias left and entered the house. Then he placed his hands on him and said, “Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on the road you were traveling, has sent me so that you can regain your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit.” [q]

18 At once something like scales fell from his eyes, and he regained his sight. Then he got up and was baptized. 19 And after taking some food, he regained his strength. [r]

Saul Proclaiming the Messiah

Saul was with the disciples in Damascus for some days. 20 Immediately he began proclaiming Jesus in the synagogues: “He is the Son of God.” [s]

21 But all who heard him were astounded and said, “Isn’t this the man who, in Jerusalem, was destroying those who called on this name and then came here for the purpose of taking them as prisoners to the chief priests? ” [t]

22 But Saul grew more capable and kept confounding the Jews who lived in Damascus by proving that this One is the •Messiah .

23 After many days had passed, the Jews conspired to kill him, 24 but their plot became known to Saul. So they were watching the gates day and night intending to kill him, [u] 25 but his disciples took him by night and lowered him in a large basket through an opening in the wall. [v]

Saul in Jerusalem

26 When he arrived in Jerusalem, [w] he tried to associate with the disciples, but they were all afraid of him, since they did not believe he was a disciple. 27 Barnabas, however, took him and brought him to the apostles and explained to them how Saul had seen the Lord on the road and that He had talked to him, and how in Damascus he had spoken boldly [x] in the name of Jesus. [y] 28 Saul was coming and going with them in Jerusalem, speaking boldly in the name of the Lord. 29 He conversed and debated with the Hellenistic Jews, [A] but they attempted to kill him. [z] 30 When the brothers found out, they took him down to Caesarea and sent him off to Tarsus. [a]

31 So the church [b] throughout all Judea, Galilee, and Samaria had peace, being built up and walking in the •fear of the Lord and in the encouragement of the Holy Spirit, and it increased in numbers.

The Healing of Aeneas

32 As Peter was traveling from place to place, he also came down to the saints c who lived in Lydda. d 33 There he found a man named Aeneas, who was paralyzed and had been bedridden for eight years. 34 Peter said to him, “Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals you. Get up and make your bed,” B and immediately he got up. e 35 So all who lived in Lydda and Sharon f saw him and turned to the Lord.

Dorcas Restored to Life

36 In Joppa [g] there was a disciple named Tabitha, which is translated Dorcas.
[h] She was always doing good works [i] and acts of charity. 37 In those days she became sick and died. After washing her, they placed her in a room upstairs.
38 Since Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples heard that Peter was there and sent two men to him who begged him, “Don’t delay in coming with us.” 39 So Peter got up and went with them. When he arrived, they led him to the room upstairs.
And all the widows approached him, weeping and showing him the robes and clothes that Dorcas had made while she was with them. 40 Then Peter sent them all out of the room. He knelt down, prayed, and turning toward the body said, “Tabitha, get up! ” She opened her eyes, saw Peter, and sat up. [j] 41 He gave her his hand and helped her stand up. Then he called the saints and widows and presented her alive. 42 This became known throughout Joppa, and many believed in the Lord. 43 And Peter stayed on many days in Joppa with Simon, [k] a leather tanner. [l]

Cornelius's Vision

10 There was a man in Caesarea named Cornelius, a •centurion of what was called the Italian •Regiment . [a] 2 He was a devout man and feared God along with his whole household. He did many charitable deeds for the Jewish people and always prayed to God. [b] 3 About three in the afternoon [A] he distinctly saw in a vision an angel of God who came in and said to him, “Cornelius! ” [c]

4 Looking intently at him, he became afraid and said, “What is it, lord? ”

The angel told him, “Your prayers and your acts of charity have come up as a memorial offering before God. [d] 5 Now send men to Joppa and call for Simon, who is also named Peter. 6 He is lodging with Simon, a tanner, whose house is by the sea.” [e]

7 When the angel who spoke to him had gone, he called two of his household slaves and a devout soldier, who was one of those who attended him. 8 After explaining everything to them, he sent them to Joppa.

Peter’s Vision

9 The [f] next day, as they were traveling and nearing the city, Peter went up to pray on the housetop [g] about noon. [B] 10 Then he became hungry and wanted to eat, but while they were preparing something, he went into a visionary state. 11
He saw heaven opened [h] and an object that resembled a large sheet coming down, being lowered by its four corners to the earth. 12 In it were all the four-footed animals and reptiles of the earth, and the birds of the sky. 13 Then a voice said to him, “Get up, Peter; kill and eat! ”

14 “No, Lord! ” Peter said. “For I have never eaten anything common [C] and ritually •unclean ! ” [i]

15 Again, a second time, a voice said to him, “What God has made •clean , you must not call common.” [j] 16 This happened three times, and then the object was taken up into heaven.

Peter Visits Cornelius

17 While Peter was deeply perplexed about what the vision he had seen might mean, the men who had been sent by Cornelius, having asked directions to Simon's house, stood at the gate. 18 They called out, asking if Simon, who was also named Peter, was lodging there.

19 While Peter was thinking about the vision, the Spirit told him, "Three men are here looking for you. [k] 20 Get up, go downstairs, and accompany them with no doubts at all, because I have sent them." [l]

21 Then Peter went down to the men and said, "Here I am, the one you're looking for. What is the reason you're here? "

22 They said, "Cornelius, a centurion, an upright and God-fearing man, who has a good reputation with the whole Jewish nation, was divinely directed by a holy angel to call you to his house and to hear a message from you." [m] 23 Peter then invited them in and gave them lodging.

The next day he got up and set out with them, and some of the brothers from Joppa went with him. [n] 24 The following day he entered Caesarea. Now Cornelius was expecting them and had called together his relatives and close friends. 25 When Peter entered, Cornelius met him, fell at his feet, and worshiped him.

26 But Peter helped him up and said, "Stand up! I myself am also a man." [o]
27 While talking with him, he went on in and found that many had come together there. 28 Peter said to them, "You know it's forbidden for a Jewish man to associate with or visit a foreigner. [p] But God has shown me that I must not call any person common or unclean. [q] 29 That's why I came without any objection when I was sent for. So I ask: Why did you send for me? "

30 Cornelius replied, "Four days ago at this hour, at three in the afternoon, [D] I was [r] praying in my house. Just then a man in a dazzling robe stood before me [s] 31 and said, 'Cornelius, your prayer has been heard, and your acts of charity have been remembered in God's sight. 32 Therefore send someone to Joppa and invite Simon here, who is also named Peter. He is lodging in Simon the tanner's house by the sea.' [t] 33 Therefore I immediately sent for you, and you did the right thing in coming. So we are all present before God, to hear everything you have been commanded by the Lord."

Good News for Gentiles

34 Then Peter began to speak: “Now I really understand that God doesn’t show favoritism, [u] 35 but in every nation the person who fears Him and does righteousness is acceptable to Him. 36 He sent the message to the Israelites, proclaiming the good news of peace through Jesus Christ — He is Lord of all. [v] 37 You know the events [E] that took place throughout Judea, beginning from Galilee after the baptism that John preached: 38 how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power, and how He went about doing good and healing all who were under the tyranny of the Devil, because God was with Him. [w] 39 We ourselves are witnesses of everything He did in both the Judean country and in Jerusalem, yet they killed Him by hanging Him on a tree.
[x] 40 God raised up this man on the third day and permitted Him to be seen, 41 not by all the people, but by us, witnesses appointed beforehand by God, who ate and drank with Him after He rose from the dead. [y] 42 He commanded us to preach to the people and to solemnly testify that He is the One appointed by God to be the Judge of the living and the dead. [z] 43 All the prophets testify [a] about Him that through His name [b] everyone who believes in Him will receive forgiveness of sins.” [c]

Gentile Conversion and Baptism

44 While Peter was still speaking these words, the Holy Spirit came down [d] on all those who heard the message. 45 The circumcised believers [e] who had come with Peter were astounded because the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out on the Gentiles also. [f] 46 For they heard them speaking in other •languages and declaring the greatness of [F] God.

Then Peter responded, 47 "Can anyone withhold water and prevent these people from being baptized, who have received the Holy Spirit just as we have? " [g] 48 And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. [h] Then they asked him to stay for a few days.

Gentile Salvation Defended

11 The apostles and the brothers who were throughout Judea heard that the Gentiles had welcomed God's message also. [2] When Peter went up to Jerusalem, those who stressed circumcision [A] argued with him, [a] [3] saying, "You visited uncircumcised men and ate with them!" [b]

[4] Peter began to explain to them in an orderly sequence, saying: [5] "I [c] was in the town of Joppa praying, and I saw, in a visionary state, an object that resembled a large sheet coming down, being lowered by its four corners from heaven, and it came to me. [6] When I looked closely and considered it, I saw the four-footed animals of the earth, the wild beasts, the reptiles, and the birds of the sky. [7] Then I also heard a voice telling me, 'Get up, Peter; kill and eat!'

[8] " 'No, Lord!' I said. 'For nothing common or ritually •unclean has ever entered my mouth!' [9] But a voice answered from heaven a second time, 'What God has made •clean , you must not call common.'

[10] "Now this happened three times, and then everything was drawn up again into heaven. [11] At that very moment, three men who had been sent to me from Caesarea arrived at the house where we were. [12] Then the Spirit told me to accompany them with no doubts at all. These six brothers accompanied me, and we went into the man's house. [d] [13] He reported to us how he had seen the angel standing in his house and saying, 'Send [e] to Joppa, and call for Simon, who is also named Peter. [14] He will speak a message [B] to you that you and all your household [f] will be saved by.'

[15] "As I began to speak, the Holy Spirit came down on them, just as on us at the beginning. [g] [16] Then I remembered the word of the Lord, how He said, 'John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit.' [h] [17] Therefore, if God gave them the same gift that He also gave to us when we believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, how could I possibly hinder God?" [i] [18] When they heard this they became silent. Then they glorified God, saying,

"So God has granted repentance resulting in life [C] even to the Gentiles!" [j]

The Church in Antioch

19 Those who had been scattered as a result of the persecution that started because of Stephen made their way as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, [k] speaking the message to no one except Jews. 20 But there were some of them, Cypriot and Cyrenian men, who came to Antioch and began speaking to the Hellenists, [l, m] proclaiming the good news about the Lord Jesus. [n] 21 The Lord's hand was with them, and a large number who believed turned to the Lord. [o] 22
Then the report about them was heard by the church that was at Jerusalem, and they sent out Barnabas to travel [p] as far as Antioch. 23 When he arrived and saw the grace of God, he was glad and encouraged all of them to remain true to the Lord with a firm resolve of the heart, [q] 24 for he was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit [r] and of faith. And large numbers of people were added [s] to the Lord. 25 Then he [t] went to Tarsus to search for Saul, 26 and when he found him he brought him to Antioch. For a whole year they met with the church and taught large numbers. The disciples [u] were first called Christians at Antioch. [v]

Famine Relief

27 In those days some prophets came down from Jerusalem to Antioch. w 28 Then one of them, named Agabus, stood up and predicted by the Spirit that there would be a severe famine throughout the Roman world. D This took place during the time of Claudius. x, y 29 So each of the disciples, according to his ability, determined to send relief to the brothers who lived in Judea. z 30 They did this, sending it to the elders a by means of Barnabas and Saul.

James Martyred and Peter Jailed

12 About that time King •Herod cruelly attacked some who belonged to the church, 2 and he killed James, [a] John's brother, with the sword. 3 When he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to arrest Peter too, during the days of •Unleavened Bread. [b] 4 After the arrest, he put him in prison and assigned four squads of four soldiers each to guard him, intending to bring him out to the people after the •Passover . 5 So Peter was kept in prison, but prayer was being made earnestly to God for him by the church.

Peter Rescued

6 On the night before Herod was to bring him out for execution, Peter, bound with two chains, was sleeping between two soldiers, while the sentries in front of the door guarded the prison. 7 Suddenly an angel of the Lord [c] appeared, and a light shone in the cell. Striking Peter on the side, he woke him up and said, "Quick, get up! " Then the chains fell off his wrists. [d] 8 "Get dressed," the angel told him, "and put on your sandals." And he did so. "Wrap your cloak around you," he told him, "and follow me." 9 So he went out and followed, and he did not know that what took place through the angel was real, but thought he was seeing a vision. [e] 10 After they passed the first and second guard posts, they came to the iron gate that leads into the city, which opened to them by itself.
They went outside and passed one street, and immediately the angel left him. [f]

11 Then Peter came to himself and said, "Now I know for certain that the Lord has sent His angel and rescued me from Herod's grasp and from all that the Jewish people expected." [g] 12 When he realized this, he went to the house of Mary, the mother of John Mark, [A,] [h] where many had assembled and were praying. 13 He knocked at the door in the gateway, and a servant named Rhoda came to answer. 14 She recognized Peter's voice, and because of her joy, she did not open the gate but ran in and announced that Peter was standing at the gateway.

15 "You're crazy! " they told her. But she kept insisting that it was true. Then they said, "It's his angel! " [i] 16 Peter, however, kept on knocking, and when they opened the door and saw him, they were astounded.

17 Motioning to them with his hand [j] to be silent, he explained to them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. "Report these things to James [k,] [l] and the brothers," he said. Then he departed and went to a different place.

18 At daylight, there was a great commotion [B] among the soldiers as to what could have become of Peter. 19 After Herod had searched and did not find him, he interrogated the guards and ordered their execution. Then Herod went down from Judea to Caesarea and stayed there. [m]

Herod's Death

20 He had been very angry with the Tyrians and Sidonians. [n] Together they presented themselves before him. They won over Blastus, who was in charge of the king's bedroom, and through him they asked for peace, because their country was supplied with food from the king's country. [o] 21 So on an appointed day, dressed in royal robes and seated on the throne, Herod delivered a public address to them. 22 The assembled people began to shout, “It’s the voice of a god and not of a man! ” 23 At once an angel of the Lord [p] struck him because he did not give the glory to God, and he became infected with worms and died. [q] 24 Then God’s message flourished and multiplied. [r] 25 After they had completed their relief mission, Barnabas and Saul returned to [s] Jerusalem, taking along John who is called Mark. [t]

Preparing for the Mission Field

13 In the church that was at Antioch there were prophets and teachers:
Barnabas, Simeon who was called Niger, Lucius the Cyrenian, Manaen, a close friend of •Herod the tetrarch, [a] and Saul.
2 As they were ministering to [A] the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, “Set apart for Me Barnabas and Saul for the work I have called them to.” [b]
3 Then after they had fasted, prayed, and laid hands on them, they sent them off.
[c]

The Mission to Cyprus

4 Being sent out by the Holy Spirit, they came down to Seleucia, and from there they sailed to Cyprus. 5 Arriving in Salamis, they proclaimed God's message in the Jewish •synagogues . They also had John as their assistant. d 6
When they had gone through the whole island as far as Paphos, they came across a sorcerer, a Jewish false prophet named Bar-Jesus. e 7 He was with the •proconsul , Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man. This man summoned Barnabas and Saul and desired to hear God's message. f 8 But Elymas the sorcerer (this is the meaning of his name) opposed g them and tried to turn the proconsul away from the faith. h

9 Then Saul — also called Paul — filled with the Holy Spirit, stared straight at the sorcerer 10 and said, "You son of the Devil, i full of all deceit and all fraud, enemy of all righteousness! Won't you ever stop perverting the straight paths j of the Lord? 11 Now, look! The Lord's hand is against you. k You are going to be blind, and will not see the sun for a time." Suddenly a mist and darkness fell on him, and he went around seeking someone to lead him by the hand.

12 Then the proconsul, seeing what happened, believed and was astonished at the teaching about the Lord. l

Paul's Sermon in Antioch of Pisidia 13 Paul and his companions set sail from Paphos and came to Perga in Pamphylia. John, however, left them and went back to Jerusalem. m 14 They continued their journey from Perga and reached Antioch in Pisidia. On the Sabbath day they went into the synagogue and sat down. n 15 After the reading of the Law and the Prophets, the leaders of the synagogue sent word to them, saying, "Brothers, if you have any message of encouragement for the people, you can speak." o

16 Then Paul stood up and motioned with his hand and said: "Men of Israel, and you who fear God, listen! p 17 The God of this people Israel chose our ancestors, exalted the people during their stay in the land of Egypt, and led them out of it with a mighty B arm. q 18 And for about 40 years He put up with them r in the wilderness; s 19 then after destroying seven nations in the land of Canaan, t He gave their land to them as an inheritance. 20 This all took about 450 years.
After this, He gave them judges until Samuel the prophet. u 21 Then they asked for a king, so God gave them Saul the son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, for 40 years. v 22 After removing him, w He raised up David as their king and testified about him: 'I have found David the son of Jesse, a man loyal to Me, [x, y] who will carry out all My will.’

23 “From this man’s descendants, according to the promise, God brought the Savior, Jesus, [z] to Israel. [a] 24 Before He came to public attention, [C] John had previously proclaimed a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel. [b] 25 Then as John was completing his life’s work, he said, ‘Who do you think I am? I am not the One. But look! Someone is coming after me, and I am not worthy to untie the sandals on His feet.’ [c]

26 “Brothers, sons of Abraham’s race, and those among you who fear God, the message of this salvation has been sent to us. [d] 27 For the residents of Jerusalem and their rulers, since they did not recognize Him or the voices of the prophets that are read every Sabbath, have fulfilled their words [D] by condemning Him. [e] 28 Though they found no grounds for the death penalty, they asked •Pilate to have Him killed. [f] 29 When they had fulfilled all that had been written about Him, they took Him down from the tree and put Him in a tomb. [g] 30 But God raised Him from the dead, [h] 31 and He appeared for many days to those who came with Him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are now His witnesses to the people. [i] 32 And we ourselves proclaim to you the good news of the promise that was made to our ancestors. [j] 33 God has fulfilled this for us, their children, by raising up Jesus, as it is written in the second Psalm:

You are My Son;
today I have become Your Father. [E, k, l]

34 Since He raised Him from the dead, never to return to decay, He has spoken in this way, I will grant you the faithful covenant blessings [F] made to David.
[m, n] 35 Therefore He also says in another passage, You will not allow Your Holy One to see decay. [o, p] 36 For David, after serving his own generation in God’s plan, fell •asleep , [q] was buried with his fathers, and decayed. [r] 37 But the One God raised up did not decay. [38] Therefore, let it be known to you, brothers, that through this man forgiveness of sins is being proclaimed to you, [s] 39 and everyone who believes in Him is •justified from everything that you could not be justified from through the law of Moses. [t] 40 So beware that what is said in the prophets does not happen to you:

41 Look, you scoffers,
marvel and vanish away,
because I am doing a work in your days,
a work that you will never believe,
even if someone were to explain it to you.” [u, v]

Paul and Barnabas in Antioch

42 As they [w] were leaving, the people [x] begged that these matters be presented to them the following Sabbath. 43 After the synagogue had been dismissed, many of the Jews and devout •proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas, who were speaking with them and persuading them to continue in the grace of God. [y]

44 The following Sabbath almost the whole town assembled to hear the message of the Lord. [z] 45 But when the Jews saw the crowds, they were filled with jealousy and began to oppose what Paul was saying by insulting him. [a]

46 Then Paul and Barnabas boldly said: "It was necessary that God's message be spoken to you first. But since you reject it and consider yourselves unworthy of eternal life, we now turn to the Gentiles! [b] 47 For this is what the Lord has commanded us:

I have made you a light for the Gentiles to bring salvation
to the ends [G] of the earth." [c, d]

48 When the Gentiles heard this, they rejoiced and glorified the message of the Lord, and all who had been appointed to eternal life believed. 49 So the message of the Lord spread through the whole region. 50 But the Jews incited the prominent women, who worshiped God, and the leading men of the city. They stirred up persecution against Paul and Barnabas and expelled them from their district. [e] 51 But they shook the dust off their feet [f] against them [g] and went to Iconium. 52 And the disciples were filled with joy and the Holy Spirit. [h]

Growth and Persecution in Iconium

14 The same thing happened in Iconium; they entered the Jewish •synagogue and spoke in such a way that a great number of both Jews and Greeks believed. [a] 2 But the Jews who refused to believe stirred up and poisoned the minds of the Gentiles against the brothers. [b] 3 So they stayed there for some time and spoke boldly in reliance on the Lord, who testified to the message of His grace by granting that signs and wonders be performed through them. [c] 4 But the people of the city were divided, some siding with the Jews and some with the apostles. [d] 5 When an attempt was made by both the Gentiles and Jews, with their rulers, to assault and stone them, 6 they found out about it and fled to the Lycaonian towns called Lystra and Derbe, and to the surrounding countryside. [e]
7 And there they kept evangelizing. [f]

Mistaken for Gods in Lystra

8 In Lystra a man without strength in his feet, lame from birth, [A] and who had never walked, sat 9 and heard Paul speaking. After observing him closely and seeing that he had faith to be healed, 10 Paul said in a loud voice, “Stand upright on your feet! ” And he jumped up and started to walk around. [g]

11 When the crowds saw what Paul had done, they raised their voices, saying in the Lycaonian language, “The gods have come down to us in the form of men! ” [h] 12 And they started to call Barnabas, Zeus, and Paul, Hermes, because he was the main speaker. 13 Then the priest of Zeus, whose temple was just outside the town, brought oxen and garlands to the gates. He, with the crowds, intended to offer sacrifice.

14 The apostles Barnabas and Paul tore their robes when they heard this and rushed into the crowd, shouting: [i] 15 “Men! Why are you doing these things?
We are men also, with the same nature as you, and we are proclaiming good news to you, that you should turn from these worthless things [j] to the living God, who made the heaven, the earth, the sea, and everything in them. [k, l] 16 In past generations He allowed all the nations [m] to go their own way, 17 although He did not leave Himself without a witness, [n] since He did what is good by giving you rain from heaven and fruitful seasons [o] and satisfying your [p] hearts with food and happiness.” 18 Even though they said these things, they barely stopped the crowds from sacrificing to them.

19 Then some Jews came from Antioch and Iconium, and when they had won over the crowds and stoned Paul, they dragged him out of the city, thinking he was dead. [q] 20 After the disciples surrounded him, he got up and went into the town. The next day he left with Barnabas for Derbe. [r]

Church Planting

21 After they had evangelized that town and made many disciples, they returned to Lystra, to Iconium, and to Antioch, [s] 22 strengthening the [B] disciples by encouraging them to continue in the faith [t] and by telling them, “It is necessary to pass through many troubles [u] on our way into the kingdom of God.”

23 When they had appointed elders [v] in every church and prayed with fasting, they committed them to the Lord in whom they had believed. 24 Then they passed through Pisidia and came to Pamphylia. 25 After they spoke the message in Perga, they went down to Attalia. 26 From there they sailed back to Antioch where they had been entrusted to the grace of God for the work they had now completed. [w] 27 After they arrived and gathered the church together, they reported everything God had done with them [x] and that He had opened the door [y] of faith to the Gentiles. 28 And they spent a considerable time [C] with the disciples.

Dispute in Antioch

15 Some men [a] came down from Judea and began to teach the brothers:
“Unless you are circumcised [b] according to the custom prescribed by Moses, [c] you cannot be saved! ” 2 But after Paul and Barnabas had engaged them in serious argument and debate, the church arranged for Paul and Barnabas and some others of them to go up to the apostles and elders in Jerusalem concerning this controversy. [d] 3 When they had been sent on their way by the church, [e] they passed through both Phoenicia and Samaria, explaining in detail the conversion of the Gentiles, and they created great joy among all the brothers.
4 When they arrived at Jerusalem, they were welcomed by the church, the apostles, and the elders, and they reported all that God had done with them. [f]
5 But some of the believers from the party of the •Pharisees stood up and said, “It is necessary to circumcise them and to command them to keep the law of Moses! ”

The Jerusalem Council

6 Then the apostles and the elders assembled to consider this matter. 7 After there had been much debate, Peter stood up and said to them: “Brothers, you are aware that in the early days God made a choice among you, [g] that by my mouth the Gentiles would hear the gospel message and believe. 8 And God, who knows the heart, testified to them by giving [h] the Holy Spirit, just as He also did to us. [i] 9 He made no distinction between us and them, [j] cleansing their hearts by faith. [k] 10 Now then, why are you testing God by putting a yoke on the disciples’ necks [l] that neither our ancestors nor we have been able to bear? 11 On the contrary, we believe we are saved through the grace [m] of the Lord Jesus in the same way they are.”

12 Then the whole assembly fell silent and listened to Barnabas and Paul describing all the signs and wonders God had done through them among the Gentiles. [n] 13 After they stopped speaking, James responded: “Brothers, listen to me! 14 Simeon [o] has reported how God first intervened to take from the Gentiles a people for His name. [p] 15 And the words of the prophets agree with this, as it is written:

16 After these things I will return and rebuild David’s fallen tent.
I will rebuild its ruins
and set it up again, 17 so the rest of humanity
may seek the Lord — even all the Gentiles who are called by My name, declares the Lord who does these things,
18 known from long ago. [q], [r], [s]

19 Therefore, in my judgment, we should not cause difficulties for those among the Gentiles who turn to God, 20 but instead we should write to them to abstain from things polluted by idols, from sexual immorality, [t] from eating anything that has been strangled, and from blood. 21 For since ancient times, Moses has had those who proclaim him in every city, and every Sabbath day he is read aloud in the •synagogues .” [u]

The Letter to the Gentile Believers

22 Then the apostles and the elders, with the whole church, decided to select men who were among them and to send them to Antioch with Paul and

Barnabas: Judas, called Barsabbas, and Silas, [v] both leading men among the brothers. 23 They wrote this letter to be delivered by them: [A]

> From the apostles and the elders, your brothers,
> To the brothers among the Gentiles in Antioch, Syria, and Cilicia: [w] > Greetings.
> 24 Because we have heard that some without our authorization went out from us [x] and troubled you with their words and unsettled your hearts, [y, z] 25 we have unanimously [a] decided to select men and send them to you along with our dearly loved Barnabas and Paul, 26 who have risked their lives [b] for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. 27 Therefore we have sent Judas and Silas, who will personally report the same things by word of mouth. [B] 28 For it was the Holy Spirit's decision — and ours — to put no greater burden on you than these necessary things: [c] 29 that you abstain from food offered to idols, from blood, from eating anything that has been strangled, and from sexual immorality. [d] You will do well if you keep yourselves from these things.
> Farewell.

The Outcome of the Jerusalem Letter

30 Then, being sent off, they went down to Antioch, and after gathering the assembly, they delivered the letter. 31 When they read it, they rejoiced because of its encouragement. 32 Both Judas and Silas, who were also prophets themselves, encouraged the brothers and strengthened them with a long message. [e] 33 After spending some time there, they were sent back in peace [f] by the brothers to those who had sent them. [g, h] 35 But Paul and Barnabas, along with many others, remained in Antioch teaching and proclaiming the message of the Lord. [i]

Paul and Barnabas Part Company

36 After some time had passed, Paul said to Barnabas, “Let’s go back and visit the brothers in every town [j] where we have preached the message of the Lord and see how they’re doing.” 37 Barnabas wanted to take along John Mark. [C] 38 But Paul did not think it appropriate to take along this man who had deserted them in Pamphylia and had not gone on with them to the work. 39 There was such a sharp disagreement that they parted company, and Barnabas took Mark [k] with him and sailed off to Cyprus. 40 Then Paul chose Silas and departed, after being commended to the grace of the Lord by the brothers. [l] 41 He traveled through Syria [m] and Cilicia, strengthening the churches.

Paul Selects Timothy

16 Then he went on to Derbe and Lystra, where there was a disciple named Timothy, [a] the son of a believing Jewish woman, [b] but his father was a Greek. 2 The brothers at Lystra and Iconium spoke highly of him. [c] 3 Paul wanted Timothy [A] to go with him, so he took him and circumcised [d] him because of the Jews who were in those places, since they all knew that his father was a Greek. 4 As they traveled through the towns, they delivered the decisions reached by the apostles and elders at Jerusalem for them to observe. [e] 5 So the churches were strengthened in the faith and increased in number daily. [f]

Evangelization of Europe

6 They went through the region of Phrygia and Galatia and were prevented by the Holy Spirit from speaking the message in •Asia . [g] 7 When they came to Mysia, they tried to go into Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus [h] did not allow them. 8 So, bypassing Mysia, they came down to Troas. [i] 9 During the night a vision appeared to Paul: A Macedonian man was standing and pleading with him, “Cross over to Macedonia and help us! ” [j] 10 After [k] he had seen the vision, we [l] immediately made efforts to set out for Macedonia, concluding that God had called us to evangelize them.

Lydia’s Conversion

11 Then, setting sail from Troas, we ran a straight course to Samothrace, the next day to Neapolis, 12 and from there to Philippi, [m] a Roman colony, which is a leading city of that district of Macedonia. We stayed in that city for a number of days. 13 On the Sabbath day we went outside the city gate by the river, where we thought there was a place of prayer. We sat down and spoke to the women gathered there. 14 A woman named Lydia, a dealer in purple cloth from the city of Thyatira, who worshiped God, was listening. The Lord opened her heart to pay attention to what was spoken by Paul. [n] 15 After she and her household were baptized, she urged us, “If you consider me a believer in the Lord, come and stay at my house.” [o] And she persuaded us.

Paul and Silas in Prison

16 Once, as we were on our way to prayer, a •slave girl met us who had a spirit of prediction. B, p She made a large profit for her owners by fortune-telling. 17 As she followed Paul and us she cried out, “These men, who are proclaiming to you q the way of salvation, are the slaves of the Most High God.”
18 And she did this for many days.

But Paul was greatly aggravated and turning to the spirit, said, “I command you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her! ” And it came out right away. C, r

19 When her owners saw that their hope of profit was gone, they seized Paul and Silas s and dragged them into the marketplace to the authorities. 20 Bringing them before the chief magistrates, they said, “These men are seriously disturbing our city. They are Jews 21 and are promoting customs that are not legal for us as Romans to adopt or practice.” t

22 Then the mob joined in the attack against them, and the chief magistrates stripped off their clothes and ordered them to be beaten with rods. u 23 After they had inflicted many blows on them, they threw them in jail, ordering the jailer to keep them securely guarded. 24 Receiving such an order, he put them into the inner prison and secured their feet in the stocks. v

A Midnight Deliverance

25 About midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the prisoners were listening to them. 26 Suddenly there was such a violent earthquake that the foundations of the jail were shaken, and immediately all the doors were opened, and everyone's chains came loose. [w] 27 When the jailer woke up and saw the doors of the prison open, he drew his sword and was going to kill himself, since he thought the prisoners had escaped.
28 But Paul called out in a loud voice, "Don't harm yourself, because all of us are here! "
29 Then the jailer called for lights, rushed in, and fell down trembling before Paul and Silas. 30 Then he escorted them out and said, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved? " [x] 31 So they said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved — you and your household." [y] 32 Then they spoke the message of the Lord to him along with everyone in his house. 33 He took them the same hour of the night and washed their wounds. Right away he and all his family were baptized. 34 He brought them into his house, set a meal before them, and rejoiced because he had believed God with his entire household. [z]

An Official Apology

35 When daylight came, the chief magistrates sent the police to say, “Release those men! ”
36 The jailer reported these words to Paul: “The magistrates have sent orders for you to be released. So come out now and go in peace.” [a] 37 But Paul said to them, “They beat us in public without a trial, although we are Roman citizens, and threw us in jail. And now are they going to smuggle us out secretly? Certainly not! On the contrary, let them come themselves and escort us out! ” [b] 38 Then the police reported these words to the magistrates. They were afraid when they heard that Paul and Silas were Roman citizens. 39 So they came and apologized to them, and escorting them out, they urged them to leave town.
40 After leaving the jail, they came to Lydia’s house where they saw and encouraged the brothers, and departed. [c]

A Short Ministry in Thessalonica

17 Then they traveled through Amphipolis and Apollonia and came to Thessalonica, [a] where there was a Jewish •synagogue . [2] As usual, Paul went to the synagogue, and on three Sabbath days reasoned with them from the Scriptures, [b] [3] explaining and showing that the •Messiah had to suffer and rise from the dead: “This Jesus I am proclaiming to you is the Messiah.” [c] [4] Then some of them were persuaded and joined Paul and Silas, including a great number of God-fearing Greeks, as well as a number [A] of the leading women. [d]

Riot in the City

5 But the Jews became jealous, and they brought together some scoundrels from the marketplace, formed a mob, and started a riot in the city. Attacking Jason's house, they searched for them to bring them out to the public assembly.
[e] 6 When they did not find them, they dragged Jason and some of the brothers before the city officials, shouting, "These men who have turned the world upside down have come here too, 7 and Jason has received them as guests! They are all acting contrary to Caesar's decrees, [f] saying that there is another king — Jesus! " [g] 8 The Jews stirred up the crowd and the city officials who heard these things. 9 So taking a security bond from Jason and the others, they released them.

The Bereans Search the Scriptures 10 As soon as it was night, the brothers sent Paul and Silas off to Berea. [h] On arrival, they went into the synagogue of the Jews. 11 The people here were more open-minded than those in Thessalonica, since they welcomed the message with eagerness and examined the Scriptures [i] daily to see if these things were so. 12 Consequently, many of them believed, including a number of the prominent Greek women as well as men. 13 But when the Jews from Thessalonica found out that God's message had been proclaimed by Paul at Berea, they came there too, agitating and disturbing [j] the crowds. 14
Then the brothers immediately sent Paul away to go to the sea, but Silas and Timothy [k] stayed on there. 15 Those who escorted Paul brought him as far as Athens, and after receiving instructions for Silas and Timothy to come to him as quickly as possible, they departed. [l]

Paul in Athens

16 While Paul was waiting for them in Athens, his spirit was troubled within him when he saw that the city was full of idols. 17 So he reasoned in the synagogue with the Jews and with those who worshiped God and in the marketplace every day with those who happened to be there. [m] 18 Then also, some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers argued with him. Some said,
"What is this pseudo-intellectual [B] trying to say? "

Others replied, "He seems to be a preacher of foreign deities" — because he was telling the good news about Jesus and the Resurrection. [n, o]

19 They took him and brought him to the Areopagus, [C] and said, "May we learn about this new teaching you're speaking of? [p] 20 For what you say sounds strange to us, and we want to know what these ideas mean." 21 Now all the Athenians and the foreigners residing there spent their time on nothing else but telling or hearing something new.

The Areopagus Address

22 Then Paul stood in the middle of the Areopagus and said: “Men of Athens!
I see that you are extremely religious in every respect. 23 For as I was passing through and observing the objects of your worship, I even found an altar on which was inscribed:

TO AN UNKNOWN GOD.

Therefore, what you worship in ignorance, this I proclaim to you. 24 The God who made the world and everything in it [q] — He is Lord of heaven and earth [r] and does not live in shrines made by hands. [s] 25 Neither is He served by human hands, as though He needed anything, [t] since He Himself gives everyone life and breath and all things. [u] 26 From one man [v] He has made every nationality to live over the whole earth and has determined their appointed times and the boundaries of where they live. [w] 27 He did this so they might seek God, and perhaps they might reach out and find Him, though He is not far from each one of us. [x] 28 For in Him we live and move and exist, as even some of your own poets have said, ‘For we are also His offspring.’ [y, z] 29 Being God’s offspring then, we shouldn’t think that the divine nature is like gold or silver or stone, an image fashioned by human art and imagination. [a]

30 “Therefore, having overlooked [b] the times of ignorance, God now commands all people everywhere to repent, 31 because He has set a day when He is going to judge the world in righteousness by the Man He has appointed. He has provided proof of this to everyone by raising Him from the dead.” [c]

32 When they heard about resurrection of the dead, some began to ridicule him. But others said, “We’d like to hear from you again about this.” 33 Then Paul left their presence. 34 However, some men joined him and believed, including Dionysius the Areopagite, a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

Founding the Corinthian Church

18 After this, he [a] left Athens and went to Corinth, [b] 2 where he found a Jewish man named Aquila, [c] a native of Pontus, who had recently come from Italy with his wife Priscilla because Claudius [d] had ordered all the Jews to leave Rome. Paul came to them, 3 and being of the same occupation, stayed with them and worked, for they were tentmakers [A] by trade. [e] 4 He reasoned in the •synagogue every Sabbath and tried to persuade both Jews and Greeks. [f]
5 When Silas and Timothy came down from Macedonia, Paul was occupied with preaching the message [g] and solemnly testified to the Jews that Jesus is the •Messiah . [h] 6 But when they resisted and blasphemed, [i] he shook his robe [j, k] and told them, “Your blood is on your own heads! [l] I am innocent. [B] From now on I will go to the Gentiles.” [m] 7 So he left there and went to the house of a man named Titius Justus, a worshiper of God, whose house was next door to the synagogue. 8 Crispus, the leader of the synagogue, believed the Lord, along with his whole household. [n] Many of the Corinthians, when they heard, believed and were baptized.
9 Then the Lord said to Paul in a night vision, “Don’t be afraid, but keep on speaking and don’t be silent. 10 For I am with you, and no one will lay a hand on you to hurt you, because I have many people in this city.” [o] 11 And he stayed there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.
12 While Gallio was •proconsul of Achaia, the Jews made a united attack against Paul and brought him to the judge’s bench. [p] 13 “This man,” they said, “persuades people to worship God contrary to the law! ”
14 As Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews, “If it were a matter of a crime or of moral evil, it would be reasonable for me to put up with you Jews. 15 But if these are questions about words, names, and your own law, see to it yourselves. I don’t want to be a judge of such things.” [q] 16 So he drove them from the judge’s bench. 17 Then they all [r] seized Sosthenes, [s] the leader of the synagogue, and beat him in front of the judge’s bench. But none of these things concerned Gallio.

The Return Trip to Antioch

18 So Paul, having stayed on for many days, said good-bye to the brothers and sailed away to Syria. Priscilla and Aquila were with him. He shaved his head at Cenchreae because he had taken a vow. [t] 19 When they reached Ephesus [u] he left them there, but he himself entered the synagogue and engaged in discussion with [C] the Jews. 20 And though they asked him to stay for a longer time, he declined, 21 but he said good-bye and stated, [v] "I'll come back to you again, if God wills." [w] Then he set sail from Ephesus.

22 On landing at Caesarea, he went up and greeted the church [x] and went down to Antioch. [y] 23 And after spending some time there, he set out, traveling through one place after another in the Galatian territory and Phrygia, strengthening all the disciples. [z]

The Eloquent Apollos

24 A Jew named Apollos, [a] a native Alexandrian, an eloquent man who was powerful in the use of the Scriptures, arrived in Ephesus. 25 This man had been instructed in the way of the Lord; and being fervent in spirit, [D] he spoke and taught the things about Jesus accurately, although he knew only John's baptism.
[b] 26 He began to speak boldly in the synagogue. After Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they took him home [E] and explained the way of God to him more accurately. [c] 27 When he wanted to cross over to Achaia, the brothers wrote to the disciples urging them to welcome him. After he arrived, he greatly helped those who had believed through grace. [d] 28 For he vigorously refuted the Jews in public, demonstrating through the Scriptures that Jesus is the Messiah. [e]

Twelve Disciples of John the Baptist

19 While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul traveled through the interior regions and came to Ephesus. He found some disciples [a] 2 and asked them, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed? "

"No," they told him, "we haven't even heard that there is a Holy Spirit." [b]

3 "Then what baptism were you baptized with? " he asked them.

"With John's baptism," they replied.

4 Paul said, "John baptized with a baptism of repentance, telling the people that they should believe in the One who would come after him, that is, in Jesus." [c]

5 When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. 6 And when Paul had laid his hands on [d] them, the Holy Spirit came on them, and they began to speak in other •languages and to prophesy. [e] 7 Now there were about 12 men in all.

In the Lecture Hall of Tyrannus

8 Then he entered the •synagogue and spoke boldly over a period of three months, engaging in discussion and trying to persuade them about the things of the kingdom of God. [f] 9 But when some became hardened and would not believe, slandering the Way in front of the crowd, he withdrew from them and met separately with the disciples, conducting discussions every day in the lecture hall of Tyrannus. [g] 10 And this went on for two years, so that all the inhabitants of •Asia , both Jews and Greeks, heard the message about the Lord. [h]

Demonism Defeated at Ephesus

11 God was performing extraordinary miracles by Paul's hands, 12 so that even facecloths or work aprons [A] that had touched his skin were brought to the sick, and the diseases left them, and the evil spirits came out of them. [i]

13 Then some of the itinerant Jewish exorcists attempted to pronounce the name of the Lord Jesus over those who had evil spirits, saying, "I command you by the Jesus that Paul preaches! " [j] 14 Seven sons of Sceva, a Jewish •chief priest, were doing this. 15 The evil spirit answered them, "I know Jesus, and I recognize Paul — but who are you? " 16 Then the man who had the evil spirit leaped on them, overpowered them all, and prevailed against them, so that they ran out of that house naked and wounded. 17 This became known to everyone who lived in Ephesus, both Jews and Greeks. Then fear fell on all of them, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified. [k] 18 And many who had become believers came confessing and disclosing their practices, 19 while many of those who had practiced magic collected their books and burned them in front of everyone. So they calculated their value and found it to be 50,000 pieces of silver. 20 In this way the Lord's message flourished and prevailed. [l]

The Riot in Ephesus

21 When these events were over, Paul resolved in the Spirit to pass through Macedonia and Achaia and go to Jerusalem. “After I’ve been there,” he said, “I must see Rome as well! ” [m] 22 So after sending two of those who assisted him, Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia, he himself stayed in Asia for a while. [n]

23 During that time there was a major [B] disturbance about the Way. [o] 24 For a person named Demetrius, a silversmith who made silver shrines of Artemis, [p] provided a great deal of [C] business for the craftsmen. 25 When he had assembled them, as well as the workers engaged in this type of business, he said: “Men, you know that our prosperity is derived from this business. 26 You both see and hear that not only in Ephesus, but in almost all of Asia, this man Paul has persuaded and misled a considerable number of people by saying that gods made by hand are not gods! [q] 27 So not only do we run a risk that our business may be discredited, but also that the temple of the great goddess Artemis may be despised and her magnificence come to the verge of ruin — the very one all of Asia and the world adore.”

28 When they had heard this, they were filled with rage and began to cry out, “Great is Artemis of the Ephesians! ” 29 So the city was filled with confusion, and they rushed all together into the amphitheater, dragging along Gaius [r] and Aristarchus, [s] Macedonians who were Paul’s traveling companions. 30 Though Paul wanted to go in before the people, the disciples did not let him. 31 Even some of the provincial officials of Asia, who were his friends, sent word to him, pleading with him not to take a chance by going [D] into the amphitheater. 32
Meanwhile, some were shouting one thing and some another, because the assembly was in confusion, and most of them did not know why they had come together. 33 Then some of the crowd gave Alexander advice when the Jews pushed him to the front. So motioning with his hand, Alexander wanted to make his defense to the people. [t] 34 But when they recognized that he was a Jew, a united cry went up from all of them for about two hours: “Great is Artemis of the Ephesians! ”

35 However, when the city clerk had calmed the crowd down, he said, “Men of Ephesus! What man is there who doesn’t know that the city of the Ephesians is the temple guardian of the great [u] Artemis, and of the image that fell from heaven? 36 Therefore, since these things are undeniable, you must keep calm and not do anything rash. 37 For you have brought these men here who are not temple robbers or blasphemers of our [v] goddess. 38 So if Demetrius and the craftsmen who are with him have a case against anyone, the courts are in session, and there are •proconsuls . Let them bring charges against one another. w 39 But if you want something else, it must be decided in a legal assembly. 40 In fact, we run a risk of being charged with rioting for what happened today, since there is no •justification that we can give as a reason for this disorderly gathering.” 41 After saying this, he dismissed the assembly.

Paul in Macedonia

20 After the uproar was over, Paul sent for the disciples, encouraged them, and after saying good-bye, departed to go to Macedonia. [a] 2 And when he had passed through those areas and exhorted them at length, he came to Greece 3 and stayed three months. When he was about to set sail for Syria, a plot was devised against him by the Jews, so a decision was made to go back through Macedonia. [b] 4 He was accompanied [c] by Sopater son of Pyrrhus [d] from Berea, Aristarchus and Secundus from Thessalonica, Gaius from Derbe, Timothy, [e] and Tychicus [f] and Trophimus [g] from •Asia . 5 These men went on ahead and waited for us in Troas, [h] 6 but we sailed away from Philippi after the days of •Unleavened Bread. [i] In five days we reached them at Troas, where we spent seven days.

Eutychus Revived at Troas

7 On the first day of the week, we [j] assembled to break bread. [k] Paul spoke to them, and since he was about to depart the next day, he extended his message until midnight. 8 There were many lamps in the room upstairs where we were assembled, 9 and a young man named Eutychus was sitting on a window sill and sank into a deep sleep as Paul kept on speaking. When he was overcome by sleep, he fell down from the third story and was picked up dead. 10 But Paul went down, fell on him, embraced him, and said, “Don’t be alarmed, for his •life is in him! ” [l] 11 After going upstairs, breaking the bread, and eating, Paul conversed a considerable time until dawn. Then he left. 12 They brought the boy home alive and were greatly comforted.

From Troas to Miletus

13 Then we went on ahead to the ship and sailed for Assos, intending to take Paul on board there. For these were his instructions, since he himself was going by land. 14 When he met us at Assos, we took him on board and came to Mitylene. 15 Sailing from there, the next day we arrived off Chios. The following day we crossed over to Samos, and [m] the day after, we came to Miletus. [n] 16 For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus so he would not have to spend time in Asia, because he was hurrying to be in Jerusalem, if possible, for the day of Pentecost. [o]

Farewell Address to the Ephesian Elders 17 Now from Miletus, he sent to Ephesus and called for the elders of the church. 18 And when they came to him, he said to them: "You know, from the first day I set foot in Asia, how I was with you the whole time [p] — 19 serving the Lord with all humility, with tears, and with the trials that came to me through the plots of the Jews [q] — 20 and that I did not shrink back from proclaiming to you anything that was profitable or from teaching it to you in public and from house to house. 21 I testified to both Jews and Greeks about repentance toward God [r] and faith in our Lord Jesus. [s]

22 "And now I am on my way to Jerusalem, bound in my spirit, [A] not knowing what I will encounter there, [t] 23 except that in town after town the Holy Spirit testifies to me that chains and afflictions are waiting for me. [u] 24 But I count my life of no value to myself, so that I may finish my course [v] and the ministry [w] I received from the Lord Jesus, [x] to testify to the gospel of God's grace.

25 "And now I know that none of you will ever see my face again — everyone
I went about preaching the kingdom to. 26 Therefore I testify to you this day that I am innocent [B] of everyone's blood, [y] 27 for I did not shrink back from declaring to you the whole plan of God. [z] 28 Be on guard for yourselves and for all the flock [a] that the Holy Spirit has appointed you to as •overseers , [b] to shepherd the church of God, [c] which He purchased with His own blood. [d] 29 I know that after my departure savage wolves will come in among you, not sparing the flock. 30 And men will rise up from your own number with deviant doctrines to lure the disciples into following them. [e] 31 Therefore be on the alert, remembering that night and day for three years I did not stop warning each one of you with tears. [f]

32 "And now [g] I commit you to God and to the message of His grace, [h] which is able to build you up and to give you an inheritance [i] among all who are •sanctified . [33] I have not coveted anyone's silver or gold or clothing. [j] [34] You yourselves know that these hands have provided for my needs and for those who were with me. [k] [35] In every way I've shown you that by laboring like this, it is necessary to help the weak and to keep in mind the words of the Lord Jesus, for He said, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

[36] After he said this, he knelt down and prayed with all of them. [l] [37] There was a great deal of weeping by everyone. They embraced Paul and kissed him, [38] grieving most of all over his statement that they would never see his face again. Then they escorted him to the ship. [m]

Warnings on the Journey to Jerusalem

21 After [a] we tore ourselves away from them and set sail, we came by a direct route to Cos, the next day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara. 2 Finding a ship crossing over to Phoenicia, we boarded and set sail. 3 After we sighted Cyprus, leaving it on the left, we sailed on to Syria and arrived at Tyre, because the ship was to unload its cargo there. 4 So we found some disciples and stayed there seven days. Through the Spirit they told Paul not to go to Jerusalem. [b] 5
When our days there were over, we left to continue our journey, while all of them, with their wives and children, escorted us out of the city. After kneeling down on the beach to pray, 6 we said good-bye to one another. Then we boarded the ship, and they returned home.

7 When we completed our voyage from Tyre, we reached Ptolemais, where we greeted the brothers and stayed with them one day. [c] 8 The next day we left and came to Caesarea, where we entered the house of Philip [d] the evangelist, [e] who was one of the Seven, and stayed with him. 9 This man had four virgin daughters who prophesied. [f]

10 While we were staying there many days, a prophet named Agabus came down from Judea. 11 He came to us, took Paul's belt, tied his own feet and hands, and said, "This is what the Holy Spirit says: 'In this way the Jews in Jerusalem will bind the man who owns this belt and deliver him into Gentile hands.' " [g] 12 When we heard this, both we and the local people begged him not to go up to Jerusalem.

13 Then Paul replied, "What are you doing, weeping and breaking my heart?
For I am ready not only to be bound but also to die in Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus." [h]

14 Since he would not be persuaded, we stopped talking and simply said, "The Lord's will be done! " [i]

Conflict over the Gentile Mission 15 After these days we got ready and went up to Jerusalem. 16 Some of the disciples from Caesarea also went with us and brought us to Mnason, a Cypriot and an early disciple, with whom we were to stay. [j]

17 When we reached Jerusalem, the brothers welcomed us gladly. [k] 18 The following day Paul went in with us to James, and all the elders were present. [l] 19
After greeting them, he related in detail what God did among the Gentiles through his ministry. [m]

20 When they heard it, they glorified God and said, "You see, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are who have believed, and they are all zealous [n] for the law. 21 But they have been told about you that you teach all the Jews who are among the Gentiles to abandon Moses, by telling them not to circumcise their children or to walk in our customs. [o] 22 So what is to be done? [p] They will certainly hear that you've come. 23 Therefore do what we tell you: We have four men who have obligated themselves with a vow. 24 Take these men, purify yourself along with them, and pay for them to get their heads shaved. Then everyone will know that what they were told about you amounts to nothing, but that you yourself are also careful about observing the law. [q] 25 With regard to the Gentiles who have believed, we have written a letter containing our decision that [r] they should keep themselves from food sacrificed to idols, from blood, from what is strangled, and from sexual immorality."

The Riot in the Temple Complex

26 Then the next day, Paul took the men, having purified himself along with them, and entered the temple, announcing the completion of the purification days when the offering for each of them would be made. [s] 27 As the seven days were about to end, the Jews from •Asia saw him in the •temple complex, stirred up the whole crowd, and seized him, [t] 28 shouting, "Men of Israel, help! This is the man who teaches everyone everywhere against our people, our law, and this place. What's more, he also brought Greeks into the temple and has profaned this holy place." [u] 29 For they had previously seen Trophimus the Ephesian in the city with him, and they supposed that Paul had brought him into the temple complex. [v, w]

30 The whole city was stirred up, and the people rushed together. They seized Paul, dragged him out of the temple complex, and at once the gates were shut. [x] 31 As they were trying to kill him, word went up to the commander of the •regiment that all Jerusalem was in chaos. 32 Taking along soldiers and •centurions , he immediately ran down to them. Seeing the commander and the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul. 33 Then the commander came up, took him into custody, and ordered him to be bound with two chains. [y] He asked who he was and what he had done. 34 Some in the mob were shouting one thing and some another. Since he was not able to get reliable information because of the uproar, he ordered him to be taken into the barracks. [z] 35 When Paul got to the steps, he had to be carried by the soldiers because of the mob's violence, 36 for the mass of people followed, yelling, "Take him away! " [a]

Paul's Defense before the Jerusalem Mob 37 As he was about to be brought into the barracks, Paul said to the commander, "Am I allowed to say something to you? "

He replied, "Do you know Greek? 38 Aren't you the Egyptian who raised a rebellion some time ago and led 4,000 Assassins [A, b] into the wilderness? " [c]

39 Paul said, "I am a Jewish man from Tarsus of Cilicia, [d] a citizen of an important city. [B] Now I ask you, let me speak to the people."

40 After he had given permission, Paul stood on the steps and motioned with his hand to the people. When there was a great hush, he addressed them in the •Hebrew language: [e]

22 “Brothers and fathers, listen now to my defense before you.” 2 When they heard that he was addressing them in the Hebrew language, they became even quieter. [a] 3 He [b] continued, “I am a Jewish man, born in Tarsus of Cilicia but brought up in this city [c] at the feet of Gamaliel [d] and educated according to the strict view of our patriarchal law. Being zealous for God, just as all of you are today, [e] 4 I persecuted this Way [f] to the death, binding and putting both men and women in jail, [g] 5 as both the high priest and the whole council of elders can testify about me. After I received letters from them to the brothers, I traveled to Damascus to bring those who were prisoners there to be punished in Jerusalem. [h]

Paul’s Testimony

6 “As [i] I was traveling and near Damascus, about noon an intense light from heaven suddenly flashed around me. 7 I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me? ’

8 “I answered, ‘Who are You, Lord? ’

“He said to me, ‘I am Jesus the •Nazarene , the One you are persecuting! ’ 9 Now those who were with me saw the light, [j] but they did not hear the voice of the One who was speaking to me. [k]

10 “Then I said, ‘What should I do, Lord? ’

“And the Lord told me, ‘Get up and go into Damascus, and there you will be told about everything that is assigned for you to do.’

11 “Since I couldn’t see because of the brightness of that light, I was led by the hand by those who were with me, and came into Damascus. [l] 12 Someone named Ananias, a devout man according to the law, having a good reputation with all the Jews residing there, [m] 13 came and stood by me and said, ‘Brother Saul, regain your sight.’ And in that very hour I looked up and saw him. 14 Then he said, ‘The God of our fathers has appointed [n] you to know His will, to see [o] the Righteous One, [p] and to hear the sound of His voice. [A] 15 For you will be a witness for Him to all people of what you have seen and heard. [q] 16 And now, why delay? Get up and be baptized, and wash away your sins [r] by calling on His name.’ [s]

17 “After I came back to Jerusalem and was praying in the •temple complex, I went into a visionary state [t] 18 and saw Him telling me, ‘Hurry and get out of Jerusalem quickly, because they will not accept your testimony about Me! ’

19 “But I said, ‘Lord, they know that in •synagogue after synagogue I had those who believed in You imprisoned and beaten. [u] 20 And when the blood of

Your witness Stephen was being shed, I was standing by and approving, [v] and I guarded the clothes of those who killed him.' [w]

21 "Then He said to me, 'Go, because I will send you far away to the Gentiles.' " [x]

Paul's Roman Protection

22 They listened to him up to this word. Then they raised their voices, shouting, "Wipe this person off the earth — it's a disgrace for him to live! " [y]

23 As they were yelling and flinging aside their robes and throwing dust into the air, [z] 24 the commander ordered him to be brought into the barracks, directing that he be examined with the scourge, so he could discover the reason they were shouting against him like this. 25 As they stretched him out for the lash, Paul said to the •centurion standing by, "Is it legal for you to scourge a man who is a Roman citizen and is uncondemned? " [a]

26 When the centurion heard this, he went and reported to the commander, saying, "What are you going to do? For this man is a Roman citizen."

27 The commander came and said to him, "Tell me — are you a Roman citizen? "

"Yes," he said.

28 The commander replied, "I bought this citizenship for a large amount of money."

"But I was born a citizen," Paul said.

29 Therefore, those who were about to examine him withdrew from him at once. The commander too was alarmed when he realized Paul was a Roman citizen and he had bound him. [b]

Paul before the Sanhedrin

30 The next day, since he wanted to find out exactly why Paul was being accused by the Jews, he released him [c] and instructed the •chief priests and all the •Sanhedrin to convene. [d] Then he brought Paul down and placed him before them.

23 Paul looked intently at the •Sanhedrin and said, “Brothers, I have lived my life before God in all good conscience [a] until this day.” 2 But the high priest Ananias ordered those who were standing next to him to strike him on the mouth. [b] 3 Then Paul said to him, “God is going to strike you, you whitewashed wall! You are sitting there judging me according to the law, and in violation of the law are you ordering me to be struck? ” [c]
4 And those standing nearby said, “Do you dare revile God’s high priest? ” 5 “I did not know, brothers, that he was the high priest,” replied Paul. “For it is written, You must not speak evil of a ruler of your people.” [d, e] 6 When Paul realized that one part of them were •Sadducees and the other part were •Pharisees , he cried out in the Sanhedrin, “Brothers, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees! [f] I am being judged because of the hope of the resurrection of the dead! ” [g] 7 When he said this, a dispute broke out between the Pharisees and the Sadducees, and the assembly was divided. 8 For the Sadducees say there is no resurrection, [h] and no angel or spirit, but the Pharisees affirm them all.
9 The shouting grew loud, and some of the •scribes of the Pharisees’ [i] party got up and argued vehemently: “We find nothing evil in this man. [j] What if a spirit or an angel has spoken to him? ” [k, l] 10 When the dispute became violent, the commander feared that Paul might be torn apart by them and ordered the troops to go down, rescue him from them, and bring him into the barracks. [m]

The Plot against Paul

11 The following night, the Lord stood by him and said, “Have courage! For as you have testified about Me in Jerusalem, so you must also testify in Rome.” [n]

12 When it was day, the Jews formed a conspiracy and bound themselves under a curse: neither to eat nor to drink until they had killed Paul. [o] 13 There were more than 40 who had formed this plot. 14 These men went to the •chief priests and elders and said, “We have bound ourselves under a solemn curse that we won’t eat anything until we have killed Paul. 15 So now you, along with the Sanhedrin, make a request to the commander that he bring him down to you [p] as if you were going to investigate his case more thoroughly. However, before he gets near, we are ready to kill him.” [q]

16 But the son of Paul’s sister, hearing about their ambush, came and entered the barracks and reported it to Paul. 17 Then Paul called one of the •centurions and said, “Take this young man to the commander, because he has something to report to him.”

18 So he took him, brought him to the commander, and said, “The prisoner Paul called me and asked me to bring this young man to you, because he has something to tell you.”

19 Then the commander took him by the hand, led him aside, and inquired privately, “What is it you have to report to me? ”

20 “The Jews,” he said, “have agreed to ask you to bring Paul down to the Sanhedrin tomorrow, as though they are going to hold a somewhat more careful inquiry about him. 21 Don’t let them persuade you, because there are more than 40 of them arranging to ambush him, men who have bound themselves under a curse not to eat or drink until they kill him. Now they are ready, waiting for a commitment from you.” [r]

22 So the commander dismissed the young man and instructed him, “Don’t tell anyone that you have informed me about this.”

To Caesarea by Night

23 He summoned two of his centurions and said, “Get 200 soldiers ready with 70 cavalry and 200 spearmen to go to Caesarea at nine tonight. A, s 24 Also provide mounts so they can put Paul on them and bring him safely to Felix the governor.”

25 He wrote a letter of this kind:

> 26 Claudius Lysias,
> To the most excellent governor Felix:
> Greetings. t
> 27 When this man had been seized by the Jews and was about to be killed by them, I arrived with my troops and rescued him because I learned that he is a Roman citizen. u 28 Wanting to know the charge they were accusing him of, I brought him down before their Sanhedrin.
> 29 I found out that the accusations were about disputed matters in their law, v and that there was no charge that merited death or chains. w
> 30 When I was informed that there was a plot against the man, x, y I sent him to you right away. I also ordered his accusers z to state their case against him in your presence. a

31 Therefore, the soldiers took Paul during the night and brought him to Antipatris as they were ordered. 32 The next day, they returned to the barracks, allowing the cavalry to go on with him. 33 When these men entered Caesarea and delivered the letter to the governor, they also presented Paul to him. b 34 After he c read it, he asked what province he was from. So when he learned he was from Cilicia, d 35 he said, “I will give you a hearing whenever your accusers get here too.” And he ordered that he be kept under guard in •Herod ’s •palace . e

The Accusation against Paul

24 After five days Ananias the high priest came down with some elders and a lawyer [a] named Tertullus. These men presented their case against Paul to the governor. [b] 2 When he was called in, Tertullus began to accuse him and said: “Since we enjoy great peace because of you, and reforms are taking place for the benefit of this nation by your foresight, 3 we acknowledge this in every way and everywhere, most excellent [c] Felix, with utmost gratitude. 4 However, so that I will not burden you any further, I beg you in your graciousness to give us a brief hearing. 5 For we have found this man to be a plague, [d] an agitator [e] among all the Jews throughout the Roman world, and a ringleader of the sect of the •Nazarenes ! 6 He even tried to desecrate the temple, so we apprehended him [and wanted to judge him according to our law. 7 But Lysias the commander came and took him from our hands with great force, 8 commanding his accusers to come to you.] [f] By examining him yourself you will be able to discern all these things we are accusing him of.” 9 The Jews also joined in the attack, alleging that these things were so.

Paul’s Defense before Felix

10 When the governor motioned to him to speak, Paul replied: “Because I know you have been a judge of this nation for many years, I am glad to offer my defense in what concerns me. [g] 11 You are able to determine that it is no more than 12 days since I went up to worship in Jerusalem. [h] 12 They didn’t find me disputing with anyone or causing a disturbance among the crowd, either in the •temple complex or in the •synagogues or anywhere in the city. [i] 13 Neither can they provide evidence to you of what they now bring against me. 14 But I confess this to you: I worship my fathers’ God according to the Way, [j] which they call a sect, believing all the things that are written in the Law and in the Prophets. [k] 15 And I have a hope in God, which these men themselves also accept, that there is going to be a resurrection, [l, m] both of the righteous and the unrighteous. [n] 16 I always do my best to have a clear conscience [o] toward God and men. 17 After many years, I came to bring charitable gifts and offerings to my nation, [p] 18 and while I was doing this, some Jews from •Asia found me ritually purified in the temple, without a crowd and without any uproar. [q] 19 It is they who ought to be here before you to bring charges, if they have anything against me. 20 Either let these men here state what wrongdoing they found in me when I stood before the •Sanhedrin , 21 or about this one statement I cried out while standing among them, ‘Today I am being judged before you concerning the resurrection of the dead.’ ”

The Verdict Postponed

22 Since Felix was accurately informed about the Way, [r] he adjourned the hearing, saying, “When Lysias the commander comes down, I will decide your case.” 23 He ordered that the •centurion keep Paul [A] under guard, though he could have some freedom, and that he should not prevent any of his friends from serving [s] him. [t]

24 After some days, when Felix came with his wife Drusilla, who was Jewish, he sent for Paul and listened to him on the subject of faith in Christ Jesus. 25
Now as he spoke about righteousness, self-control, and the judgment to come, [u] Felix became afraid and replied, “Leave for now, but when I find time I’ll call for you.” 26 At the same time he was also hoping that money would be given to him by Paul. [v] For this reason he sent for him quite often and conversed with him.

27 After two years had passed, Felix received a successor, Porcius Festus, [w] and because he wished to do a favor for the Jews, [x] Felix left Paul in prison. [y]

Appeal to Caesar

25 Three days after Festus arrived in the province, he went up to Jerusalem from Caesarea. [a] 2 Then the •chief priests and the leaders of the Jews presented their case against Paul to him; and they appealed, [b] 3 asking him to do them a favor against Paul, [A] that he might summon him to Jerusalem. They were preparing an ambush along the road to kill him. 4 However, Festus answered that Paul should be kept at Caesarea, and that he himself was about to go there shortly. [c] 5 "Therefore," he said, "let the men of authority among you go down with me and accuse him, if there is any wrong in this man."

6 When he had spent not more than eight or 10 days among them, he went down to Caesarea. The next day, seated at the judge's bench, he commanded Paul to be brought in. [d] 7 When he arrived, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem stood around him and brought many serious charges that they were not able to prove, [e] 8 while Paul made the defense that, "Neither against the Jewish law, [f] nor against the temple, nor against Caesar have I sinned at all."

9 Then Festus, wanting to do a favor for the Jews, [g] replied to Paul, "Are you willing to go up to Jerusalem, there to be tried before me on these charges? "

10 But Paul said: "I am standing at Caesar's tribunal, where I ought to be tried.
I have done no wrong to the Jews, as even you can see very well. 11 If then I am doing wrong, or have done anything deserving of death, I do not refuse to die, but if there is nothing to what these men accuse me of, no one can give me up to them. I appeal to Caesar! " [h]

12 After Festus conferred with his council, he replied, "You have appealed to Caesar; to Caesar you will go! "

King Agrippa and Bernice Visit Festus 13 After some days had passed, King
Agrippa [i] and Bernice arrived in Caesarea and paid a courtesy call on Festus.
14 Since they stayed there many days, Festus presented Paul's case to the king, saying, "There's a man who was left as a prisoner by Felix. 15 When I was in Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews presented their case and asked for a judgment against him. [j] 16 I answered them that it's not the Romans' custom to give any man up [k] before the accused confronts the accusers face to face and has an opportunity to give a defense concerning the charges. [l] 17 Therefore, when they had assembled here, I did not delay. The next day I sat at the judge's bench and ordered the man to be brought in. 18 Concerning him, the accusers stood up and brought no charge of the sort I was expecting.
19 Instead they had some disagreements [m] with him about their own religion and about a certain Jesus, a dead man Paul claimed to be alive. 20 Since I was at a loss in a dispute over such things, I asked him if he wished to go to Jerusalem and be tried there concerning these matters. 21 But when Paul appealed to be held for trial by the Emperor, I ordered him to be kept in custody until I could send him to Caesar."

22 Then Agrippa said to Festus, "I would like to hear the man myself."

"Tomorrow you will hear him," he replied. [n]

Paul before Agrippa

23 So the next day, Agrippa and Bernice [o] came with great pomp and entered the auditorium with the commanders and prominent men of the city. When Festus gave the command, Paul was brought in. 24 Then Festus said: “King Agrippa and all men present with us, you see this man about whom the whole Jewish community has appealed to me, both in Jerusalem and here, shouting that he should not live any longer. [p] 25 Now I realized that he had not done anything deserving of death, but when he himself appealed to the Emperor, I decided to send him. [q] 26 I have nothing definite to write to my lord about him. Therefore, I have brought him before all of you, and especially before you, King Agrippa, so that after this examination is over, I may have something to write. 27 For it seems unreasonable to me to send a prisoner and not to indicate the charges against him.”

Paul's Defense before Agrippa

26 Agrippa said to Paul, “It is permitted for you to speak for yourself.”

Then Paul stretched out his hand and began his defense: 2 “I consider myself fortunate, King Agrippa, that today I am going to make a defense before you about everything I am accused of by the Jews, 3 especially since you are an expert in all the Jewish customs and controversies. Therefore I beg you to listen to me patiently.

4 “All the Jews know my way of life from my youth, which was spent from the beginning among my own nation and in Jerusalem. [a] 5 They had previously known me for quite some time, if they were willing to testify, that according to the strictest party of our religion I lived as a •Pharisee . [b] 6 And now I stand on trial for the hope [c] of the promise [d] made by God to our fathers, 7 the promise our 12 tribes hope to attain as they earnestly serve Him night and day. King Agrippa, I am being accused by the Jews because of this hope. [e] 8 Why is it considered incredible by any of you that God raises the dead? 9 In fact, I myself supposed it was necessary to do many things in opposition to the name of Jesus the •Nazarene . [f] 10 I actually did this in Jerusalem, and I locked up many of the •saints in prison, since I had received authority for that from the •chief priests.
When they were put to death, I cast my vote against them. [g] 11 In all the •synagogues I often tried to make them blaspheme by punishing them. [h] I even pursued them to foreign cities since I was greatly enraged at them.

Paul’s Account of His Conversion and Commission 12 “I was traveling to Damascus under [i] these circumstances with authority and a commission from the chief priests. 13 King Agrippa, while on the road at midday, I saw a light from heaven brighter than the sun, shining around me and those traveling with me. 14 We all fell to the ground, and I heard a voice speaking to me in the •Hebrew language, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me? It is hard for you to kick against the goads.’ [j, k]

15 “Then I said, ‘Who are You, Lord? ’

“And the Lord replied: ‘I am Jesus, the One you are persecuting. 16 But get up and stand on your feet. For I have appeared to you for this purpose, to appoint you as a servant and a witness of what you have seen [l] and of what I will reveal to you. [m] 17 I will rescue you from the people and from the Gentiles. I now send you to them [n] 18 to open their eyes [o] so they may turn from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God, that by faith in Me they may receive forgiveness of sins and a share among those who are •sanctified .’ [p]

19 “Therefore, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision. 20

Instead, I preached to those in Damascus first, and to those in Jerusalem and in all the region of Judea, and to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do works worthy of repentance. [q] 21 For this reason the Jews seized me in the •temple complex and were trying to kill me. 22 To this very day, I have obtained help that comes from God, and I stand and testify to both small and great, saying nothing else than what the prophets and Moses said would take place [r] — 23 that the •Messiah must suffer, and that as the first to rise from the dead, He would proclaim light to our people and to the Gentiles." [s]

Not Quite Persuaded

24 As he was making his defense this way, Festus exclaimed in a loud voice,
"You're out of your mind, [t] Paul! Too much study is driving you mad! "

25 But Paul replied, "I'm not out of my mind, most excellent Festus. On the contrary, I'm speaking words of truth and good judgment. [u] 26 For the king knows about these matters. It is to him I am actually speaking boldly. For I am convinced that none of these things escapes his notice, since this was not done in a corner. 27 King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know you believe."

28 Then Agrippa said to Paul, "Are you going to persuade me to become a Christian so easily? "

29 "I wish before God," replied Paul, "that whether easily or with difficulty, not only you but all who listen to me today might become as I am — except for these chains." [v]

30 So the king, the governor, Bernice, and those sitting with them got up, 31 and when they had left they talked with each other and said, "This man is doing nothing that deserves death or chains." [w]

32 Then Agrippa said to Festus, "This man could have been released if he had not appealed to Caesar." [x]

Sailing for Rome

27 When it was decided that we were to sail to Italy, they handed over Paul and some other prisoners to a •centurion named Julius, of the Imperial •Regiment . [a] 2 So when we had boarded a ship of Adramyttium, we put to sea, intending to sail to ports along the coast of •Asia . Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica, was with us. [b] 3 The next day we put in at Sidon, and Julius treated Paul kindly and allowed him to go to his friends to receive their care. [c] 4
When we had put out to sea from there, we sailed along the northern coast [A] of Cyprus because the winds were against us. 5 After sailing through the open sea off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we reached Myra in Lycia. [d] 6 There the centurion found an Alexandrian ship sailing for Italy and put us on board. 7 Sailing slowly for many days, we came with difficulty as far as Cnidus. Since the wind did not allow us to approach it, we sailed along the south side [B] of Crete off Salmone.
8 With yet more difficulty we sailed along the coast and came to a place called Fair Havens near the city of Lasea.

Paul's Advice Ignored

9 By now much time had passed, and the voyage was already dangerous. Since the Fast [e, f] was already over, Paul gave his advice 10 and told them, "Men, I can see that this voyage is headed toward damage and heavy loss, not only of the cargo and the ship but also of our lives." 11 But the centurion paid attention to the captain and the owner of the ship rather than to what Paul said. [g] 12 Since the harbor was unsuitable to winter in, the majority decided to set sail from there, hoping somehow to reach Phoenix, a harbor on Crete [h] open to the southwest and northwest, and to winter there.

Storm-Tossed Ship

13 When a gentle south wind sprang up, they thought they had achieved their purpose. They weighed anchor and sailed along the shore of Crete. 14 But not long afterward, a fierce wind called the "northeaster" [C] rushed down from the island. 15 Since the ship was caught and was unable to head into the wind, we gave way to it and were driven along. 16 After running under the shelter of a little island called Cauda, [D] we were barely able to get control of the skiff. 17 After hoisting it up, they used ropes and tackle and girded the ship. Then, fearing they would run aground on the Syrtis, [i] they lowered the drift-anchor, and in this way they were driven along. 18 Because we were being severely battered by the storm, they began to jettison the cargo the next day. [j] 19 On the third day, they threw the ship's gear overboard with their own hands.

20 For many days neither sun nor stars appeared, and the severe storm kept raging. Finally all hope that we would be saved was disappearing. 21 Since many were going without food, Paul stood up among them and said, “You men should have followed my advice not to sail from Crete and sustain this damage and loss.
22 Now I urge you to take courage, because there will be no loss of any of your lives, but only of the ship. 23 For this night an angel of the God I belong to and serve stood by me, k 24 and said, ‘Don’t be afraid, Paul. You must stand before Caesar. And, look! God has graciously given you all those who are sailing with you.’ 25 Therefore, take courage, men, because I believe God that it will be just the way it was told to me. l 26 However, we must run aground on a certain island.” m

27 When the fourteenth night came, we were drifting in the Adriatic Sea, n and in the middle of the night the sailors thought they were approaching land. E 28
They took a sounding and found it to be 120 feet F deep; when they had sailed a little farther and sounded again, they found it to be 90 feet G deep. 29 Then, fearing we might run aground in some rocky place, they dropped four anchors from the stern and prayed for daylight to come.

30 Some sailors tried to escape from the ship; they had let down the skiff into the sea, pretending that they were going to put out anchors from the bow. 31 Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers, “Unless these men stay in the ship, you cannot be saved.” 32 Then the soldiers cut the ropes holding the skiff and let it drop away.

33 When it was about daylight, Paul urged them all to take food, saying, “Today is the fourteenth day that you have been waiting and going without food, having eaten nothing. 34 Therefore I urge you to take some food. For this has to do with your survival, since none of you will lose a hair from your head.” o 35
After he said these things and had taken some bread, he gave thanks to God in the presence of all of them, and when he broke it, he began to eat. p 36 They all became encouraged and took food themselves. 37 In all there were 276 of us on the ship. q 38 When they had eaten enough, they began to lighten the ship by throwing the grain overboard into the sea.

Shipwreck

39 When daylight came, they did not recognize the land but sighted a bay with a beach. They planned to run the ship ashore if they could. [r] 40 After casting off the anchors, they left them in the sea, at the same time loosening the ropes that held the rudders. Then they hoisted the foresail to the wind and headed for the beach. 41 But they struck a sandbar and ran the ship aground. The bow jammed fast and remained immovable, while the stern began to break up by the pounding of the waves.

42 The soldiers' plan was to kill the prisoners so that no one could swim away and escape. 43 But the centurion kept them from carrying out their plan because he wanted to save Paul, so he ordered those who could swim to jump overboard first and get to land. 44 The rest were to follow, some on planks and some on debris from the ship. In this way, everyone safely reached the shore. [s]

Malta’s Hospitality

28 Once ashore, we [a] then learned that the island was called Malta. [b] 2 The local people [c] showed us extraordinary kindness, for they lit a fire and took us all in, since it was raining and cold. 3 As Paul gathered a bundle of brushwood and put it on the fire, a viper came out because of the heat and fastened itself to his hand. 4 When the local people saw the creature hanging from his hand, they said to one another, “This man is probably a murderer, and though he has escaped the sea, Justice [A] does not allow him to live! ” [d] 5 However, he shook the creature off into the fire and suffered no harm. [e] 6 They expected that he would swell up or suddenly drop dead. But after they waited a long time and saw nothing unusual happen to him, they changed their minds and said he was a god. [f]

Ministry in Malta

7 Now in the area around that place was an estate belonging to the leading man of the island, named Publius, who welcomed us and entertained us hospitably for three days. 8 Publius's father was in bed suffering from fever and dysentery. Paul went to him, and praying and laying his hands on him, he healed him. g 9 After this, the rest of those on the island who had diseases also came and were cured. 10 So they heaped many honors on us, and when we sailed, they gave us what we needed.

Rome at Last

11 After three months we set sail in an Alexandrian ship that had wintered at the island, with the Twin Brothers [B] as its figurehead. 12 Putting in at Syracuse, we stayed three days. 13 From there, after making a circuit along the coast, [h] we reached Rhegium. After one day a south wind sprang up, and the second day we came to Puteoli. 14 There we found believers [C, i] and were invited to stay with them for seven days.

And so we came to Rome. 15 Now the believers [D] from there had heard the news about us and had come to meet us as far as the Forum of Appius and the Three Taverns. When Paul saw them, he thanked God and took courage. 16
When we entered Rome, [j] Paul was permitted to stay by himself with the soldier who guarded him. [k]

Paul's First Interview with Roman Jews

17 After three days he called together the leaders of the Jews. When they had gathered he said to them: "Brothers, although I have done nothing against our people or the customs of our ancestors, I was delivered as a prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans. [l] 18 After they examined me, they wanted to release me, since I had not committed a capital offense. [m] 19 Because the Jews objected, I was compelled to appeal to Caesar; [n] it was not as though I had any accusation against my nation. 20 For this reason I've asked to see you and speak to you. In fact, it is for the hope of Israel that I'm wearing this chain."
[o]

21 Then they said to him, "We haven't received any letters about you from Judea. None of the brothers has come and reported or spoken anything evil about you. 22 But we would like to hear from you what you think. For concerning this sect, we are aware that it is spoken against everywhere." [p]

The Response to Paul's Message

23 After arranging a day with him, many came to him at his lodging. From dawn to dusk he expounded and witnessed about the kingdom of God. He tried to persuade them concerning Jesus from both the Law of Moses and the Prophets. [q] 24 Some were persuaded by what he said, but others did not believe.
[r]

25 Disagreeing among themselves, they began to leave after Paul made one statement: "The Holy Spirit correctly spoke through the prophet Isaiah to your [s] ancestors 26 when He said,

Go to these people and say:
You will listen and listen,
yet never understand;
and you will look and look,
yet never perceive.
27 For the hearts of these people have grown callous, their ears are hard of hearing,
and they have shut their eyes;
otherwise they might see with their eyes and hear with their ears, understand with their heart,
and be converted,
and I would heal them. t, u

28 Therefore, let it be known to you that this saving work of God has been sent to the Gentiles; they will listen! ” v [29 After he said these things, the Jews departed, while engaging in a prolonged debate among themselves.] w

Paul’s Ministry Unhindered

30 Then he stayed two whole years in his own rented house. And he welcomed all who visited him, 31 proclaiming the kingdom of God x and teaching the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ with full boldness y and without hindrance.

Introduction

Roman aqueduct at Caesarea Maritima, one of Israel's principal port cities in the first century. In A.D. 6, Caesarea became the capital of the province of Judea and served as the official home of the Roman procurators. The city is a setting for several pivotal events in Acts (9:30; 10:1; 12:19-23; 18:22; 21:8; 23:23; 25:1-7).

The book of Acts provides a glimpse into the first three decades of the early church (ca A.D. 30-63) as it spread and multiplied after the ascension of Jesus Christ. It is not a detailed or comprehensive history. Rather, it focuses on the role played by apostles such as Peter, who ministered primarily to Jews, and Paul, the apostle to the Gentiles.

Circumstances of Writing

Author: The book of Acts is formally anonymous. The traditional view is that the author was the same person who wrote the Gospel of Luke—Luke the physician and traveling companion of Paul (Col 4:14; 2Tm 4:11; Phm 24). As early as the second century A.D., church leaders such as Irenaeus wrote that Luke was the author of Acts. Irenaeus based his view on the "we" passages in Acts, five sections where the author changed from the third person ("he/she" and "they") to first-person plural ("we") as he narrated the action (16:10-17; 20:5-15; 21:1-18; 27:1-29; 28:1-16). Irenaeus and many scholars since his time have interpreted these passages to mean that the author of Acts was one of the eyewitness companions of Paul. Luke fits this description better than any other candidate, especially given the similar themes between the Gospel of Luke and the book of Acts.

Background: The date of composition of the book of Acts is to a large extent directly tied to the issue of authorship. A number of scholars have argued that Acts should be dated to the early 60s (at the time of Paul's imprisonment). Acts closes with Paul still in prison in Rome (28:30-31). Although it is possible that Luke wrote at a later date, a time when Paul had been released, it is more plausible to think that he completed this book while Paul was still in prison. Otherwise he would have ended the book by telling about Paul's release.

Message and Purpose

The book of Acts emphasizes the work of God through the Holy Spirit in the lives of people who devoted themselves to Jesus Christ, especially Paul as he led the Gentile missionary endeavor. It is no exaggeration to say that the Christian church was built through the dynamic power of the Spirit working through chosen vessels. Another important concept is the radial spread of the gospel from Jews to Gentiles, from Jerusalem to Judea, from Samaria and on to the rest of the world (1:8). Thus Christianity transformed from being a sect within Judaism to a world religion that eventually gained welcome everywhere, even in the heart of the pagan Roman Empire: Rome itself.

At the heart of the Christian movement was the work of the apostle Paul, a former skeptic who became Christianity's most vocal advocate. From his first appearance at the stoning of Stephen (where he concurred in the decision to stone Stephen for his Christian preaching), to his final appearance while imprisoned in his own rented house at Rome (where he was active in spreading the gospel even as he faced a death sentence), Paul's work on behalf of the gospel is evident at almost every turn as he proclaimed the good news before "Gentiles, kings, and the Israelites" (9:15).

The book of Acts provides biographical glimpses of a few of the early apostles as they spread the gospel first in Jerusalem and then on to the rest of the world. Peter, Philip, and a few others were responsible for the spread of the gospel to Jerusalem, Judea, and Samaria. Paul was responsible for much of the rest of the world.

Paul's typical missionary strategy was to go to a familiar place in each city he visited, usually a synagogue, and proclaim the gospel first to local Jews. The speed with which he shifted his focus to Gentiles outside the synagogue depended on how Jews received him within the synagogue. Before leaving town, Paul united Jewish and Gentile converts alike to form a local church.

The early apostles are distinguished by their being filled by the Holy Spirit and empowered to proclaim the gospel under a variety of trying circumstances. These circumstances included theological, political, and physical oppression or a combination of these as they were marginalized, imprisoned, and stoned.

Nevertheless, through the power of the Holy Spirit they refused to stop proclaiming the message that the OT prophesied about a coming Savior which was fulfilled in the person and works of Jesus of Nazareth. As a result, many thousands of people in Jerusalem and abroad came to believe that the Lord Jesus was the Messiah, their one hope for salvation from their sins.

Contribution to the Bible

The book of Acts ties the other books of the NT together. It does so by first providing "the rest of the story" to the Gospels. The gospel and the message of the kingdom of God did not end with Jesus' ascension to heaven forty days after His resurrection, but continued on in the lives of His followers. Acts shows us how the words and promises of Jesus were carried out by the apostles and other believers through the power of the Holy Spirit. Second, the book of Acts gives us the context for much of the rest of the NT, especially the letters Paul wrote to the churches he had helped establish during his missionary journeys.

Structure

So far as literary form is concerned, the book of Acts is an ancient biography that focuses on several central characters, especially Peter and Paul. Ancient biography was not concerned simply with narrating events but with displaying the character of the people involved, especially their ethical behavior. Other features included genealogies and rhetorical elements such as speeches. Ancient biographies also commonly drew from both written and oral sources for information.

Acts 1:8 provides the introduction and outline for the book. Once empowered by the Holy Spirit, the disciples proclaimed the gospel boldly in Jerusalem. As the book progresses, the gospel spread further into Judea and Samaria, and then finally into the outer reaches of the known world through the missionary work of Paul.

Study Notes

1:1 The preface links the book of Acts explicitly with the first narrative, the Gospel of Luke (Lk 1:1-4). Though the books are separate in the NT canonical order, both were probably written by Luke, the traveling companion of Paul. The books are both large enough to fill a complete scroll, and so it is unlikely that they were ever joined as a single book.

The book of Acts was written after the Gospel of Luke, as is indicated by the preface (1:1; cp. Lk 1:1-4). Luke builds these companion narratives on a broad chronology that begins with the birth of Jesus, then extends through His life, death, resurrection, and ascension. He next shows the expansion of the church from Jerusalem to Rome. Acts closes with Paul awaiting trial in Rome. Like the first volume, the second is addressed to a person named Theophilus. Some speculate that Theophilus (Gk "lover of God") was a literary figure representing Christians generally, but more likely he was an actual historical person.

Some think on the basis of Lk 1:1-4 that Theophilus was a seeker after God and that Luke aimed to explain Christianity to him. Others think Theophilus was a recent convert who required instruction in his newfound faith. Still others suggest he was an early church leader for whom Luke provided a summary of events surrounding the rise of Christianity. In any of the above scenarios, it is possible that Theophilus was Luke's patron, financing the publication of Luke and Acts. Though only a maximum of 20 percent of urban men were literate, there was a distinct book culture in the ancient world. Publication involved hand copying an original document to make it available for others. The cost of materials for the initial document plus all subsequent drafts could be expensive, with each copy costing up to four days' wages. As a result, the patronage system was an important fact in making book publication possible in the ancient world.

1:2-3 Luke opened Acts by mentioning the Gospel of Luke, the narrative of Jesus' life and ministry up until His ascension. Before His ascension, Jesus suffered the agony of death and then presented Himself alive to His disciples (Lk 24). Jesus presented Himself by many convincing proofs, including appearing to the disciples during the 40 days between His resurrection and ascension. During this time Jesus instructed them about the kingdom of God.

1:4 The Father's promise refers to the gift of the Holy Spirit, which would soon come (chap. 2).

1:5 John's baptism was a symbolic washing to purify and to indicate repentance of sin. Jesus' baptism of believers would be of greater impact and involved the indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

1:6-7 Restoration of the kingdom of Israel was something for which all first-century Jews longed. It was commonly believed that Messiah, son of David and heir to his throne, would accomplish this restoration. Jesus deflected the disciples' misguided question and repeated His command that they were to be His witnesses near and far (cp. Mt 28:19).

1:8 The major focus of the book of Acts is stated in this verse. Jesus said believers would receive power when the Holy Spirit came upon them, empowering them to be His witnesses in Jerusalem first and then spreading to the ends of the earth. Note three things about how this unfolds. First, the empowering presence is to be the Holy Spirit, not Jesus Himself. Jesus prepared His disciples for the transition when the Holy Spirit would come to be a constant presence in His bodily absence. Second, the growth of the church would come about through the witness of the disciples. From the beginning, the church is depicted as a community that actively witnesses to their faith in Jesus Christ. Third, the result of this witness will be measurable, geographical growth. This growth will begin in Jerusalem and then spread through ever-widening concentric circles to other Jewish areas (e.g., Judea), to areas on the edges of Judaism (e.g., Samaria), and eventually to "the ends of the earth," which may refer to the known world of that time, likely coextensive with the reach of the Roman Empire. As new lands and peoples were discovered in coming centuries, the church understood that it must keep expanding its witness to reach the newfound "ends of the earth."

1:9-11 Luke briefly told about Jesus' ascension in his Gospel (Lk 24:51), and now he provides a somewhat fuller account. A cloud took Him out recalls the presence of God depicted as a cloud elsewhere (e.g., Ex 13:21-22). Thus Jesus was received by the Father in fulfillment of His words in Jn 7:33-34. Jesus' final instructions and ascension to heaven provide overlap and transition between Luke's Gospel and the book of Acts. The ascension took place on the Mount of Olives outside Jerusalem (Ac 1:12). Jesus' return will be in the same way as He departed—bodily and visibly.

1:13 Luke 6:14-16 provides the same list of disciples. The lists in Mark and Matthew are similar, except for differences in the names of two disciples between Luke-Acts and Mark and Matthew. Several disciples had alternative names (Simon/Peter, Matthew/Levi; cp. v. 23), possibly accounting for differences between the lists. Simon the Zealot of Luke-Acts is probably Simon the Cananean, and Judas the son of James in Luke-Acts may be Thaddaeus.

1:18-19 The differences between the two NT accounts of Judas's death (here and Mt 27:3-8) should not be overemphasized. Both agree that he died a shameful death and that a field was named after his traitorous deed. Matthew 27:5 says Judas hanged himself, while the present passage says he fell headfirst and burst open. Possibly after he hanged himself, Judas's body decayed and fell from the rope, bursting open.

1:21-23 The person selected to take Judas's place had to have accompanied the disciples throughout the course of Jesus' ministry (from His baptism to His ascension), thus assuring that he could speak about things he had seen personally.

1:24-26 The disciples prayed for God to make clear to them which person He had chosen as a successor for Judas. The casting of lots was an acceptable method for making decisions in the era before the Holy Spirit was given. The sovereign Lord superintended the event, ensuring that the lot fell in such a way as to identify His chosen man.

2:1-12 The events of Pentecost, which mark the formal and public beginning of the church, involved a number of supernatural phenomena. These included the rush of violent wind from heaven, tongues like flames of fire, the infilling with the Holy Spirit, and speaking in languages as the Spirit gave believers the ability to do so.

2:4 One of the supernatural phenomena at Pentecost was speaking in different languages as the Holy Spirit gave the apostles ability to do so. The languages have been interpreted as (1) supernatural languages given specifically for the purpose of communicating with the people gathered from all over the Roman Empire, (2) human languages that were recognized by individuals from various lands, or (3) the Greek language that was common to all the people gathered from throughout the Roman world. The second option seems to best fit the context.

2:8-11 Those present in Jerusalem for Pentecost included people from a wide variety of places and ethnic backgrounds. All the regions listed in verses 9-10 are known to have had Jewish populations. They encompassed the eastern Mediterranean area that ran from Rome to Libya. The gathering at Pentecost is thus inclusive, featuring Jews from throughout the eastern Roman Empire.

2:14 Acts is primarily a narrative punctuated by numerous speeches. Most of the speeches are summaries rather than word-for-word accounts. Just as he did in the Gospel that bears his name, Luke relied on "the original eyewitnesses and servants of the word" to report the essentials of speeches and events for which he was not present (Lk 1:2).

2:17-21 In his reply to the jeering crowd (v. 13), Peter cited three OT passages to demonstrate the biblical basis for the events of Pentecost. The first passage he cited was from Jl 2:28-32. The quote follows the Masoretic Text version almost verbatim. Peter identified Joel's prophecy with the last days, and said those days had now arrived with the coming of the Spirit. There may also yet be a future, fuller fulfillment of Joel's prophecy.

2:23 Peter's declaration articulates a major paradox of the Christian life: Jesus' death occurred as a result of the plan and foreknowledge of God, but it was the free (and sinful) acts of human beings that executed that plan. The Bible often affirms the reality of both divine sovereignty and genuine human choice without explaining how the two can possibly work together without conflict (e.g., 4:28; Gn 45:5).

2:24 The resurrection of Jesus Christ is the fundamental event of Christianity and the basis of the gospel. Peter made several important statements about the resurrection in this verse. First, it was God who raised Jesus from the dead. This pictures the resurrection as God the Father's vindication of God the Son. Second, Jesus was literally dead before the resurrection, not simply injured. Thus His resurrection was no mere resuscitation. Notice also that Peter personifies death as an actual force that holds the deceased in its embrace. Third, death's power was overcome by the resurrection, which means that believers should no longer fear it.

2:25-28 The second OT passage Peter cited is Ps 16:8-11. He recognized that Jesus was the one about whom David had prophesied, one who would not see the decay of death (also in v. 31).

2:29-30 Peter identified David as a prophet because he had prophesied through his psalm about the Messiah. David would have treasured this God-given foreknowledge because it entailed Israel's eventual salvation through his own progeny. David would have a victorious descendant on his throne. Peter saw all of this as having been fulfilled in the resurrection of Jesus Christ, who is now seated at God's right hand (v. 25; Eph 1:20).

2:32 Throughout this passage Peter has affirmed the reality and significance of Jesus' resurrection. Now he states most clearly the basis of his claims: he and the rest of the apostles were all witnesses to the risen Jesus. They had seen the risen Christ for themselves.

2:34-35 The third and final OT passage cited by Peter is Ps 110:1. Peter cited David as the authority for his seeing Jesus as seated at God's right hand, with all of His enemies in full subjection. The basis of this victory and exaltation was Jesus' resurrection.

2:36 Peter addressed his words specifically to Jews (the house of Israel) and affirmed that Jesus whom they crucified was both Lord and Messiah. By calling Jesus "Lord and Messiah," Peter was staking the biggest possible claims. "Lord" is reserved in the Greek translation of the OT (the Septuagint) for God (Yahweh). Thus Peter says Jesus is God. Peter further noted that Jesus was the Messiah (anointed one), Israel's hope for salvation.

2:37 Peter's audience came under deep conviction because they realized their guilt in the execution of Jesus, plus they were convinced by Peter's passionate eyewitness testimony and his description of how the events surrounding Jesus' death and resurrection fulfilled OT prophecies about the promised Messiah. This prompted them to ask the question that anyone hearing the gospel should ask, Brothers, what must we do?

2:38 Peter's answer indicates three major components in conversion. One must repent, which means turning from sin. To be baptized . . . in the name of Jesus publicly declares our repentance and faith, plus it symbolically identifies us with the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ. The Holy Spirit is given as a gift and seal of conversion, empowering the believer for the life of faith.

2:39 One of the major themes of the book of Acts is that the message of salvation through Jesus Christ extends not just to the people of Israel but also beyond them to as many as . . . God will call. The Gentiles were far off in two senses: they were geographically far removed from Israel, but even more significantly they were "far off" from knowledge of the one true God.

2:41 In response to Peter's preaching, Luke commented in an understated way that about 3,000 people were added to the community of believers. Note the close link between coming to faith and being baptized. There was apparently no delay between profession of faith and baptism. The large number of converts ("3,000") was made possible by the huge crowds who had traveled to Jerusalem from all over the Mediterranean region for the Passover celebration.

2:42 These four practices—teaching . . . fellowship, the breaking of bread, and prayers—provide insight into the priorities of early Christianity. These same practices should be considered normative for the church today. The apostles' teaching was probably similar to Peter's message at Pentecost. That is to say, it focused on making Christ known by appealing to eyewitness testimony and the prophecies of the OT. Early Christians gathered together regularly for edification, prayer, and exhortation. The breaking of bread probably included fellowship meals and participation in the Lord's Supper (1Co 11:17-34).

2:44-45 As part of their fellowship, the early church practiced a community of goods for a short time. Distribution to members of the faith community took place according to individual need. This practice did not last long, likely because it was logistically difficult and fraught with potential abuse (see chaps. 4-6).

2:46 Early Christian gatherings took place in two places: the temple complex and the homes of individual believers.

2:47 The early church was an evangelizing church. Luke recounted that every day the Lord added to those who were being saved. He did not say how this took place, but it appears that evangelism took place primarily through the gathering of Christians in the temple and in individual houses. The crucifixion and resurrection of Christ were at the heart of early Christian preaching, which called for immediate response from anyone who listened.

3:1 Peter and John continued to participate in Jewish rituals and worship, and early Christians regularly gathered in the temple complex (2:46). This is fitting, for Christianity began as a form of contemporary Judaism that accepted Jesus as Messiah. The beginning stages of the church's separation from Judaism are recounted in Acts as Christian leaders such as Peter and Paul continued boldly to proclaim Jesus as Messiah. The full and final split of Christianity from Judaism came by the time of the first Jewish revolt against Rome (A.D. 66-70).

3:2 This is the first healing miracle in Acts. The man was lame from birth and was daily carried to the temple gate called Beautiful so he could beg for money. In the era before governmental aid for needy persons, it was the kindness of strangers and loved ones that kept men such as this alive.

3:6 It is good for the lame man that Peter and John had neither silver or gold to hand out, for what they did have to offer was of far greater value—healing power through Jesus Christ. Rather than a temporary fix, the man was given a permanent remedy for his physical and spiritual problems.

3:7 The book of Acts recounts several healing miracles (e.g., 9:32-34,36-42). During the Hellenistic period, knowledge of science and medicine was advanced enough that the bystanders recognized without a doubt that Peter had enacted a miracle. The mention of the strengthening of the lame man's feet and ankles may provide indirect support for the traditional view that the author, Luke, was a physician.

3:12 Recognizing that the onlookers were amazed, Peter seized the chance to testify about Jesus Christ. Signs of God's power can point to the truth about Jesus (Jn 3:2; 14:11).

3:13-15 Peter told his hearers in Solomon's Colonnade, which was part of the temple complex, that Jesus Christ was God's Servant. And yet the people had handed Him over to Pilate and denied Him even though Pilate had judged Him to be innocent (Lk 23:20-25). Peter emphasized the heinous nature of this deed by calling Jesus the Holy and Righteous One and by noting that they had asked Pilate to release a murderer in place of Jesus. Thus they killed the source of life instead of one who had taken life. But God raised Jesus from the dead, a fact to which both Peter and John were witnesses.

3:16 Peter and John had a chance to claim credit for the miraculous healing of the man, but instead insisted that it was faith in His [Jesus'] name that made this man strong. The apostles were merely God's chosen instruments for conveying the miracle.

3:18 The prophecy that the Messiah would suffer is an apparent reference to the Suffering Servant of Is 52:13-53:12. The suffering of the servant for sins (Is 53:10) had been fulfilled through Jesus.

3:19 On the basis of what he had said about who Jesus was, how He was treated by the Jewish people, and how God had vindicated Him by raising Him from the dead, Peter called on his audience to repent and turn back to God so that their sins may be wiped out.

3:20-21 Early Christians looked with expectation to the second coming of Jesus and the restoration of all things that accompanies the establishment of His earthly kingdom. God had foretold the time of "restoration" through the prophets, starting as far back as Moses (v. 22; see also Rm 8:18-25).

3:22-24 Peter appealed to Dt 18:15-19, where Moses foretold Israel that God will raise up for you a Prophet like me. Over time this came to be recognized as a Messianic prophecy. Anyone who rejects Messiah will be completely cut off from God's people. Peter also appealed to all the prophets throughout Israel's history, for all of them had announced these days. Jesus Himself taught the apostles to recognize this about the OT (Lk 24:27).

3:25-26 The Jews listening to Peter were sons of the prophets and inheritors of the covenant God made with Abraham. Thus they had a personal stake in the words of the prophets and the Pentateuch, but so do all the peoples of earth. After all, God's covenant with Abraham promised that all the earth would be blessed through Abraham's seed, a reference ultimately to Jesus Christ, God's Servant.

4:1-3 The religious authorities confronted and ultimately arrested Peter and John for unauthorized teaching about the resurrection from the dead by using Jesus as the example. The Sadducees in particular were provoked by this, for they did not believe in resurrection because they did not think it was taught in the Pentateuch, the only portion of the Hebrew Bible they acknowledged as authoritative (Mt 22:23). The apostles were held in custody overnight because Sanhedrin trials were not conducted at night. Rome had granted the Sanhedrin legal authority over the temple area since disputes arising there were religious in nature rather than civic.

4:4 Repeated attempts to suppress the Christian message only caused it to spread more quickly. On Pentecost morning the believers in Jerusalem only numbered 120 (1:15). In response to Peter's sermon that day, another 3,000 were added (2:41). Now, with the healing of the lame man, Peter's sermon, and the arrest of the apostles, the church grew to about 5,000.

4:5-7 The parties listed in verses 5-6 represent all the most powerful players in the Jewish religious establishment. They made Peter and John stand before them, two men against all the powers of Israel. Ironic, therefore, that they asked the apostles by what power they had performed the miracle and preached the gospel. It was clear that the apostles, who shirked the traditional powers, considered themselves answerable to and empowered by a different authority.

4:8 Peter was filled with the Holy Spirit, a necessary prelude to his successful confrontation with the Jewish religious establishment.

4:9-10 Peter again emphasizes to a Jewish audience that Jesus Christ the Nazarene, whom the nation had crucified, was raised from the dead by God. This same Jesus is the power by which the lame man was made healthy.

4:11 Peter again identifies Jesus with OT testimony by citing Ps 118:22. Though Jesus was a stone rejected by the Jewish leaders, God made Him the cornerstone (foundation) of the church.

4:12 Peter concluded by making clear the uncompromising claim of Christianity: There is salvation in no one else besides Jesus. This message rings throughout the NT. Jesus Himself said, "No one comes to the Father except through Me" (Jn 14:6).

4:16-18 Remarkably, the Sanhedrin admitted that an obvious sign had been done through them (the apostles), and yet rather than repent and believe they focused on damage control among the people. They sought to halt the spread of Christianity at all costs, so they ordered the apostles not to preach or teach any more about Jesus. It seems they wished to guard their status as religious authorities even at the expense of obvious truth.

4:19-20 Peter and John's reference to what they had seen and heard included their experiences with Jesus plus what they had witnessed since the founding of the church at Pentecost. All told, they had been eyewitnesses to many of God's revelatory acts.

4:24-28 When Peter and John told the members of their fellowship what had happened, they all recognized this persecution as fulfillment of Ps 2:1-2.

Gentiles and the people of Israel had united in opposition to God's holy Servant Jesus and His followers. Then and now, believers take comfort in knowing that Jesus' sufferings (as well as their own) are not by chance, but are predestined by God.

4:29 The early Christians recognized that just as Jesus had been promised trouble, they too would encounter persecution for proclaiming Him as Messiah. They asked God for the power to speak with complete boldness, even if punishment should follow.

4:30 Besides boldness in testifying, the early Christians expected to receive power from God to perform healing, signs, and wonders through the name of . . . Jesus.

4:32-35 As long as there was complete unanimity of purpose and intention among them, the early Christians shared their possessions freely, such that there was not a needy person among them. They were able to do this not because of their own strength, but because great grace was on all of them. Therefore the generosity was above all a work of God. Yet trouble was coming (5:1-11).

4:36-37 Joseph (aka Barnabas) led by example, selling his field and donating all the proceeds to the church. Such charitable acts inspire others to do good, but also incite some to seek acclaim.

5:2 Not everyone shared in Joseph's liberality. Ananias and his wife Sapphira sold a piece of property but kept back part of the sale price despite claiming otherwise (v. 8).

5:3-4 Ananias and Sapphira assumed they were merely lying to men (the apostles), but in reality they had lied to the Holy Spirit who is ever-present in the church. Peter's wording indicates that the Holy Spirit is God. Peter's question (wasn't it at your disposal?) implies that Ananias and Sapphira would have been justified to sell the land and give only a portion to the church. Their sin lay in their deception and their desire to win praise.

5:9 The deception of Ananias and Sapphira, and in particular Sapphira's lie to Peter, was a test of the Spirit of the Lord. This is a powerful indication of the Spirit's role in the church and church leadership; Peter was a mere man, but he was God's man to lead this fellowship of believers.

5:12 Undaunted by their previous arrest at the temple (4:3), the apostles continued to perform signs and wonders among the people they encountered in Solomon's Colonnade.

5:15-16 The people came to believe that there was something magical about Peter and that even his shadow would be enough to heal them. There are a number of places in the NT, including Acts, where God healed people through surprising means. Besides Peter's shadow, these included the hem of Jesus' robe

(Lk 8:44) as well as facecloths and aprons that the apostle Paul had touched (Ac 19:12). There was of course nothing special about these items; rather, it was the power of God working through the messengers with whom the objects were associated.

5:17 The high priest and his colleagues opposed the spread of Christianity not merely because they didn't believe in Jesus as Messiah, but because they were filled with jealousy at the following that was building around Him daily as the apostles preached and performed miracles.

5:19-20 Having been arrested again for their ministry in Jesus' name (v. 18), the apostles were set free by an angel of the Lord in such a way that aroused no attention. Some speculate that they were transported directly from the jail to the temple complex, but the fact that the angel opened the doors of the jail and told the apostles to Go and stand in the temple suggests otherwise. See 12:6-10 and note there for a similar episode.

5:21a Newly freed, we might expect the apostles to flee Jerusalem. Instead, they went to the temple complex at daybreak and began to do the very thing that had gotten them in trouble in the first place: teach about Jesus.

5:21b-23 The Sanhedrin convened in the morning, intent on taking decisive action to halt the growth of Christian faith. That the temple police found the jail securely locked and the guards standing duty proves that the jailbreak was both miraculous and secretive.

5:26 The temple police were afraid the people might stone them because Jerusalem was responding positively to the apostles. Meanwhile, the Jewish leaders saw their authority slipping away.

5:28 The Jewish leaders feared that the people would hold them responsible for Jesus' death. They were more concerned about maintaining their authority than embracing the truth.

5:29 Christians should obey the law of the land, but when human law conflicts with God's law, we must obey God rather than men.

5:30-32 If anything, Peter stepped up the pressure on the Sanhedrin (and endangered himself and the others more) by declaring that they had murdered Jesus, whom God exalted . . . to His right hand as ruler and Savior. Peter and the other apostles knew this to be true because they were witnesses of this, as was the Holy Spirit.

5:33-34 If the Jewish leaders had been willing to kill Jesus, much more were they prepared to kill the apostles, whose stubborn testimony was serving to prolong the Jesus controversy. But Gamaliel wisely cooled their rage. This was Gamaliel I, the teacher of Paul the apostle (22:3). It is uncertain whether he was the successor to the great rabbinic teacher Hillel or whether he founded his own school. In either case, he became a major rabbinic teacher. His conciliatory stance toward the apostles is consistent with what is known of his temperate attitude elsewhere.

5:36 Josephus, the Jewish historian, reported that many revolts against Roman rule occurred during the time of Jesus—some of them even having messianic overtones. He mentions a person named Theudas, who came after Judas the Gl ilean (v. 37). This is probably not the same person as the Theudas referred to here.

5:37 Judas the Galilean, or Judas of Gamala, rebelled against the census that Quirinius took in A.D. 6. He was mentioned by Josephus as teaching that the Israelites were not to give tribute to pagan rulers. His revolt ended in defeat.

5:39 Gamaliel's advice reflected the Pharisees' belief that if God has ordained a thing, it will come to pass. Thus Gamaliel felt it was prudent for the Sanhedrin to step back and see what God would do with the Christian movement.

5:41 Some people believe that suffering and hardships are signs that we are not in God's will. Contrast this with the apostles, who, after being flogged, went out of the presence of the Sanhedrin, rejoicing that they had been considered worthy to be dishonored on Christ's behalf.

6:1 The distinction between Hellenistic and Hebraic Jews probably refers to their respective languages. Many Jews whose primary language was Greek were converted to Christianity (e.g., Paul; Ac 9; see note at 22:3). Needy Hellenistic believers felt they had been neglected in the early church's charity distribution. This imbalance may have arisen due simply to the logistical challenge caused by the rapid addition of Hellenistic Jewish Christians. The existing church structure proved unable to meet the growing demands. It was time for change.

6:2-4 The distinction between those responsible for preaching and those responsible for distribution of food marks the beginning of functional distinction of roles and responsibilities in the early church. The apostles (the Twelve) believed prayer and preaching were their primary duties. It is not that other roles were unimportant. In fact, the high requirements (good reputation, full of the Spirit and wisdom) that had to be met by the seven men who would take over the duty of food distribution signals the importance of all roles in Christian service. Each of the "seven men" filled a position that later came to be reserved for deacons. Informally, therefore, these men were the first Christian deacons. They were responsible for the practical needs of the congregation.

6:5-6 Stephen and six others (their Greek names probably identify them as Hellenistic believers) were selected as the first deacons. They were set apart for service by prayer and the laying on of hands by the apostles. The laying on of hands occurs in several contexts in Acts (8:17; 13:3; 19:6). Here, as in 13:3, it indicated the church's recognition that God had called these people to a particular ministry.

6:7 Bold preaching about God drove growth in the number of the disciples in the early church. Even a large group of priests became followers of Christ. Luke did not specify who the priests were, but they were probably those who performed duties in connection with worship at the temple. This put them in a good position to hear the apostles preach on a regular basis.

6:8 A mark of the authenticity of Stephen's work is that it was distinguished by great wonders and signs. God often affirmed the apostolic message in this way (5:12).

6:9-10 Though Jews from several different backgrounds disputed with Stephen, he swept them aside by use of his human intellectual gifts (wisdom) and divine empowerment (the Spirit).

6:11 Stephen's supposedly blasphemous words on this occasion were probably similar to his speech in Ac 7, which emphasized Israel's disobedience and the fulfillment of the OT in the ministry of Jesus, including His replacing the temple and the law. This would have aroused resentment among those who revered Moses and rejected Jesus as Messiah.

6:12 Like the apostles before him, especially Peter and John, Stephen was taken before the Sanhedrin after those from the synagogues were unable to stand against him. The confrontation now elevated from informal dispute to a more formal legal interrogation.

6:13 The fact that Stephen had not actually spoken blasphemous words is confirmed by the fact that false witnesses were produced to sustain the charges against him.

6:14 The charge against Stephen was similar to the charges against Jesus—that He would destroy the temple. They were also concerned about preserving their customs or oral laws, which they believed they had inherited from Moses.

6:15 Stephen's facial expression reflected his innocence and the Spirit's role in his life.

7:2-53 Stephen recited how God had been at work from earliest times with His appointed people, Israel. The authenticity of his speech has been called into question because the ideas he expressed about the temple—that God was not confined to a single spot (v. 48)—seem to reflect later thought, especially that which developed after the destruction of the temple in A.D. 70. But there was a tradition extending from the OT prophets (cp. vv. 49-50 citing Is 66:1-2, as one example) on to early Christian thinkers (e.g., Paul in Ac 17) that said God could not be confined to a particular location. Stephen's speech is similar to Paul's in Pisidian Antioch (13:16-41).

7:3 Stephen cited Gn 12:1, in which God directed Abraham to leave his home in Haran and go to the land that God would give him. In essence, this was the beginning of Israel.

7:5 Though Abraham had no children at the time, God promised to give his descendants land as a possession. Thus it was fundamentally on an act of trust (faith) that the nation of Israel had its beginning.

7:6-7 Stephen recalled Gn 15:13-14, where God foretold Abraham that his descendants would be enslaved in a foreign country (Egypt) before they would come out and worship in the promised land. Thus God's promise of blessing came with an equally sure promise of suffering.

7:21-22 Moses, though born to Jewish parents, was reared by Pharaoh's daughter and educated in the wisdom of the Egyptians, becoming powerful in his speech and actions. When God called Moses (Ex 3:1-4:17), it was as if a non-Hebrew became a follower of the Hebrew God. Similarly, many non-Hebrews flooded into the early church, forsaking their pagan background (e.g., Ac 10).

7:23, 30 Moses' life is divided into three periods of 40 years each—40 in Egypt, 40 in Midian, and 40 in the wilderness.

7:27-28 The Israelites initially questioned Moses as their ruler (Ex 2:14). Perhaps Stephen brought this up to provoke reconsideration of Israel's assessment and rejection of Jesus. They had been wrong about Moses. Might they have been wrong about Jesus too?

7:32 God revealed Himself to Moses as the God of his forefathers (Ex 3:6,15) at a time when, as a fugitive and exile, he desperately needed a sense of belonging and continuity.

7:33-34 Stephen and the early believers must have drawn comfort from the fact that God does not sit idly by when He sees His people being oppressed (Ex 3:5,7-8,10).

7:38 The living oracles to which Stephen referred were the Ten Commandments given by God to Moses for His people.

7:40 Though God accompanied the Hebrews in highly visible, powerful ways during their journey out from Egypt, they defied Him and asked Aaron to make . . . gods for them (Ex 32:1). Much the same thing occurred when the nation rejected Jesus, who likewise came among them as God in highly visible, powerful ways.

7:42-43 Stephen's citation of Am 5:25-27 was perhaps intended to convey that just as the Hebrews rejected God in the desert, suffering exile and spiritual estrangement as a consequence, so too contemporary Israel was inviting similar consequences by rejecting Jesus.

7:48-50 Though God does not dwell in sanctuaries made with hands, He allowed a house to be built for Him by Solomon (Is 66:1-2). God accommodates Himself to us in order to make human-divine relationship possible.

7:51 The descriptors Stephen used to condemn Israel for unbelief and disobedience (stiff-necked people with uncircumcised hearts and ears) were commonly used by OT prophets (Lv 26:41; Jr 4:4; 6:10; 9:26; Ezk 44:7,9). This language was also adopted by Paul (Rm 2; Gl 5) where he said unbelieving Jews relied on outward signs rather than transformed hearts. Possibly Paul was influenced by Stephen's speech since he was present (Ac 7:58; 8:1), but the OT was the more obvious influence.

7:52 Stephen's words would either raise the ire of his audience or break their hearts, leading to repentance. The OT prophets had delivered messages similar to his own, and your fathers, Stephen said, persecuted and killed them. Worse, his audience had made themselves the betrayers and murderers of the Righteous One whom God promised through the prophets.

7:53 Even though the OT does not explicitly state that the law was given by angels, Stephen, Paul (Gl 3:19), and the author of Hebrews (Heb 2:2) stated that angels were involved in the process of lawgiving. This likely implied that the law was especially important since God entrusted its deliverance to angels.

7:54 Stephen's audience expressed displeasure both inwardly (enraged in their hearts) and outwardly (gnashed their teeth at him). They took themselves to be Israel's religious leaders, pious men of God, and yet Stephen charged them with deep spiritual corruption.

7:55 Stephen was a stark contrast to his audience. They were fuming with rage, but he was filled with the Holy Spirit and gazed peacefully into heaven even as he knew death was coming.

7:56-57 Son of Man was Jesus' favorite self-designation. Each use of this expression in the NT came from the lips of Jesus, except where people quoted His words back to Him (Jn 12:34) and in this verse. Jesus' enthronement beside God in heaven implies His divine status and equality with God the Father, which is why the members of the Sanhedrin became enraged.

7:58 The Romans allowed the Jewish leaders to maintain the sanctity of the temple area, but not carry out the death penalty. That is why Jesus was taken to Pilate, a Roman official, for trial. In this instance, however, Stephen was killed illegally by an enraged mob. This is the first reference in Scripture to Saul (later called Paul). It is disputed whether he was a member of the Sanhedrin or just a young rabbinic student who was zealous for traditional Jewish faith. Whether he was formally involved in the Sanhedrin or not, he "agreed" with the decision to stone Stephen (8:1).

7:59-60 Both of Stephen's requests are remarkable. His first, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit!, proclaims that Jesus is Judge and Savior. Stephen's second request, that God not charge his executioners with sin in this matter, illustrates the nonvindictive spirit of one who understands that his own sins have been forgiven by grace. Fell asleep is a common expression for death in the Bible (Jn 11:11; 1Co 11:30).

8:1 Events surrounding Stephen's testimony and murder led to severe persecution of the church in Jerusalem. All believers except the apostles were scattered to nearby regions. Hence the persecution helped spread the gospel to surrounding areas such as Judea and Samaria. The facts that the apostles were not the focus of the persecution and that it came about after Stephen's death suggest that the persecution focused primarily on Hellenistic Jewish Christians, although the entire church was affected.

8:3 Paul, or Saul, seems to have become lead persecutor. His reputation as a destructive force in Jerusalem (ravaging the church), and possibly elsewhere, seems to have preceded him to Damascus (9:13).

8:5 Among those who scattered with the heightened persecution was Philip, who went to a city in Samaria. This territory near Judea was made up of those who had not left under the Assyrian exile and had intermarried with non-Jews. Jews generally looked down on Samaria; ministry here was a significant step for the church, for it indicated that old biases had no place in Christianity.

8:6-7 The signs that accompanied Philip's message about Jesus, including the casting out of unclean spirits and the healing of many who were paralyzed and lame, ensured that the audience paid attention with one mind. God was vouching for Philip's preaching.

8:9 This Simon the magician (Simon Magus), who practiced sorcery in Samaria, was well-known in post-apostolic Christianity as a heretic and proto-Gnostic.

8:10 The term Great Power of God reflects pagan language.

8:13 Even Simon was one of those who believed the good news presented by Philip. The authenticity of his belief is doubtful. He seems to have been fixated on the signs and miracles that accompanied Philip's preaching, not the person of Jesus Christ.

8:17 Early converts received the Holy Spirit at the laying on of hands by apostles or evangelists. Some suggest that this was God's plan to ensure that new believers received trustworthy instruction and got connected to God's chosen apostolic leaders.

8:18-19 Here we see Simon's true heart. He was used to impressing the crowds with magic; now he wanted to impress them with his ability to impart the Holy Spirit.

8:20-22 By saying that Simon had no part or share in this matter, Peter confirmed that Simon had not truly converted to Christianity. His heart (meaning his will, affections, allegiance) was still not right before God.

8:25 After several episodes in Samaria, Peter, Philip, and any other apostles traveling with them returned to Jerusalem. They evangelized many villages of the Samaritans along the way, tearing down ethnic barriers with the global gospel of Jesus Christ.

8:26-39 Through the agency of an angel of the Lord, God arranged for Philip to stand in a place that would bring him into contact with an important Ethiopian man who would listen, believe, and in turn spread the gospel to other lands.

8:30-31 Philip's question and the Ethiopian's response imply that the OT passage the eunuch was reading (Is 53:7-8) required interpretation in light of what God had done in Jesus of Nazareth.

8:32-34 The Ethiopian was reading Is 53:7-8, apparently from the Greek text. It is likely that he was reading the entire Suffering Servant section of Isaiah (52:13-53:12). The eunuch's question, who is the prophet saying this about, allowed Philip to explain Jesus as the subject of the passage. It is Jesus, not Isaiah, who suffered for the sins of humanity (Is 53:6). From the earliest days of the church, the Suffering Servant section has been seen as an ideal starting place for explaining the gospel.

8:35 The phrase, beginning from that Scripture, may indicate that Philip went on to explain other relevant OT passages besides those in Isaiah.

8:38-40 The Ethiopian requested and was granted baptism just as soon as he believed (see note at 10:47-48). That they went into the water and then came up out of the water apparently indicates baptism by immersion. A miracle is indicated by carried Philip away, for the eunuch came "up out of the water" and found himself alone. The Holy Spirit had taken Philip to his next appointment, a place called Azotus.

9:1 The narrative returns to Saul, or Paul. His anger with Jesus' followers continued unabated, to the point that he was threatening to murder them. Paul later acknowledged his zeal in persecuting Christians (Php 3:6), and this is how he was known by others (e.g., Ananias, Ac 9:13).

9:2 That Saul was authorized to travel to Damascus with warrants from the high priest to imprison people of the Way (a common name for early Christians; 19:9,23; 22:4) indicates his high standing among Jewish religious leaders. He planned to bring them back to Jerusalem since this city was the center of Judaism.

9:3-4 Nearing Damascus and no doubt thinking that his acts there would help halt the spread of Christianity, Saul instead saw a light from heaven that changed his life and, eventually, world history.

9:5 It is doubtful that Saul immediately recognized the voice as that of Jesus. His use of Lord was probably honorific (equivalent to "sir") rather than recognition of divinity. Hence the voice said, I am Jesus.

9:6 Saul was not told at this point what his mission or purpose was. That was reserved for when he encountered Ananias later in the city of Damascus. This stepwise introduction to his future kept him from being overwhelmed all at once with the changes Jesus had initiated in his life, and it also allowed the Christians in Damascus to meet and accept the one whom they feared.

9:7 This is the first of three accounts of Saul's conversion that appear in the book of Acts (22:6-11; 26:12-18). Here it appears that Saul's traveling companions heard a noise but did not recognize the words that were spoken. The comments, it seems, were intended only for Saul.

9:10 We are not told how Ananias came to be a Christian. A possible scenario is that he or someone he knew had been in Jerusalem at Pentecost. There they would have seen and heard wondrous signs as God sent the Holy Spirit, and possibly accepted the message preached by the apostles. The pilgrims would then have taken their newfound faith back to Damascus, establishing the church that Saul now came to persecute.

9:13-14 Ananias's fear of Saul was such that he dared to question God's judgment. Saul's reputation as an enemy of the church was well earned, built as it was on the testimony of many people.

9:15-16 God revealed His purpose for Saul to Ananias first. This ensured that Saul would have a support network in place once he learned of his new purpose in life. Otherwise, imagine Saul coming to Ananias and delivering the news. Ananias would have scoffed, assuming he let Saul close enough to speak.

9:17-18 The ordering of events in Saul's conversion may have been altered from the standard pattern so that baptism rather than the filling of the Holy Spirit was the final event. The process may have been extended over several days rather than occurring all at once. But the result was the same: Saul became a follower of Jesus Christ.

9:19-20 Saul stayed in Damascus for some days, likely becoming oriented to basic Christianity even as he began proclaiming Jesus in the synagogues. He gave priority to the synagogues throughout his ministry, starting there before being forced to take the message elsewhere.

9:21-22 Understandably, the initial response to Saul was skeptical amazement, but as he grew more capable he was able to confound unbelieving Jews, proving that Jesus is the Messiah. Apparently, he was able to explain the messianic connections between the OT and Jesus so clearly that the Jews in Damascus could not refute him.

9:23-25 After many days pictures Saul dutifully preaching Jesus as Messiah for long enough to become the uppermost enemy of unbelieving Jews in Damascus. He had come to help their struggle against the growing Christian movement, but now he had become the chief cause of its growth. Thus they conspired to kill him. Unable to leave via the city gates, Saul escaped in a most undignified but effective manner: he was placed in a large basket and shoved through an opening in the wall (lit "through the wall").

9:26 Among believers in Jerusalem, Saul's reputation as a persecutor of the church was unchanged. Either news had not come from Damascus, or else the disciples in Jerusalem took a "wait and see" attitude. Perhaps they even suspected his conversion was just a ruse to infiltrate the fledgling Christian movement and destroy it from within. See note at 22:17-21.

9:27 Barnabas was convinced of the genuineness of Saul's conversion, apparently because he had talked to him.

9:28-30 Saul . . . conversed and debated with the Hellenistic Jews, some of whom may have been involved with him in Stephen's stoning (7:57-60). A Hellenistic Jew himself, Paul had been born in Tarsus and spoke Greek as his primary language. Seeing one of their own, a former persecutor of the church no less, argue on behalf of Christianity was more than they could bear. They attempted to kill Saul, with the result that he was whisked away to his hometown.

9:31 This verse marks a significant point in the development of the early church (see note at 1:8). The church, having been forced by persecution to scatter outward from Jerusalem, was at peace in Judea, Galilee, and Samaria. This set the church up for a second stage of growth, which would see the gospel boldly taken outside Israel.

9:32 The saints at Lydda may have been there since Pentecost and the time of persecution that had scattered believers throughout Judea (8:1). It is also possible that they traced their origins to Philip's ministry (8:40).

9:33-35 Again we see that the apostles never hesitated to give all credit for healing miracles to Jesus Christ (3:6). Indirect evidence for this is found in the fact that the people in Lydda and Sharon turned in faith to the Lord rather than His apostolic messengers when they witnessed the healing of Aeneas.

9:36 Tabitha (Gk Dorcas, lit gazelle) is called a disciple. She was not one of the twelve apostles, but she was clearly an active follower of Jesus.

9:37-38 So powerfully had God worked wonders through Peter and the other apostles that even when Dorcas died and had been ceremonially washed and placed . . . in a room upstairs for viewing, Christians in Joppa did not give up hope but instead sent for Peter.

9:43 Tanners were often considered impure because of their contact with dead animals. This indicates that either Jewish law on this practice had relaxed by this era, or else that Peter was already enjoying freedom from the Jewish law because of his liberty in Christ (10:6,32).

10:1 Philip had preached in Caesarea (8:40), so there would have been knowledge of Christianity there before this incident with Cornelius. Centurions were essential parts of the Roman army who were distinguished by their abilities to lead men. The Italian Regiment was probably an auxiliary force of local soldiers (not Italians or Romans), although the original group may have consisted of Italian soldiers. Roman soldiers did not have a great reputation since they were often involved in extortion and brutalization of the local population.

10:2 God-fearers respected Jewish beliefs and customs (including food laws and special days). They often associated with the Jews, but they were unwilling to become full-fledged proselytes since this required that they be circumcised and observe other Jewish rituals.

10:4 Fear and bewilderment are common reactions to God's voice or appearance in biblical accounts (9:4). Cornelius's prayers and acts of charity prompted God's further revelation to him through Peter (vv. 5-6).

10:9-10 Meanwhile, Peter was still in Joppa. It was common to pray on the housetop. By going at about noon (lit "the sixth hour"), Peter was in the heat of the day. But the series of interconnected events in both Peter and Cornelius's lives show that Peter's visionary state was far more than a hunger-induced, natural experience. It was a message from God.

10:11-16 Peter's lifelong adherence to the Jewish food laws collided with the Lord's command to kill and eat unclean animals. Peter had this vision three times; the repetition served to confirm the shocking message and emphasize its significance.

10:19-20 Whereas an angel had communicated with Cornelius, it was the Holy Spirit who spoke to Peter after the Lord had granted him the vision. Alternation between the Spirit and an angel as communicative agents occurs elsewhere (8:26,29).

10:24 When God moves powerfully in a person's life, one natural response is to call relatives and close friends together and share the experience with them. In this case, it helped to multiply the impact of Peter's radical message of hope.

10:25-26 When Cornelius fell at Peter's feet, and worshiped him, Peter protested that he too was merely a man. The apostles always sought to glorify God, not themselves.

10:28 The vision God gave Peter taught him that cleanliness standards barring Jews from associating with Gentiles had become obsolete. It is hard to overestimate the seismic change this represented for Peter's worldview.

10:33 By saying they had all gathered before God, to hear everything God commanded Peter to say or do, Cornelius showed the childlike openness Jesus asked of His disciples (Lk 18:15-17).

10:34-35 Due to the vision, Peter now understood that God doesn't show favoritism. This does not mean God accepts all people no matter their response to Him or that people who fear Him are acceptable to Him and do not need Christ. Rather, it means that God does not restrict any nation or ethnicity from the offer of salvation.

10:37-41 You know the events indicates that the basic biography of Jesus was widely known by now. It was still necessary, however, that witnesses to Jesus' life come and fill in any knowledge gaps and call unbelievers to saving faith.

10:42-43 Jesus Himself told the apostles that He is the One appointed by God to judge all humans. Backing this claim is the testimony of all the prophets (Lk 24:44).

10:44-46 Faith, the coming of the Holy Spirit, and believer's baptism are again all components of conversion, although again in a different order. Since the Gentile converts spoke in other languages and declared the greatness of God just as the Jewish believers had done at Pentecost (2:4-11), the circumcised believers who were with Peter were astounded.

10:47-48 Again we see prompt baptism in response to new faith (8:36-39).

11:1-3 News that Gentiles had welcomed God's message spread quickly because it was so controversial. Jews who stressed circumcision felt Peter had compromised God's laws. This was a recurring source of conflict in the early church, but, informed as he was by the vision from God, Peter corrected those who argued against inclusion of uncircumcised Gentiles (vv. 4-18).

11:14-17 The parallel between what happened on Pentecost and among Cornelius's family proved that God was bestowing the same gifts on Jewish and Gentile believers. In this light, Peter rightly asks, How could I possibly hinder God?

11:18 They became silent indicates initial caution. These Jewish believers were having to process the same shocking revelation that had come to Peter at Joppa and then Caesarea (10:9-16,44-48). Eventually, however, they glorified God for what He had done.

11:19 The Christian mission continued to spread much further afield, including areas well beyond Judea (Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch).

11:20-21 The evangelization of Antioch was carried out by Cypriot and Cyrenian believers. As a result, Antioch became the center of the Gentile mission and the church that sent Paul out as a missionary (see chaps. 13 and following).

11:22-24 The spiritual qualities of Barnabas were obvious to the Jerusalem church (4:36-37; 9:27). No wonder they sent him to Antioch. He was probably sent to determine the genuineness of the conversions taking place there and encourage them to remain true to the Lord.

11:25 Saul (soon to be Paul, 13:9) had faded from the picture while the evangelization of Antioch moved forward. Once again Barnabas played a central role in involving Paul in ministry (see note at 9:27). On Tarsus, see note at 9:28-30.

11:26 The term Christians probably came from Romans who labeled Jesus' followers in Antioch "little Christs." Though it was likely intended as an offense, the label is actually an honor insomuch as it indicates disciples are living Christlike lives.

11:28 Agabus was a prophet from Jerusalem who reappears in 21:10. The reign of Claudius (A.D. 41-54) was marked with numerous famines in various parts of the Roman Empire. The famine referred to here may have occurred around 46-47, with the effects of the famine lasting for a number of years after that.

11:29 The church at Antioch determined to provide relief for the believers in Judea. In so doing, they gave back to the churches and believers who had brought the gospel to Antioch and abroad in the first place.

11:30 Some object that the early church was loosely organized and dependent on the Spirit and did not have offices such as elders and deacons at this early date. However, there is abundant evidence that formal offices existed even in the earliest stages of the church (14:23; 15:2,4,6,22-23; 16:4; 20:17; 21:18; Php 1:1; 1Tm 3:1-13; 4:14; 5:17,19; Ti 1:5-9). There is nothing contradictory between the early church being filled with the Spirit and having leaders appointed to various responsibilities. The ministry of Paul was characterized by such a balance.

12:1 This King Herod was Herod Agrippa I, who ruled in Palestine from A.D. 37 to 44. His attack apparently focused on the apostles in Jerusalem.

12:2 The James whom Herod executed was one of the "Sons of Thunder" (Mk 3:17).

12:6-10 Peter was again rescued from prison by an angel of the Lord (see note at 5:19-20), though this time he initially thought he was only seeing a vision.

12:11 Jesus too was once rescued from Herod's grasp, though it was a different king Herod (Mt 2:13-15).

12:12-16 Knowing that everyone inside was praying for Peter, Rhoda rushed back in to tell them that God had answered their prayers, not bothering to let Peter in first! Remarkably, they disbelieved her and suggested it was Peter's angel. This reflected the common Jewish belief in guardian angels. It also shows how serious the persecutions had become, for it was believed that your guardian angel would sometimes appear shortly after your death. Thus it seems the crowd of believers was better prepared to believe Peter had been executed than that he had been released.

12:17 Peter went to a different place most likely in an attempt to throw Herod and the Jewish authorities off his trail. God had freed him miraculously, but this did not mean Peter could flaunt his freedom or act imprudently. Peter instructed those present to report his freedom to James, Jesus' brother, mentioned here for the first time in Acts. James, apparently not a follower of Jesus until after the resurrection, emerged as a leader in the Jerusalem church (Gl 1:19).

12:20-22 On an appointed day Herod arranged to receive praise from his subjects, but God had other plans (v. 23).

12:23 Herod died because he claimed for himself the honor and glory that belongs only to God. There have been various speculations about the immediate cause of Herod's death, including appendicitis, poisoning, and intestinal blockage.

12:24 With Herod out of the way, there were fewer hindrances to the spread of the good news, which flourished and multiplied.

12:25 Barnabas and Saul returned to Jerusalem after their relief mission. Here again we see the vital role Barnabas played in assimilating Saul into leadership of the early church.

13:1 Prophets and teachers apparently refer to functions and (possibly) offices within the early church. The teachers continued the apostolic function of transmitting Jesus' message (see note at 6:2-4), while prophets conveyed divine revelation via interpreting the OT or giving new insights (11:27). This is the only reference in Acts to teachers, although the function of teacher is described elsewhere in the NT (1Co 12:28-29; Eph 4:11; 1Tm 1:7; 2:7; 3:2; 2Tm 1:11; 2:24). The group of prophets and teachers was diverse, including people from Africa and Cyrene, and at least one person (Manaen) who was connected to Herod's household.

13:2-3 The routine of the prophets and teachers included ministering to the Lord and fasting. This helps to account for their openness to the Holy Spirit, who directed them to set aside Barnabas and Saul for a work to which the Spirit had called them. Barnabas and Saul were confirmed in their calling after a process of fasting, praying, and laying on of hands. This commissioning marks an important turning point in the history of the church, as Saul and Barnabas were selected to extend the gospel message beyond Judea and surrounding regions.

13:4 This verse describes the beginning of the first of Paul's three missionary journeys. This journey included the island of Cyprus and a part of Asia Minor. The first two journeys began and ended in Antioch, which had become a center for world Christianity, committed to evangelizing Gentiles. Paul's third journey ended in Jerusalem because he was arrested there before he could make his way to Antioch (see chap. 21).

13:5 Paul began his preaching efforts at local synagogues, continuing his early pattern (see note at 9:19-20). John ("John Mark," 12:25) was with them for now (but see 13:13 and note).

13:6 Just as Peter had a confrontation with a magician (Simon; see note at 8:9), so Paul confronted a sorcerer on Cyprus. Parallels in Acts between the lives of Peter and Paul have been noted by scholars. These include healing a lame man (3:2-8; 14:8-10; cp. 5:15; 19:12), exorcism (5:16; 16:18), being miraculously freed from prison (12:6-11; 16:25-26), receipt of the Holy Spirit by the laying on of hands (8:17; 19:6), and raising the dead (9:36-41; 20:9-12).

13:7 A proconsul governed a Roman province. Archaeology has turned up evidence for many of the proconsuls of Cyprus. At least one inscription bears the name "Paulus," but he is too late to be Sergius Paulus.

13:8 The sorcerer Bar-Jesus (v. 6) is here called Elymas. Possibly "Elymas" is a Semitic word, as is Bar-Jesus, and "sorcerer" is its translation. In any case, true to his demonic influence, Elymas tried to keep Sergius Paulus from embracing the gospel.

13:9 From this point on in the book of Acts, Saul is referred to as Paul (except when he recounted his conversion experience in chaps. 22 and 26). Perhaps the switch in preference is because his missionary ventures moved him outside of a more distinctly Jewish context and into the larger Greco-Roman world. Paul was the Roman version of his name.

13:10-11 Paul called down a punishment of blindness on Elymas for a time. Hence the judgment was not permanent, giving Elymas the chance to repent and believe.

13:12 The signs normally associated with conversion in Acts (baptism, reception of the Spirit) do not appear in this account of Sergius Paulus's conversion. Possibly Luke just abbreviated his account, but it is also possible that Paulus's belief amounted to nothing more than his being astonished at the teaching and the blindness that befell Elymas.

13:13 John Mark (son of Mary, 12:12) left them at Perga and went back to Jerusalem. No reason is given for his leaving, but it must have seemed unwarranted to Paul, for on the second missionary journey Barnabas suggested that they take John along, but Paul refused, pointing out that John had previously abandoned them (15:37-38).

13:14 There were some 16 cities named Antioch in this era, and so Luke says in Pisidia to specify which "Antioch" is in view. This Antioch was technically just across the border in Phrygia rather than Pisidia, but ancient readers would have known this.

13:14-15 Paul continued his pattern of visiting the local Jewish synagogue on the Sabbath. He was invited to bring a message of encouragement largely due to the fact that opposition among unbelieving Jews had not yet been stirred up on that town (v. 45).

13:16-41 This is Paul's first public speech and his first missionary speech in the book of Acts. It is the longest speech by him in a Jewish synagogue, and it probably represents a style of speech he used on many such occasions. Paul recounted the history of Israel to place the coming of Jesus Christ in historical perspective. He made it clear that the coming of Jesus was the fulfillment of God's promise (v. 23), as His resurrection confirmed (v. 33).

13:22-23 According to the promise refers to 2Sm 7:12-16, where God promised through the prophet Nathan that He would raise up from David a descendant whose throne would be established "forever."

13:27 Though the prophets were read in synagogues every Sabbath, those in Jerusalem did not recognize that these words were fulfilled in Jesus. They instead condemned Him, their only hope.

13:30-31 The resurrection of Jesus was confirmed by witnesses who had followed Him from Galilee to Jerusalem. Luke frequently emphasizes the role of eyewitnesses (1:3; Lk 1:1-4).

13:33 Jesus' resurrection confirmed that God had fulfilled His promise (citing Ps 2:7).

13:34-35 Others who had been raised from the dead would return to decay, for they were still subject to death. Not Jesus. He destroyed "the one holding the power of death" (Heb 2:14).

13:38-39 Through Jesus is offered forgiveness of sins, something the law of Moses can never accomplish (Rm 3:20).

13:41 Paul cited Hab 1:5 as a fitting conclusion to his speech. This passage from the prophet referred to the work that God was doing and recognized that some people would scoff and refuse to believe what God was doing, even if it was explained to them.

13:42-43 Whether due to the speech's novelty or their genuine spiritual hunger, the people wanted to hear more. It was probably in the "downtime" outside the synagogues, in small groups or individual meetings, that Paul and Barnabas accomplished their most effective teaching.

13:44-45 Keen interest sprang up over the gospel message everywhere Paul and Barnabas went, whether for or against. Jesus foretold the opposition the evangelists would face (Mk 13:13).

13:46-47 The NT consistently says the gospel message came first to the Jews (e.g., Mk 7:27), though the Gentiles were anticipated as eventual recipients. Acts shows the same pattern. Early in their missions work, Paul and Barnabas recognized that their duty was to bring the good news to the Jews first. But Jewish rejection of this message warranted their taking it to the Gentiles.

13:48 This verse expresses one of the great enigmatic truths of Scripture: all who had been appointed to eternal life believed. This touches both on God's election ("appointed") and the human responsibility to choose ("believed").

13:49 The whole region was predominantly Gentile. Thus those who were historically "outside" God's people were coming to overshadow and redefine God's people.

13:50 Seeing that the gospel was gaining wide acceptance, the Jewish leaders incited both men and women of status to reject Barnabas and Paul. This was a familiar tactic (Mt 27:20).

13:51 They shook the dust off their feet, obeying Jesus' command to His disciples (Lk 10:11).

13:52 Joy is the outward expression of the work of the Holy Spirit within a believer.

14:1 The familiar pattern of evangelization took place in Iconium: Barnabas and Paul began in the synagogue. A great number of Jews and Greeks believed. The Greeks were likely God-fearers (10:2).

14:2-6 Paul and Barnabas ministered boldly until they discovered that both the Gentiles and Jews had formed a plot to stone them. They left Iconium more from prudence than fear of risk.

14:8-13 Here is another test of what motivated the apostles. The town was set to deify Paul and Barnabas because of the healing of the man lame from birth. Lystra apparently shared in the region's mythological tradition that said the Greek gods Zeus and Hermes (their Roman counterparts were Jupiter and Mercury) had once visited earth. The city had ongoing devotion to these gods. It is not clear why Barnabas was equated with Zeus and Paul with Hermes. Possibly Paul, who served as the major speaker, was equated with Hermes because Hermes was the messenger god. Another possibility is that Barnabas may have been a more imposing figure than Paul (see 2Co 10:10), and thus was equated with Zeus, leader of the Greek pantheon. In any event, how would they respond to such ego-feeding praise?

14:14 That the apostles tore their robes indicates not just refusal to be worshiped as gods, but abject horror at the idea. Did they preach Christ out of selfish motives? Obviously not.

14:15-18 This speech, delivered by both Barnabas and Paul to a pagan audience (rather than Jews or God-fearers), is Paul's second missionary speech in Acts. It drew upon natural theology, which is knowledge of God that can be derived from creation. This approach was appropriate for a group of pagans who thought of their gods as part of nature. Paul also used this approach in his Areopagus speech (17:16-32) with an audience of pagan philosophers, and in Rm 1:18-32.

14:15 Paul and Barnabas cited Ex 20:11 and Ps 146:6 about God creating heaven . . . earth, the sea, and everything in them. This placed the natural order within the realm of God's creative power.

14:17 God's constant witness occurs in the working of nature, including the rain cycle, weather, and the production of food.

14:19 Having refused the people's worship, the apostles soon tasted their wrath instead. Agitators traveled from Antioch (about 100 miles away) and Iconium to catalyze the about-face at Lystra. So seriously did unbelieving Jews take the threat from Christian growth that they followed Paul from town to town, seeking to thwart his missions work (see note at 17:13). In this case, they stoned Paul to death. Or so they believed.

14:20 Did Paul literally rise from the dead? Probably not, since Luke does not explicitly say so. The mob apparently jumped to conclusions once Paul fell under the hail of stones (v. 19). Paul recovered and reentered Lystra, presumably without being spotted. He left the next day but returned to Lystra soon afterward (v. 21). This was likely made possible by the Jews from Antioch and Iconium returning home.

14:21-22 After evangelizing Derbe (v. 20), Paul and Barnabas began their return journey to their home base of Antioch of Syria, stopping by each of the towns they had visited along the way (Lystra . . . Iconium, and Antioch of Pisidia). Their purpose was to strengthen the hearts of the disciples and be sure that they understood that many troubles come to those who seek the kingdom of God. Paul himself bore witness to this truth (2Co 11:23-27). All the churches Paul and Barnabas founded on this first missionary journey were in the Roman province of Gl atia. These were probably the churches to whom Paul addressed his letter to the Galatians.

14:23 Elders in these early Pauline churches were apparently appointed by Paul and Barnabas to establish the first stages of church leadership (see note at 11:30). These practiced official oversight and responsibility within the church (see note at 20:17).

15:1 After arriving back in Antioch, Paul and Barnabas reported on what God had done in Asia on the first missionary journey, especially the evangelizing of the Gentiles (14:27). Some men came down from Judea and attempted to modify Paul's approach to non-Jews. By insisting that Gentiles be circumcised, they made observance of Jewish ritual a requirement for salvation.

15:2 Unable to reach an agreement, Paul and Barnabas were sent to the elders in Jerusalem, a sign that the Jerusalem church, with its apostles and elders, was still the center of the Christian movement. If Paul failed to convince the Lord's apostles, the church would not support him.

15:3 On the way to Jerusalem, Paul and Barnabas wisely shared details about the conversion of the Gentiles with believers in Phoenicia and Samaria, creating great joy among the brothers.

15:4-5 Though the Pharisees (including Paul) had opposed Jesus bitterly, some had become believers (6:7). In this case a group of them failed to understand the freedoms Christ had won for believers.

15:6 The central issue of the Jerusalem Council was whether Gentile Christians had to be circumcised and keep the law of Moses. Given the Jewish roots of Christianity, it is understandable that the church had to grapple with this issue in an era of transition.

15:7-9 Peter reminded his hearers of four things: (1) God had chosen him to proclaim the gospel to the Gentiles (10:1-43). (2) The Gentiles believed Peter's message. (3) When the Gentiles believed, they received the Holy Spirit (10:44-46). (4) The pattern of Gentile conversion was the same as for Jewish believers. God was making no ethnic distinctions in building the church.

15:10 In light of the above points (see note at vv. 7-9), the believers from the "party of the Pharisees" (v. 5) were testing God and putting on Gentile converts a burden that neither Jewish ancestors nor contemporary Jews were able to bear.

15:11 Having mentioned the inability of Jews and Gentiles alike to fulfill the law perfectly, Peter insisted that salvation is through the grace of the Lord Jesus, which means it is a free gift. Rituals such as circumcision cannot save anyone.

15:14 As leader of the Jerusalem church, James, the brother of Jesus, assessed the claims and counterclaims. He began his address by recalling how Simeon (Peter) had reported God's plan to take from the Gentiles, which had occasioned controversy of its own (11:2ff).

15:15-18 James cited the prophets Amos (Am 9:11-12) and Isaiah (Is 45:21) to show that God had long ago foretold that Gentiles would be called by His name.

15:19 James's position as the first among equals in the Jerusalem church is seen in his summarizing conclusion to the debate. In his judgment, Jewish believers should not cause difficulties for those turning to God from among the Gentiles.

15:20 Despite the common basis of salvation for Jews and Gentiles, a number of restrictions were required (v. 29; 21:25). Some scholars think these may have been introduced as a way for Jews and Gentiles within the church to have a common basis for contact. But it is more likely that these were designed to elevate the moral standards of the Gentiles by prohibiting them from engaging in a number of the practices that were associated with pagan temple rites such as animal sacrifice, sexual immorality, and idolatry.

15:21 James's reason for invoking Moses and the widespread proclamation of the law is not entirely clear. He may have meant that Jewish people who spread throughout the world via the Diaspora had made Moses' law known among Gentiles through their public reading of Scripture. Alternatively, he may have been saying that the standards he demanded of Gentiles in verse 20 reflected universal moral laws that were enshrined in the law of Moses.

15:22-23a Judas and Silas, both leading men among the brothers in Jerusalem, accompanied Paul and Barnabas back to Antioch in order to vouch (personally and via hand-delivered letter) for the results of the Jerusalem Council.

15:27 A letter in the ancient world was a substitute for the personal presence of the author. It was often carried by a trusted person who would validate and expand upon its contents, which Judas and Silas as emissaries of the leaders of the Jerusalem church would do.

15:28 James names both the Holy Spirit and human initiative (ours) as factors in the Council's decision. Throughout the NT, there is interplay between divine guidance and human actions that accomplish God's purpose (e.g., Php 2:12-13).

15:31 The letter was an encouragement to the church at Antioch because it endorsed the strategy of Paul and Barnabas in evangelizing Gentiles and did not impose unnecessary burdens on new converts.

15:32 Judas and Silas, who were prophets in addition to being leading figures from the Jerusalem church, encouraged and strengthened the believers in Antioch with a long message that Scripture nowhere records. We are reminded yet again that many great speeches and vital events went unreported by the Bible's authors (Jn 20:30; see note at Jn 21:25). Under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, each author had to choose which events and sayings to include or exclude.

In many cases this leaves readers wanting more or even grappling with unanswered questions. Nevertheless, enough information is given that the reader "may believe Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God" (Jn 20:31).

15:36 This verse marks the beginning of Paul's second missionary journey. Out of a sense of responsibility, Paul wanted to visit the converts in every town they had evangelized to see how they were progressing in the faith.

15:37-40 That Paul and Barnabas parted company over John Mark shows that even within the apostolic fellowship, perfect unity was not always obtainable. Sometimes God's workers have to agree to go separate ways, but there is always hope for reunion (Col 4:10; 2Tm 4:11; Phm 24). Paul took with him Silas, one of the men who had carried the Jerusalem letter to Antioch (vv. 23-34). Barnabas is not mentioned in the book of Acts after this incident.

15:41 Rather than going to Cyprus to strengthen the believers there, Paul and Silas went to Syria and the region of Cilicia, entering the province of Asia Minor.

16:1-3 Paul and Silas continued to retrace the first missionary journey by reentering Gl atia. At Lystra, Paul invited a young disciple named Timothy—son of a Jewish woman and Greek man—to join him. Paul circumcised Timothy not because he was caving in to pressure from "believers from the party of the Pharisees" (15:5), but rather to show respect for Jewish law and identity given the fact that Timothy was half-Jewish. If Timothy had remained uncircumcised, it would seem to many Jews that he had rejected not just Mosaic law but also Jewish ethnicity. Paul's continuing mentorship of Timothy throughout his ministry resulted in, among other things, the writing of two NT letters for his instruction (see 1Tm and 2Tm).

16:4 Besides evangelizing, Paul and his ministry partners conveyed the decisions of the apostles and elders in Jerusalem about circumcision and Gentile converts (see note at 15:19). Paul wanted to make clear that Gentiles could believe in Jesus without adhering to Jewish rites.

16:5 No doubt one of the reasons the churches in this Gentile-dominated region were strengthened in the faith and grew in number daily was that the Jerusalem Council had decided to minimize the burden imposed on Gentile believers (see notes at 15:19 and 15:20).

16:6-8 Paul and his companions passed through the region of Galatia (probably visiting Iconium and Antioch), and were prevented by the Holy Spirit from preaching the message in Asia. They were also prevented by the Spirit of Jesus (i.e., Holy Spirit) from turning north into Bithynia. So they passed through Mysia and arrived at the coastal city of Troas in Asia. Luke did not indicate why the Spirit constrained Paul's plans or by what method He made known the restrictions. The reader is left with questions, but see verse 9 and note; also see note at 15:32.

16:9 God gave Paul a vision to communicate His will for the direction his ministry should take, just as He had done with Peter (chap. 10). Paul saw a Macedonian man plead with him to cross over the Aegean Sea to Europe and help them. Thus it seems Paul was restricted from preaching in other places because God planned for him to "evangelize" (v. 10) in Macedonia.

16:10 This is the beginning of the first "we" section in the book of Acts. It extends until verse 17. The "we" passages are 16:10-17; 20:5-15; 21:1-18; 27:1-37; 28:1-16. The we likely indicates that Luke joined Paul's journey at these points. When connected together, the "we" passages form a continuous geographically joined narrative. This indicates a single unified source for these narratives, most likely Luke's own memory or the notes he took.

16:12 Philippi was a leading city of Macedonia but not the capital (Thessalonica). It was a Roman colony where a number of military veterans lived after completing their service. As a result, Roman law was in effect in Philippi.

16:13 The place of prayer refers to the place where Jews of the city gathered. Philippi apparently did not have a synagogue, since only women and no men are mentioned. The establishment of a synagogue required the participation of at least ten Jewish men. Paul and his companions met with this group of women on the Sabbath, following the pattern of evangelization he had practiced on his first missionary journey.

16:14 The name Lydia may have been a personal name or it could merely indicate that this woman was from the city of Lydia. She is the only woman named in this passage (vv. 11-14). She was likely a prominent woman since Luke singled her out for her responsiveness to Paul's message. The purple cloth she sold had important uses in the Roman Empire. Luke combined both human and divine initiative in the description of Lydia's response. The Lord opened her heart, but she paid attention to what Paul said.

16:15 Household baptism is mentioned several times in the book of Acts (vv. 31-34; 18:8; cp. 11:14). It is never stated who exactly was involved in such baptisms. If the leader of a household converted, perhaps others of the household (children, servants, spouse, etc.) were persuaded to respond in the same way. It is assumed on the basis of Lydia's response (16:14) and her question to Paul after her baptism (if you consider me a believer in the Lord) that her confession of faith preceded her baptism. This suggests that only those of the household who were mature enough to make their own positive response to the gospel would have been baptized.

16:16 That the slave girl had a spirit of prediction implies demonic possession. The ancients were very interested in oracles and prophecies, hence the girl earned income for her owners.

16:17-18 Though the girl cried out truth about Paul and his companions, Paul was greatly aggravated. Luke does not say why, but presumably Paul was irritated at the wild and distracting manner in which the girl carried on. Her manner would repel rather than attract crowds.

16:19 Paul and Silas were arrested for cutting off the revenue from this girl's fortune-telling, not for a religious violation.

16:20-21 Paul and Silas were accused of causing civil disorder and promoting customs that were not legal among Romans. The practice of variant religion was not illegal in the Roman Empire, but any activity (religious or otherwise) that risked sparking civil unrest was frowned upon.

16:22-24 The chief magistrates acted rashly under the influence of the mob. Paul and Silas were stripped . . . beaten, and thrown into jail before the charges against them were investigated.

16:25 Rather than being depressed or plotting escape, Paul and Silas displayed confidence in what God had in store for them. This was a powerful testimony to the other prisoners.

16:26 Luke does not say so, but clearly the violent earthquake was an act of God in response to the prayers and praises of Paul and Silas. The jailer understood this (v. 29).

16:27 If prisoners escaped, their Roman guards or jailers were forced to serve their sentences. Believing his prisoners had escaped, the Philippian jailer preferred a quick death over imprisonment or execution.

16:29-30 The jailer fell down trembling because he realized the earthquake was supernatural. This prompted him to ask the most important question in the book of Acts: What must I do to be saved? He was spared from death in the quake, spared from suicide by the discovery that the prisoners had not fled, and now wanted to be spared from God's future judgment.

16:31 Paul and Silas had a direct answer for his straightforward question: Believe on the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved—you and your household. On household baptism, see note at verse 15.

16:32 Paul's initial response to the jailer was succinct and to the point. That Paul then spoke the message of the Lord may indicate that he followed his initial answer, which was aimed at bringing the jailer to saving faith, with a more detailed explanation aimed at building the new disciple's understanding of God and the Christian life.

16:33 Baptism for the jailer and all his family followed almost immediately upon their profession of faith in the Lord. On household baptism, see note at verse 15.

16:34 The jailer's joy is palpable. What looked like a life-threatening disaster became the joyous beginning of his new life in Christ. He and his family became part of the growing church at Philippi, a church that was dear to Paul. When Paul later wrote that he thanked God every time he remembered the Philippians, this man and his family may have come to mind (Php 1:3).

16:35 At dawn the chief magistrates ordered that Paul and Silas be released. Some scholars claim verse 35 would be a suitable continuation of verse 24, and that this and other "jailbreak" episodes are part of a body of mythical literature in which God rules over natural phenomena on behalf of His people. Hence they claim verses 25-34 are fictional additions. Among several problems with this conclusion are the following: First, it is possible that the magistrates ordered Paul and Silas released because they realized that they had overreacted in jailing them in the first place. Second, it is very likely that the magistrates experienced the earthquake and were told about the events at the jail, thus prompting them to fear God's judgment.

16:37 Paul knew the laws regulating punishment of Roman citizens. Having been illegally beaten and denied trial, he refused to be released and pretend nothing had happened. Paul's Roman citizenship is mentioned here for the first time in Acts (see 22:25-29; 23:27; 25:11). Roman citizens were exempt from certain kinds of punishment (e.g., crucifixion) and were entitled to due process prior to punishment. The question arises as to how Paul would have proven his citizenship. There probably was a register in Tarsus that recorded his citizenship, but citizens also often carried small wooden tablets (some of which have been found), something like a modern passport, that they used to prove their citizenship. Perhaps Paul carried such a document.

16:38 The fear of the magistrates is understandable. Philippi was a Roman colony that followed Roman law. Many people in the town would have known about the rights of a Roman citizen.

16:39 Though not obligated to do so, Paul and Silas chose to count the apology as amends for the wrongs they had suffered. Many times it is best for the Christian to forego demanding full justice.

17:1 The next major stop on this second missionary journey was Thessalonica, where once again Paul began by visiting the local synagogue. He did this for three weeks (v. 2).

17:2-3 These verses give us insight into what Paul did when he visited synagogues. He reasoned . . . from the Scriptures, identifying Jesus as Messiah and explaining the necessity of His death and resurrection. Among Jews, who revered the OT as God's Word, Paul used the Scriptures as the basis for his argumentation.

17:4-5 The conversion of a great number of God-fearing Greeks and leading women prompted jealousy among unbelieving Jews. Paul had encountered resistance before, but this was an orchestrated movement involving the roundup of scoundrels from the marketplace. Jason was apparently one of the Thessalonians who had become a believer. He had welcomed Paul into his home (v. 7), so the mob attacked his house.

17:6 The phrase these men who have turned the world upside down may indicate that the Christians were mistaken for Jewish nationalists who had caused riots throughout the Roman Empire, but more likely it is an exaggerated reference to the unrest caused from town to town by Jews who opposed the Christian message.

17:7 Declaring that there was another king besides Caesar was a serious crime in the Roman Empire. This same false charge was used to condemn Jesus before Pilate (Lk 23:2).

17:10 Paul and Silas were sent out of town at night, most likely in order to conceal their departure. Rather than deciding to play it safe from this point on, they traveled to Berea and made straight for the synagogue of the Jews. Would they be persecuted here also?

17:11 The Bereans exemplify the ideal stance of disciples: They were open-minded to biblical instruction and examined the Scriptures daily to see if the teachings were true.

17:12 Note again the international appeal of the gospel as Greek women and men came to faith.

17:13 Just as the appeal of Christ knows no borders (both Jews and Gentiles follow Him), so too opposition to Christ knows no borders. Agitators from Thessalonica were unwilling to let faith flourish in Berea, and so they came there too, intent on thwarting the missionaries.

17:14 Paul set sail for Athens, while Silas and Timothy stayed behind and braved the opposition in Berea. This seems to indicate that Paul had become the focal point of Jewish opposition to the Christian message.

17:16 While waiting for Silas and Timothy to arrive from Berea, Paul observed Athens closely. He saw that it was full of idols. Athens was a beautiful city with many magnificent buildings and other monuments, many of them related to pagan worship (e.g., the Parthenon). The city was also a center of intellectual, philosophical, and religious discussion. All of this troubled Paul as a person who knew the one true God and His Son Jesus Christ.

17:17 Paul followed his custom and reasoned in the synagogue, but also expanded his audience even before the onset of trouble from the Jews, by taking the gospel to the marketplace and engaging whoever was there, likely including philosophers, rhetoricians, and teachers.

17:18 Epicurean and Stoic philosophers comprised two of the best-known philosophical schools of thought. They attracted many followers who gathered in various parts of the city to discuss the leading issues of the day. In their arrogance, some of them depicted Paul as a pseudo-intellectual. This was actually a slang term that meant “seed-picker.” Others misunderstood what Paul was saying and confused his discussion of the Resurrection with the description of a new god they had not yet heard about (cp. v. 32).

17:19 By this era, the Athenian court did not have the same kind of jurisdiction it once held. But the Areopagus still hosted gatherings where philosophical and religious ideas were debated.

17:22-31 This is Paul’s third and final missionary speech in the book of Acts. He appealed to the Athenians’ religious inclinations, drew upon observable data from nature to discuss the attributes of God, marshaled insights from pagan poets, and identified God and the need for humans to repent in preparation for the day in which God will judge the world in righteousness through Jesus Christ, whom God vindicated by raising Him from the dead.

17:23 As an example of Athenian superstition, Paul noted the altar erected to an unknown God. No such inscription has been found, but it is no surprise that such an altar existed. Doubtless it was erected to ensure that no gods were overlooked (and thus angered) in the people's devotion.

17:24-29 Paul's argument from nature included a basic natural theology: God is Creator of all things; God is beyond the human realm (transcendent); God is not obligated to any human; God is sovereign over all peoples; God as Creator is quantitatively different from His creation.

17:27 Paul did not believe a person could achieve salvation through his own search for God (v. 30), but he did believe God is near to each person and that people through their own reasoning and observation of nature can achieve rudimentary knowledge of who God is. Special revelation from God is necessary for fuller understanding and salvation (see note at Rm 10:14-15).

17:30-31 Paul built upon his argument from natural theology by introducing an eschatological dimension. God had overlooked the times of ignorance, but now commanded humanity to acknowledge its evil ways and turn from them (repent). He has established a day of judgment on which the world will be held accountable to the righteous standard set by Jesus, whom God raised from the dead.

17:32 Neither Stoics nor Epicureans believed in the possibility of bodily resurrection, though the Stoics did believe the human spirit continued to exist after bodily death. In any event, Paul's talk about bodily resurrection earned him ridicule but also a measure of curiosity.

17:34 Paul's missionary efforts in Athens were not as successful as they were elsewhere since he founded no church there. But there were a number of converts. These included a member of the Areopagus, Dionysius, a man of distinction because of this prestigious membership. Damaris may also have been a woman of distinction since Luke bothered to name her (vv. 4-5).

18:1 Corinth was another leading city of Greece (Achaia). Its two harbors made it a center of trade for the Mediterranean area.

18:2 It appears that in A.D. 41 emperor Claudius prohibited Jews from gathering together in Rome. Then in A.D. 49 he expelled them altogether, probably because the earlier measures did not work. Presumably Aquila and Priscilla were expelled at this time. That they had recently arrived from Italy suggests that Paul arrived in Corinth in about A.D. 50.

18:3 Tentmakers refers to people who worked in leather, possibly related to working in the goat hair cloth that was made in Cilicia, Paul's home region. Later rabbinic tradition confirmed the importance of teachers having a trade to help support themselves.

18:4 As was his custom, Paul reasoned in the synagogue, attempting to persuade both Jews and Greeks. The Greeks were likely God-fearers he encountered at the synagogue, but possibly outside as well. An inscription has been found in Corinth that attests to a "synagogue of the Hebrews." The date of the inscription is debated, but it probably postdates Paul.

18:5 When Silas and Timothy finally caught up with Paul in Corinth, he was engaged in what he did best—preaching the word and bearing witness to the Jews that Jesus was the Messiah.

18:6 Shook his robe symbolized that Paul was finished giving priority to Jewish evangelism, as if he were shaking the dust from the folds of his garment. He would concentrate on the more fruitful harvest among the Gentiles. Similarly, in 13:46 Paul and Barnabas responded to persistent Jewish rejection of the gospel by saying they would "turn to the Gentiles."

18:7-8 Paul's vow in verse 6 did not mean no one from the synagogue had accepted his message, as the conversion of Crispus and his whole household indicates. Also, since Titius Justus (a Gentile) was said to be a worshiper of God, he almost certainly had been a member of the synagogue that was right next door to his home.

18:9-11 Paul had experienced trouble in previous towns, including Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea. But the Lord assured him that he would have a productive ministry in Corinth, which explains why he stayed for a year and six months.

18:12 The time when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, of which Corinth was the capital, is a relatively firm date in NT chronology. An inscription found at Delphi says Gl lio was installed as proconsul in early A.D. 51. Paul appeared before him later that year.

18:13 For another instance in which Paul was accused of persuading people to worship God in ways contrary to the law, see 16:20-21 and the note there.

18:14-17 Gallio seemed both perceptive (I don't want to be a judge of such things) and negligent (the beating of Sosthenes did not concern him). Keeping order in a multi-ethnic provincial town, heavily involved in trade and travel, was not easy. Gl lio preferred the hands-off approach.

18:18 It is not clear that Paul was the one who shaved his head at Cenchreae. It may have been Aquila. The Greek syntax seems to indicate the latter, but it is uncertain. The vow may have been a Nazirite vow. If Paul was the person who made the vow, his going up to Jerusalem to visit "the church" (v. 22) may have included a stop at the temple to complete the vow and make an offering of his hair. Such activity was unusual for Paul, especially outside of Judea (cp. 21:26), but would have been consistent with his Jewish identity.

18:19-20 Paul's stop at Ephesus must have been very short since he apparently did not encounter Apollos (vv. 24-28) or the misguided teaching that he countered in his later, extended visit to Ephesus (chap. 19).

18:21 Paul promises to come back to Ephesus if God wills, as indeed He did (19:1). Paul saw his ministry and indeed his whole life as being in God's service and control (see note at Rm 1:1).

18:22 We know it was the Jerusalem church that Paul greeted since he went down from there (Jerusalem is at a higher elevation) to Antioch. His arrival back in Antioch marks the completion of his second missionary journey.

18:23 This marks the beginning of Paul's third missionary journey. Like the first two, this one began from Antioch and retraced his steps through Asia Minor, particularly the Phrygian region of the province of Gl atia.

18:24-25 Apollos was from Alexandria, Egypt, the most learned city in the Greco-Roman world. Since Apollos had been instructed in the way of the Lord, we know that Christianity had reached Egypt by this time. However, his knowledge of Christianity was deficient since he knew only the baptism of John the Baptist. Nonetheless, some take fervent in spirit to mean that Apollos was already filled with the Holy Spirit. However, it is more likely that Apollos was serious about his dawning faith in Christ but had not yet received the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

18:26 We see here that speaking boldly about Jesus is not enough. One must also accurately understand the faith. Priscilla and Aquila did both Apollos and the kingdom a favor by taking time to instruct him.

18:27-28 Once Apollos's rhetorical skills were coupled with accurate understanding of the Christian faith, he left Ephesus and went to Achaia (Corinth; 19:1). He vigorously refuted the Jews using apologetic and instructional techniques similar to Paul's. None of this would have been possible if not for the faithfulness of Priscilla and Aquila.

19:1-6 The disciples whom Paul encountered in Ephesus had never heard of the Holy Spirit or baptism into Christ (cp.18:25). This is one of the most difficult NT passages to interpret. The basic question is whether these disciples were genuine Christians when Paul first met them. Some argue that they were not since they had neither received the Holy Spirit nor been baptized into Christ. Others insist that they were genuine Christians who had not yet received full knowledge of the faith. Numerous incomplete forms of Christianity were being spread in the early years of the church. The apostles obviously felt that it was important to check the progress of such strains and correct them, bringing the full and complete gospel message to would-be disciples.

19:4 By John's own confession his baptism was incomplete. He urged those whom he baptized to believe in the One who would come after him (see Mt 3:11 and note).

19:5-6 The order of conversion here follows the typical pattern in Acts except for the laying on of hands and the mention of other languages and the ability to prophesy as immediate results of the Spirit's coming.

19:8 Paul apparently encountered the Ephesian disciples (vv. 1-7) before he had a chance to visit the synagogue. His discussion there marks only the second time that Paul mentioned the kingdom of God in his preaching in Acts (14:22).

19:9 Paul withdrew from the synagogue when the Way was slandered and it became obvious that the crowd would not believe. His choice seems in keeping with Jesus' teachings (see Mt 7:6; Lk 9:3-5). Tyrannus either owned the lecture hall or taught there regularly. Inscriptions bearing his name have been found in Ephesus, dating to this time. The actual lecture hall has not been discovered.

19:10 After three months of speaking in the synagogue (v. 8), Paul spent another two years teaching in Ephesus, making a significant impact on the province of Asia. A number of other events recorded elsewhere about Paul's life may have occurred during this time. These included imprisonments and beatings (2Co 1:8-10; 11:23-25).

19:11-12 God's power through faith was at work in these healings (see note at 5:15-16; see also Lk 8:44). That Paul's personal items (facecloths . . . work aprons) were involved demonstrates his identity as an apostle.

19:13 Itinerant Jewish exorcists attempted to use Jesus' name to command evil spirits. Ancient magic traditions often involved the invocation of divine names.

19:14 Numerous ancient Jewish nonbiblical texts attest to the interplay of magic and Judaism.

19:15 It takes more than the invocation of powerful names to gain the upper hand over demonic forces. The evil spirit knew that the exorcists did not share in Christ's authority through faith.

19:16 The consequences of frivolously invoking Jesus' name were severe. That the men fled naked was especially humiliating since Jews shunned nudity.

19:17-18 The name of the Lord Jesus, rather than being abused, was magnified when people realized the power of the Lord was not available for just anyone to control and manipulate.

19:19-20 Books were expensive in ancient times. 50,000 pieces of silver represents a large but believable sum.

19:21 Paul intended to return to the places he had evangelized earlier on his second missionary trip and then go to Jerusalem before traveling further west. As he stated in his letter to the Romans (Rm 15:23-29), he believed his missionary work in the east was finished. After taking the collection to Jerusalem, he planned to proceed to Rome and then further west to Spain.

19:22 Some believe the Erastus mentioned here is the same as in Rm 16:23, while others dispute this. It is also possible that the Erastus of Rm 16:23 is mentioned in a Corinthian inscription. The name was popular during this time.

19:23-25 The cult of Artemis at Ephesus was part of a larger Greek cult of Artemis, the "Great Mother." As with many ancient cults, artisans like Demetrius made their living by fashioning cultic items such as idols. Paul's preaching jeopardized this vocation (vv. 25-26).

19:26-27 Paul's reputation had spread throughout Asia, making him a threat to the beliefs and lifestyle for a considerable number of people. The Ephesian temple of Artemis, whose foundations went back to the eighth century B.C., was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. Demetrius foresaw that it would fall into disrepute and ruin if Paul persuaded enough people that gods made by hand are not gods. In fact, this is exactly what happened. The ruins of the temple were discovered in the nineteenth century, and the altar was uncovered in 1965.

19:28 Demetrius played to the crowd's worst fears effectively. Fear of loss is often a choice weapon against God's truth and the life of discipleship.

19:29-31 The Ephesian amphitheater seated 24,000 people and was thoroughly remodeled in the first century. The disciples wisely kept Paul from joining his traveling companions. It would have been a senseless self-sacrifice to enter into the clutches of such a hostile mob. That some of the provincial officials also pleaded with Paul to stay away shows that he had come to be well regarded by some leaders in the province.

19:32 True to mob mentality, most of them had no idea why they had gathered in the amphitheater.

19:33-34 The Jews of the city understandably wanted to distance themselves from the controversy caused by Paul and his followers. They shoved forward one of their own, Alexander, a Hellenistic Jew (as indicated by his name), to offer an apology on their behalf. Ironically, the Jews would have had the same view of the Artemis cult as Paul and his followers, but in this case they did not want to be lumped in with them. As for the Ephesian mob, they disallowed such a distinction. They knew that anyone whose religious roots were Jewish represented opposition to Artemis.

19:35 The image that fell from heaven may indicate that the Artemis cult was inspired by a meteorite that fell to earth. Alternatively, this could be a way of saying that the cult was thought to originate with the gods.

19:37-39 In their rush to condemn Jesus and the Christian movement, Jews and Gentiles alike often violated civil and judicial procedures (18:14-15; Mt 26:60). In this case, the city clerk made it clear that the actions of Demetrius were against the law and did not follow due process.

19:40-41 Fear of Roman reprisal was a common motivator for clearing up civil unrest. There is no mention of further legal action taken. This shows that Paul and his followers had broken no laws. They were simply upsetting those who profited from the Artemis cult.

20:1 Paul took one last occasion to gather the believers in Ephesus before going to Macedonia.

20:2-3 Paul probably went to Philippi and Thessalonica in Macedonia before going to Greece (Achaia), where he stayed for three months, possibly in Athens and Corinth. The plot by some of Paul's Jewish opponents apparently caused him to change his travel plans. He decided to travel overland from Greece to Macedonia, where he caught a ship at Philippi.

20:4 A number of Paul's companions hailed from cities he had visited during his missionary journeys.

20:5 The "we" narrative resumes and continues through verse 15 (see note at 16:10).

20:6 When Paul reached Philippi, he sailed after the days of Unleavened Bread (Passover week) for Troas, where he stayed seven days.

20:7 On the first day of the week, Paul gathered with other believers to break bread, a tradition that apparently began soon after the resurrection and ascension of Christ. Because he was leaving the next day (this event occurred at the end of his week in Troas), Paul spoke until midnight.

20:9-10 Peter raised a disciple named Tabitha from the dead (9:36-41), and now Paul ostensibly did the same for Eutychus. It is not clear, however, whether Eutychus was actually dead or just unconscious. Paul's statement that his life is in him most naturally suggests Eutychus was alive. In that case picked up dead would mean he was unconscious and appeared dead.

20:11 Despite the drama with Eutychus, the crowd went upstairs to break bread, eat together, and talk until dawn before Paul departed.

20:13 The narrative follows the events of those in the "we" group (see note at 16:10), who sailed from Troas to Assos, where they met Paul, who had traveled by land.

20:15 The group met in Assos, where Paul joined the ship, stopping at several ports before its arrival in Miletus. This verse ends the we section (see note at 16:10).

20:16 Paul appears to have consciously decided to sail past Ephesus in his hurry to get to Jerusalem for Pentecost. He may have wanted to avoid Ephesus because of the possibility that his presence would cause unrest (cp. 19:23-41). Also, he had close ties with the Ephesian church, and it might have been difficult to take leave of them if he had stopped in the city.

20:17 In this verse the leaders of the church in Ephesus are called elders, but they are referred to as "overseers" in verse 28. These terms designate a functional and formal title of church leadership. The Ephesian church appears to have had a formal leadership structure.

20:18-35 This speech differs from Paul's others in Acts. It is the only one delivered to a group of believers, and it has several parallels with themes in the Pauline letters—reference to his serving the Lord, his persecution, his not shrinking from teaching, his ministry to both Jews and Greeks, the need for repentance, counting his life expendable, and finishing the course.

20:20 The mark of a truly faithful teacher of the gospel is that he or she does not shrink back from topics that, though unpopular or personally difficult, are profitable for disciples.

20:21 Paul's message to both Jews and Greeks called for repentance toward God for one's sins and faith in the Lord Jesus. This is an excellent summary of the mission of the church.

20:22-23 Paul was undaunted by the God-given knowledge that chains and afflictions awaited him. His persistence in teaching despite this is a model for all Christian disciples.

20:24 Paul put his trials in perspective by declaring that he counted his life of no value. What was important was that he would finish the course that had been set for him by the Lord Jesus, which involved testifying to the good news of God's grace.

20:25 Either Paul realized that things might go badly for him in Jerusalem, or he had no intention of returning to this part of the Mediterranean. His intention after visiting Jerusalem was to head to Rome and beyond. This is why he declared to the Ephesian elders that he would not see any of them again (cp. v. 38).

20:26-27 Paul declared that he was innocent of everyone's blood because he had declared the whole plan of God to them. This means he had been faithful to proclaim the plan of salvation, including the coming judgment. Thus no one could accuse him of failing to warn them.

20:28 Paul used the language of shepherding to describe the responsibility of the leaders of the Ephesian church. Here they are called overseers rather than elders (see note at v. 17), appointed by the Holy Spirit for their task. Reference here to redemption through the blood of Jesus is unique in Acts, but the language reflects Paul's statements elsewhere (Rm 3:25; 5:9; Eph 2:13).

20:29-30 Paul clearly did not regard incorrect doctrine as unimportant. He called false teachers savage wolves because eternity hangs in the balance of rightly understanding the gospel.

20:31 Paul described his three years of active ministry in Ephesus as times of constant vigilance, warning, and deep concern. The events recorded in Acts fit this description well.

20:32 Paul committed the Ephesian Christians to God's grace, which strengthens disciples in their earthly tasks and provides eternal inheritance to the sanctified—those made holy by God.

20:33-35 Paul was never motivated by money or renown, as proven by his labors that provided for his own needs and those who accompanied him. Jesus' saying, It is more blessed to give than to receive, is found only here. It resembles some of Jesus' sayings elsewhere (Lk 6:38). Jesus obviously said much more than is recorded in the Gospels (Jn 20:30-31; 21:25).

21:1 The shipboard journey continued from Ephesus by way of Cos to Rhodes and Patara. This is the third "we" section in Acts (see note at 16:10). It extends through 21:18.

21:3 The most common vessels sailing the Mediterranean were grain ships from Egypt, heading to the rest of the Roman Empire (but especially Rome).

21:4 Some Christians in Tyre had received from the Holy Spirit the same message that Paul disclosed in Ephesus: Trouble awaited Paul in Jerusalem (20:22-23).

21:5-6 The departure from the Christians at Tyre resembled the departure from Miletus and the Ephesian elders (20:37-38). They knew Paul was heading for his deepest trouble yet.

21:8 Philip the evangelist was probably so called to distinguish him from other Philips. He was one of those selected to serve in the church in Jerusalem (see note at 6:5-6). Philip eventually settled with his daughters in Caesarea. Some believe he may have been one of the original Twelve (Mt 10:3; Mk 3:18; Lk 6:14). But he is distinctly identified as one of the Seven (6:3).

21:9 The word virgin means Philip's daughters were young and unmarried.

21:10-11 Agabus (see note at 11:28) explicitly stated that Paul would fall into hostile hands in Jerusalem. As it turned out (21:30-36), Paul was delivered by Gentiles out of Jewish hands, but then remained in Gentile hands throughout the rest of the book of Acts.

21:12 With such an explicit prophecy, it is not surprising that Paul's traveling companions and the locals begged him not to go on to Jerusalem.

21:13 Paul had already thought about the cost of obedience and decided it was worthwhile.

21:14 Ultimately, the only appropriate response for a believer is the one that Paul's companions stated: The Lord's will be done. One of the major themes of the book of Acts is the simultaneous reality of human choice and the sovereign divine will (4:24-28; see note at 2:23).

21:16 Mnason was a Cypriot believer who had probably been saved during the first missionary journey. Mnason may be a Hellenized form of a Jewish name, or he may have been a Gentile.

21:17 The brothers who welcomed Paul and his friends were probably Mnason and his companions.

21:18 James is singled out as the leader of the church in Jerusalem, along with a group of elders. It is not clear how many of the original apostles would have still been in Jerusalem, but they do not appear in the following events. This verse marks the end of this "we" section.

21:19 As Paul did in his last major meeting in Jerusalem (15:4), he told James and the church elders what God had been doing among the Gentiles through his ministry. This was an appropriate follow-up to the original Jerusalem Council (see note at 15:2).

21:20 Having listened to Paul's report about what God had done "among the Gentiles" (v. 19), the Jerusalem leadership rejoiced but also answered back with something like one-upmanship. Mention of many thousands of Jews converting in Jerusalem was perhaps exaggeration, for the city had a population between 25,000 and 50,000. At issue in the back-and-forth between Jerusalem leaders and Paul (minister to the Gentiles) is the role of the law in Christian faith; thus the emphasis on Jewish believers being zealous for the law. Perhaps this response also represented an attempt by believers in Jerusalem to strengthen their position as they saw the center of the church shift to Gentile Christians.

21:21 Rumor said Paul was teaching Jews who were dispersed among Gentiles to disregard Mosaic law and traditional Jewish rituals such as circumcision. To dismiss these fears, the brothers proposed a solution that would absolve Paul of the charges (vv. 23-24).

21:23-24 This proposal does not in any way imply that works of the law are necessary for salvation, which would fundamentally contradict Paul's preaching of the gospel (Rm 3:20).

21:25 On the Jerusalem Council, see notes at 15:21 and 15:22-23a. The issue of the letter had been solved much earlier, and what Paul had or had not encouraged Jews living among Gentiles to do would not be clarified by the proposal of verses 23-24. James was apparently succumbing to pressures from the Jewish believers in Jerusalem. Ultimately his proposal backfired (v. 27).

21:26 It is somewhat surprising that Paul agreed to perform the ritual of purification. Perhaps he sensed this was part of God's overall plan, to which he was partially privy (vv. 10-11; 20:22-23).

21:27 There is no indication that the Jews from Asia were Christians.

21:28-29 Trophimus, an Ephesian, accompanied Paul to Jerusalem (20:4). It is unlikely that Paul ever brought Trophimus into the temple. After all, Paul was in the process of fulfilling the Jewish law, not ignoring or flaunting it. Even if the accusation was true, it would be Trophimus, not Paul, who would have been guilty according to the law as stated in temple inscriptions.

21:30 Paul was seized and dragged out of the temple complex, the gates were closed behind him, and he was left in the outermost area of the temple.

21:31-32 Once the crowd had isolated Paul, they tried to kill him. Roman soldiers were stationed in the Antonia Fortress on the northwest side of the temple mount. One of their chief jobs was to put down disturbances such as this.

21:34-36 Even with the soldiers protecting him, Paul had to be carried as the mob pressed in for the kill. Fortunately the barracks were nearby.

21:37-38 Paul asked permission to speak. His use of Greek surprised the Roman commander ("Claudius Lysias," 23:26). Lysias mistook Paul for an Egyptian rebel. The Jewish historian Josephus said this rebel, a messianic pretender, had gathered a number of people at the Mount of Olives to attack Jerusalem in A.D. 54. The group was routed by the Romans, but the leader escaped. Lysias initially suspected that Paul marked the return of this man.

21:39 That Paul was a citizen of Tarsus, a city of importance in the Greco-Roman world, accounted for his knowledge of Greek.

21:40 Though the text says Hebrew, Paul probably spoke Aramaic to the crowd in order to communicate clearly with them. Aramaic became the new Hebrew, so to speak, among the Jewish people after the exile. In Paul's day Hebrew was used only by the religious elite.

22:1 Paul labeled his address a defense or an apology. This is his first apologetic speech in Acts.

22:3 Paul offered a number of important facts about himself. It appears that Paul spent his youth up to the age of 13 or so in Tarsus where he was probably educated in the first stage of Greek schooling. Then he went to Jerusalem (this city) and finished his education under Gamaliel. Elsewhere in Acts Paul indicated that much of his youth was spent in Jerusalem (26:4), and that he had relatives there (23:16).

22:4 Paul's admission that he persecuted this Way to the death indicates that he was more than a passive participant in events such as the stoning death of Stephen (7:58).

22:5-21 This is the second account of Paul's conversion in the book of Acts (9:7; 26:12-18).

22:9 According to 9:7, Paul's traveling companions heard the voice that spoke to him on the road to Damascus, but they did not see anyone. In this verse Paul himself said that they did not hear the voice of the One who was speaking to him. The grammar here supports the idea that Paul's traveling companions may have heard the voice but they did not understand it, or at least they did not understand it as the voice of the Lord.

22:17-21 Only this account of Paul's conversion mentions the temple vision. In his answer to the Lord (But I said), newly converted Paul seemed to expect his dramatic reversal from persecutor to advocate for Christianity would make his testimony powerful among Christian Jews in Jerusalem, but the Lord knew at this point they would not accept him. On early skepticism about Paul's conversion, see note at 9:26. On the execution of Stephen, see notes at verse 4 and 7:58.

22:22 Paul's mention of his commission to the Gentiles struck at the heart of Jewish nationalism.

22:24 The Roman commander knew that Paul spoke Greek, but he also knew that he was a Jew. Thus he assumed it was legal to scourge him as the first step in the interrogation.

22:25 Paul knew it was illegal to scourge an uncondemned Roman citizen; see note at 16:37.

22:28 Roman citizenship could be obtained by paying bribes (equal to as much as a year's wages) to appropriate officials. Sometimes citizenship was granted to entire cities or to individuals who performed meritorious service for the Empire. One of Paul's ancestors may have performed noteworthy service to Rome, including serving in the army or providing supplies for the army, such as making tents. Whatever the origin, Paul had inherited his Roman citizenship.

22:29 The significance of Roman citizenship is made clear, just as it was in Philippi (16:37). Stiff penalties could be handed down for mistreating a Roman citizen in this way.

22:30 Paul was either released from his chains or released from Roman imprisonment while the Sanhedrin convened to try him on charges related to the Jewish law. During this time he remained under the protection of the Roman soldiers.

23:2-3 The high priest ordered Paul struck on the mouth because he thought Paul was lying about having a "good conscience" before God (v. 1). Paul's accusation that the priest was a whitewashed wall meant the priest practiced outward piety but was inwardly corrupt.

23:4-5 Paul claimed not to have recognized the high priest, but most likely he was only being ironical. In this way he highlighted the high priest's inappropriate behavior.

23:6 Paul deflected the attention of the Sanhedrin by dividing his accusers over the doctrine of resurrection. The Pharisees, like Paul, believed in resurrection, while the Sadducees, of which the high priest Ananias was a member, did not. The ensuing debate led some of the scribes, who were associated with the Pharisees, to find no basis for charging Paul (v. 9).

23:10 Once again Roman intervention saves Paul's life; see 21:34-36 and note.

23:11 Again we see God's sovereign guidance of Paul's mission; see 22:17-21 and note.

23:16 Paul's nephew reported the murder plot (vv. 12-15). It is unclear how many of Paul's family members were in Jerusalem (see vv. 17,22). Most likely Paul's sister lived in Jerusalem, perhaps indicating that his entire family had moved there after Paul's childhood in Tarsus. The Greek of this verse suggests Paul's nephew was in his late teens. It is not stated how he came to know of the plot, but certainly the air was ripe for such a plot.

23:23 The commander acted decisively to get Paul out of harm's way. Caesarea was the headquarters for the province. Here Paul would be under the protection of the procurator, Felix.

23:24 Originally a slave, Felix became procurator of Judea in A.D. 52. He was removed from office around A.D. 59 for mishandling conflicts between Jews and Gentiles in Caesarea.

23:25-30 The letter from Claudius Lysias, the commander, followed the standard letter form of the time, with a greeting, the body of the letter, and a closing. Possibly Luke reconstructed it from Paul's recollection, but it is also possible that Luke himself heard it read in front of Felix and Paul in Caesarea.

23:27 Though in English translation this verse appears to say the commander learned that Paul was a Roman citizen before he rescued him, the Greek grammar indicates that the commander rescued Paul and then learned that he was a Roman citizen, which is exactly what happened (chaps. 21-22).

23:29-30 Lysias interpreted the conflict as a dispute over Jewish law, which meant the charge against Paul did not merit death or imprisonment under Roman law. His sending Paul to Felix might seem to imply otherwise, but this move was aimed at protecting Paul and allowing the Jewish authorities a chance to formally present their case before the Roman governor.

23:31-33 The distance from Jerusalem to Antipatris was approximately 35 miles along the Roman road. The trip from Antipatris to Caesarea was along the coast and did not require such a large guard to ensure Paul's safety.

23:34-35 Felix could have sent Paul to the governor of Syria, but decided to try the case himself, perhaps because he realized how flimsy the evidence against Paul was and wished to settle the case as quickly as possible. Paul was kept in custody in the procurator's palace, originally built by Herod the Great.

24:1 Luke's reporting of the case against Paul reflects standard Roman legal procedure, including the prosecution brought by a rhetor (lawyer). Tertullus was a common Roman name, but he may have been a Jew (v. 6), although he refers to the Jews objectively in verse 5.

24:2-3 Tertullus began with a captatio benevolentiae, the standard opening of a Greco-Roman speech designed to curry the favor of the listener, Felix.

24:5-7 Paul was accused by Tertullus of far more than just bringing a Gentile into the temple (desecrate the temple). Although the charge of desecrating the temple would perhaps make Felix suspicious of Paul, the charges of being an agitator and ringleader would have genuinely alarmed him since it implied Paul was a threat to Roman rule. Tertullus also said the Jewish authorities in Jerusalem would have been able to handle the situation if Lysias had not interfered. Clearly the Jews felt they should be left to do with Paul whatever they wished.

24:8 Tertullus finished with another compliment toward Felix, this time expressing confidence in his abilities to rightly judge the case against Paul.

24:10 When Felix asked Paul to speak, Paul offered a less flattering captatio benevolentiae (see note at vv. 2-3). Instead of offering hyperbole, he recognized that Felix was an experienced governor of many years before whom he would gladly offer his defense. This is Paul's second apologetic or defensive speech in Acts; see 22:1 and note for the first.

24:11-13 The 12 days that Paul referred to did not include the time he had spent in Caesarea, but only time spent in Jerusalem. This was a sufficient amount of time for Paul's enemies to gather evidence that he was a troublemaker, and yet they were unable to provide any.

24:14 The phrase the Way is used throughout Acts as a self-designation by Christians (v. 22; 9:2; 19:9,23). At this early date, Christianity was considered a sect of Judaism. It became independent over time as it spread to Gentiles, and as Jews continued to reject it in large numbers. Paul saw Christianity as continuous with, and the fulfillment of, ancient Judaism. Thus Paul and other believers worshiped their fathers' God.

24:15 Paul's belief in the resurrection—of the righteous to their reward, and the unrighteous to their punishment—aligned him with the Pharisees and against the Sadducees (23:6-9).

24:17 Paul came to Jerusalem to bring charitable gifts and offerings he had collected to aid the church there. This collection is mentioned in Paul's letters (Rm 15:25-26; 1Co 16:3; 2Co 8:1-9:15; cp. Gl 2:10), but is not emphasized in Acts.

24:18-19 Paul emphasized his state (ritually purified) and the state of the crowd (without any uproar) when Jews from Asia came across him and stirred up trouble.

24:20-21 Paul justly demanded that the Sanhedrin representatives charge him with things they had personally witnessed or heard from him (including talk about resurrection of the dead).

24:22 Felix was familiar with the Way. Some have speculated that he learned of Christianity through his wife, Drusilla, the daughter of Herod Agrippa (v. 24). As procurator for more than five years, he would have had numerous chances to learn this new movement. Felix seemed to acknowledge that Tertullus had not been a faithful conveyor of the facts surrounding Paul's arrest when he stated that he would wait for the arrival of Claudius Lysias before deciding the case.

24:23 The circumstances of Paul's imprisonment in Caesarea allowed visits by friends and colleagues. This privilege was likely made possible by his Roman citizenship.

24:24 Felix was interested enough in Christianity that he brought his wife, Drusilla, who was Jewish, to hear Paul.

24:25 Paul may have tailored his comments specifically for Felix, whose morals were publicly questioned. For instance, he took Drusilla from her first husband Azizus. Feeling the threat of divine judgment, Felix became afraid and sent Paul away.

24:26 Whatever hope Paul may have held for Felix's conversion, Felix's hidden motive for their ongoing discussions was base, illegal, and indicative of spiritual destitution.

24:27 Felix's immorality is on further display in the fact that he kept Paul imprisoned for two years even though he did not find that Paul had committed any punishable offense, and then left him in this state when Festus became the new proconsul (ca A.D. 59).

25:1-3 The new governor, Festus, went up from his palace in Caesarea to Jerusalem, probably to get a sense of the most important Jewish city in the realm. Hoping to seize on his unfamiliarity with the case, the Jewish leaders tried to coax him into sending Paul to Jerusalem, giving them a chance to renew their plans for ambush.

25:6-8 Having sinned neither against Caesar nor Jewish law, Paul was a victim of a smear campaign aimed to snuff out Christianity.

25:9-11 Likely aware of the ongoing plan to murder him, Paul avoided Jerusalem by invoking his right as a Roman citizen to appeal directly to Caesar. Not all such appeals were granted by local governors, but Festus was glad to shift this case to another jurisdiction and free himself of the pressure to appease the Jews (see note at 26:32).

25:13 Herod Agrippa II visited Caesarea with his sister Bernice, who had a checkered sexual and marital history. Herod was the last of the Herodian rulers. Festus was sly to bring Herod into the controversy over Paul, for Herod had responsibility for the temple and appointing the Jewish high priest. Thus he had an interest in the charges that Paul had violated the temple.

25:18-19 Festus had expected a more serious charge, like fomenting insurrection and revolution. He came to understand that the major issue was whether Jesus, who had died, was now alive.

25:20 Realizing that the theological debate was beyond him, Festus attempted to put a good spin on the push for Paul to go to Jerusalem for trial.

25:23 The entrance of Agrippa and Bernice must have been quite an occasion, with the honored guests and other people forming an elaborate entourage.

25:25 Festus had not previously made it known publicly that he thought Paul was innocent. Since Paul had made his appeal to Caesar, Festus was now free to admit, without repercussion, that he believed the charges were groundless (see note at 26:31).

25:26-27 Festus found the case not only groundless but perplexing. He hoped Agrippa would be able to help him think of a way to specify to the Emperor the charges laid against Paul.

26:1 This is Paul's third apologetic or defensive speech in Acts; see 22:1; 24:10.

26:2-3 Paul began his captatio benevolentiae (see notes at 24:2-3 and 24:10) by flattering Agrippa about how fortunate he was to be making his defense before an expert in Jewish customs and laws.

26:4-5 My youth indicates that Paul had lived in Jerusalem since his teens. All this time his way of life had been known and seen by others, and he lived by the strictest party of Jewish religion, the Pharisees. In this way Paul painted a portrait of his character for Agrippa.

26:6-8 Paul distilled the entire controversy down to his hope of the promise made by God to raise the dead. More than a mere tactic to pit Pharisees and Sadducees against one another, this was an accurate assessment of the Jewish complaint against Christianity: that Jesus was raised from the dead and that faith in Him as risen Lord gives eternal life.

26:12-18 This is the third and final account of Paul's conversion in the book of Acts (9:1-7; 22:6-11).

26:14 Only in this account of his conversion did Paul say the voice from heaven spoke to him in the Hebrew language. "Hebrew" may literally have been Aramaic, the common tongue of the first-century Jew (see note at 21:40). It is hard for you to kick against the goads probably meant that Paul should not resist the divine force that was moving him in a new direction.

26:16-18 These three verses are not included in the accounts of Paul's conversion in chapters 9 or 22, even though the mention of Paul's ministry to the Gentiles was a message given to Ananias in Damascus (9:15; 22:15). Many scholars believe the essence of Paul's mission to the Gentiles was revealed to him at the time of his conversion. Certainly these three verses summarize Paul's ministry to both Jews and Gentiles.

26:19 I was not disobedient is a spectacular understatement in light of Paul's faithfulness to God's calling, even through remarkable hardships.

26:20-21 Paul's faithfulness to "the heavenly vision" (v. 19) was the very reason the Jews seized him and wanted him dead. Thus Paul's stance is reminiscent of the one taken by "Peter and the apostles" in 5:29, where they said, "We must obey God rather than men." This is living out the principle Jesus taught in Mt 10:28.

26:22-23 Paul emphasized that the message of Christ's suffering, death, and resurrection matched OT teachings. He probably had in mind such prophetic passages as Is 52:13-53:12.

26:24 Festus took Paul to be mad because of talk about resurrection and Messiah, Jewish beliefs that seemed foolish to the Gentile world.

26:25-26 As evidence for his good judgment, Paul pointed out that the major events of Christianity had not taken place in a corner, out of sight and scrutiny. Jesus' life, death, and resurrection were all public and could not have escaped King Agrippa's notice.

26:27 Paul played to the king's Jewishness. If Agrippa was a good Jew, he should have accepted the prophets and their message about Jesus.

26:28 Scholars disagree over whether Agrippa's response was sarcastic anger, a jest, or a sign that Paul's logic was close to persuading him.

26:29 Paul's rhetorical skills were at their best as he concluded his speech. His confidence in Christ was such that he wished that all who listen could become as him, except for the chains.

26:31 Objective judgment could lead to only one conclusion: Paul was innocent. But Paul's life was held in the service of the Lord, not the judgments of men.

26:32 The charges against Paul were found to be groundless before both Roman and Jewish authorities. Nevertheless, Paul's appeal to Rome put his case in a special category that must be discharged by Caesar himself.

27:1 This is the fourth we section in Acts (see note at 16:10), and it extends to verse 37. The most natural conclusion is that the author of the "we" source was along for the journey. There were a number of people besides Paul and the other prisoners on the ship (e.g., Aristarchus, v. 2).

27:2 Adramyttium was in western Asia near the island of Lesbos. Like many ships sailing the Mediterranean Sea, the ship appears to have been a small grain vessel that would have worked its way from Caesarea along the coast until it reached Adramyttium.

27:3 There apparently were Christians in Sidon, although Acts does not record when the city was evangelized. The Christian presence may have been made possible as a result of citizens traveling to Jerusalem at Pentecost (2:9) or Christians fleeing persecution in Jerusalem (11:19). Paul seemed to have friends there who provided for him, possibly friends made during an unrecorded visit as he traveled between Jerusalem and Antioch.

27:4 The route of travel reflects the need to sail close to land and to tack against the winds.

27:5-6 The ship from Adramyttium would have taken them out of their way since it was going to follow the coast of the province of Asia. As a result, at Myra, on the southern coast of Asia Minor, the centurion found a ship from Alexandria that was going to Rome. The Alexandrian ship would have been part of the grain supply trade from Egypt to Rome (see note at v. 38).

27:7-9 The journey was being undertaken at the end of the sailing season, so the ship ran into difficulty. Sailing was dangerous from mid-September to mid-November, and the waterways closed for travel from then until February (see note at 28:11). It appears that Paul's journey occurred in roughly mid-October. Fair Havens was not a suitable place to spend the winter because the harbor was exposed to the open sea (v. 12).

27:10 Paul offered a prophetic-like statement about the dangers of the voyage ahead. He either had divinely given insight into the situation, or as an experienced traveler he was well acquainted with the dangers of seafaring.

27:12 The topography of Phoenix, on the island of Crete, was radically changed in the sixth century by an earthquake.

27:13-16 The crew thought the gentle south wind would push them to their destination, but the seasonal northeaster blew the ship away from Phoenix and into open sea.

27:17-19 Caught in the wind, the sailors had virtually no control over the ship. They tied ropes around the hull to bind it tight and keep it from ripping apart. To gain buoyancy, they jettisoned cargo and gear, but not the grain (cp. v. 38).

27:20 Since the storm blacked out sun and stars, the crew was unable to chart their location. They would have tracked the alternation between day and night by noting the vague light of day.

27:22-26 Rather than reprimanding the crew for failure to take his advice (v. 21), Paul related his encounter with an angel who revealed that Paul had a greater destiny than death by shipwreck. He was destined to stand before Caesar, the world's premier power. The divine plan would not be thwarted, especially by those who had acted so foolishly.

27:27 The Adriatic Sea mentioned here is not the same one that is currently known as the Adriatic Sea between Italy and the former Yugoslavia. It apparently refers instead to the modern day Ionian Sea between Crete, Malta, Italy, and Greece that extends into the Mediterranean Sea.

27:28-29 The sailors took a sounding by letting down lengths of weighted rope. They determined that they were approaching land at a fast pace, even though they could not see it. In an effort to slow down the ship, they took the unusual action of lowering four anchors, all from the stern, rather than dropping anchors from the bow, which would have swung the ship around. Verse 37 ends the fourth "we" section in Acts (see note at 16:10).

27:30-32 The prospect of imminent landfall after being adrift on the stormy sea for two weeks (v. 27) enticed a group of sailors to attempt, selfishly, an escape on the skiff (lifeboat). Paul's wisdom in preventing this is seen in the next episode, when all hands were needed (vv. 37ff).

27:33-34 The men had gone without food for 14 days, most likely because of severe seasickness brought on by the rough sea.

27:35 Following Jewish custom, Paul gave thanks to God for the food they ate.

27:36 Paul's example of steady faith ("he gave thanks to God") and practicality ("he began to eat," v. 35) in the midst of the storm encouraged the battered sailors.

27:38 The crew threw out the grain, which had been acting as ballast for the ship, so they could run it aground (v. 39).

27:39-40 In light of the damage to the ship and the loss of the lifeboat (vv. 30-32), the only option for reaching shore was to ground the ship.

27:41 With the bow jammed fast in the offshore sandbar, the ship's stern took a beating by the incoming waves.

27:42 The soldiers' intention to kill the prisoners was probably motivated by the fact that soldiers were held personally responsible for the prisoners whom they guarded. Any soldier whose prisoner escaped would suffer the prisoner's punishment.

27:43 By now the centurion recognized that paying attention to Paul was a good idea.

27:44 The sea would have been littered with planks and debris from the shattered ship.

28:1 This is the fifth we section in Acts (see note at 16:10), and it extends through verse 16. The shipwreck happened on Malta, a small island south of Sicily.

28:3-4 Although there are no poisonous snakes on Malta today, this does not mean there were none in Paul's day. Fauna and flora change over time. The residents of Malta apparently thought Justice, a Greek goddess, had singled Paul out because he deserved death (cp. v. 6).

28:5-6 The superstitious natives of Malta quickly decided Paul was a god rather than a "murderer" (v. 4). Paul shrugged off this false praise just as easily as he had shaken off the snake.

28:7 Leading man or "first man" of Malta is a title reflected in inscriptional evidence from the island. Publius may have been a leading citizen or political leader.

28:8 Publius's father may have suffered from "Malta fever," which is caused by drinking impure goats' milk.

28:10 The honors that Paul received may have been monetary rewards or payment. The same word is used elsewhere in Acts to indicate money (5:2-3; 7:16; 19:19).

28:11 The journey aboard the other Alexandrian ship probably began in February or shortly thereafter. The Twin Brothers were Castor and Pollux (Gemini), sons of Zeus. Sailors regarded them as gods and patrons of seafarers.

28:12 Syracuse was a port on the eastern side of Sicily.

28:13 Puteoli, a major port in southern Italy, was an important shipping harbor for transporting grain from Egypt to Rome.

28:14 It is not known how believers came to be in Puteoli, just as it is not known how Christians first came to be in Rome. Perhaps Jews in Puteoli had made contact with Christians from elsewhere who traveled through the seaport.

28:15 Believers from Rome came down the Appian Way to two small towns (Forum of Appius and Three Taverns) to greet and encourage Paul before his arrival in Rome. J. Polhill suggests these two groups of Christians represented different house churches from Rome (see Acts, 537).

28:16 While in Roman custody, Paul appears to have stayed on his own and at his own expense (cp. also vv. 23,30), guarded only by one soldier. We know nothing more about his contact with the Roman government or the disposition of his case. This verse is the end of the last we section in the book of Acts (see note at 16:10).

28:17 This is the final time in Acts in which Paul began his ministry in a new city. As usual, he started by contacting the Jews. Since he was in custody, he invited the Jewish leaders to visit him rather than going to their synagogue.

28:21-22 The Jews in Rome had heard about the sect of Christianity (24:14), but they had not received any official word about Paul from Jerusalem. This lack of communication between Jerusalem and Rome may have been caused by winter weather, or it may indicate that the Jewish leaders in Jerusalem had lost interest in Paul's case since he was now out of their sight, beyond their jurisdiction, and unlikely to cause them any more trouble. In any event, the Christians of Jerusalem knew more about Paul's situation than did the unbelieving Jews (see 28:15 and note).

28:23 Like the risen Christ on the road to Emmaus (Lk 24:13-35), Paul showed how both the Law of Moses and the Prophets pointed to Jesus as God's Messiah.

28:25-27 Luke identifies the turning point in the discussion as Paul's provocative statement that the Holy Spirit correctly spoke about Israel's spiritual stubbornness through Isaiah the prophet. Since Paul said this in response to those who "did not believe" (v. 24) what he was saying about Jesus, his citation of Isaiah clearly implied that the coming of Jesus Christ and His rejection by the Jews were foretold in the OT.

28:28 On God's saving work being sent to the Gentiles, see notes at 13:46-47 and 18:6.

28:30-31 The book of Acts ends in an unexpectedly open-ended fashion. Paul remained a prisoner two whole years. During this time he lived at his own expense and was allowed to have visitors to whom he proclaimed his message boldly and without hindrance. Church tradition has long held that Paul was beheaded during the persecution instigated by the Roman emperor Nero (A.D. 64 or 65). It is possible that Paul was executed in Rome after the "two whole years," though church historian Eusebius believed Paul was released from Roman imprisonment, only to be rearrested at a later date, sent to Rome, and executed. The fact that Luke does not write of Paul's execution leads some scholars to conclude that Luke wrote the book of Acts previous to Paul's execution, though it is possible that Luke chose not to discuss the details of Paul's death because his aim was to show that God had fulfilled His purpose in Paul: taking the gospel to the Gentiles. Paul's preaching day and night in the seat of the pagan Roman Empire ensured that Christianity would become an international phenomenon, not just a regional religious anomaly.

Greek Pronunciation [AH nah mah]

HCSB Translation name
Uses in Acts 60
Uses in the NT 231
Focus passage Acts 3:6,16

The Greek noun onoma means name and has several uses, such as the following: (1) Used for proper names of persons and places. (2) In Revelation 3:1 onoma is rendered 'reputation,' as in the expression he has made a name for. (3) It also occurs in the sense of title, as in Matthew 10:41 (the literal in the name of a prophet means 'because he is a prophet' or 'because he has the title prophet'). In Hebrews 1:4 onoma refers to 'Son' as the name or title that is more excellent than the angels' (see vv. 2,5,8), and in Philippians 2:9 the 'name that is above every name' is the title 'Lord' (kurios), as explained in verse 11. (4) Finally, the NT often demands that believers act for, or in the name of, Jesus Christ. The phrase 'in Jesus' name'' is not a mystical formula attached to the end of a prayer. It's an expression of faith that identifies the Person whom believers serve (Mt 18:20; Ac 2:38).

parresia
Greek Pronunciation [pahr ray SEE ah]

HCSB Translation boldness
Uses in Acts 5
Uses in the NT 31
Focus passage Acts 4:13,29,31

The Greek noun parresia literally means every word and thus signifies the freedom to speak openly. Since such freedom of speech often provokes opposition, parresia also indicated fearlessness in speaking one's mind. Finally, parresia developed into a term meaning boldness, openness, or confidence (as an adverb, openly or plainly). The word was normally used in a positive sense, but a negative usage such as bluntness or shamelessness also occurs in ancient Greek literature.

All ten occurrences of parresia in the Gospels refer to speaking openly or plainly , either by Jesus or about Jesus (Mk 8:32; Jn 7:4,13,26; 10:24; 11:14,54; 16:25,29; 18:20). The uses of the term in Acts refer to three instances of boldness on the part of the apostles in proclaiming the gospel (2:29; 4:13,29,31; 28:31), something Paul referred to in his letters (2Co 3:12; Eph 6:19; Php 1:20).

ekklesia
Greek Pronunciation [ehk lay SEE ah]

HCSB Translation church
Uses in Acts 23
Uses in the NT 114
Focus passage Acts 5:11

The Greek noun ekklesia is a compound from the preposition ek, meaning out of, and the verb kaleo, meaning to call; thus, ekklesia literally means called out ones. Despite the origin of the term ekklesia, its emphasis is not on a people called out but on a people gathered together, that is, an assembly or congregation. In secular Greek, ekklesia was commonly used for the assembled citizens of a city (see Ac 19:32,39-40).

In the NT, ekklesia is found in the Gospels only three times, all in Matthew (16:18; 18:17). It occurs in Acts more than any other book, and 62 times in Paul's letters. Jesus stated that He would build the ekklesia (Mt 16:18) and that the ekklesia must exercise discipline on members who sin (Mt 18:15-17). In the former passage Jesus used ekklesia in a corporate sense (all believers), and in the latter passage in the local sense (believers in a specific assembly).

Greek Pronunciation [EHK stah sihss]

HCSB Translation visionary state
Uses in Acts 4
Uses in the NT 7
Focus passage Acts 10:10

The English words ecstasy and ecstatic come from the Greek noun ekstasis, which literally means to stand out from. The term refers to a situation in which a person experiences a kind of displacement from reality. Such feelings of displacement are of two kinds in the NT. The term is used four times to describe the astonishment of a crowd that witnessed a miracle: Jesus forgiving and healing a paralytic (Lk 5:26); Jesus raising Jairus's daughter from the dead (Mk 5:42); Jesus' resurrection (Mk 16:8); and Peter healing a lame man (Ac 3:10). The other three uses of ekstasis refer to a revelatory trance. Through a trance, God showed Peter that there is to be no distinction between the clean and the unclean, between Jew and Gentile (Ac 10:10; 11:5). In this same way, Jesus showed Paul that he should leave Jerusalem because of the Jews' unbelief (Ac 22:17-18).

Christianos
Greek Pronunciation [krihss tee ah NAHSS]

HCSB Translation Christian
Uses in Acts 2
Uses in the NT 3
Focus passage Acts 11:26

From the Greek noun Christos (Ch rist or Messiah) comes the word Christianos, meaning belonging to Christ. The term occurs in only three places in the NT. Acts 11:26 explains that it was in Antioch that the disciples were 'first called Christians.' The famine mentioned in the following verses occurred in A.D. 46 and indicates the term's usage entered sacred vocabulary about that time. Since this new word for followers of Christ was coined in Antioch rather than Israel, it may indicate that the Christian movement was being recognized among Gentiles as something distinct from Judaism and not just another Jewish sect. In Acts 26:28, Agrippa referred to Paul's attempt to persuade the king to become a Christian—an attempt Paul admitted applied not only to Agrippa but to everyone who was listening to his words of testimony (v. 29). Peter used the term in reference to suffering 'as a Christian' (1Pt 4:16).

epistamai
Greek Pronunciation [eh PIH stah migh]

HCSB Translation know
Uses in Acts 9
Uses in the NT 14
Focus passage Acts 18:25

The Greek verb epistamai literally means to stand upon and is a compound word from the preposition epi, meaning upon, and the verb histemi, meaning to stand. The term means to know in a different sense than the more common words ginosko and oida, which emphasize intellectual knowledge and/or knowledge gained through experience. Both ginosko and oida are commonly used for knowing persons, including God, with varying degrees of intimacy. The word epistamai, on the other hand, is rarely used for knowing people and never for knowing God. The main idea behind epistamai is a thorough knowledge of facts, and often understanding the significance of such information, is implied.

The difference between ginosko and epistamai is best demonstrated in the only verse where both verbs occur. In Acts 19:13-17, would-be exorcists attempted to cast out an evil spirit but were rebuked, 'I know [ginosko] Jesus, and I recognize [epistamai] Paul—but who are you?' (v. 15).

Greek Pronunciation [boo LAY]

HCSB Translation plan
Uses in Acts 7
Uses in the NT 12
Focus passage Acts 20:27

The Greek noun boule can mean counsel, will, plan, or purpose. The related verb boulomai occurs 37 times in the NT (14 in Acts) and can mean to will, purpose, plan, or come to a decision. In Greek religion the term boule often referred to the will or plan of the gods.

In the Greek OT, boule normally refers to human plans or desires that may or may not occur, and is often advice given to royalty (2Sm 15:31,34; 16:20,23; 1Kg 12:8; 2Ch 22:5). But it can also refer to God's purpose that cannot be thwarted (Jb 12:13; Ps 33:11; Pr 19:21; Is 19:17; 46:10; Jr 50:45; see Pr 21:30) and that guides His people (Ps 73:24).

The NT usage of boule is very similar to that of the Greek OT. Humans may or may not see their plans realized (Lk 7:30; 23:51; Ac 5:38; 27:12,42), but God's plans and purposes will not fail (Ac 2:23; 4:28; 13:36; Eph 1:11; Heb 6:17).

apologeomai
Greek Pronunciation [ah pah lah GEH ah migh]

HCSB Translation offer defense
Uses in Acts 6
Uses in the NT 10
Focus passage Acts 24:10

The Greek verb apologeomai means to speak in defense, to defend oneself. The English word apology comes directly from the related Greek noun apologia. The term apologia in Greek means defense, not apology. Plato's famous work, The Apology, is a defense of Socrates, not an attempt to apologize for him.

In the NT, apologia can refer to a defense given through conduct (2Co 7:11) or by speech (Php 1:7,16; 1Pt 3:15)—often in a legal setting (Ac 22:1; 25:16; 2Tm 4:16)—or in written form (1Co 9:3). Similarly, the verb apologeomai normally refers to a verbal defense (Ac 19:33)—often also in a legal setting (Lk 12:11; 21:14; Ac 24:10; 25:8; 26:1-2,24)—though Paul used it once of the conscience defending itself (Rm 2:15) and once of a written defense (2Co 12:19).

hekatontarches
Greek Pronunciation [heh kah tahn TAHR kayss]

HCSB Translation centurion
Uses in Acts 13
Uses in the NT 20
Focus passage Acts 27:1,6,11,31,43

The Greek noun hekatontarches literally means leader of a hundred. This is also the meaning of the equivalent Latin term centurio, which is the basis of the English word centurion. Centurions are mentioned on two occasions in Jesus' life. When a centurion requested that Jesus heal his servant without going to his home, Jesus marveled at this Gentile's faith and healed the servant from a distance (Mt 8:5-13 = Lk 7:1-10). At the crucifixion, a centurion proclaimed Jesus to be God's Son (Mt 27:54 = Mk 15:39) and a righteous person (Lk 23:47), and later informed Pilate of His death (Mk 15:44-45). Acts records the conversion of a God-fearing centurion who became one of the first Gentile converts (Ac 10:1-8,17-48).

Centurions were non-commissioned officers in the Roman army. A Roman legion had 6,000 soldiers, which were divided into ten cohorts of 600 soldiers. Each cohort was also divided into six centuries (100 soldiers), each with its own centurion .

OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES IN GLOBAL MISSIONS M. DAVID SILLS

The twenty-first century is a time of unprecedented challenge and opportunity for global missions. The terrorism of 9/11 was the first of many cataclysmic global changes that are reshaping our world. The surge of terrorism against Western powers, the growth of Islam, and the burgeoning global prominence of the Majority World (formerly called Third World) represent significant challenges facing Christian missions. The unprecedented worldwide interconnectivity due to globalization both facilitates and challenges missions work. Urbanization has resulted in more than half of the world's people living in major cities. In many global south countries, up to one-half of the population lives in the capital cities. The principle of acceleration, which means that something is not just true but is increasingly true, exacerbates the challenges. In order to meet new challenges, missionaries and their agencies must constantly monitor global trends in order to reshape strategies and methodologies.

Beginning in the mid-1970s, missionaries began to strategize to reach people groups rather than just nations. This led to a focus on unreached people groups and more recently to strategies for engaging groups where no one was seeking to plant churches. Missiologists call this the “Last Frontier”—unreached and unengaged people groups. Reaching areas where there is no Christian witness and no government permission to do so is one of the daunting challenges facing missions today. On average three countries per year legally close their doors to traditional missions.

As the world’s economic center shifts toward the global south, there is also rapid growth in the Southern Church. The churches of Latin America, Africa, and Asia have produced record numbers of Christians and missionaries that dwarf their older sister Church of the North. Evangelical missionaries celebrate this growth cautiously because, sadly, aberrant doctrine and practice abound in many southern churches. Since the first missionaries to these areas often emphasized simply reaching groups with the gospel, they left once they had evangelized a number of people. This means they regularly left behind undiscipled believers, ill-equipped leadership, and churches that adopted syncretistic beliefs and practices.

Missionaries of the twenty-first century must find ways to disciple people who learn in differing ways. This will require returning to some areas to train biblical leadership in the churches. One reason why many areas of the world are unreached, as well as why many reached peoples were left untaught, is that the people are oral learners who do not read. Oftentimes, their languages have not even been reduced to writing. Although missionaries are developing methods to teach this 70-80 percent of the world, less than 10 percent of all evangelism and discipleship resources are currently designed for oral learners.

The growth of the Southern Church has also brought about an emerging mission movement. The Southern Church has heard the missionary call, and its members are following the Lord’s guidance to fulfill it all over the world. The biblical principal that those who know should teach those who do not suggests that missionary training programs ought to be developed for this emerging missions force. Discipled and trained believers among the cultures of the world are the key to healthy, reproducing New Testament churches.

Modern missions history has witnessed pendulum swings ranging from the rejection of cultures to an uncritical acceptance of them. A healthy balance is one that is faithful to God’s Word and sensitive to cultures so that they can embrace the pure gospel in culturally appropriate ways. Missionaries in Muslim and Hindu areas are facing challenges to this balance in the extreme forms of insider movements and uncritical contextualization models that fail to stress the exclusivity of Christ.

Answers to these challenges are not easy, and no single-solution strategy will fit every culture in all ages. We can be certain God will make a way, but we must be diligent and faithful no matter the challenges. Missionaries must stay in the Word, on their faces in prayer, and as close to Jesus as they can get in order to tread the narrow way through an ever-changing world, bringing the Good News to all nations.

God's Good News for Rome

1 Paul, a •slave of Christ Jesus, called as an apostle [A,] [a] and singled out [b] for God's good news [c] — [2] which He promised long ago [d] through His prophets [e] in the Holy Scriptures — [3] concerning His Son, Jesus Christ our Lord, who was a descendant of David [B,] [f] according to the flesh [g] [4] and who has been declared to be the powerful [h] Son of God [i] by the resurrection from the dead according to the Spirit of holiness. [C] [5] We have received grace and apostleship [j] through Him to bring about [D] the obedience [k] of faith [E] among all the nations, [F,] [l] on behalf of His name, [6] including yourselves who also belong to Jesus Christ by calling: [m]

[7] To all who are in Rome, loved by God, [n] called [o] as •saints . [p]
Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Paul's Desire to Visit Rome

[8] First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for all of you because the news of your faith [G] is being reported in all the world. [q] [9] For God, whom I serve with my spirit [r] in telling the good news about His Son, is my witness [s] that I constantly mention you, [t] [10] always asking in my prayers that if it is somehow in God's will, I may now at last succeed in coming to you. [u] [11] For I want very much to see you, [v] so I may impart to you some spiritual gift to strengthen you, [12] that is, to be mutually encouraged by each other's faith, both yours and mine.

[13] Now I want you to know, [H,] [w] brothers, that I often planned to come to you
(but was prevented until now [x]) in order that I might have a fruitful ministry [I] among you, [y] just as among the rest of the Gentiles. [14] I am obligated both to Greeks and barbarians, [J,] [z] both to the wise and the foolish. [15] So I am eager to preach the good news [a] to you also who are in Rome.

The Righteous Will Live by Faith [16] For I am not ashamed of the gospel, [b,] [c] because it is God's power for salvation [d] to everyone who believes, first to the Jew, [e] and also to the Greek. [f] [17] For in it God's righteousness is revealed from faith to faith, [K,] [g] just as it is written: The righteous will live by faith. [L,] [h] , [i]

The Guilt of the Gentile World

[18] For God's wrath [j] is revealed from heaven against all godlessness and unrighteousness of people who by their unrighteousness suppress the truth, [k] [19] since what can be known [M] about God is evident among them, [l] because God has shown it to them. [20] For His invisible attributes, that is, His eternal power and divine nature, have been clearly seen since the creation of the world, [m]

being understood through what He has made. [n] As a result, people are without excuse. 21 For though they knew God, they did not glorify Him as God or show gratitude. Instead, their thinking became nonsense, and their senseless minds were darkened. [o] 22 Claiming to be wise, they became fools [p] 23 and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images resembling mortal man, birds, four-footed animals, and reptiles. [q]

24 Therefore God delivered them over in the cravings of their hearts [r] to sexual impurity, so that their bodies were degraded among themselves. 25 They exchanged the truth of God for a lie, [s] and worshiped and served something created instead of the Creator, who is praised forever. [t] •Amen .

From Idolatry to Depravity

26 This is why God delivered them over to degrading passions. [u] For even their females exchanged natural sexual relations [N] for unnatural ones. 27 The males in the same way also left natural relations [O] with females and were inflamed in their lust for one another. Males committed shameless acts with males [v] and received in their own persons [P] the appropriate penalty of their error.

28 And because they did not think it worthwhile to acknowledge God, God delivered them over to a worthless mind to do what is morally wrong. 29 They are filled with all unrighteousness, [w] evil, greed, and wickedness. They are full of envy, murder, quarrels, deceit, and malice. They are gossips, [x] 30 slanderers, God-haters, arrogant, proud, boastful, [y] inventors of evil, disobedient to parents, [z] 31 undiscerning, untrustworthy, unloving, [a, b] and unmerciful. 32 Although they know full well God's just sentence — that those who practice such things deserve to die [Q, c] — they not only do them, but even applaud [R, d] others who practice them.

God’s Righteous Judgment

2 Therefore, any one of you [A, a] who judges is without excuse. [b] For when you judge another, [c] you condemn yourself, since you, the judge, do the same things. [2] We know that God's judgment on those who do such things is based on the truth. [3] Do you really think — anyone of you who judges those who do such things yet do the same — that you will escape God's judgment? [4] Or do you despise the riches of His kindness, [d] restraint, [e] and patience, [f] not recognizing [B] that God's kindness [g] is intended to lead you to repentance? [5] But because of your hardness and unrepentant heart you are storing up wrath [h] for yourself in the day of wrath, [i] when God's righteous judgment is revealed. [6] He will repay each one according to his works*:* [j, k] [7] eternal life [l] to those who by persistence in doing good [m] seek glory, honor, [n] and immortality; [o] [8] but wrath and indignation to those who are self-seeking [p] and disobey the truth [q] but are obeying unrighteousness; [9] affliction and distress [r] for every human being who does evil, first to the Jew, and also to the Greek; [s] [10] but glory, honor, and peace for everyone who does what is good, first to the Jew, and also to the Greek. [11] There is no favoritism with God. [t]

[12] All those who sinned without the law [u] will also perish without the law, and all those who sinned under the law will be judged by the law. [13] For the hearers of the law [v] are not righteous before God, but the doers of the law will be declared righteous. [C] [14] So, when Gentiles, who do not have the law, instinctively [w] do what the law demands, they are a law to themselves even though they do not have the law. [15] They show that the work of the law [x] is written on their hearts. [y] Their consciences confirm this. Their competing thoughts will either accuse or excuse them [z] [16] on the day when God judges [a] what people have kept secret, according to my gospel through Christ Jesus. [b]

Jewish Violation of the Law [17] Now if [c] you call yourself a Jew, and rest in the law, [d] boast in God, [18] know His will, and approve the things that are superior, [e] being instructed from the law, [19] and if you are convinced that you are a guide for the blind, a light to those in darkness, [20] an instructor of the ignorant, a teacher of the immature, having the full expression [D] of knowledge and truth [f] in the law — [21] you then, who teach another, [g] don't you teach yourself? You who preach, "You must not steal" — do you steal? [22] You who say, "You must not commit adultery" — do you commit adultery? You who detest idols, do you rob their temples? [h] [23] You who boast in the law, [i] do you dishonor God by breaking the law? [24] For, as it is written: The name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you. [j, k]

Circumcision of the Heart [25] For circumcision benefits you if you observe the law, but if you are a lawbreaker, your circumcision has become uncircumcision. [l] [26] Therefore if an uncircumcised [m] man keeps the law's requirements, [n] will his uncircumcision not be counted as circumcision? [27] A man who is physically uncircumcised, but who fulfills the law, will judge you [o] who are a lawbreaker in spite of having the letter of the law and circumcision. [28] For a person is not a Jew who is one outwardly, [p] and true circumcision is not something visible in the flesh. [29] On the contrary, a person is a Jew who is one inwardly, [q] and circumcision is of the heart — by the Spirit, not the letter. [E, r] That man's praise [F] is not from men but from God. [s]

Paul Answers an Objection

3 So what advantage does the Jew have? Or what is the benefit of circumcision? 2 Considerable in every way. First, they were entrusted [a] with the spoken words of God. [b] 3 What then? If some did not believe, [c] will their unbelief cancel God's faithfulness? 4 Absolutely not! [d] God must be true, even if everyone is a liar, [e] as it is written:

That You may be justified in Your words and triumph when You judge. [f, g]

5 But if our unrighteousness highlights [A] God's righteousness, [h] what are we to say? [i] I use a human argument: [B, j] Is God unrighteous to inflict wrath?
6 Absolutely not! Otherwise, how will God judge the world? [k] 7 But if by my lie God's truth is amplified to His glory, why am I also still judged as a sinner? [l] 8 And why not say, just as some people slanderously claim we say, "Let us do what is evil so that good may come"? [m] Their condemnation is deserved!

The Whole World Guilty before God

9 What then? Are we any better? [n] Not at all! For we have previously charged that both Jews [o] and Gentiles [C, p] are all under sin, [q, r] 10 as it is written: [s]

There is no one righteous, not even one.
11 There is no one who understands;
there is no one who seeks God.
12 All have turned away;
all alike have become useless.
There is no one who does what is good,
not even one. [t, u] 13 Their throat is an open grave;
they deceive with their tongues. [v, w]
Vipers' venom is under their lips. [x, y]
14 Their mouth is full of cursing and bitterness. [z, a] 15 Their feet are swift to shed blood;
16 ruin and wretchedness are in their paths,
17 and the path of peace they have not known. [b, c]
18 There is no fear of God before their eyes. [d, e]

19 Now we know that whatever the law says [f] speaks to those who are subject to the law, [D, g] so that every mouth may be shut and the whole world may become subject to God's judgment. [E, h] 20 For no one will be •justified [F] in His sight by the works of the law, [i] because the knowledge of sin comes through the law. [j]

God's Righteousness through Faith

21 But now, apart from the law, God's righteousness has been revealed [k] — attested by the Law and the Prophets [G, l] 22 — that is, God's righteousness through faith [m] in Jesus Christ, [H, n] to all who believe, [o] since there is no distinction. [p] 23 For all have sinned [q] and fall short of the [I] glory of God. 24 They are justified freely by His grace [r] through the •redemption that is in Christ Jesus. [s] 25 God presented Him as a •propitiation [J, t] through faith in His blood, [u] to demonstrate His righteousness, because in His restraint God [v] passed over the sins previously committed. [w] 26 God presented Him to demonstrate His righteousness at the present time, so that He would be righteous and declare righteous [K] the one who has faith in Jesus.

Boasting Excluded

27 Where then is boasting? [x] It is excluded. By what kind of law? [L, y] By one of works? No, on the contrary, by a law [M] of faith. 28 For we conclude that a man is justified by faith apart from the works of the law. [z] 29 Or is God for Jews only? [a] Is He not also for Gentiles? Yes, for Gentiles too, 30 since there is one God [b] who will justify the circumcised by faith [c] and the uncircumcised through faith. 31 Do we then cancel the law through faith? Absolutely not! [d] On the contrary, we uphold the law. [e]

Abraham Justified by Faith

4 What then can we say that Abraham, our physical ancestor, [A,][a] has found?
2 If Abraham was •justified [B][b] by works, he has something to brag about — but not before God. [c] 3 For what does the Scripture say?

Abraham believed God,
and it was credited to him for righteousness. [d, e]

4 Now to the one who works, [f] pay is not considered as a gift, but as something owed. 5 But to the one who does not work, but believes on Him who declares the ungodly to be righteous, [C,][g] his faith is credited for righteousness.

David Celebrating the Same Truth

6 Likewise, David also speaks of the blessing of the man God credits righteousness to apart from works:

7 How joyful are those whose lawless acts are forgiven and whose sins are covered!
8 How joyful is the man
the Lord will never charge with sin! [h, i]

Abraham Justified before Circumcision 9 Is this blessing only for the circumcised, [j] then? Or is it also for the uncircumcised? For we say, Faith was credited to Abraham for righteousness. [k, l] 10 In what way then was it credited — while he was circumcised, or uncircumcised? Not while he was circumcised, but uncircumcised. 11 And he received the sign of circumcision [m] as a seal of the righteousness that he had by faith [D, n] while still uncircumcised. This was to make him the father [o] of all who believe [p] but are not circumcised, so that righteousness may be credited to them also. 12 And he became the father of the circumcised, who are not only circumcised but who also follow in the footsteps of the faith our father Abraham had while he was still uncircumcised.

The Promise Granted through Faith

13 For the promise to Abraham [q] or to his descendants that he would inherit the world [r] was not through the law, but through the righteousness that comes by faith. [E] 14 If those who are of the law are heirs, [s] faith is made empty and the promise is canceled. 15 For the law produces wrath. [t] And where there is no law, [u] there is no transgression.

16 This is why the promise is by faith, so that it may be according to grace, [v] to guarantee it to all the descendants [w] — not only to those who are of the law [F] but also to those who are of Abraham's faith. He is the father of us all 17 in God's sight. As it is written: I have made you the father of many nations. [x, y]
He believed in God, who gives life to the dead [z] and calls [a] things into existence that do not exist. [b] 18 He believed, hoping against hope, so that he became the father of many nations [c, d] according to what had been spoken: So will your descendants be. [e, f] 19 He considered [g] his own body to be already dead [h] (since he was about 100 years old) [i] and also considered the deadness of Sarah's womb, [j] without weakening in the faith. 20 He did not waver in unbelief at God's promise but was strengthened in his faith and gave glory to God, [k] 21 because he was fully convinced [l] that what He had promised He was also able to perform. [m] 22 Therefore, it was credited to him for righteousness. [n, o] 23 Now it was credited to him was not written for Abraham alone, [p] 24 but also for us. It will be credited to us who believe in Him [q] who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead. [r] 25 He was delivered up for [G] our trespasses [s] and raised for [H] our justification. [I, t]

Faith Triumphs

5 Therefore, since we have been declared righteous by faith, [a] we have peace [b] with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. [c] 2 We have also obtained access through Him [d] by faith [e] into this grace in which we stand, [f] and we rejoice in the hope of the glory of God. 3 And not only that, [g] but we also rejoice in our afflictions, [h] because we know that affliction produces endurance, [i] 4 endurance produces proven character, [j] and proven character produces hope. 5 This hope will not disappoint us, [k] because God's love has been poured out in our hearts [l] through the Holy Spirit who was given to us.

Those Declared Righteous Are Reconciled 6 For while we were still helpless, at the appointed moment, [m] Christ died for the ungodly. 7 For rarely will someone die for a just person — though for a good person perhaps someone might even dare to die. 8 But God proves [n] His own love for us [o] in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us! 9 Much more then, since we have now been declared righteous by His blood, [p] we will be saved through Him from wrath. [q] 10 For if, while we were enemies, [r] we were reconciled to God through the death of His Son, then how much more, having been reconciled, will we be saved by His life! [s] 11 And not only that, but we also rejoice in God through our Lord Jesus Christ. We have now received this reconciliation through Him. [t]

Death through Adam and Life through Christ 12 Therefore, just as sin entered the world through one man, [u] and death through sin, [v] in this way death spread to all men, [w] because all sinned. [A] 13 In fact, sin was in the world before the law, but sin is not charged to a person's account when there is no law. [x] 14 Nevertheless, death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over those who did not sin in the likeness of Adam's transgression. [y] He is a prototype [B] of the Coming One. [z]

15 But the gift is not like the trespass. For if by the one man's trespass the many died, how much more have the grace of God and the gift overflowed to the many by the grace of the one man, [a] Jesus Christ. 16 And the gift is not like the one man's sin, because from one sin came the judgment, [b] resulting in condemnation, but from many trespasses came the gift, resulting in •justification . [C] 17 Since by the one man's trespass, death reigned through that one man, how much more will those who receive the overflow of grace and the gift of righteousness reign in life [c] through the one man, Jesus Christ.

18 So then, as through one trespass there is condemnation for everyone, so also through one righteous act there is life-giving justification [D, d] for everyone.

19 For just as through one man’s disobedience the many were made sinners, [e] so also through the one man’s obedience [f] the many will be made righteous. 20 The law came along to multiply the trespass. [g] But where sin multiplied, grace multiplied even more [h] 21 so that, just as sin reigned in death, [i] so also grace will reign [j] through righteousness, resulting in eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

The New Life in Christ

6 What should we say then? [a] Should we continue in sin so that grace may multiply? [b] 2 Absolutely not! [c] How can we who died to sin [d] still live in it?
3 Or are you unaware that all of us who were baptized [e] into Christ Jesus were baptized into His death? [f] 4 Therefore we were buried with Him by baptism into death, [g] in order that, just as Christ was raised from the dead [h] by the glory of the Father, [i] so we too may •walk in a new way [A] of life. [j] 5 For if we have been joined with Him in the likeness of His death, [k] we will certainly also be [l] in the likeness of His resurrection. 6 For we know that our old self [B, m] was crucified with Him [n] in order that sin's dominion over the body [C] may be abolished, [o] so that we may no longer be enslaved to sin, 7 since a person who has died [p] is freed [D] from sin's claims. [E] 8 Now if we died with Christ, [q] we believe that we will also live with Him, 9 because we know that Christ, having been raised from the dead, [r] will not die again. Death no longer rules over Him. [s] 10 For in light of the fact that He died, He died to sin once for all; but in light of the fact that He lives, He lives to God. 11 So, you too consider yourselves dead to sin [t] but alive to God in Christ Jesus. [u]

12 Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body, so that you obey [v] its desires. 13 And do not offer any parts [F] of it to sin [w] as weapons for unrighteousness. But as those who are alive from the dead, offer yourselves to God, [x] and all the parts [G] of yourselves to God as weapons for righteousness. 14
For sin will not rule over you, because you are not under law [y] but under grace.
[z]

*From Slaves of Sin to Slaves of God 15 What then? Should we sin because we are not under law but under grace? [a] Absolutely not! [b] 16 Don't you know that if you offer yourselves to someone [H] as obedient •slaves , [c] you are slaves of that one you obey [d] — either of sin leading to death [e] or of obedience leading to righteousness? 17 But thank God that, although you used to be slaves of sin, [f] you obeyed from the heart that pattern of teaching you were transferred [I] to, [g] 18 and having been liberated from sin, [h] you became enslaved to righteousness.
19 I am using a human analogy [J, i] because of the weakness of your flesh. [K] For just as you offered the parts [L] of yourselves as slaves to moral impurity, and to greater and greater lawlessness, so now offer them as slaves to righteousness, which results in •sanctification . 20 For when you were slaves of sin, you were free from allegiance to righteousness. [M, j] 21 So what fruit was produced [N] then from the things you are now ashamed of? [k] For the end of those things is death.*

[l] 22 But now, since you have been liberated from sin and have become enslaved to God, [m] you have your fruit, which results in sanctification [O, n] — and the end is eternal life! [o] 23 For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord. [p]

An Illustration from Marriage

7 Since I am speaking to those who understand law, brothers, [a] are you unaware that the law has authority over someone as long as he lives? [2] For example, a married woman is legally bound to her husband while he lives. [b] But if her husband dies, she is released from the law regarding the husband. [3] So then, if she gives herself to another man while her husband is living, she will be called an adulteress. But if her husband dies, she is free from that law. Then, if she gives herself to another man, she is not an adulteress.

[4] Therefore, my brothers, you also were put to death [c] in relation to the law [d] through the crucified body of the •Messiah , [e] so that you may belong to another — to Him who was raised from the dead — that we may bear fruit for God. [5] For when we were in the flesh, [f, g] the sinful passions operated through the law in every part of us [A, h] and bore fruit for death. [6] But now we have been released from the law, since we have died to what held us, so that we may serve in the new way [B] of the Spirit [i] and not in the old letter of the law.

Sin's Use of the Law

[7] What should we say then? [j] Is the law sin? Absolutely not! [k] On the contrary, I would not have known sin if it were not for the law. [l] For example, I would not have known what it is to covet if the law had not said, Do not covet. [m, n] [8] And sin, seizing an opportunity through the commandment, [o] produced in me coveting of every kind. For apart from the law sin is dead. [p] [9] Once I was alive apart from the law, but when the commandment came, sin sprang to life [10] and I died. The commandment that was meant for life [q] resulted in death for me. [11] For sin, seizing an opportunity through the commandment, deceived me, [r] and through it killed me. [12] So then, the law is holy, [s] and the commandment is holy and just and good.

The Problem of Sin in Us [13] Therefore, did what is good cause my death? [C] Absolutely not! [t] On the contrary, sin, in order to be recognized as sin, was producing death in me through what is good, so that through the commandment, sin might become sinful beyond measure. [14] For we know that the law is spiritual, [u] but I am made out of flesh, [v] sold [w] into sin's power. [x] [15] For I do not understand what I am doing, [y] because I do not practice what I want to do, [z] but I do what I hate. [16] And if I do what I do not want to do, I agree with the law that it is good. [17] So now I am no longer the one doing it, but it is sin living in me. [18] For I know that nothing good lives in me, that is, in my flesh. [a] For the desire to do what is good is with me, but there is no ability to do it. [19] For I do not do the good that I want to do, but I practice the evil that I do not want to do.

20 Now if I do what I do not want, I am no longer the one doing it, but it is the sin that lives in me. 21 So I discover this principle: D, b When I want to do what is good, evil is with me. 22 For in my inner self E I joyfully agree with God's law. c 23 But I see a different law in the parts of my body, F, d waging war against the law of my mind and taking me prisoner to the law of sin in the parts of my body. G 24 What a wretched man I am! Who will rescue me from this dying body? e 25 I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord! H, f So then, with my mind I myself am a slave to the law of God, but with my flesh, to the law of sin.

The Life-Giving Spirit

8 Therefore, no condemnation [a] now exists for those in [b] Christ Jesus, [c, d] 2 because the Spirit's law of life [e] in Christ Jesus has set you [f] free from the law of sin and of death. [g] 3 What the law could not do [h] since it was limited [A] by the flesh, [i] God did. He condemned sin in the flesh by sending His own Son in flesh like ours [j] under sin's domain, [B] and as a sin offering, [k] 4 in order that the law's requirement would be accomplished [l] in us who do not •walk according to the flesh [m] but according to the Spirit. 5 For those who live [C] according to the flesh think about the things of the flesh, [n] but those who live [D] according to the Spirit, about the things of the Spirit. 6 For the mind-set of the flesh [o] is death, [p] but the mind-set of the Spirit is life and peace. 7 For the mind-set of the flesh is hostile [q] to God because it does not submit itself to God's law, for it is unable to do so. 8 Those who are in the flesh [r] cannot please God. 9 You, however, are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, since [E] the Spirit of God lives in you. [s] But if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, [t] he does not belong to Him. 10 Now if Christ is in you, [u] the body is dead [F] because of sin, but the Spirit [G] is life because of righteousness. 11 And if the Spirit of Him who raised Jesus from the dead [v] lives in you, then He who raised Christ from the dead will also bring your mortal bodies to life through [w] His Spirit who lives in you.

The Holy Spirit's Ministries

12 So then, brothers, we are not obligated to the flesh to live according to the flesh, 13 for if you live according to the flesh, you are going to die. But if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, [x] you will live. 14 All those led by God's Spirit [y] are God's sons. [z] 15 For you did not receive a spirit of slavery to fall back into fear, [a] but you received the Spirit of adoption, [b] by whom we cry out, "• Abba , Father! " [c] 16 The Spirit Himself testifies together with our spirit [d] that we are God's children, 17 and if children, also heirs [e] — heirs of God and co-heirs with Christ — seeing that [H] we suffer with Him [f] so that we may also be glorified with Him.

From Groans to Glory

18 For I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing [g] with the glory [h] that is going to be revealed to us. 19 For the creation eagerly waits with anticipation [i] for God's sons [j] to be revealed. 20 For the creation was subjected [k] to futility [l] — not willingly, but because of Him who subjected it [m] — in the hope 21 that the creation itself [n] will also be set free from the bondage of corruption into the glorious freedom of God's children. 22
For we know that the whole creation has been groaning together with labor pains [o] until now. 23 And not only that, [p] but we ourselves who have the Spirit as the •firstfruits [q] — we also groan within ourselves, [r] eagerly waiting for adoption, [s] the •redemption of our bodies. [t] 24 Now in this hope [u] we were saved, yet hope [v] that is seen is not hope, because who hopes for what he sees?
25 But if we hope for what we do not see, [w] we eagerly wait for it with patience.
26 In the same way the Spirit also joins to help in our weakness, because we do not know what to pray for as we should, [x] but the Spirit Himself intercedes for us [y, z] with unspoken groanings. 27 And He who searches the hearts [a] knows the Spirit's mind-set, because He intercedes for the •saints according to the will of God.
28 We know that all things work together [b] for the good [c] of those who love
God: those who are called according to His purpose. [d] 29 For those He foreknew
He also predestined [e] to be conformed to the image of His Son, [f] so that He would be the firstborn among many brothers. [g] 30 And those He predestined, He also called; and those He called, He also •justified ; [h] and those He justified, He also glorified. [i]

The Believer's Triumph

31 What then are we to say about these things? [j]
If God is for us, who is against us? [k]
32 He did not even spare His own Son [l] but offered Him up for us all; [m]
how will He not also with Him grant us everything?
33 Who can bring an accusation against God's elect? [n]
God is the One who justifies. [o]
34 Who is the one who condemns? [p]
Christ Jesus is the One who died, [q]

but even more, has been raised; [r]
He also is at the right hand of God [s] and intercedes for us. [t]
35 Who can separate us from the love of Christ?
Can affliction [u] or anguish or persecution [v]
or famine or nakedness or danger or sword?
36 As it is written:
Because of You
we are being put to death all day long; [w]
we are counted as sheep to be slaughtered. [x, y] 37 No, in all these things we are more than victorious [z] through Him who loved us. [a] 38 For I am persuaded that not even death or life, [b] angels or rulers, [c]
things present or things to come, [d] hostile powers, 39 height or depth, or any other created thing will have the power to separate us from the love of God [e] that is in Christ Jesus our Lord! [f]

Israel's Rejection of Christ

9 I speak the truth in Christ [a] — I am not lying; my conscience is testifying to me with the Holy Spirit [A] — [2] that I have intense sorrow and continual anguish in my heart. [3] For I could almost wish [b] to be cursed [c] and cut off [B] from the •Messiah for the benefit of my brothers, my own flesh and blood. [4]
They are Israelites, [d] and to them belong the adoption, [e] the glory, [f] the covenants, [g] the giving of the law, [h] the temple service, [i] and the promises. [j] [5] The ancestors are theirs, [k] and from them, by physical descent, [C] came the Messiah, [l] who is God [m] over all, [n] praised forever. [D, o] •Amen .

God's Gracious Election of Israel

[6] But it is not as though the word of God has failed. [p] For not all who are descended from Israel are Israel. [q] [7] Neither are they all children because they are Abraham's descendants. [E, r] On the contrary, your •offspring will be traced [F] through Isaac. [s, t] [8] That is, it is not the children by physical descent [G] who are God's children, [u] but the children of the promise [v] are considered to be the offspring. [9] For this is the statement of the promise: At this time I will come, and Sarah will have a son. [w, x] [10] And not only that, [y] but also Rebekah received a promise when she became pregnant [H, z] by one man, our ancestor Isaac. [11] For though her sons had not been born yet or done anything good or bad, so that God's purpose according to election might stand — [a] [12] not from works but from the One who calls — she was told: The older will serve the younger. [b, c] [13] As it is written: I have loved Jacob, but I have hated Esau. [d, e]

God's Selection Is Just

[14] What should we say then? [f] Is there injustice with God? [g] Absolutely not!
[h] [15] For He tells Moses:

I will show mercy
to whom I will show mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion. [i, j]

[16] So then it does not depend on human will or effort [I, k] but on God who shows mercy. [l] [17] For the Scripture tells Pharaoh:

I raised you up for this reason so that I may display My power in you and that My name may be proclaimed in all the earth. [m, n]

18 So then, He shows mercy to those He wants to, and He hardens those He wants to harden. [o]

19 You will say to me, [p] therefore, “Why then does He still find fault? [q] For who can resist His will? ” [r] 20 But who are you, a mere man, to talk back to God? [s] Will what is formed say to the one who formed it, “Why did you make me like this? ” [t] 21 Or has the potter no right over the clay, [u] to make from the same lump one piece of pottery for honor and another for dishonor? 22 And what if God, desiring to display His wrath and to make His power known, endured with much patience [v] objects of wrath ready for destruction? [w] 23 And what if He did this to make known the riches of His glory [x] on objects of mercy [y] that He prepared beforehand for glory [z] — 24 on us, the ones He also called, [a] not only from the Jews but also from the Gentiles? [b] 25 As He also says in Hosea:

I will call Not My People, My People, and she who is Unloved, Beloved. [c, d] 26 And it will be in the place where they were told,
you are not My people, there they will be called sons of the living God. [e, f]

27 But Isaiah cries out concerning Israel:

Though the number of Israel’s sons is like the sand of the sea, [g] only the remnant will be saved; [h] 28 for the Lord will execute His sentence completely and decisively on the earth. [J, i, j]

29 And just as Isaiah predicted:
If the Lord of •Hosts [K] had not left us offspring, [k]
we would have become like Sodom, and we would have been made like Gomorrah. [l, m]

Israel’s Present State

30 What should we say then? [n] Gentiles, who did not pursue righteousness, have obtained righteousness — namely the righteousness that comes from faith. [o] 31 But Israel, pursuing the law for righteousness, [p] has not achieved the righteousness of the law. [q, r] 32 Why is that? Because they did not pursue it by faith, but as if it were by works. [s] They stumbled over the stumbling stone. [t]
33 As it is written:

Look! I am putting a stone in •Zion to stumble over and a rock to trip over, yet the one who believes on Him [u] will not be put to shame. [v, w]

Righteousness by Faith Alone

10 Brothers, my heart's desire and prayer to God concerning them [a] is for their salvation! 2 I can testify about them that they have zeal for God, [b] but not according to knowledge. 3 Because they disregarded the righteousness from God [c] and attempted to establish their own righteousness, they have not submitted themselves to God's righteousness. 4 For Christ is the end [A] of the law for righteousness [d] to everyone who believes. [e] 5 For Moses writes about the righteousness that is from the law: The one who does these things will live by them. [f, g] 6 But the righteousness that comes from faith [h] speaks like this:
Do not say in your heart, "Who will go up to heaven? " [i, j] that is, to bring Christ down 7 or, "Who will go down into the •abyss ? " [k, l] that is, to bring Christ up from the dead. [m] 8 On the contrary, what does it say? The message is near you, in your mouth and in your heart. [n, o] This is the message of faith that we proclaim: 9 If you confess with your mouth, "Jesus is Lord," [p] and believe in your heart [q] that God raised Him from the dead, [r] you will be saved.
10 One believes with the heart, resulting in righteousness, and one confesses with the mouth, resulting in salvation. 11 Now the Scripture says, Everyone who believes on Him will not be put to shame, [s, t] 12 for there is no distinction between Jew and Greek, [u] since the same Lord [v] of all [w] is rich to all who call on Him. 13 For everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved. [x, y]

Israel's Rejection of the Message

14 But how can they call on Him they have not believed in? And how can they believe without hearing about Him? [z] And how can they hear without a preacher? [a] 15 And how can they preach unless they are sent? As it is written:
How beautiful [B] are the feet of those [b] who announce the gospel of good things! [c, d] 16 But all did not obey the gospel. [e] For Isaiah says, Lord, who has believed our message? [f, g] 17 So faith comes from what is heard, [h] and what is heard comes through the message about Christ. [i, j] 18 But I ask, "Did they not hear? " Yes, they did:

Their voice has gone out to all the earth, and their words to the ends of the inhabited world. [k, l]

19 But I ask, "Did Israel not understand? " First, Moses said:

I will make you jealous of those who are not a nation; [m]
I will make you angry by a nation that lacks understanding. [n, o]

20 And Isaiah says boldly:
I was found by those who were not looking for Me;
I revealed Myself to those who were not asking for Me. [p, q]
21 But to Israel he says: All day long I have spread out My hands to a disobedient and defiant people. [r, s]

Israel's Rejection Not Total

11 I ask, then, has God rejected His people? [a] Absolutely not! [b] For I too am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, [c] from the tribe of Benjamin. 2 God has not rejected His people whom He foreknew. [d] Or don't you know [e] what the Scripture says in the passage about Elijah — how he pleads with God against Israel?

3 Lord, they have killed Your prophets and torn down Your altars.
I am the only one left,
and they are trying to take my life! [f, g]

4 But what was God's reply to him? I have left 7,000 men for Myself who have not bowed down to •Baal . [h, i] 5 In the same way, then, there is also at the present time a remnant chosen by grace. [j] 6 Now if by grace, [k] then it is not by works; otherwise grace ceases to be grace. [l]

7 What then? Israel did not find what it was looking for, [m] but the elect did find it. The rest were hardened, [n] 8 as it is written:

God gave them a spirit of insensitivity, [A] eyes that cannot see and ears that cannot hear,
to this day. [o, p]

9 And David says:

Let their feasting [B] become a snare and a trap,
a pitfall and a retribution to them.
10 Let their eyes be darkened so they cannot see,
and their backs be bent continually. [q, r]

Israel's Rejection Not Final

11 I ask, then, have they stumbled in order to fall? Absolutely not! On the contrary, by their stumbling, [C] salvation has come to the Gentiles [s] to make Israel jealous. 12 Now if their stumbling [D] brings riches for the world, and their failure riches for the Gentiles, how much more will their full number bring! [t]

13 Now I am speaking to you Gentiles. In view of the fact that I am an apostle to the Gentiles, [u] I magnify my ministry, 14 if I can somehow make my own people [E, v] jealous and save some of them. [w] 15 For if their rejection brings reconciliation [x] to the world, what will their acceptance mean but life from the dead? [y] 16 Now if the •firstfruits offered up are holy, [z] so is the whole batch.

And if the root is holy, so are the branches.

17 Now if some of the branches were broken off, [a] and you, though a wild olive branch, were grafted in among them [b] and have come to share in the rich root [c] of the cultivated olive tree, 18 do not brag that you are better than those branches. But if you do brag — you do not sustain the root, but the root sustains you. [d] 19 Then you will say, [e] "Branches were broken off so that I might be grafted in." 20 True enough; they were broken off by unbelief, but you stand by faith. [f] Do not be arrogant, but be afraid. [g] 21 For if God did not spare the natural branches, He will not spare you either. 22 Therefore, consider God's kindness and severity: severity toward those who have fallen but God's kindness [h] toward you — if you remain in His kindness. [i] Otherwise you too will be cut off. [j] 23 And even they, if they do not remain in unbelief, [k] will be grafted in, because God has the power to graft them in again. 24 For if you were cut off from your native wild olive and against nature were grafted into a cultivated olive tree, how much more will these — the natural branches — be grafted into their own olive tree?

25 So that you will not be conceited, [l] brothers, I do not want you to be unaware [m] of this •mystery : [n] A partial hardening has come to Israel [o] until the full number of the Gentiles has come in. [p] 26 And in this way all [F] Israel will be saved, as it is written:

The Liberator will come from •Zion ;
He will turn away godlessness from Jacob.
27 And this will be My covenant with them [q, r]
when I take away their sins. [s, t]

28 Regarding the gospel, they are enemies for your advantage, [u] but regarding election, they are loved because of the patriarchs, [v] 29 since God's gracious gifts and calling [w] are irrevocable. [G, x] 30 As you once disobeyed God, but now have received mercy through their disobedience, 31 so they too have now disobeyed, resulting in mercy to you, so that they also now [y] may receive mercy. 32 For God has imprisoned all in disobedience, [z] so that He may have mercy on all.

A Hymn of Praise

33 Oh, the depth of the riches [a] both of the wisdom and the knowledge of God! [b] How unsearchable His judgments [c] and untraceable His ways!
34 For who has known the mind of the Lord? [d]
Or who has been His counselor?
35 Or who has ever first given to Him,
and has to be repaid? [e, f] 36 For from Him and through Him and to Him are all things. [g]
To Him be the glory forever. •Amen .

A Living Sacrifice

12 Therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God, I urge you [a] to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, [b] holy and pleasing to God; this is your spiritual worship. [c] 2 Do not be conformed [d] to this age, [e] but be transformed by the renewing of your mind, [f] so that you may discern what is the good, pleasing, and perfect will [g] of God.

Many Gifts but One Body

3 For by the grace [h] given to me, I tell everyone among you not to think of himself more highly than he should think. [i] Instead, think sensibly, as God has distributed a measure of faith [j] to each one. 4 Now as we have many parts in one body, [k] and all the parts do not have the same function, 5 in the same way we who are many [l] are one body in Christ [m] and individually members of one another. 6 According to the grace given to us, we have different gifts: [n]

If prophecy, [o]
use it according to the standard of one's [A] faith; 7 if service, [p] in service;
if teaching, [q] in teaching;
8 if exhorting, [r] in exhortation; giving, with generosity; [s] leading, [t] with diligence;
showing mercy, with cheerfulness. [u]

Christian Ethics

9 Love must be without hypocrisy. [v] Detest evil; [w] cling to what is good.
10 Show family affection to one another with brotherly love. [x] Outdo one another in showing honor. [y] 11 Do not lack diligence; be fervent in spirit; [z] serve the Lord. [a] 12 Rejoice in hope; [b] be patient in affliction; [c] be persistent in prayer. [d] 13 Share with the •saints in their needs; [e] pursue hospitality. [f] 14 Bless those who persecute you; [g] bless and do not curse. 15 Rejoice with those who rejoice; [h] weep with those who weep. 16 Be in agreement with one another. [i] Do not be proud; [j] instead, associate with the humble. Do not be wise in your own estimation. [k] 17 Do not repay anyone evil for evil. [l] Try to do what is honorable [m] in everyone's eyes. 18 If possible, on your part, live at peace with everyone. [n] 19 Friends, do not avenge yourselves; instead, leave room for His [B] wrath. For it is written: Vengeance belongs to Me; I will repay, [o, p] says the Lord. 20 But

If your enemy is hungry, feed him. [q]
If he is thirsty, give him something to drink.
For in so doing
you will be heaping fiery coals on his head. [r, s]

21 Do not be conquered by evil, but conquer evil with good.

A Christian's Duties to the State

13 Everyone must submit to the governing authorities, [a] for there is no authority except from God, [b] and those that exist are instituted by God. [2]
So then, the one who resists the authority is opposing God's command, and those who oppose it will bring judgment on themselves. [3] For rulers are not a terror [c] to good conduct, but to bad. Do you want to be unafraid of the authority? Do what is good, and you will have its approval. [4] For government is God's servant for your good. But if you do wrong, be afraid, because it does not carry the sword for no reason. For government is God's servant, an avenger [d] that brings wrath on the one who does wrong. [5] Therefore, you must submit, not only because of wrath, but also because of your conscience. [e] [6] And for this reason you pay taxes, since the authorities are God's public servants, continually attending to these tasks. [A] [7] Pay your obligations [f] to everyone:
taxes to those you owe taxes, [g] tolls to those you owe tolls, respect to those you owe respect, [h] and honor to those you owe honor.

Love, Our Primary Duty

[8] Do not owe anyone anything, [B] except to love one another, for the one who loves another has fulfilled the law. [i] [9] The commandments:

Do not commit adultery;
do not murder;
do not steal; [j]
do not covet; [k, l] and whatever other commandment — all are summed up by this: Love your neighbor as yourself. [m, n]

[10] Love does no wrong to a neighbor. Love, therefore, is the fulfillment of the law.

Put On Christ

11 Besides this, knowing the time, it is already the hour [o] for you [p] to wake up from sleep, [q] for now our salvation is nearer than when we first believed. [r] 12 The night is nearly over, and the daylight is near, [s] so let us discard the deeds of darkness [t] and put on the armor of light. [u] 13 Let us •walk with decency, [v] as in the daylight: not in carousing and drunkenness; [w] not in sexual impurity and promiscuity; not in quarreling and jealousy. 14 But put on the Lord Jesus Christ, [x] and make no plans to satisfy the fleshly desires. [y]

The Law of Liberty

14 Accept [a] anyone who is weak in faith, [A, b] but don't argue about doubtful issues. 2 One person believes he may eat anything, [c] but one who is weak eats only vegetables. 3 One who eats must not look down on one who does not eat, [d] and one who does not eat must not criticize one who does, [e] because God has accepted him. [f] 4 Who are you to criticize [g] another's household slave?
Before his own Lord he stands or falls. And he will stand. For the Lord is able [h] to make him stand.

5 One person considers one day to be above another day. [i] Someone else considers every day to be the same. Each one must be fully convinced in his own mind. [j] 6 Whoever observes the day, observes it for the honor of the Lord. [k] Whoever eats, eats for the Lord, since he gives thanks to God; [l] and whoever does not eat, it is for the Lord that he does not eat it, yet he thanks God. 7 For none of us lives to himself, and no one dies to himself. [m] 8 If we live, we live for the Lord; and if we die, we die for the Lord. Therefore, whether we live or die, we belong to the Lord. [n] 9 Christ died and came to life [o] for this: that He might rule over both the dead and the living. [p] 10 But you, why do you criticize your brother? Or you, why do you look down on your brother? For we will all stand before the tribunal of God. [q, r] 11 For it is written:

As I live, says the Lord,
every knee will bow to Me, [s] and every tongue will give praise to God. [t, u]

12 So then, each of us will give an account of himself to God. [v]

The Law of Love

13 Therefore, let us no longer criticize one another. [w] Instead decide never to put a stumbling block or pitfall in your brother's way. [x] 14 (I know and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus that nothing is •unclean in itself. [y] Still, to someone who considers a thing to be unclean, to that one it is unclean. [z]) 15 For if your brother is hurt by what you eat, you are no longer •walking according to love. [a]
Do not destroy that one Christ died for by what you eat. [b] 16 Therefore, do not let your good be slandered, [c] 17 for the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, [d] but righteousness, peace, and joy [e] in the Holy Spirit. 18 Whoever serves Christ [f] in this way is acceptable to God and approved by men. [g]

19 So then, we must pursue what promotes peace [h] and what builds up one another. [i] 20 Do not tear down God's work because of food. Everything is •clean
, but it is wrong for a man to cause stumbling by what he eats. [j] 21 It is a noble thing not to eat meat, or drink wine, or do anything that makes your brother stumble. [k] 22 Do you have a conviction? [B] Keep it to yourself before God. The man who does not condemn himself by what he approves is blessed. [l] 23 But whoever doubts stands condemned if he eats, [m] because his eating is not from a conviction, [C] and everything that is not from a conviction [D] is sin.

Pleasing Others, Not Ourselves

15 Now we who are strong have an obligation to bear the weaknesses of those without strength, [a] and not to please ourselves. [2] Each one of us must please his neighbor for his good, to build him up. [b] [3] For even the •Messiah did not please Himself. [c] On the contrary, as it is written, The insults of those who insult You have fallen on Me. [d, e] [4] For whatever was written in the past was written for our instruction, [f] so that we may have hope through endurance and through the encouragement from the Scriptures. [5] Now may the God who gives [A] endurance and encouragement [g] allow you to live in harmony with one another, [h] according to the command of Christ Jesus, [6] so that you may glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ [i] with a united mind and voice.

Glorifying God Together

7 Therefore accept one another, [j] just as the Messiah also accepted you, to the glory of God. 8 For I say that the Messiah became a servant of the circumcised [k] on behalf of God's truth, [l] to confirm the promises to the fathers, [m] 9 and so that Gentiles [n] may glorify God for His mercy. [o] As it is written:

Therefore I will praise You among the Gentiles, and I will sing psalms to Your name. [p, q]

10 Again it says: Rejoice, you Gentiles, with His people! [r, s] 11 And again:

Praise the Lord, all you Gentiles;
all the peoples should praise Him! [t, u]

12 And again, Isaiah says:

The root of Jesse [v] will appear,
the One who rises to rule the Gentiles;
the Gentiles will hope in Him. [w, x]

13 Now may the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace as you believe in Him [y] so that you may overflow with hope by the power of the Holy Spirit. [z]

From Jerusalem to Illyricum

14 My brothers, I myself am convinced about you that you also are full of goodness, [a] filled with all knowledge, [b] and able to instruct one another. 15 Nevertheless, I have written to remind you more boldly on some points [c] because of the grace given me by God [d] 16 to be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles, [e] serving as a priest of God's good news. [f] My purpose is that the offering of the Gentiles may be acceptable, [g] •sanctified by the Holy Spirit. 17 Therefore I have reason to boast in Christ Jesus [h] regarding what pertains to God. [i] 18 For I would not dare say anything except what Christ has accomplished through me [j] to make the Gentiles obedient by word and deed, 19 by the power of miraculous signs and wonders, [k] and by the power of God's Spirit. As a result, I have fully proclaimed the good news about the Messiah from Jerusalem [l] all the way around to Illyricum. [m, n] 20 My aim is to evangelize where Christ has not been named, [o] so that I will not build on someone else's foundation, [p] 21 but, as it is written:

Those who were not told about Him will see,
and those who have not heard will understand. [q, r]

Paul's Travel Plans

22 That is why I have been prevented many times from coming to you. [s] 23 But now I no longer have any work to do in these provinces, [B] and I have strongly desired for many years to come to you [t] 24 whenever I travel to Spain. [u] For I hope to see you when I pass through, and to be assisted by you for my journey there, [v] once I have first enjoyed your company [w] for a while. 25 Right now I am traveling to Jerusalem [x] to serve the •saints , [y] 26 for Macedonia [z] and Achaia [a, b] were pleased to make a contribution for the poor among the saints in Jerusalem. 27 Yes, they were pleased, and indeed are indebted to them. For if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual benefits, [c] then they are obligated to minister to Jews in material needs. 28 So when I have finished this and safely delivered the funds [C] to them, [d] I will visit you on the way to Spain. 29 I know that when I come to you, I will come in the fullness of the blessing [e] of Christ.

30 Now I appeal to you, brothers, through our Lord Jesus Christ and through the love of the Spirit, [f] to join with me in fervent prayers to God on my behalf. [g] 31 Pray that I may be rescued from the unbelievers in Judea, [h] that the gift I am bringing to [D] Jerusalem [i] may be acceptable to the saints, [j] 32 and that, by God's will, [k] I may come to you with joy [l] and be refreshed together with you.

33 The God of peace be with all of you. [m] •Amen .

Paul's Commendation of Phoebe

16 I commend to you [a] our sister Phoebe, who is a servant [A] of the church in Cenchreae. [b] 2 So you should welcome her in the Lord [c] in a manner worthy of the •saints and assist her in whatever matter she may require your help. For indeed she has been a benefactor of many — and of me also.

Greeting to Roman Christians

3 Give my greetings to Prisca [B] and Aquila, [d] my coworkers in [e] Christ Jesus, [f] 4 who risked their own necks for my life. Not only do I thank them, but so do all the Gentile churches.
5 Greet also the church that meets in their home. [g]
Greet my dear friend Epaenetus, who is the first convert [C,] [h] to Christ from •Asia . [i,] [j]
6 Greet Mary, [D] who has worked very hard for you. [k]
7 Greet Andronicus and Junia, [E] my fellow countrymen [l] and fellow prisoners. [m] They are noteworthy in the eyes of the apostles, [F,] [n] and they were also in Christ before me.
8 Greet Ampliatus, my dear friend in the Lord.
9 Greet Urbanus, our coworker in Christ, and my dear friend Stachys.
10 Greet Apelles, who is approved in Christ.
Greet those who belong to the household of Aristobulus. [o]
11 Greet Herodion, my fellow countryman.
Greet those who belong to the household of Narcissus who are in the Lord.
12 Greet Tryphaena and Tryphosa, who have worked hard in the Lord.
Greet my dear friend Persis, who has worked very hard in the Lord.
13 Greet Rufus, [p] chosen in the Lord; also his mother — and mine.
14 Greet Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermas, and the brothers who are with them.
15 Greet Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympas, and all the saints who are with them. [q]
16 Greet one another with a holy kiss. [r]
All the churches of Christ send you greetings.

Warning against Divisive People

17 Now I urge you, brothers, to watch out for those who cause dissensions and obstacles contrary to the doctrine you have learned. [s] Avoid them, [t] 18 for such people do not serve our Lord Christ [u] but their own appetites. [G, v] They deceive the hearts of the unsuspecting with smooth talk and flattering words. [w]

Paul's Gracious Conclusion

19 The report of your obedience has reached everyone. [x] Therefore I rejoice over you. But I want you to be wise about what is good, yet innocent about what is evil. [y] 20 The God of peace [z] will soon crush Satan [a] under your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus be with you. [b]

21 Timothy, [c] my coworker, and Lucius, [d] Jason, [e] and Sosipater, [f] my fellow countrymen, greet you.

22 I Tertius, who wrote this letter, [g] greet you in the Lord. [H]

23 Gaius, [h] who is host to me and to the whole church, greets you. Erastus, [i] the city treasurer, and our brother Quartus greet you.

[24 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all.] [j]

Glory to God

25 Now to Him who has power to strengthen you [k] according to my gospel and the proclamation about Jesus Christ, [l] according to the revelation of the •mystery kept silent [m] for long ages [n] 26 but now revealed and made known through the prophetic Scriptures, [o] according to the command of the eternal God to advance the obedience of faith [I, p] among all nations — 27 to the only wise God, through Jesus Christ — to Him be the glory forever! [q, r] •Amen .

ROMANS

Introduction

Full moon rising over the Roman Coliseum, whose construction began in the early 70s by Vespasian. It was completed and opened in A.D. 80 by his son and successor, Titus.

Paul's letter to the Roman house churches has been preeminent among the New Testament writings for its theological and pastoral influence. It focuses on the doctrine of salvation, including the practical implications for believers as they live out the salvation given to them through Jesus Christ.

Circumstances of Writing

Author: Paul the apostle is the stated and indisputable author of the book of Romans. From the book of Acts and statements in Romans, we learn that Paul wrote this letter while he was in Corinth and on his way to Jerusalem in the spring of A.D. 57, to deliver an offering from the Gentile churches to poor Jewish Christians (Ac 20:3; Rm 15:25-29).

Background: All of Paul's writings grew out of his missionary/pastoral work and were about the problems and needs of local churches. The book of Romans is also of this genre, but it is the least "local" in the sense that Paul had not yet been to Rome. This letter was his opportunity to expound the good news message (the gospel). He could discuss the essence of sin, the salvation accomplished on the cross, the union of the believer with Christ, how the Spirit works in the Christian to promote holiness, the place of the Jewish people in God's plan, future things, and Christian living or ethics. Though Paul did not write Romans as a systematic theology, his somewhat orderly exposition has been the fountain for the development of that discipline.

The origin of the Roman house churches is unknown. The founding of the Roman church likely goes back to the "visitors from Rome," "both Jews and proselytes" who came to Jerusalem at Pentecost (Ac 2:10). Many of these visitors converted to Christianity (Ac 2:41), some of whom very likely hailed from Rome. In Acts 18:2 Luke mentioned Aquila and Priscilla, who left Rome because emperor Claudius had ordered all Jews to leave the city (A.D. 49). This exodus was caused by strife among Jews over "Chrestus" (Christ). The remaining Christians in Rome would be from a Gentile background. The Jewish-Gentile tensions in Rome had a long history. These tensions are somewhat reflected throughout the letter, most specifically in chapters 2, 11, and 14-15.

Rome was the primary destination of this letter. Yet some manuscripts lack the phrase "in Rome" (1:7), giving some support to the conclusion that Paul intended a wider audience for the book of Romans and sent copies to other churches.

Message and Purpose

Paul's purpose in writing Romans can be identified from his direct statements in the text and inferred from the content. He expressly wrote that he wanted to impart spiritual strength to the believers at Rome (1:11-12; 16:25-26). He asked for prayer for the difficult task he was undertaking (15:32) and that he might be able to come and see them (15:30). He hoped to enlist the Roman churches to support a mission to the west (15:23-29). The content of the letter shows that the churches experienced tensions between believers from different backgrounds. Paul wanted them to be united and to avoid dissension and false teaching (16:17-18). The content also reveals his exposition of what is essential Christianity and what are matters of indifference.

Contribution to the Bible

What is the gospel? The word gospel means “good news.” The good news is about Jesus and what He did for us. Most Bible students would say that the gospel is outlined in 1 Corinthians 15:3-5. Romans fills in that outline and clarifies the gospel in relation to the OT promises and the Mosaic law, the role of good works, and the gift of God’s righteousness. Paul emphasized righteousness and justification in this letter to a depth and detail not found elsewhere in the Bible. Sin is traced to its core in our union with Adam and the imputation of original sin. Paul also mapped out the spread of human sin and its results in both believers and nonbelievers.

There are three passages in the NT (each one long sentence in the Greek text) that contain the most important theology of the NT: John 1:14 on the incarnation; Ephesians 1:3-14 about the triune purpose and glory of God; and Romans 3:21-26 on justification, redemption, and propitiation. If a Christian understands these three sentences, he has a solid foundation for faith.

Paul in Romans 6-8 gave the most comprehensive development of our union with Christ and the Spirit’s work in us. Romans 9-11 (on the role of Israel in God’s plan) has been called the key to understanding the Bible. Romans 13 is the classic NT passage on the Christian’s relation to and duties to the state. Romans 14-15 covers how Christians can relate to one another yet have different opinions and convictions on nonessential religious matters.

Structure

Paul wrote 13 of the 21 letters (or “epistles”) contained in the NT. The four Gospels, the book of Acts, and the book of Revelation are not classified as letters. Romans is the longest of Paul’s letters, and it contains the elements found in a standard letter at that time: salutation (1:1-7); thanksgiving (1:8-17); the main body (1:18-16:18); and a farewell (16:19-24). Some scholars refer to Romans as a tractate (a formal treatise). But it bears all the marks of a real letter, although it is a finely tuned literary composition.

Study Notes

1:1 Paul calls himself a slave. The Greek word doulos is mistranslated in most Bibles as "servant" or "bond servant." A slave was owned, was bought for a price, received no wages, and could not quit. A servant could quit, got paid, and was a free person. Jesus Himself took the form of a slave (Php 2:7), and Paul reminded Christians that "you are not your own, for you were bought at a price" (1Co 6:19b-20). Paul was an apostle by the call of God. In God's summons of Paul from his previous way of life, He commissioned him as an apostle (Ac 9). "Gospel" is an old English word meaning God's good news. Paul had been assigned by God to proclaim and teach this good news about Jesus.

1:2 The good news is the fulfillment of the OT prophecies, and the OT is not correctly understood apart from the NT.

1:3 Jesus is God's Son in a different sense than are Christians, who are called "sons" due to spiritual new birth (Jn 3) and adoption into God's family (Rm 8:15). Jesus is God's Son first by being the eternal Son and Second Person of the Trinity (Is 9:6; Gl 4:4), and second by being the virgin-born incarnate Son, conceived as the Spirit came to Mary (Lk 1:35). Jesus was also the messianic Son who came in the family line of David (2Sm 7:12-16; Ps 2:6-7; 89:26-29,36). Flesh here means the real human nature of Jesus.

1:4 Jesus in His humiliation was despised and rejected (Is 53:2) and had the form of a slave (Php 2:7). He spoke as the Son of the Father (Jn 5:19-23), but He was persecuted because "He was even calling God His own Father, making Himself equal with God" (Jn 5:18). At the cross, His sonship was called into question (Mt 27:39-43). But the Spirit of holiness (another title for the Holy Spirit) raised Jesus from the dead. This event set Him apart as God's unique Son exalted over death and Satan, and invested with all power (Mt 28:18).

1:5 The obedience of faith (cp. 10:16; 15:18) is best understood as the faith that issues in obedience. Paul's ministry sought to bring all the nations to obey Jesus and His Father.

1:6 Christians belong to Jesus by calling. This calling is not a bare invitation. It is instead a sovereign summons that results in salvation as people respond in faith to God's summons. By this language Paul reminded the Roman believers that God took the initiative in saving them.

1:7 Called as saints does not mean called "to be" saints, as if this is something Christians might become in the future. Neither does it signify an honorary title or an unusually holy person. Rather, all Christians are saints by the sovereign call of God. They have been set apart just as the nation of Israel was set apart (Lv 11:44; 19:2). A Christian is a person who has the forgiveness of sins and is sanctified by faith in Jesus (Ac 26:18) and therefore is a "saint" (1Co 1:2). The Christian belongs to Jesus and is set apart from the world.

1:8 It was common in ancient letters to begin with a prayer. Paul adopted the form, but his prayers were never just formal. As there is joy among the angels at the conversion of one sinner (Lk 15:10), Paul rejoiced over the fact there were house churches in the capital city of the Roman Empire. He was thankful for the spread of the faith.

1:9-10 Paul continually prayed for the Roman Christians in his spirit. Though too often perceived as otherwise, prayer is just as necessary as teaching or preaching in Christian ministry. Paul had wanted to come to Rome, but God was in control of all his circumstances. The believer must seek God's will in his activities (Jms 4:13-17).

1:11-12 Paul was certain he would bring certain benefits or blessings as he taught among the house churches of Rome. The spiritual gift mentioned here was not the special gift(s) in 1Co 12-14 which were given by God (1Co 12:11) but gifts that Christians gave to one another. Paul was certain that the Roman Christians would minister to him since every part of the body of Christ has useful functions in relation to other parts (1Co 12:12-27).

1:13 How is it that the most important city in the world had not yet had a visit from an apostle? Why especially had the "apostle to the Gentiles" not come? Paul often planned to come, but these plans had not come to fruition. In the mysterious providence of God it all worked out for the best. After all, Paul's delay in fulfilling his trip to Rome caused him to write this wonderful letter. Furthermore, he eventually went to Rome as a prisoner (Ac 25:10-28:14-16), spending two years in the city preaching the gospel "without hindrance" (Ac 28:31). Believers must learn that God works out events in ways we could never imagine (Rm 8:28).

1:14 Paul's conversion placed a special commission and obligation on him (Ac 9:15; 13:47; 1Co 9:16; Gl 2:8-9). The revelations granted to him gave him greater responsibility. His training and Roman citizenship equipped him to reach all varieties of pagans, including the educated and the barbarians. These barbarians included people from Spain and Asia Minor (Ac 14:11-18).

1:15 Paul was eager to fulfill his obligation because he expected God to do great things through his ministry.

1:16 Why might someone be ashamed of the gospel? On the surface, the gospel seems like a very strange message. It is about a Jewish carpenter and teacher who was put to death on a cross by Pontius Pilate, Roman governor of Judea in A.D. 26-36. The message says that this man Jesus was raised from the dead and is now Lord—the kurios. This title was used of God in the Greek Bible and was applied to the emperor by some Romans. Paul himself wrote that this message seemed foolish to Gentiles (1Co 1:23) and was a stumbling block to Jews. A crucified Messiah seemed to be a contradiction in terms to the Jews. A crucified Jew seemed like foolishness to the Romans, who despised Jews in general. Anyone who was crucified was considered among the lowest members of society. Paul had no confidence in his rhetorical skills to overcome the human objections to the message, but he knew the power of the Spirit to change the lives of people as they heard the good news about Jesus' death and resurrection. People are saved by faith, but faith is not the cause of salvation. The cause of salvation is the grace of God, the will of God, and the Spirit's power working through the message.

1:17 God's righteousness was the core of Paul's message. Luther came to better understand God's grace as he studied this verse in the original Greek rather than in the Latin translation. It forever changed his view of God. God's righteousness can be understood in several ways. First, God always does what is right and can be said to have righteousness as one of His attributes (Dt 32:4; Ps 119:142). Second, since God always does what is right, His actions or activities are sometimes identified as His righteousness (Is 45:8; 46:13; 51:5-6,8; 56:1). Third, God's righteousness is as a gift from Him to us, justifying us in His sight. "Justification" is a courtroom term signifying that a judge declares a person to be "right" or "just." Augustine wrote "the righteousness of God is that righteousness which He imparts in order to make men righteous" (Spirit and the Letter , chap. 16). In the gospel, God reveals His righteousness (His nature, His activity, and His gift of right status) by faith. In the course of this letter, Paul will explain how God is able to declare sinners to be righteous because of Jesus' work on the cross. From faith to faith emphasizes that the entire process of being declared righteous comes to us from start to finish by faith.

1:18 All people need the gospel because they are under God's wrath, which stems from His holy revulsion to sin. Paul wrote this letter from the Greek city of Corinth—a city full of idolatry and immorality. Mankind originally knew God and fellowshipped with Him (Gn 3:8a). The history of the world and of the OT reveals a subsequent regression and loss of moral knowledge. Since the garden of Eden, people have been unrighteous, and they have suppressed the truth.

1:19 God as Creator has disclosed Himself in creation. "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the sky proclaims the work of His hands" (Ps 19:1; cp. Ac 14:15-17). People also have an innate capacity for God as well as a moral conscience. God is at work to show Himself in the world, yet the world is in rebellion against Him.

1:20 Mankind's problem is not that he doesn't know the truth. The history of the human race discloses a determined effort to oppose the will of God. People are without excuse for their idolatry and practical atheism.

1:21 Because of human willfulness, people's knowledge of God became clouded and their thinking became darkened. Without contact with God, the center of man loses contact with reality, misses the purpose of his existence and becomes ungrateful. People are supposed to glorify Him as God, but instead find all sorts of created objects to worship. Part of the wrath of God is revealed in humanity's loss of intelligent thinking.

1:22 A classic example of human foolishness is found in Is 44:9-20 where human cleverness ends in stupidity.

1:23 Many people think that the history of religion developed along an evolutionary model. In this view, humanity originally held animistic beliefs and then progressed to polytheism, to tribal deities, and then to a single creator God. From there we progressed to a vague philosophical monotheism in the Enlightenment, and finally we are now embracing atheism in the age of science. But this is not true to the early history of religion. Instead of starting in polytheism, the Bible says humanity started with knowledge of the one true God and then declined into polytheism as humans were separated from God and fractured from one another. Paul warns that loss of knowledge of the true God resulted in the worship of images resembling mortal man. Even in the modern age we have seen dictators worshiped as god, and the Bible says this sin will be repeated climactically in the end times (2Th 2:3-12; Rv 13:1-18).

1:24 Because they rejected the truths of God revealed in creation, God punished the Greco-Roman world by delivering them to the cravings of their hearts. A similar scenario played out in the life of King Ahab of Israel, who continually rebelled against God (1Kg 16:29-33). As a judgment, God permitted a lying prophetic spirit to deceive Ahab to his doom (1Kg 22:22-23). The ancients were enmeshed in polytheistic idolatry, and in their devotions to their false gods they practiced all sorts of immorality.

1:25 The loss of the knowledge of God in the mind and heart leads to an exchange of truth for a lie. Something created is served and worshiped rather than the Creator, and judgment is the result (Ps 81:12; Ac 7:42).

1:26-27 Lesbians and homosexuals often argue that this verse only prohibits sexual abuse of children, or else they say that natural sexual relations are not violated when men and women who are born with a tendency for homosexual desires (as they claim) practice homosexuality. But Paul clearly says lesbianism is unnatural, and the Bible elsewhere strictly prohibits all homosexuality (e.g., Lv 18:22). The Creator intended male and female to be joined in marriage (Gn 2:24). As an example of the sort of sexual perversion Paul would have been aware of in his day, the emperor Nero castrated a boy named Sporus and married him. Such degrading passions result in appropriate penalty.

1:28-32 In verse 24 God is described as delivering society to impurity, in verse 26 to degrading passions, and in verse 28 to a worthless mind. The mind becomes (Gk) adokimos (disqualified), an untrustworthy guide in moral choices because people have rejected knowledge of God. Verses 29-31 contain a list of vices similar to ancient vice lists. Pagan moralists often lamented the loss of virtue in their societies. Paul's list of sins was no darker than what other writers of that time reported. All sin is serious. Lesbianism and homosexuality may seem particularly objectionable, but any of the 21 sins listed (cp. Gl 5:19-21) cut people off from the life of God and bring spiritual death. When society applauds others who practice these sins, it has lost its moral compass. Ancient philosophers warned about the social effects of popular plays. Murder and immorality were so common on stage that people no longer reacted when they occurred in daily life. Modern entertainments have a similar effect on minds and the values that guide behavior.

2:1 Some interpreters think Paul is speaking about Gentile moralists in verses 1-16, and then Jews beginning at verse 17. The majority of scholars, however, see the Jew as the subject throughout chapter 2. Judgment and condemnation follow sin as night follows day. Not all people commit the same sins, but all show by their judging and criticism that they do not live up to the moral law they know. No one is without excuse.

2:2 The coming judgment will be based on God's truth, which no amount of human opinion or protest can alter.

2:3 There will be no escape from God's coming judgment. Human systems of justice often break down. Stalin killed more than 20 million people and yet died in his own bed at age 74. And yet death offered him no escape from God's justice. All humans, great and small, will be raised to stand before God's judgment (14:10; Rv 20:11-15). The wise course is to settle your case with God before the judgment (Mt 5:25-26).

2:4 Grace should lead people to repent of their sin (2Pt 3:7-13).

2:5 Like water pooling up behind a dam, people accumulate a debt of wrath as they continue to reject God's grace. One day the dam will break, and the flood of divine wrath will sweep up individuals and entire societies.

2:6-10 Cranfield (Romans, I:151) outlines 10 different interpretations of this controversial passage. The most likely one is that works are the outcome of a person's faith. Christians are declared righteous by faith. At the moment of that declaration, the person is joined to Christ and regenerated by the Holy Spirit, becoming a new creation (2Co 5:17) created for good works (Eph 2:10). As Paul wrote, "What matters is faith working through love" (Gl 5:6). Thus the person of faith who seeks glory, honor, and immortality and continues to do good demonstrates that he is truly regenerate and thus is assured of eternal life. To the person who obeys unrighteousness and disobeys truth, however, wrath is his destiny.

2:11 No one should think that God's judgment is tainted with favoritism. He is a just Judge of both Jews and Gentiles.

2:12 This verse introduces the Mosaic law into the discussion of the coming judgment. The law will be considered throughout the remainder of Romans. The Jews saw the Mosaic law as key in the difference between Jews and Gentiles; Paul teaches that the law does not save a person but only reveals sin as people fall short of the law's requirements. Thus in the judgment, the possession of the law will be a basis of condemnation.

2:13 Deuteronomy 6:4 calls Israel to "listen" to the declaration of God's identity, but Dt 6:5 follows up by saying that merely listening is not enough. One must love God with the whole heart, which entails obedience. And yet no one will be declared righteous by obeying the law, for no one obeys the law perfectly (3:20,23; Gl 2:16; Jms 2:8-11). The only incorrupt doer of the law was Jesus, the righteous One.

2:14-15 The Gentiles do not have the Mosaic law as a moral guide, but they do have an inner law that informs their conscience. All humans have this instinctively as a component of their being created in God's image (Gn 1:26). Kant, the philosopher, spoke of "the starry heavens above and the moral law within." This moral law will accuse or excuse daily moral choices, but ultimately demonstrates that all people fall short of God's holiness.

2:16 God knows every secret, and Jesus will be the final judge (Jn 5:22-30; Ac 17:31). The coming judgment will be: according to truth, proportional to the rejection of revelation received, according to deeds done, without partiality, and in response to the gospel.

2:17-20 Jew was the name given to people who returned to Judea from exile, but later it was extended to cover all Hebrew people (Israelites) wherever they lived. Paul listed eight grounds on which Jews rested their sense of moral superiority over the Gentiles; three times he cited the law as a grounds. The Jews believed that God had granted them special privileges and given them a mission to bring light to the Gentiles (Is 42:6-7). True enough. And yet Jesus taught, "Much will be required of everyone who has been given much. And even more will be expected of the one who has been entrusted with more" (Lk 12:48). Furthermore, Jesus warned the religious leaders, "On the outside you seem righteous to people, but inside you are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness" (Mt 23:28). Mere possession of the law does not win divine favor.

2:21-23 Following Jesus' example, Paul exposed Jewish hypocrisy. He did so with a series of five rhetorical questions that indicted his people for lacking essential righteousness. Paul did not mean that every Jew committed all these sins but that all transgress the law and lack the righteousness to enter God's presence. Jesus taught that even the thought of adultery violates the law (Mt 5:27-28). Paul knew from his own experience that his heart was full of covetousness (Rm 7:7-10) and therefore unrighteous. There are examples of all five literal violations from contemporary accounts, including a famous case in Rome of sacrilege. The history of the Jewish nation was full of unrighteous acts. Stephen asked, "Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute?" (Ac 7:52). The religious leaders of the nation were instrumental in putting Jesus to death, Stephen was stoned by the Sanhedrin, and James the Just (half-brother of Jesus) was killed in the temple area.

2:24 Paul cited Is 52:5 from the Greek OT (the Septuagint, or LXX) as support that Jewish sin resulted in God's name being dishonored among the pagan nations when the Jews were defeated and exiled. To pagan perception, Yahweh seemed powerless since He did not protect His people.

2:25-29 Circumcision was a sign and seal of a covenant that God made with Israel (Ex 12:44-49). The rite went back to Abraham and the covenant God made with him (Gn 17:9-14). Circumcision became a badge of Jewish identity and, it was thought, a guarantee of salvation. Some later rabbis even taught that Abraham sat at the entrance to Gehenna ("hell") and would not permit any uncircumcised Jew to enter there. By implication, the way you lived made no difference. In a similar way, some Christian groups have believed that the rite of baptism saves, and so baptism was delayed until the end of life to make sure all sins were "washed." But Paul declared that circumcision (and by extension, baptism) without obedience is empty. Furthermore, Abraham was a man of faith who was accepted by God long before he was circumcised (Gn 15:1-20). The true Jew is one who has a spiritual circumcision . . . of the heart.

3:1 It might seem from chapter 2 that being a Jew and being circumcised conferred no advantage, but Paul listed many Jewish advantages in 9:4-5. In our day it is advantageous to have Christian parents, to attend a church, to be baptized, to attend a Christian school, and to read the Bible—but none of these advantages can save us.

3:2 It is a great privilege to be Jewish—considerable in every way. They heard God speak the "ten words" or Ten Commandments (Ex 20:1-20) directly to them. Then through a long series of prophets, God's words came to them. No other people on earth had this privilege.

3:3 Even if some of the Jewish people did not believe, God will be faithful to His covenant and will bring His promises to fulfillment. Paul referred particularly to the promises centered in the Messiah, Jesus Christ.

3:4 After he was confronted by the prophet Nathan for his sins surrounding the Bathsheba incident, David confessed in Psalm 51:4 that God is justified in His judgments. God must be true, for it would be against His infinitely perfect nature to be otherwise.

3:5-8 Paul addressed several implications to which critics mistakenly thought his teachings would lead. For example, if God is shown to be in the right by man's sin and error, then God is honored by our shortcomings. How then can God punish us when we have helped display His righteousness? But Paul answered that as a matter of principle God's judgment of sin is always righteous. People who think otherwise deserve condemnation, for their true focus is not on glorifying God but on giving free reign to their sinful desires.

3:9 All the world is under sin, and yet sin is considered an archaic topic in our secular society. It is not hard to guess why. Vice is something done against oneself; crime is something done against society or an individual; but sin is against God. Since modern culture is essentially atheistic, "sin" has become a meaningless term.

3:10-18 In these verses Paul linked seven OT passages to demonstrate that all of mankind is under sin's dominion. No one is righteous; no one understands (Jn 8:43-44; 1Co 2:14), and no one . . . seeks God. Since Adam and Eve's fall, people have hidden from God, but God sent His Son "to seek and to save the lost" (Lk 19:10). All have gone astray (Is 1:2-4; 53:6), and in God's sight none are right. Paul cited Bible passages that show the extent of corruption. As Jesus taught, "from within, out of people's hearts" (Mk 7:21) come all sorts of evil. Man is quick to shed blood. During the last century over 39 million people lost their lives in wars. And by conservative estimates, human governments killed an additional 125 million people—led by Lenin, Stalin, Mao, Hitler, and others. The root problem is that humans are often practical atheists even when they profess belief in God. They choose against God's will and show no fear for it.

3:19 Someone may argue that the seven passages cited above are addressed not to Jews but to pagan nations. But everything in the Hebrew Bible is first addressed to the Jews for their instruction so they can learn about sin's power. All people from every nation and ethnicity are sinners, and God will judge the whole world. In God's court, everyone is speechless.

3:20 No one can earn justification by obedience to the law's requirements. The law was never intended to be a means of salvation. A primary purpose of the law was to reveal sin in its full scope, thus pointing to man's need for the gift of righteousness.

3:21-26 The phrase but now marks a decisive shift in Paul's argument.

According to one interpreter, verses 21-26 are the "centre and heart of the whole of Romans 1:16b-15:13"; (Cranfield, Romans, I:199). This paragraph (one long sentence in the Greek original) is a wonderful compression of theology. It contains three ways of describing Jesus' work on the cross and the benefits that come from the gospel: justification, redemption, and propitiation. Each term pictures the gospel by appealing to a different realm of ancient life. "Justification" is a term from the courts. Sinners stand condemned in God's court, and yet He freely declares "not guilty" anyone who places his faith in Christ. "Redemption" is a term borrowed from the slave market. All people are slaves to sin by their fallen nature, but Christians are purchased by God and freed to new life in Christ. "Propitiation" is a term borrowed from temple rites, where the sacrificial animal figuratively comes under God's wrath as it is killed. Jesus received God's wrath on the cross. By our faith in Christ, God's wrath is counted satisfied and we are no longer under wrath. God's righteousness was thus manifested and given in the event of the cross. Sinners gain pardon not through their adherence to the law, but through faith in the One who fulfilled all righteousness on our behalf. The Law and the Prophets refers to the OT, and the entire OT is correctly understood as a witness to Jesus and His work.

3:22 Jesus is the object of faith and the means of obtaining the gift of God's righteousness. The gift is for both Jews and Gentiles who believe.

3:23 All have missed the mark that God intended for the human race and have lost the glory of the original creation (Ps 8:5). Believing the good news starts the process of the restoration of glory (Rm 8:30; 2Co 3:18).

3:24 Justified means that Christians are declared to be righteous (5:1,9; 8:30; 1Co 1:30; 6:11). The Judge deems believers innocent because of Jesus' work on the cross. Freely means that God grants justification not due to any merit in Christians but solely by His grace, the undeserved love and mercy of God. Redemption is a commercial term that refers to purchasing freedom for slaves. The purchase price for our freedom was the blood of Christ Jesus (see Mk 10:45; 1Pt 1:18-19).

3:25 Propitiation is a term borrowed from the sacrificial system and the temple. The Greek word hilasterion was used for the cover of the ark of the covenant. Luther translated it as the "mercy seat" (Heb 9:5). On the Day of Atonement, the high priest would sprinkle blood over the ark to atone for the nation. By this rite sins were deemed expiated; people became reconciled to God and God's wrath was averted. But human sins could not literally be atoned for by the death of animals. "For it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins" (Heb 10:4). Thus Jesus came to accomplish what no priest slaying an animal could ever hope to accomplish: full satisfaction of God's requirements for atonement. God the Father "made the One who did not know sin to be sin for us, so that we might become the righteousness of God in Him" (2Co 5:21). This involves a double imputation. Our sin was imputed to Jesus on the cross, and His righteousness was imputed to us. Justification is not a legal fiction; Christians are made righteous by the imputation of God's own righteousness in His Son.

3:26 The present time of the cross and preaching of the good news vindicated God, showing that He is just and Justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus. It has become fashionable to translate pisteos Iesou in verses 22,26 as "Jesus' faithfulness" instead of "faith in Jesus." While the Greek permits this translation, it seems to diminish somewhat Paul's emphasis on faith in Jesus' work on the cross. The HCSB's rendering is to be preferred.

3:27-28 No one can boast in his works. No one can boast even in his faith. Faith is not the cause of justification but the means of justification. The cause of salvation is grace and mercy.

3:29-30 There is only one God and only one way to be justified by Him, no matter your ethnic and national identity: by faith. The phrase who will justify does not mean that justification occurs at a future time (at the last judgment) and is therefore not a present reality for the believer. Rather, it points to the fact that God counts each of us justified as we come to faith. Thus God "will justify" your neighbor tomorrow if he comes to faith.

3:31 Does the gospel destroy the law? To answer this question, Paul considered the case of Abraham in the following chapter.

4:1-25 Abraham was the father of the Hebrew nation (Gn 12:1-3). Jews commonly believed that Abraham kept the whole law before it was given on Mount Sinai (Gn 26:5), so he had something to brag about. Paul refutes this, showing that Abraham was justified by faith and had no grounds to boast.

4:3 Tradition must give way to the clear statements of the Scripture. Genesis 15:6 is the text that Paul cited.

4:4-5 Pay and gift are as different as works and faith. Paul describes God as having a set of books of the kind an accountant has. God imputed or credited righteousness to Abraham's account because of his faith. To the one who does not work, but believes on Him who declares the ungodly to be righteous is a shocking expression. The Reformation focused on this passage. God saves the ungodly, sinners, and His enemies (5:5,8,10). Though Jews took Abraham to be a paragon of virtue, Paul declared that he was just a sinner saved by grace. He was justified by faith, just as any Christian is.

4:6-8 David, Israel's greatest king, sang about the blessing that God gave him in the forgiveness of his deliberate sins—no works-righteousness here. David understood that, in God's accounting ledger, his sins were wiped out and righteousness was inscribed in their place. Paul's quotation of Ps 32:1-2 clarifies and explains Gn 15:6. Paul similarly links justification and the forgiveness of sin in his synagogue sermon recorded in Ac 13:38-39.

4:9-10 It might seem that God's blessing was only for the circumcised since David's psalm (Ps 32) was written by a Jew for the Jewish people. Paul returned to his key text in Gn 15:6 and showed that the crediting of righteousness to Abraham took place when he was uncircumcised, so God's blessing is also for Gentiles who believe.

4:11 Circumcision was a sign and a seal. It marked out a man as part of the nation of Israel. It was also to be a seal of the righteousness a man had received by faith. The timing of Abraham's circumcision enabled him to be the spiritual father and model for justification by faith to both circumcised Jews and uncircumcised Gentiles.

4:12 Abraham was the physical father of the Hebrew nation, but his greatest legacy was his example of faith. Jews and Gentiles alike can follow in the footsteps of Abraham's faith.

4:13 The law demanded obedience and performance. If the law was violated, wrath resulted. The law was not a system of grace. God's promise was one of grace. The promise to Abraham and his seed (Gl 3:16-18) was not through the law but through the righteousness that comes by faith.

4:14-15 If the inheritance of the promise came by legal obedience, then the way of faith is empty. Furthermore, no one would inherit the promise since no one could keep the law.

4:16-17 God's promise is by faith, so that it may be guaranteed to both Jews and Gentiles who believe. If it were by law, no such guarantee would be possible. To make it certain, therefore, the promise was according to grace. Abraham was also promised to be the father of many nations. Abraham believed in the God who created everything from nothing and gives life to the dead.

4:18 It seemed humanly impossible for Abraham to become the father of many nations when he was old, but he placed his hope in God's promise.

4:19-20 Abraham had a realistic evaluation of his prospects for fatherhood. He was about 100 years old, and Sarah was childless and long past child-bearing years. Yet Abraham did not doubt God's promise, and God strengthened his faith.

4:23-24 Everything in Scripture is for our benefit. The experiences of Abraham are as relevant to us as they were to him, for we serve the same Creator God who can do the humanly impossible. We are credited as righteous before God in the same manner as Abraham: by faith.

4:25 Jesus was delivered up for our trespasses as promised in Is 52:13-53:12. Who delivered up Jesus? Was it Judas? Pilate? The Jewish Sanhedrin? Satan? Certainly all these were causal agents in the crucifixion of Christ, but ultimately it was the sovereign God who brought it to pass in order to fulfill His plan of redemption (Ac 4:27-28). The Father delivered Jesus up for our trespasses, and raised Him so that His righteous Servant would justify many people (Is 53:11).

5:1 Commentators differ over whether chapter 5 belongs thematically to the first major section of Romans or to the Christian life section, chapters 6 through 8. It has connections to both. Paul in 5:1-11 uses "we" and "us" as he explains the benefits that those who are justified possess. Justification is just one of many ways of speaking about salvation. In this division, Paul showed how justification involves reconciliation. Justification speaks to our sound legal status before God while reconciliation describes our repaired relationship to God in more personal terms. We were at war with God, relationally alienated from Him, but He reconciled us by His Son (v. 10). We have peace in some manuscripts can be read as "let us grasp the fact that we have peace." This peace is an objective, settled fact because Jesus has accomplished it once and for all.

5:2 Access to God's grace is the privilege of all believers. We have the freedom to enter His presence at all times. His golden scepter is always extended (cp. Est 4:11-5:2).

5:3-4 Believers can rejoice in tough circumstances and afflictions because we know that through such things the Father is disciplining us for greater holiness (Heb 12:10).

5:5 The Christian's hope is certain because God's love is assured to us by the Holy Spirit's ministry within the core of our being (our hearts).

5:6-8 We can be sure of God's love since He did so much for us when we were helpless. We were ungodly, we were still sinners, and we were His enemies (v. 10). Jesus died for that kind of person. The word translated "for" is the Greek preposition huper used in substitution contexts. Jesus died in our place. God freely chooses to love us and by doing so confers worth on us through our faith in Him.

5:9 No debt of wrath remains for those who have now been declared righteous through faith in Christ.

5:10-11 If by the death of Christ we were reconciled to God, how much surer must the good news of salvation be now that He has risen and lives forevermore!

5:12-21 In this section, Paul brings his major discussion of justification by faith to a close with a complex, compressed, and controversial analogy. He shows that grace in justification reaches and affects us in Christ much more than sin and death have affected us in Adam.

5:12 Therefore gives this verse a loose connection with the previous section. Sin and death are almost personified here (cp. v. 21, "sin reigned in death"). Just as (Gk hosper) introduces a long and difficult Greek sentence. The main comparisons are clear, but some of the details lead interpreters to different opinions. Paul was thinking of how both the first Adam (Gn 1-3) and the last Adam (Jesus Christ) have a universal significance for humanity. Interpreters are divided over the phrase because all sinned. The two major interpretations are (1) all people commit sin and therefore die, and (2) somehow all humans sinned "in Adam." The second view is more likely and entails either that Adam was the federal head of the race and acted on behalf of us all, or that Adam was the seminal head of the race and we were somehow "in him."

5:13-14 These verses support the second interpretive option for verse 12 (see note there). Sin "reigned" (v. 21) over humanity before the giving of the law even though none had sinned in the way Adam sinned. Adam's sin was a personal, deliberate act that plunged the human race into physical and spiritual death. All humans, including newborn infants and young children who are incapable of judging right and wrong and thus are not deliberate sinners, are under death's domain. All people now are born spiritually dead (Eph 2:1-3). Adam's sin had this broad effect because he was a type (Gk tupos) or prefiguration of Jesus, the Coming One, and represented all of humanity just as Jesus would do on the cross.

5:15-16 The works of Adam and Jesus have similar scope but drastically different effect. One sin plunged humanity into ruin, but God gave the gift that issued in justification in spite of our many trespasses. What was gained through Jesus is far greater than that which was lost through Adam.

5:17 Death took the entire human race into its kingdom. The author of Hebrews portrayed this vividly when he wrote about what Jesus accomplished through His death on the cross: "Through His death He might destroy the one holding the power of death—that is, the Devil—and free those who were held in slavery all their lives by the fear of death" (Heb 2:14-15). Believers, who with the rest of humanity were once slaves in the kingdom of darkness (Col 1:13), were brought into Christ's kingdom as sons to reign with Him.

5:18 Adam's sin resulted in condemnation for everyone, whereas Christ's substitutionary death made possible life-giving justification for everyone.

5:19 The expression will be made does not refer to the last judgment, as if our salvation were pending until that time. Rather, it pictures the fact that believers are made righteous when they come to faith. Since Paul knew many people were yet to come to faith when he wrote, it was fitting to use future tense.

5:20-21 As in Gl 3:19, Paul describes the law as a subordinate player in the drama of redemption. The law was never an end unto itself. Rather, its function was to multiply the trespass by bringing the knowledge of sin. By this the need for grace is highlighted, allowing God to bestow it even more. The law also had other functions that Paul does not discuss here.

6:1-23 Can a justified person live the same way as he did before justification? This was a major question in the debates of the Reformation. If as sin abounded, grace super-abounded, why not commit more sin to receive more grace? Some false teachers in church history have actually argued that you can experience more grace by committing more sin. This chapter explains why this is not possible.

6:2 Paul rejected the invalid inference (v. 1) with the strong expression absolutely not. Phillips aptly translated it, "What a ghastly thought!" Paul argues that believers have died to sin. He does not mean that our sin nature was eliminated at the cross or at the moment of our conversion or baptism. Instead, as he says elsewhere, God "rescued us from the domain of darkness and transferred us into the kingdom of the Son He loves" (Col 1:13). Having experienced such a transfer, dare we go on living in sin?

6:3 In defense of his claim that believers have died to sin, Paul points out that through baptism we were baptized into Christ Jesus and His death. As R. Mounce put it, "Christ's death for sin becomes our death to sin" (Romans, 149).

Ancient Byzantine baptistry at Avdat, Israel, showing the importance given baptism by the early church (Rm 6:3-4).

6:4 Believers are symbolically buried with Christ through baptism and raised with Him from the dead in order that we may walk in a new way of life. This makes clear the absurdity of the idea that we can "continue in sin so that grace may multiply" (v. 1).

6:5 Though believers have not yet experienced resurrection, we are assured this future reality by the fact that Christ, in whose death we share, has been raised from the dead.

6:6 Our old self (Gk palaios anthropos; lit "old man") is everything that we were before we became Christians. By contrast, the new self is what we are once we become Christians (Eph 4:22-24; Col 3:9-10). The new self is not perfect. We still sin because we have indwelling sin in our mortal bodies (Rm 7:13-25), but we are in the process of renewal (Eph 4; Col 3). Thus we have the answer to the question about whether a Christian can still live in sin. We cannot live as we once did because the "old self" was crucified with Him (Christ). In Christ the believer is a "new creation" (2Co 5:17).

6:7 Sin (personified) has no claim over a dead person and can claim no loyalty from him.

6:8-9 It was because of our sin that death fixed its grip on Jesus, but He arose to live forever. Death no longer rules the believer, for we died with Christ who no longer dies.

6:10 Jesus went through an irreversible transformation in His death and resurrection. Believers also undergo an irreversible transformation: we die to the "old self" (v. 6) at conversion and thereafter live as new creatures (2Co 5:17). Like Jesus, the believer lives to God.

6:11 This is the first command in the book of Romans.

6:12-13 The believer, as a member of the new kingdom, must not offer any help to the old king (Satan, sin, death) and his kingdom. We are still slaves, but now we have a new Master. Note that Paul continues the personification of sin as a king (complete with a kingdom and subjects) who seeks to extend his rule. There is a spiritual war between these two kingdoms. We must give ourselves as weapons to be used in this warfare on the side of the rightful King. Aiding and abetting the enemy is treason.

6:14 Sin personified has been in view since 5:20-21. Sin is no longer the believer's ruler. Sin gained its power by using the law, but the Christian is under the rule of grace rather than law.

6:15-23 These verses are another of Paul's extended analogies. People have a choice about which master they will serve.

6:16 Paul used the figure of slaves. Whoever you obey, you come under his power. Obedience to sin brings death. Sin pays a wage to his subjects, and it is death (cp. v. 23). Obedience to God brings righteousness and the gift of eternal life.

6:17 Paul thanked God for the work of salvation that came to the Roman Christians.

6:18-19 Slavery and redemption are common biblical metaphors for spiritual death and salvation. The Hebrews were once in bondage (literal and spiritual) in Egypt. God broke the bondage so they could come out from Egypt and worship Him (Ex 7:16; 12:29-42). Similarly, the Roman Christians were once in spiritual bondage to false gods, but God liberated them so they could be slaves to righteousness.

6:20-23 As slaves of God, believers produce fruit (see Jn 15:1-8). This is the work of sanctification or holiness in their lives, and the final product is eternal life. Lest the figure be misunderstood as a payment for merits earned, eternal life is a gift of God through Christ. One master (sin) pays an earned wage of death; the other master (God) pays in unearned grace, resulting in eternal life (Jn 17:3).

7:1-6 Roman Christians knew about Roman civil law, and many of them (especially those of a Jewish or proselyte background) knew the Mosaic law. Of course neither law could hold sway over a dead person. Having died with Christ, the believer is not under Mosaic law (6:14).

7:2-3 A married woman, bound by law to her husband so long as he lived, was legally free to marry another man if her husband died.

7:4-5 Believers have died to the "old self" (6:2-6) and are free to marry another and bear fruit for God. The death of Messiah is the means by which we died to the Mosaic law (Gl 3:13-14; Col 2:14).

7:6 As new creations, believers serve as slaves (Gk douleuein) in a new way with a new power from the Spirit, not as old men (6:6) laboring vainly under the letter of the law.

7:7-8 The law itself is not evil or sinful, but one of its functions is to reveal sin. In fact Paul speaks as if sin is an unknown quantity apart from the law when he says, I would not have known sin if it were not for the law. Sin, seizing an opportunity, uses the law to motivate the flesh (fallen nature) to action. Once again Paul personified sin almost as Satan himself.

7:9-10 The phrase once I was alive has been variously interpreted as a reference to (1) Paul before he came to know the law as a young Jewish boy, (2) Paul before his conversion and the conviction brought by the Holy Spirit, (3) Paul speaking as Adam in the garden of Eden before the command came, or (4) any Hebrew before the giving of the Mosaic law at Mount Sinai. The basic point in each of these interpretations is the same: God's intent in the law was life, but sin deceived man by the law and brought death.

7:11-12 Though the law makes sin known and is in fact used by sin to produce death, it is nevertheless holy and just and good, reflecting God's perfect and eternal holiness.

7:13 Did the good law cause death? The correct understanding is that sin used something good to bring human death. God used the law to accomplish His purpose to clarify and to overcome sin.

7:14-25 This section is probably the most difficult and controversial passage in the letter to the Romans. For the most part the Eastern Church has interpreted it as referring to an unregenerate person (e.g., Paul before his conversion). The Western Church has followed Augustine, Luther, and Calvin in thinking it refers to a regenerate person (Paul after his conversion). Some suggest a mediating position. One such view interprets the subject as an OT believer who loves the law (Pss 1; 119) but struggles to perform it. Living before Christ and Pentecost, this person does not have the permanent and empowering gift of the Holy Spirit, as do new covenant believers. Another view holds that the subject is almost converted to Christ and is now under conviction of sin by the law.

The view that the subject of 14-25 is a regenerate person is sometimes modified in the following ways: (1) The subject is saved but has not had "baptism" in the Pentecostal sense or a second work of grace (as held in some types of Wesleyan theology). (2) The subject is an immature believer, not yet equipped for warfare with his fleshly desires. (3) The subject is a believer trying to become sanctified by legalism.

The view outlined here takes the position that the subject is a regenerated believer, most obviously Paul himself but generically every believer. Paul describes the new man in relation to the law of God and is looking at only one aspect of the person. The new man will be considered in relation to the Holy Spirit in the next section where the Holy Spirit is mentioned 21 times. The main reason for the position offered here is a consideration of what this man's problem really is. In verse 14 he is said to be made out of flesh (Gk sarkinos, not sarkikos). Many translations confuse these two Greek words. The first word emphasizes composition while the second emphasizes tendency ("fleshy" vs. "fleshly"). In verse 18 in my flesh means the whole fallen nature that needs the resurrection body (Php 3:21). In verse 24 the wretched man cries out to be rescued ("out," Gk ek) from this dying body. As a believer in Christ, Paul longed to be delivered from the fallen human body which still has indwelling sin.

7:14-15 The law is from God and is therefore spiritual, but Paul is made out of flesh (a metaphorical reference to spiritual fallenness) and thus finds himself conflicted with the heavenly law of God.

7:16-17 Paul agreed with the law and its goodness, but sin is an alien power that has residence within him and causes him to do things he hates.

7:18-19 Even after conversion, there is no part of a person that is sinless, no place without sin's presence, and the believer is unable to keep the whole law. The only good in a believer is the presence of the Holy Spirit.

7:20-23 In his inner self (Gk eso anthropos), in his deepest recesses, the believer delights in God's law, but he finds this alien power living within, waging war with him and taking him prisoner to the law of sin.

7:24-25 Many modern commentators and translators try to reorder these verses, but the order makes sense if the interpretation outlined above is followed. In verse 24 the subject cries out for deliverance from the fallen human condition. A cry of thanksgiving is then offered to God because the subject knows that Jesus will deliver him from his body. The believer recognizes that in his mind he wants to serve God's law since it is holy, just, good, and spiritual, but at the same time his fallen nature is in the service of this alien power—sin.

8:1-39 Romans 8 has been called the most wonderful chapter in the Bible. It begins with "no condemnation" (v. 1) and ends with no separation from God (v. 39). Whereas 7:14-25 describes the new man in relation to the law, chapter 8 describes the new man in relation to the Holy Spirit and His work in and through the new man.

8:1 There is no condemnation for the believer because he is not under the law (6:14), and he has been released from the law (7:6). He can now serve God in the "new way of the Spirit" (7:6).

8:2-3 The believer's freedom comes from Jesus' incarnation and His work as the sin offering and by the Holy Spirit's operation in providing life. The Second Person of the Trinity, the Son, took on humanity. He did not cease to be God but took on a real human nature (without sin) and became the perfect offering. He fulfilled the law's demands in His life and in His death and broke sin's power in a human body on the cross.

8:4 Christians can now live a new way of love. "Love . . . is the fulfillment of the law" (13:10). They can live freely in keeping with the Spirit.

8:5 Paul described the two kinds of people: the old man and the new—two different kinds of existence or two "mind-sets."

8:6 The outcome of the two ways of thinking are explained: death versus life and peace.

8:7-8 Unregenerate people (Gk in sark; lit "in the flesh") are hostile to God and unable to submit to God's law because they lack God's Spirit, which makes submission possible.

8:9-11 Christians are in a new realm, for the Spirit indwells them. The Spirit's presence is the mark of Christ's ownership. The Christian's physical body will still die because of sin's effects (unless the Lord returns before death; 1Co 15:50-57). The pledge and promise of the Spirit is that He will raise us as He did Jesus. Now the Spirit provides life and righteousness.

8:12-13 Freedom brings an obligation. If a person lives to the fallen nature, death is his destiny. The Christian is activated by the Holy Spirit to stop doing the sinful deeds of the body. He can mortify the flesh and its activities, and he lives.

8:14 The leading of God's Spirit is His providential sanctification (Ps 23:3). It is common to all sons, it is constant, and it will bring the believer to glory (Rm 8:17). The leading of the Spirit is not mystical direction or ecstasy. It is the Spirit's empowerment for mortification of fleshly desires (v. 13).

8:15-16 The Holy Spirit is not an agent of bondage but is instead the means of our adoption into God's family. By the Spirit we have a consciousness that God is our Father. It is the mark of a Christian to cry out to his Father in prayer. The Spirit also gives us assurance of our status and therefore of our salvation.

8:17 All God's children are His heirs and coheirs with Christ. We are joined to Him in suffering but also in our future destiny. As He is in glory (1Tm 3:16; Heb 1:3; 2:7,9-10) so we will be glorified with Him.

8:18 Paul stated the truth of this verse like this: "Our momentary light affliction is producing for us an absolutely incomparable eternal weight of glory" (2Co 4:17).

8:19-21 The created order of this earth was cursed at the fall (Gn 3:17-19), and it will be restored in the regeneration. When we receive our freedom, the entire world will be changed (Is 2:2-4; 11:6-9; Rv 21-22).

8:22-23 Paul describes the groaning of creation, the groaning of believers, and the groaning of the Holy Spirit (v. 26). Travail gives birth to a new creation. Christians have only the firstfruits—the pledge of more to come in our salvation. We groan because of our fallen nature. Our new resurrection bodies will conform us to Jesus' glorified body.

8:24-25 Our salvation is secure, but it is as yet unseen and thus a matter of hope. We wait in faith and patience.

8:26-27 In our weakness we have the help of the Spirit. Jesus is our intercessor in heaven (Heb 7:25), and the Spirit is our intercessor on earth within our hearts. We are limited and ignorant, but the Spirit uses unspoken groanings to communicate our needs. This is not "speaking in tongues or languages" (Gk glossolalia). It is instead wordless. Our heavenly Father knows what is happening in our lives and within the deep recesses of our personalities (1Sm 16:7; Pr 15:11; Jr 17:10). The Spirit's requests are always according to the will of God and are always answered.

8:28 Who are those who love God? Paul defines them as those who are called according to His purpose. The "called" are all Christians (vv. 29-30). The promise of this verse is that God orders everything for believers so that all of life's experiences work together for our ultimate good. Not everything is good in and of itself, but God uses everything for our good (vv. 35-36). Jesus taught us that God's sovereign care for and guidance of creation covers even the death of a sparrow and the hairs of our head (Lk 12:6-7,22-34).

8:29-30 God has a plan that spans from eternity past to eternity future. Those He foreknew refers to those whom God set His electing love upon in eternity past. Predestined means that God planned from eternity that "those [whom] He foreknew" would become like Christ through spiritual rebirth. Called is the "effectual" call in which God opens our heart so we can hear His voice (cp. Ac 16:14). "Calling" in Paul's writing never means just an invitation. It is a sovereign summons that draws the sinner from death to life. Justified is God's act of declaration that we are "right" in His sight because Jesus paid our penalty and we received His righteousness (2Co 5:21). Glorified is the final stage of our salvation. Notice that our future glorification is so certain that it is spoken of in the past tense.

8:31 If God is for us expresses not a hypothetical scenario, but a sure reality: God really is for us. This well summarizes the gospel, and serves as a concise summary of 3:21-8:30 (Cranfield, Romans, 1:434). OT believers had the same assurance: "I fear no danger, for You are with me" (Ps 23:4; cp. Ps 27:1). "This I know: God is for me" (Ps 56:9). Who is against us? The opposition seems like a lot sometimes—the world, the flesh, Satan, secularists, false religions, our enemies—but God loves us and is sovereign. Yahweh is our Shepherd, Maker of heaven and earth!

8:32 In contrast to Abraham who was permitted to spare his only son, God did not spare His Son. If God did the greater (gave His Son), will He not do the lesser and give us all that is necessary for life and godliness? Of course He will.

8:33 Our accusers are numerous, but God the Judge has already pronounced the final verdict.

8:35-36 God's people have always faced persecutions and hardships, as vividly portrayed in the complaints of Ps 44. Will such things separate us from the love of Christ?

8:37 We are more than victorious not by our ability but because God loved us.

8:38-39 Paul's "grand persuasion" (Gk pepeismai) is in the perfect tense, which indicates a past action that has ongoing impact. Having been persuaded (by God), he stood firm in the belief that nothing could separate him from the love of God. Jesus conquered death and Satan on the cross, ensuring that nothing can change God's love or purpose for us. We "are being protected by God's power through faith for a salvation that is ready to be revealed in the last time" (1Pt 1:5).

9- 11 Many interpreters have been puzzled by this section of Romans. Anti-Jewish interpreters argue that God is finished with the Jews (9:1-29), while other interpreters view these chapters as a digression from Paul's exposition of the gospel. But K. H. Rengstorff of Germany recognized otherwise in 1949: "During the years of its sufferings, the Confessing Church learnt that Romans 9-11 held the key to the understanding of the NT."

This is because these chapters help answer tough questions about how Jesus could be the Jewish Messiah and yet suffer rejection by the majority of Israel. Was the glory of the Davidic Messiah not supposed to excel the glory of David himself? Also, the Jewish expectation was that when Messiah came, Israel would be delivered from Gentile oppression and would hold priority over the nations. Since these things had not happened, many people assumed either that Jesus was not the promised Messiah or else that God had broken His promises to Israel. Furthermore, if Jesus really was Messiah and yet God had not delivered Israel, how could anyone trust Him to keep His gospel promises? And so the trustworthiness of God seemed to be on the line.

Paul overturned these doubts by answering from three perspectives: (1) from the viewpoint of divine sovereignty (chap. 9), (2) from human responsibility (chap. 10), and (3) from God's final purpose (chap. 11).

9:1-3 Far from being a traitor among the Jews, Paul insisted that he felt intense sorrow and continual anguish over Jewish national unbelief and would willingly forsake his own salvation if it could save his brothers, his own flesh and blood.

9:4-5 Paul began in 3:1-2 to list Jewish national benefits. Now he returns to list their privileges, the greatest of which is the incarnation of God in Jewish flesh.

9:6 It is a basic misunderstanding of the OT promises to think that all who were in the nation of Israel were guaranteed to receive God's spiritual blessings. Paul provides examples in the following verses.

9:7 Abraham had children by Hagar and Keturah, but the promised line was through Sarah's son Isaac.

9:8-9 Ishmael was a physical son of Abraham, but Isaac was the physical son with the spiritual promises.

9:10-11 The case is clearer with Rebekah because she had twins. God's choice of the younger twin before their birth showed His gracious election and indicated again that God's blessings are His to hand out and that they were not an automatic birthright of all ethnic Jews; see note at verse 6.

9:12-13 The divine purpose was revealed from the beginning of the Hebrew nation when God chose one twin over the other. The prophet Malachi traced God's differing treatment of two nations to this divine choice (Mal 1:1-5). Both nations were punished for their sins, but only one received grace. I have loved Jacob means God chose or elected his descendants (the nation of Israel), whereas I have hated Esau means that God rejected the nation that stemmed from him (Edom).

9:14-15 Is there injustice with God? is a rhetorical question, inspired by the fact that it is difficult to grasp the fact that God does not need to treat all sinners the same in order to be just. Jesus taught the same truth in the parable of the vineyard workers (Mt 20:1-15: "Don't I have the right to do what I want with my business?"). In His first sermon in Nazareth, Jesus pointed out that God gave grace to a widow in Sidon and healed only Naaman the Syrian when there were many needy people in Israel (Lk 4:24-27). His comments enraged the audience, but careful consideration reveals that a just God is perfectly free to make such choices. If you gave money to one beggar but not to another, or if you forgave one debtor but not another, would you be unjust? Of course not. You chose to be gracious to one where you could have justly chosen to be gracious to none. God does not owe mercy to anyone. Paul quoted Ex 33:19 to this effect.

9:16 Salvation does not depend on human will or effort. Salvation is based on God's mercy. The situation is not that people want to be saved but cannot be (2Tm 2:25-26), or that they are running after God but cannot find Him. Apart from God's drawing them, none are seeking the one true God—not a single one (Rm 3:11-12).

9:17 God raised up Pharaoh as ruler of Egypt and used him as a foil to reveal His name (Yahweh) and His power so the one true God would be known. Pharaoh believed himself to be the epitome of Ra the sun god. He hardened his heart and rejected God's revelation (Ex 7:3; 8:15).

9:18 God hardened Pharaoh in his stubbornness as he progressively rejected the plagues that revealed "the finger of God" (Ex 8:19). Exodus points out that Pharaoh hardened his heart many times before God punished him by hardening him.

9:19 Paul declared that the Judge of the earth is always just. "Will the one who contends with the Almighty correct Him?" (Jb 40:2). Man cannot judge God.

9:20-22 Adam (man) is from the adama (ground) (Gn 2:7). In pronouncing punishment for Adam and Eve's sin, God said, "For you are dust, and you will return to dust" (Gn 3:19). The image of the village potter is common in the OT

(Is 41:25; 45:9; Jr 18:1-12) and is used to illustrate different lessons. Here the clay represents fallen humanity. Much as a potter, God works this material into shapes that fulfill His desires (Is 64:6-9). Some pots He chooses to be for honor; others He patiently endures until He displays His justified wrath against sin.

9:23-24 God desires to display His grace on objects of mercy, the ones on whom He has set His redeeming love. These come from both Jewish and Gentile backgrounds.

9:25-26 Drawing from Hosea's marriage, Paul compares Gentile salvation to mercy bestowed on an undeserving adulterous wife (see the book of Hosea).

9:27-29 Paul also cited the words of Isaiah to show that God will save a remnant of Israel that He "calls." Unless God had been gracious to the remnant, the whole nation would have been justly wiped out like ancient Sodom and Gomorrah.

9:30-10:21 Chapter and verse divisions in the Bible are modern inventions made for the convenience of readers. Chapters 9-11 are one unit of thought, and they must be understood together to get a complete picture of Paul's argument.

9:30-33 Gentiles, who were not seeking righteousness, were granted it by grace through faith. They did not work for it or earn it. But Israel missed it by seeking righteousness through the law and by their works. They stumbled over the Messiah and did not believe in Him (Is 8:14; 28:16). Jesus Himself warned Israel that they missed the "stone" (Mt 21:42-44; see Ps 118:22-23).

10:1 Paul saw no contradiction between election and prayer. Only a sovereign God, who has rights to move unilaterally in the affairs of humanity, can answer prayer. Among unbelievers we do not know beforehand who is elect and will come to faith upon hearing the gospel, but we can know that "God our Savior . . . wants everyone to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth" (1Tm 2:4). Paul therefore prayed for Jewish salvation, and we must be diligent to share the good news of Jesus with everyone. It is never proper to give up on someone as "non-elect."

10:2-3 Both zeal and true knowledge are necessary if one is truly to know God and serve Him. In his zeal as a non-Christian Pharisee, Paul (then called Saul; see Ac 7:58 and note there) persecuted the church (Ac 22:3-5). Likewise, zeal among unbelieving Jews led to Jesus' unjust execution. In spiritual blindness they not only missed God's way of righteousness, they opposed it.

10:4 Christ is the end of the law in being both its fulfillment and its termination. Any system of salvation based on performance is excluded.

10:5-7 Paul quoted Moses on both sides of the issue. In Lv 18:5 (cp. Gl 3:12) obedience to the law brings life, but no one can keep the law and gain righteousness (as implied by Paul's citation of Moses in v. 6). Faith-based righteousness is from Christ. He is accessible. He died for us and was raised from the dead. Moses pointed out that God's revelation was accessible, and Paul quoted his words to show that Christ is accessible.

10:8 The nearness of the message of faith is at the heart and mouth of people, just as Moses proclaimed the nearness of God's revelation.

10:9-10 Jesus is Lord is a confession of faith. "Lord" is the translation of the Greek word kurios . This is the regular way of translating the Hebrew name for God (Yahweh) in the Greek OT (the LXX). Jesus is not only the Messiah (Gk Christ = Hb Messiah), but He is also Yahweh. Not only do we believe that the man Jesus was raised . . . from the dead, but we also believe that He shares the same nature with God. This is the start of the understanding of Christ's two natures, as articulated at the Council of Chalcedon (A.D. 451). Jesus is fully human and fully God. Christians by definition believe and confess this truth.

10:11-13 Paul cited biblical support for the universal offer of salvation. Salvation is for both Jew and Greek (i.e., Gentiles) since the same Lord (Gk kurios, v. 12) is rich in mercy to all. The promise is for all who call on the name of the Lord (kurios, v. 13). As the prophet Joel said, "Everyone who calls on the name of Yahweh will be saved" (Jl 2:32). Jesus is Lord, or Yahweh.

10:14-15 What must occur for someone to call on the name of the Lord? Someone must first be sent to proclaim the gospel message, and then listeners must pay attention and believe. In the absence of any one of these factors, no one can call on the name of the Lord.

10:16-21 Paul quoted several OT passages to show that the conditions described in verses 14-15 had been met for Israel. The gospel message was proclaimed throughout the Roman Empire. The Jews listened and simply did not believe. The Gentiles heard too, and many embraced it. Paul's citations show that the Gentile conversion was predicted in the OT. Ultimately, all peoples are a disobedient and defiant people. Israel was singled out in this way due to their consistent rejection of God's message and messengers (see Ac 7:51-60).

11:1-4 Paul continued explaining that the unbelief of Israel is no argument against the gospel. Israel's blindness is not total, and God is still working with the nation. In the days of Samuel, the nation rejected God as their king and chose a human king. Yet God continued to work with His people: "The LORD will not abandon His people, because of His great name and because He has determined to make you His own people" (1Sm 12:22). In Paul's time, they had rejected Jesus as King Messiah and their leaders said, "We have no king but Caesar" (Jn 19:15), but God was not finished with them. Paul himself was evidence that God was saving some Jews. God's election of the nation (whom he foreknew, v. 2; cp. 8:29) is immutable. Even in times of national apostasy, God saves a remnant.

11:5-6 Grace is by definition unmerited favor. Grace would cease to be grace if works played a role in election.

11:7-10 The Jewish nation missed salvation because they sought for it by works. The elect portion was given mercy, but the majority was hardened in unbelief; OT citations are given to show that God has judged His people.

11:11 Like a runner in a race, the Jewish nation had stumbled, but they had not totally fallen. Their stumbling had a purpose—to bring salvation to the Gentiles. Salvation for the Gentiles will eventually provoke the Jews to envy (Ac 13:45-51). In the book of Acts Paul regularly went to preach in the synagogues first, but then would turn to the Gentiles following Jewish rejection. This pattern continued until the end of the book of Acts (cp. 28:26-29).

11:12, 15-16 The future reception of Jews by God will result in world blessing. If their unbelief brought riches to the Gentiles, their future faith in Jesus as Messiah will enrich the world (cp. Is 2:2-4).

11:16-24 The olive tree was a symbol of the nation of Israel. It was used in this section by Paul as an illustration or allegory of God's dealings with Jews and Gentiles. The patriarchs are represented by the root of the tree. The Gentiles are a wild graft. Pruned off branches are the unbelieving Jews. Salvation is by faith, and the Gentiles need to be humble about their position. Spiritual pride has no place in salvation by grace. God is able to restore the Jewish people to the place of faith. Salvation is always a miracle. It is no harder for God to save a Jew than a Gentile.

11:25-27 A mystery has been revealed by God: (1) A partial hardening has come to Israel; (2) this will continue until a full number of the Gentiles come in; and (3) then all Israel will be saved. "Israel" is the name for the Jewish people. It is used 70 times in the NT of Jews, Hebrews, or Israelites. It is not used as a title for the church. Galatians 6:16 is not an exception; it refers to saved or godly Jews as "the Israel of God." Here in verse 26, "all Israel" means there will be a conversion of the Hebrew nation. It does not mean that every single Jew living will be saved. Salvation is defined in verses 26-27 as the new covenant that the Messiah will inaugurate.

11:28-32 Israel's vocation and gifts are irrevocable, so their future salvation is certain. God in His mercy gives grace to the disobedient: both to Gentiles and Jews. Both were so imprisoned in their disobedience that there was no way to escape except by God's mercy.

11:33-36 In these verses Paul concludes his line of reasoning that Israel's current unbelief is no argument against the truth of the gospel. He is moved to exclamations of wonder at God's wisdom, power, and plan. Who could have foreseen what God was working out? Paul cites various OT texts to express

God's incomprehensible purposes. God is to be honored because He is the Alpha and the Omega—the Creator, the sustainer and ruler, and the goal of all things (cp. Cranfield, Romans, 2:591).

12:1-2 Paul commonly used the indicative mode of speech to make statements about what God has done for us before using the imperative mode to outline our proper response (e.g., Therefore . . . I urge you). The order of presentation is doctrine first, and then duty. Our worship entails offering our bodies as a living sacrifice, which means dedication of the total person to living for God's honor. Christians are to be different from non-Christian society. We should experience a progressive transformation of life by the renewing of our mind. The mind is changed by prayer, by reading and reflection on God's Word, by worship, and by meditation on God's acts as the Holy Spirit works in us.

12:3-8 As part of a renewed mind, the Christian is to think wisely about himself and what his function is to be in the body of Christ (the church; see 1Co 12:12-28). Measure of faith may mean a person should measure himself by the gospel. Others see it as different apportionments of faith. Either way, Paul exhorts Christians to be humble and to use what God has given for the good of the body. Based on Rm 12:3; 1Co 12:8-10; Eph 4:11; 1Pt 4:10, Christians are given gifts to use for the good of others.

The NT lists at least 17 kinds of gifts. Christians are defined not just by their personal faith but also by their inclusion in local faith fellowships that are expressions of the body of Christ (see 1Co 12:12-31). Only some of the gifts are explained in this present passage. Prophecy in the NT churches was direct revelation from God before the canon was completed. This gift was to be used and measured in concert with the objective body of Christian truths. Service (Gk diakonia) is the origin of the word "deacon." A deacon here is not a member of a board of directors but a servant. It describes not a title or office but a gift of ministry. Pastors should have this gift. Teaching is an essential gift. Parents teach children, older believers teach younger believers, vocational pastor-teachers are the primary instructors in a church, and elders should be able to teach also. All believers can teach to some level, but those who have a special facility for teaching are responsible to develop and utilize it. Exhortation is the gift of motivating and encouraging. This gift is similar to the Holy Spirit's function. Giving is to be done with generosity. All can give, but capacities differ. Some delight to give out of very small means (Mk 12:41-44); others give a "reverse tithe"—they give 90 percent and live on 10 percent. Leading is a gift of vision and direction that is effective but should not be overbearing. Mercy is helping the sick, the poor, and the sorrowful. This gift is to be exercised with cheerfulness. Practical assistance to needy members was a main emphasis of the early churches. This same emphasis should characterize churches today.

12:9-16 Transformed thinking is explained in a series of short exhortations. Paul has expounded divine love in this letter; now he shifts to the disciple's "faith working through love" (Gl 5:6). Christians are one family, and they should honor one another and display genuine affection. They should be fervent in spirit or let the Spirit kindle and motivate their service. They should also rejoice in the hope of Jesus' return; share what they have, and share the joys and sorrows of the church family. Keep praying—in the afflictions and persecutions of life, members of the body are to support one another. Pride is a great sin and humility is a great virtue. One shouldn't think too much of oneself. "God resists the proud, but gives grace to the humble" (1Pt 5:5).

12:17-21 Christians often suffer hatred and persecution from society (1Pt 1:6; 2:11-12; 3:14-17; 4:12-16; 5:9). The normal response is to retaliate, but Christians are called to serve and minister God's grace to a lost and hostile world. Jesus is our model. As much as possible, we are to live at peace with everyone. God is the sovereign who can convert even a Saul who persecuted the church. God is the judge and the administrator of wrath. Our role is to display God's grace and love in our lives. God in Jesus conquered evil on the cross. We are not to let evil conquer us.

13:1-7 The relation of the church to the state is a matter of perennial controversy. Israel struggled under various world empires and in NT times was under the yoke of Rome. How should God's people relate to ungodly governments? Jesus once addressed this matter by saying, "Give back to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's" (Mt 22:21). Government is an institution ordained by God for man's benefit, but it can be corrupted and twisted out of its proper function. Paul in these few short verses did not address some of the questions that we might ask him, but clearly he wanted Roman Christians to be good citizens. However, that same government put our Lord to death (Jn 19:10-11) and killed both Peter and Paul. This same government is in view again in Revelation 13. Thus the Christian must take care to discern possible cases where obedience to the government entails disobedience to God.

13:1 That no authority exists except from God indicates God's sovereignty over human affairs. It also shows why unwarranted rebellion against government is de facto rebellion against God (v. 2).

13:2-4 The Jewish nation rebelled against Rome in two costly wars, bringing judgment upon themselves at a cost of more than one million lives. Government is ordained by God to reward good and punish evil, providing peace and order for those whom it serves. The sword alludes to capital punishment. A government that rewards evil and punishes good will not long survive, for evil is innately destructive. “If a ruler listens to lies, all his officials will be wicked” (Pr 29:12).

13:5-7 Since the civil government is ordained by God and gives us certain benefits, we are to submit to it. We are to pay taxes to support it, honor and respect it. Early Christians refused to worship emperor or state, but they showed their respect by praying for the authorities. Paul taught, “I urge that petitions, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be made for everyone, for kings and all those who are in authority” (1Tm 2:1-2).

13:8-10 The Christian is to pay all his obligations, but there is one debt we can never repay. This is the debt of agape love. Some have misinterpreted this verse as prohibiting all monetary debt, including having a mortgage on a house or buying a car on an installment plan. It may be wise never to go into monetary debt (cp. “the borrower is a slave to the lender,” Pr 22:7), but this verse has little to do with modern methods of finance. It is about fulfilling obligations of all kinds. We can never stop “loving” (agape love) as long as we live. Love fulfills the law because if we love our neighbor we will do him no harm. We fulfill the first four commands by loving the Lord and the rest of the law by obeying the prohibitions as we love our neighbor.

13:11-14 Christians live between the ages. The old age is passing, and the new is dawning. We long for the new age to fully come, and we recognize that our salvation will soon be completed. We have been “rescued . . . from the domain of darkness” (Col 1:13) and from the night of sin into a new realm of light. We need to wake up from spiritual lethargy. Paul used the image of taking off the old clothes of sinful behavior and putting on the Lord Jesus Christ as our way of life. This passage is famous for bringing Augustine of Hippo to salvation (Confessions, 8:12.22).

14:1-15:13 The exact historical background of the problem described in this section is unknown. Christians in Rome had different opinions on certain practices since they came from various backgrounds. If they came from paganism, they may have viewed as tainted the foods and drinks sold in the markets (cp. 1Co 8:1-13; 10:23-33). If they came from certain cults, they could even be vegetarians. Similarly, today people who convert to Christianity from Islam, Judaism, and Hinduism have a history of dietary practices and observation of special days. Food or calendar issues may therefore have special importance to them as matters of conscience. In this passage, most interpreters think the issue came from those who sought to observe (or even enforce) the ceremonial part of OT law. Theologians have called these issues “matters of indifference” (Gk adiaphora) since differences of opinion are allowed, but it is easy to see how some believers feel otherwise. The church must strive for tolerance and understanding on such matters, emphasizing the unity of believers, the expression of love for others, and the purity of the gospel message.

14:1 The believer who is weak in faith is overly conscientious about matters not regulated by Christian revelation. Paul commanded believers to welcome weak Christians but not to get into arguments about doubtful issues.

14:2 Jews were not normally vegetarians, but some were (e.g., Daniel; see Dn 1:8-12).

14:3-4 Mutual toleration is a Christian virtue. God accepts each believer, along with issues stemming from his background and maturity level, and is able to sanctify him. Though we may be used of God to help inform weak believers, we must never criticize another's household slave.

14:5 The observing of special days is complicated (cp. Paul's warnings in Gl 4:10 and Col 2:16 about "a sabbath day"). Luther believed Sunday was not the Sabbath but a new day of worship, whereas Calvin believed the Sabbath was changed to Sunday. Some groups believe in Friday/Saturday Sabbath observance. In thinking through this issue, we should consider the implications of Christ's Sunday-morning resurrection and the new covenant.

14:6 Our religious practices are to be done out of conviction before God. How we live and die must come from the conviction that we belong to the Lord.

14:7-9 We are not our own. Christ died and rose to be Lord of all. Luther said paradoxically, "A Christian is a perfectly free lord of all, subject to none. A Christian is a perfectly dutiful servant, subject to all." But most of all, we belong to the Lord.

14:10-12 The tribunal of God (Gk beyma) is elsewhere called the "tribunal of Christ" (2Co 5:10). Many interpreters distinguish this from the great white throne judgment in Rv 20:11-15. The "tribunal of Christ" is where believers will be rewarded or suffer loss of rewards (1Co 3:13) based on their deeds and their stewardship of God-given responsibilities. In distinction to this, the great white throne judgment is the place where unbelievers will be raised for judgment. Believers take part in the first resurrection, and there is no condemnation for them (Rm 8:1; Rv 20:4-6). All people will bow before God and give an account of their lives. Christians might think that because they are exempt from the final condemnation they can live any way they want, but Christ the Lord will evaluate His servants.

14:13 Our goal must be to help all believers grow into spiritual maturity and not to hinder their progress.

14:14 This is one of Paul's most amazing statements. His background as a Pharisee trained him to emphasize the distinction between clean and unclean, but Jesus persuaded him that this distinction was no longer valid. Thus Paul adopted a new stance, but he also recognized that some believers, especially those from a Jewish background, had not made this transition. Mature believers should not recklessly push "weak" believers (v. 1) into such a transition.

14:15 A strong Christian must live in love and not violate the conscience of a weak believer. The conscience is the moral faculty of the mind. It can be educated by God through the Holy Spirit, but we must never teach anyone to go against his conscience. Do not destroy means that we can cause a person's spiritual ruin by teaching them to ignore or violate their conscience.

14:16-17 Christian liberty will get a bad name if love does not govern it. Food is never to be a major concern in our lives, but we are to promote righteousness, peace, and joy in the churches.

14:18-19 Our actions should serve Christ and help other Christians grow and flourish.

14:20-21 Objectively, everything is clean ("everything created by God is good, and nothing should be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving," 1Tm 4:4). Yet some immature believers might stumble over meat or drink (1Co 8:7-11).

14:22-23 A Christian's sense of freedom in these matters should not translate into public behavior if another believer finds the freedom scandalous. For instance, a Muslim convert who never ate pork or drank wine might stumble if he saw a Christian doing either of these things.

15:1 Why should the strong "give in" to the conscience of the weak? The way of love demands it. The strong believer does not forsake his conscience by abstaining from certain of his freedoms, but the weaker believer would have to violate his in order to accommodate the liberties of the strong. Thus the strong should choose in accordance with the weak.

15:2-3 The strong Christian is to follow the example of his Lord, who did not please Himself. As foretold in Scripture, Jesus bore the insults and hostility that people had against God (Ps 69:9).

15:4 Far from being irrelevant to Christian faith, the OT writings are for our instruction (2Tm 3:16). Not everything in them is applicable to new covenant discipleship, but everything points to Jesus (Lk 24:27).

15:5-6 Paul's prayer is that God will bring these house churches of Rome to the place of harmony, love, and unity that will enable them to best honor God.

15:7-8 These verses show that people from Jewish and Gentile backgrounds struggled with accepting one another. Jesus as the Messiah was born a Jew and ministered to Israel ("I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel," Mt 15:24) to fulfill OT promises and prophecies. His primary purpose was for Israel, but He also had a design for the nations (Gentiles).

15:9-12 A series of citations from the OT demonstrates God's plans. Quotes from the Law, History, Psalms, and Prophets refer to Gentile reception and praise of God. In Ps 18:49 the Messiah stands among converted Gentiles and offers their praise, along with His own, to the Father. In Dt 32:43 Moses summons the Gentiles to join Israel in joyful praise to God. Psalm 117 is the shortest psalm, and it calls for universal praise from the nations. In Isaiah the Davidic King, the Messiah, is described as the hope not just of Israel but of all the nations (Is 11:10).

15:13 Paul gave a second benediction for the churches with emphasis on hope in God produced by the Holy Spirit's work among them.

15:14-16 Paul was convinced that the Roman Christians were gifted by God for effective service and healthy church life. God does not build His church without seeing to these needs. Yet Paul also knew that God had uniquely called and equipped him as an apostle to the Gentiles. So what he wrote was sure to be useful in helping the Roman house churches grow to maturity. He served as a priest offering the Gentiles to God and wanted this offering to be holy, acceptable, and pleasing to God (12:1-2).

15:17-19 Paul wanted to boast in Christ Jesus to the Roman believers about how God had used him to spread the good news all the way from Jerusalem to the Roman province of Illyricum (modern Albania). God had approved of his ministry by authenticating signs and wonders and many conversions. The Roman believers would have been comforted by this testimony, for it illustrated the secure basis on which they had rested their hopes for salvation.

15:20-21 In 10 years, God had used Paul as a pioneer church planter in the eastern section of the Roman Empire. Paul felt his ministry was in keeping with OT messianic prophecy (Is 52:15). He was the planter; others would come water the soil, and God would give growth (1Co 3:3-9).

15:22-24 God's work for Paul in the eastern half of the Roman Empire had kept him from going to Rome sooner, but now the work was completed and he planned to pass through Rome on a mission trip to the western part of the Roman Empire (Spain). Scholars are divided on whether Paul ever made it to Spain. The Bible does not record a Spanish mission for Paul.

15:25-29 Paul was on his way to Jerusalem to bring a gift from the Gentile churches for the poor of the Jewish church in that city. He planned to come to Rome next. Little did he know he would be taken to Rome in custody (Ac 25:11-28:14,30-31).

15:30-33 Paul made three specific prayer requests: (1) for deliverance from hostile forces, (2) that the gift from Gentile Christians would be welcomed by Jewish Christians, and (3) that he might come to Rome. All three were answered; see Ac 23:10; 21:17-20a; 25:11-12 respectively.

16:1-2 Phoebe was the probable carrier of this letter to Rome. Paul commended her for her service.

16:3-4 Prisca and Aquila (Ac 18:1-3,18,26; 2Tm 4:19) were Paul's coworkers. They had churches in their homes, they instructed Apollos, and they risked their own necks to save Paul.

16:5 Epaenetus means "beloved." He was Asia's first convert to Christ.

16:7 The phrase noteworthy in the eyes of the apostles is variously translated as "well-known to the apostles" or as "outstanding among the apostles." The word "apostle" can be used in a nontechnical sense, referring to a messenger rather than a commissioned apostle such as Paul.

16:13 Rufus was possibly the same Rufus whose father ("Simon, a Cyrenian") helped carry Jesus' cross to Golgotha (Mk 15:21-22).

16:17-20 Satan and false teachers will always assail the church (Ac 20:28-29; 2Co 11:13-15; Gl 5:10-12; Php 3:2,18-20; Col 2:16-19). Paul warned believers at Rome to be alert and avoid false teachers. Illustrating the familiar both/and relation between divine sovereignty and human responsibility to choose, we must be diligent in the battle against darkness, but ultimate victory is assured (The God of peace will soon crush Satan).

16:22-23 Scholars debate the role of the scribe (in this case, Tertius) in ancient writings. Did they typically take dictation word for word, or was their composition taken down in shorthand or perhaps a summary manner? Biblical teaching about divine inspiration of the biblical author commends the first suggestion.

16:24-27 By my gospel, Paul did not mean his preaching did not reflect God's direct revelation (see Gl 1:11-12). He meant the gospel as he had faithfully preached it: a gospel of grace for all nations. In ages past this gospel was a mystery kept silent as God directed history until "the time came to completion" (Gl 4:4). In Christ the "mystery" is revealed to the world.

Focus passage Romans 1:16

The English words dynamic and dynamite come directly from the Greek noun dunamis, though dynamite is far removed from the meaning of dunamis. The term dunamis can mean power, might, strength, or ability; the related verb dunamai means to be able (210 uses in the NT), and the adjective dunatos means possible. The synonym exousia means power or authority and usually refers to derived authority, whereas dunamis normally refers to inherent power.

Various kinds of power are described by the term dunamis in Romans. In 1:16 dunamis refers to the gospel that has been infused with God's power so people can be saved. Dunamis is also used to refer to God's omnipotence (1:20), to the Son's power (1:4), and to the Spirit's power (15:13,19). In 8:38 dunamis is used as a way of referring to demons. Finally, dunamis is used as one of the words for miraculous signs and wonders (15:19).

In ancient Greek, the verb prasso had a variety of meanings, such as to practice, effect, transact, negotiate, manage, achieve, accomplish, and make. The term could also mean to mind one's own affairs or business. In general, prasso meant to do or to act and could refer to almost any action. The corresponding noun praxis means deed, action, or practice; the plural form of this term is the first word of the Greek name for the book of Acts (Praxeis Apostolon, literally, 'Actions of [the] Apostles').

Prasso in the NT ordinarily follows standard Greek usage. The term commonly emphasizes the experience in an action rather than just the action itself. It can refer to doing good (Ac 26:20; Rm 2:25; Php 4:9; 1Th 4:11), but most often it refers to habitual evil actions (Lk 22:23; 23:15,41; Jn 3:20; Ac 3:17; 19:19,36; 2Co 12:21; Gl 5:21), especially in Romans (1:32; 2:1-3; 7:15,19; 13:4).

Focus passage Romans 3:25

The Greek noun hilasterion in Rm 3:25 is rich with theological meaning. The only other place this term occurs in the NT is Heb 9:5, which says that the cherubim above the ark of the covenant in the Most Holy Place were 'overshadowing the mercy seat.' In the OT, the word is used for the lid of the ark of the covenant (traditionally called 'the mercy seat'; see Ex 25:17-22; Lv 16:2,13-15). Another related word, hilasmos, occurs twice in the NT (1Jn 2:2; 4:10). This word family refers to the turning away of God's wrath against sin by means of a sacrifice. The main ideas of this word group are mercy and satisfactory sacrifice for sin. The innermost part of the tabernacle was the place where mercy was found, but only through the proper sacrifice. Similarly, Jesus' death is the only place one can find mercy. God's wrath against sin was turned away by Christ's sacrificial death.

Focus passage Romans 4:3-11

The Greek verb logizomai means to count or to credit to an account, and thus it was a mathematical term in general and an accounting term in particular. It also had other meanings, such as to keep a record or list, to think, to consider. In the NT, logizomai means to credit to one's account only once outside of Paul's writings (Jms 2:23). The other five non-Pauline occurrences of the term mean to count (Lk 22:37), to consider (Jn 11:50), to regard (Ac 19:27; 1Pt 5:12), or to reckon (Heb 11:19). However, the most significant use of logizomai is related to salvation. Paul often used the term to explain how a person can be in a right relationship with God. Paul's imagery is that a lost person owes God an infinite debt that he has no ability to pay because of sin. However, Christ's death on the sinner's behalf is the basis of the debt being canceled (aphiemi), with Christ's righteousness being credited to the believer's account (Rm 2:26; 4:3-6,10-11,22-24; 2Co 5:19; Gl 3:6).

charis

HCSB Translation grace
Uses in Romans 24
Uses in the NT 155
Focus passage Romans 5:2

The Greek noun charis refers to an unmerited favorable disposition toward someone or something. In the NT, charis is commonly used in relation to salvation, especially in Paul's writings. Paul used charis to explain that salvation comes from God's own choice to show favor in redeeming lost persons through faith in Christ (Rm 5:1; Eph 2:8-9; 2Tm 1:9). However, God's undeserved favor is not toward those who have done nothing offensive; rather, God shows grace toward those who have sinned against Him and are actually His enemies.

In Romans 5, Paul explained that peace with God is an act of God's grace (vv. 1-2). He reminded believers that at one time they were God's enemies (v. 10; see Eph 2:1-16; Col 1:21-22). Therefore, a better NT definition of charis would be unmerited favor toward an enemy — grace toward one who has forfeited any claim on God's favor because of sin and who deserves the opposite—God's judgment (5:9).

Focus passage Romans 6:7

The Greek verb dikaioo means to justify or to declare righteous. Two related words occur quite often in the NT: the noun dikaiosune, meaning righteousness, and the adjective dikaios, meaning just or righteous. The common thread in this word family is conformity to a standard, and the standard is primarily God's will. In the Greek OT dikaioo occurs 30 times, most are in judicial contexts, both divine and human (either God is Judge or man is judge). Human judges are to 'declare righteous the righteous' (cp. Dt 25:1; 1Kg 8:32; 2Ch 6:23)—to pronounce the innocent to be so and free him legally. The legal aspect of these terms also involves relational concepts, for judges must promote an individual's relation to society by judging fairly.

These two concepts carry over into Paul's letters, especially Romans and Galatians, as he explains how to have a right relationship with God. At the point of faith God declares the believer to be righteous (Rm 3:30-4:9; 5:1; Gl 2:16-17; 3:8,11,24; 5:4), free from the penalty of sin and in a right relationship with God.

HCSB Translation flesh

Focus passage Romans 7:5

The Greek noun sarx literally means flesh, but it is used figuratively in several different ways. The term normally carries a negative sense, especially in Paul's writings. Jesus sometimes used sarx to describe the fallen, sinful aspect of a person (Mt 26:41=Mk 14:38; Jn 6:63), and Paul developed this even more in his writings. Paul used sarx to emphasize the ineffectiveness of human effort in spiritual matters (Rm 2:28; 6:19; 8:3). This is particularly the case in Romans and Galatians where the term has a dual connotation: (1) indwelling sin (Rm 7:5; 8:3; 13:14; Gl 5:24) and (2) the desire for a law-based relationship with God (Rm 7:18; Gl 3:3; 6:12-13). Indwelling sin makes a relationship with God based on obedience to the law impossible since no one can meet the law's demands (Rm 3:19-21; 7:25; 8:4; Gl 6:13; see Jms 2:10).

The Greek noun huiothesia literally means a son placing and comes from huios (son) and tithemi (to place). The term refers to the legal act whereby a child is accepted into a family on an equal basis—including the same rights of inheritance—with any physical offspring of the parents. Although huiothesia was quite common in Greek literature and adoption was widely practiced in the Greco-Roman world, only Paul used huiothesia in the NT, and then only five times. Paul explained that to Israel belonged 'the adoption'' (Rm 9:4), which probably refers to the fact that God called Israel His son on occasion. In the other four passages where Paul used huiothesia, the term refers to those who by faith in Christ have been accepted into God's family (Rm 8:15; Gl 4:5), which was His plan before creation (Eph 1:5). Believers do not receive their full inheritance as sons of God until final salvation, 'the redemption of our bodies' at the resurrection (Rm 8:23).

The English word sperm comes directly from the Greek noun sperma, meaning seed. The term was often used for the seeds of plants (Mt 13:24-38; Mk 4:31) and sometimes even of animals (referring to reproduction as in humans). The term sperma could refer figuratively to origin but refers more often to descendants or offspring. Paul develops the descendant/offspring meaning along three main lines.

(1) Jesus the Messiah came from the promised sperma or family line (Rm 1:3; 2Tm 2:8; see Gl 3:16,19; cp. Jn 8:33; Ac 13:23).

(2) Those who are the sperma or descendants of Abraham by physical descent, that is, the Hebrew race (Rm 9:7,29 [translated ' 'descendants ']; 11:1).

(3) Those who are the sperma or descendants of Abraham by faith, that is, believers in Christ (Rm 4:13,16,18; 9:7-8 [translated ' 'seed ']; Gl 3:29). Through these various uses of sperma, Paul indicated that actual physical descent from Abraham is neither necessary nor sufficient for salvation; faith in Christ alone brings a person into God's family.

The Greek noun telos is related to the verbs teleo and teleioo, both meaning to complete, perfect, finish, and to the adjective teleion, meaning complete, perfect, whole. The term telos refers to the consummation, completion, or fulfillment of something. In the NT, telos is commonly used for the end of this life (Mt 10:22; Lk 18:5; 1Co 1:8; Php 3:19; Heb 3:14; 6:11; 7:3; Rv 2:26) or for events related to the end times (Mt 24:6,13,14; Mk 13:7,13; Lk 1:33; 21:9; 1Co 10:11; 15:24; 2Co 11:15; 1Pt 4:7,17). In Revelation telos occurs twice in the formula 'the Beginning and the End'' as a title for deity (21:6; 22:13). In Romans 10:4 telos refers to Christ as 'the end of the law,' which is similar to Paul's statement that believers are no longer 'under the law' (Rm 6:14). Christians do not relate to God through the old covenant God made with Israel at Mt. Sinai through Moses, but through the new covenant He made at the cross through Christ's blood (see Jr 31:31-34; Lk 22:20; Heb 8:8-12).

Focus passage Romans 11:2

The Greek verb proginosko comes from the preposition pro (meaning before) and the verb ginosko (meaning to know); the compound term thus means to know beforehand. The related noun prognosis means foreknowledge and is the basis for the English medical term prognosis. On two occasions in the NT, proginosko is used for knowledge obtained in advance by human beings (Ac 26:5; 2Pt 3:17). However, when God is the one foreknowing, the emphasis is not on prior knowledge but on prior choice. The other three uses of this verb and both uses of the noun indicate that God foreknows people, not events. These terms refer to God's choice of His people and of Christ for a redemptive purpose. Since God chose Israel—not the other way around—He did not reject her (Rm 11:2). God chose Christ "before the foundation of the world" for the purpose of redemption (1Pt 1:20; see Ac 2:23), and in keeping with this purpose He also chose those whom He would conform 'to the image of His Son' (Rm 8:29; see 1Pt 1:2).

nous
Greek Pronunciation [NOOSS]

HCSB Translation mind
Uses in Romans 6
Uses in the NT 24
Focus passage Romans 12:1-2

The Greek noun nous was a common term that referred to human intellectual perception and moral judgment, thus the mind. The related verb noeo means to think, perceive, understand. All but three NT occurrences of the word nous are in Paul's letters. Luke 24:25 refers to nous as the seat of understanding, and Revelation 13:18; 17:9 refer to nous as the seat of wisdom. Pauline usage is similar but emphasizes that the mind is the seat of the intellect and thus affects the will; that is, the mind controls what a person says and does, as can be seen in several passages in Paul's letters (Rm 1:28; 7:23; 14:5; 1Co 14:19; Eph 4:17; Col 2:18; 2Th 2:2; 1Tm 6:5; 2Tm 3:8; Ti 1:15). Paul encouraged believers to be transformed by renewing their minds. This transformation comes through the study of God's Word and results in being able to 'discern what is the good, pleasing, and perfect will of God' (Rm 12:2).

hamartia
Greek Pronunciation [hah mahr TEE ah]

HCSB Translation sin
Uses in Romans 48
Uses in the NT 173
Focus passage Romans 14:23

The Greek noun hamartia is the most common term in the NT for human violation of God's moral standard. The related verb hamartano (43 uses in the NT, 17 in Paul's writings) literally means to miss the mark, but the term eventually acquired the additional meanings to fail and to do wrong. Finally, hamartano came to include the idea to sin, which is the meaning of the verb in the NT. Both hamartano and hamartia occur quite frequently in the Greek OT, mainly to translate the most common Hebrew words for sin. The root idea here is also to miss the mark, picturing human effort missing the target of God's standard, His revealed will.

In Romans 14 Paul said, 'Everything that is not from a conviction is sin' (v. 23). The essence of sin is unbelief, so every violation of God's standard is a lack of faith in Him. God doesn't want superficial obedience to a standard; He wants us to trust Him completely (see Heb 11:6).

Paul's Proclamation

2 When I came to you, brothers, announcing the testimony [a] of God to you, I did not come with brilliance [b] of speech [c] or wisdom. 2 For I didn't think it was a good idea to know anything among you except Jesus Christ and Him crucified. [d] 3 I came to you in weakness, [e] in fear, [f] and in much trembling. [g] 4 My speech [h] and my proclamation were not with persuasive [i] words of wisdom [j] but with a powerful demonstration by the Spirit, 5 so that your faith might not be based on men's wisdom but on God's power. [k]

Spiritual Wisdom

6 However, we do speak a wisdom among the mature, [l] but not a wisdom of this age, or of the rulers [m] of this age, who are coming to nothing. [n] 7 On the contrary, we speak God's hidden wisdom in a •mystery , a wisdom God predestined [o] before the ages for our glory. [p] 8 None of the rulers of this age knew this wisdom, for if they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. [q] 9 But as it is written:

What eye did not see and ear did not hear,
and what never entered the human mind —
God prepared this for those who love Him. [r, s]

10 Now God has revealed these things to us by the Spirit, for the Spirit searches everything, [t] even the depths of God. [u] 11 For who among men knows the thoughts [A] of a man except the spirit [v] of the man that is in him? In the same way, no one knows [w] the thoughts [B] of God except the Spirit of God. 12 Now we have not received the spirit of the •world , but the Spirit who comes from God, so that we may understand what has been freely given to us by God. 13 We also speak these things, not in words [x] taught by human wisdom, but in those taught by the Spirit, explaining spiritual things to spiritual people. [C] 14 But the unbeliever [D] does not welcome what comes from God's Spirit, because it is foolishness to him; he is not able to understand it since it is evaluated [E] spiritually. 15 The spiritual person, however, can evaluate [F] everything, yet he himself cannot be evaluated [G] by anyone. 16 For who has known the Lord's mind, that he may instruct Him? [y, z]

But we have the mind of Christ. [a]

The Problem of Immaturity

3 Brothers, I was not able to speak to you as spiritual people but as people of the flesh, as babies in Christ. [a] 2 I gave you milk to drink, not solid food, because you were not yet ready for it. In fact, you are still not ready, 3 because you are still fleshly. For since there is envy [b] and strife [c, d] among you, are you not fleshly and living like unbelievers? [A] 4 For whenever someone says, “I’m with Paul,” and another, “I’m with Apollos,” [e] are you not unspiritual people? [f, B]

The Role of God’s Servants

5 What then is Apollos? And what is Paul? They are servants through whom you believed, and each has the role the Lord has given. 6 I planted, [g] Apollos watered, but God gave the growth. 7 So then neither the one who plants nor the one who waters is anything, but only God who gives the growth. 8 Now the one planting and the one watering are one in purpose, and each will receive his own reward according to his own labor. 9 For we are God’s coworkers. [C] You are God’s field, God’s building. [h] 10 According to God’s grace that was given to me, I have laid a foundation as a skilled master builder, and another builds on it. But each one must be careful how he builds on it. 11 For no one can lay any other foundation [i] than what has been laid down. That foundation is Jesus Christ. 12 If anyone builds on that foundation with gold, silver, [j] costly stones, [k] wood, hay, or straw, 13 each one’s work will become obvious, for the day [l] will disclose it, because it will be revealed by fire; [m] the fire will test the quality of each one’s work. [n] 14 If anyone’s work that he has built survives, he will receive a reward.
15 If anyone’s work is burned up, it will be lost, but he will be saved; [o] yet it will be like an escape through fire. [D, p]

16 Don’t you yourselves know that you are God’s sanctuary [q] and that the Spirit of God lives in you? [r] 17 If anyone destroys God’s sanctuary, God will destroy him; [s] for God’s sanctuary is holy, [t] and that is what you are.

The Folly of Human Wisdom

18 No one should deceive [u] himself. If anyone among you thinks he is wise in this age, [v] he must become foolish [w] so that he can become wise. [x] 19 For the wisdom of this •world is foolishness [y] with God, since it is written: [z] He catches the wise in their craftiness; [a, b] 20 and again, The Lord knows that the reasonings [c] of the wise are meaningless. [d, e] 21 So no one should boast in human leaders, for everything is yours [f] — 22 whether Paul or Apollos or •Cephas [g] or the world or life [h] or death [i] or things present or things to come [j] — everything is yours, 23 and you belong to Christ, [k] and Christ belongs to God.

The Faithful Manager

4 A person should consider us in this way: as servants [a] of Christ and managers [b] of God's •mysteries . [c] 2 In this regard, it is expected of managers that each one of them be found faithful. [d] 3 It is of little [e] importance to me that I should be evaluated [f] by you or by any human court. [A] In fact, I don't even evaluate myself. 4 For I am not conscious of anything against myself, but I am not justified [g] by this. The One who evaluates me is the Lord. 5 Therefore don't judge [h] anything prematurely, before the Lord comes, [i] who will both bring to light what is hidden in darkness and reveal the intentions of the hearts. And then praise will come to each one from God. [j]

The Apostles' Example of Humility [6] Now, brothers, [k] I have applied these things to myself and Apollos [l] for your benefit, so that you may learn from us the saying: "Nothing beyond what is written." [m] The purpose is that none of you will be inflated with pride in favor of one person over another. [7] For who makes you so superior? What do you have that you didn't receive? If, in fact, you did receive it, why do you boast as if you hadn't received it? [8] You are already full! You are already rich! You have begun to reign as kings without us — and I wish you did reign, so that we could also reign with you! [9] For I think God has displayed us, the apostles, in last place, like men condemned to die: We have become a spectacle to the world and to angels and to men. [10] We are fools for Christ, but you are wise in Christ! [n] We are weak, but you are strong! You are distinguished, but we are dishonored! [11] Up to the present hour we are both hungry and thirsty; we are poorly clothed, roughly treated, homeless; [12] we labor, working [o] with our own hands. [p] When we are reviled, we bless; when we are persecuted, we endure it; [13] when we are slandered, we respond graciously. Even now, we are like the world's garbage, like the dirt everyone scrapes off their sandals. [q]

Paul's Fatherly Care

14 I'm not writing this to shame you, but to warn you as my dear children. [r] 15 For you can have 10,000 instructors in Christ, but you can't have many fathers. For I became your father [s] in Christ Jesus through the gospel. 16 Therefore I urge you to imitate me. 17 This is why I have sent [t] Timothy to you. He is my dearly loved and faithful [u] son in the Lord. He will remind you about my ways in Christ Jesus, just as I teach everywhere in every church. 18 Now some are inflated with pride, as though I were not coming to you. 19 But I will come to you soon, [v] if the Lord wills, and I will know not the talk but the power of those who are inflated with pride. [20] For the kingdom of God is not a matter of talk but of power. [21] What do you want? Should I come to you with a rod, [w] or in love and a spirit of gentleness? [x]

Immoral Church Members

5 It is widely reported that there is sexual immorality [a] among you, and the kind of sexual immorality that is not even tolerated [b] among the Gentiles [c] — a man is living with his father's wife. [d] 2 And you are inflated with pride, instead of filled with grief [e] so that he who has committed this act might be removed from your congregation. 3 For though I am absent in body but present in spirit, [f] I have already decided about the one who has done this thing as though I were present. 4 When you are assembled in the name of our Lord Jesus with my spirit and with the power of our Lord Jesus, 5 turn that one over to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, [g] so that his spirit may be saved in the Day of the Lord. [h]

6 Your boasting is not good. Don't you know that a little yeast [i] permeates the whole batch of dough? [j] 7 •Clean out the old yeast so that you may be a new batch. You are indeed unleavened, for Christ our •Passover [k] has been sacrificed. [l] 8 Therefore, let us observe the feast, not with old yeast or with the yeast of malice and evil [m] but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Church Discipline

9 I wrote to you in a letter not to associate [n] with sexually immoral people. [o] 10 I did not mean the immoral people of this •world or the greedy [p] and swindlers [q] or idolaters; otherwise you would have to leave the world. [r] 11 But now I am writing [A] you not to associate with anyone who claims to be a believer [B, s] who is sexually immoral or greedy, an idolater or verbally abusive, a drunkard [t] or a swindler. Do not even eat with such a person. 12 For what business is it of mine to judge [u] outsiders? Don't you judge those who are inside? 13 But God judges outsiders. Put away the evil person from among yourselves. [v, w]

Lawsuits among Believers

6 If any of you has a legal dispute against another, do you dare go to court [a] before the unrighteous, [b] and not before the •saints ? [2] Or don't you know that the saints will judge the •world ? And if the world is judged by you, are you unworthy to judge the smallest cases? [3] Don't you know that we will judge angels — not to mention ordinary matters? [4] So if you have cases pertaining to this life, do you select those [A] who have no standing [c] in the church to judge? [5] I say this to your shame! [d] Can it be that there is not one wise person among you who is able to arbitrate between his brothers? [e] [6] Instead, believer [B] goes to court against believer, and that before unbelievers! [f]

[7] Therefore, to have legal disputes against one another is already a moral failure for you. [g] Why not rather put up with injustice? [h] Why not rather be cheated? [i] [8] Instead, you act unjustly and cheat — and you do this to believers! [9] Don't you know that the unrighteous [j] will not inherit God's kingdom? [k] Do not be deceived: No sexually immoral people, idolaters, [l] adulterers, [m] or anyone practicing homosexuality, [C, n] [10] no thieves, [o] greedy [p] people, drunkards, verbally abusive people, [q] or swindlers [r] will inherit God's kingdom. [11] And some of you used to be like this. [s] But you were washed, you were •sanctified , [t] you were •justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God.

Glorifying God in Body and Spirit [12] "Everything is permissible [u] for me," [v] but not everything is helpful. "Everything is permissible for me," but I will not be brought under the control of anything. [13] "Food [w] for the stomach and the stomach for food," but God will do away with both of them. [D] The body is not for sexual immorality [x] but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. [14] God raised up the Lord and will also raise us up by His power. [y] [15] Don't you know that your bodies are a part of Christ's body? [z] So should I take a part of Christ's body and make it part of a prostitute? Absolutely not! [16] Don't you know that anyone joined to a prostitute is one body with her? For Scripture says, The two will become one flesh. [a, b] [17] But anyone joined [c] to the Lord is one spirit [d] with Him.

[18] Run [e] from sexual immorality! "Every sin a person can commit is outside the body." [f] On the contrary, the person who is sexually immoral [g] sins against his own body. [19] Don't you know that your body is a sanctuary [h] of the Holy Spirit [i] who is in you, [j] whom you have from God? You are not your own, [20] for you were bought [k] at a price. Therefore glorify God in your body. [l]

Principles of Marriage

7 Now in response to the matters you wrote [a] about: “It is good for a man not to have relations with [A] a woman.” [b] 2 But because sexual immorality is so common, [B,] [c] each man should have his own wife, [d] and each woman should have her own husband. 3 A husband should fulfill his marital responsibility [e] to his wife, and likewise a wife to her husband. 4 A wife does not have the right over her own body, but her husband does. In the same way, a husband does not have the right over his own body, but his wife does. 5 Do not deprive [f] one another sexually — except when you agree for a time, to devote yourselves to [g] prayer. Then come together again; otherwise, Satan may tempt you because of your lack of self-control. 6 I say the following [C] as a concession, not as a command. 7 I wish that all people were just like me. But each has his own gift [h] from God, one person in this way and another in that way.

A Word to the Unmarried 8 I say to the unmarried and to widows: [i] It is good for them if they remain as I am. 9 But if they do not have self-control, [j] they should marry, for it is better to marry [k] than to burn with desire.

About Married People

10 I command the married [l] — not I, but the Lord — a wife is not to leave [D] her husband. 11 But if she does leave, she must remain unmarried or be reconciled to her husband — and a husband is not to leave his wife. [m] 12 But I (not the Lord) [n] say to the rest: If any brother [o] has an unbelieving wife and she is willing to live with him, he must not leave her. 13 Also, if any woman has an unbelieving husband and he is willing to live with her, she must not leave her husband. 14 For the unbelieving husband is set apart for God [p] by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is set apart for God by the husband. [E] Otherwise your children would be corrupt, but now they are set apart for God. 15 But if the unbeliever leaves, let him leave. A brother or a sister is not bound in such cases. God has called you [q] to live in peace. 16 For you, wife, how do you know whether you will save your husband? Or you, husband, how do you know whether you will save your wife?

Various Situations of Life 17 However, each one must live his life in the situation the Lord assigned when God called [r] him. [F] This is what I command in all the churches. 18 Was anyone already circumcised when he was called? He should not undo his circumcision. Was anyone called while uncircumcised? He should not get circumcised. 19 Circumcision does not matter and uncircumcision does not matter, but keeping God's commands does. 20 Each person should remain in the life situation [G] in which he was called. 21 Were you called while a •slave ? It should not be a concern to you. But if you can become free, by all means take the opportunity. [H] 22 For he who is called by the Lord as a slave [s] is the Lord's freedman. [t] Likewise he who is called as a free man [u] is Christ's slave. 23 You were bought [v] at a price; do not become slaves of men. 24 Brothers, each person should remain with God in whatever situation he was called.

About the Unmarried and Widows 25 About virgins: I have no command from the Lord, but I do give an opinion as one who by the Lord's mercy [w] is trustworthy. [x] 26 Therefore I consider this to be good because of the present distress: It is fine for a man to remain as he is. 27 Are you bound to a wife? Do not seek to be loosed. Are you loosed from a wife? Do not seek a wife. 28 However, if you do get married, [y] you have not sinned, and if a virgin marries, she has not sinned. But such people will have trouble in this life, [I] and I am trying to spare you. 29 And I say this, brothers: The time is limited, [z] so from now on those who have wives should be as though they had none, 30 those who weep as though they did not weep, those who rejoice [a] as though they did not rejoice, those who buy as though they did not possess, 31 and those who use the world as though they did not make full use of it. For this world in its current form is passing away. [b]

32 I want you to be without concerns. An unmarried man is concerned about the things of the Lord — how he may please [c] the Lord. 33 But a married man is concerned about the things of the world — how he may please his wife — 34 and his interests are divided. An unmarried woman or a virgin is concerned about the things of the Lord, [d] so that she may be holy both in body and in spirit. But a married woman is concerned about the things of the world — how she may please her husband. 35 Now I am saying this for your own benefit, not to put a restraint on you, but because of what is proper and so that you may be devoted to the Lord without distraction.

36 But if any man thinks he is acting improperly toward his virgin, [e] if she is past marriageable age, [J] and so it must be, he can do what he wants. He is not sinning; they can get married. 37 But he who stands firm in his heart (who is under no compulsion, but has control over his own will [f]) and has decided in his heart to keep his own virgin, will do well. 38 So then he who marries [K] his virgin does well, but he who does not marry [L] will do better.

39 A wife is bound [g] as long as her husband is living. But if her husband dies, she is free to be married to anyone she wants — only in the Lord. [h] 40 But she is happier if she remains as she is, in my opinion. And I think that I also have the Spirit of God.

Food Offered to Idols

8 About food offered to idols: [a] We know that “we all have knowledge.” [b] Knowledge inflates with pride, [c] but love [d] builds up. 2 If anyone thinks he knows anything, he does not yet know it as he ought to know it. [e] 3 But if anyone loves God, [f] he is known [g] by Him.

4 About eating food offered to idols, then, we know that “an idol is nothing in the world,” and that “there is no God but one.” [h] 5 For even if there are so-called gods, [i] whether in heaven or on earth — as there are many “gods” and many “lords” —

6 yet for us there is one God, the Father. [j]
All things are from Him, [k] and we exist for Him.
And there is one Lord, Jesus Christ.
All things are through Him,
and we exist through Him. [l]

7 However, not everyone has this knowledge. In fact, some have been so used to idolatry up until now that when they eat food offered to an idol, their conscience, being weak, is defiled. 8 Food will not make us acceptable to God.
We are not inferior if we don’t eat, and we are not better if we do eat. [m] 9 But be careful that this right of yours in no way becomes a stumbling block [n] to the weak. 10 For if someone sees you, the one who has this knowledge, dining in an idol’s temple, won’t his weak conscience be encouraged to eat food offered to idols? 11 Then the weak person, the brother for whom Christ died, [o] is ruined [A,] [p] by your knowledge. [q] 12 Now when you sin like this against the brothers and wound their weak conscience, you are sinning against Christ. 13 Therefore, if food causes my brother to fall, I will never again eat meat, [r] so that I won’t cause my brother to fall.

Paul's Example as an Apostle

9 Am I not free? Am I not an apostle? Have I not seen Jesus our Lord? Are you not my work in the Lord? 2 If I am not an apostle to others, at least I am to you, for you are the seal [a] of my apostleship in the Lord. 3 My defense to those who examine me is this: 4 Don't we have the right to eat and drink? [b] 5 Don't we have the right to be accompanied by a Christian wife [A] like the other apostles, [c] the Lord's brothers, and •Cephas ? [d] 6 Or do Barnabas [e] and I alone have no right to refrain from working? 7 Who ever goes to war at his own expense? [f] Who plants a vineyard and does not eat its fruit? Or who shepherds a flock and does not drink the milk from the flock? 8 Am I saying this from a human perspective? Doesn't the law also say the same thing? 9 For it is written in the law of Moses, Do not muzzle an ox [g] while it treads out grain. [h, i] Is God really concerned with oxen? 10 Or isn't He really saying it for us? Yes, this is written for us, [j] because he who plows ought to plow in hope, [k] and he who threshes should do so in hope of sharing the crop. [l] 11 If we have sown spiritual things for you, is it too much if we reap material benefits from you? 12 If others have this right to receive benefits from you, don't we even more?

However, we have not made use of this right; instead we endure everything [m] so that we will not hinder the gospel of Christ. 13 Don't you know that those who perform the temple services eat the food from the temple, and those who serve at the altar [n] share in the offerings of the altar? 14 In the same way, the Lord has commanded that those who preach the gospel should earn their living by the gospel. [o]

15 But I have used none of these rights, and I have not written this to make it happen that way for me. For it would be better for me to die than for anyone to deprive me of my boast! 16 For if I preach the gospel, I have no reason to boast, because an obligation is placed on me. And woe to me if I do not preach the gospel! 17 For if I do this willingly, I have a reward, but if unwillingly, I am entrusted [p] with a stewardship. 18 What then is my reward? To preach the gospel and offer it free of charge and not make full use of my authority in the gospel. [q]

19 Although I am a free man and not anyone's •slave , I have made myself a slave to everyone, in order to win [r] more people. 20 To the Jews I became like a Jew, to win Jews; to those under the law, like one under the law — though I myself am not under the law [s] — to win those under the law. [t] 21 To those who are without that law, [u] like one without the law — not being without God's law but within Christ's law — to win those without the law. 22 To the weak I became weak, in order to win the weak. I have become all things to all people, so that I may by every possible means save some. [v] 23 Now I do all this because of the gospel, so I may become a partner in its benefits. [B]

24 Don’t you know that the runners in a stadium all race, [w] but only one receives the prize? Run in such a way to win the prize. [x] 25 Now everyone who competes exercises self-control [y] in everything. However, they do it to receive a crown [z] that will fade away, [a] but we a crown that will never fade away. 26 Therefore I do not run like one who runs aimlessly or box like one beating the air. 27 Instead, I discipline my body and bring it under strict control, so that after preaching to others, I myself will not be disqualified. [b]

Warnings from Israel's Past

10 Now I want you to know, brothers, that our fathers [a] were all under the cloud, [b] all passed through the sea, [c] 2 and all were baptized [d] into Moses [e] in the cloud and in the sea. 3 They all ate the same spiritual food, [f] 4 and all drank the same spiritual drink. For they drank from a spiritual rock [g] that followed them, and that rock was Christ. [h] 5 But God was not pleased with most of them, for they were struck down in the wilderness. [i]

6 Now these things became examples for us, so that we will not desire [j] evil things as they did. [A, k] 7 Don't become idolaters [l] as some of them were; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and got up to play. [B, m, n] 8 Let us not commit sexual immorality [o] as some of them did, [C] and in a single day 23,000 people fell dead. [p] 9 Let us not test Christ as some of them did [D] and were destroyed by snakes. [q] 10 Nor should we complain [r] as some of them did, [E, s] and were killed by the destroyer. [F, t] 11 Now these things happened to them as examples, and they were written as a warning to us, [u] on whom the ends of the ages [v] have come. [w] 12 So, whoever thinks he stands must be careful not to fall. [x] 13 No temptation has overtaken you except what is common to humanity.
God is faithful, [y] and He will not allow you to be tempted beyond what you are able, but with the temptation He will also provide a way of escape [z] so that you are able to bear it.

Warning against Idolatry 14 Therefore, my dear friends, flee from idolatry. 15 I am speaking as to wise people. Judge for yourselves what I say. 16 The cup [a] of blessing [b] that we give thanks for, is it not a sharing in the blood of Christ? The bread [c] that we break, is it not a sharing in the body of Christ? 17 Because there is one bread, we who are many are one [d] body, for all of us share that one bread. 18 Look at the people of Israel. [G] Do not those who eat the sacrifices participate in what is offered on the altar? [e] 19 What am I saying then? That food offered to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? 20 No, but I do say that what they [f] sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God. I do not want you to participate with demons! 21 You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You cannot share in the Lord's table and the table of demons. 22 Or are we provoking the Lord to jealousy? Are we stronger than He? [g]

Christian Liberty

23 “Everything is permissible,” [h, i] but not everything is helpful. “Everything is permissible,” [j] but not everything builds up. 24 No one should seek his own good, but the good of the other person. [k]

25 Eat everything that is sold in the meat market, asking no questions for conscience’ sake, 26 for the earth is the Lord’s, [l] and all that is in it. [m, n] 27 If one of the unbelievers invites you over and you want to go, eat everything that is set before you, without raising questions of conscience. 28 But if someone says to you, “This is food offered to an idol,” do not eat it, [o] out of consideration for the one who told you, and for conscience’ sake. [p] 29 I do not mean your own conscience, but the other person’s. For why is my freedom judged [q] by another person’s conscience? 30 If I partake with thanks, [r] why am I slandered because of something I give thanks for?

31 Therefore, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do everything for God’s glory. [s] 32 Give no offense [t] to the Jews or the Greeks or the church of God, 33 just as I also try to please all people in all things, not seeking my own profit, but the profit of many, [u] so that they may be saved.

11 Imitate me, as I also imitate Christ. [a]

Instructions about Head Coverings

2 Now I praise you [b] because you always remember me and keep the traditions [c] just as I delivered [d] them to you. 3 But I want you to know that Christ is the head [e] of every man, and the man is the head of the woman, [A, f] and God is the head of Christ. [g] 4 Every man who prays or prophesies with something on his head dishonors [h] his head. 5 But every woman who prays or prophesies with her head uncovered dishonors her head, since that is one and the same as having her head shaved. [i] 6 So if a woman's head [B] is not covered, her hair should be cut off. But if it is disgraceful for a woman to have her hair cut off or her head shaved, she should be covered.

7 A man, in fact, should not cover his head, because he is God's image [j] and glory, [k] but woman is man's glory. 8 For man did not come from woman, but woman came from man. [l] 9 And man was not created for woman, but woman for man. 10 This is why a woman should have a symbol of authority on her head, because of the angels. 11 In the Lord, however, woman is not independent of man, and man is not independent of woman. 12 For just as woman came from man, so man comes through woman, and all things come from God. [m]

13 Judge [n] for yourselves: Is it proper for a woman to pray to God with her head uncovered? 14 Does not even nature itself teach [o] you that if a man has long hair it is a disgrace [p] to him, 15 but that if a woman has long hair, it is her glory? [q] For her hair is given to her [r] as a covering. 16 But if anyone wants to argue about this, we have no other [C] custom, nor do the churches of God.

The Lord's Supper

17 Now in giving the following instruction I do not praise you, since you come together not for the better but for the worse. 18 For to begin with, I hear that when you come together as a church there are divisions among you, and in part I believe it. 19 There must, indeed, be factions [s] among you, so that those who are approved may be recognized among you. 20 Therefore, when you come together, it is not really to eat the Lord's Supper. [t] 21 For at the meal, each one eats his own supper ahead of others. So one person is hungry while another gets drunk! 22 Don't you have houses to eat and drink in? Or do you look down on the church of God and embarrass those who have nothing? What should I say to you? Should I praise you? I do not praise you for this!

23 For I received from the Lord what I also passed on to you: [u] On the night when He was betrayed, the Lord Jesus took bread, 24 gave thanks, broke it, and said, [v] “This is My body, which is [w] for you. Do this in remembrance of Me.” [x] 25 In the same way, after supper He also took the cup and said, “This cup is the new covenant [y] established by My blood. [z] Do this, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of Me.” 26 For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord’s death [a] until He comes. [b]

Self-Examination

27 Therefore, whoever eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord in an unworthy way will be •guilty of sin against the body [D] and blood of the Lord. 28
So a man should examine himself; in this way he should eat the bread and drink from the cup. 29 For whoever eats and drinks without recognizing the body, [c] eats and drinks judgment [d] on himself. 30 This is why many are sick and ill among you, and many have fallen •asleep . [e] 31 If we were properly evaluating ourselves, we would not be judged, 32 but when we are judged, [f] we are disciplined by the Lord, so that we may not be condemned [g] with the •world .
33 Therefore, my brothers, when you come together to eat, wait for one another. 34 If anyone is hungry, he should eat at home, so that when you gather together you will not come under judgment. And I will give instructions about the other matters whenever I come. [h]

Diversity of Spiritual Gifts

12 Now concerning what comes from the Spirit: [A] brothers, I do not want you to be unaware. 2 You know that when you were pagans, you used to be led off to the idols [a] that could not speak. [b] 3 Therefore I am informing you that no one speaking by the Spirit of God says, “Jesus is cursed,” and no one can say, “Jesus is Lord,” except by the Holy Spirit.

4 Now there are different gifts, [c] but the same Spirit. 5 There are different ministries, but the same Lord. 6 And there are different activities, but the same God activates each gift in each person. [B] 7 A demonstration of the Spirit is given to each person [d] to produce what is beneficial:

8 to one [e] is given a message of wisdom [f]
through the Spirit, to another, a message of knowledge
by the same Spirit, 9 to another, faith by the same Spirit,
to another, gifts of healing [g] by the one Spirit, 10 to another, the performing of miracles, [h] to another, prophecy, [i] to another, distinguishing between spirits, [j] to another, different kinds of •languages , to another, interpretation of languages.

11 But one and the same Spirit is active in all these, distributing to each person as He wills.

Unity Yet Diversity in the Body

12 For as the body is one [k] and has many parts, and all the parts of that body, though many, are one body — so also is Christ. [l] 13 For we were all baptized by [C] one Spirit into one body — whether Jews or Greeks, whether •slaves or free — and we were all made to drink of one Spirit. [m] 14 So the body is not one part but many. 15 If the foot should say, “Because I’m not a hand, I don’t belong to the body,” in spite of this it still belongs to the body. 16 And if the ear should say, “Because I’m not an eye, I don’t belong to the body,” in spite of this it still belongs to the body. 17 If the whole body were an eye, where would the hearing be? If the whole body were an ear, where would the sense of smell be? 18 But now God has placed each one of the parts in one body just as He wanted. [n] 19
And if they were all the same part, where would the body be? 20 Now there are many parts, yet one body.

21 So the eye cannot say to the hand, “I don’t need you! ” Or again, the head can’t say to the feet, “I don’t need you! ” 22 But even more, those parts of the body that seem to be weaker are necessary. 23 And those parts of the body that we think to be less honorable, [o] we clothe these with greater honor, and our unpresentable parts have a better presentation. 24 But our presentable parts have no need of clothing. Instead, God has put the body together, giving greater honor to the less honorable, 25 so that there would be no division [p] in the body, but that the members would have the same concern for each other. 26 So if one member suffers, all the members suffer with it; if one member is honored, all the members rejoice with it.

27 Now you are the body of Christ, [q] and individual members of it. 28 And God has placed these in the church: [r]

first apostles, second prophets, third teachers, [s] next miracles, [t] then gifts of healing, [u] helping, managing, various kinds of languages.
29 Are all apostles? Are all prophets?
Are all teachers? Do all do miracles?
30 Do all have gifts of healing?
Do all speak in other languages?
Do all interpret? [v]

31 But desire [w] the greater gifts. And I will show you an even better way.

Love: The Superior Way

13 If I speak human or angelic •languages but do not have love, [a]
I am a sounding gong [b] or a clanging cymbal.
2 If I have the gift of prophecy [c] and understand all •mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith
so that I can move mountains [d]
but do not have love, I am nothing.
3 And if I donate all my goods to feed the poor, and if I give my body in order to boast [e]
but do not have love, I gain nothing.
4 Love is patient, [f] love is kind.
Love does not envy, [g] is not boastful, is not conceited, [h] 5 does not act improperly, is not selfish, [i] is not provoked, [j]
and does not keep a record of wrongs.
6 Love finds no joy in unrighteousness but rejoices in the truth. [k] 7 It bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures [l] all things.
8 Love never ends. [m]
But as for prophecies,
they will come to an end;
as for languages, they will cease;
as for knowledge, it will come to an end.
9 For we know in part,
and we prophesy in part.
10 But when the perfect comes,
the partial will come to an end.
11 When I was a child,
I spoke like a child,
I thought like a child,
I reasoned like a child.
When I became a man,
I put aside childish things.

12 For now we see indistinctly, [A] as in a mirror, but then face to face. [n]
Now I know in part, but then I will know fully, [o]
as I am fully known. [p] 13 Now these three remain:
faith, hope, [q] and love.
But the greatest of these is love.

Prophecy: A Superior Gift

14 Pursue love and desire spiritual gifts, and above all that you may prophesy.
2 For the person who speaks in another •language [a] is not speaking to men but to God, since no one understands him; however, he speaks mysteries in the Spirit. [A] 3 But the person who prophesies speaks to people for edification, encouragement, and consolation. 4 The person who speaks in another language builds himself up, but he who prophesies builds up the church. 5 I wish all of you spoke in other languages, but even more that you prophesied. The person who prophesies is greater than the person who speaks in languages, unless he interprets so that the church may be built up.

6 But now, brothers, if I come to you speaking in other languages, how will I benefit you unless I speak to you with a revelation [b] or knowledge or prophecy or teaching? 7 Even inanimate things that produce sounds — whether flute or harp [c] — if they don't make a distinction in the notes, how will what is played on the flute or harp be recognized? 8 In fact, if the trumpet makes an unclear sound, who will prepare for battle? [d] 9 In the same way, unless you use your tongue for intelligible speech, how will what is spoken be known? For you will be speaking into the air. 10 There are doubtless many different kinds of languages in the world, and all have meaning. [B] 11 Therefore, if I do not know the meaning of the language, I will be a foreigner [C] to the speaker, and the speaker will be a foreigner to me. 12 So also you — since you are zealous [e] for spiritual gifts, [D,] [f] seek to excel in building up the church.

13 Therefore the person who speaks in another language should pray that he can interpret. 14 For if I pray in another language, my spirit [g] prays, but my understanding is unfruitful. [h] 15 What then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with my understanding. I will sing with the spirit, and I will also sing with my understanding. 16 Otherwise, if you praise with the spirit, [E] how will the uninformed person [F] say "•Amen " [i] at your giving of thanks, since he does not know what you are saying? 17 For you may very well be giving thanks, but the other person is not being built up. 18 I thank [j] God that I speak in other languages more than all of you; 19 yet in the church I would rather speak five words [k] with my understanding, in order to teach others also, than 10,000 words in another language.

20 Brothers, don't be childish in your thinking, but be infants in regard to evil and adult in your thinking. [l] 21 It is written in the law:

I will speak to these people by people of other languages and by the lips of foreigners, and even then, they will not listen to Me, [m, n]

says the Lord. [22] It follows that speaking in other languages is intended as a sign, [G] not for believers but for unbelievers. But prophecy is not for unbelievers but for believers. [23] Therefore, if the whole church assembles together and all are speaking in other languages and people who are uninformed or unbelievers come in, will they not say that you are out of your minds? [24] But if all are prophesying and some unbeliever or uninformed person comes in, he is convicted by all and is judged by all. [25] The secrets of his heart will be revealed, and as a result he will fall facedown and worship God, proclaiming, “God is really among you.” [o]

Order in Church Meetings

26 What then is the conclusion, brothers? Whenever you come together, each one [p] has a psalm, a teaching, a revelation, another language, or an interpretation. [q] All things must be done for edification. 27 If any person speaks in another language, there should be only two, or at the most three, each in turn, and someone must interpret. 28 But if there is no interpreter, that person should keep silent in the church and speak to himself and to God. 29 Two or three prophets should speak, and the others should evaluate. [r] 30 But if something has been revealed to another person sitting there, the first prophet should be silent. 31 For you can all prophesy one by one, so that everyone may learn and everyone may be encouraged. [s] 32 And the prophets' spirits are under the control of the prophets, 33 since God is not a God of disorder but of peace.

As in all the churches of the •saints , [t] 34 the women [u] should be silent in the churches, [v] for they are not permitted to speak, but should be submissive, as the law also says. 35 And if they want to learn something, they should ask their own husbands [w] at home, for it is disgraceful for a woman to speak in the church meeting. 36 Did the word of God originate from you, or did it come to you only?

37 If anyone thinks he is a prophet or spiritual, he should recognize that what I write to you is the Lord's command. 38 But if anyone ignores this, he will be ignored. [x] 39 Therefore, my brothers, be eager [y] to prophesy, and do not forbid speaking in other languages. 40 But everything must be done decently [z] and in order.

Resurrection Essential to the Gospel

15 Now brothers, I want to clarify [A] for you the gospel I proclaimed to you;
you received it and have taken your stand [a] on it. 2 You are also saved by it, if you hold to the message I proclaimed to you — unless you believed for no purpose. [B, b] 3 For I passed on to you [c] as most important what I also received:

that Christ died [d] for our sins
according to the Scriptures, [e] 4 that He was buried, [f] that He was raised on the third day [g] according to the Scriptures, [h] 5 and that He appeared to •Cephas , [i] then to the Twelve. [j]
6 Then He appeared to over 500 brothers at one time; [k] most of them are still alive,
but some have fallen •asleep .
7 Then He appeared to James, [l]
then to all the apostles. [m]
8 Last of all, as to one abnormally born, [C, n]
He also appeared to me. [o]

9 For I am the least of the apostles, [p] unworthy to be called an apostle, because I persecuted [q] the church of God. 10 But by God's grace I am what I am, and His grace toward me was not ineffective. However, I worked more than any of them, yet not I, but God's grace that was with me. [r] 11 Therefore, whether it is I or they, so we proclaim and so you have believed.

Resurrection Essential to the Faith

12 Now if Christ is proclaimed as raised from the dead, [s] how can some of you say, “There is no resurrection of the dead”? [t] 13 But if there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised; 14 and if Christ has not been raised, then our proclamation is without foundation, and so is your faith. [D] 15 In addition, we are found to be false witnesses [u] about God, because we have testified [v] about God that He raised up Christ — whom He did not raise up if in fact the dead are not raised. 16 For if the dead are not raised, Christ has not been raised. 17 And if Christ has not been raised, your faith is worthless; you are still in your sins. 18 Therefore, those who have fallen asleep in Christ [w] have also perished. 19 If we have put our hope in Christ for this life only, we should be pitied more than anyone.

Christ’s Resurrection Guarantees Ours 20 But now Christ has been raised from the dead, the •firstfruits [x] of those who have fallen asleep. 21 For since death [y] came through a man, [z] the resurrection of the dead also comes through a man. [a] 22 For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ all will be made alive. [b] 23 But each in his own order: [c] Christ, the firstfruits; afterward, at His coming, those who belong to Christ. 24 Then comes the end, [d] when He hands over the kingdom to God the Father, [e] when He abolishes all rule and all authority and power. [f] 25 For He must reign [g] until He puts all His enemies under His feet. [h] 26 The last enemy to be abolished is death. [i] 27 For God has put everything under His feet.
[j, k] But when it says “everything” is put under Him, it is obvious that He who puts everything under Him is the exception. 28 And when everything is subject to Christ, then the Son [l] Himself will also be subject to the One who subjected everything to Him, so that God may be all in all. [m]

Resurrection Supported by Christian Experience 29 Otherwise what will they do who are being baptized for the dead? If the dead are not raised at all, then why are people baptized for them? [n] 30 Why are we in danger every hour? 31 I affirm by the pride in you that I have in Christ Jesus our Lord: I die every day! [o] 32 If I fought wild animals in Ephesus [p] with only human hope, [E] what good did that do me? [F, q] If the dead are not raised, Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die. [r, s] 33 Do not be deceived: “Bad company corrupts good morals.” [t] 34 Come to your senses [G, u] and stop sinning, for some people are ignorant about God. I say this to your shame. [v]

The Nature of the Resurrection Body

35 But someone will say, “How are the dead raised? What kind of body will they have when they come? ” 36 Foolish one! What you sow does not come to life [w] unless it dies. 37 And as for what you sow — you are not sowing the future body, but only a seed, [H] perhaps of wheat or another grain. 38 But God gives it a body as He wants, [x] and to each of the seeds its own body. 39 Not all flesh [y] is the same flesh; there is one flesh for humans, another for animals, another for birds, and another for fish. 40 There are heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but the splendor [z] of the heavenly bodies is different from that of the earthly ones.
41 There is a splendor of the sun, another of the moon, and another of the stars; for one star differs from another star in splendor. 42 So it is with the resurrection of the dead:

Sown in corruption, raised in incorruption; [a] 43 sown in dishonor, [b] raised in glory; [c] sown in weakness, raised in power; [d] 44 sown a natural body, raised a spiritual body.

If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. 45 So it is written: The first man Adam became a living being; [e,] [f] the last Adam [g] became a life-giving Spirit. 46 However, the spiritual is not first, but the natural, then the spiritual.

47 The first man was from the earth and made of dust; [h]
the second man is [i] from heaven.
48 Like the man made of dust,
so are those who are made of dust;
like the heavenly man,
so are those who are heavenly. [j] 49 And just as we have borne the image [k] of the man made of dust, we will also bear
the image of the heavenly man. [l]

Victorious Resurrection

50 Brothers, I tell you this: Flesh [m] and blood [n] cannot inherit the kingdom of God, and corruption cannot inherit incorruption. 51 Listen! I am telling you a •mystery :

We will not all fall asleep,
but we will all be changed, 52 in a moment, in the blink of an eye,
at the last trumpet. [o]
For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised incorruptible,
and we will be changed.
53 For this corruptible must be clothed [p] with incorruptibility, [q] and this mortal must be clothed with immortality.
54 When this corruptible is clothed with incorruptibility, and this mortal is clothed
with immortality,
then the saying that is written will take place:
Death has been swallowed up [r] in victory. [s, t]
55 Death, where is your victory?
Death, where is your sting? [u, v] 56 Now the sting of death is sin, and the power of sin [w] is the law. [x] 57 But thanks be to God, who gives us the victory [y] through our Lord Jesus Christ!

58 Therefore, my dear brothers, be steadfast, immovable, always excelling in the Lord's work, [z] knowing that your labor in the Lord is not in vain.

Collection for the Jerusalem Church

16 Now about the collection [a] for the •saints : You should do the same as I instructed the Galatian [b] churches. 2 On the first day of the week, [A, c] each of you is to set something aside and save in keeping with how he prospers, so that no collections will need to be made when I come. [d] 3 When I arrive, I will send with letters [e] those you recommend to carry your gracious gift to Jerusalem. [f] 4 If it is suitable for me to go as well, they can travel with me.

Paul's Travel Plans

5 I will come to you after I pass through Macedonia [g] — for I will be traveling through Macedonia — 6 and perhaps I will remain with you or even spend the winter, so that you may send me on my way wherever I go. 7 I don't want to see you now just in passing, for I hope to spend some time with you, if the Lord allows. [h] 8 But I will stay in Ephesus [i] until Pentecost, [j] 9 because a wide door [k] for effective ministry has opened for me [B] — yet many oppose me. 10 If Timothy comes, see that he has nothing to fear from you, because he is doing the Lord's work, [l] just as I am. 11 Therefore, no one should look down [m] on him. Send him on his way in peace so he can come to me, for I am expecting him with the brothers. [C]

12 About our brother Apollos: [n] I strongly urged him to come to you with the brothers, but he was not at all willing to come now. However, he will come when he has an opportunity.

Final Exhortation

13 Be alert, stand firm in the faith, [o] act like a man, be strong. 14 Your every action must be done with love. [p]

15 Brothers, you know the household of Stephanas: They are the •firstfruits [q] of Achaia [r] and have devoted themselves to serving the saints. I urge you 16 also to submit to such people, and to everyone who works and labors with them. 17 I am pleased to have Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus present, because these men have made up for your absence. 18 For they have refreshed my spirit [s] and yours. Therefore recognize [t] such people.

Conclusion

19 The churches of •Asia [u] greet you. [v] Aquila and Priscilla [w] greet you

Introduction

The site of ancient Corinth at the foot of the 1,886-foot-high Acrocorinth, on top of which was the temple to Aphrodite. In the foreground are the ruins of the Temple of Apollo.

First Corinthians is the most literary of all of Paul's letters. With a variety of stylistic devices—irony, sarcasm, rhetorical questions, alliteration, antithesis, personification, framing devices, hyperbole, repetition, picturesque words (with local color), double meanings, and other wordplays—Paul attempted to persuade his readers. He wanted to communicate to the Corinthians the necessity of accepting the Lord's authority over their lives.

Paul wrote his letter to the church at Rome in A.D. 57 while he was in Corinth. Paul was staying with Gaius, a leader of the church at Corinth. Phoebe, a servant of the church in Cenchreae, one of Corinth's ports, likely carried the letter to Rome (Rm 16:1-2).

Circumstances of Writing

Author: First Corinthians ascribes Paul as its author (1:1; 16:21). Biblical scholars are almost unanimous that Paul wrote the letter. He wrote it during the last year of his three-year ministry at Ephesus, probably a few weeks before Pentecost in the spring of A.D. 56 (15:32; 16:8; Ac 20:31).

Background: During Paul's second missionary journey, he had a vision at Troas; he heard a man call to him, "Cross over to Macedonia and help us!" (Ac 16:9). That change in plans led Paul to Philippi, Thessalonica, Athens, and ultimately to Corinth (Ac 18:5). Paul ministered in Corinth for at least 18 months (Ac 18:1-18). He left Corinth accompanied by Aquila and Priscilla (Ac 18:18), leaving them at Ephesus where they met and instructed "an eloquent man" named Apollos (Ac 18:24-26). Apollos then went to Corinth and had a powerful ministry there (Ac 18:27-19:1).

First Corinthians is the second letter that Paul wrote to the Corinthian church. He had written them an earlier letter that included an admonition not to mix with the sexually immoral (5:9). The writing of this second letter (1 Corinthians) was prompted by oral reports from Chloe's household about factional strife within the church (1:11). Paul had also received reports about an incestuous relationship among the membership (5:1), factions that arose during observance of the Lord's Supper (11:18), and confusion over the resurrection of the dead (15:12). As a result, Paul addressed these issues in 1 Corinthians. Apparently as he was writing the letter, he received a letter from the Corinthians asking his opinion on various issues (7:1,25; 8:1; 12:1; 16:1). Therefore, he included his replies within this letter to the Corinthian believers.

Message and Purpose

In all of Paul's letters, except Galatians, the main theme of the letter can be identified by the content of the thanksgiving or by the stated reason for his giving thanks. The premise of each of his letters also is usually found in the salutation beginning the letter, as well as in the introductory prayers following the thanksgiving section. Within his prescript and thanksgiving of 1 Corinthians, true to his custom, Paul presented the main theme of his letter—that all believers belong to the Lord (1:2). Jesus is Lord; believers are His possession. For Paul, whatever issue was discussed, the answer to the issue was always addressed with a reminder of the Lord's authority over them (1:2,10). He used more than 75 idioms from first-century slavery to speak about believers' relationship to the Lord, their master. Those who call upon the name of the Lord (1:2) are those who call upon His name as a sign of submission. In 1 Corinthians, "name" (1:2,10,13; 5:4; 6:11) is almost always synonymous with "authority."

Paul's purpose in writing 1 Corinthians was to motivate the Corinthian church to acknowledge the Lord's ownership of them and the implications this had in their lives. Key topics Paul addressed in this overarching theme of the ownership and authority of the Lord include: Christian unity, morality, the role of women, spiritual gifts, and the resurrection.

Contribution to the Bible

First Corinthians contributes greatly to our understanding of the Christian life, ministry, and relationships by showing us how the members of the church—Christ's body—are to function together. Problems can arise in any church because the church is comprised of sinful people (redeemed certainly, but still prone to follow the tug of sin). Paul gave specific solutions to specific problems, but the underlying answer to all these problems is for the church and its members to live Christ-centered lives. It all comes down to living under the lordship and authority of Christ, the head of His body (the church).

Structure

Paul's writing is in the form of a letter, using the standard four parts of a first-century letter: salutation (1:1-3), thanksgiving (1:4-9), the main body (1:10-16:18), and a farewell (16:19-21). It is a pastoral letter, driven by the occasion and the present needs of the recipients.

Perhaps the most noteworthy feature of the way Paul structured his letter was his use of the word "about" to introduce a subject. It is apparent that "about" signals that Paul was responding to items on a list of questions that he had received—perhaps by way of a committee of men (16:17). These questions dealt with males and females in marriage (7:1); virgins (7:25); food offered to idols (8:1); spiritual gifts (12:1); the collection for the saints in Jerusalem (16:1); and Apollos (16:12).

Study Notes 1:1 Paul generally used the designation as an apostle . . . by God's will when his apostolic authority was being challenged or when he was writing to correct his readers.

1:2 Paul attached two epithets that identified the church at Corinth: those who were sanctified in Christ Jesus and those who were called as saints. These epithets and the last qualifying phrase, with all those in every place who call on the name of Jesus Christ our Lord—both their Lord and ours, suggests the letter's theme: those who are set apart belong to the Lord and appeal to His authority. Jesus Christ is the "Lord" in every place.

1:3 Paul's standard greeting after the salutation identified two persons of the Trinity, God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. "Lord" recalls "Lord God" of the OT, thus making a clear statement about Jesus' divine identity.

1:4 Paul later used the word grace with reference to the Corinthian believers being accepted as blameless at the Lord's appearing (vv. 7-8), and also with reference to their spiritual giftedness that confirmed their relationship with Christ (vv. 6-7). As is only fitting, Paul's chief reason for gratitude toward the Corinthian believers was the gift of grace God had given them.

1:5-8 Paul clarified this grace with reference to the gifts given to the Corinthians. Their spiritual giftedness confirmed their reception of the testimony of the gospel. Paul declared they were enriched, referring not only to gifts that testified to their faith but also to those gifts that were being abused or counterfeited within the congregation. These latter included such gifts as ecstatic speech, a source of pride for the congregation. The Corinthian congregation also was prideful with respect to their possession of special religious knowledge. Despite these problems, their genuine reception of the gospel testimony was confirmed by their spiritual giftedness.

1:9 In the introduction to 1 Corinthians, the word Lord occurs more than in any other letter introduction of Paul (vv. 2,3,7,8,9). In this transition to the body of the letter, Paul again emphasized his theme—the authority of the Lord over His subjects. He acknowledged the Father's faithfulness to call the Corinthians into a unified fellowship with His Son, Jesus Christ who is Lord of the church.

1:10-4:21 The letter includes Paul's responses to two reports. The first was regarding major divisions within the church (1:10-4:21). The second regarded gross sexual immorality (5:1-6:20).

1:10 Paul's appeal to unity is expressed in a first-century idiom translated agree in what you say. The added phrase the same conviction refers to the shared conviction about the centrality and importance of the gospel message—Christ crucified (v. 17; 1:18-3:4). In Paul's mind, this central conviction was the key to church unity.

1:11-12 Paul disclosed the report from Chloe's household about the quarrelsome, divisive spirit in the church at Corinth. In a vivid, ironic style, he repeated their party slogans which used the stock phrase "I am with so-and-so." Slaves used this expression to identify their master. Also, anyone who slavishly belonged to a factious political party could use this phrase. Even though they said, "I'm with Christ," Corinthian believers who followed mere men exhibited a divisive, slavish spirit contrary to the way of Christ.

1:13-16 Paul answered the rhetorical question is Christ divided by illustrating from his own life and ministry two crucial issues related to who he was and what devotion others owed him. In rapid-fire fashion, he asked: Was it Paul who was crucified for you? Or were you baptized in Paul's name? The answer to both questions was clearly, "no." Christ died for each of us, and by Christ's authority we are identified with Him in one corporate body that belongs to Christ (12:12-13). Therefore, Christ is the One to whom honor is due.

1:17 Paul did not try to gain a greater faction by baptizing, but rather he preached the gospel, his God-given mission (Ac 9:15). Not with clever words emphasizes what the world sees as the gospel's foolishness, that being the message of "Christ crucified" (vv. 18,23; 2:2). The message of the cross of Christ should never be diluted in our evangelism, for by such "clever" means we risk voiding it of its power.

1:18-19 The cross divides the human race. The division is between those who are perishing, to whom the cross is foolishness (lit "stupid folly," "stupidity"), and those who are being saved, to whom the cross is wisdom and power. Paul supported this truth by quoting Is 29:14, where God warned the unbelieving leaders of Jerusalem who considered themselves wise. God's judgment will expose all pretensions to human wisdom not anchored in Christ.

1:20-21 Paul introduced God's indictment against those who view themselves as wise in this age. The last question of the series (Hasn't God made the world's wisdom foolish?) shows the futility of unbelieving human wisdom. The world takes the gospel and its emphasis on the cross as foolishness, but God determined to save people on the basis of their trust in the foolish message preached—Christ crucified.

1:22-23 To Jews, the message Christ crucified (i.e., "Messiah crucified") signaled weakness, indicating that Jesus was a false messiah. Jews looked instead for signs of Messiah's power (Is 35; 61); thus, the message Christ crucified was a stumbling block (Gk skandalon; an offense) to their expectations. To the Gentile mind-set, which held no "messianic expectations" but only general conceptions of what deity should be like, the message of "Christ crucified" was foolishness.

1:24 Among the called of all nations, Christ is God's power and God's wisdom to save from His judgment (v. 21).

1:25 The foolishness (as perceived by the world) of God is wiser than the wisdom of man. The term translated "foolishness" (lit "the foolish thing") refers to the foolish content of the message preached—the offensive message of Christ crucified (Gk kerugma; cp. v. 21).

1:27-28 Paul gave the rationale for the makeup of God's people. Because the Lord's people embrace the "nothing" message, the world views them as nothing. But in the next age God will shame the wise and the strong and bring to nothing the things that in this age are viewed as something (2:6; 3:18-20).

1:29 God determined to choose despised ones—those who embrace the foolishness of the cross—so that no one can boast about his human accomplishment or position in His presence.

1:30-31 By the Father's doing, believers have an identification in Christ (shorthand for "in Christ crucified," cp. vv. 23-24,30; 2:2). Because of this they possess the wisdom of God—Christ crucified, the very essence of wisdom. Through this wisdom, believers have justification at God's court, sanctification that allows their entrance into His presence, and ultimate redemption.

2:1-2 Paul reminded the Corinthian believers that his message was never based on worldly wisdom, but on the offensive message of Christ . . . crucified.

2:3-5 Paul's preaching was not with persuasive words of wisdom, but with power as demonstrated by the saving power of the Holy Spirit. Your faith refers to all who had embraced the gospel by faith. Their conversion and corporate identity in the body of believers were a result of God's power.

2:6-9 God's supernatural wisdom was understood by those who were enabled to see it through the Spirit's illumination.

2:6-7 The phrase hidden wisdom in a mystery (Gk musterion; lit "a revealed secret") refers to a secret openly revealed by God—the secret being the gospel message that the Lord of glory is truly the Christ crucified.

2:8 The rulers of this age did not recognize Jesus as the Lord of glory. Their lack of recognition resulted in His crucifixion, and this in turn became the basis of the gospel. So paradoxically our acceptance was made possible by Christ's rejection.

2:9 Paul validated this "revelation of the hidden wisdom" by quoting two OT texts (Is 52:15; 64:4).

2:10 Depths of God refers to the deepest wisdom that God's Spirit reveals to believers. This highest wisdom, as understood from the previous context and throughout the letter, is Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, "and Him crucified" (v. 2).

2:11 Paul used an analogy of the lesser to the greater. Just as the human spirit (Gk pneuma) within a man knows what he is thinking, so also the Spirit (Gk pneuma) of God knows the thoughts of God.

2:12 Paul declared that with the reception of the Spirit . . . from God, a person understands that "Christ and Him crucified" (v. 2) is actually the highest wisdom.

2:13 Spiritual reception is brought about by the Spirit's revelation to spiritual people (Gk pneumatikoi; lit "spiritual ones"). "Spiritual people" is probably equivalent to "those capable of understanding" (i.e., "mature") in verse 6.

2:14 The unbeliever (Gk psuchikos anthropos) is identified as a person who does not have the Spirit from God; therefore, he does not welcome (lit "receive," "embrace") what comes from God's Spirit. He is not able to know the gospel that "comes from God's Spirit" because he considers it foolishness. It is the Spirit who convicts and reveals. Throughout chapters 1-2, "foolishness" is always a reference to "Christ and Him crucified," or the gospel, the wisdom of God.

2:15 The spiritual person can discern everything with respect to this wisdom; yet he himself is examined by no one. The spiritual person's discernment is an understanding of the deep things of God freely given to the believer. The "spiritual person" is examined by the Lord as Judge to determine how faithful he has been in living and proclaiming the gospel (4:4-5).

2:16 Paul validated his statement in verse 15 by appealing to Is 40:13. When the "spiritual person" is scrutinized by "the natural man" with respect to spiritual things, the natural man does not have the capability to instruct those who have the mind of Christ. Paul's point from Isaiah is that no natural man can instruct the Lord with respect to God's deep things.

3:1-3b Many of the Corinthians were immature in the Lord. They were not able to receive solid food (advanced teaching) because they were full of envy and strife ("rivalries"), which marked them as babies in Christ who needed milk (fundamental Christian instruction) rather than adult fare.

3:3c-4 In a second analogy, this one borrowed from slavery, Paul observed that the Corinthian believers were living like unbelievers (lit "walking according to man"), following human masters in a slavish, partisan manner. This has to be one of the most stinging indictments a believer can ever hear. The phrase "according to man" was often an idiom for living like a slave, and "man" (Gk anthropos) was commonly used as a pejorative for "slave." This meaning is supported by the servile cries Paul attributed to the Corinthian believers, I'm with Paul and I'm with Apollos.

3:5-6 Paul made the Corinthian believers aware that both he and Apollos, the founding evangelists of the Corinthian church, were dispatched servants (Gk diakonoi) through whom they believed the message of the gospel. Most scholars understand planted to be a reference to Paul's founding of the church and watered to refer to Apollos's later ministry after Paul left Corinth.

3:7 The Lord was to receive all the credit for the growth; therefore, the servants were nothing. The reputation of the owner-grower was everything. No servant need establish his own reputation to the detriment of God who gives the growth.

3:8-9a Paul and Apollos were equal servants in the gospel work, and each would receive commendation for his labor among the Corinthian believers (i.e., "God's field"; cp. v. 10) when the Lord returned (4:4-5). The word translated one in purpose is literally "one" (Gk hen). Paul and Apollos were God's coworkers who worked His field (the Corinthian congregation).

3:9b-17 Paul identifies God's building as the congregation at Corinth (v. 17), but the metaphor is justly extendable to the universal church (1Pt 2:5). The word translated "building" usually designates a structure still under construction (Gk oikodomey). This fitting metaphor designates the church as a work both accomplished and ongoing: its foundation of Jesus Christ is secure and permanent (1Co 3:11), but various builders continue the work of adding stones (believers) to the structure.

3:10a-c As a skilled master builder (Gk sophos architekton; lit "wise architect-builder"), Paul laid a foundation—the message of Christ crucified (v. 11; 2:2). The key word in this context is "skilled," referring to his expertise and wisdom as a builder to construct with "Jesus Christ and Him crucified." The believer who wishes to help spread the gospel must be properly instructed (Ac 18:26). The phrase another builds on it refers to later builders who would have a role in building the body of Christ at Corinth (v. 5). These builders included Apollos and others who followed Paul.

3:10d-12 With the word For (Gk gar; introducing an explanation), Paul explained how future builders must build on the foundation that he had already laid. As a "skilled master builder" (v. 10), Paul issued a warning (as found in construction contracts) to any builder-leader who should follow him to be careful how he builds, choosing to use only quality materials, which is symbolic of faithfulness to his God-given duties as builder of God's church. The urgent reason for this diligence is revealed in verses 13-17.

3:13 Even in the ancient world large buildings were required to be tested and approved. Stipulations within the building contract stated when the inspection day would take place. Paul used the exact words commonly used to refer to this inspection—the day will disclose it. Paul was speaking of the eschatological inspection day when God will examine how builders have built the building of God, the body of Christ, on the foundation of the "foolish message" (1:18,23; 2:2,5).

3:14-17 In this section Paul gives three different scenarios describing three different types of subcontractors who were constructing the building of God. He begins each scenario with the expression if anyone's work . . . if anyone (vv. 14-15,17; cp. v. 12).

3:14 In the ancient world, a reward (Gk misthos) was granted to those who constructed the building on time, within budget, and according to specifications.

3:15 Paul warned those who built carelessly that they would suffer loss.

3:16 Paul called on the Corinthians to have self-awareness about the ultimate identity of their corporate body. They were a temple built by God, and the Spirit of God resided among them.

3:17 Paul gave stern notice to those who corrupted the church (chap. 15; 2Co 11). In a wordplay on the verb destroy, Paul warned that anyone who "destroys" (Gk phtheiro; "ruin," "corrupt," "defraud," "destroy") God's temple will, as recompense, be destroyed by God. The word "destroy" was used in construction contracts to describe building a structure with the intent to defraud. Thus the image here is of a church leader (builder, v. 12) who is willfully negligent.

3:18 Paul's advice to the self-deceived: Let the one who thinks he is wise in this age become foolish by embracing the message of "foolishness." The "foolish one" who trusted the "foolish message" would be wise from God's viewpoint.

3:19-20 God determines what constitutes foolishness. These verses are filled with courtroom terminology from OT Wisdom literature (e.g., Jb 5:12-13). Paul affirmed from these witnesses that any disputations (reasonings) made before God's bench would be foolish if based on the wisdom of men.

3:21-23 The remedy for divisions in the church is the recognition that all gospel servants—even prominent figures such as Paul . . . Apollos, or Cephas—are not their own, but belong to Christ, who in turn belongs to God. In this light, servants must never become a distraction to the church, and believers must never mistake them for the Master.

4:1-2 Paul called on the Corinthians to be aware of the responsibilities of those who manage. The church should view those in leadership as slave-stewards with a responsibility to dispatch the message of Christ.

4:3-4 Paul was aware that the examination of his stewardship with respect to "God's mysteries" (v. 1) came from the Lord (lit "master"), not humans nor even himself. All believers will be tested on how faithful they have been to the foolish message of "Christ and Him crucified" (2:2).

4:6 Paul did not disclose the identity of these misguided, arrogant leaders; he used the names "Apollos" and "Paul" as a foil. Paul and Apollos had illustrated dramatically in their foolish message that they did nothing beyond what was written. Paul had determined to know nothing among the Corinthians "except Jesus Christ and Him crucified" (2:1-2). The church was not to be inflated with pride in favor of one person over another. They were to boast only in the Lord.

4:7 Paul offered a rhetorical response to those who were claiming superiority in the Corinthian church. He who receives a gift by grace has no grounds for boasting.

4:8 With a strong dose of irony, Paul says the boastful disposition of the Corinthian believers made them full and rich, as if their glorification was complete and they were already reigning as kings in eternity. In part Paul wished all of this were true, for all believers are destined to reign with Christ (2Tm 2:12).

4:9 Paul's mention of a spectacle (Gk theatron; "theatrical display") refers to the arena where victims (usually criminals) were led in procession before the last public show of the day, and then executed before the eager spectators. But rather than pagan or unbelieving Jewish authorities, Paul knew that ultimately it was

God Himself who had chosen to display the apostles in a humiliating manner.

4:10 Paul presents an alarming contrast, likely intended as a warning to the Corinthian church. While the apostles were made out to be fools as they faithfully dispatched the gospel, the spiritually immature Corinthians were wise (Gk phronimos) in their escape from ostracism, hardship, and persecution. In short, it seems they were "living like unbelievers" (3:3).

4:11-13 Paul describes the lifestyle and character of apostolic ministry. The world with its human wisdom labeled them as garbage and dirt (cp. 2Co 2:16), which is "the refuse" (Gk perikatharma) of chamber pots and "the offscouring" (Gk peripsama) in waste vats and cesspools respectively. The Romans used these terms to describe the dregs of society.

4:14 Paul's warnings were as admonitions from a loving father to his children.

4:15 Paul reminded the Corinthian believers that he was their father through the gospel. In contrast to their present instructors, he had founded the church in Corinth (Ac 18).

4:16 Paul urged the Corinthian believers to imitate him, which entailed being seen as "fools" for the sake of Christ (vv. 10-13; cp. 2:1-2). Thus believers are encouraged to identify with "the world's garbage" (4:13).

4:17 Timothy as a dispatched "son" would remind the Corinthians of their father's ways (i.e., "fools for Christ," cp. v. 10). Timothy probably had been dispatched from Ephesus before the letter was sent (16:10-11).

4:18-20 Paul would come to examine their teaching from the standpoint of power, the standard for all those who were truly teaching the foolishness of Christ crucified—the only wisdom that has the power to save (1:18,22-24).

4:21 Rod pictures a father who is faithful to correct his disobedient children. If the Corinthian believers ignored Paul's rebuke and admonition, they would receive the rod of chastisement upon his arrival. If they repented, however, he would come in love and a spirit of gentleness.

5:1-6:20 Paul shifts to discuss specific immoralities that had been reported to him. The key word that joins the two major sections (1:18-4:21 and 5:1-6:20) is the verb translated you are inflated with pride (Gk phusio; "to have an exaggerated self-conception"; cp. 4:6,18-19; 5:2). The three issues in this section —incest (5:1-13), lawsuits (6:1-11), and prostitution (6:12-20)—all revolve around sexual immorality.

5:1 The phrase not even tolerated among the Gentiles refers to Roman law. A son committing incest with his stepmother was a capital crime in a Roman colony, calling for death or banishment.

5:2 Paul connected the problem of ignoring church discipline to arrogance within the corporate body (v. 6). They were so consumed with inflated . . . pride that they had been blinded to the most offensive sins within the church—sins that even pagans in Roman Corinth would not tolerate. They should have removed the offender from their fellowship. The purpose of this measure is revealed in verse 5.

5:3 As an apostolic judge, Paul issued a "judicial opinion"—a banishment of the offender but with a view toward ultimate restoration. Taking up the language of a legal trial, he used at least 10 legal idioms in these verses. Beginning with the phrase I have already decided . . . as though I were present (lit "I have judged as one who is present"), Paul's terms echoed the language from secular courts.

5:4-5 Paul declared that the assembled corporate body was capable of judging the offender in the name of their Lord (Gk onoma; "name," "authority of") because he, as an apostle, had already rendered his legal decision as though he were present. Paul's legal perspective on this case (with my spirit) would have supported the church body that possessed the authority of the Lord Jesus to render a decision on this sin. They had the authority to remove him (2:2) from their midst for the destruction of the flesh. This may refer to physical judgments such as sickness or even death (11:30). If the person were a true believer, banishment to Satan's domain would cause misery and possibly repentance. Paul expressed hope for the guilty person's ultimate restoration with the legal phrase, so that his spirit may be saved on the appointed Day of the Lord (Rm 2:6,9).

5:6 Boasting (Gk kauchama) within the corporate body gives rise to tolerance of corporate sins (cp. v. 2, "inflated with pride"). The yeast of arrogant hypocrisy had spread throughout the Corinthian batch of dough.

5:7-8 With a wordplay on the expression Christ our Passover, Paul offered a threefold solution to this corporate arrogance: (1) their recognition of what Christ as their Passover did to deliver them from death; (2) their acknowledgment that Christ as their Passover rendered them clean (unleavened) before the Lord; and (3) their remembrance that as they observed Christ as the Passover, they were to purge their household of malice and evil to celebrate with sincerity and truth.

5:9 Paul's prohibition against associating with sexually immoral people was consistent with his warning in a previous letter, which is long since lost.

5:10 Paul corrected a mistaken perception that his admonition in the letter (v. 9) had prohibited them from mixing socially with nonbelievers (the immoral people of this world). He actually had meant not to mix with "insiders" who lived like "outsiders," believers who live like unbelievers (3:3).

5:11 The Corinthian believers were not to mix with anyone who claims to be a believer and yet is sexually immoral, but they were also to avoid any professing believer who was greedy, an idolater or verbally abusive, a drunkard or a swindler. To eat with such people could be taken as a sign of condoning their worldly lifestyle. The Pharisees had this same impression of Jesus but were mistaken (Mk 2:16-17).

6:1 Some Corinthian believers were bringing charges against fellow members before secular judges rather than summoning them before competent arbitrators within the church (v. 5). The phrase dare go to court before the unrighteous (Gk epi ton adikon) refers to bringing a legal complaint before unbelieving Roman judges at Corinth.

6:2-3 Paul called the church to an awareness of their own authority as a judicial body. He argued their competency to judge cases by drawing from two greater-to-lesser analogies: (1) being qualified to judge the world (i.e., nonbelievers) at the end of the age qualified them to judge church members in this age; and (2) being qualified to judge angels at the end of the age qualified them to judge "cases pertaining to this life" (v. 4).

6:4 Paul put forward the issue of legal jurisdiction. The lesser judges (i.e., the unrighteous judges of this age) are unqualified to sit in judgment among those who judge the world. Lesser judges have not been justified, washed, or sanctified (v. 11).

6:7-8 Better to be the victim of wrongdoing (put up with injustice) than be the cause of it (act unjustly and cheat) and bring legal disputes against one another, which is a moral failure. Once again we see the theme of 3:3—believers "living like unbelievers."

6:9-11 Believers should not be deceived into thinking that unbelieving judges (the unrighteous) and their slap-on-the-wrist verdicts about serious sin can render justice in the church. These people have no inheritance in God's kingdom. Only believers, who are washed . . . sanctified, and justified, can rightly judge sins (v. 1). Paul's Corinthian readers would also take this admonition as a cause for asking themselves if their behavior matched that of "the unrighteous" or that of the "washed," the "sanctified," and the "justified."

6:12-20 Paul quotes a slogan apparently put forth by the immature Corinthians (Everything is permissible for me) to introduce a series of admonitions emphasizing a dominant theme in this letter: a believer's freedom is to be limited to that which is profitable to the Lord.

6:12-14 Paul's reply to the slogan (v. 12) is that the Corinthian Christians are not their own; they are "bodies" belonging to the Lord (vv. 13,19-20; 1:2; 7:22-23; 10:26). In the Roman world, "body" commonly designated a slave owned by a master, or lord. Making a wordplay of this, Paul said a person's body (Gk soma) is not for sexual immorality. It is actually a "slave body" (Gk soma) for the Lord (Gk kurios ; "master"). God will do away with many bodily desires at the resurrection, so why be enslaved to them now?

6:15-17 Paul called the believers at Corinth to remember the oneness and sanctity of their union with Christ. The words one flesh in this context refer to becoming one body through sexual relations with a prostitute. The implication in verse 17 is that because Christians are joined to the Lord, they should never be joined to a prostitute.

6:18-20 Sexual immorality is unique among sins insomuch as it is sin against the body, thus assaulting the sanctity of a believer's sacred oneness with Christ (sealed by the Holy Spirit who is in you) and the oneness of holy matrimony (cp. 7:2). The point is that the believer's body is a sacred vessel, bought at a price by the Son of God. Believers thus have no business doing anything with the Lord's body that does not glorify Him.

7:1 This verse presents a Corinthian position, stated in correspondence previously sent to Paul, that recommended celibacy in marriage. What a divide in the Corinthian church! Some advocated marital celibacy while others were engaged in gross sexual immorality.

7:2-4 Sexual desires, which can readily lead to sexual immorality, commend frequent sexual union between husband and wife. The phrase have the right in this context refers to sexual relations.

7:5 Paul issues an apostolic ruling: husbands and wives must not deprive one another sexually in marriage, except when mutually agreed upon for the sake of devotion to prayer. Like fasting from food and drink, periods of marital celibacy can hone one's focus on the one great desire: God Himself.

7:6-7 Paul expressed limited agreement to the view stated in verse 1, "It is good for a man not to have relations with a woman." He did think it was "good" if the Corinthians stayed single as he was—but only if they had the gift to do so.

7:9 Paul gives another apostolic ruling: unmarried persons who lack self-control should get married. See verse 5 and note there.

7:10 Paul reiterates the Lord's ruling to the married, giving an injunction to wives that they must remain in their marriage (Mt 19:1-9; Mk 10:1-12).

7:11 The wife who has separated from her husband has two options: remain apart from him, though celibate, or be reconciled to her husband. Completing his reiteration of the Lord's instructions for marriage, Paul insisted that the husband is not to leave his wife.

7:12-13 The phrase to the rest is a reference to mixed marriages—a believer married to an unbeliever. Christians were only to marry "in the Lord" (cp. v. 39). The situation Paul addresses here assumes that both spouses were unbelievers when they married but that one of them thereafter converted to Christianity. Since Jesus did not comment on this situation, Paul gave an apostolic ruling: the believing spouse must not leave the unbelieving spouse. One can easily conceive of the self-sacrifice entailed by this ethic. The passage also assumes that the unbeliever agrees that there are benefits to continuing the marital relationship (is willing to live with him or her).

7:14 A Christian spouse who remains faithful to his or her unbelieving spouse has a "sanctifying effect" on unbelieving family members. Paul is referring not just to the possible future salvation of unbelievers in the household, but to their present protection from pagan values through the influence of the Christian member's exemplary morals.

7:15-16 Paul gives a qualification to the above ruling: Do not hinder a nonbeliever's desire to separate. Peace in this context refers to being "at peace" if the unbelieving spouse should decide to leave, for in this event the believer has done nothing wrong.

7:17-19 Paul issues a "remain-as-you-are" edict and illustrates it with a false dilemma facing a Jewish-born male Christian. Such a man had the option to remain circumcised or become uncircumcised (undo his circumcision) by undergoing a painful operation, as some secular-minded Jews did in the first century (Josephus, Ant. xii. 241). These things are mere distractions. Paul zeroes in on what really matters: keeping the commands of God as those who belong to Him.

7:20-23 Paul again states the remain-as-you-are principle and illustrates it with a choice faced by slaves: to willingly remain a slave or to seek freedom. The apostle did not condemn slaves to a life of permanent slavery. By all means take the opportunity to become free if it presents itself, he said. But on the other hand, the fact of being a slave should not be a concern. His logic is thus: whether a Christian was free or a slave when he came to Christ, he owes lifetime obligations to the same master, Jesus Christ. In Roman parlance, a freedman was an emancipated slave, whereas a free man was one who had never been enslaved.

7:25-27 The focus of this entire discussion (vv. 25-27) is cast from the male perspective since ancient culture gave males primary responsibility for marital decisions. About serves as a marker denoting that Paul is now applying the remain-as-you-are principle (vv. 17-24) to the dilemma facing virgins. In this case Paul has no command from the Lord, but that does not lessen the impact of his teaching (i.e, it is fine for a man to remain as he is) since his opinion was made trustworthy by the Lord. "Virgins" in this context refers to betrothed, female virgins (cp. "virgins" for "betrothed wives," Lk 1:27; 2Co 11:2). Their dilemma was brought about by an unnamed present distress ("impending hardship"), possibly a famine that called the practicality of marital plans into doubt. Paul's talk of being bound to or loosed from a wife in verse 27 can be summarized as follows: (1) the man who was bound by promise to a betrothed virgin (essentially already his wife, given the seriousness of betrothal) was not to seek release from future obligations to consummate the marriage (v. 27a-b), and (2) the man who had already been released from obligation (to a virgin) was not to seek betrothal with another woman (v. 27c-d). In other words, keep your commitments and/or remain as you are.

7:28 Paul does not define trouble in this life. Possibly it refers to the responsibilities and hardships that can attend marriage and childrearing. Improperly handled, these can distract us from devotion to God; see verses 32-35.

7:29-31 Regardless of a person's situation, he should live for the Lord. Two realities should heighten our emphasis on such a lifestyle of devotion: the time is limited and the world . . . is passing away.

7:32-40 In this section Paul shares his motivation for espousing the remain-as-you-are principle for single men, virgin daughters, their fathers, and widows. It comes down to this: The significant change in life status that would result from these choices, particularly during a time of "present distress" (v. 26), could pose a distraction from devotion to the Lord.

7:36-38 The identity of any man is often misunderstood. Paul is offering special counsel not to engaged bachelors but to fathers of unmarried daughters. They were to use wisdom in giving or withholding their daughters in marriage. The phrase they can get married probably refers to the father granting permission. He who marries (Gk "he who gives in marriage") refers to the father.

7:39-40 Newly widowed women were free to marry in the Lord (i.e., other believers), but Paul reiterates the virtue of the remain-as-you-are principle. Remaining as she is offered the widow the possibility of undistracted devotion to the Lord.

8:1 a About indicates that Paul is answering a question the Corinthians had asked him in a previous letter (5:9; 7:1). By custom, Corinthians commonly dined in pagan temples (which were centers for civic activity) or else partook of meat portions that had been offered there. The Corinthian Christians wanted to know if it was permissible to eat food offered to idols as they reclined "at banquet" in a pagan temple ("dining in an idol's temple," v. 10) or feasted in a household that had received such things.

8:1b-3 Paul offers two guiding principles. First, knowledge (of Christian freedom) by itself makes a person arrogant, but love builds up believers. Second, it is not by knowledge that we are approved of God, but by our love for God we are known by Him. That is the knowledge that counts most. Thus no believer should allow his relatively unimportant knowledge to become a cause of arrogance.

8:4-6 Paul's answer that believers technically have the right to eat food offered to idols may surprise us, but the logic is sound: idols are a "non-reality" and there is no God but one. But his advice on this matter does not stop here (cp. vv. 7-13; and esp. 10:14-22).

8:7-8 Christian freedom should never be flaunted or wielded carelessly. Believers at Corinth needed to be mindful that some in their fellowship, being so used to idolatry and having as yet a weak . . . conscience, could be harmed by seeing Christians partake of food associated with idols.

8:8-13 For those who knew that idols were nothing, Paul stated the obvious: Eating food (even food sacrificed to idols) does not make believers unacceptable to God.

8:9 In language reminiscent of Jesus, Paul says the strong are not to be a stumbling block to the weak (cp. Mt 18:10). When misused, the liberty (Gk exousia; "right") of the strong can destroy a weaker person's allegiance to Christ.

8:10-12 If a weak person saw a knowledgeable believer dining in an idol's temple, he might attach religious significance to it and become confused about allegiance to Christ.

8:13 Self-limitation by more mature believers safeguards the Christian allegiance of new believers, especially in overtly pagan environments such as Corinth.

9:1-2 Paul offers a rhetorical reply to those who questioned ("examine," v. 3) his apostolic ministry.

9:3-6 Paul's "rights" as an apostle, which were exercised by other apostles, included: (1) the right to be compensated for his apostolic service; (2) the right to take a believing wife; and (3) the right to refrain from outside work, devoting himself entirely to ministry. Paul did not always choose to exercise these rights (e.g., Ac 18:1-3; 20:33-35; Php 4:14-17).

9:8-11 Paul uses a greater-to-lesser argument to justify his right to an allowance. If he has supplied spiritual things (the greater) to the Corinthians, surely he ought to receive material benefits (the lesser) from them in return.

9:12 Now Paul uses a lesser-to-greater argument to support his right to a living wage. If those who presently labored among the Corinthians received wages, how much more should the one who had founded the church? In response to those who said that Paul was illegitimate because the church did not support him (cp. 2Co 10; 12), he declared that he had yielded this right to a wage so he would not hinder the gospel of Christ.

9:14 The Lord has commanded may refer to Luke 10:4-8, where among other things Jesus says, "The [gospel] worker is worthy of his wages."

9:16-17 An obligation is placed on me alludes to Paul's commission at Damascus as a "chosen instrument" (Ac 9:15) who had been given a stewardship to discharge the message of the gospel to the nations (4:1). Paul had not chosen missions work as a profession. Rather, God chose it for him.

9:18 Though Paul felt bound as Christ's slave to fulfill his commission (Rm 1:1), his obligation to preach the gospel was rewarding to him. He took such pleasure in it that he could willingly forego his right to compensation.

9:19 Paul as a free man (cp. v. 1) put forward his motive for making himself a slave (lit "I enslaved myself"). He did it in order to win more people.

9:20-22 Paul's "self-imposed slavery" gave him the freedom to accommodate Jews and Gentiles alike and therefore speak the gospel in a forthright manner, unhindered by cultural hang-ups. He exemplified this freedom among Jews when he circumcised Timothy (whose mother was Jewish) to maximize the gospel witness in Jewish areas (Ac 16:3). Among Gentiles who were without the law, he yielded his rights in order to maximize the gospel's advance. For example, he would not take a wage if taking a wage would cause those "outside the law" to stumble. The phrase not being without God's law but within Christ's law refers to him as one who had the right under God's law to receive a wage (cp. 9:8-10), yet among Gentiles he yielded that right.

9:24-27 Like hard-driven runners and boxers, Paul had a single-minded focus. His exercise of self-control was aimed at keeping him from being disqualified. "Disqualified" does not mean loss of salvation, which Paul elsewhere said is impossible (Rm 8:38-39; see also Jn 10:28-30), but rather failure to fulfill his God-given commission to evangelize the nations (Ac 9:15; 13:2; Rm 1:1).

A training track at Olympia. Paul used athletic training and competition as a picture of the endurance and perseverance of Christians (9:24-27).

9:24-26a If athletes compete by the rules and master self-control in everything, all for the purpose of winning a crown that will fade away, how much more should Christians discipline themselves for a crown that will never fade away?

9:26b-27 Paul viewed his boxing opponent as his own body. When it resisted giving up rights and liberties, he brought it under strict control (lit "I enslave it"). Paul had already stated that he endured everything (v. 12), made himself a slave to all (v. 19), and exercised self-control (v. 25) to allow a hearing for the gospel (by not taking a wage).

10:1-5 To make vivid the possibility of disqualification, Paul drew on the exodus (Ex 12ff). Those Hebrews enjoyed unique access to God (were all under the cloud of God's presence and were baptized into Moses), and yet most of them . . . were struck down. The phrase they all ate the same spiritual food points back to God's daily provision for Israel in the wilderness (Dt 8:14-15).

10:6-10 The wilderness generation served as a cautionary example to the Corinthian church, which was on the verge of provoking God. The Corinthians apparently were boasting that they could please the Lord (cp. v. 12) and at the same time partake of food and fellowship at pagan religious clubs (vv. 6,14-22). The Corinthian motto was: "everything is permissible" (v. 23). Paul called them to remember the OT examples. The phrase now these things refers to the idolatrous activity of the wilderness generation that provoked God to cut them down (v. 5). The prohibition don't become idolaters as some of them were is emphatic in the Greek and becomes the paradigm for three exhortations: (1) do not commit sexual immorality (cp. Nm 25:1-18, esp. v. 9); (2) do not test Christ (cp. Nm 21:5-6); and (3) do not complain (cp. Ex 12:23; Nm 16:41-50). In all three of these OT examples, God judged and destroyed the people for their sins.

10:11-14 God's judgment on the wilderness generation served as a cautionary tale for any Corinthian believer who thought he was strong enough to participate in pagan religious functions without compromise and escape judgment at the ends of the ages. Paul called the Corinthians to recognize their impending accountability before the Lord (1:7-8).

10:16-17 Paul wanted the Corinthians to know that participants at the Lord's Supper represent a unified body that is dependent on the death of Christ. The phrase because there is one bread, we who are many are one body refers to the individual members who make up one corporate body, the church (12:12-27). United participation as one body at the Lord's Supper points to unified fellowship brought about by Christ's death as well as each individual believer's union with Christ.

10:18-22 Actual “idolatry” (v. 14) is in view here, not merely partaking of foods offered to idols (8:1-13). Participation in idolatrous rites is a violation of the believer’s union with Christ and thus with the one-body relationship that they had with other believers. Therefore, the Lord’s Supper and the table of demons are mutually exclusive.

10:18-19 People of Israel (lit “Israel according to the flesh”) in the present context refers ultimately to the sinful wilderness generation. Likewise, his reference to the altar probably alludes to Ex 32:5-6 (cited in 1Co 10:7), which recounts Aaron’s building of an altar in front of the idol, the golden calf.

10:20-21 Paul prohibited participation in pagan ritualistic meals because this involved intimacy with demons. He continued to affirm the non-reality of idols as deities (8:4-6), but demons are both real and powerful. He did not want the Corinthians to discount demonic presence at the “idols’ table.” The word they refers back to idolatrous Israel in the wilderness (cp. v. 18, “the people of Israel”) when they overlooked demonic presence, just as the Corinthian believers were tempted to do.

10:22 Paul called the Corinthian believers to remember the example of Israel when they provoked the Lord to jealousy by their idolatry, which resulted in a plague (Ex 32:33-35).

10:23-11:1 This section concludes the train of thought that began in 8:1, summarizing the principle that believers should limit the exercise of their freedom (“knowledge,” 8:1) out of consideration for those who have weak consciences.

The excavations in Corinth show the shops in the Agora. Here in the marketplace, meat that had been offered in the worship of idols was sold. Meat that was sold in this fashion would be bought and then served as a part of a regular family meal. This situation is reflected in Paul’s comments in 10:23-11:1. Some of the shops in the Agora used cold, running spring water to keep perishables fresh.

10:23-24 The overriding principle of 8:1-11:1 is to seek the good of the other person. Believers must conscribe their actions with the aim of benefiting others, especially where this can lead to salvation for nonbelievers (cp. vv. 32-33). All believers should adopt limits on their rights and freedoms.

10:25-26 In what may seem a surprising twist, Paul said seeking "the good of the other person" (v. 24) meant a believer who objected to buying meat that had been sacrificed to idols should not interrogate the meat sellers in order to certify that the meat had no association with idolatry. Why? Most likely because such questions would seem hostile and alienate the nonbelieving Greeks at Corinth, thus hindering the gospel's advance. Paul offered scriptural support for this position from Ps 24:1: "The earth is the Lord's, and all that is in it." Therefore, partake of the meat out of gratitude and a clear conscience.

10:28-29a Paul prohibited eating meat if someone bothered explicitly to point out that it had been offered to an idol (Gk hierothutos; "meat devoted to a divinity"). This rare Greek term was used by pagans to designate meat devoted to a particular god. In this situation, the food's history did matter because the person who pointed it out (whether they be a nonbelieving Gentile or a Christian of weak conscience) apparently felt that a Christian eating such meat would be compromising his allegiance to Christ.

10:29b-30 After a parenthetical interruption that explains an exception to one's freedom (vv. 28-29a), these rhetorical questions introduce the basis for the believer's freedom to eat whatever is given them without questions of conscience.

10:31-33 He or she who wishes to do everything for God's glory cannot succeed if they act in disregard for others. Paul was always relinquishing his rights for the spiritual profit of others—that they may be saved.

11:1 Paul's admonition to imitate him was justified insomuch as he was an apt imitator of Christ.

11:3 Paul issued a principle for application in corporate worship—the principle of voluntary submission to authority. As Christ is the head over the church, He certainly has supreme authority over every man (cp. 3:23; "you belong to Christ"). The phrase "head of every man" means "authority over" and fits the letter's dominant theme of submission to Christ. God is the head of Christ refers to the Father's authority over the incarnate Messiah, who as the God-man voluntarily submitted to God.

11:4 The situation in this verse assumes a public setting where corporate worship was taking place. Paul applied the principle ("Christ is the head of every man") to the praying man. Outward manifestations of piety should not dishonor a believing man's head ("Christ"). The phrase with something on his head is literally "having down alongside the head." This refers not to a hat but to the Roman practice of pulling down the toga over the head while bowing for pagan worship, to prevent distractions. Because of the association of this practice with pagan worship, a male believer dishonored his true head ("Christ") when he covered his physical head with the toga. By imitating pagan practice, he shamed Christ and himself.

11:5 a In the first century, a woman would speak with her head uncovered only in private settings. For example, women sometimes led prayer with their "head uncovered" at pagan clubs meeting in private homes. Paul did not give a reason why women in the church at Corinth were uncovered. It may be that they brought into the church religious practices that paralleled habits in the pagan meetings.

11:5b-6 Paul explains why a Corinthian woman's uncovered head dishonored her head. A woman who prayed or prophesied with her head uncovered was one and the same with the one having her head shaved (Gk te exureymeney). Paul equated the shame of a "head uncovered" (imitating the practice in pagan private religious clubs; see note at v. 5a) with the shame of a person who publicly expressed pagan dedication (i.e., to have her hair cut off or her head shaved). Pagan women at Corinth sometimes sheared their hair and dedicated their locks as a token of worship or fulfillment of a vow to a god. In the Corinthian setting, the "uncovered head" paralleled practices in pagan clubs and thus blurred the divisions between devotion to the true God and false gods, resulting in dishonor to a believing woman's husband and to Christ.

11:7 a A man's uncovered head honored his head because it permitted the immediacy of his reflection of the image and glory of God, perhaps especially in light of the fact that man was created first (Gn 1:27; 2:7). Therefore, he should not cover his head in imitation of pagan practice, which viewed human creation as an ignoble creation of warring and vain gods.

11:7b-9 Paul's second reason for saying a woman's uncovered head dishonored her head is that the first woman was created from man (Gn 2:21-22). Woman completes man in God's created order in the sense that man mirrors the image of God, and woman reflects man's glory. This does not mean woman is inferior to man. She completes God's creation of man as male and female (Gn 1:27), and brings glory to man (Gn 2:23).

11:10 This third reason why a woman's uncovered head dishonored her head is difficult to interpret. Perhaps the church's witness to the angelic hosts would be adversely affected by an uncovered female head. The phrase authority on her head seems to refer to an outward symbol that signified to the angels her deference to leadership.

11:11-15 These verses are obscure and have yielded various interpretations. It is best that interpreters remain tentative in their conclusions.

11:17-18 Paul chided the Corinthian believers for their inappropriate, divisive behavior when they came together as a church (cp. v. 20). The word "church" refers to their assembly as a unified, corporate body. In the NT, "church" never refers to a building or place of meeting.

11:19 The approved . . . among you refers to those who were not the cause of divisions within the body. Their behavior was exemplary during a time of strife.

11:20-22 To the church's shame, the scene Paul describes seems typical of a pagan setting. Instead of coming together in unity, members were focused on their own selfish desires.

11:23-25 I received from the Lord most likely means Paul was given a special revelation from Jesus about this matter. For other instances where Paul received such revelation, see Ac 18:9ff; 22:18; 23:11; 27:23-25; 2Co 12:7. Christ's selflessness in giving His life for others stood in stark contrast to the Corinthians' selfishness during the Lord's Supper.

11:26 The phrase as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup emphasizes that the solemn remembrance of Christ's death is a corporate declaration of "Jesus Christ and Him crucified" (2:2) until He comes again.

11:27 Since the Lord's Supper is a commemoration of Christ's suffering and death on our behalf, to participate in an unworthy manner is to sin against the body and blood of the Lord.

11:28-29 A person must examine himself with respect to Christ's sacrifice for believers and the relationship each believer has within the corporate body. The phrase whoever eats and drinks without recognizing the body is a solemn wordplay on the word "body." Believers are to recognize that Jesus selflessly sacrificed His body for others and that this sacrifice was designed to make Christians a selfless corporate body.

11:30-32 If the Corinthian believers judged and examined themselves correctly, this would avert judgment from God within the corporate body. Asleep is a term Paul and other biblical authors use for physical death (cp. 15:18; Jn 11:11; Ac 7:60).

11:33-34 By way of a summary, Paul directed the Corinthians to wait on the arrival of all the believers before partaking of the Lord's Supper. This act of self-control would prevent unnecessary divisions within the corporate body.

12:1-3 Allegiance to Jesus as "exclusive Lord" is made possible only through the working of the Holy Spirit. Pagan Gentiles led off to the idols in ceremonial procession could profess Jesus as one of many deities or else curse Him as a fraud, but never could they abandon their false gods and devote themselves to Jesus unless the Spirit of God made it possible.

12:4-11a The Spirit according to His will distributes a diversity of gifts to the body for its common benefit. Verses 4-6 and the beginning of verse 11 have a variety of wordplays that frame this section.

12:4-6 . The same triune God brings about a variety of gifts and manifests diverse ministries within the corporate body. The different gifts . . . ministries, and activities within the unified church reflect the essential unity and unified work of the persons of the Godhead (vv. 6,11,24,27-28)—the same Spirit, the same Lord, the same God.

12:7 Each demonstration of the Spirit in a believer is given by God for the mutual benefit of the whole body of believers (cp. vv. 12-31). "Demonstration of the Spirit" refers to gifts, ministries, and activities made possible by the Spirit's enabling power. Similar lists of spiritual gifts are given in verse 28; Rm 12:6-8; Eph 4:11; and 1Pt 4:10-11.

12:11 The phrase one and the same Spirit is active in all these refers to the Spirit's supernatural working through a diversity of gifted people to produce one cohesive relationship (cp. v. 7, "what is beneficial").

12:12 Christ is compressed language for "the body of Christ," the church (cp. vv. 27-28).

12:13 To illustrate that individual believers become identified as one body of Christ (i.e., as the unified church), Paul borrowed imagery from the practice of dying various cloths by immersing them in the same dye vat. All believers are baptized into one body and are made to drink of one Spirit.

12:14-20 Paul tackles the problem of self-deprecation for believers who view themselves as less useful to the corporate body.

12:15-16 Paul personified body parts as speakers to express the absurdity of envy and self-deprecation among members of the physical human body. Some Corinthians apparently fell into grading the gifts, attaching importance to public, showy gifts (such as the gift of utterance), and relative unimportance to less observable gifts.

12:17 A body reduced to just one member would be grotesque and useless.

12:18 The dispersion and diversification of gifts is no accident. God Himself has given them just as He wanted.

12:19-20 Many parts, yet one body encapsulates our identity as individuals enfolded into the corporate body of Christ.

12:21-22 Counter to Corinthian misperceptions, the weaker body parts are necessary.

12:23-26 We clothe unpresentable parts (private areas) of the human body, which we regard as less honorable, thus according them greater honor. Similarly, God has arranged the body of Christ in such a way that the "less honorable" members are accorded "greater honor." Humility is a pinnacle value in the kingdom of God (Mt 18:3).

12:27 Individual members (Gk ek merous; "part by part") becomes key in chapter 13 (cp. ek merous, translated "in part" at 13:9; "partial" at 13:10; "in part" at 13:12). It occurs nowhere else in the NT.

12:28 Church here refers not just to the local body of believers at Corinth but to the universal church, composed of all believers everywhere and from every age. God has placed emphasizes that no one can justly appoint themselves to positions within the body. The appointments are God's prerogative alone. First . . . second . . . third gives us a glimpse at the priority of roles during the early church era. All members are equal, but no church would ever have been founded apart from the Lord's appointed apostles.

12:29-30 In a series of rhetorical questions, Paul emphasizes that no gift is normative.

12:31 a Paul concludes by exhorting the Corinthian church to emphasize the greater gifts that have more direct edification for the assembled body.

12:31b-13:3 And I will show you an even better way introduces the discussion about the relationship of love to the exercise of gifts within the corporate body. Paul uses three hyperboles to show that gifts without love are pointless.

12:31 b Paul established the preeminence of love (13:1-13) when exercising gifts.

13:1 If not accompanied by love, the ability to speak human or angelic languages would be unbearable to others, like misused musical instruments.

13:3 Sacrifice of one's life (give my body) can be the ultimate act of love (Jn 15:13; Rm 5:6-8), but it is also possible to make such sacrifice in order to boast rather than out of love. In this case, nothing is gained.

13:4-5 Paul personifies love in order to show its daily character and choices.

13:5-6a The Corinthians would have recognized these faults as taking place among them.

13:6b Contrary to common perception, love is not marked by tolerance for error.

13:7 Love endures in this age with a sure expectation of better things to come in the next.

13:8-13 Many aspects of church life will end at the end of this current age, but love never ends. This permanence signals love's priority within the church.

13:10 The perfect refers to the next age, the eternal age when Messiah reigns.

13:11 Paul uses the analogy of infancy versus adulthood to explain the contrast between our present understanding and the understanding we will have in the next age.

13:12 Believers are granted to know truth in this age, but only indistinctly so. Our imprecise perception of Christ will be made complete in eternity, where we will know Him face to face.

13:13 Of faith, hope, and love, love is greatest because it continues into the next age. Both faith and hope will be fulfilled in eternity, and so will not remain. This statement concludes a semantic bracket that began in verse 8—"Love never ends."

14:1-4 Paul valued prophecy over uninterpreted language (Gk glossai; cp. 12:10; "different kinds of languages" implies that these were human languages). Utterance gifts should be exercised only for the edification and exhortation of others. The phrase no one understands him refers to the uselessness of uninterpreted language for the corporate body. The phrase in the Spirit probably refers to the rational faculties of a person (i.e., "in his spirit") rather than to the Holy Spirit (cp. v. 14).

14:5 Paul discouraged uninterpreted languages within the church by declaring the supremacy of prophecy for the edification of the church.

14:11 Just as a foreigner is estranged by those speaking a language he does not know, so too members of the body of Christ become estranged from one another if unintelligible, untranslated languages are spoken in the church.

14:12 Rather than being selfishly ambitious with spiritual gifts, believers must strive for building up the church.

14:13-19 This section includes an apostolic ruling in which Paul declares the necessity of intelligible language over untranslated languages for edification of the church body.

14:13-14 Paul bade the person who wanted to speak in another language to pray for the ability to interpret. Ironically, while praying in an unintelligible language he could not ask God for the power to interpret because he would not know what he was praying.

14:15-17 The legitimacy of a person's speech in the midst of the congregation is measured by the edification it brings the body of Christ. Speeches, prayers of blessing, and expressions of thanksgiving cannot edify the body if they are unintelligible (i.e., if the congregants remain uninformed). Paul's statement, I will pray with the spirit, and I will also pray with my understanding, means he will pray in a way that is both intelligible to bystanders and drawn from his spirit.

14:18 I thank (Gk eucharisto) can express either thanksgiving to God ("I give thanks") or prayer ("I pray with thanksgiving"). More than all of you indicates that Paul was not merely speaking from theory in his instructions about other languages and their proper practice in the church.

14:21-22 Drawing on Is 28:11-12, Paul states that uninterpreted earthly languages serve as a sign of God's impending "strange work" of judgment to unbelievers (Is 28:11,21). In Is 28, the leaders of Judah rejected as unintelligible nonsense Isaiah's message that would have given Jerusalem rest from their enemies.

14:23-25 Paul warned the Corinthians that practicing other languages carelessly would be harmful to uninformed visitors and unbelievers. Churchwide prophesying, however, would serve to convict and convert visitors. Interpreters differ over exactly what all was entailed by "prophecy" in NT times, but see verses 29-32 and note.

14:27-28 Again Paul emphasizes the importance of self-restraint for the greater good; see note at 11:33-34.

14:29-32 That Paul instructed people with the gift of prophecy to speak in turn and then await evaluation by others in attendance indicates that the kind of "prophecy" in view here is not predictive or a foretelling of future events.

14:33 God is not the author of disorder in a worship service.

14:34-35 During assemblies of the church at Corinth, women were not permitted to speak in the process of evaluating prophetic utterances (vv. 29-30,37). For the sake of propriety and order, they were to ask their own husbands in private at home about what was spoken. These verses should not be taken as a prohibition against women speaking in church. To say otherwise contradicts Paul elsewhere (e.g., 11:5).

14:36 With rhetorical flair Paul reminded the believers at Corinth of his apostolic authority. He appealed to their own recollection about his role as an apostle who brought them God's authoritative word.

14:37-38 Those who were truly prophets would discern that Paul's principles for the orderly exercise of prophetic gifts were consistent with the Lord's command. It is unclear exactly what is meant by will be ignored. Possibly it means those wishing to conduct services correctly will disregard those clamoring to do otherwise.

15:1-58 This chapter represents the most comprehensive discussion of resurrection in the entire Bible.

15:3-4 These verses recount the basic gospel message as Paul delivered it in town after town.

15:5-11 Early Christian evangelists validated the certainty of Jesus' resurrection by recounting His post-tomb appearances to authoritative eyewitnesses (e.g., Ac 2:32). Paul refers to himself as one abnormally born due to his late arrival in the chain of eyewitnesses to Christ's resurrection (Ac 9:1-6).

15:12 Though it is uncertain what caused some Corinthian believers to deny the resurrection of the dead, Greeks viewed bodily death as final, with some saying the spirit survived disembodied. This view likely influenced the church at Corinth.

15:13-15 If Christ were not raised, then apostolic preaching of the resurrection was without foundation, the Corinthians' faith was void, and the apostles were false witnesses. "Faith" here refers to the content of the gospel message, and is synonymous with "system of beliefs."

15:16 A restatement, in reverse order, of the implications of the Corinthian skepticism regarding resurrection.

15:19 Christians should be pitied more than anyone if there is no resurrection, for in that case we have placed all our hopes in a falsehood. Christianity is fundamentally a resurrection faith.

15:20 Christ's genuine, well-attested resurrection is the guarantee of our future resurrection. Firstfruits refers to the guarantee that Christ's resurrection is the first-of-a-kind resurrection that promises others will follow in the end time (cp. Rm 8:23, where "firstfruits" can be translated "guarantee," "first installment"). In this instance the phrase those who have fallen asleep refers specifically to those who have died in Christ. For more general usage of "fallen asleep," see note at 11:30-32.

15:21-22 Paul presents a parallel of necessary effects. Through one man, Adam, death came to humanity. If this is ever to be reversed, it must be done so through like kind: a man. God has appointed just such a man: Jesus Christ, who is fully divine and fully human. Through His resurrection the promise of resurrection comes to a new humanity "in Christ." The second occurrence of the word all refers to all those who are joined to Christ through faith.

15:23 Jesus' resurrection precedes and makes certain the resurrection of those who belong to Christ at His coming.

15:24-28 The Son as the resurrected Messiah will conquer and subdue everything, including the last enemy—death. By saying He must reign, Paul touches on the set-in-stone divine plan that assures us that history will end in just this way: with God triumphant over all evil and God's people reigning with Christ forever (1Tm 2:12).

15:29 Being baptized for the dead probably refers to the practice, apparently unique to the Corinthian church, of someone undergoing baptism on behalf of a believer who had died without undergoing baptism. Paul was not condoning this practice, and certainly Scripture nowhere directs us to conduct such baptisms. Paul simply pointed out that it was meaningless for the Corinthians to enact such practices if they disbelieved in the resurrection of the dead.

15:32 Wild animals is almost certainly metaphorical for struggles Paul faced from human opponents of the gospel (Ac 19; 2Co 1:8-10).

15:35-38 Paul compares human resurrection to the life-death-life cycle from agriculture. The seed body that dies gives rise to a totally different plant body, and yet there is retention of identity. So it is with our present bodies and our future resurrection bodies.

15:42-44 Having reviewed differentiations within the created order (vv. 35-41), Paul turns to differentiations of the resurrected body. It was sown in corruption and will be raised in incorruption. The body changes from a perishable body (a natural body) to an imperishable body (a spiritual body), though one that has physical characteristics (e.g., Lk 24:39). It is sown in dishonor and weakness, and it will be raised a glorious, imperishable body.

15:45 The first man Adam received the breath of life, a life that would become corruptible and perishable. In contrast, the last Adam (Jesus) will impart life, granting believers an incorruptible, imperishable, eternal body. Jesus will make believers alive through His life-giving Spirit (Gk pneuma zoopoioun), a power God alone wields.

15:46 Grammatically, the words the spiritual (Gk pneumatikon) and the natural (Gk psuchikon) are in the neuter gender. They refer to two kinds of bodies (cp. v. 44) and not to Adam or Christ. “Spiritual” (pneumatikon) here refers to a body brought to life by the last Adam, Christ.

15:47-49 Paul contrasts the first man Adam and those who have borne his image with the second man and those who will bear his image. The first man was made of earth (Gk choikos; “earthy”), an expression Paul coined in allusion to Gn 2:7. This language emphasizes the transitory nature of those who are related to the first Adam, with bodies that return to dust. The “second man” from heaven refers to Jesus in His glorified humanity, as God-man and Messiah, who is coming from heaven to impart imperishable eternal bodies to those who have borne the image of the man made of dust.

15:50 Our earthly condition is such (flesh and blood and corruption, references to our perishable physical nature) that our Adamic bodies cannot inherit the kingdom, implying that they somehow must be changed.

15:51-53 Paul supports the above implication (v. 50) with an apostolic revelation that though not everyone will die (fall asleep; see note at v. 20) before Christ’s coming, those who are alive when He comes will all be changed. No one is transported to the eternal state unchanged.

15:52 In a moment (Gk atomos) signifies the smallest possible division of something, in this case time. Blink of an eye similarly implies rapidity. Such will be the swiftness of the transformation of the living when the last trumpet sounds at Christ’s return (1Th 4:16-17).

15:53 The body that bears the image of the man of dust (the first Adam) must inevitably be changed into the incorruptibility and immortality of the body that bears the image of the man from heaven (the second Adam); see vv. 47-49 and note there.

15:54-55 Paul conflates Isaiah 25:8 and Hosea 13:14 in this citation. The exchange of corruptible for incorruptibility comes only when death and corruption are swallowed up by Jesus Christ. This passage does not teach the doctrine of "soul sleep"—a suspended state for believers between physical death and the change into glorified bodies. Believers are with the Lord immediately after death (e.g., Lk 23:43; Ac 7:55-59; 2Co 5:1-8).

15:56 This verse represents a theological aside that Paul developed further in a letter he wrote some months after this present one (see Rm 7).

15:58 Most anything we do in this life is vanity (Ec 1:2-3), but labor in the Lord has eternal value.

16:1-4 Now about indicates that Paul is responding to a question, expressed to him in a previous letter (see 7:1 and note), about how to organize the collection for the Jerusalem church (2Co 8-9). The Corinthians had pleaded for the opportunity to contribute to the collection (2Co 8:4). Each person was to set . . . aside funds regularly for the collection, based on his ability to give. All the funds were eventually to be collected and sent in care of designated couriers. Paul personally would go with the couriers if it seemed advisable and the circumstances permitted.

16:5-9 Paul planned to go through Macedonia to Corinth (on his third missionary journey) and possibly to spend the winter at Corinth. He then expected the Corinthians to provide supplies for his journey when he left them. In the meantime, he intended to stay in Ephesus until May (the Jewish feast of Pentecost) because of the favorable response to the gospel in that city.

16:10-11 Paul gave instructions on how the Corinthian believers should receive Timothy. The word if (Gk ean) here is equivalent to "whenever." Paul was certain Timothy was going to Corinth. Send him on his way in peace is idiomatic for "supply him with all he needs for the journey."

16:12 Apollos, whose vital role in growing the Corinthian church Paul readily acknowledged (see 3:5-6 and note), was most likely unwilling to come now because of gospel duties elsewhere.

16:13-14 Believers must be alert about competing traditions of worldly wisdom and stand firm as one body in the faith. "Faith" here refers to the content of the gospel—Christ's death and resurrection (15:1-5,14). Love confirms our submission to the Lord's authority and to one another.

16:15-16 Paul exhorted the Corinthians to submit to the household of Stephanas (1:16). The term firstfruits is an honorific title referring to their early reception of the gospel in Achaia.

16:17-18 Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus visited Paul and made up for the Corinthians' absence (lit "these filled up your lack"). Noting their high character and gifts for ministry, Paul instructed the believers at Corinth to recognize them.

16:20 In the context of Paul's letters (Rm 16:16; 2Co 13:12; 1Th 5:26) and the early church, the holy kiss was a sign of mutual fellowship within the family of believers.

16:21 Paul concluded the letter in his own handwriting, verifying its authenticity and authority (2Th 3:16-18). By custom Paul spoke his correspondence aloud to a secretary (an amanuensis) who recorded his words on parchment or papyri (Rm 16:22). The signed autographic conclusion probably included verses 21-24.

16:22 The call for judgment on those who were disloyal to the Lord was an uncommon way to end a letter. The Aramaic Marana tha can be variously translated. The imperative "Our Lord, come!" seems best.

16:23-24 The letter ends with Paul's formulaic "grace greeting," followed by a personal touch (My love be with all of you in Christ Jesus) that is unique to this letter.

Greek Pronunciation [sah FEE ah]

HCSB Translation wisdom Uses in 1 Corinthians 17
Uses in the NT 51
Focus passage 1 Corinthians 2:6

The Greek noun sophia means wisdom, intelligence, or knowledge, but this intelligence and knowledge pertain more to skill in living than to attainment of facts. Related words are the verb sophizo, meaning to make wise (2Tm 3:15; 2Pt 1:16), and sophos, the adjective meaning wise or clever.

In the OT, wisdom does not refer to intellectual ability but to one who looks to God for instruction. Solomon stated that 'the fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge" (Pr 1:7), which implies that even a genius who does not fear God is a fool (see Ps 14:1).

Paul understood sophia in the light of the OT. He saw worldly wisdom and God's wisdom as opposites (see 1Co 2:1-9; Col 2:23). The Greeks depended on human mental prowess and insight to unravel the mysteries of life, but Paul relied on God's revelation in Christ (1Co 1:30; Eph 1:8-9,17; 3:8-12). This is why Paul said that God's wisdom in Christ is not 'of this age' and 'the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God' (1Co 2:6; 3:19).

HCSB Translation reward
Uses in 1 Corinthians 4
Uses in the NT 29
Focus passage 1 Corinthians 3:8,14

The Greek noun misthos means pay, wage, reward, recompense. Other related terms are misthios (Lk 15:17,19) and misthotos (Mk 1:20; Jn 10:12-13), both meaning hired hand; misthoo (to hire someone, Mt 20:1,7); misthoma (something rented, Ac 28:30); misthapodosia (reward in Heb 10:35-36; penalty in Heb 2:2); and misthapodotes (rewarder, Heb 11:6). The main idea in this word family is compensation for a task.

The term misthos often refers to monetary payment but its main use is to describe some aspect of divine evaluation of human activity. Jesus used misthos several times in the Sermon on the Mount in reference to rewards that the ungodly receive in this life (Mt 5:46; 6:2,5,16; see 2Pt 2:13,15; Jd 11) in contrast to rewards that believers will receive in heaven (Mt 5:12; 6:1; see Mk 9:41; Lk 6:23,35; 2Jn 8).

Paul used the term misthos four times in 1 Corinthians, and all four refer to the reward that comes from Christian ministry. At the day of judgment the Lord will test by fire the purity of everyone's ministry. Some will receive a reward , while others will endure loss, though not the loss of salvation (1Co 3:10-15).

porneia
Greek Pronunciation [pohr NAY ah]
HCSB Translation sexual immorality Uses in 1 Corinthians 5
Uses in the NT 25
Focus passage 1 Corinthians 5:1

The Greek noun porneia was a general term for all sexual activity outside marriage, so the term can be translated fornication or sexual immorality. Related terms include porneuo, meaning to commit sexual immorality (see 1Co 6:18; 10:18); porne, meaning an immoral woman or a female prostitute (see 6:15-16); and pornos, meaning an immoral person or a male prostitute (5:9-11; 6:9).

Paul condemned a case of incest in the church in Corinth, a sin he called porneia (5:1). In chapter 6 he explained that the believer's body is for the Lord and not for porneia (v. 13). Then he commanded believers to flee porneia (v. 18). On the other hand, sexual union in marriage is commended, partly because it helps believers avoid porneia (7:2). It is likely that cult prostitution, in which the Corinthian people could indulge at the temple of Aphrodite, was a major threat to the Corinthian believers' spiritual growth.

Greek Pronunciation [KRIH noh]

HCSB Translation judge
Uses in 1 Corinthians 17
Uses in the NT 114
Focus passage 1 Corinthians 6:1-6

The Greek verb krino means to judge and always involves the process of thinking through a situation and coming to a conclusion. The term could be used in a narrowly judicial sense but it also has several nuances related to judging in a more general sense. In nonjudicial contexts, krino can mean to select, prefer, decide, consider.

In the NT, krino most often refers to judging something or someone in general. However, krino does occur in specific judicial settings several times, and the court can be human (Mt 5:40; Jn 7:51; 18:31; Ac 23:3; 24:21; 25:9-10,20; 26:6; 1Co 6:1,6) or divine (Jn 5:22,30; 12:48; Ac 17:31; Rm 2:16; 3:4-7; 2Tm 4:1; 1Pt 4:5; Rv 20:12-13). In two passages, krino is used with the meaning to rule. Jesus said that the twelve apostles would judge the twelve tribes of Israel 'in the Messianic Age' (Mt 19:28), and here krino likely means to rule, as the verse's reference to sitting on thrones would imply. Similarly, Paul's statement that the saints would judge the world and angels (1Co 6:2-3) probably means that believers will rule over them both in the future kingdom (cp. Rv 2:26-27).

Greek Pronunciation [SOH mah]

HCSB Translation body
Uses in 1 Corinthians 46
Uses in the NT 142
Focus passage 1 Corinthians 12:12-27

The Greek noun soma means body and usually refers to the physical element of a person's existence. The soma needs to be clothed (Mt 6:25), can be killed (Mt 10:28), can be thrown into hell (Mt 5:29-30), can experience resuscitation (Ac 9:40), and will experience resurrection (1Co 15:35-44; see Mt 27:52; Jn 2:19-21). Paul often referred to the soma as the vehicle for sinful actions (Rm 1:24; 6:6,12; 8:10,13; 1Co 6:18), but he also used the term figuratively. In Romans 12 the church is 'one body in Christ' (v. 5); in 1 Corinthians 12 the church is the body of Christ (v. 27); in Ephesians and Colossians, the church is the body with Christ as its Head (Eph 1:22-23; 5:23; Col 1:18; 2:19).

The disunity among the believers in Corinth forced Paul to deal with this problem by expounding at length on the body metaphor. Believers in the church are the individual parts that make up Christ's body . All parts of Christ's body must work together for the body to function properly.

glossa
Greek Pronunciation [GLOH sah]
HCSB Translation tongue, language Uses in 1 Corinthians 21
Uses in the NT 50
Focus passage 1 Corinthians 14:2-39

The Greek noun glossa can mean tongue, and it refers literally to the organ of speech in the mouth. In the NT, glossa does occur with the literal meaning tongue in several passages (Mk 7:33; Lk 1:64; 16:24; Rm 3:13; Rv 16:10), and the meaning language is common also (Ac 2:11; 1Jn 3:18; Rv 5:9; 7:9; 10:11; 11:9; 13:7; 14:6; 17:15).

Glossa is the term used in Acts and 1 Corinthians referring to speaking in tongues . Luke explained this phenomenon as the apostles' ability to speak in languages spoken by Jews from numerous other countries (Ac 2:4-11; see esp. vv. 6,8,11). These were languages that the apostles had not previously learned, which is why those who heard them speak were so surprised (vv. 7-8). In two other passages in Acts, speaking in tongues refers to the same supernatural ability as described in chapter 2 (10:46; 19:6).

Greek Pronunciation [ahp ahr KAY]

HCSB Translation firstfruits
Uses in 1 Corinthians 3
Uses in the NT 8
Focus passage 1 Corinthians 15:20,23

The Greek noun aparche comes from the preposition apo, meaning from, and arche, meaning beginning or first. In ancient Greek, aparche was often used in connection with the beginning of an event and was the formal term for birth certificate. In the Greek OT, aparche was the term for firstfruits. The Israelites were to bring the firstfruits of their harvest to the priests to be presented before the Lord (Ex 23:16-29; Lv 23:9-14).

In the NT, aparche refers figuratively to people as firstfruits in seven of eight occurrences (Rm 11:16 excepted). Twice Paul used aparche in reference to the believers who were the first converts of a certain province (Rm 16:5; 1Co 16:15). A special group of believers in the end times are also called firstfruits (Rv 14:4). Believers receive the Spirit as the firstfruits of salvation (Rm 8:23), and this occurs through the power of God's word (Jms 1:18). In discussing the resurrection, Paul referred to Christ as 'the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep' (1Co 15:20). Since Christ was the first to arise from the dead (v. 23), His resurrection is the basis for the resurrection of all believers.

kephale
Greek Pronunciation [keh fah LAY]

HCSB Translation head
Uses in 1 Corinthians 10
Uses in the NT 75
Focus passage 1 Corinthians 11:3

The Greek noun kephale means head and usually refers to that part of the body for humans or animals. In the NT, kephale is also used figuratively in several passages, especially in Paul's writings and Revelation.

Paul used the body as a metaphor for the church. In 1Co 12, Paul explained that unity in the church is promoted through mutual dependence and cooperation among the individual members who make up Christ's body (vv. 12-27). This metaphor is modified in Ephesians and Colossians to emphasize the dependence that the body has on its head , who is Christ (Eph 1:22; 4:15; 5:23; Col 1:18; 2:19). Paul taught the husband's role as head of the home in two passages. Just as Christ is the Head of His church, so the husband is the head of his wife (Eph 5:23). Divine and human headship are joined in Paul's hierarchy: God is the head of Christ; Christ is the head of man; man is the head of woman (1Co 11:3). A wife's subordination to her husband does not mean that she is inferior to him, for Christ is subordinate to the Father but is also equal with Him (see Jn 5:18; 1Co 15:27-28; Php 2:6).

Essays The Message and Lifestyle of the Apostles Michael J. Wilkins

The apostles of the New Testament lived through what is arguably the most significant era of human history. They experienced the personal entrance of God into history in the person of Jesus Messiah, and their lives were permanently changed. Their transformation catapulted them into the entire then-known world with the message of what they had experienced—the arrival of the kingdom of God and salvation in Jesus' name.

The term apostle has a significantly different meaning than the word disciple. "Disciple" is the term used to designate all those who have believed in Jesus and have followed Him as their Savior. The title "apostle" designates those who have been commissioned to be leaders of the church and Jesus' representatives with the gospel message. From out of the large group of His disciples, Jesus chose the Twelve to be sent out as His apostles (Lk 6:13-16).

Therefore, coming from the verb apostello, which means "to send someone away to achieve an objective," the noun "apostle" indicates a "sent one" or "messenger." It occurs in the NT in at least four ways.

Four Usages of "Apostle" in the New Testament First, the term is used especially to refer to the "twelve apostles" who were eyewitnesses of Jesus' earthly ministry. They were first sent out to Israel with the gospel message of the arrival of the kingdom of God (Mt 10:1-7), and after Jesus' death and resurrection they were sent out with the gospel message to make disciples of all nations (Mt 28:18-20). They witnessed Jesus' resurrection appearances, which Luke tells us demonstrated the reality of Jesus' victory over death and the certainty of the kingdom of God in this age (Ac 1:2-3). They were among the first to receive the filling of the Spirit at Pentecost (Ac 2:1-4), and their preaching of the gospel established them as the foundation of the church (Eph 2:20). After Judas Iscariot betrayed Jesus and killed himself, another eyewitness of Jesus' earthly ministry and resurrection, Matthias, was added to the Eleven (Ac 1:21-26).

Second, the term apostle also refers to those who saw the risen Lord and were commissioned by Him for ministry (cp. 1Co 9:1). This is the sense in which Paul identifies himself as an "apostle of Christ Jesus" (1Co 1:1; 2Co 1:1; Col 1:1). He was not one of the Twelve (e.g., 1Co 15:3-11; Gl 1:17-19), but Jesus granted him a unique apostleship to the Gentiles (Gl 2:8-9).

Third, the term apostle can have the more general sense of "missionary." This was the case for Barnabas (Ac 14:4,14), perhaps Timothy and Silvanus (cp. 1Th 1:1; 2:7), and Andronicus and Junia[s] (Rm 16:7). The last may have been a husband-wife team; they were commended by Paul for spreading the gospel along with the other apostles.

Fourth, the term apostle sometimes referred more broadly to "messengers of the churches" who were sent out to perform certain tasks (2Co 8:23). This includes among others, Epaphroditus, who was sent as a messenger to minister to Paul by the church at Philippi (Php 2:25-30).

These different types of apostles had different roles, but what they had in common was either their encounter with Jesus in His earthly ministry or in His risen and ascended ministry, or else their being directly commissioned by one who had met these qualifications. And their transformation in understanding Jesus' identity as God incarnate, offering salvation to the world, became the foundation of their message. The Twelve and Paul are dramatic examples.

Diversity and Unity among the Apostles The Twelve displayed a remarkable personal diversity. For example, Peter, Andrew, James, and John were partners in a successful fishing business on the Sea of Galilee (Mk 1:16-20; Lk 5:9-11). Matthew was a hated tax collector (Mt 9:9-13), seen as a traitor because he worked for the Roman occupying government extracting as much tax as he could from his own people. Simon the Zealot was a revolutionary who was willing to die for the cause of liberating Israel from Rome. In normal circumstances these men might be ready to stick a knife in each other, but their individual encounters with Jesus transformed them into a cohesive unit dedicated to declaring Jesus to be the only way to eternal life (cp. Jn 6:67-69).

Peter's preaching at Pentecost is an example of his dramatic transformation from one who denied Jesus to one who fearlessly preached to the multitudes in Jerusalem. His message was clear: "Repent . . . and be baptized, each of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins, and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. . . . Be saved from this corrupt generation!" (Ac 2:38,40). For over 30 years Peter traversed the ancient world proclaiming the same message, until finally the Roman government executed him. But Rome couldn't silence the message, for the church continued to proclaim the gospel fearlessly in the face of persecution.

The apostle Paul was a former Pharisee (Php 3:4-6). The Pharisees were well-known critics of Jesus (Mt 12:14), and Paul himself actively persecuted the church as a Pharisee (Ac 22:3-4). But after his encounter with the risen Jesus on the road to Damascus, Paul was radically transformed from an enemy to one who gave the rest of his life as a servant of Jesus. Paul's own testimony of what produced the transformation is found in his letter to Titus. He speaks of his former life of foolishness, malice, envy, and hatred (Ti 3:3), but then says: "But when the goodness of God and His love for mankind appeared, He saved us—not by works of righteousness that we had done, but according to His mercy, through the washing of regeneration and renewal by the Holy Spirit. He poured out this Spirit on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Savior, so that having been justified by His grace, we may become heirs with the hope of eternal life" (Ti 3:4-7).

The apostles seem an unlikely group to be used by Jesus to establish the church and proclaim His message of salvation and transformation. But what empowered them was not their own charisma or powerful preaching, nor an ambition to create a movement. Rather, it was the operation of the Spirit that caused their transformation into the image of Jesus, which then impelled them to proclaim Jesus' glorious message of salvation and hope of change to the entire world.

THE BIBLE AND SEXUALITY DANIEL L.

AKIN

God created men and women as sexual creatures. Therefore sex should be viewed as a good gift from a great God. Sex as God designed it is to be enjoyed within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman. It should be good, exciting, intoxicating, powerful, and unifying.

This "one-flesh" relationship (Gn 2:24) is the most intense physical intimacy and the deepest spiritual unity possible between a man and woman. It should remind both partners of the even more remarkable oneness that the human spirit can experience with God in spiritual new birth through faith in Jesus Christ (Jn 3). God approves of sexual relations within marriage alone, where husband and wife are to serve each other and meet each other's physical needs in sexual intercourse (Pr 5:15-21). Paul indicates that sexual problems in marriage can hamper the Christian life, especially prayer (1Co 7:5). Both husband and wife have equal sexual needs which are to be met in marriage (1Co 7:3), and each is to pursue the needs of the other and not his or her own (Php 2:3-5).

Though the Bible is not a book on sex, it does contain a complete theology of sexuality: the purposes for sex, warnings against its misuse, and a beautiful picture of ideal physical intimacy (see especially the Song of Songs). Below are some of the Bible's most important teachings on human sexuality.

God's Purposes for Giving Us the Good Gift of Sex

- Knowledge (Gn 4:1)
- Intimate oneness (Gn 2:24)
- Comfort (Gn 24:67)
- The creation of life (Gn 1:28)
- Play and pleasure (Sg 2:8-17; 4:1-16)
- Avoiding temptation outside marriage (1Co 7:2-5)

God's Commands to the Husband

- He is to find satisfaction in his wife (Pr 5:19)
- He is to find joy in his wife (Ec 9:9)
- He is to concern himself with meeting her unique needs (Dt 24:5; 1Pt 3:7)

God's Commands to the Wife

- She is to be sexually available to her husband (1Co 7:3-5)
- She is to prepare and plan to capture her husband's heart (Sg 4:9-15)
- She is to show sexual interest in her husband (Sg 4:16; 5:2)
- She is to be sensitive to his unique masculine needs (Gn 24:67)

Biblical Principles to Govern Sex

- Sexual relations within marriage are holy and good. God encourages intimate relations and warns against their cessation (1Co 7:5).
- Pleasure in sexual relations is both healthy and expected. The bodies of both parties belong to the other (Pr 5:15-19; 1Co 7:4).
- Sexual pleasure is to be guided by the principle that one's sexuality is to be other-oriented. "Rights" over one's body are given in marriage to our mate (Php 2:3-4).
- Sexual relations are to be regular and normal. No exact number of times per week is prescribed, but the biblical principle is that both parties are to provide adequate sexual satisfaction so that both "burning" (sexual desire) and temptation to find satisfaction outside marriage are avoided (1Co 7:9).
- The principle of satisfaction means that each party is to provide sexual enjoyment (which is "due" him or her in marriage) as frequently as the other party requires. Other biblical principles (moderation, seeking to please another rather than oneself, etc.) also come into play. Consideration of one's mate is to guide one's requests for sexual relations.
- In accordance with the principle of "rights," there is to be no sexual bargaining between married persons ("I'll not have relations unless you . . ."). Neither party has the right to make such bargains. This is a form of "marital prostitution" and must be avoided.
- Sexual relations are equal and reciprocal. The Bible does not give the man superior rights to the woman or the woman superior rights to the man. Mutual service is the goal.
- Whatever is safe, pleasing, enjoyable, and satisfying to both is acceptable. The body of each belongs to the other (1Co 7:4). Neither should demand from the other what is painful, harmful, degrading, or distasteful to him or her.

Final Warnings and Exhortations (2 Corinthians 13:1-13)

2 In fact, I made up my mind about this: [A] I would not come to you on another painful visit. [B] 2 For if I cause you pain, then who will cheer me other than the one being hurt by me? [C] 3 I wrote this very thing so that when I came I wouldn’t have pain from those who ought to give me joy, because I am confident [a] about all of you that my joy will also be yours. 4 For I wrote to you with many tears out of an extremely troubled and anguished heart — not that you should be hurt, but that you should know the abundant love I have for you.

A Sinner Forgiven

5 If anyone has caused pain, he has caused pain not so much to me but to some degree — not to exaggerate [b] — to all of you. 6 The punishment inflicted by the majority is sufficient for that person. 7 As a result, you should instead forgive [c] and comfort him. Otherwise, this one may be overwhelmed by excessive grief. 8 Therefore I urge you to reaffirm your love to him. 9 I wrote for this purpose: to test your character [d] to see if you are obedient [e] in everything. 10 If you forgive anyone, I do too. For what I have forgiven — if I have forgiven anything — it is for you in the presence of Christ. 11 I have done this so that we may not be taken advantage [f] of by Satan. For we are not ignorant of his schemes.

A Trip to Macedonia

12 When I came to Troas [g] to preach the gospel of Christ, the Lord opened a door [h] for me. 13 I had no rest [i] in my spirit because I did not find my brother Titus, [j] but I said good-bye to them and left for Macedonia. [k]

A Ministry of Life or Death 14 But thanks be to God, [l] who always puts us on display [D] in Christ [E] and through us spreads the aroma of the knowledge of Him in every place. [m] 15 For to God we are the fragrance [n] of Christ among those who are being saved [o] and among those who are perishing. [p] 16 To some we are an aroma of death [q] leading to death, but to others, an aroma of life [r] leading to life. And who is competent for this? 17 For we are not like the many [s] who market God's message [t] for profit. On the contrary, we speak with sincerity in Christ, as from God and before God.

Living Letters

3 Are we beginning to commend ourselves again? Or do we need, like some, letters of recommendation to you or from you? 2 You yourselves are our letter, written on our hearts, recognized and read by everyone. a 3 It is clear that you are Christ's letter, b produced A by us, not written with ink but with the Spirit of the living God c — not on stone tablets d but on tablets that are hearts of flesh. e

Paul's Competence

4 We have this kind of confidence toward God through Christ. 5 It is not that we are competent in B ourselves to consider anything as coming from ourselves, but our competence is from God. f 6 He has made us competent to be ministers of a new covenant, g not of the letter, h but of the Spirit. For the letter kills, but the Spirit produces life.

New Covenant Ministry

7 Now if the ministry of death, chiseled in letters on stones, came with glory, [i] so that the Israelites were not able to look directly at Moses' face because of the glory from his face — a fading glory — 8 how will the ministry of the Spirit not be more glorious? 9 For if the ministry of condemnation had glory, the ministry of righteousness overflows with even more glory. 10 In fact, what had been glorious is not glorious now by comparison because of the glory that surpasses
it. 11 For if what was fading away [j] was glorious, what endures will be even more glorious.

12 Therefore, having such a hope, [k] we use great boldness. 13 We are not like Moses, who used to put a veil over his face [l] so that the Israelites could not stare at the the end of what was fading away, 14 but their minds were closed. C, [m] For to this day, at the reading of the old covenant, [n] the same veil remains; it is not lifted, because it is set aside only in Christ. [o] 15 Even to this day, whenever Moses is read, a veil lies over their hearts, 16 but whenever a person turns [p] to the Lord, the veil is removed. [q] 17 Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. 18 We all, with unveiled faces, are looking as in a mirror at D, [r] the glory of the Lord [s] and are being transformed [t] into the same image [u] from glory to glory; [v] this is from the Lord who is the Spirit. E

The Light of the Gospel

4 Therefore, since we have this ministry because we were shown mercy, [a] we do not give up. [b] 2 Instead, we have renounced shameful secret things, not •walking [c] in deceit or distorting God's message, [d] but commending ourselves to every person's conscience in God's sight by an open display of the truth. [e] 3
But if our gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing. 4 In their case, the god of this age [f] has blinded the minds of the unbelievers so they cannot see the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, [A, g] who is the image of God. [h] 5 For we are not proclaiming ourselves but Jesus Christ as Lord, [i] and ourselves as your •slaves because of Jesus. 6 For God who said, "Let light shine out of darkness," [j] has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge [k] of God's glory [l] in the face of Jesus Christ.

Treasure in Clay Jars

7 Now we have this treasure in clay jars, so that this extraordinary power [m] may be from God and not from us. 8 We are pressured in every way but not crushed; we are perplexed but not in despair; 9 we are persecuted but not abandoned; we are struck down but not destroyed. 10 We always carry the death of Jesus [n] in our body, so that the life of Jesus may also be revealed in our body. 11 For we who live are always given over to death [o] because of Jesus, so that Jesus' life may also be revealed in our mortal flesh. 12 So death works in us, but life in you. 13 And since we have the same spirit of faith in keeping with what is written, I believed, therefore I spoke, [p, q] we also believe, and therefore speak. 14 We know that the One who raised the Lord Jesus will raise us also with Jesus [r] and present us with you. 15 Indeed, everything is for your benefit, so that grace, extended through more and more people, may cause thanksgiving [s] to increase to God's glory.

16 Therefore we do not give up. [t] Even though our outer person is being destroyed, our inner person [u] is being renewed day by day. 17 For our momentary light affliction [B, v] is producing for us an absolutely incomparable eternal weight of glory. [w] 18 So we do not focus on what is seen, [x] but on what is unseen. For what is seen is temporary, but what is unseen is eternal.

Our Future after Death

5 For we know that if our temporary, earthly dwelling [a, b] is destroyed, we have a building from God, an eternal dwelling [c] in the heavens, [d] not made with hands. [e] 2 Indeed, we groan in this body, desiring [f] to put on our dwelling from heaven, 3 since, when we are clothed, [g] we will not be found naked. [h] 4 Indeed, we groan while we are in this tent, burdened as we are, because we do not want to be unclothed but clothed, so that mortality [i] may be swallowed up by life. 5 And the One who prepared us for this very purpose is God, who gave us the Spirit as a down payment.

6 So, we are always confident and know that while we are at home in the body we are away from the Lord. 7 For we •walk by faith, [j] not by sight, [k] 8 and we are confident and satisfied to be out of the body and at home with the Lord. [l] 9
Therefore, whether we are at home or away, we make it our aim to be pleasing [m] to Him. 10 For we must all appear before the tribunal [n] of Christ, [o] so that each may be repaid [p] for what he has done in the body, whether good or worthless.

11 Therefore, because we know the •fear of the Lord, [q] we seek to persuade people. We are completely open before God, and I hope we are completely open to your consciences as well. 12 We are not commending ourselves to you again, but giving you an opportunity to be proud of us, so that you may have a reply for those who take pride in the outward appearance [A] rather than in the heart. 13 For if we are out of our mind, [r] it is for God; if we have a sound mind, [s] it is for you.
14 For Christ's love compels [B] us, since we have reached this conclusion: If One died for all, [t] then all died. 15 And He died for all [u] so that those who live should no longer live for themselves, [v] but for the One [w] who died for them and was raised.

The Ministry of Reconciliation 16 From now on, then, we do not know [C] anyone in a purely human way. [D] Even if we have known [E] Christ in a purely human way, [F] yet now we no longer know [G] Him in this way. 17 Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; [x] old things have passed away, and look, [y] new things [z] have come. [a] 18 Everything is from God, who reconciled us to Himself through Christ and gave us the ministry of reconciliation: [b] 19 That is, in Christ, God was reconciling the world [c] to Himself, [d] not counting their trespasses against them, and He has committed the message of reconciliation to us.
20 Therefore, we are ambassadors [e] for Christ, certain that God is appealing through us. We plead on Christ's behalf, [f] "Be reconciled to God." 21 He made the One who did not know sin [g] to be sin [H] for us, [h] so that we might become the righteousness of God in Him.

6 Working together [A] with Him, we also appeal to you, “Don’t receive God’s grace in vain.” 2 For He says:

I heard you in an acceptable time, and I helped you in the day of salvation. [a, b]

Look, now is the acceptable time; now is the day of salvation. [c]

The Character of Paul’s Ministry

3 We give no opportunity for stumbling to anyone, so that the ministry will not be blamed. 4 But as God’s ministers, we commend ourselves in everything:

by great endurance, by afflictions,
by hardship, by difficulties, 5 by beatings, by imprisonments, [d]
by riots, by labors,
by sleepless nights, by times of hunger, 6 by purity, [e] by knowledge, [f]
by patience, [g] by kindness, [h] by the Holy Spirit, by sincere love, [i] 7 by the message of truth, [j]
by the power of God; [k] through weapons of righteousness on the right hand and the left, 8 through glory [l] and dishonor, through slander and good report;
as deceivers yet true;
9 as unknown yet recognized;
as dying and look — we live;
as being disciplined yet not killed; 10 as grieving yet always rejoicing; [m] as poor yet enriching many;
as having nothing yet possessing everything.

11 We have spoken openly [B] to you, Corinthians; our heart has been opened wide. 12 You are not limited by us, but you are limited by your own affections.
13 I speak as to my children. As a proper response, you should also be open to us.

Separation to God

14 Do not be mismatched with unbelievers. For what partnership is there between righteousness and lawlessness? [n] Or what fellowship does light [o] have with darkness? [p] 15 What agreement does Christ have with Belial? [C] Or what does a believer have in common with an unbeliever? 16 And what agreement does God's sanctuary have with idols? [q] For we [r] are the sanctuary of the living God, as God said:

I will dwell among them [s]
and walk among them, and I will be their God, [t]
and they will be My people. [u, v] 17 Therefore, come out from among them and be separate, says the Lord;
do not touch any unclean thing,
and I will welcome you. [w, x] 18 I will be a Father [y] to you, and you will be sons [z] and daughters to Me,
says the Lord Almighty. [a, b]

7 Therefore, dear friends, since we have such promises, [a] let us •cleanse ourselves from every impurity of the flesh and spirit, [b] completing our •sanctification [A] in the •fear of God. [c]

Joy and Repentance

2 Accept us. [B] We have wronged no one, corrupted [d] no one, defrauded no one. 3 I don't say this to condemn you, for I have already said that you are in our hearts, to live together and to die together. 4 I have great confidence in you; I have great pride in you. I am filled with encouragement; I am overcome with joy in all our afflictions.

5 In fact, when we came into Macedonia, [e] we [C] had no rest. Instead, we were troubled in every way: conflicts [f] on the outside, fears [g] inside. 6 But God, who comforts the humble, [h] comforted us by the arrival of Titus, 7 and not only by his arrival, but also by the comfort he received from you. He told us about your deep longing, your sorrow, [D] and your zeal [i] for me, so that I rejoiced even more. 8 For even if I grieved you with my letter, [j] I do not regret it — even though I did regret it since I saw that the letter grieved you, yet only for a little while. 9 Now I rejoice, not because you were grieved, but because your grief led to repentance. For you were grieved as God willed, so that you didn't experience any loss from us. 10 For godly grief produces a repentance not to be regretted and leading to salvation, but worldly grief produces death. [k] 11 For consider how much diligence this very thing — this grieving as God wills — has produced in you: what a desire to clear yourselves, what indignation, what fear, what deep longing, what zeal, what justice! In every way you showed yourselves to be pure [l] in this matter. 12 So even though I wrote to you, it was not because of the one who did wrong, or because of the one who was wronged, but in order that your diligence for us might be made plain to you in the sight of God. 13 For this reason we have been comforted.

In addition to our comfort, we rejoiced even more over the joy Titus [m] had, [E] because his spirit was refreshed by all of you. 14 For if I have made any boast to him about you, I have not been embarrassed; but as I have spoken everything to you in truth, [n] so our boasting to Titus has also turned out to be the truth. 15 And his affection toward you is even greater as he remembers the obedience of all of you, and how you received him with fear and trembling. 16 I rejoice that I have complete confidence in you.

Appeal to Complete the Collection

8 We want you to know, brothers, about the grace of God granted to the churches [a] of Macedonia: [b] 2 During a severe testing by affliction, their abundance of joy and their deep poverty overflowed into the wealth of their generosity. [c] 3 I testify that, on their own, according to their ability and beyond their ability, 4 they begged us insistently for the privilege of sharing [d] in the ministry to the •saints , 5 and not just as we had hoped. Instead, they gave themselves especially to the Lord, then to us by God's will. [e] 6 So we urged Titus that just as he had begun, so he should also complete this grace to you. 7
Now as you excel in everything — faith, speech, knowledge, [f] and in all diligence, and in your love for us [g] — excel also in this grace.

8 I am not saying this as a command. Rather, by means of the diligence of others, I am testing the genuineness of your love. 9 For you know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ: Though He was rich, [h] for your sake He became poor, [i] so that by His poverty you might become rich. 10 Now I am giving an opinion on this because it is profitable for you, who a year ago began not only to do something but also to desire it. [A, j] 11 But now finish the task [B] as well, that just as there was eagerness to desire it, so there may also be a completion from what you have. 12 For if the eagerness is there, it is acceptable according to what one has, not according to what he does not have. [k] 13 It is not that there may be relief for others and hardship for you, but it is a question of equality [C] — 14 at the present time your surplus is available for their need, so their abundance may also become available for our need, so there may be equality. 15 As it has been written:

The person who gathered much did not have too much,
and the person who gathered little did not have too little. [l, m]

Administration of the Collection

16 Thanks be to God who put the same concern for you into the heart of Titus.
17 For he accepted our urging and, being very diligent, went out to you by his own choice. 18 We have sent with him the brother [n] who is praised throughout the churches for his gospel ministry. D 19 And not only that, but he was also appointed by the churches to accompany us with this gift E that is being administered by us for the glory of the Lord Himself and to show our eagerness to help. 20 We are taking this precaution so no one can criticize us about this large sum administered by us. 21 For we are making provision [o] for what is right, [p] not only before the Lord but also before men. 22 We have also sent with them our brother. We have often tested him in many circumstances and found him to be diligent — and now even more diligent because of his great confidence in you. 23 As for Titus, he is my partner [q] and coworker [r] serving you; as for our brothers, they are the messengers [s] of the churches, the glory of Christ. [t] 24 Therefore, show them proof before the churches of your love and of our boasting [u] about you.

Motivations for Giving

9 Now concerning the ministry to the •saints , it is unnecessary for me to write to you. 2 For I know your eagerness, and I brag about you to the Macedonians: a, b “Achaia c, d has been prepared since last year,” and your zeal e has stirred up most of them. f 3 But I sent the brothers so our boasting about you in the matter would not prove empty, and so you would be prepared just as I said. 4 For if any Macedonians come with me and find you unprepared, we, not to mention you, would be embarrassed in that situation. A 5 Therefore I considered it necessary to urge the brothers to go on ahead to you and arrange in advance the generous gift g you promised, so that it will be ready as a gift and not as an extortion. h

6 Remember this: B The person who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and the person who sows generously will also reap generously. 7 Each person should do as he has decided in his heart — not reluctantly or out of necessity, for God loves i a cheerful giver. 8 And God is able j to make every grace overflow to you, so that in every way, always having everything you need, you may excel in every good work. 9 As it is written:

He scattered; k
He gave to the poor;
His righteousness endures forever. l, m

10 Now the One who provides seed for the sower and bread for food will provide and multiply your seed and increase the harvest of your righteousness. n 11 You will be enriched o in every way for all generosity, which produces thanksgiving to God through us. 12 For the ministry of this service p is not only supplying the needs of the saints, but is also overflowing in many acts of thanksgiving to God. 13 They will glorify God for your obedience to the confession of C the gospel of Christ, and for your generosity q in sharing with them and with others through the proof provided by this service. 14 And they will have deep affection for D you in their prayers on your behalf because of the surpassing grace of God in you. 15 Thanks be to God for His indescribable gift.

Paul's Apostolic Authority

10 Now I, Paul, make a personal appeal to you by the gentleness and graciousness of Christ — I who am humble among you in person but bold toward you when absent. [2] I beg you that when I am present I will not need to be bold with the confidence by which I plan to challenge certain people who think we are behaving in an unspiritual way. [A, a 3] For though we live in the body, [B] we do not wage war in an unspiritual way, [C 4] since the weapons of our warfare [b] are not worldly, [D] but are powerful [c] through God for the demolition of strongholds. We demolish arguments [5] and every high-minded thing that is raised up against the knowledge [d] of God, taking every thought captive to obey Christ. [6] And we are ready to punish any disobedience, once your obedience has been confirmed.

[7] Look at what is obvious. [E] If anyone is confident that he belongs to Christ, [e] he should remind himself of this: Just as he belongs to Christ, so do we. [8] For if I boast some more about our authority, which the Lord gave for building you up [f] and not for tearing you down, I am not ashamed. [9] I don't want to seem as though I am trying to terrify you with my letters. [10] For it is said, "His letters are weighty and powerful, but his physical presence is weak, and his public speaking is despicable." [11] Such a person should consider this: What we are in the words of our letters when absent, we will be in actions when present.

[12] For we don't dare classify or compare ourselves with some who commend [g] themselves. But in measuring themselves by themselves and comparing themselves to themselves, [h] they lack understanding. [i 13] We, however, will not boast beyond measure but according to the measure of the area of ministry that God has assigned [j] to us, which reaches even to you. [14] For we are not overextending ourselves, as if we had not reached you, since we have come to you with the gospel of Christ. [15] We are not bragging beyond measure about other people's labors. But we have the hope [k] that as your faith increases, our area of ministry will be greatly enlarged, [16] so that we may proclaim the good news to the regions beyond you, [l] not boasting about what has already been done in someone else's area of ministry. [m 17] So the one who boasts must boast in the Lord. [n, o 18] For it is not the one commending himself who is approved, but the one the Lord commends. [p]

Paul and the False Apostles

11 I wish you would put up with a little foolishness [a] from me. Yes, do put up with me. [A] 2 For I am jealous [b] over you with a godly jealousy, [c] because I have promised you in marriage to one husband — to present a pure [d] virgin to Christ. 3 But I fear that, as the serpent [e] deceived [f] Eve [g] by his cunning, your minds may be seduced from a complete and pure [h] devotion to Christ. [i] 4 For if a person comes and preaches another Jesus, [j] whom we did not preach, or you receive a different spirit, [k] which you had not received, or a different gospel, [l] which you had not accepted, you put up with it splendidly!

5 Now I consider myself in no way inferior to the "super-apostles." [m] 6 Though untrained in public speaking, [n] I am certainly not untrained in knowledge. [o] Indeed, we have always made that clear to you in everything. 7 Or did I commit a sin by humbling [p] myself so that you might be exalted, [q] because I preached the gospel of God to you free of charge? [r] 8 I robbed other churches by taking pay from them to minister to you. 9 When I was present with you and in need, I did not burden anyone, for the brothers who came from Macedonia [s] supplied my needs. [t] I have kept myself, and will keep myself, from burdening you in any way. 10 As the truth of Christ is in me, this boasting of mine will not be stopped [B] in the regions of Achaia. [u] 11 Why? Because I don't love you? God knows I do!

12 But I will continue to do what I am doing, in order to deny [C] the opportunity of those who want an opportunity to be regarded just as our equals in what they boast about. 13 For such people are false apostles, [v] deceitful workers, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ. 14 And no wonder! For Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. 15 So it is no great thing if his servants also disguise themselves as servants of righteousness. Their destiny [D] will be according to their works. [w]

Paul's Sufferings for Christ

16 I repeat: No one should consider me a fool. But if you do, at least accept me as a fool, so I too may boast a little. 17 What I say in this matter [E] of boasting, I don't speak as the Lord would, but foolishly. 18 Since many boast in an unspiritual way, [F] I will also boast. 19 For you, being so wise, gladly put up with fools! [x] 20 In fact, you put up with it if someone enslaves you, if someone devours [y] you, if someone captures you, if someone dominates you, or if someone hits [z] you in the face. 21 I say this to our shame: We have been weak.

But in whatever anyone dares to boast — I am talking foolishly — I also dare:

22 Are they Hebrews? [a] So am I.
Are they Israelites? So am I.
Are they the •seed of Abraham? [b] So am I.
23 Are they servants of Christ?
I'm talking like a madman — I'm a better one:
with far more labors,
many more imprisonments,
far worse beatings, near death [G] many times.
24 Five times I received 39 lashes from Jews. [c]
25 Three times I was beaten with rods by the Romans. [d]
Once I was stoned by my enemies. [e, f]
Three times I was shipwrecked. [g]
I have spent a night and a day in the open sea.
26 On frequent journeys, I faced dangers from rivers, dangers from robbers, [h] dangers from my own people, [i] dangers from the Gentiles, dangers in the city,
dangers in the open country,
dangers on the sea,
and dangers among false brothers;
27 labor and hardship,
many sleepless nights, hunger and thirst, often without food, cold, and lacking clothing. [j]
28 Not to mention [H] other things, there is the daily pressure on me: my care for all the churches. 29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is made to •stumble, [k] and I do not burn with indignation? 30 If boasting is necessary, I will boast about my weaknesses. 31 The God and Father [l] of the Lord Jesus, who is praised forever, knows I am not lying. 32 In Damascus, [m] the governor under King Aretas [n] guarded the city of the Damascenes in order to arrest me, 33 so I was let down in a basket through a window in the wall and escaped his hands. [o]

Sufficient Grace

12 Boasting is necessary. It is not profitable, but I will move on to visions [a] and revelations [b] of the Lord. 2 I know a man in Christ who was caught up [c] into the third heaven 14 years ago. Whether he was in the body or out of the body, I don't know, God knows. 3 I know that this man — whether in the body or out of the body I don't know, God knows — 4 was caught up into paradise. [d] He heard inexpressible words, which a man is not allowed to speak. 5 I will boast about this person, but not about myself, except of my weaknesses. 6 For if I want to boast, I will not be a fool, because I will be telling the truth. [e] But I will spare you, so that no one can credit me with something beyond what he sees in me or hears from me, 7 especially because of the extraordinary revelations. Therefore, so that I would not exalt myself, a thorn in the flesh [f] was given to me, a messenger [A] of Satan [g] to torment me so I would not exalt myself. 8 Concerning this, I pleaded with the Lord three times to take it away from me. 9 But He said to me, "My grace is sufficient for you, for power [h, i] is perfected in weakness." [j] Therefore, I will most gladly boast all the more about my weaknesses, so that Christ's power may reside in me. 10 So I take pleasure in weaknesses, insults, catastrophes, persecutions, and in pressures, because of Christ. [k] For when I am weak, then I am strong. [l]

Signs of an Apostle

11 I have become a fool; you forced it on me. I should have been endorsed by you, since I am not in any way inferior to the “super-apostles,” even though I am nothing. [m] 12 The signs [n] of an apostle [o] were performed with great endurance among you — not only signs but also wonders [p] and miracles. [q] 13 So in what way were you treated worse than the other churches, except that I personally did not burden you? Forgive me this wrong!

Paul’s Concern for the Corinthians 14 Now I am ready to come to you this third time. [r] I will not burden you, for I am not seeking what is yours, but you. For children are not obligated to save up for their parents, but parents for their children. 15 I will most gladly spend and be spent for you. [B,] [s] If I love you more, am I to be loved less? 16 Now granted, I have not burdened [t] you; yet sly as I am, I took you in by deceit! [u] 17 Did I take advantage of you by anyone I sent you? 18 I urged Titus [v] to come, and I sent the brother with him. Did Titus take advantage of you? Didn’t we •walk in the same spirit [w] and in the same footsteps?

19 You have thought all along that we were defending ourselves to you. [C] No, in the sight of God we are speaking in Christ, and everything, dear friends, is for building you up. [x] 20 For I fear that perhaps when I come I will not find you to be what I want, and I may not be found by you to be what you want; [D] there may be quarreling, [y] jealousy, [z] outbursts of anger, selfish ambitions, [a] slander, [b] gossip, arrogance, and disorder. [c] 21 I fear that when I come my God will again [E] humiliate me in your presence, and I will grieve for many who sinned before and have not repented [d] of the moral impurity, sexual immorality, [e] and promiscuity [f] they practiced.

Final Warnings and Exhortations

13 This is the third time I am coming to you. [a] Every fact must be established by the testimony [A] of two or three witnesses. [b, c] 2 I gave a warning when I was present the second time, and now I give a warning [d] while I am absent to those who sinned before and to all the rest: If I come again, I will not be lenient, 3 since you seek proof of Christ speaking in me. [e] He is not weak toward you, but powerful among you. 4 In fact, He was crucified [f] in weakness, but He lives [g] by God's power. For we also are weak in Him, [h] yet toward you we will live [i] with Him by God's power.

5 Test [j] yourselves to see if you are in the faith. Examine yourselves. Or do you yourselves not recognize that Jesus Christ is in you? — unless you fail the test. [B] 6 And I hope you will recognize that we do not fail the test. 7 Now we pray to God that you do nothing wrong — not that we may appear to pass the test, but that you may do what is right, [k] even though we may appear to fail. 8 For we are not able to do anything against the truth, [l] but only for the truth. 9 In fact, we rejoice when we are weak and you are strong. [m] We also pray that you become fully mature. [C] 10 This is why I am writing these things while absent, that when I am there I will not use severity, in keeping with the authority the Lord gave me for building up [n] and not for tearing down. [o]

11 Finally, brothers, rejoice. Become mature, be encouraged, be of the same mind, [p] be at peace, [q] and the God of love [r] and peace will be with you. 12 Greet one another with a holy kiss. [s] All the •saints greet you.

13 The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love [t] of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with all of you. [u, v]

2 CORINTHIANS

Introduction

Corinth was built adjacent to an isthmus four miles wide with a port on both the east and west of the isthmus. Using 6,000 Judean slaves, Nero attempted to build a canal across the isthmus connecting the port of Lechaion on the Gulf of Corinth and the port of Cenchreae on the Saronic Gulf. Only in the late nineteenth century were engineers able to construct the canal that enables cargo ships to avoid 200 miles of stormy travel around the southern part of the Greek peninsula. In Paul's day, this additional 200 miles was avoided by transporting cargo overland from one port to the other.

Of all Paul's letters, none is more personally revealing of his heart than 2 Corinthians. At the same time, it is also the most defensive of any New Testament letter. In it Paul mounts a strong argument ("apology" in the positive sense) for his authority and ministry. A number of important doctrines are taught in the epistle, yet its greatest value may be that it reveals the heart and spirit of one of the most effective ministers of all time. We are thus shown that genuine ministry—although it may have to be guarded from attack—is commissioned by Christ and empowered by the Spirit.

Circumstances of Writing Author: All biblical scholars agree that Paul wrote this letter (1:1; 10:1). It contains more personal information about him than any other letter, and its Greek style is especially like that of Romans and 1 Corinthians. Proposed chronologies of Paul's life and ministry include a number of variations. Yet for 2 Corinthians, the consensus is that the letter was written about A.D. 56 (from Ephesus during Paul's third missionary journey).

Background: Although Bible students have often disagreed about the sequence of events that led to the writing of 2 Corinthians, the following scenario seems likely.

1. First Corinthians was not well received by the church at Corinth. Timothy had returned to Paul in Ephesus (1Co 4:17; 16:10). He reported that the church was still greatly troubled. This was partly caused by the arrival in Corinth of "false apostles" (2Co 11:13-15). These were perhaps Judaizers, asking Corinthian believers of Gentile heritage to live according to Mosaic regulations (Gl 2:14).
2. Paul visited Corinth a second time, the first time being his church-planting visit. He described this visit as sorrowful or "painful" (2:1; 13:2). Apparently the false apostles agitated the Corinthians to disown Paul. This second visit, not mentioned in Acts 19, occurred sometime during the apostle's long ministry in Ephesus.
3. Paul then wrote a (now lost) severe letter of stinging rebuke to Corinth from Ephesus (2:3-4,9). He sent this letter by Titus.
4. Titus came to Paul with the news that most of the Corinthian church had repented. They now accepted Paul's authority (7:5-7).
5. Paul decided to write the Corinthians one more time, expressing his relief but still pleading with an unrepentant minority. He promised to come to Corinth a third time (12:14; 13:1). This was fulfilled when Paul stayed in Corinth while on his way to Jerusalem with the financial collection from many churches (Ac 20:2-3).

Message and Purpose Paul wrote to the Corinthian Christians mainly to express his joy that the majority had been restored to him, to ask for an offering on behalf of the poor saints in Jerusalem, and to defend his ministry as an apostle to the minority of unrepentant Corinthian believers. His desire was to encourage the majority and to lead the minority to change its mind about the validity of his apostolic ministry.

Important themes Paul developed in 2 Corinthians include the nature of apostolic authority and ministry, the new covenant, the intermediate state (the status of believers between the death of their bodies and the resurrection), and sacrificial giving. The overriding theme is the nature of true ministry. The diversity of these themes was driven by the circumstances that gave rise to the epistle.

The matter of sacrificial giving is the focus of chapters 8-9, the most extensive NT teaching on Christian stewardship. Paul asked the churches he had founded to send a generous offering to the poor believers of Jerusalem. This occupied much of his energy during the last part of his third missionary journey. He mentioned it in his three longest epistles (Rm 15:28; 1Co 16:1-4; 2Co 8-9).

Contribution to the Bible Second Corinthians contributes to our understanding of ministry. On this subject, we learn four key truths: (1) God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself and has given to us a ministry of reconciliation; (2) true ministry in Christ's name involves both suffering and victory; (3) serving Christ means ministering in His name to every need of the people; and (4) leaders in ministry need support and trust from those to whom they minister.

Structure This letter follows the standard format found in the other letters bearing Paul's name. The salutation (1:1-2) and thanksgiving (1:3-11) at the beginning are followed by the main body of the letter (1:12-13:10). A final greeting (13:11-13) stands as the conclusion.

The body of 2 Corinthians is the most disjointed of Paul's letters. It is hard to miss Paul's change of tone from chapters 1-9 (which are warm and encouraging) to chapters 10-13 (which are harsh and threatening). Whatever one decides about the original unity of the letter, no doubt the major turning point of 2 Corinthians occurs at 10:1.

Largely because of the change in tone between the first part of the letter and the last part, some interpreters have proposed a different understanding of the original form of 2 Corinthians. They propose that two separate letters of Paul have been joined to make up what is now known as 2 Corinthians. What if, it is asked, chapters 10-13 were in fact the missing severe letter (2:4,9) written after 1 Corinthians but before 2 Corinthians 1-9? The major differences in tone between these chapters would be more readily accounted for if this were true.

However, it seems much more plausible that the letter originated in the form in which we now have it. All the ancient Christian writers knew the letter only in its present form, which is to say unified as one single letter. Surely within a single letter an author may address two different sets of issues (a majority concern and a minority concern) and use two different tones (encouraging and threatening).

Study Notes 1:1 Paul claimed to be an apostle . . . by God’s will. Only such confidence could provide a foundation sufficient for this high-stakes letter. Timothy was perhaps Paul’s secretary or scribe who wrote down this letter as it was dictated. Corinth was the capital of the Roman province of Achaia, the southern part of Greece. Paul recognized that an apostolic letter would be of interest to churches in neighboring cities.

1:2 Grace begins and ends every NT letter that contains Paul's name in the greeting. Without grace from God, a person cannot have peace with God. The equality of the Father and His Son Jesus Christ is implicit. Both are givers of grace and peace.

1:3 Frequently Paul used a form of the verb "thank" at this point in his letters. For this letter and Ephesians, Paul used praise (see Eph 1:3). God is praised as the source of all blessings. Jesus had taught that "your Father also is merciful" (Lk 6:36), or kind to the needy. Isaiah 40:1 speaks of God's comfort or relief to the sorrowing.

1:4 Believers are to be a channel passing on to others the comfort they have received from God. Paradoxically, affliction—viewed properly—may be a conduit of blessing to others (v. 6).

1:5 Believers experience none of God's wrath that Christ suffered as our substitute. He is the example of innocent suffering for those who travel "in His steps" (1Pt 2:21). The believers' union with Him means we expect affliction, just as our Lord experienced it (Col 1:24).

1:6-7 In speaking of affliction, Paul probably had in mind the suffering he had endured from the Corinthian church during his painful visit to them (2:1), which was for their salvation. He had recently been comforted by news from Titus (7:13). The sufferings of the Corinthians probably referred to the "fear and trembling" caused by Titus's visit (7:15).

1:8 Paul's affliction in Asia was a near-death experience during his Ephesian ministry that is not reported in Ac 19. That he despaired of life may have prompted his later reflection on what happens to believers at death (5:1-10).

1:9-10 Paul had not died but had been delivered. Yet his true hope was in the permanent remedy—the resurrection.

1:11 The phrase the gift probably refers to God's gracious sparing of Paul's life for further ministry (Php 1:24-26).

1:12-13 Sincerity and purity are possible only by grace. This letter of 2 Corinthians is a reminder that the Spirit-inspired authors of Scripture intended to write what average believers could understand.

1:14 The phrase partially understood is a reference to the stormy relations between the church and the apostle. The letter of 2 Corinthians would help return the two parties to mutual pride (not arrogance but confidence). The day of our Lord Jesus refers to Christ's return, especially to judge believers' works—both Paul's and the Corinthians' (1Co 3:12-13).

1:15-16 First Corinthians had been written while Paul was on reasonably good terms with the church. This is demonstrated by his request for them to participate in the collection for Jerusalem (1Co 16:1-3). He had expressed his intent to spend time with them (1Co 16:5-6). Later he had revised this and had planned . . . to come twice—once on the way to Macedonia (the province north of Achaia), and again on the way south from Macedonia on his way to Judea to deliver the offering. Seeing the Corinthians twice would have been a double benefit for them.

1:17 Instead of his announced plans, Paul made a brief, painful visit from Ephesus to Corinth, and then returned to Ephesus. Some believers in Corinth accused him of being unreliable and purely human. The charge of saying Yes, yes one minute and No, no the next stung him into reacting defensively.

1:18-19 The apostle's defense against the charge of fickleness was to remind his readers of the unwavering gospel message he had preached. It was no Yes and no gospel that he and Silvanus (called Silas in Acts) and Timothy preached (Ac 18:1,5). The heart of the gospel is that Jesus (the human) is God's Son and the Messiah promised in the OT.

1:20 Every one of God's promises in Scripture is fulfilled directly or indirectly in Him (Rm 1:2; Eph 2:12). Amen means "so be it" or "this is true." God's glory is displayed in Christ as well as in believers' confession of Him.

1:21-22 This is a Trinitarian text. God the Father confirms believers as His own. He initiates the anointing of believers in His Son, Christ. He also has sealed us with the Spirit, guaranteeing our heavenly inheritance (Eph 1:13-14; 4:30).

1:23 The phrase I call on God as a witness is a solemn pledge to be telling the truth (Rm 1:9; 1Th 2:5,10). Instead of the visits planned under happier circumstances (2Co 1:15-16), Paul had made a painful visit to Corinth (2:1). He therefore cancelled his previously announced itinerary. Time was needed for healing the raw emotions raised on both sides.

1:24 This verse summarizes the relationship between ministers and those under their care. Ministers do not lord it over others but work gently with them.

2:2 Even when a Christian is justified in bringing pain to errant believers, it is hardly likely that those hurt will be in a position to cheer the one who caused the pain. They need to be encouraged after such an incident.

2:3-4 Paul's words wrote . . . wrote are probably a reference to the severe letter, now lost, written after his painful visit to Corinth and then sent by Titus (7:6-8), but some Bible students believe the reference is to 1 Corinthians. It is as right for ministers to desire joy in God as it is for them to show costly love to those whom they serve.

2:5 This may refer to the incestuous man of 1Co 5:1-5. More likely the reference is to an episode regarding the false apostles (2Co 11:4), because Paul spoke about a sin that he had personally forgiven (2:10).

2:6-7 Although church discipline is experienced as punishment, the intention is redemptive. Upon repentance, believers are to forgive and comfort. The congregation is to be careful not to overwhelm a returning sinner with excessive grief. The most severe church discipline possible is excommunication (Mt 18:17; 1Co 5:5).

2:8 The phrase reaffirm your love to him refers to restoration after repentance.

2:9 On I wrote, see note at verses 3-4.

2:10 The first verb (forgive) is in a form implying that forgiveness is a process (Gk present tense); the second verb (have forgiven) implies that forgiveness can be completed (Gk perfect tense).

2:11 Behind the sin and discord in the Corinthian church Paul saw Satan, the evil one. His schemes always include thwarting the unity of believers for which Jesus so fervently prayed (Jn 17).

2:12-13 Troas was a coastal city in the northern part of the province of Asia. Paul went there after the riot in Ephesus (Ac 19:23-41) on his way to Macedonia (Ac 20:1-2).Titus is not mentioned in Acts. He was Paul's proof that Gentiles could be converted without works of the law such as circumcision (Gl 2:3). That Paul (the Jew) called both Timothy and Titus brother (1:1) shows that his primary identity was as a Christian rather than as a Jew. Titus was effective as Paul's ambassador in dealing with the Corinthian crisis. Later he represented the apostle to Christians in Crete (Ti 1:4).

2:14 In antiquity, victorious generals paraded into their capital city toward the king's palace with human captives and treasure displayed behind them. Sweet incense was offered. The citizens saw and smelled evidence of victory. Here, Christ is leading Paul and all other believers into the eternal city where God is king.

2:15-16 In these verses two pairs of opposites are crafted so that the inner two elements are negative and the outer two are positive. The same scent produces different results. Those who receive the knowledge of Christ through the gospel message live. All others perish.

2:17 The words many who market refer to the false apostles in Corinth whose motive was primarily financial (11:13). Paul's policy was to serve the churches without charge even though he approved of Christians supporting ministers financially (1Co 9:12-15). Accountability for the message lay with the One who was the source of the message.

3:1 The false apostles who had upset the Corinthians had produced letters of recommendation. Paul had never felt the need to ask for recommendations, as the implied "No" answers to the two questions asked in this verse make clear.

3:2-3 The spiritual transformation of the Corinthians was endorsement enough for Paul. In their own person, they were spiritual letters, written by the Spirit on the tablet of Paul's heart. Literal letters, written with ink on paper or even on stone tablets, could not compare with changed lives. The reference to stone tablets would remind readers of the Ten Commandments and the old covenant (see note at v. 7; cp. Dt 9:9).

3:4 The confidence that Paul described in this verse does not refer to self-confident arrogance or false humility.

3:5 There is no sufficiency for true Christian ministry except from God. This verse answers the question at the end of 2:16.

3:6 The word for ministers is also translated as "deacons," a broad term that does not refer to a professional class of clergy or priests. The new covenant was prophesied in Jr 31:31-33, established by Jesus' death in Lk 22:20, and ministered by Paul. The letter kills refers to the law of the old covenant, which was not designed to give life. It only revealed sin (Rm 7:7-12). The Spirit takes the proclamation of the gospel and creates new life by faith (Rm 8:10; 10:17).

3:7 The ministry of death refers to the old covenant made at Mount Sinai. Its effect was condemnation and death, not justification and life. This was not the fault of the old covenant but of sinners who were unable to meet its demands (Rm 7:13). The Ten Commandments were written with letters on stones (Ex 31:18). With God as the source of the law, it was right for its human mediator to have something of God's glory about him.

3:8-9 The phrases ministry of righteousness and ministry of the Spirit refer to the new covenant, resulting in righteousness through the indwelling Spirit.

3:10-11 One way in which the old and new covenants contrast is in the degree of glory connected with each. In the natural order, the glory of the moon (which wanes every month) is no glory at all in comparison with the unfading sun.

3:13 Paul concluded that the main purpose of Moses' veil was to prevent the Israelites from observing the fading of the old-covenant glory. The law was designed by God with a built-in obsolescence (Gl 3:24-25; Heb 8:13).

3:14 Another purpose of a veil is to keep the veiled person from seeing outside. Paul implies that the first-century Jews who had not believed the gospel were unable to recognize the fading, temporary nature of the old covenant, even when their Scriptures were read.

3:15 The phrase a veil lies over their hearts refers not to a literal veil but to a spiritual impairment. One of the great difficulties Jews have had historically in coming to Jesus as Messiah is to acknowledge that He has surpassed the fading old covenant. The words the veil is removed refers to the sovereign work of God.

3:17 This is an important Trinitarian text emphasizing the close relationship between the Son and the Spirit. In Rm 8:9 "the Spirit of God" and "the Spirit of Christ" appear to be interchangeable.

3:18 Paul included all believers among the unveiled, whose glory, having begun in the new covenant, can never fade. It moves from glory (on earth, in regeneration, justification, and sanctification) to glory (in heaven, in glorification).

4:1-6 By extension, the first-person plural pronouns in this section may be applied to all true ministers of the gospel (not just professional clergy but all believers).

4:1 Because true ministry proceeds only from God's undeserved mercy, Paul included with it the strength to persevere despite opposition.

4:2 The false apostles may have pandered to the Corinthians by pretending to have "inside information," like the Jezebel who corrupted the believers of Thyatira with "the deep things of Satan" (Rv 2:24). False teachers are recognized both by wrong motives (deceit) and the wrong message (distorting). True teachers are recognized by true motives and by "the faith that was delivered to the saints once for all" (Jd 3). There is no secret tier of truth reserved only for those who have been initiated into its secrets.

4:3 On gospel is veiled, see note at 3:15. Paul's reference here is to every person (Gentile as well as Jew) who has not responded to the proclamation of the gospel.

4:4 Satan has a role in keeping persons from Christ and the gospel, even though they are accountable for their own souls and cannot blame the Devil. Moreover, Satan cannot prevent the gospel light from penetrating. Without God's enablement, a sinner can no more "see" the gospel than a blind person can see the sun. The foundation and the goal of the gospel is that Christ's splendor or glory will be displayed. Sinners are converted so they may admire and love Him.

4:5 The words Lord and slaves demonstrate a reciprocal relationship, but here Paul focused on his service to Christ by means of serving other believers.

4:6 The original creation of light out of darkness (Gn 1:3) provided the paradigm for God's re-creation of spiritual light in a sinner (2Co 5:17). The initiative lies with God to give the light. On the knowledge of God's glory, compare with note at verse 4. "Light" given by God results in the human response to "gospel/knowledge" which in turn results in "glory of Christ/God's glory" being admired. Coupled with the statement in verse 4 that He is "the image of God," the words in the face of Jesus Christ are a strong testimony to Paul's belief in the deity of Christ, in whose face God's glory is fully displayed (Jn 1:14,18; Heb 1:3).

4:7 Treasure is the unfading glory that accompanies the new covenant (3:8). The power to bring this about lies only with God. Clay jars is a metaphor for fragile and mortal human bodies. Sometimes the more humble the container, the more glorious its precious contents appear.

4:8-9 These verses contain four pairs of opposites. The first element of each pair characterizes frail humanity, especially humans in service to God. The second element gives evidence of God's power.

4:10-11 In His humanity Jesus was subject to death; by God's power He was raised to resurrection life. Paul (and indeed all the saints) would follow Jesus' example, although for Paul the resurrection life had already been revealed in our mortal flesh. See Eph 2:4-6, where believers are already made alive, raised, and seated with Christ.

4:12 Paul's trials as a minister led ultimately to his experiencing a martyr's bodily death; however, his trials were instrumental in bringing spiritual life to the Corinthians.

4:13 The Hebrew text of Ps 116:10 is, "I believed, even when I said, 'I am severely afflicted.'" Paul quoted the Septuagint (Gk version). The main point is that trust in the Lord motivates a person to action.

4:14 At Christ's coming, God will raise believers. This must be distinguished from the new spiritual life that Paul enjoyed while still in bodily life (vv. 10-11). The words us with you show that the resurrection of the saints is not individualistic. See 11:2 for the other instance of the verb present in 2 Corinthians, which also emphasizes the corporate nature of the church (as a bride).

4:15 On God's glory, see notes at verses 4 and 6.

4:16 The words we do not give up are repeated from verse 1. Between these two statements Paul explains why he was not defeated even in extremely negative circumstances. The apostle is the ideal for all believers.

4:17-18 These verses contain three pairs of opposites. These also contrast the experiences of frail humanity with the evidences of God's power (see note at vv.

5:1-10 This section, probably motivated by Paul's recent brush with death (1:8-9), contains the most extensive teaching in Scripture on the "intermediate state," or the condition of believers between the death of the body and its resurrection.

5:1 Paul compared our bodily existence to living in a temporary . . . dwelling, and the resurrection body to a palace or other grand building. The author of the letter to the Hebrews also compared heaven to "the city that has foundations, whose architect and builder is God" (Heb 11:10).

5:2 On we groan, see 1:8 and 4:8-9 for examples from Paul's experience. The resurrection will be something like putting on new clothes (put on our dwelling).

5:3 The word naked is a reference to being disembodied. A human soul or spirit apart from bodily existence—thought of as a desired state in some religious systems—was never considered desirable in the Scriptures. Paul shared this view.

5:4 Paul's preference was for the final state of the resurrection body rather than the intermediate and apparently bodiless situation of the Christian dead.

5:5 Life in the resurrection is impossible without the proper preparation. This verse emphasizes God's sovereignty. On the Spirit as a down payment, see 1:22 and Eph 1:14 for the other NT instances of "down payment," always connected with the Spirit. The beginning of salvation is receiving God's person (the Spirit); the goal of salvation is enjoying God's person fully and forever (Rv 22:4).

5:6-8 Paul drew three contrasts between this life and the intermediate state: at home in the body/out of the body; by faith/by sight; and away from the Lord/at home with the Lord. As long as the saints still live in the body, they perceive Christ only by faith. Paul's pattern is to refer to living believers as "in" Christ or the Lord but to dead believers as "with" Christ or the Lord, when faith becomes sight in conscious fellowship with the Lord.

5:9-10 At home or away refers to either earthly bodily existence or away from bodily existence (disembodied). The main way in which the righteous dead may be pleasing to Him is by receiving a positive verdict before the tribunal of Christ. See Rm 14:10 for the other NT instance of "tribunal" (Gk beyma) as a future event for believers. The biblical teaching is that Christians are saved by faith, but they will be judged according to the good or worthless deeds they have done. This is a judgment to determine rewards, not eternal destination. See especially 1Co 3:10-15.

5:11-12 The fear of the Lord is the awe and respect due to Christ as the judge of a believer's works. A prominent OT wisdom theme (Pr 1:7), fear of God may not be forgotten by NT believers (Ac 9:31; Rv 15:4). The Corinthians needed to be reminded of this fear in terms of their treatment of Christ's apostle. Paul's motives were pure, both before the Lord he feared and before the people he served.

5:13-14 Paul's opponents probably had suggested that he was religiously unbalanced (see Ac 26:24). He was "insane" in that Christ's love compelled him into vigorous apostolic ministry. On the other hand, his ministry among the Corinthians had never been that of a madman (1Co 2:1-5). Indeed, he had kept his "third heaven" vision private for 14 years until he mentioned it later in this letter (12:1-10). The heart of Paul's message was that the Jewish Messiah had died on behalf of all kinds of sinners (1Co 15:3). Jews as well as Gentiles were included in Jesus' substitutionary death (Rv 7:9). In union with Christ, sinners who believe the gospel have died to sin and have been raised to walk in a new way of life.

5:15 The phrase those who live refers to believers who are now spiritually alive (Eph 2:4-6). Christ's death and resurrection ministry have become the pattern for the believer's death and new-life ministry. Paul personally modeled this as well.

5:16 The phrase in a purely human way is a good rendering of the Greek text (lit "according to the flesh"). There are always two conflicting perspectives on a situation: the natural versus the divine. A natural view of Christ led to His crucifixion and to Paul's persecution of Christ-followers. After the light of divine revelation broke in on Paul on the Damascus road, he could no longer know Him in this way (Ac 9).

5:17-18 The words in Christ refer to being in union with Him. Genuine conversion begins life transformation, but not by reforming the old nature. The indwelling Spirit creates divine life in believers (Rm 8:8-10), enabling a life of new things. Other NT passages communicate this truth by using language such as "born again" or "regeneration" (Jn 3:3-8; Ti 3:5; 1Pt 1:23). Those who were enemies of God have now become friends by being reconciled to Him. God's wrath against sin was satisfied in the death of His Son. Sinners—who formerly put self-interest above God's glory (Rm 1:21; 3:23)—have been brought to cherish God as their highest treasure (2Co 4:6). The ministry of reconciliation—being an agent of this good news—was Paul's special responsibility, but the task belongs to all who have received this ministry.

5:19-21 What Christ did, God did. Christ's death mainly affected the world, that is, human sinners (rather than evil supernatural beings, for whom no divine provision for reconciliation has been made). Christ's death upholds God's righteousness. Trespasses were placed on the One who did not know sin. In return, the righteousness of God is credited (imputed) to all who are in Him. The message of reconciliation is known to others only when ambassadors for Christ spread it. The Great Commission is the responsibility of reconciled human beings, not angels (Mt 28:18-20).

6:1 Receiving Paul's apostleship as genuine included receiving his gospel message of God's grace as true. The phrase in vain may refer to (1) falling away from a profession of faith that was apparent but not genuine and therefore going into eternity apart from Christ (1Jn 2:19); or (2) developing neither Christlike character nor doing good works because of a life of "backsliding" and therefore having one's works burned at the judgment seat of Christ (1Co 3:12-14; 2Co 5:10).

6:2 The larger context of Is 49:8 was God's restoration that would come at last to the covenant people, Israel. Paul's citation shows that he believed this time had now arrived with the incarnation, death, and resurrection of Christ. Now and day of salvation refer in general to the times between Christ's first and second coming. In particular, they refer to the moment a person hears the good news: there should be no delay in responding.

6:3 The phrase no opportunity for stumbling is a reference to Paul's character and actions, which were open to observation. The ministry of reconciliation was worth all the hardship Paul endured. The list in verses 4-13 is not self-commendation (like the false teachers; 3:1) but reflects a survey of Paul's actions as God's appointed minister, demonstrating the character and source of his ministry.

6:4-5 The book of Acts recounts specific instances of Paul's suffering. This part of the list includes experiences that were physically painful. From a human perspective, these were useless and unnecessary—unless the gospel is true.

6:6-7 This part of the list focuses on character traits and spiritual realities perceived only with the eye of faith. On weapons of righteousness, see Eph 6:10-20 for a full discussion of spiritual armor.

6:8-10 The paradox of genuine Christian ministry is nowhere better stated than in these verses. Paul noted nine contrasts between frail humanity and the evidence of God's power (see notes at 4:8-9 and 4:17-18).

6:11 Paul's life and teaching were an open book. He had no hidden agenda.

6:12-13 Paul perceived the relationship problem to lie with the Corinthians. The false teachers had strangled the Corinthians' love for Paul. He yearned for them to be as open and loving toward him as he had been with them—like a father toward wayward children.

6:14 Mismatched with unbelievers refers to the false apostles, whom Paul considered to be Satan's servants. The original language pictures two different kinds of animals plowing a field under a single yoke (Dt 22:10). Under such circumstances the objective cannot be reached. Partnership has traditionally been translated as "fellowship." Paul emphasized spiritual incompatibility by noting the impossibility of literal light and darkness equally existing, and, in verse 15, the impossibility of Christ and Satan being friends.

6:15 Belial is a Hebrew term found elsewhere in an OT phrase, literally "sons of Belial," translated "wicked men" or "perverted men" in the HCSB (Dt 13:13).

6:16aThe "we" in we are the sanctuary points to the corporate entity of the local congregation (or the body of Christ as a whole) rather than to the individual (for which, see 1Co 6:19). Paul had believers in mind, not literal buildings (1Pt 2:5).

6:16b-18 These verses assemble a number of OT texts. Verse 16b is stated first in Lv 26:12 and repeated in Jr 31:33; 32:38. This was God's promise of His presence to His covenant people, now fulfilled in the new covenant instituted by Christ (Heb 8:7-13). Verse 17 cites Is 52:11, referring to Israel's future holiness when they will be restored to the Lord's favor. Verse 18 is found first in 2Sm 7:14 in God's covenant promise to David, but it is echoed in Is 43:6; 49:22; 60:4; Hs 1:10. In these passages the Lord promised a family relationship between Himself and His people.

7:1 The phrase dear friends (lit "beloved") is a statement of Paul's strong affection for these believers, despite the tears they had caused him. Cleanse ourselves is not a reference to Christian baptism but to the daily spiritual cleansing that believers are to experience (Jn 13:10). Completing our sanctification indicates that growth in holiness is not optional. Believers are to become as mature and Christlike in this lifetime as they can, but the work will be completed only on the day of Christ (Php 1:6). On fear of God, see note at 5:11-12.

7:2-3 The false apostles had persuaded some of the Corinthians that Paul had wronged, corrupted, and defrauded them. He vigorously denied this. He believed he and the Corinthians shared common destinies.

7:4 Paul broke into an exuberant expression of gratitude for the success of Titus's mission to Corinth. Paul's ministry among them had not been in vain but at last had proven to be successful.

7:5 On Macedonia, see notes at 1:15-16 and 2:12-13. Paul was returning to a narration of his travels. Philippi and Thessalonica were prominent Macedonian cities where the apostle had earlier planted churches (Ac 16-17). His conflicts and fears were not only because of the everyday pressure of ministry but especially because of his anguish over the state of the Corinthian Christians.

7:6-7 God uses human agents to bring divine comfort (1:3-7). God's comfort came to Paul through Titus because of the Corinthians' repentance.

7:8 The letter refers to the severe (and now lost) letter written after 1 Corinthians. See note at 2:3-4.

7:11 Paul reminded the Corinthians of the specific occasion, reported to him by Titus, when godly grieving had finally broken in on their congregation.

7:12 On I wrote, see note at verse 8. Paul was more concerned about the relationship between the Corinthians and himself (as disciples to their spiritual father; see note at 11:2-3) than he was about the troublemaker.

7:13-15 Verses 5-12 describe the effect of the Corinthians' change of heart toward Paul. These verses report the effect on Titus. Paul had predicted that the Corinthians would eventually repent, and Titus had been overjoyed when this turned out to be true.

8:1 The churches of Macedonia were congregations in Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea (Ac 16-17).

8:2-3 These churches had been born in affliction (Ac 16-17). Moreover, they were limited in financial resources; yet these factors had not impeded their giving.

8:4 The same word (ministry) previously used to describe Christian service (4:1; 5:18; 6:3) is now used to describe Christian giving. Financial stewardship is ministry.

8:5 Here is the key to understanding giving as a ministry. When believers offer themselves wholly to the Lord, they have no difficulty in offering their wallets to Him.

8:6 Paul's collection for the Jerusalem Christians had been a long-term project. He had evidently put Titus in charge of at least part of it. The Corinthians had "been prepared since last year" (9:2) to give, but had not completed the task. The recent trouble in Corinth, causing Paul's sorrowful visit and the severe letter, had surely been the major factor. Now that the Corinthians were restored, it was time to finish the task, but it would only be done the right way if it was prompted by God's grace (v. 1).

8:7 The Corinthians were more affluent than the Macedonians; therefore they could give more generously, and this is what Paul expected to happen (excel also in this grace).

8:8 The generosity of the Macedonians set a challenging standard for giving. Only love for God by His grace would enable the Corinthians to pass this test.

8:9 Jesus' self-sacrifice is an even higher standard of giving. He willingly exchanged all the wealth of His deity for the poverty of the incarnation.

8:10-11 On finish the task, see note at verse 6.

8:12 God is more concerned with the quality of giving than with the quantity, as with the widow who gave two coins (Lk 21:1-4).

8:13-14 A congregation that has been generous may later find itself in need of help from others.

8:15 The quotation from Ex 16:18 comes from the Israelites' first experience with gathering daily manna. Paul drew an analogy. The person who gathered much was a strong Israelite (like the wealthy Corinthians), while the person who gathered little was a weak—sick or aged—Israelite (like the impoverished saints in Jerusalem). Just as there had been an equitable distribution of manna among the Israelites, so there should be a fair sharing of resources among Christians.

8:16-17 Titus had volunteered to return to the Corinthians to oversee the collection. Went out to you refers to Titus's role as the letter carrier for 2 Corinthians.

8:18 The brother who is praised is not named, but it may have been Luke.

8:19 Congregations are to be involved in leadership decisions. Acts 20:4 lists all the church messengers that would accompany Paul with this gift, with Luke included in Ac 20:5 by the word "we" or "us."

8:20-21 From the beginning of Christianity, a scrupulous concern for integrity in dealing with money has been important. Before men implies public accountability.

8:22 Like the brother of verse 18, this one is also unnamed but praised.

8:23 On partner and coworker, see note at 2:12-13 for more about Titus's credentials. The messengers of the churches were literally "apostles." Only those selected by the churches (v. 19) could properly fulfill this function. Just as the gospel itself displays Christ's splendor (see note at 4:4), so do lives transformed by the gospel.

8:24 This verse is another appeal for the Corinthian believers to complete the offering (see note at v. 7).

9:1-5 This section explains that Paul wanted to spare the Corinthians the embarrassment that would happen if their pledge went unfulfilled and others learned about it.

9:1 On ministry to the saints, see note at 8:4.

9:2 The Macedonians lived in the province north of Achaia, the province in which Corinth was located (see note at 1:1). Evidently what Paul had written in 1Co 16:1-4 had met with an enthusiastic pledge from the Corinthians. He had learned about this and boasted of the Corinthians' zeal to the Macedonian churches. This had become a factor in the generous offering for Jerusalem that Paul had already received from Macedonia (8:1-4).

9:4 Paul appealed to the Corinthians' sense of integrity to keep their promise of a generous gift.

9:5 Paul intended to arrive in Corinth after Titus and the two brothers arrived, by which time the collection would be ready for him to take to Jerusalem. This is in fact what happened, as noted in Rm 15:25-27 (which was written from Corinth). The phrase a gift and not . . . an extortion may be translated literally as "a blessing and not a [matter of] greed." In other words, the giving was to be done because this would benefit others, without the givers thinking of getting back something material in return.

9:6-15 These verses contain the most explicit passage in the NT on stewardship. Because no individuals or places are named, the passage is easy to apply broadly.

9:6 The words sparingly . . . sparingly . . . generously . . . generously state a principle that is proverbially true, based on common agricultural experience. Here it is applied to financial matters, but see Lk 6:38; Gl 6:7-9.

9:7 Christian stewardship, like other good works, flows ideally from a heart of love for God and others rather than from a sense of duty (Mt 22:37-40).

9:8 A form of the Greek word for "all" is used four times here, translated as every grace . . . every way . . . everything you need, and every good work. A closely related word is translated always.

9:9 This quotation of Ps 112:9 is taken from a song about those who fear the Lord by living lives of righteous obedience to Him, extolling them to give to the poor.

9:10-11 These verses return to the agricultural metaphor of verse 6, emphasizing God's sovereignty in providing for the material needs of believers (seed) as well as for their spiritual needs (righteousness).

9:12-13 The impact of the Corinthians' gift to the poor believers in Jerusalem would go far beyond Jerusalem. Other congregations would learn about it and praise God for the generosity of the Corinthians. Christian stewardship is one important way to acknowledge the truth of Christ's gospel before others. For other instances of Paul's use of "confess" or confession, see Rm 10:9-10; 1Tm 6:12-13.

9:14 An added incentive for giving is that other believers will offer prayers for those who give generously, because generous giving is evidence of the grace of God already at work in such people.

9:15 His indescribable gift refers to God's Son, Jesus. Giving ought to be an expression of appreciation to God for sending Jesus (Jn 3:16).

10:1 These words (Now I, Paul) mark the most important transition in the epistle. The only other place he used his own name was in the salutation. The first nine chapters of 2 Corinthians have been warm and encouraging. Here the language dramatically changes to a harsh, threatening tone, because Paul was on the defensive against charges made by the false apostles (11:13).

10:2 Paul planned to challenge certain people who had accused him of behaving in an unspiritual way—that is, according to human standards. For his earlier discussions of things characteristic of frail humanity versus things that are evidence of God's power, see notes at 4:8-9; 4:17-18; and 6:8-10.

10:4 Paul often used the language of battle and struggle (1Co 14:8; 1Tm 1:18; 4:7), but there is a right way and a wrong way to fight. Christians should resort neither to the literal weapons of warfare nor to the rhetorical weapons of sophisticated philosophical reasoning to advance the gospel. Divine, supernatural power is required to defeat Satan's strongholds. Believers experience this power by putting on the armor of God (Eph 6:10-18).

10:5 The high-minded thing refers to arguments made by false teachers. These would not be defeated by sophisticated reasoning but by the foolishness of the message preached (1Co 1:22). See 1:18-30 for Paul's earlier guidance to the Corinthians on this topic.

10:6 The phrase your obedience means the commitment of the Corinthians to Paul's cause in opposing the false apostles. On his intention to deal severely with the troublemakers, see note at 13:2.

10:7 One clique in the Corinthian church—and perhaps the false teachers—had arrogantly claimed, "I'm with Christ" (1Co 1:12) to the exclusion of others. Paul had condemned this divisiveness (1Co 1:10-17) because there is no inner circle in Christianity made up of an especially enlightened group.

10:8 Within the church (made up of spiritual equals) Christ has given authority and leadership responsibility to certain individuals to use for building . . . up believers but never for tearing . . . down.

10:9-10 Paul's earlier correspondence caused the Corinthians to be "grieved" (7:8), but it was for their own good and it was not done just to frighten them. The false apostles contrasted the powerful impact of his letters with the weak impact of his presence and his lack of oratorical skill in his public speaking (11:6; 1Co 2:1-4), supposing this was proof of a major defect in the apostle.

10:11 If the situation required, Paul would not hesitate to exercise his God-given authority (13:2).

10:12 The false apostles were good at self-promotion, or commending themselves. For people to use themselves as the standard for evaluating their ministry shows that they lack understanding.

10:13 Paul's standard of self-evaluation was the extent to which he had obeyed God's call on his life, rather than comparing himself to others. The word area suggests either an agricultural image (a measured-out field to be planted and harvested) or an athletic image (a marked-out lane in which to run; vv. 15-16).

10:14-15 The Corinthians' own conversion experience was proof of Paul's obedience to God's call.

10:16 Paul understood his ministry as essentially that of a pioneer church planter. He may have already been planning to go to Spain, or the regions beyond (Rm 15:28).

10:17 The phrase the one who boasts must boast in the Lord is a summary of Jr 9:24. Jeremiah 9 prophesied the coming destruction of Judah, a people rich in external appearances but lacking in the true knowledge of God and His holy character. Paul's application to the present situation in Corinth implied that he knew God, but the false apostles did not.

10:18 The one the Lord commends refers to the judgment seat of Christ (5:10).

11:1 Paul felt compelled by circumstances to compare himself with those who had usurped his authority in Corinth. He foresaw that this would seem like foolishness or madness to some, for which he begged indulgence.

11:2-3 In the marriage analogy in these verses, four parties may be identified: (1) Paul was the spiritual father of the Corinthians, (2) the Corinthians were a pure virgin daughter of marriageable age, (3) Christ was the bridegroom to whom the Corinthians were to be given in marriage (at His return, Rv 19:7-9), and (4) the serpent was the Devil working through the false teachers trying to lure the daughter away from complete and pure devotion to her bridegroom (vv. 13-14). The reference to the fall (Gn 3) indicates that Paul believed in a historical Adam and Eve (Rm 5:14; 1Co 15:22,45; 1Tm 2:13-14).

11:4 The true, historic, biblical Jesus must be proclaimed carefully. Where the light of truth appears, the spirit of freedom and joy prevail. So adamant was Paul for the one and only gospel to be identified and preached that he pronounced a curse on those in Gl atia who perverted the message (Gl 1:9).

11:5 The word super-apostles is a combination of an adjective meaning "superior" and the usual NT word for "apostle." The only other place in the NT where this word appears is 12:11. The quotation marks indicate Paul's disdain for such a designation of those who were troubling the Corinthians. It might also be rendered "so-called super-apostles."

11:6 On untrained in public speaking, see note at 10:9-10. The "super-apostles" may have received the formal training that Paul had never had. In the battle of style versus substance, Paul claimed to win when it came to knowledge of God (see note at 10:17). His ministry concentrated on the clear truth rather than extravagant oratory.

11:7-8 The "super-apostles" obviously expected to be paid (see note at 2:17). They had apparently suggested to the Corinthians that it was a sign of Paul's inferiority that he refused financial support. His derisive refusal of this notion is seen in his exaggerated language. He was neither a sinner nor a robber in his financial habits.

11:9-10 The brothers who came from Macedonia were Silas and Timothy (Ac 18:5). After planting Macedonian churches (in Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea; Ac 16-17), Paul had traveled to Achaia alone. Following a brief stop in Athens, he had settled in Corinth, supporting himself as a tentmaker (Ac 18:1-4). Some time later, his traveling partners Silas and Timothy came with sufficient funds collected from the Macedonian churches, enabling Paul to devote full attention to his ministry. Paul's personal commitment was to serve the churches without pay, underscoring the doctrine that salvation itself is free to the person who believes. On his teaching about Christian financial support for ministers in general, see 1Co 9:12-15. Paul knew that this letter would be read in churches around Corinth (regions of Achaia), and they would therefore know about this defense of his ministry.

11:12 I will continue is a reference to preaching without pay, which would sharpen the contrast between Paul and the false teachers. If Paul had received pay for his teaching, this would provide an opportunity for them to be regarded just as our equals in monetary concerns.

11:13-15 The so-called "super-apostles" were not simply believers who disagreed with Paul in motive or method. They were agents of Satan who had gained a hearing in the church. Verse 13 is the only place in the NT where the phrase false apostles occurs, but see Rv 2:2. More frequent is the reference to false prophets, which Jesus predicted (Mt 7:15; 24:11,24).

11:14 Holy angels are sometimes associated with light or brightness (Lk 2:9; 24:4; Ac 12:7). No wonder Satan deceives by covering his dark evil with a cloak of light.

11:15 The word behind servants is translated as "ministers" in 3:6; 6:4. Jesus taught about the terrible destiny awaiting false prophets in the Sermon on the Mount, noting, "You'll recognize them by their fruit" (Mt 7:16).

11:16-12:10 Bible interpreters have often identified these verses as Paul's "Fool's Speech." In order to defend himself against the false apostles, he boasted about experiences he had had, many of which would usually be considered evidences of shame or humiliation. Yet the false teachers couldn't come close to matching Paul's record.

11:16 The word fool is from the Greek aphronos, meaning "one who is ignorant or unlearned" (vv. 16,19; 12:6,11; Rm 2:20; 1Co 15:36; Eph 5:17). We might translate it as "ignoramus." The other word translated "fool" is moros, meaning "one who is stupid" or "a moron" (1Co 1:25,27; 3:18; 4:10; 2Tm 2:23; Ti 3:9).

11:17 In the Gospels Jesus never spoke the way Paul was about to speak. In 1Co 7:12 Paul also spoke about something Jesus had not addressed.

11:18 The false apostles were as public (many boast) about their experiences and achievements as Paul was private.

11:19 Put up with is the same verb as that in 11:4, expressing the same sarcasm. The words so wise, phronimos in Greek, are the opposite of foolish (see note at v. 16).

11:20-21 Tactics of the false teachers included psychological and physical intimidation. Perhaps Paul used the words we have been weak tongue-in-cheek.

11:22 The false apostles and the true apostles were alike in their Jewish heritage. Yet the false apostles were perhaps, like the Judaizers in Gl atia (Gl 5:1-6), construing salvation as being based on keeping the law or performing good works.

11:23 Paul did not concede that these false apostles were servants of Christ. He had just called them Satan's servants (v. 15). But he granted their claim for the sake of argument. In any such comparison, Paul had suffered the most for the One they claimed to serve.

11:24-25 The five Jewish beatings (39 lashes; see note at Dt 25:3) and the three Roman beatings were administered during a more brutal era when adults were subjected to corporal punishment by religious or governmental authorities. Of the beatings mentioned here, only the Roman beating at Philippi is reported (Ac 16:22). The stoning occurred in Lystra (Ac 14:19). The shipwreck of Ac 27 occurred after the writing of 2 Corinthians.

11:28 Everything Paul mentioned in verses 23-27 was endured in the course of church planting or evangelism. After converts were made, he faced the task of cultivating these believers in their faith.

11:29 Paul identified emotionally and spiritually with the struggles of his converts.

11:32-33 This episode, Paul's first brush with being persecuted, is also reported in Ac 9:23-25. Luke, the Gentile author of Acts, noted that Jews of Damascus initiated the plot, while Paul the Jew remembered this as a plot of the Gentile governor of the city. There was probably a coalition of Jews and Nabateans serving under the governor.

12:1 This verse is a continuation of Paul's boasting as a fool, revealing how great he was in comparison to the false apostles. Paul's conversion came in response to a vision (see Ac 26:19). As an apostle, he received direct revelations from Christ (Gl 1:12; Eph 3:3). The visions mentioned here are reported nowhere else.

12:2 A man in Christ is Paul's euphemism for himself, expressed in the third person for humility's sake. Third heaven is the place of God's dwelling. The first heaven is the atmospheric sky, and the second heaven is the planetary sky. The time period, 14 years ago, would have been about A.D. 42, assuming 2 Corinthians was written in 56. This vision therefore preceded Paul's missionary travels, and he had evidently never spoken of it until now. He was not sure whether his body (in the body or out of the body) was taken to heaven or not during the vision.

12:4 The only other place where Paul used this verb (caught up), other than in verse 2, was to refer to the bodily catching up of living believers to meet the Lord in the air at His return, sometimes called the rapture (1Th 4:17). The word paradise expresses the same idea as the third heaven of verse 2. It occurs in two other NT passages, where it also means "heaven" (Lk 23:43; Rv 2:7).

12:6 If Paul had wanted to, he could have told more. He declined, however, so the Corinthians could evaluate him on the basis of what they had seen or heard in him.

12:7 Paul did not say what his thorn in the flesh was, although the Corinthians probably knew. Uncertainty about the specific identity of the "thorn" has allowed believers down through the ages to apply the concept to their own circumstances. Suggestions about the "thorn" have included physical ailments (poor eyesight or ill health); psychological or spiritual ailments (depression, demonic oppression, or an ongoing temptation from a bodily desire); and opposition to his ministry (enemies both inside and outside the churches).

12:8 Paul prayed fervently and repeatedly until he received the Lord's answer. "No" is an answer to prayer as surely as "yes" is.

12:9 The sufficiency of divine grace may be easier to grasp intellectually than through experience, especially for those who are naturally inclined to self-reliance. God ensured that Paul never got away from grace (see note at 1:2). God's glorious power is more evident when it is displayed in weak vessels (see note at 4:7).

12:10 All of Paul's sufferings—which he recapped here in five short phrases—became occasions for him to be pleased or delighted (Php 4:13).

12:11 On fool, see note at 11:16. On super-apostles, see note at 11:5.

12:12 The apostles whom Jesus commissioned as His official spokesmen received power from Him to do the same mighty wonders and miracles He had done. This authenticated their authority and status (Mk 6:7; 1Th 1:5). Hebrews 2:4 implies that "signs and wonders" were the special prerogative of eyewitnesses of Jesus. Apparently the "super-apostles" lacked these credentials.

12:13 Paul did not burden the Corinthian believers because he did not ask for payment for his ministry (see note at 11:7-8). Forgive me this wrong is a satirical comment.

12:14 Paul's first visit to the Corinthians was the long church-planting visit, around A.D. 50-51 (Ac 18:11). His second visit was the brief painful experience (2Co 2:1). Earlier in the letter he had promised a third visit (see note at 9:5). This was fulfilled, as Rm 15:26 shows. Paul would not burden the Corinthians by asking for money for his personal use. He did, of course, expect them to support the offering for the Jerusalem saints (2Co 8-9). He wanted their hearts and affection, not their money.

12:15 The fatherly love Paul felt for the Corinthians resulted in a great sacrifice of time and money (see notes at 6:12-13 and 11:2-3). He yearned for this love to be returned, even though he didn't expect the Corinthians to love him as much as he loved them.

12:16 By the phrase I took you in by deceit Paul is either using irony (in which case he meant the opposite) or else he is repeating the slanderous claims made by the false apostles. Their argument may have been along these lines: "Granted, Paul never personally took money from you for his own use, but now he's come up with this elaborate scheme for Jerusalem. He's scamming you and plans to use the money for himself."

12:18 Paul was sending Titus and an unnamed brother (see 8:6,18,22) along with this letter to oversee the collection for Jerusalem. Paul knew that Titus's behavior in financial matters had been, and would continue to be, above reproach.

12:19 Paul's integrity in the sight of God was more important than his reputation with any human group.

12:20 The phrase I will not find you to be what I want is another appeal to the unrepentant minority of Corinthian Christians (see note at 10:1). The eight vices listed in this verse were the "works" of the false apostles, which would result in eternal condemnation (11:15). Paul's other vice lists (1Co 6:9-10; Gl 5:19-21; Eph 5:3-5) also noted that those who practiced such sins were not part of God's family.

12:21 Paul's second visit to Corinth had been devastating because the Corinthians had rejected him (2:1,5). The vices in verse 20 were not sexual, as these were. First Corinthians 5 shows that sexual sins had been longstanding challenges in the Corinthian congregation. The false apostles may have added insult to injury by approving of sexual license.

The Lechaeum Road at Corinth. Lechaeum was one of two port facilities on either side of the Isthmus of Corinth. Like most ports, Corinth had a well-known reputation for immorality. In 2Co 12:21, Paul warned the Corinthian converts against returning to the "moral impurity, sexual immorality, and promiscuity they practiced."

13:1 On third time, see note at 12:14. The quotation from Dt 19:15 (testimony of two or three witnesses) established a pattern for verifying the truth of an accusation. Jesus affirmed it in Mt 18:16 as a principle for church discipline (1Tm 5:19). If the Corinthian sinners did not repent voluntarily, Paul would see to it that the congregation exercised the proper disciplinary procedure to expose and expel the evildoers.

13:2 Paul would not be lenient on his planned third visit to the Corinthian believers. His sense of apostolic authority is nowhere more evident than in this verse (see note at 1:1).

13:3-4 Paul identified himself with Christ, whose authority he bore. Christ's crucifixion and Paul's own ministry might be taken as proof that they were weak, but the resurrection showed Christ's power, which Paul shared.

13:5 These present-tense verbs (test, examine) could be translated "keep on testing" and "keep on examining." A believer never gets beyond the need for regular self-examination (1Co 11:28; Gl 6:4).

13:6-7 Profession of faith and possession of faith are two different matters. Paul would surely have agreed with the three tests for assurance of salvation identified in 1 John: the doctrinal test (believing the truth about Jesus Christ; 1Jn 2:22-23); the moral test (living according to Christ's commands; 1Jn 2:3-4); and the love test (love for God and for those in God's family; 1Jn 4:7-8).

13:9 The entire letter of 2 Corinthians may be thought of as a celebration of Paul's weakness (see 4:8-9,17-18; 6:8-10; 11:23-27).

13:10 The phrase when I am there is a reference to Paul's third visit to the Corinthians. This is the second and last time in the letter that Paul used the term authority (10:8). In both cases, he noted that his calling was to build up, not tear down.

13:12 Five NT epistles end with an encouragement for Christians to show appropriate affection with a holy kiss (v. 12; Rm 16:16; 1Co 16:20; 1Th 5:26; 1Pt 5:14). The exact expression of this practice will vary from culture to culture. In every case it must be holy and not open to a charge of sexual suggestiveness or insincerity, as in the case of Judas, who betrayed Jesus with a kiss (Mt 26:48-49).

13:13 On grace, see note at 1:2. This Trinitarian benediction (Lord Jesus Christ . . . God . . . Holy Spirit) has been frequently used to conclude worship services. See 1:21-22 and 3:17 for other references in the letter that point to the Trinity.

Word Studies noema Greek Pronunciation [NAH ay mah]

HCSB Translation intention Uses in 2 Corinthians 5
Uses in the NT 6
Focus passage 2 Corinthians 2:11

The Greek noun noema comes from the verb noeo, meaning to think or to understand. The -ma ending indicates the result of thinking, that is, the thought itself, perception, or understanding. Thus, noema can mean mind, thought, or intention. In the NT, the term occurs in a positive sense only in Php 4:7, where Paul stated that the peace of God guards believers' hearts and minds. Three times in 2 Corinthians Paul connected the work of Satan with the Christian's mind (noema): believers are not ignorant of Satan's intentions to destroy them (2:11); Satan blinds the minds of unbelievers so they cannot be saved (4:4); believers, like Eve, can have their minds corrupted by Satan (11:3). Paul's other two uses of noema in 2 Corinthians refer to the closed minds of the Israelites that keep them from believing in Christ (3:14) and to thoughts that keep believers from obeying Christ (10:5).

eikon Greek Pronunciation [ay KOHN]
HCSB Translation image Uses in 2 Corinthians 2
Uses in the NT 23
Focus passage 2 Corinthians 4:4

The English word icon comes from the Greek noun eikon, which means image, form, or statue. In the NT, eikon is used in seven ways. (1) A coin bears the image of Caesar (Mt 22:20; Mk 12:16; Lk 20:24). (2) Unbelievers worship images of man and animals (Rm 1:23). (3) All humans bear the image of Adam (1Co 15:49). (4) Believers bear the image of Christ (Rm 8:29; 1Co 15:49). (5) Christ is the image of God (2Co 4:4; Col 1:15). (6) The law was a shadowy image of what Christ's sacrifice provides (Heb 10:1). (7) The book of Revelation refers to the beast who demands that everyone on earth worship his image, and God judges those who do (Rv 13:14-15; 14:9,11; 15:2; 16:2; 19:20; 20:4).

Two main ideas emerge from these uses: representation and manifestation. Caesar is represented by his image on a coin, and pagan gods are represented by images of themselves. Man was created to represent God and to manifest His presence in the world. However, Christ does not merely represent God; He is the full manifestation of God. Believers are being conformed to Christ's image and thus manifest God's presence as well.

katallasso Greek Pronunciation [kah tahl LAHSS oh]

Focus passage 2 Corinthians 5:18-20

The Greek verb katallasso basically means to change or exchange. It was often used as a monetary term referring to changing or exchanging money, but in general it referred to exchanging one thing for another. A common use of katallasso was in reference to changing someone from an enemy into a friend, that is, bringing together or reconciling two people or parties that are at odds with each other. This is how katallasso is used all six times in the NT, as is also the case for all four uses of the related noun katallage (meaning reconciliation; see 2Co 5:18-19; Rm 5:11; 11:15). These two words are found only in Paul's writings. In 1Co 7:11, Paul used katallasso to describe the reconciliation of husband and wife. Paul's other five uses of the term explain that unbelievers can be reconciled to God through Christ. Because of sin, unbelievers are God's enemies (Rm 5:10), but they can be reconciled to God through faith in Christ (2Co 5:18-19).

lupe Greek Pronunciation [LOO pay]

Focus passage 2 Corinthians 7:10

The Greek noun lupe means pain, grief, or sorrow. The related verb lupeo means to cause pain or to grieve and occurs 26 times in the NT (15 of them in Paul's writings; 12 in 2 Corinthians). In ancient Greek both lupe and lupeo could refer to pain experienced by the physical body, but most of the time the terms were used figuratively for mental and emotional anguish.

Four times in Paul's writings lupe refers in a negative sense to his deep concern about spiritual matters, such as Israel's unbelief (Rm 9:2), the attitude of other Christians to his ministry (2Co 2:1,3), and the near death of a fellow worker in the Lord (Php 2:27). Paul also used lupe to describe the grief caused by sin in the life of a Christian (2Co 2:7) and to explain that Christian giving should not be motivated by regret [lupe] but by a cheerful heart (2Co 9:7). In 2Co 7:10 Paul contrasted the false grief of the world with the 'godly grief' that leads to repentance, warning against the notion that just any form of repentance is genuine.

tapeinos Greek Pronunciation [tah pay NOSS]
HCSB Translation humble Uses in 2 Corinthians 2
Uses in the NT 8
Focus passage 2 Corinthians 10:1

The Greek adjective tapeinos means humble, lowly, or downcast. The related verb tapeinoo means to humiliate, humble, or make ashamed, and occurs 14 times in the NT (four in Paul's writings).

The ancient Greeks so emphasized personal strength and self-sufficiency that tapeinos and its related words were almost always used in a negative sense. To be humble or lowly was considered a vice. However, Jesus elevated tapeinos to the status of a virtue when He said, 'I am gentle and humble in heart' (Mt 11:29), and Paul used tapeinoo to describe the incarnation (Php 2:8). Jesus warned that those who promote themselves will be judged by God, but He also said that those who humble themselves will be rewarded (Mt 18:4; 23:12; Lk 14:11; 18:14; 2Co 11:7). True humility is the opposite of putting self first. Humility means that a person does not think of self at all but instead thinks of the needs of others and makes their needs a priority (see Php 2:3-4). God gives grace to those who practice such humility (Jms 4:6; 1Pt 5:5).

gnosis Greek Pronunciation [NOH sihss]
HCSB Translation knowledge Uses in 2 Corinthians 6

Focus passage 2 Corinthians 11:6

The Greek noun gnosis means knowledge or understanding, and the related verb ginosko means to know, understand, or discern. The verb ginosko is much more common than gnosis and is prominent in John's writings (57x in John; 25 in 1 John), though Paul used it often as well (50x). The noun gnosis never occurs in John's writings and is found primarily in Paul's writings, particularly 1 and 2 Corinthians (16x).

For Paul, gnosis refers mainly to the knowledge of God and the things of God, so it is a key term for him in describing various aspects of salvation (1Co 1:5; 2Co 2:14; 4:6; 6:6; 8:7; 10:5; Php 3:8; Col 2:3). In 1 Corinthians gnosis is listed as a spiritual gift, probably a revelatory one (12:8; 13:2,8; 14:6). Though knowledge can cause pride (1Co 8:1), knowledge is also essential for Christians to enjoy their liberty in Christ (1Co 8:7,10,11). Gnosis in its positive sense is never merely intellectual knowledge, it is experiential knowledge that changes a person's worldview and lifestyle. Thus, believers must guard against false knowledge (1Tm 6:20).

apokalupsis Greek Pronunciation [ah pah KAH loop sihss] HCSB Translation revelation Uses in 2 Corinthians 2
Uses in the NT 18
Focus passage 2 Corinthians 12:7

The Greek noun apokalupsis is a compound word from the preposition apo , meaning away from , and kalumma , meaning veil ; thus, an unveiling . Kalumma comes from the verb kalupto , which means to hide ; thus the verb apokalupto means to expose that which was hidden or to reveal , and the noun apokalupsis can mean not only an unveiling but also a revelation .

In the NT, apokalupsis always refers to God's revelation of Himself in some way. In Lk 2:32, this revelation comes in the person of Christ, while in Rm 8:19 it is in His sons. God often revealed Himself through supernatural means to apostles and prophets such as Paul (Rm 16:25; 2Co 12:1,7; Gl 1:12; 2:2; Eph 3:3). In the end times, God's judgment will be revealed (Rm 2:5), as will Christ (1Co 1:7; 2Th 1:7; 1Pt 1:7,13; 4:13).

The last occurrence of apokalupsis in the NT is in Rv 1:1. The first word of the Greek text, it eventually became the name of the book. Only here does apokalupsis refer to written revelation , that is, Scripture. Revelation 1:1 uses apokalupsis in its noblest sense, for it introduces the main theme of the book: 'The revelation of Jesus Christ.'

histemi Greek Pronunciation [HIHSS tay mee] HCSB Translation establish Uses in 2 Corinthians 2
Uses in the NT 155
Focus passage 2 Corinthians 13:1

The Greek verb histemi means to stand and has 47 related words that occur in the NT, such as anistemi (to raise or stand up) and anastasis (resurrection). This gave rise to several figurative meanings referring to that which is firm, confirmed, established, appointed, or ordained.

For Paul, histemi most often served as a term for standing by faith (2Co 1:24; Rm 5:2; 11:20; 14:4; 1Co 10:12; 15:1; Eph 6:11,13-14; Col 4:12). In discussing the nature of the law, Paul used histemi in teaching that righteousness by faith "upholds" [histemi], rather than cancels the law, since the law also teaches salvation by faith and not works (Rm 3:31). Similarly, Paul used histemi in reference to those who "establish their own righteousness" as opposed to those who submit to God's righteousness (Rm 10:3)— another contrast between faith and works as the basis of salvation. Paul also used histemi in quoting the Greek OT to establish a principle for church discipline that he would apply on his next visit: 'Every fact must be established by the testimony of two or three witnesses' (2Co 13:1; see Dt 19:15).

GALATIANS

Greeting

1 Paul, [a] an apostle — not from men or by man, but by Jesus Christ and God the Father [b] who raised Him from the dead [c] — [2] and all the brothers who are with me:

To the churches of Galatia. [d, e]

[3] Grace to you and peace from God the Father and our Lord [f] Jesus Christ, [4] who gave Himself for our sins [g] to rescue us from this present evil age, [h] according to the will of our God and Father. [i 5] To whom be the glory forever and ever. •Amen .

No Other Gospel

6 I am amazed that you are so quickly turning away from Him who called [j] you by the grace of Christ and are turning to a different gospel — 7 not that there is another gospel, [k] but there are some [l] who are troubling you and want to change the good news [A] about the •Messiah . 8 But even if we or an angel [m] from heaven should preach to you a gospel other than what we have preached to you, [n] a curse be on him! [B] 9 As we have said before, I now say again: If anyone preaches to you a gospel contrary to what you received, [o] a curse be on him!

10 For am I now trying to win the favor of people, or God? [p] Or am I striving to please people? If I were still trying to please people, I would not be a •slave of Christ.

Paul Defends His Apostleship

11 Now I want you to know, brothers, that the gospel preached by me is not based on human thought. C 12 For I did not receive it from a human source and I was not taught it, but it came by a revelation [q] from Jesus Christ. [r]

13 For you have heard about my former way of life [s] in Judaism: [t] I persecuted [u] God's church to an extreme degree and tried to destroy it. 14 I advanced in Judaism beyond many contemporaries among my people, because I was extremely zealous for the traditions of my ancestors. [v] 15 But when God, who from my birth set me apart and called [w] me by His grace, was pleased 16 to reveal His Son [x] in me, so that I could preach Him among the Gentiles, I did not immediately consult with anyone. D 17 I did not go up to Jerusalem [y] to those who had become apostles [z] before me; instead I went to Arabia [a] and came back to Damascus. [b]

18 Then after three years I did go up to Jerusalem [c] to get to know •Cephas , [d,] [e] and I stayed with him 15 days. 19 But I didn't see any of the other apostles except James, [f] the Lord's brother. 20 Now I am not lying in what I write to you.
God is my witness. E

21 Afterward, I went to the regions of Syria [g] and Cilicia. [h] 22 I remained personally unknown to the Judean churches in Christ; 23 they simply kept hearing: "He who formerly persecuted [i] us now preaches the faith [j] he once tried to destroy." 24 And they glorified God because of me.

Paul Defends His Gospel at Jerusalem

2 Then after 14 years I went up again [a] to Jerusalem with Barnabas, [b] taking Titus [c] along also. [2] I went up according to a revelation [d] and presented to them the gospel I preach among the Gentiles — but privately to those recognized as leaders — so that I might not be running, or have run the race, in vain. [3] But not even Titus who was with me, though he was a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised. [4] This issue arose because of false brothers [e] smuggled in, who came in secretly to spy on the freedom that we have in Christ Jesus, in order to enslave us. [5] But we did not give up and submit to these people for even an hour, so that the truth [f] of the gospel would be preserved for you.

[6] Now from those recognized as important (what they really were makes no difference to me; God does not show favoritism [A, g]) — they added nothing to me. [7] On the contrary, they saw that I had been entrusted with the gospel for the uncircumcised, [h] just as Peter [i] was for the circumcised, [8] since the One at work in Peter for an apostleship to the circumcised was also at work in me for the Gentiles. [9] When James, [j] •Cephas , [k] and John, [l] recognized as pillars, [m] acknowledged the grace that had been given to me, they gave the right hand of fellowship to me and Barnabas, agreeing that we should go to the Gentiles and they to the circumcised. [10] They asked only that we would remember the poor, [n] which I made every effort to do.

Freedom from the Law

11 But when Cephas [o] came to Antioch, I opposed him to his face because he stood condemned. [B] 12 For he regularly ate with the Gentiles before certain men came from James. However, when they came, he withdrew and separated himself, because he feared those from the circumcision party. 13 Then the rest of the Jews [p] joined his hypocrisy, [q] so that even Barnabas was carried away by their hypocrisy. 14 But when I saw that they were deviating from the truth of the gospel, I told Cephas [r] in front of everyone, "If you, who are a Jew, live like a Gentile [s] and not like a Jew, [t] how can you compel Gentiles to live [u] like Jews? " [v]

15 We who are Jews by birth and not "Gentile sinners" 16 know that no one is •justified by the works of the law [w] but by faith in Jesus Christ. [C] And we have believed in Christ Jesus so that we might be justified by faith in Christ [D] and not by the works of the law, because by the works of the law no human being will [E] be justified. 17 But if we ourselves are also found to be "sinners" while seeking to be justified by Christ, [x] is Christ then a promoter [F,] [y] of sin? Absolutely not!
[z] 18 If I rebuild [a] the system [G] I tore down, I show myself to be a lawbreaker. [b]
19 For through the law I have died to the law, [c] so that I might live for God. [d] I have been crucified with Christ [e] 20 and I no longer live, but Christ lives in me. [f]
The life I now live in the body, [H] I live by faith in the Son of God, [g] who loved [h] me [i] and gave Himself [j] for me. [k] 21 I do not set aside the grace of God, for if righteousness comes through the law, [l] then Christ died [m] for nothing.

Justification through Faith

3 You foolish [a] Galatians! Who has hypnotized you, [b] before whose eyes Jesus Christ was vividly portrayed [c] as crucified? [d] 2 I only want to learn this from you: Did you receive the Spirit by the works of the law or by hearing with faith? [A] 3 Are you so foolish? After beginning with the Spirit, are you now going to be made complete by the flesh? [e] 4 Did you suffer [f] so much for nothing — if in fact it was for nothing? 5 So then, does God supply you with the Spirit and work miracles [g] among you by the works of the law or by hearing with faith? [B]

6 Just as Abraham believed God, [h] and it was credited to him for righteousness, [i, j] 7 then understand that those who have faith are Abraham's sons. [k] 8 Now the Scripture saw in advance that God would •justify the Gentiles by faith and told the good news ahead of time to Abraham, [l] saying, All the nations will be blessed through you. [m, n] 9 So those who have faith are blessed with Abraham, [o] who had faith. [C]

Law and Promise

10 For all who rely on the works of the law are under a curse, [p] because it is written: [q] Everyone who does not continue doing everything written in the book of the law is cursed. [r, s] 11 Now it is clear that no one is justified before God by the law, because the righteous will live [t] by faith. [u, v] 12 But the law is not based on faith; instead, the one who does these things will live by them. [w, x] 13 Christ has •redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us, [y] because it is written: Everyone who is hung on a tree is cursed. [z, a] 14 The purpose was that the blessing of Abraham would come to the Gentiles by Christ Jesus, so that we could receive the promised Spirit through faith. [b]

15 Brothers, I'm using a human illustration. [D] No one sets aside or makes additions to even a human covenant [E] that has been ratified. 16 Now the promises were spoken to Abraham and to his •seed . He does not say "and to seeds," as though referring to many, but referring to one, and to your seed, [c, d] who is Christ. 17 And I say this: The law, which came 430 years later, [e] does not revoke a covenant that was previously ratified by God [f] and cancel the promise. 18 For if the inheritance is from the law, it is no longer from the promise; but God granted it to Abraham through the promise.

The Purpose of the Law

19 Why then was the law given? [g] It was added because of transgressions until the Seed to whom the promise was made would come. The law was put into effect through angels [h] by means of a mediator. [i] 20 Now a mediator is not for just one person, but God is one. [j] 21 Is the law therefore contrary to God's promises? Absolutely not! For if a law had been given that was able to give life, then righteousness would certainly be by the law. 22 But the Scripture has imprisoned everything under sin's power, [F, k] so that the promise by faith in Jesus Christ [l] might be given to those who believe. [m] 23 Before this faith [n] came, we were confined under the law, imprisoned until the coming faith was revealed. [o] 24 The law, then, was our guardian [G] until Christ, [p] so that we could be justified by faith. 25 But since that faith [q] has come, we are no longer under a guardian, 26 for you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus.

Sons and Heirs

27 For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ like a garment. [r] 28 There is no Jew or Greek, •slave or free, [s] male or female; [t] for you are all one [u] in Christ Jesus. 29 And if you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham's seed, heirs [v] according to the promise. [w]

4 Now I say that as long as the heir [a] is a child, he differs in no way from a •slave , though he is the owner [b] of everything. [2] Instead, he is under guardians and stewards until the time set by his father. [3] In the same way we also, when we were children, were in slavery under the elemental forces [A] of the world. [c 4] When the time came to completion, God sent His Son, [d] born of a woman, [e] born under the law, [5] to •redeem those under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons. [f 6] And because you are sons, God has sent the Spirit of His Son [g] into our [h] hearts, crying, "• Abba , [i] Father! " [j 7] So you are no longer a slave [k] but a son, [l] and if a son, then an heir [m] through God.

Paul's Concern for the Galatians

[8] But in the past, when you didn't know God, [n] you were enslaved to things [B] that by nature are not gods. [9] But now, since you know God, [o] or rather have become known by God, how can you turn back again to the weak and bankrupt [p] elemental forces? [q] Do you want to be enslaved to them all over again? [10] You observe special days, months, seasons, and years. [r 11] I am fearful for you, that perhaps my labor for you has been wasted.

[12] I beg you, brothers: Become like me, for I also became like you. You have not wronged me; [13] you know that previously I preached the gospel to you because of a physical illness. [14] You did not despise or reject me though my physical condition was a trial for you. [s] On the contrary, you received me as an angel of God, as Christ Jesus Himself.

[15] What happened to this sense of being blessed you had? For I testify to you that, if possible, you would have torn out your eyes and given them to me. [16] Have I now become your enemy by telling you the truth? [t 17] They [u] are enthusiastic about you, but not for any good. Instead, they want to isolate you so you will be enthusiastic about them. [18] Now it is always good to be enthusiastic about good — and not just when I am with you. [19] My children, [v] I am again suffering labor pains [w] for you until Christ is formed in you. [20] I would like to be with you right now and change my tone of voice, because I don't know what to do about you.

Sarah and Hagar: Two Covenants

[21] Tell me, those of you who want to be under the law, don't you hear the law? [22] For it is written that Abraham [x] had two sons, one by a slave [y] and the other by a free woman. [23] But the one by the slave was born according to the impulse of the flesh, while the one by the free woman was born as the result of a promise. 24 These things are illustrations, [z] for the women represent the two covenants. One is from Mount Sinai [a] and bears children into slavery — this is Hagar. [b] 25 Now Hagar is Mount Sinai in Arabia [c] and corresponds to the present Jerusalem, [d] for she is in slavery with her children. 26 But the Jerusalem above [e] is free, and she is our mother. 27 For it is written: [f]

Rejoice, childless woman, [g] who does not give birth.
Burst into song and shout,
you who are not in labor,
for the children of the desolate are many,
more numerous than those of the woman who has a husband. [h, i]

28 Now you, brothers, like Isaac, [j] are children of promise. [k] 29 But just as then the child born according to the flesh persecuted the one born according to the Spirit, [l] so also now. [m] 30 But what does the Scripture say?

> Drive out the slave and her son, for the son of the slave will never > be a co-heir with the son of the free woman. [n, o]

31 Therefore, brothers, we are not children of the slave but of the free woman. [p]

Freedom of the Christian

5 Christ has liberated us to be free. Stand firm [a] then and don't submit again to a yoke of slavery. [b] 2 Take note! I, Paul, tell you that if you get yourselves circumcised, Christ will not benefit you at all. 3 Again I testify to every man who gets himself circumcised that he is obligated to keep the entire law. 4 You who are trying to be •justified by the law are alienated from Christ; you have fallen from grace. [c] 5 For through the Spirit, by faith, we eagerly wait [d] for the hope [e] of righteousness. 6 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision nor uncircumcision accomplishes anything; what matters is faith [f] working through love. [g] 7 You were running well. Who prevented you from obeying the truth? [h] 8 This persuasion did not come from the One who called you. [i] 9 A little yeast leavens the whole lump of dough. 10 I have confidence in the Lord you will not accept any other view. But whoever it is that is confusing you will pay the penalty. [j] 11 Now brothers, if I still preach circumcision, why am I still persecuted? In that case the offense of the cross [k] has been abolished. 12 I wish those who are disturbing you might also get themselves castrated!
13 For you were called [l] to be free, brothers; only don't use this freedom as an opportunity for the flesh, but serve one another through love. 14 For the entire law is fulfilled [m] in one statement: Love your neighbor as yourself. [n, o] 15 But if you bite and devour [p] one another, watch out, or you will be consumed by one another.

The Spirit versus the Flesh

16 I say then, •walk by the Spirit [q] and you will not carry out the desire of the flesh. 17 For the flesh desires [r] what is against the Spirit, and the Spirit desires what is against the flesh; these are opposed to each other, so that you don't do what you want. [s] 18 But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law.

19 Now the works of the flesh are obvious: [t,] [A] sexual immorality, [u] moral impurity, [v] promiscuity, [w] 20 idolatry, [x] sorcery, [y] hatreds, [z] strife, [a] jealousy, [b] outbursts of anger, [c] selfish ambitions, [d] dissensions, [e] factions, [f] 21 envy, [g,] [h] drunkenness, carousing, [i] and anything similar. I tell you about these things in advance — as I told you before — that those who practice such things will not inherit the kingdom of God. [j]

22 But the fruit of the Spirit [k] is love, [l] joy, [m] peace, patience, [n] kindness, [o] goodness, faith, [B] 23 gentleness, [p] self-control. [q] Against such things there is no law. 24 Now those who belong to Christ Jesus [r] have crucified the flesh [s] with its passions and desires. [t] 25 Since we live [u] by the Spirit, we must also follow the Spirit. 26 We must not become conceited, provoking one another, envying one another. [v]

Carry One Another's Burdens

6 Brothers, if someone is caught in any wrongdoing, you who are spiritual should restore such a person with a gentle [a] spirit, [b] watching out for yourselves so you also won't be tempted. [c] 2 Carry one another's burdens; in this way you will fulfill the law of Christ. [d] 3 For if anyone considers himself to be something when he is nothing, [e] he deceives himself. 4 But each person should examine his own work, [f] and then he will have a reason for boasting in himself alone, and not in respect to someone else. 5 For each person will have to carry his own load.

6 The one who is taught the message must share [g] all his good things with the teacher. 7 Don't be deceived: God is not mocked. For whatever a man sows he will also reap, 8 because the one who sows to his flesh will reap corruption from the flesh, but the one who sows to the Spirit [h] will reap eternal life [i] from the Spirit. 9 So we must not get tired [j] of doing good, [k] for we will reap at the proper time if we don't give up. 10 Therefore, as we have opportunity, we must work [l] for the good [m] of all, especially for those who belong to the household [n] of faith. [o]

Concluding Exhortation

11 Look at what large letters I use as I write to you in my own handwriting. 12 Those who want to make a good impression in the flesh [p] are the ones who would compel you to be circumcised [q] — but only to avoid being persecuted [r] for the cross [s] of Christ. 13 For even the circumcised don't keep [t] the law themselves; however, they want you to be circumcised in order to boast about your flesh. 14 But as for me, I will never boast about anything except the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ. The •world has been crucified to me through the cross, and I to the world. 15 For [u] both circumcision and uncircumcision [v] mean nothing; what matters instead is a new creation. [w] 16 May peace come to all those who follow this standard, and mercy to the Israel [x] of God!

17 From now on, let no one cause me trouble, because I bear on my body scars for the cause of Jesus. [y] 18 Brothers, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. [z] •Amen .

GALATIANS

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies

Introduction

The site of ancient Lystra, probably the home of Timothy. In Lystra many who heard and believed Paul's message were turned against him by Judaizers from Antioch and Iconium. If Galatians was written to churches in southern Gl atia, the church planted in Lystra would have been one of the recipients of this letter.

Galatians, which may be the earliest of Paul's letters, is also his most intense. It gives us a strong presentation of the truth that sinners are justified and live godly lives by trusting in Jesus alone.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The author's name is "Paul," and he claims to be "an apostle" of Christ (Gl 1:1). The autobiographical information in the letter is consistent with what is known about the apostle Paul from Acts and his other letters. Theologically, everything in Galatians agrees with Paul's views elsewhere, notably in Romans.

Background: It is not certain where the Gl atian churches were located or when Paul wrote Galatians. The reason is that, during the NT era, the term Galatians was used both ethnically and politically. If "Galatians" is understood ethnically, the founding of the Gl atian churches is only implied in the NT. On Paul's second missionary journey, he "went through the region of Phrygia and Gl atia" (Ac 16:6) in north central Asia Minor (near the modern capital of Turkey—Ankara). His later visit to the same general area is recorded in Acts 18:23 and 19:1. This is where a group from Gaul (modern France) invaded in the third century B.C., and it became known as Gl atia.

Understood politically, “Galatians” can refer to those living in the southern part of the Roman province of Gl atia. That region included the cities of Pisidian Antioch, Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe, where Paul worked to plant churches, as recorded in Acts 13:14-14:23.

The view that Galatians was written to the area where the ethnic Galatians lived is called the “North Gl atian” theory. The possible dates of writing related to this understanding range from A.D. 52 or 53, if shortly after the second missionary journey, to A.D. 56, if written about the same time as Romans, to which it is similar theologically.

The view that Galatians was sent to churches in the southern portion of the Roman province of Gl atia is known as the “South Gl atian” theory. Some holding this view date Galatians in the early 50s, but others as early as A.D. 48 or 49, before the Jerusalem Council, which is usually dated to about A.D. 49. If the earlier date here is correct, Galatians is among the earliest of the NT books.

Another key consideration is comparing the basis of contention in Galatians to the topic of debate at the Jerusalem Council. The problem addressed in Galatians is that “the works of the law” of Moses (2:16-17; 3:2; cp. 5:4), notably circumcision (5:2; 6:12-13), were added by some teachers to what was required in being justified before God. This is the same issue that Acts records as the reason why the Jerusalem Council met (Ac 15:1,5), supporting the idea that the existing problem in the Gl atian churches was part of the reason for the Jerusalem Council.

If Galatians was written after the Jerusalem Council, it is inconceivable that Paul would not have cited the conclusions of the council, which supported his works-free view of the gospel. This strongly implies that the Jerusalem Council had not yet occurred when Paul wrote Galatians.

Message and Purpose Galatians was written to clarify and defend “the truth of the gospel” (2:5,16) in the face of a false gospel. This was done by: (1) defending Paul’s message and authority as an apostle, (2) considering the OT basis of the gospel message, and (3) demonstrating how the gospel message Paul preached worked practically in daily Christian living. Paul chose this approach to correct those in the Gl atian churches in regard to both their faith and practice related to the gospel.

Contribution to the Bible There is much about the life and movements of the apostle Paul that is only known—or filled in significantly—from Galatians 1:13-

2:14 (and the personal glimpse in 4:13-14). Among these factors are Paul's sojourn in "Arabia" (1:17) and descriptions of two trips to Jerusalem (1:18-19; 2:1-10). Paul described a confrontation with Peter (2:11-14) that is mentioned nowhere else in the NT.

In the middle third of Galatians, certain aspects of the gospel's OT background are explained in unique ways. Notable are: (1) the curse related to Jesus being crucified, as cited from Deuteronomy 21:23 (Gl 3:13); (2) Jesus fulfilling the prophecy of the singular physical "seed" of Abraham (3:16; see Gn 22:18); (3) the roles of the law as prison (3:22-23) and guardian (3:24-25) until Christ; and (4) the extended allegory of the slave and free sons of Abraham (4:21-31).

Galatians tells us much about the ministry of the Holy Spirit in relation to the Christian life. After the Spirit's role in the ministry of adoption (4:5-6), believers are commanded to "walk by the Spirit" (5:16), be "led by the Spirit" (5:18) and "follow the Spirit" (5:25), as well as "sow to the Spirit" and "reap" the related eternal harvest (6:8). The moment-by-moment outcome of that kind of sensitivity to the ministry of the Holy Spirit is what is meant by "the fruit of the Spirit" (5:22-23).

Structure The book of Galatians follows the typical pattern for a first-century letter, with the exception of the element of thanksgiving: salutation (1:1-5), the main body (1:6-6:15), and a farewell (6:16-18). Contrasting concepts are prominent in the letter: divine revelation vs. human insight, grace vs. law, justification vs. condemnation, Jerusalem vs. Mount Sinai, sonship vs. slavery, the fruit of the Spirit vs. the works of the flesh, and liberty vs. bondage.

Conclusion: Sacrificial Living vs. Legalism (6:11-18) Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Paul referred to himself as an apostle to assert that his authority for speaking to the problems in the Gl atian churches came from God, not men.

1:2 Paul referred to all the brothers who are with me to show that he was hardly alone in the views he expressed in this letter. The phrase the churches of Galatia indicates this letter was to be read in multiple congregations, as was Revelation (Rv 1:4,11).

1:4 Along with the resurrection, Christ's redemptive death is the heart of the gospel message (1Co 15:1-4). Paul emphasized both the death and resurrection of Christ at the beginning of Galatians (Gl 1:1) to begin to counteract the message they had recently heard which claimed salvation came through "the works of the law" (2:16). Rescue us from this present evil age looks ahead to being freed from "slavery" to "the elemental forces of the world" through Christ (4:3-4), and previews the "new creation" wording in 6:15.

1:5 A key issue between the competing views of the gospel (salvation by grace vs. salvation by works) has to do with who gets the glory. Works-salvation provides a basis for a person to "boast" (6:13; Eph 2:9), while appreciation for the undeserved grace of God prompts the believer to give God alone the glory forever.

1:6-7 Verse 6 is abrupt. Paul was amazed at the Galatians' defection from the gospel of grace. To reject the gospel message is the same as rejecting God. After Paul left Gl atia, the Galatians thought they had heard and responded to a different gospel that was better, but it was actually no true gospel.

1:8-9 The purity of the gospel is so important that even the apostles or an angel should be cursed eternally (Gk anathema) if they tampered with it.

1:10 The words win . . . people and please people previews Peter temporarily "deviating from the truth of the gospel" (2:14) to please a delegation from Jerusalem (2:12).

1:11-12 Paul did not say when his direct revelation from Jesus Christ came, but "reveal His Son in me" in verse 16 may imply that it was related to his conversion on the Damascus road (Ac 9:1-9; 22:6-10; 26:12-18).

1:13-14 Paul communicated three things to his readers: (1) he had advanced much farther in Judaism than those who had distorted the gospel, (2) he was far more zealous for the Jewish traditions than these false teachers, and (3) ironically, Paul's zeal and advancement in Judaism led him to persecute the church before his conversion.

1:15 The phrase God, who . . . set me apart and called me sounds like Is 49:1, which refers to the messianic Servant, and Jr 1:5, which refers to the prophet Jeremiah. Paul knew that his callings to salvation and apostleship were both undeserved (Rm 1:5).

1:16-17 On reveal His Son in me, see note at verses 11-12. On Paul's calling to preach Christ among the Gentiles, see Ac 9:15; 26:17-18; Rm 1:5; 16:26. After his conversion (Ac 9:3-9), Paul did not feel any compulsion to travel immediately from Damascus to Jerusalem to consult with the authorities on the gospel. He went to Arabia (see Ac 9:23-25; 2Co 11:32-33), then back to Damascus.

1:18 Because of how time was computed in Paul's time, it cannot be known whether the three years in this verse speaks of three full calendar years or one full year plus portions of two additional years. It is also not known whether the three years is figured after: (1) Paul's conversion (vv. 15-16), (2) his departure for Arabia (v. 17), or (3) his return from Arabia to Damascus (v. 17). His trip to Jerusalem was to get to know the apostle Peter (the Greek equivalent of the Aramaic Cephas, meaning "stone"; Mt 16:18). If there were differences between Paul and Peter over the gospel message, they would have come out during this visit.

1:19 James, the brother of Jesus (Mt 13:55; Jms 1:1), is nowhere else listed as one of the 12 apostles (i.e., the 11, without Judas Iscariot, who was replaced by Matthias; Ac 1:23-26). But since he was in the upper room before Pentecost (Ac 1:13-14) and was the senior pastoral figure in the church at Jerusalem (see Ac 15:13; 21:18), James was considered to be virtually an "apostle."

1:20 If anyone in Gl atia doubted that Paul had previously had a harmonious discussion about his gospel message with Peter, and possibly with James, he solemnly affirmed in this verse that it was true.

1:22 That Paul was personally unknown to the Judean churches agrees with the silence about him in Acts from when he went to Tarsus (Ac 9:30) until Barnabas went there to bring him to be involved in the church in Syrian Antioch (Ac 11:25-26).

1:23-24 Since the Judean churches glorified God because Paul was preaching the faith he once tried to destroy, it is clear that they did not disagree with the gospel as he preached it.

2:1 This reference to 14 years could be to a full 14 calendar years or 12 full years and fractions of the first and last. The time could look back to: (1) Paul's conversion (1:15-16), (2) Paul's previous trip to Jerusalem (1:18-19), or (3) Paul's trip to Syria and Cilicia (1:21). Paul's relationship with Barnabas, whose name means “Son of Encouragement” (Ac 4:36), began in Jerusalem (Ac 9:27). Titus was a convert under Paul (Ti 1:4) who became an effective minister (2Co 2:13; 7:13; Ti 1:5).

2:2 Paul presented . . . the gospel he was preaching to the leaders (at least James, Peter, and John; see note at v. 9) for the sake of helpful discussion. The phrase might not be running . . . in vain reflects concern over brewing disunity in the church. Paul’s meeting privately with the leaders (Gk dokousin; lit “the recognized ones”) in Jerusalem makes it unlikely he was talking about the Jerusalem Council, which was larger and more public (Ac 15:6,12).

2:3 To make it clear that he had not adjusted his gospel message during this private conference with the church leadership in Jerusalem, Paul used Titus (see note at v. 1) as a test case. Had Paul caved in to the view that had recently been preached in the Gl atian churches (that it was necessary for a Gentile to be circumcised and keep the Mosaic law to become a Christian; 2:16; 5:2-3), Titus, a Gentile convert, would have been compelled to be circumcised, but he was not, reflecting the fact that Paul’s gospel was accepted by the recognized church leaders in Jerusalem.

2:4 False brothers (Gk pseudadelphoi) reflects that they were not really Christians. This group heard that Paul was having private discussions about the gospel and the Gentiles, and they found a deceptive way to “crash the party” to try to curtail freedom . . . in Christ and enslave Christians to the law, which was happening in the Gl atian churches (5:1).

2:5 To maintain the truth of the gospel, Paul did not submit even momentarily to their argument about circumcision.

2:6 James, Peter, and John were the recognized (Gk doke) “pillars” of the church (v. 9). What they really were . . . God does not show favoritism was not meant as disparaging to them. However, as Paul recounted in verses 11-14, he encountered problems in Syrian Antioch from: (1) those who were claiming authority from James (v. 12), and (2) Peter’s hypocritical attempt to appease that group.

2:7-8 Paul was not saying in these verses that there are two different gospel messages. Rather, he had been appointed by God as the apostle to the Gentiles (Ac 22:21; Rm 11:13), and Peter served as an apostle to the Jews. God was at work in each ministry.

2:9 The unity of viewpoint between Paul and the leaders of the Jerusalem church was symbolized by the right hand of fellowship—a common sign of friendship and agreement.

2:10 To remember the poor was the main reason why Paul and Barnabas had made this trip to Jerusalem (Ac 11:28-30).

2:11 Because of the hypocritical behavior of Peter (Cephas) in Antioch, Paul opposed him to his face.

2:12-13 Peter's fear-based hypocrisy was even more flagrant because, besides eating with the Gentiles in the church at Syrian Antioch, he had been previously instructed by a vision to fellowship with Cornelius, the Gentile. The words of James at the Jerusalem Council did not reflect that he believed it was necessary for Gentiles to be circumcised in order to be Christians (cp. Ac 15:1-5 with Ac 15:13-21), but James did counsel respect by the Gentiles for traditional Jewish practices (Ac 15:20-21). Peter's hypocrisy swayed the rest of the Jews in the church at Antioch, including Barnabas.

2:14 As soon as Paul determined that the truth of the gospel was hanging in the balance, he confronted Peter (Cephas) in front of everyone (i.e., in a church meeting). Peter's behavior, in eating Gentile meals prior to the group "from James" arriving in Antioch (vv. 11-12), showed he believed it was right to live like a Gentile among Gentiles. Thus, his later decision to compel the Gentiles in the church at Antioch to live like Jews was seen as inconsistent and hypocritical.

2:15 Theologically, Paul knew all people (not just Gentiles) are sinners (Rm 3:23). He was likely using a phrase (Gentile sinners) that his opponents, who were Jews by birth and apparently conceited about it, used to describe non-Jews. But because of God's gracious covenant with Israel, the Jews did have certain spiritual advantages (Rm 9:4-5).

2:16 Justification is a legal idea, meaning "to be declared (not made) righteous." Faith means trusting in the redemptive work of Jesus Christ on the cross. When Paul speaks of the message we . . . believed, the plural "we" may refer to: (1) "all the brothers" with Paul at that time (1:2); (2) Paul and the Galatians, who believed when they first heard Paul's preaching (3:2); or (3) both.

2:17 Paul's opponents in Syrian Antioch and Gl atia were apparently depicting his message of being justified by faith in Jesus Christ alone as "lowering" Jews spiritually to the level of being "Gentile sinners," which somehow would make Christ . . . a promoter of sin (i.e., by making Jews common "sinners"). Paul's response to this preposterous idea was the strongest possible negation—absolutely not (Gk mâ genoito).

2:18 Having believed a law-free gospel of justification by faith, Paul could not go back and rebuild the false gospel message (salvation through "the works of the law"; v. 16) he previously had torn down. If he did this he would be a lawbreaker in the sense of sinning against grace.

2:19-20 . Paul meant by his statement through the law I have died to the law that because Jesus died under the law (3:13), Paul was now separated from the law. “I have died” refers to being crucified with Christ, as if the believer died on the cross with Jesus. The Christian continues to live physically, but spiritually this new life is by faith in Christ.

2:21 If it were possible to gain God’s righteousness through keeping the law, the death of Christ on the cross would have been for nothing, but since salvation via the law is not possible, the only alternative is justification by faith in Christ.

3:1 Paul’s preaching Christ . . . crucified to the Galatians was so clear that he asked who had hypnotized them, causing them to lose the certainty they once had about the source of their salvation.

3:2-3 Paul asked questions about: (1) a key aspect of becoming a Christian, and (2) living as a Christian. Paul knew the Galatians would have to admit that the presence of the Spirit in their lives began with their hearing the gospel and responding with faith (Rm 10:17). His second question was whether the Holy Spirit or the flesh was God’s intended means of sanctification.

3:4 The only other direct reference to suffering (did you suffer so much) in Galatians is “being persecuted for the cross of Christ” (6:12). Paul appealed to the fact that whatever suffering the Galatians had gone through for the gospel of grace was now wasted. But if in fact it was for nothing implies that Paul believed his readers would come to their senses.

3:6 The example of the faith of Abraham and the justification that resulted, neutralizes the arguments of those who were teaching justification by the works of the law (2:16).

3:7-9 Those who have faith are Abraham’s spiritual sons and daughters, whether they are Jewish or Gentile by bloodline. Paul tied the example of Abraham’s justification by faith to God’s covenant promise to Abraham in Gn 12:3: All the nations will be blessed through you. That blessing (being justified by faith) is available to all nations (see Mt 28:19) through the good news of Jesus, which the promise to Abraham foretold.

3:10 Not only is it impossible to be justified by the “works of the law” (2:16), but such a perspective actually brings a curse on people. According to Dt 27:26, everyone who does not continue observing every detail of the law is cursed.

3:11-12 Paul added Hab 2:4 to the example of Abraham being declared righteous . . . by faith (see notes at v. 6; Rm 1:17). Negatively, he quoted Lv 18:5 to show that since Scripture says righteousness is by faith, it is impossible to be righteous by keeping the law.

3:13 Since Paul’s readers were trying to be justified by the “works of the law” (2:16), they were already under its curse (see note at 3:10). Fortunately, Christ had redeemed those under such a curse by His crucifixion. Paul quoted Dt 21:23 to show that, by His being hung on a tree (the cross), Jesus was cursed in our place.

3:14 The Gentiles receive the blessing of Abraham through faith (see note at vv. 7-9) in Christ Jesus. This places them in a position to receive the promised Holy Spirit.

3:15 Paul made his point by using an illustration of a last will and testament (human covenant). When executed legally, such a document cannot be changed.

3:16-17 The use of the singular seed (Gk sperma) is Paul's biblical basis for saying that Christ is the one who fulfilled God's promises . . . to Abraham. However, the Jews are still the physical seed of Abraham and those in Christ are his spiritual seed (v. 29). Because of the nature of a covenant (v. 15), the Mosaic law—and "the works of the law" (2:16)—cannot override the role of Christ in fulfilling the Abrahamic covenant or Abraham's example of justifying faith.

3:18 The exalted position of the law with the Jewish teachers who had come to the Galatians did not fit the biblical teaching. God's earlier promise given to Abraham was the proper basis for their spiritual inheritance.

3:19-20 The divine purpose of the law was to clarify sin until Christ (the Seed; see note at vv. 16-17) came. Acts 7:38 says that an angel was involved as a mediator (a "go-between"), which was needed because the law was a two-party contract, with both God and Israel responsible for keeping it. The Abrahamic covenant was a one-party contract, as seen in the way the Lord ratified the covenant as the only active party (Abram was asleep) in Gn 15:9-12. Such a covenant is unconditional.

3:21-23 Paul clarified that the law was never in conflict with God's promises to Abraham. The law played the necessary role of convicting people of sin during the almost 1,500 years between Mount Sinai and the gospel of justification by faith in Jesus Christ.

3:2-4:25 In verses 22-23, the law is pictured as a jail cell. In these present verses, it is portrayed as a guardian. A guardian (Gk paidagogos) was a slave who took a young pupil for instruction and protected him from harm until he came of age. When the gospel of Christ came on the scene, the guardian role of the law was no longer needed.

3:26 Not only are those who have faith in Christ Jesus "Abraham's sons" (v. 7), but they are also adopted sons of God (4:5-7; Rm 8:14-17).

3:27 On baptized into Christ, see Rm 6:3-4. On put on Christ, see Eph 4:20-24; Col 3:9-10. Paul used the image of a person emerging from the water after being baptized to put on new clothes.

3:28 The equality and unity spoken of here is of a spiritual nature—in Christ.

Paul had just discussed at length that the Jew has no spiritual advantage over the Greek (Gentile), and now he says the same equality is true for social and gender distinctions. No one people group or gender is to be exalted above others.

3:29 To be Abraham's seed is the same thing as being his "sons" (v. 7), but now the additional element of being heirs is introduced, previewing 4:7 (Rm 8:15-17).

4:1 In the ancient world, an underage heir had no right to his inheritance and was temporarily in the same legal situation as a slave, owning nothing.

4:2 Guardians (Gk epitropoi) does not refer to the same idea as in 3:24-25 (see note there), where the Greek word is paidagogos . In this case, a "guardian" was a slave who protected the underage heir, while stewards were trustees responsible for the heir's other needs until he came of age (the time set by his father). The analogy was to illustrate that God had everything under control during the period of the Mosaic law, setting things up perfectly for the coming of Christ.

4:3 The elemental forces of the world are called "things that by nature are not gods" in verse 8 and "the weak and bankrupt elemental forces" in verse 9. Since these descriptions are linked to the observance of "special days, months, seasons, and years" in verse 10, it appears they are related to religious observances based in the laws and rhythms of nature.

4:4 The Greek word translated completion is pleroma, indicating that Christ came at the perfect time. Factors that made this such a suitable time included: worldwide peace (Pax Romana), an excellent road system, and the dominance of one language all across the empire (Koine Greek). By these means the gospel spread in ways that would not have been possible in earlier times. God sent His Son, born of a woman looks back to God's promise in regard to "the seed of the woman" in Gn 3:15, and it may allude to Christ's virgin birth (Is 7:14; Mt 1:18-25). Born under the law refers to the fact that Jesus knew what it was like to live under the Mosaic law. This phrase implies that He perfectly kept the whole law, which no other human being could do (see notes at Gl 3:10 and 3:21-23).

4:5-6 One big difference between unbelievers and the underage heir of verses 1-2 is that, apart from a relationship with Christ, all people are actually spiritual slaves to sin, which is made clear by the law. Thus, it was necessary for Jesus to die; to redeem (Gk exagoraz; "set free by purchase") sinners out of the slave market. A second great difference is that Christians receive adoption as sons instead of being a son of the bloodline. Jesus Christ is the only Son naturally related to God the Father. All other sons (including females, since "sonship" was a legal status) are by adoption. Abba means "Father" in Aramaic, but it has a personal tone, such as "Daddy" or "Papa."

4:7 Paul's appeal to those in the churches in Gl atia was that the person who tries to be justified before God by works is a slave to the Mosaic law. But he who is justified by faith in Christ is no longer a slave, but a son, with full rights as an heir to God's infinite treasures.

4:8-11 Paul's readers had established a true relationship with God through faith in Christ. He asked how they could turn back again and be enslaved to a viewpoint of justification by works that was as weak and bankrupt as the elemental forces they had worshiped before (v. 3). The presence of the Jewish teachers in Gl atia makes it likely that the special days were Sabbath observances, while months and seasons had to do with longer seasons of the Jewish calendar (e.g., the time from Passover to Pentecost). Years would be sabbatical years or the year of Jubilee. Since those in the Gl atian churches were back where they started before Paul arrived—enslaved spiritually—he feared that his best efforts had been wasted.

4:14-15 It is not known what the exact nature of Paul's physical condition was. One theory holds that Paul was stoned and left for dead (Ac 14:19) while in the area on his first missionary journey. That could cause many kinds of injuries, including those related to eyesight. Some think eye problems were Paul's "thorn in the flesh" (2Co 12:7). Others think Paul contracted malaria in the lowlands of southern Asia Minor (Ac 13:13-14).

4:16 Paul was saddened that the Galatians now viewed him as an enemy simply because he told them what they needed to hear (the truth), not what they wanted to hear.

4:17-18 Zeal can be deluded (see note at 1:13-14), as it was with the false teachers in Gl atia. The only way these teachers could maintain the zeal of the Gl atian churches was to isolate them from the other Gentile churches who were not trying to be justified by the "works of the law" (2:16).

4:19 Paul wished the Galatians could be "born again" (see Jn 3:3,5-8) a second time, which was not possible (Heb 6:4-6). Emotionally, he felt like a woman in labor giving birth to the same baby for the second time (i.e., in trying to bring the Galatians back around to justification by faith, thus ditching the misguided emphasis on works of the law).

4:20 Paul did not enjoy being stern with those whom he cared about, but he didn't know what else to do about their situation since he could not be with them physically.

4:21 The law does not refer specifically to the law of Moses, but to the Books of the Law—the Pentateuch (i.e., Genesis-Deuteronomy). Paul's logic was that even the law itself would dispute the view of the false teachers.

4:22-23 Genesis records the births of these two sons—Ishmael, born to Hagar, a slave, and Isaac, born to Sarah, a free woman. Ishmael was born according to . . . the flesh, because Sarah and Abraham used Hagar to have a son by their own ingenuity, not through patient trust in God's promise (Gn 16). Isaac was born as God promised (Gn 15:4; 17:16-17; 21:1-3) after many years of waiting by Abraham and Sarah.

4:24-26 Paul declared that he was using these things as illustrations in an elaborate allegory (Gk allâgore). On one side of the comparison of covenants is (a) Mount Sinai, where the law of Moses was given, (b) Hagar, the mother of Ishmael, and (c) the present Jerusalem, from which the false teachers had come to Syrian Antioch (2:11-13) and Gl atia. This side of the comparison represents spiritual slavery through the law. On the other side of the comparison is the Jerusalem above, a Jewish hope that will be fully realized only in the new heavens and new earth (Rv 21:2,9-22:5). Interestingly, Sarah is not referred to as the mother at this point, but "the Jerusalem above" is.

4:27 The quote from Is 54:1 in this verse deals with the fact that the children born after the exile were more fortunate and greater in number than those righteously judged for breaking the law. The implication is that those who still rely on the law are being replaced by the church and its law-free gospel.

4:28-30 Paul assumed that those in the Gl atian churches would return to his view and show themselves to be children of promise (i.e., Abraham's seed through faith in Christ; 3:29). But, as Ishmael persecuted Isaac in Gn 21:9-10, it is to be expected that the Judaizers will persecute true Christians. Paul was confident that eventually his opponents would be exiled from among God's people, while his own view would receive the inheritance.

4:31 Paul placed himself and the Galatians on the side of Isaac and his descendants, the Jews, while his opponents are children of the slave, making them non-Jews.

5:1 Paul believed that, even though the Galatians had recently moved toward embracing the false gospel (1:6-7) of being justified by "the works of the law" (2:16), they could still stand firm and reject the view. Paul was asking, "If you have been freed from slavery once, why would you go back to it?"

5:2-3 The main issue was whether the Galatians had so completely adopted the Judaizers' perspective that they would now act on this view by being circumcised (see note at 2:3). It was probably this dilemma that prompted Paul to bring up earlier that Titus, a Gentile like the Galatians, had not been "compelled to be circumcised" in Jerusalem (2:3), though the Judaizers had applied pressure in that direction. Paul reminded the Galatians that those who are circumcised are obligated to keep the entire law (see note at 5:11-12).

5:4 Trying to be justified by the law was the polar opposite of being justified by God's grace through faith in Christ. Alienated (Gk katargeo) means "to be cut off from." By being circumcised and seeking justification before God by the law, the Galatians were cutting themselves off from Christ. In this context, fallen from grace refers to falling away from, or forfeiting, the perspective of salvation by grace through faith.

5:5-6 Paul stated that hope for long-term righteousness before God is through living by faith in the power of the Holy Spirit.

5:7-10 The Galatians had started running the race of the Christian life well, but the Jewish teachers prevented them from continuing. The implication of the proverbial statement, A little yeast leavens the whole lump of dough, is that, even if the teaching of the Judaizers was initially accepted by only a few in the Gl atian churches, it would spread quickly.

5:11-12 Apparently, a rumor from the Jewish teachers claimed that Paul still preached circumcision in certain circumstances, evidently a misunderstanding of Paul's actions designed to "become all things to all people, so that I may by every possible means save some" (1Co 9:22). In that spirit, Paul had Timothy circumcised (Ac 16:3). But Timothy was circumcised to become a Jew ethnically so he could minister to Jews. This had nothing to do with becoming a Christian. Those who are disturbing you were the Jewish teachers who emphasized circumcision.

5:13-14 Paul expressed concern about the behavioral opposite of bondage: licentiousness (an opportunity for the flesh; see note at vv. 19-21). He also expanded his initial reference to love (see note at vv. 5-6). While it is foolish to "submit again to a yoke of slavery" (v. 1) in trying to keep the law, it is right to be servants to other believers "through love." Paul said that to love your neighbor as yourself fulfills the entire law.

5:15 The phrase bite and devour one another probably looks back to "an opportunity for the flesh" (v. 13) and looks forward to parts of the listing of "the works of the flesh" (vv. 19-21). Paul had apparently heard that there was serious dissension in the churches of Gl atia. He warned them that such attitudes and behavior would destroy (Gk analisko; "to consume, eat up") them.

5:16-18 The Gl atian believers were at enmity spiritually. This ongoing struggle of strong desires (Gk epithumia; "craving, desire") is why it was necessary to consciously walk by the Spirit in faith (v. 5). This was the only way not to carry out the desire of the flesh. The evidence of the Spirit's leading is "the fruit of the Spirit" (vv. 22-23).

5:19-21 The "flesh" is usually understood as the sinful nature of mankind that continues even after a person becomes a Christian. Some interpreters take it to mean mankind in its unsaved state with its sinful thoughts and behavioral patterns continuing after conversion. When the desire of the flesh has the upper hand, the works of the flesh are obvious (Gk phaneros; "evident, visible"). Some are gross sins, but many are often viewed as "acceptable" behavior. Paul's point is that this type of behavior as a pattern of life (practice) is enough to cause a person not to inherit the kingdom of God (see the list in 1Co 6:9-10). Thus, a legalist cannot be justified by "the works of the law" (Gl 2:16) and a licentious person is excluded from the kingdom of God by the works of the flesh.

5:22-23 The fruit illustration calls to mind the vine and the branches which produce fruit (Jn 15:1-5). The mention of love first in the list looks back to Gl 5:6,13-14. Such loving behavior comes through the power of the Holy Spirit by faith. Self-control (Gk egkrateia; "holding in passions and appetites") is placed last in the list for emphasis, because all the works of the flesh reflect lack of self-control. There is no need for prohibitive law when people's lives exhibit love and self-control.

5:24-26 Christians belong to Christ Jesus and have been crucified with Him (2:20) along with their passions and desires. Such crucifixion is followed by resurrection living—by the Spirit (2Co 5:17). The logical way to live is to follow the Spirit and not lapse back into the passions and desires of the flesh (Gl 5:19-21).

6:1 A person who falls into sin at a vulnerable point should be spiritually restored in a gentle manner (one of "the fruits of the spirit"; 5:23). A danger for those doing such restoration is that they themselves might be pulled into the sin.

6:2 The person whose life is controlled by the Holy Spirit (v. 1) is to come alongside and help carry (Gk bastazo ; "to bear, endure") the physical, emotional, or spiritual load threatening to crush his fellow believers. The law of Christ is "love your neighbor as yourself" (5:14). This is focused somewhat in Jesus' new commandment, "Love one another" (Jn 13:34). It was not possible to keep the entire law of Moses (Gl 3:10,12), but it is possible to fulfill both that law (5:14) and the law of Christ through loving actions.

6:3-5 Anyone who considers himself superior to a fallen believer is deceiving himself and risks being tempted also (v. 1). We cannot legitimately compare ourselves to someone else because each person is assigned a different load (Gk phortion; not the same word as in v. 2, but meaning "cargo, capacity") by the Lord.

6:6 The principle that the one who is taught the Scriptures should support the teacher is also stated elsewhere by Paul (1Co 9:11,14; 1Tm 5:17). In this context it is an application of "carry one another's burdens" (Gl 6:2).

6:8 Corruption here may refer to: (1) eternal damnation (5:21) or (2) loss of eternal rewards (1Co 3:12-15). Eternal life does not mean earning your salvation since justification before God is through faith (2:16). It refers to life from the Holy Spirit (Rm 6:22).

6:9-10 The Christian life is a marathon race, so we must not get tired (i.e., grow weary or lose heart). Doing good is not seeking to be justified by works, but living as God has planned for those who have received His gracious salvation through faith (Eph 2:8-10). To "sow to the Spirit" over the long haul means taking the opportunity (Gk kairos; "opportune or appointed time") that the Lord places before us to work for the good of all.

6:11 Paul had dictated the earlier part of the letter to an unnamed amanuensis, or secretary, and now he added a postscript in his own handwriting. Some believe that the oversized letters (large letters) indicate that Paul was having problems with his eyesight (see note at 4:14-15).

6:12-13 The Jewish teachers who were compelling the Galatians to be circumcised were doing so for appearance's sake and to avoid being persecuted by unbelieving Jews for the cross of Christ, as Paul had been (Ac 14:19). They had no basis for boasting since they could not keep the law themselves (see note at 3:10).

6:14-15 The only basis for believers to boast is in the death of our Lord Jesus Christ, which makes us a new creation (see 2Co 5:17). On the world has been crucified to me, see notes at 2:19-20; 5:24-26 (cp. 1Jn 2:15-17).

6:16 The Israel of God may mean: (1) the Gentile church, which through faith has inherited the promise God gave to Abraham (3:29) or (2) more likely, the "remnant" of believing Israel "chosen by grace" (Rm 11:5), as opposed to the "false brothers" among the Jews (Gl 2:4), who were seeking to be justified by "the works of the law" (2:16).

6:17 Paul asked that this letter put an end to the trouble he had been facing because of standing against justification by the works of the law and for justification by faith (2:16). Paul's scars were from injuries he had received through persecution (Ac 14:19; 2Co 11:23-25). He considered these far more significant than the "mark" of circumcision (Gl 6:12-13,15).

6:18 Paul ended Galatians on the same note with which he began—grace (see note at 1:3). It is also significant that in Paul's last sentence, he addresses the Galatians as brothers. Although they have been tempted by "another gospel," Paul ends this letter in the hope that they remain brothers.

Word Studies peritome Greek Pronunciation [peh ree tah MAY]

HCSB Translation circumcision Uses in Galatians 7
Uses in the NT 36
Focus passage Galatians 2:7-21

The Greek noun peritome means circumcision and comes from two words that literally mean a cutting around. The related verb peritemno means to circumcise and occurs 17 times in the NT. These two terms refer to the practice of cutting off the foreskin of a male, normally at birth. God chose circumcision as a special sign of the relationship between Himself and the covenant people of Israel, starting with Abraham (Gn 17:9-14,22-27).

In Paul's writings, peritome is prominently used in relation to salvation. Some Jewish believers claimed that Gentiles must be circumcised and follow the law of Moses to be saved (Ac 15:1-35). Paul explained that this was not true of their father Abraham, for he lived before the law of Moses and was declared righteous before he was circumcised. Circumcision made no contribution to Abraham's relationship with God; that relationship was based on faith (Rm 4:9-25). Both the circumcised and the uncircumcised are saved by faith (Rm 3:30; Gl 5:6,11; 6:15).

nomos Greek Pronunciation [NAH mahss]
HCSB Translation law Uses in Galatians 32
Uses in the NT 194
Focus passage Galatians 3:2-26

The Greek noun nomos means custom, ordinance, or law. In the Greek OT, nomos is used to translate the Hebrew term torah 247 times, where it normally refers to the law of Moses in general or to specific laws. Paul was particularly fond of nomos, and over half of its occurrences in the NT are in Paul's writings.

In Romans and Galatians, Paul fought the battle over law and grace in relation to salvation. Paul's phrase "the works of the law" (Gl 3:2) refers to the idea of a salvation based on keeping the law. Paul denied that a law-based righteousness, which is dependent on human effort instead of God's grace and faith in Christ's work, can save or sustain anyone. The law brings the knowledge of sin and makes everyone accountable to God (Rm 3:19-20; Gl 3:15-22). By showing unbelievers their sinfulness, the law acts as their guardian until they trust in Christ through faith and become sons of God (Gl 3:23-26).

huios Greek Pronunciation [hwee AHSS]
HCSB Translation Son, son Uses in Galatians 13
Uses in the NT 377
Focus passage Galatians 4:4-7

The Greek noun huios means son, referring literally to male offspring (Mt 1:21; 20:20). The two most common uses of huios in the NT are in titles for Christ and designations for believers. The expressions "Son" and "Son of God" refer to Christ in His unique and eternal relationship with the Father (Mt 3:17; 8:29; 11:27; Jn 3:16-18,35-36; 5:19-27; 8:36; 14:13; 17:1; Rm 1:3-4; 8:29,32; Heb 1:2,5,8). However, "Son of God" is also used many times as a messianic title (Mt 14:33; 16:16; 26:63; Mk 1:1; Jn 1:34,49; 11:27; 20:31), as is "Son of David" (Mt 9:27; 12:23; 15:22; 20:30-31; 21:9,15; 22:42,45). Jesus' self-designation "Son of Man" is a messianic title taken from Dn 7:13-14 (Mt 8:20; 12:8; 19:28; 24:47; 25:31; 26:64; Jn 1:51). On the basis of Jesus' Son-ship, believers are called "sons" (Gl 4:6-7) and "sons of God" (Mt 5:9; Rm 8:14,19; Gl 3:26). Their adoption (Gk huiothesia; lit a son placing) into God's family places them in a special relationship to God so that they can call Him " Abba, Father" and enjoy an inheritance (Gl 4:4-7).

pneuma Greek Pronunciation [NYOO mah]
HCSB Translation Spirit, spirit Uses in Galatians 18
Uses in the NT 379
Focus passage Galatians 5:16-25

The Greek noun pneuma comes from the related verb pneo, meaning to blow, and thus can mean breath, wind, air, ghost, or spirit. In the NT, pneuma is almost always used to mean spirit in reference to living beings—humans, angels, demons, and especially the Holy Spirit (about 240 times).

Three NT writers emphasized the work of the Holy Spirit: Luke, John, and Paul. Luke referred to the filling of the Spirit 14 times and each case involves a special work for a specific task, usually proclamation (Lk 1:15-17,41-45,67-79; 4:1-15; Ac 4:8-12; 7:55-60; 13:9-11). John the Baptist (Mt 3:11; Jn 1:33) and Jesus (Ac 1:4-8) promised that the Spirit would come to baptize believers, and this was fulfilled on the Day of Pentecost (Ac 2:1-4). Paul explained that the Spirit teaches believers to live by faith according to God's grace and thus to overcome the power of sin (Rm 8:1-26; Gl 5:16-26). Paul's expressions walk by according to live by the Spirit (Rm 8:4; Gl 5:16,25) and led by the Spirit (Rm 8:14; Gl 5:18) refer to this sanctifying work of the Spirit in the life of the believer.

7 We have •redemption in Him [k] through His blood, the forgiveness [l] of our trespasses, according to the riches of His grace 8 that He lavished on us with all wisdom and understanding. 9 He made known to us the •mystery of His will, [m] according to His good pleasure that He planned in Him [n] 10 for the administration [B] of the days of fulfillment [C] — to bring everything together in the •Messiah , [o] both things in heaven and things on earth [p] in Him. [q]

11 We have also received an inheritance [D] in Him, predestined [r] according to the purpose of the One who works out everything in agreement with the decision of His will, 12 so that we who had already put our hope [s] in the Messiah might bring praise to His glory. [t]

13 When you heard the message of truth, [u] the gospel of your salvation, and when you believed in Him, you were also sealed with the promised Holy Spirit. [v] 14 He is the down payment [w] of our inheritance, for the redemption of the possession, [E] to the praise of His glory.

Prayer for Spiritual Insight

15 This is why, since I heard about your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love for all the saints, 16 I never stop giving thanks for you as I remember you in my prayers. 17 I pray that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the glorious Father, [F] would give you a spirit [G, x] of wisdom and revelation [y] in the knowledge of Him. 18 I pray that the perception of your mind [H] may be enlightened so you may know what is the hope [z] of His calling, [a] what are the glorious riches of His inheritance among the saints, 19 and what is the immeasurable greatness of His power [b] to us who believe, according to the working of His vast strength.

God's Power in Christ

20 He demonstrated this power in the Messiah by raising Him from the dead and seating Him at His right hand [c] in the heavens [d] — 21 far above every ruler and authority, power and dominion, and every title given, [I, e] not only in this age but also in the one to come. [f] 22 And He put everything under His feet [g, h] and appointed Him as head [i] over everything for the church, 23 which is His body, [j] the fullness [k] of the One who fills all things [l] in every way.

From Death to Life

2 And you were dead [a] in your trespasses and sins [2] in which you previously •walked according to the ways of this world, [b] according to the ruler who exercises authority over the lower heavens, [A, c] the spirit [d] now working in the disobedient. [B 3] We too all previously lived among them in our fleshly [e] desires, carrying out the inclinations [f] of our flesh and thoughts, and we were by nature children under wrath [g] as the others were also. [4] But God, who is rich in mercy, [h] because of His great love [i] that He had for us, [C 5] made us alive [j] with the •Messiah even though we were dead [k] in trespasses. You are saved by grace! [6]
Together with Christ Jesus He also raised us up and seated us in the heavens, [l 7] so that in the coming ages [m] He might display the immeasurable riches [n] of His grace through His kindness [o] to us in Christ Jesus. [8] For you are saved by grace [p] through faith, and this is not from yourselves; it is God's gift — [9] not from works, so that no one can boast. [10] For we are His creation, created [q] in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared ahead of time [r] so that we should walk in them.

Unity in Christ

11 So then, remember that at one time you were Gentiles in the flesh — called “the uncircumcised” by those called “the circumcised,” [s] which is done in the flesh by human hands. [t] 12 At that time you were without the Messiah, excluded from the citizenship of Israel, and foreigners to the covenants of the promise, [u] without hope [v] and without God in the world. 13 But now in Christ Jesus, you who were far away have been brought near by the blood [w] of the Messiah. 14
For He is our peace, who made both groups one [x] and tore down the dividing wall of hostility. In His flesh, 15 He made of no effect the law consisting of commands and expressed in regulations, so that He might create [y] in Himself one [z] new man from the two, resulting in peace. 16 He did this so that He might reconcile both to God in one body [a] through the cross and put the hostility to death by it. D 17 When the Messiah came, He proclaimed the good news [b] of peace to you who were far away and peace to those who were near. [c] 18 For through Him we both have access [d] by one Spirit to the Father. [e] 19 So then you are no longer foreigners and strangers, but fellow citizens with the •saints , and members of God’s household, 20 built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, [f] with Christ Jesus Himself as the cornerstone. 21 The whole building, being put together [g] by Him, grows into a holy sanctuary in the Lord. [h] 22 You also are being built together [i] for God’s dwelling [j] in the Spirit.

Paul's Ministry to the Gentiles

3 For this reason, I, Paul, the prisoner [a] of Christ Jesus on behalf of you Gentiles — [2] you have heard, haven't you, about the administration of God's grace that He gave to me for you? [3] The •mystery was made known to me by revelation, [b] as I have briefly written above. [4] By reading this you are able to understand my insight about the mystery of the •Messiah . [c] [5] This was not made known to people [A] in other generations as it is now revealed to His holy apostles and prophets [d] by the Spirit: [6] The Gentiles are co-heirs, members of the same body, and partners of the promise [e] in Christ Jesus through the gospel. [7] I was made a servant of this gospel by the gift of God's grace that was given to me by the working of His power. [f]

[8] This grace was given to me — the least of all the •saints — to proclaim to the Gentiles the incalculable riches [g] of the Messiah, [9] and to shed light for all about the administration of the mystery hidden for ages in God who created [h] all things. [10] This is so God's multi-faceted wisdom [i] may now be made known through the church to the rulers and authorities in the heavens. [j] [11] This is according to His eternal purpose [k] accomplished in the Messiah, Jesus our Lord. [12] In Him we have boldness and confident access [l] through faith in Him. [B] [13] So then I ask you not to be discouraged [m] over my afflictions on your behalf, for they are your glory. [n]

Prayer for Spiritual Power [14] For this reason I kneel [o] before the Father [p] [15] from whom every family in heaven and on earth is named. [16] I pray that He may grant you, according to the riches [q] of His glory, [r] to be strengthened with power [s] in the inner man [t] through His Spirit, [17] and that the Messiah may dwell in your hearts through faith. I pray that you, being rooted and firmly established in love, [18] may be able to comprehend with all the saints what is the length and width, height and depth of God's love, [u] [19] and to know the Messiah's love that surpasses knowledge, so you may be filled with all the fullness of God.

[20] Now to Him who is able [v] to do above and beyond all that we ask or think [w] according to the power [x] that works in us — [21] to Him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus to all generations, forever and ever. •Amen . [y]

Unity and Diversity in the Body of Christ

4 Therefore I, the prisoner for the Lord, [a] urge you to •walk worthy of the calling you have received, [2] with all humility [b] and gentleness, with patience, [c] accepting [A, d] one another in love, [e 3] diligently keeping the unity [f] of the Spirit [g] with the peace [h] that binds us. [4] There is one body and one Spirit [i] — just as you were called to one hope [B, j] at your calling — [5] one Lord, [k] one faith, [l] one baptism, [6] one God [m] and Father [n] of all, who is above all and through all and in all. [o]

[7] Now grace was given to each one of us [p] according to the measure of the •Messiah 's gift. [8] For it says:

When He ascended [q] on high,
He took prisoners into captivity; [C]
He gave gifts to people. [r, s]

[9] But what does "He ascended" mean except that He [t] descended to the lower parts of the earth? [D, u 10] The One who descended is also the One who ascended far above all the heavens, [v] that He might fill [E] all things. [w 11] And He personally gave some to be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, some pastors and teachers, [12] for the training of the •saints in the work of ministry, to build up the body of Christ, [x 13] until we all reach unity in the faith and in the knowledge of God's Son, [y] growing into a mature man with a stature [z] measured by Christ's fullness. [14] Then we will no longer be little children, tossed by the waves and blown around by every wind of teaching, [a] by human cunning with cleverness in the techniques of deceit. [15] But speaking the truth in love, let us grow in every way into Him who is the head [b] — Christ. [16] From Him the whole body, fitted and knit together [c] by every supporting ligament, promotes the growth [d] of the body for building up itself in love by the proper working of each individual part.

Living the New Life

17 Therefore, I say this and testify in the Lord: You should no longer walk as the Gentiles walk, in the futility of their thoughts. 18 They are darkened in their understanding, excluded from the life of God, because of the ignorance that is in them and because of the hardness of their hearts. 19 They became callous and gave themselves over to promiscuity for the practice of every kind of impurity [e] with a desire for more and more. [F]

20 But that is not how you learned about the Messiah, 21 assuming you heard about Him and were taught by Him, because the truth [f] is in Jesus. 22 You took off [G, g] your former way of life, [h] the old self [H, i] that is corrupted by deceitful desires; 23 you are being renewed [I] in the spirit [j] of your minds; 24 you put on [J, k] the new self, the one created [l] according to God's likeness [m] in righteousness and purity of the truth.

25 Since you put away [n] lying, Speak the truth, each one to his neighbor, [o, p] because we are members of one another. 26 Be angry and do not sin. [q, r] Don't let the sun go down on your anger, 27 and don't give the Devil an opportunity. 28 The thief must no longer steal. Instead, he must do honest work with his own hands, so that he has something to share [s] with anyone in need.
29 No foul language is to come from your mouth, but only what is good for building up someone in need, [K] so that it gives grace to those who hear. 30 And don't grieve God's Holy Spirit. [t] You were sealed by Him [L] for the day of •redemption . [u] 31 All bitterness, anger and wrath, shouting and slander must be removed from you, along with all malice. 32 And be kind [v] and compassionate [w] to one another, forgiving [x] one another, just as God also forgave you [y] in Christ.

5 Therefore, be imitators of God, as dearly loved children. 2 And •walk in love, as the •Messiah also loved us and gave Himself for us, [a] a sacrificial and fragrant offering to God. 3 But sexual immorality [b] and any impurity [c] or greed [d] should not even be heard of [A] among you, as is proper for •saints . 4 Coarse and foolish talking or crude joking are not suitable, but rather giving thanks.
5 For know and recognize this: Every sexually immoral [e] or impure [f] or greedy
[g] person, who is an idolater, does not have an inheritance in the kingdom [h] of the Messiah and of God.

Light versus Darkness

6 Let no one deceive you with empty arguments, for God's wrath [i] is coming on the disobedient because of these things. [B] 7 Therefore, do not become their partners. 8 For you were once darkness, but now you are light [j] in the Lord.
Walk as children of light [k] — 9 for the fruit of the light [l] results in all goodness, righteousness, and truth [m] — 10 discerning [n] what is pleasing [o] to the Lord. 11
Don't participate in the fruitless [p] works of darkness, but instead expose them.
12 For it is shameful even to mention what is done by them in secret.
13 Everything exposed by the light is made clear, [q] 14 for what makes everything clear is light. Therefore it is said:

> Get up, sleeper, [r] and rise up from the dead, [s] > and the Messiah will shine on you. [t, u]

Consistency in the Christian Life 15 Pay careful attention, then, to how you walk — not as unwise people but as wise — 16 making the most of the time, [C, v] because the days are evil. 17 So don't be foolish, but understand [w] what the Lord's will [x] is. 18 And don't get drunk [y] with wine, [z] which leads to reckless actions, but be filled by the Spirit: [a]

> 19 speaking to one another > in psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs, > singing and making music > from your heart to the Lord, > 20 giving thanks always for everything > to God the Father > in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, > 21 submitting to one another > in the fear of Christ. [b]

Wives and Husbands

22 Wives, [c] submit [d, e] to your own husbands [f] as to the Lord, 23 for the husband is the head of the wife [g] as Christ is the head [h] of the church. He is the Savior of the body. [i] 24 Now as the church submits to Christ, so wives are to submit to their husbands in everything. 25 Husbands, love your wives, [j] just as Christ loved [k] the church and gave Himself [l] for her 26 to make her holy, cleansing [D] her with the washing of water by the word. 27 He did this to present the church to Himself in splendor, without spot or wrinkle or anything like that, but holy and blameless. [m] 28 In the same way, husbands are to love their wives as their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. 29 For no one ever hates his own flesh but provides and cares for it, just as Christ does for the church, 30 since we are members of His body. [n]

31 For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, [o]
and the two will become one flesh. [p, q]

32 This •mystery [r] is profound, but I am talking about Christ and the church. 33 To sum up, each one of you is to love his wife as himself, and the wife is to respect her husband.

Children and Parents

6 Children, obey [a] your parents as you would the Lord, [A] because this is right.
2 Honor your father and mother, which is the first commandment [B] with a promise, 3 so that it may go well with you and that you may have a long life in the land. [C, b] 4 [c] Fathers, don't stir up anger [d] in your children, but bring them up in the training [e] and instruction of the Lord.

Slaves and Masters

5 •Slaves , obey your human [D] masters [f] with fear and trembling, [g] in the sincerity [h] of your heart, as to Christ. 6 Don’t work only while being watched, in order to please men, but as slaves of Christ, do God’s will [i] from your heart. [E] 7 Serve with a good attitude, as to the Lord and not to men, [j] 8 knowing that whatever good each one does, slave or free, he will receive this back from the Lord. 9 And masters, treat your slaves the same way, without threatening [k] them, because you know that both their Master and yours is in heaven, and there is no favoritism [l] with Him. [m]

Christian Warfare

10 Finally, be strengthened by the Lord and by His vast strength. [n] 11 Put on [o] the full armor [p] of God so that you can stand against the tactics [F] of the Devil. 12 For our battle is not against flesh [q] and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, [r] against the world powers of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of evil [s] in the heavens. [t] 13 This is why you must take up the full armor [u] of God, so that you may be able to resist [v] in the evil day, and having prepared everything, to take your stand. 14 Stand, [w] therefore, with truth [x] like a belt around your waist, righteousness [y] like armor on your chest, [z] 15 and your feet sandaled with readiness for the gospel of peace. [a] 16 In every situation take the shield [b] of faith, [c] and with it you will be able to extinguish all the flaming arrows of the evil one. [d] 17 Take the helmet [e] of salvation, and the sword [f] of the Spirit, [g]

which is God's word.

18 Pray [h] at all times in the Spirit [i] with every prayer and request, and stay alert [j] in this with all perseverance and intercession for all the •saints . 19 Pray also for me, that the message may be given to me when I open my mouth to make known with boldness [k] the •mystery of the gospel. 20 For this I am an ambassador [l] in chains. Pray that I might be bold enough in Him to speak as I should.

Paul's Farewell

21 Tychicus, [m] our dearly loved brother and faithful servant [G] in the Lord, will tell you all the news about me so that you may be informed. 22 I am sending him to you for this very reason, to let you know how we are and to encourage [n] your hearts. [o]

23 Peace to the brothers, and love with faith, from God the Father [p] and the Lord Jesus Christ. 24 Grace be with all who have undying love for our Lord Jesus Christ. [q, H]

EPHESIANS

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies | Essays

Introduction

The ancient city of Ephesus, located in western Asia Minor at the mouth of the Cayster River, was an important seaport. Situated between the Maeander River to the south and the Hermus River to the north, Ephesus had excellent access to both river valleys that allowed it to flourish as a commercial center. Due to the accumulation of silt deposited by the river, the present site of the city is approximately five to six miles inland.

Paul's letter to the Ephesians is an anthem to the sovereign grace of God displayed toward sinners in Christ. It contains some of the worst news ("you were dead in your trespasses and sins") and best news ("but God . . . made us alive with the Messiah") in all of Scripture. In view of this grace, Paul calls believers to "walk worthy of the calling" we have received.

Circumstances of Writing

Author: Paul referred to himself by name as the author of the book of Ephesians in two places (1:1; 3:1). Many regard this book as the crown of all of Paul's writings. Today some scholars think the book contains a writing style, vocabulary, and even some teachings that are not typical of the apostle. If that is the case, then it would mean a disciple of Paul had surpassed him in theological insight and spiritual perception. Of such an erudite disciple the early church has no record. Furthermore, pseudonymity (a writer writing under someone else's name) probably was not practiced by early Christians. We can conclude, in line with the undisputable acceptance of Pauline authorship in the early church, that there is no reason to dispute the Pauline authorship of Ephesians.

Background: Paul penned the letter while in prison (3:1; 4:1; 6:20). Disagreement exists concerning whether Paul was imprisoned in Caesarea (Ac 24:22) around A.D. 57-59 or in Rome (Ac 28:30) in about 60-62 when he wrote this letter. Paul most likely wrote Colossians, Philemon, and Philippians during the same imprisonment. Tradition suggests that Paul wrote the letter from Rome around 60-61, which would have transpired while Paul was under house arrest in guarded rental quarters (Ac 28:30).

Relatively little is known about the recipients of the letter called Ephesians. Some important and early manuscripts do not contain the words "at Ephesus" (1:1). The letter was carried to its destination by Tychicus, who in Ephesians 6:21 and Colossians 4:7 is identified as Paul's emissary. The Ephesian and Colossian letters probably were delivered at the same time since in both letters the apostle noted that Tychicus would inform the churches concerning Paul's situation.

We can suggest the following possible scenario. While Paul was imprisoned in Rome, the need arose to respond to new religious philosophies influencing the Asia Minor area. The impetus to write the letters came to Paul from Epaphras, who informed him of the threats to Christianity in the Lycus Valley. In response, Paul wrote a letter to the church at Colossae. About the same time (either shortly before or shortly thereafter), he penned a more expansive and general letter intended for churches in Asia Minor, including Laodicea (see Col 4:16) and Ephesus.

Message and Purpose

The book hints at several purposes. The apostle taught that Jewish and Gentile believers are one in Christ. This oneness was to be demonstrated by their love one for another. Paul used the noun or verb form of love (agape) 19 times (about one-sixth of the total uses in all the Pauline letters). Ephesians begins with love (1:4-6) and ends with love (6:23-24).

Paul implicitly addressed matters raised by the mystery religions in the Lycus Valley. The letter has much to say about redemption (1:7) and the divine intention for the human race (1:3-14). Additional themes include grace (1:2), predestination (1:4-5), reconciliation, and union with Christ (2:1-21).

Central to the message of Ephesians is the re-creation of the human family according to God's original intention for it. The new creation destroys the misguided view that God accepts the Jew and rejects the Gentile. Paul says the distinction was abolished at Christ's sacrificial death. Thus no more hindrance remains to reuniting all humanity as the people of God, with Christ as the head (1:22-23). The new body, the church, has been endowed by the power of the Holy Spirit to enable them to live out their new lives (1:3--2:10) and put into practice the new standards (4:1--6:9). In sum, we can say that the overall emphasis of Ephesians is on the unity of the church in Christ, through the power of the Spirit.

Contribution to the Bible

The letter to the Ephesians was probably a circular letter, with Ephesus being the primary church addressed. Paul stayed at Ephesus, the capital city of the province of Asia, for almost three years (see Ac 20:31). The fact that it was a circular letter helps explain the absence of personal names of Ephesian believers. From its inception Paul intended for the letter to gain a wider audience than that which would be found in Ephesus alone. After the Ephesians read it, the letter would have been routed to Colossae, Laodicea, and other churches in the area. Known to be a letter of the apostle Paul, the letter was readily accepted as Scripture by the recipients.

Structure

The salutation and structure of Ephesians are quite similar to Colossians. Many topics are commonly treated in both letters. The message is strikingly similar. Of the 155 verses in Ephesians, over half contain identical expressions with those in Colossians. Colossians, however, is abrupt, argumentative, and seemingly compressed. Ephesians presents a bigger, finished picture that is meditative, instructive, and expansive.

Though Ephesians and Colossians contain many similarities, it is important to observe the distinctives of Ephesians. When the content of Ephesians that is common to Colossians is removed, there remain at least seven units of material unique to Ephesians.

1:3-14 An expanded benediction
2:1-10 A confessional statement on the new life
3:14-21 A prayer to understand the mystery of Christ
4:1-16 An extended exhortation to Christian unity
5:8-14 A section on walking in the light
5:23-32 A theological expansion on the household roles
6:10-17 A unique picture of the Christian's spiritual warfare

Study Notes

1:1 Paul, the apostle to the Gentiles, wrote the letter to the Ephesians. He may have written it at about the same time as he wrote Colossians and Philemon from prison, most likely in Rome. Paul identified himself as an apostle. An apostle was a person whom the resurrected Christ had commissioned and sent on special service, and who was gifted by the Holy Spirit for that service. Paul was carrying out his apostolic commission according to God's will. The letter may have been intended for churches throughout Asia Minor, though clearly the more prominent recipients were the saints (believers) at Ephesus. Ephesus was the most important city in western Asia Minor (present-day Turkey), positioned at an intersection of major trade routes in a significant commercial center. It had a harbor that opened into the Cayster River, which in turn emptied into the Aegean Sea. Ephesus boasted a pagan temple dedicated to the Roman goddess Diana (Ac 19:23-41). The church there apparently flourished for some time, though not without need for additional exhortation (Rv 2:1-7).

1:2 Paul's greeting, though brief, is theologically significant. Grace and peace are unmerited gifts from God. Paul used the word "grace" 12 times and the word "peace" 8 times. On "grace," see note at 2:4.

1:3-14 Following the greeting in verses 1-2 is a sequence of phrases about the marvelous spiritual blessing(s) that belong to the church in Jesus Christ. All of these blessings are assured to each believer, for they flow from God's grace, wisdom, and eternal purpose. These 12 verses form one long sentence in the Greek.

1:3 Praise the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ: This section often is called "the doxology" because it recites what God has done and is an expression to Him of worship, praise, and honor. Similar doxologies are found in 2Co 1:3 and 1Pt 1:3. In this majestic section, Paul wrote of the blessings that belong to the church through the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. God has blessed us with all of the blessings in the heavenly realms. These blessings include our union with Christ; being seated with Him in the heavenlies; and our adoption, redemption, and election. All spiritual gifts and service abilities also flow out of these spiritual blessings that God gives to every believer at the time of salvation.

1:4 He chose us in Him: The idea of divine election flows out of the important theme of spiritual union, for election is "in Christ." The doctrine of election is one of the most central and one of the most misunderstood teachings of the Bible. At its most basic level, election refers to God's plan whereby He accomplishes His will. The meaning of election is best understood as God's Sovereign initiative in bringing persons to faith in Christ, resulting in a special covenant relationship with Him. This theme serves as a foundation to the entire opening section of Ephesians, which includes the phrases: God "chose us" (v. 4); "predestined us" (v. 5); and "predestined according to the purpose" (v. 11). Paul's focus on the Christ-centered character of election is vitally important. God chose us in Christ before the foundation of the world. This indicates the centrality of the gospel in God's plan for history. We are chosen to be holy and blameless. Holiness and blamelessness are the results, not the basis, of God's election.

1:5 He predestined us: All of God's blessings are in accord with sovereign predestination, which is purposeful and grounded in love. Predestination refers to the consistent and coherent intention of God's will, an eternal decision rendering certain that which will come to pass. Adopted through Jesus Christ: Through God's purposeful love, believers are adopted into God's family. Adoption is the legal declaration that we are God's children with all of the rights, privileges, and duties belonging to believers.

1:6 The ultimate purpose of God's redemption plan is the praise of His glorious grace. Grace is God's free favor to the undeserving. Believers are given grace simply because God is gracious.

1:7 Redemption in Him means that believers have been bought with the price of Christ's blood (1Co 6:20; 1Tm 2:6; 1Pt 1:18-19) and have been redeemed from sin, Satan, and the misery of sinful self. The result of redemption is a sending away or banishment of our sin debt, resulting in complete forgiveness.

1:9 God's grace has been lavished upon believers in accordance with the mystery of His will. Paul does not mean that God's will is secret in the way that the mystery religions of Asia Minor taught. The mystery religions held that the divine expectations were fundamentally hidden from all but an enlightened few, whereas for Paul "mystery" meant the revelation of a component of God's plan so that it now can be understood by all (3:2-13). Specifically the mystery involved the fulfillment of God's plan to bring everything together in the Messiah.

1:10 Days of fulfillment: The goal of history is based on God's divine purpose concerning the crucified redeemer, Jesus the Messiah—for whom, through whom, and in whom are all things. The goal is to establish a new world order of which Jesus Christ is the acknowledged Head (v. 22). He is the head of a reunited universe. He now rules and reigns from God's right hand; one day He will establish His kingdom and bring in the new heavens and the new earth, fulfilling and finalizing God's redemptive purpose. This is what is involved in bringing together things in heaven and things on earth in Him.

1:11 Received an inheritance: Paul discusses the end result of redemption from a standpoint that stretches from eternity past to eternity future. The recipients of this inheritance are people whom God has chosen and predestined. They come to faith in Christ not by chance, coercion, or unaided choice, but by the enabling of God's Spirit. Building on OT themes, Paul envisioned those who have received this inheritance as standing in continuity with the covenant people of OT times.

1:13 Sealed with the promised Holy Spirit: The Holy Spirit was promised by the prophets and by Jesus (Jl 2:28-29; Jn 14:15-26; 16:5-16). The Spirit is described as both a seal showing ownership, and as a pledge pointing to future redemption. Though believers have not yet experienced redemption in full, God will bring about final redemption (life in His immediate presence) for all who have received the Spirit (Eph 1:14).

1:15 Since I heard about your faith: Most likely Paul wrote and sent the letters to the Ephesians, the Colossians, and Philemon at the same time. Philemon 5 indicates that Paul recently had received word about the faith of the believers in the region of Asia Minor.

1:16 Never stop giving thanks: Paul particularly was thankful for his readers' faith and love. Faith finds its focus in Christ and expresses itself in love to others. Such love is the evidence of genuine faith (Gl 5:6).

1:17 Wisdom and revelation: Paul wanted the Ephesian believers to understand what great spiritual resources were theirs in Christ. Revelation refers to the insight and the discernment the Spirit brings to the mysteries of divine truth. Paul wanted his readers to have a spirit of wisdom so that they might get to know God more completely. God has given believers wisdom (vv. 8-9), but Paul prayed for the church not only to understand but to experience these blessings.

1:18 The hope of His calling refers to the assurance of eternal life guaranteed by the possession of the Holy Spirit. The glorious riches of His inheritance: Believers will inherit all of God's blessings (vv. 3,11,14; Rm 8:32). The phrase could mean either God's inheritance or ours; that is, either the inheritance God receives or the inheritance He bestows. The OT consistently taught that God's people were His inheritance. Likewise, Paul's words reflect such an understanding pointing to what God will receive by being glorified in His saints.

1:19 The immeasurable greatness of His power: God's power alone can bring believers safely to the riches of the final glory that will be made available in heaven. The extraordinary divine power by which Christ was raised from the dead is the same power at work in and through believers.

1:20-23 Christ's resurrection was the driving force in Paul's life. In raising Jesus from the dead, God did not merely reverse the natural process of decay, but transcended it. He raised Jesus to a completely new life, giving Him a resurrection body. Not only was Jesus raised, but He was also seated at God's right hand, the place of authority from which Christ now reigns. Christ is above all, indicating that He is infinitely superior. The ascension and exaltation completed the resurrection event, providing hope for believers as Jesus Christ became the first fruit for His people.

Paul claimed the church exists and functions only by reason of its vital relationship to its Head, Christ Jesus. As the resurrected and exalted Christ, He is without need and is independent of anything. Yet as Head, He is incomplete without the body, which is the church that fills up Christ. So the body and the Head are one in the truest sense.

2:1-6 Paul's point in these verses was to draw contrasts between the human condition described in verses 1-3 and the new life pictured in verses 4-6.

Old Life (vv. 1-3) New Life (vv. 4-6)

We were Dead Now We Are Alive

We were Enslaved Now We Are Enthroned

We were Objects of Wrath Now We Are Objects of Grace

We walked Among the Now We Fellowship with Christ Disobedient

We were Under Satan's Now We Are in Union with

Dominion Christ

2:1 Dead in your trespasses and sins: "Trespasses" are lapses; "sins" are shortcomings. Apart from Christ, people are without authentic spiritual life. In this state the most vital part of the human personality is dead; thus people cannot by their own efforts or ingenuity experience fellowship with God or meet His requirements.

2:2 Walked according to the ways of this world: "This world" is associated with the realm of Satan. The way of life without Christ is in accordance with Satan's ways.

2:3 Previously lived among them in our fleshly desires: The Greek word translated "lived" is a different term from the one in verse 2 translated "previously walked," though the idea is similar. "Lived" means to turn to and fro and behave in accordance with certain principles. Apart from Christ, people are dominated by "fleshly desires," which refers to an orientation away from God toward selfish concerns. The plural suggests multiple unredeemed urges in our life apart from Christ. The unredeemed person is completely at the mercy of the tyrannical self and its lustful impulses. By nature children under wrath: The fall into sin described in Genesis 3 was not merely a moral lapse but a deliberate turning away from God in rejection of Him. Sin's entrance brought about a sinful nature in all humanity. Men and women are "by nature" hostile to God and estranged from Him. While functioning as free moral agents, sin always negatively influences human decisions and actions. People do not genuinely repent or turn to God apart from divine enablement (Eph 2:5).

2:4 But God: Over against the human rejection of God, Paul painted a picture of the new life manifested in God's gracious acceptance of sinners because of Christ. The strong contrast points to God's answer to people's dreadful situation. Rich in mercy: "Mercy" is God's compassion for the helpless that relieves their situation. While grace involves God giving believers what they do not deserve, mercy means that God does not give what is deserved.

2:5 Made us alive . . . even though we were dead is Paul's extension of his thoughts in verse 1, which are viewed in retrospect from the vantage point of redemptive history. Because of God's great love, He "made us alive" with the Messiah.

2:6 Together with Christ Jesus: God's loving mercy not only makes new life possible, but by it God has made us alive, raised us up, and seated us with Christ. God's great power has enthroned us with Christ in the heavenly places, even as Christ was exalted to God's right hand following the resurrection.

2:7-10 The work of reconciliation in these verses is described with four key terms:

(1) "kindness" God's loving tender action;

(2) "grace" God's free favor toward ill-deserving people (a favorite term of the apostle, used over 100 times in his letters);

(3) "faith" the instrument that brings us empty-handed to God (see Rm 10:12); and

(4) "saved" equated with new life, forgiveness of sins, deliverance from the plight described in verses 1-3, liberation, and resurrection

2:7 The salvation of men and women is a display of divine grace. God did all of this in Christ with a single goal in view: to display the immeasurable riches of His grace, the exhibition of His divine favor for all of history to see, including angels as well as people (1Pt 1:10-12).

2:8-9 The work of salvation is for God's glory and is not accomplished by human works. The whole process of salvation is not a human achievement, but is an act of God's goodness. The emphasis is always on Christ, the object of faith, not on the amount of faith. Salvation is by God's completely unmerited favor. In the Greek text, the grammatical construction of the entire phrase by grace through faith serves as the antecedent of the phrase, it is God's gift. We must not portray grace as God's part and faith as our part, for all of salvation is a gift from God.

The work of reconciliation is not from yourselves and not from works so that no one can boast. This prevents the slightest self-congratulation or boasting in the believer. God alone saves.

2:10 Created in Christ Jesus for good works: The work of salvation is a display of divine handiwork. Good works are the fruit of our salvation, not the cause of it. Also, good works are not incidental to God's plan; they are instead an essential part of His redemption plan for each believer. Good works are demonstrated in gratitude, character, and actions.

2:11-22 This section of Paul's letter touches on three states of being for the recipients: (1) their former corporate condition apart from Christ (vv. 11-13); (2) their corporate reconciliation in Christ (vv. 14-18); and (3) their new standing as members of God's new humanity (vv. 19-22). The theme of this entire section is reconciliation, which involves bringing fallen humanity out of alienation into a state of peace and harmony with God. Jesus, as Reconciler, heals the separation and brokenness created by sin and restores communion between God and people. Reconciliation is not a process by which people gradually become more acceptable to God but a decisive act (like a legal verdict) by which believers are delivered from estrangement to fellowship with God.

2:11-12 Gentiles in the flesh: Not only were the Gentiles morally separated from God (vv. 1-3), but they were also separated from God's covenant people.

They were without any knowledge of Christ. They had no rights in God's family and were not recipients of God's covenants. They were without hope and ultimately without God. Paul did not reproach the Gentiles for their plight; he merely recorded the sad truth of the matter.

2:13 Paul used the strong transitional phrase But now in Christ Jesus to point to the Gentiles' new relationship in Christ. The Gentile believers no longer were in their alienated state. They knew Christ, took part in God's covenant blessings, and had hope and fellowship with God. This remarkable turnaround took place "in Christ Jesus." Those who trust in Him have a present salvation and a future hope.

2:14-16 Who made both groups one: This verse emphasizes the centrality of Jesus Christ in bringing Gentiles and Jews together, not only with one another but also with God. Christ is both our peace and our Peacemaker. His reconciling death on the cross has made the two—Jews and Gentiles—into one. Gentiles do not become Jews, but the two groups become one at a deeper level than ethnicity, forming Christ's church. The new humanity is greater than the former humanity; God has torn down the dividing wall of hostility and removed the hatred forever. By "dividing wall" Paul likely had in mind the area in the Jerusalem temple that separated the court of the Gentiles from the temple. The temple was constructed on an elevated platform. Around it was the court of priests. East of this was the court of Israel. Farther east was the court of women. These three courts were all on the same elevation as the temple. From here a walled platform was five steps away. Fourteen steps away was another wall, which was the outer court of the Gentiles. There was an inscription on this wall warning Gentiles of their ensuing death if they entered the enclosure around the temple. In Christ this dividing wall was broken down, thus banishing the specific commandments that separated Jews from Gentiles because Gentiles did not observe the Jewish law. The burden of the commandments was taken away at the cross in our Lord's crucified body.

Archaeologists have found one full copy and two fragmentary copies of the inscriptions, in Latin and Greek, designed to warn Gentiles about entering the temple in Jerusalem. The inscription reads: "No foreigner is to go beyond the balustrade and the plaza of the temple zone. Whoever is caught doing so will have himself to blame for his death which will follow."

2:16 Reconcile both to God: The phrase extends the concept of "peace" and involves the idea of restoration to a unity. The goal was not merely to reconcile two groups but to reconcile them to God. The one body is the church, the new humanity, the place of peace. At the cross, everything that caused the disunion was destroyed.

2:18 Access to the Father is available to all who come to Christ. The imagery is of a court official who conducts visitors into the King's presence. Through Christ's reconciling work we have been ushered into God's presence.

2:19 Foreigners means short-term transients, nonresidents with no rights. Strangers is a similar word, pointing to resident foreigners who had settled permanently in the country of their choice but who nevertheless had only limited rights. These terms described the Gentiles' position before Christ. Fellow citizens . . . and members are terms that picture the Gentiles' new position. Now they enjoy all the privileges of God's household, where "household" describes their togetherness and inclusion. Believers are adopted into God's family and are united with the saints of every era—past, present, and future.

2:20 God's new family is not only a new nation, but also a new building with a distinctive foundation. The apostles and prophets in their unique relationship to Christ, exemplified by the authoritative teachings they communicated to the church, are the foundation. Paul proclaimed Christ Jesus as the cornerstone of the foundation. "Cornerstone" refers to a capstone that holds an entire structure together. In ancient structures it was placed at a right angle joining two walls, with the royal name inscribed on it to signify the ruler who took credit for the building's erection.

2:22 You also are being built together: The description of a building under construction is indicated by the word "grows" (v. 21). It conveys the idea of a dynamic church in the process of expansion. The major theme of union with Christ reappears in Paul's conclusion to this chapter. Paul declared that God's abode is not in the Jerusalem temple but in the church, which is accomplished by the work of the Holy Spirit who indwells the new believing community.

3:1 Paul here initiates a thought that he leaves unfinished until verse 14. The apostle celebrates his present circumstances in light of God's will and calling for his life.

3:2 The administration of God's grace refers to Paul's unique ministry, describing the implementation of a divine strategy. Paul's ministry was not of his own making, but was given to him as a commission from God (Ac 9).

3:3 Mystery points to something that once was hidden or secret and now has been revealed through means impossible by human discovery. The mystery revealed is that God determined through the person and work of Christ to incorporate the Gentiles into one body of the church as equal partners with Israel (v. 6).

3:6 Coheirs shows that believers in Christ are co-inheritors of God's Kingdom. It also characterizes the new community of believers with Christ as head. That the Gentiles would have equal footing with God's covenant people was a new aspect of God's revelation.

3:8 Least of all the saints is a combination of a superlative and a comparative in one Greek term. The unusual term may have been a playful allusion to Paul's name, thus acknowledging that in himself he was insignificant; but in Christ, God had made him a new creature.

3:10 God's intent was that through the church, his multifaceted wisdom should be made known. "Multifaceted" means manifold or multicolored like a beautiful jewel. The history of the Christian church and the unfolding drama of redemption is watched with avid interest by the rulers and authorities in the heavens, an apparent reference to angels (cp. 1Pt 1:12).

3:11-13 The church is central to God's working in history. The gospel is good news for a new society and new life. Paul described the church as a divine agent and as a divine fellowship with a divine mandate.

3:14 Paul resumed the prayer that he began in verse 1. In this prayer, he asked that believers might be blessed with inner strength, with insightful understanding, and with spiritual excellence.

3:15 This verse involves some difficult translation decisions, but Paul's intent seems to be as follows: the concept and institute of fatherhood (shared with minor variation by all cultures) stems from God's role as Father and Creator of all peoples. It is not only Jews who can "kneel before the Father" (v. 14) and expect to gain audience, but people from every race and nation.

3:16-19 Paul prayed for inner power, which is the result of God dwelling in the hearts of believers. He asked for believers to be strengthened . . . rooted, and filled via the work of the three Persons of the Trinity: Spirit, Christ, and God the Father.

3:20-21 Paul burst into a grand doxology concerning God's majestic abilities. He prayed that God's glory would be abundantly manifested in the church and in Christ. Even in the eternal state, the church will bring glory to God forever and ever.

4:1 This exhortation serves as a major transition in the letter as it moves from the church's belief statement to the church's mission statement. Paul insisted that a believer's behavior must be worthy of their divine calling.

4:3-6 Believers have the responsibility to keep unity in the body of Christ. The seven "ones" enumerated in these verses constitute the foundation on which the Trinitarian God creates a oneness in the church. Paul's plan can be seen from the vantage point of the work of the one Spirit creating one body, the one Lord Jesus Christ creating one hope, faith, and baptism, and the one God the Father bringing about one people of God.

4:6 One God and Father of all reminds believers that God's oneness defines the church's oneness.

4:7 Paul grounds variety within the Church's unity. God has granted a measure of grace to each believer as a gift from Christ.

4:8 This verse is an allusion to Ps 68:18. The essence of the Psalm is that a military victor has the right to receive gifts from the people he has conquered and who now are his subjects. Paul suggested that Christ has conquered His enemies (unredeemed sinners) and has given gifts to them, with Paul himself being the perfect example. As Victor over sin and death, Christ gives gifts to His new devoted followers, His captives.

4:9-10 Paul emphasized that the resurrected and exalted Christ now imparts all the fullness of His blessings to the church and to the universe (1:10,19-23; 3:20-21).

4:11 The description here is more about gifted people (natural gifts that can be honed and used for the kingdom) than about spiritual gifts (contrast with Paul's meaning in Rm 12; 1Co 12-14). Five groups of gifted people are listed: apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers. Apostles and prophets are foundational for the church's work (Eph 3:5; see note at 2:20). The term apostles primarily refers to people sent with a divine mission or task. They also served as spokesmen for God, bringing new revelation and understanding to the church. Prophets revealed God's will to believers for the present (forthtelling) and predicted the future (foretelling). All apostles were prophets, but not all prophets were apostles.

Evangelists were gifted to spread the gospel and plant churches. Evangelists proclaimed the good news in word and deed and instructed others in evangelism. Pastors and teachers shared similar responsibilities. Pastors provided oversight, comfort, and guidance as the church's shepherds (Ac 20:28; 1Pt 5:1-4). Teachers instructed and helped apply God's revelation to the life of the church. Teachers were concerned with passing on the church's revealed teachings (1Co 15:3-4) rather than bringing new inspirational insights like the prophets. Teachers are indispensable for building up the church and are necessary to enable believers to distinguish false doctrine from true teaching.

4:12 The purpose of the gifted people is to equip others to minister. Like many other long sentences in Ephesians, verses 11-16 form one long sentence in the Greek text. The term translated training was sometimes used to refer to mending or restoring.

4:13 Ministry is intended to move believers toward accomplishing three goals: (1) unity of faith and full knowledge of God's Son, (2) maturity, and (3) the fullness of Christ. Maturity and unity are measured in terms of the relationship of the body to the Head, Christ.

4:14 When the gifted people equip the church, the community of faith will evidence stability in precept and practice.

4:15 Speaking the truth in love can literally be translated "truthing in love." When a church is faithful to speak truth in love, it will have transparent relationships where people edify and benefit one another.

4:16 Ultimately the church will grow up into Christ in all aspects, with each part fitting together and supporting the other. Each member of the body must function properly if the body is to grow. We get our English word harmony from the Greek term translated fitted and knit together.

4:17-19 This section of the letter provides the practical outworking of verse 1. Paul's exhortations denounced the readers' former way of life. The content of the exhortation clearly parallels early Christian baptismal practices of putting off old clothes before putting on new clothes to enter the baptismal waters. The picture is similar to one in Col 3:5-11, except that the Colossians passage contrasts heavenly and earthly life. The Ephesians passage contrasts a person's former lifestyle and the new life in Christ.

4:20-21 Paul pictures the truth totally in terms of the Messiah, who is the way, the truth, and the life (Jn 14:6).

4:22-24 The apostle often described who believers already are, while also pointing to what they should strive to become. The practical paradox is that while freedom from sin's eternal penalty is already ours, freedom from the former way of life (a life of sin) comes only through our daily quest for obedience and purity. These are lifestyle commitments that every believer is called to make.

4:25-32 Paul offered five examples of what living the new life means in the context of relationship with others. All of the examples include a negative command, a positive command, and a spiritual principle on which the commands are based. At the base of all of Paul's commands is a God-centered spiritual foundation.

4:32 Paul used a play on words to illustrate his point. Believers are urged to be kind (Gk Chrestos) because of Christ (Gk Christos).

5:1 Believers are challenged to be imitators of God. Previously they had been urged to learn about Christ (4:20-21) and not to grieve the Spirit (4:30). Believers cannot imitate God in power, knowledge, or presence, but they can imitate Him in self-sacrifice and in manifesting a forgiving spirit (4:32).

5:3-5 All of God's gifts, including sexuality in the bonds of marriage, are to be subjects for thanksgiving, not of crude joking.

5:6-7 Viewed actively, God's wrath is His firm, ongoing opposition to evil; He is eternally opposed to everything that is contrary to His design and His holy nature. God's new community is to reflect the character of God's Kingdom and the character of God's wrath by presenting a witness against evil.

5:10 Discerning what is pleasing to the Lord makes duty and Christian living a delight, investing service with joy.

5:11-14 Faithful believers do more than abstain from evil; they denounce the deeds of darkness as unfruitful, shameful, and not worthwhile.

5:15-16 These words provide a solemn warning that Christians should be wise and careful in all things, including their use of time. Our use of time is not neutral; it can be evil if it is not invested for good (Ps 90).

5:17 Understand what the Lord's will is summarizes the two philosophies of life described in verses 1-17. The world's lifestyle is characterized by moral and spiritual darkness. The philosophy for godly living is characterized by moral and spiritual light, and its goal is to imitate God and His love.

5:18 Paul's imperatives contrast the differences between being under the influence of wine, which leads to reckless actions, and being under the influence of the Spirit, which results in joyful living. The commands are plural, thus the commands refer not merely to individuals, but to the corporate community of faith.

5:19-21 The Spirit's fullness is demonstrated in spiritual understanding, praise, and thanksgiving that are constant and comprehensive. The church that is filled with the Spirit will be characterized by praise and thanksgiving to God. Beyond that there will be evidence of self-control, mutual encouragement, and mutual submission, which is the opposite of rudeness, haughtiness, and self-assertion.

5:21 This verse serves as a hinge to connect what is prior with what follows. Grammatically, the participial phrase (lit "submitting yourselves") goes with verses 18-20. The content of verses 22-33, however, depends on the principle of submission in verse 21.

5:22 Wives submit directs wives to be submissive to their own (Gk idios; "one's own") husbands (cp. Col 3:18-4:1). The distinctive feature here is that the relationship between husband and wife is compared with that between Christ and the church. No verb is in the original language of verse 22. The imperative "submit" is understood from verse 21.

5:22-24 Paul addressed wives first. They were to be voluntarily submissive to their husbands. No external coercion should be involved, nor should submission imply that the wife is a lesser partner in the marital union. The submission is governed by the phrase as to the Lord. Christian wives' submission to their husbands is one aspect of their obedience to Christ. Submission is a person's yielding his or her own rights and losing self for another. Submission is patterned after Christ's example (Php 2:5-8) and reflects the essence of the gospel. Submission distinguishes the lifestyle of all Christians.

5:25 Paul turned to the duties of husbands. The society in which Paul wrote recognized the duties of wives to husbands but not necessarily of husbands to wives. As in Col 3:19, Paul exhorted husbands to love their wives, but Ephesians presents Christ's self-sacrificing love for the church as the pattern for the husband's love for his wife.

Husbands are to love their wives continually as Christ loves the church. The tense of the Greek word translated "love" indicates a love that continues. Love is more than family affection or sexual passion. Rather it is a deliberate attitude leading to action that concerns itself with another's well-being. A husband should love his wife: (1) as Christ loved the church (vv. 25-27); (2) as his own body (vv. 28-30); and (3) with a love transcending all other human relationships (vv. 31-33).

5:26-27 Cleansing her with the washing of water: Paul explains more fully the result of Christ's atonement for the church: it makes the church holy and pure. The purpose of Christ's giving himself up for the church is the church's sanctification and cleansing.

5:28 Since husbands are to love their wives as Christ loved the church, they give up their personal rights for the good of their wives. It is a solemn picture of covenant love.

5:29-30 On first sight, Paul seems to have descended from the lofty standard of Christ's love to the low standard of self-love when he says no one ever hates his own flesh, but he reminded Christian couples of their oneness, their "one-flesh" relationship. For this reason a husband's obligation to cherish his wife as he does his own body is more than a helpful guide. His sacrificial love is an expression of the sacred marital union. True love is evidenced when husbands and wives have this spiritual, emotional, and physical oneness.

5:31-32 Paul appealed to Gn 2:24, which is God's initial statement in the Scriptures regarding marriage. The marriage commitment takes precedence over every other human relationship.

5:31 One flesh means closely joined. It hallows the biblical standard of covenantal heterosexual marital relations and excludes polygamy and adultery. What is primarily a divine ordinance graciously and lovingly is designed for mutual satisfaction and delight.

5:33 Love . . . respect concludes and restates this section's theme. The husband's ultimate responsibility is to love his wife with a Christlike love.

6:1-3 Paul's initial concerns were for children to be responsible to their parents. He called for children to be obedient as taught in natural law, in the Mosaic law, and in the gospel. The word for obey is different from the term for submission. Obedience involves recognition of authority.

6:4 Parents have responsibility both to discipline and to instruct their children. Paul indicated that fathers are to take the lead in this responsibility. Parents are not to stir up anger in their children. Discipline is not to be arbitrary or something done out of anger.

6:5-9 The NT, as well as the OT, includes guidelines for slaves and slavery. These guidelines do not condone slavery, but provided ethical guidance for times and places where slavery existed. Paul's claim that slaves and masters are equal before God would have shocked his contemporaries. Where the Roman law unfairly discriminated between master and slave, heavenly law does not. Paul's words in this context provided groundwork for a new sense of brotherhood between races, and were later used to help inspire the anti-slavery movement.

6:10-13 Three times Paul called for believers to stand against the Devil's schemes, the spiritual battle that takes place against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavens.

6:14-16 The defensive armor that Paul describes in these verses includes five components. Paul called for believers to put on the "full armor" (v. 13), which points to its divine nature more than its completeness.

6:17 The offensive armor included only one weapon, a short sword used in close combat. The "sword" symbolized God's word.

6:17 Because of its design, content, and origin, Scripture (God's word) can be described as "trustworthy" (2Tm 2:11), "confirmed" (Heb 2:3; 2Pt 1:19), and "enduring forever" (1Pt 1:24-25).

6:18-20 Each piece of armor must carefully be put on with prayer, drawing upon divine resources. This prayer is Spirit-energized, Spirit-enabled, and Spirit-directed. Praying in the Spirit is an admission of a believer's ignorance and dependence on God.

6:21-24 Paul concluded with greetings that lack the personal references usually present in his letters. Such omissions are hard to explain if the letter was intended only for the church at Ephesus, the place where Paul stayed longer than anywhere else in his ministry (Ac 18:19-21; 19; 20:13-31) and presumably had numerous personal relationships. For this reason many conclude that the letter was intended to circulate more broadly, addressing not just the church at Ephesus but other churches of the region also. Most likely Tychicus carried the letter, along with the letter to the Colossian church and the personal letter to Philemon.

Focus passage Ephesians 1:5,11

Proorizo (predestine, predetermine) first appears in Greek literature in the writings of Paul, who may have coined the term. In the NT, this verb consistently refers to God's predetermined plan to culminate salvation history in the person of Jesus Christ. For this reason, God the Father is always the subject of this verb in the NT. The early church saw Jesus' sufferings as the predetermined plan of God in accordance with OT Scriptures (Ac 4:28). The whole of the Christian salvation experience has been predestined by God. Christians have received both their calling and adoption into the rights of Christian sonship because of God's loving predetermination (Rm 8:30; Eph 1:5,11). God has predetermined those whom He foreknew (see proginosko; Rm 11:2) to be ultimately conformed to the image of His Son Jesus (Rm 8:29). Finally, God predetermined before the ages His mysterious plan of salvation (1Co 2:7).

Focus passage Ephesians 2:9-10

Ergon (work) is related to the verbs energeo and ergazomai, both meaning to work or accomplish. Other related terms include katergazomai (to effect or achieve) and energeia (w orking, action, or activity). Ergon appears several hundred times in the Greek OT and is found in every NT book except Philemon. Paul used ergon in two primary ways in relation to salvation: to deny that works or human effort contribute to salvation (Rm 3:20,27-28; 4:2,6; 11:6; Gl 2:16; 3:2,5,10; 2Tm 1:9) and to affirm that those who are saved will manifest good works (1Co 15:58; 2Co 9:8; Col 1:10; 2Th 2:17; 1Tm 2:10; 6:18; 2Tm 2:21; 3:17; Ti 2:7,14). Salvation is "not from works, so that no one can boast," but God created us "in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared ahead of time so that we should walk in them" (Eph 2:9-10).

Uses in Ephesians 3
Uses in the NT 10
Focus passage Ephesians 1:7,14; 4:30

In the NT, apolutrosis may refer to present or future redemption. When referring to future redemption, the term looks to the salvation of the Christian's physical body from the distresses of this world. The Son of Man's return will usher in release from suffering and persecution (Lk 21:28). In Paul's theology, the future redemption of our physical bodies will be accompanied both by the church's full adoption into divine sonship and by the creation being set free from decay (Rm 8:18-23). Presently, the Holy Spirit is the down payment guaranteeing the future " redemption of the possession" (meaning God will fully redeem His church and/or the church will posses its full inheritance; Eph 1:14; 4:30). Christians have redemption, described as the forgiveness of sins (Eph 1:7; Col 1:14). Thus the work of God in Christ ensures both present and future redemption for His people.

hrema
Greek Pronunciation [HRAY mah]

HCSB Translation word
Uses in Ephesians 2
Uses in the NT 68
Focus passage Ephesians 6:17

Hrema most frequently appears in the narrative literature of the four Gospels and Acts (a total of 52x). In the NT, hrema (word) is used with two different senses. The term is first used with the sense of that which is said or expressed. Here the word focuses on what has been communicated. For example, Jesus speaks of men having to give account for every careless word they speak (Mt 12:36). In this sense, hrema may also refer to any one of many different types of communication. For example, hrema can refer to a prophecy or prediction (e.g., Mk 9:32), to a speech or sermon (e.g., Rm 10:18), to the gospel or a confessional statement (e.g., 1Pt 1:25), or to a commandment or order (e.g., Heb 11:3). However, hrema does not always focus on what has been communicated. It may refer simply to a thing, object, matter, or event. For example, Paul speaks of every word (i.e., matter or event) being confirmed on the testimony of two or three witnesses (2Co 13:1), and the angel Gabriel reminds Mary that nothing is impossible with God (Lk 1:37).

PERSEVERANCE OF THE SAINTS

Daniel B. Wallace

The perseverance of the saints is one of the most vital and precious truths of Scripture. Essentially, this doctrine means two things: (1) those who are genuinely saved will be saved forever, and (2) those who continue in the faith are genuinely saved.

False Security

All who will be saved forever are saved because of Christ's work on the cross and God's power to keep them saved. Known as eternal security, this truth is often stated as, "Once saved, always saved." Unfortunately, many people think that simply making a confession at some point in their lives means they are saved even if their lives bear no Christian fruit. Some even think they can live like the Devil and yet be safe because of their earlier confession. But genuine faith requires genuine repentance (Mk 4:12; Ac 2:38; 20:21).

True Security

Genuine believers continue in the faith and good works throughout their lives. One basis for this conclusion is Jesus' parable of the sower (Mt 13:3-23; Mk 4:3-20; Lk 8:4-15). Only the fourth soil type bears fruit even though the second and third types show life (belief) for a short while. The fourth soil symbolizes a genuine believer. The bearing of fruit (continuing in the faith and good works) is also the evidence of genuine belief named in John 15, where Jesus said only the branch that bears fruit is saved (vv. 5-6).

The Source of Security

Believers do not continue in the faith by their own strength. Rather, each member of the Trinity works to preserve them. In the first place our salvation completely depends on Jesus' work, not on our merit (cp. Rm 3:21-26; 4:5-8; 8:1; Eph 2:8-9). Romans 8:30 is to the point: "And those He predestined, He also called; and those He called, He also justified; and those He justified, He also glorified." So sure is our salvation that Paul speaks of our future glorification in the past tense!

Genuine Christians also continue in the faith because they are sealed with the Holy Spirit as a down payment (Eph 1:13-14) of the blessings promised by God, including eternal life. Paul had this in mind when he said: "And don't grieve God's Holy Spirit. You were sealed by Him for the day of redemption" (Eph 4:30). God the Spirit assures us of salvation at the beginning of our spiritual life and keeps us in the faith to the end of our earthly life (Jn 10:27; Rm 8:16; 1Jn 2:20,27; Jd 24).

John 10:27-29 teaches that true believers continue to hear the Lord's voice and follow Him, meaning they continue in the faith and in good works. The Lord gives "them eternal life, and they will never perish—ever! No one will snatch them out of My hand. My Father, who has given them to Me, is greater than all. No one will snatch them out of My hand." But can't a believer, of his own free will, choose to wander out of Jesus' protective hand? No. A good shepherd does not allow his sheep to go astray. As our Good Shepherd, Jesus keeps us safe from the thief (Satan) and from ourselves.

PHILIPPIANS

Greeting

1 Paul [a] and Timothy, [b] slaves of Christ Jesus:

To all the •saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, [c] including the •overseers [d] and deacons. [e]

2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Thanksgiving and Prayer 3 I give thanks to my God for every remembrance of you, [A] 4 always praying with joy for all of you in my every prayer, 5 because of your partnership in the gospel from the first day [f] until now. [g] 6 I am sure of this, that He who started a good work [h] in you [B] will carry it on to completion [i] until the day of Christ Jesus. 7 It is right [j] for me to think this way about all of you, because I have you in my heart, [C] and you are all partners with me in grace, both in my imprisonment [k] and in the defense [l] and establishment of the gospel. 8 For God is my witness, [m] how deeply I miss all of you [n] with the affection of Christ Jesus. 9 And I pray this: that your love [o] will keep on growing [p] in knowledge and every kind of discernment, [q] 10 so that you can approve the things that are superior [r] and can be pure [s] and blameless [t] in [D] the day of Christ, [u] 11 filled with the fruit [v] of righteousness [w] that comes through Jesus Christ to the glory [x] and praise of God.

Advance of the Gospel

12 Now I want you to know, brothers, that what has happened to me has actually resulted in the advance of the gospel, [y] 13 so that it has become known throughout the whole imperial guard, [E] and to everyone else, that my imprisonment is in the cause of Christ. 14 Most of the brothers in the Lord have gained confidence from my imprisonment and dare even more to speak the message [z, a] fearlessly. 15 To be sure, some preach Christ out of envy and strife, [b] but others out of good will. [c] 16 These do so out of love, [d] knowing that I am appointed for the defense of the gospel; 17 the others proclaim Christ out of rivalry, [e] not sincerely, seeking to cause me anxiety in my imprisonment. [F] 18
What does it matter? Just that in every way, whether out of false motives [f] or true, Christ is proclaimed. And in this I rejoice. Yes, and I will rejoice 19 because I know this will lead to my deliverance [G, g] through your prayers and help from the Spirit [h] of Jesus Christ. [i] 20 My eager expectation and hope [j] is that I will not be ashamed about anything, but that now as always, with all boldness, Christ will be highly honored in my body, whether by life [k] or by death. [l]

Living Is Christ

21 For me, living is Christ [m] and dying is gain. [n] 22 Now if I live on in the flesh, this means fruitful [o] work [p] for me; and I don't know which one I should choose. 23 I am pressured by both. I have the desire to depart and be with Christ [q] — which is far better [r] — 24 but to remain in the flesh is more necessary for you. 25 Since I am persuaded of this, I know that I will remain and continue with all of you for your progress and joy in the faith, [s] 26 so that, because of me, your confidence may grow [t] in Christ Jesus [u] when I come to you again.

27 Just one thing: Live your life [v] in a manner worthy of the gospel of Christ.
Then, whether I come and see you or am absent, I will hear about you that you are standing firm [w] in one [x] spirit, with one mind, [H] working side by side for the faith [y] that comes from the gospel, 28 not being frightened in any way by your opponents. [z] This is a sign of destruction for them, [a] but of your deliverance [b] — and this is from God. 29 For it has been given to you on Christ's behalf not only to believe [c] in Him, but also to suffer for Him, 30 having the same struggle that you saw I had and now hear that I have.

Christian Humility

2 If then there is any encouragement in Christ, if any consolation of love, [a] if any fellowship with the Spirit, [b] if any affection and mercy, [c] 2 fulfill my joy by thinking the same way, [d] having the same love, [e] sharing the same feelings, focusing on one [f] goal. 3 Do nothing out of rivalry [g] or conceit, [h] but in humility [i] consider others as more important [j] than yourselves. 4 Everyone should look out not only for his own interests, [k] but also for the interests of others. [l]

Christ's Humility and Exaltation

5 Make your own attitude that of Christ Jesus, 6 who, existing in the form of God, did not consider equality with God [m] as something to be used for His own advantage. [A] 7 Instead He emptied Himself [n] by assuming the form of a •slave , [o] taking on the likeness of men. [p]
And when He had come as a man in His external form, 8 He humbled Himself by becoming obedient to the point of death —
even to death on a cross. [q] 9 For this reason God highly exalted Him [r] and gave Him the name
that is above every name, 10 so that at the name of Jesus every knee will bow [s] — of those who are in heaven [t] and on earth and under the earth [u] — 11 and every tongue [v] should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, [B] to the glory [w] of God the Father.

Lights in the World

12 So then, my dear friends, [x] just as you have always obeyed, [y] not only in my presence, but now even more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. 13 For it is God who is working in you, enabling you both to desire and to work out His good purpose. 14 Do everything without grumbling [z] and arguing, [a] 15 so that you may be blameless [b] and pure, [c] children of God who are faultless [d] in a crooked [e] and perverted [f] generation, [g] among whom you shine like stars in the world. 16 Hold firmly to [C] the message [h] of life. Then I can boast [i] in the day of Christ [j] that I didn't run or labor for nothing. 17 But even if I am poured out [k] as a •drink offering [l] on the sacrifice and service of your faith, I am glad and rejoice with all of you. 18 In the same way you should also be glad and rejoice with me.

Timothy and Epaphroditus

19 Now I hope in the Lord Jesus [m] to send Timothy [n] to you soon so that I also may be encouraged when I hear news about you. 20 For I have no one else like-minded who will genuinely care about your interests; 21 all seek their own interests, [o] not those of Jesus Christ. [p] 22 But you know his proven character, because he has served with me in the gospel ministry like a son with a father.
23 Therefore, I hope to send him as soon as I see how things go with me. 24 I am convinced in the Lord that I myself will also come quickly. [q]

25 But I considered it necessary to send you Epaphroditus [r] — my brother, coworker, and fellow soldier, as well as your messenger and minister to my need [s] — 26 since he has been longing for all of you and was distressed because you heard that he was sick. 27 Indeed, he was so sick that he nearly died.
However, God had mercy on him, and not only on him but also on me, so that I would not have one grief on top of another. 28 For this reason, I am very eager to send him so that you may rejoice when you see him again and I may be less anxious. 29 Therefore, welcome him in the Lord with all joy and hold men like him in honor, 30 because he came close to death for the work [t] of Christ, risking his life to make up what was lacking in your ministry to me.

Knowing Christ

3 Finally, my brothers, rejoice [a] in the Lord. To write to you again about this is no trouble for me and is a protection for you.
2 Watch out for “dogs,” [b] watch out for evil [c] workers, watch out for those who mutilate the flesh. 3 For we are the circumcision, [d] the ones who serve by the Spirit [e] of God, boast in Christ Jesus, [f] and do not put confidence in the flesh — 4 although I once also had confidence in the flesh. If anyone else thinks he has grounds for confidence in the flesh, I have more: 5 circumcised the eighth day; [g] of the nation of Israel, [h] of the tribe of Benjamin, [i] a Hebrew born of Hebrews; regarding the law, [j] a •Pharisee ; 6 regarding zeal, [k] persecuting [l] the church; regarding the righteousness that is in the law, [m] blameless. [n] 7 But everything that was a gain to me, I have considered to be a loss because of Christ. 8 More than that, I also consider everything to be a loss in view of the surpassing value [o] of knowing Christ [p] Jesus my Lord. Because of Him I have suffered the loss of all things and consider them filth, so that I may gain Christ [q] 9 and be found in Him, not having a righteousness of my own from the law, [r] but one that is through faith in Christ [A] — the righteousness from God based on faith. [s] 10 My goal is to know Him and the power of His resurrection and the fellowship of His sufferings, [t] being conformed to His death, [u] 11 assuming that I will somehow reach the resurrection from among the dead.

Reaching Forward to God’s Goal 12 Not that I have already reached the goal or am already fully mature, but I make every effort to take hold [v] of it because I also have been taken hold of by Christ Jesus. 13 Brothers, I do not [w] consider myself to have taken hold of it. But one thing I do: Forgetting what is behind [x] and reaching forward to what is ahead, 14 I pursue as my goal the prize promised by God’s heavenly [B] call in Christ Jesus. [y] 15 Therefore, all who are mature should think this way. And if you think differently about anything, God will reveal [z] this also to you. 16 In any case, we should live up to whatever truth we have attained. 17 Join in imitating me, brothers, and observe those who live according to the example you have in us. 18 For I have often told you, and now say again with tears, that many live as enemies of the cross [a] of Christ. 19 Their end is destruction; their god is their stomach; their glory [b] is in their shame.
They are focused on earthly things, 20 but our citizenship is in heaven, from which we also eagerly wait for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ. 21 He will transform the body of our humble condition into the likeness of His glorious [c] body, [d] by the power that enables Him to subject everything to Himself.

Practical Counsel

4 So then, my brothers, you are dearly loved and longed for — my joy and crown. [a] In this manner stand firm [b] in the Lord, dear friends. [2] I urge Euodia and I urge Syntyche to agree in the Lord. [3] Yes, I also ask you, true partner, [A] to help these women who have contended for the gospel at my side, along with Clement and the rest of my coworkers whose names are in the book of life. [4] Rejoice in the Lord always. I will say it again: Rejoice! [5] Let your graciousness be known to everyone. The Lord is near. [c] [6] Don't worry about anything, but in everything, through prayer and petition with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God. [7] And the peace of God, which surpasses [d] every thought, will guard your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus. [e]

[8] Finally brothers, whatever is true, [f] whatever is honorable, [g] whatever is just, [h] whatever is pure, [i] whatever is lovely, whatever is commendable — if there is any moral excellence [j] and if there is any praise — dwell on these things. [9] Do what you have learned and received [k] and heard and seen in me, and the God of peace will be with you.

Appreciation of Support [10] I rejoiced in the Lord greatly that once again [l] you renewed your care for me. [m] You were, in fact, concerned about me but lacked the opportunity to show it. [11] I don't say this out of need, for I have learned to be content in whatever circumstances I am. [12] I know both how to have a little, and I know how to have a lot. [n] In any and all circumstances I have learned the secret of being content — whether well fed or hungry, whether in abundance or in need. [13] I am able to do all things through Him [o] who strengthens me. [p] [14]
Still, you did well by sharing with me in my hardship.

[15] And you Philippians [q] know that in the early days of the gospel, [r] when I left Macedonia, [s] no church shared with me in the matter of giving and receiving except you alone. [16] For even in Thessalonica [t] you sent gifts for my need [u] several times. [17] Not that I seek the gift, but I seek the profit [B,] [v] that is increasing to your account. [18] But I have received everything in full, [w] and I have an abundance. I am fully supplied, having received from Epaphroditus [x] what you provided — a fragrant offering, an acceptable sacrifice, pleasing [y] to God. [19] And my God [z] will supply all your needs according to His riches in glory in Christ Jesus. [20] Now to our God and Father [a] be glory forever and ever.
[b] •Amen . [c]

Final Greetings

21 Greet every •saint in Christ Jesus. Those brothers who are with me greet you. 22 All the saints greet you, but especially those from Caesar's [d] household.
[e] 23 The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. [f, g]

PHILIPPIANS

Introduction

An overview of the Roman colony of Philippi. The great Roman road, the Via Egnatia, visible in the center of the photograph, brought Paul to Philippi from the nearby port city of Neapolis. This was where Paul first preached the gospel in Europe.

Philippians is Paul's most warmly personal letter. After initial difficulties in the city of Philippi (Ac 16), a strong bond developed between Paul and the converts there. Paul wrote to thank the church for a gift it had recently sent him in prison and to inform them of his circumstances.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Paul the apostle wrote this short letter, a fact that no scholar seriously questions.

Background: The traditional date for the writing of Philippians is during Paul's first Roman imprisonment (A.D. 60-62); few have challenged this conclusion.

Paul planted the church at Philippi during his second missionary journey (A.D. 51) in response to his "Macedonian vision" (Ac 16:9-10). This was the first church in Europe (Ac 16).

The text of this letter from Paul suggests several characteristics of the church at Philippi. First, Gentiles predominated. Few Jews lived in Philippi, and, apparently, the church had few. Second, women had a significant role (Ac 16:11-15; Php 4:1-2). Third, the church was generous. Fourth, they remained deeply loyal to Paul.

Philippi, the ancient city of Krenides, had a military significance. It was the capital of Alexander the Great, who renamed it for his father Philip of Macedon, and it became the capital of the Greek Empire (332 B.C.). The Romans conquered Greece, and in the civil war after Julius Caesar's death (44 B.C.), Antony and Octavius repopulated Philippi by allowing the defeated armies (Brutus and Cassius) to settle there (800 miles from Rome). They declared the city a Roman colony. It flourished, proud of its history and entrenched in Roman political and social life. In his epistle to the Philippians, Paul alluded to military and political structures as metaphors for the church.

Paul wanted to thank the church for their financial support (4:10-20). He also addressed disunity and the threat of heresy. Disunity threatened the church, spawned by personal conflicts (4:2) and disagreements over theology (3:1-16). The heresy came from radical Jewish teachers. Paul addressed both issues personally and warmly.

The church at Philippi sent Epaphroditus to help Paul in Rome. While there he became ill (2:25-28). The church learned of Epaphroditus's illness, and Paul wished to ease their concern for him. Some people possibly blamed Epaphroditus for failing his commission, but Paul commended him and sent him home. Perhaps Epaphroditus carried this letter with him.

Message and Purpose One purpose of this letter was for Paul to explain his situation at Rome (1:12-26). Although he was concerned about the divided Christian community there, his outlook was strengthened by the knowledge that Christ was being magnified. Paul's theology of life formed the basis of his optimism. Whether he lived or died, whether he continued his service to others or went to be in Christ's presence, or whether he was appreciated or not, he wanted Christ to be glorified. Within this explanation are several messages.

Unity: Paul exhorted the church to unity (1:27-2:18). Two factors influenced him. The church at Rome was divided, and he lived with a daily reminder of the effects of disunity. Further, similar disunity threatened the Philippian church as two prominent women differed with each other. Selfishness lay at the heart of the problems at Rome and Philippi. Paul reminded the believers of the humility of Jesus. If they would allow the outlook of Christ to guide their lives, harmony would be restored. The hymn to Christ (2:5-11) dominates the epistle.

Christian unity results when individuals develop the mind of Christ. In more difficult situations, the church collectively solved problems through the involvement of its leadership (4:2-3). Harmony, joy, and peace characterize the church which functions as it should.

Freedom from legalism: Paul warned the church to beware of Jewish legalists (3:2-21). Legalistic Jewish teachers threatened to destroy the vitality of the congregation by calling it to a preoccupation with external religious matters. Paul countered the legalists with a forceful teaching about justification by faith. He chose to express his theology through his personal experience. He had lived their message and found it lacking.

Salvation: Salvation was provided by Christ, who became obedient to death (2:6-8). It was proclaimed by a host of preachers who were anxious to advance the gospel. It was promoted through varying circumstances of life—both good and bad—so that the lives of believers became powerful witnesses. Finally, salvation would transform Christians and churches into models of spiritual life.

Stewardship: Paul thanked the Philippian believers for their financial support. The church had sent money and a trusted servant, Epaphroditus, to care for Paul. Their generosity encouraged Paul at a time of personal need, and he took the opportunity to express the rewards of giving and to teach Christian living.

The church at Philippi had reached a maturity regarding material possessions. It knew how to give out of poverty. It knew the value of supporting the gospel and those who proclaim it, and it knew that God could provide for its needs as well. Paul also demonstrated his attitude toward material things. He could maintain spiritual equilibrium in the midst of fluctuating financial circumstances. Christ was his life, and Christ's provisions were all he needed. In everything, Paul's joy was that Christ was glorified in him.

Imitation: The epistle abounds with Christian models for imitation. Most obviously, the church was to imitate Jesus, but other genuine Christians also merited appreciation. Paul, Timothy, and Epaphroditus embodied the selflessness that God desires in His people.

Contribution to the Bible Paul's letter to the Philippians teaches us much about genuine Christianity. While most of its themes may be found elsewhere in Scripture, it is within this letter that we can see how those themes and messages impact life. Within the NT, Philippians contributes to our understanding of Christian commitment and what it means to be Christlike.

Structure

Philippians can be divided into four primary sections. Paul had definite concerns which he wanted to express, and he also wrote to warn about false teachers who threatened the church. Many of Paul's letters can be divided into theological and practical sections, but Philippians does not follow that pattern. Paul's theological instruction is woven throughout the fabric of a highly personal letter.

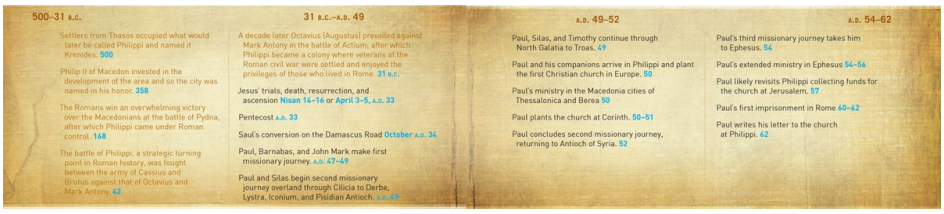
Timeline



Study Notes 1:1 a Timothy was with Paul and Silas when they planted the church at Philippi (Php 2:19-24; Ac 16). "Slave" (Gk doulos) expresses humility.

1:1 b Saints are believers. Overseers (lit "bishops") and deacons (lit "servants") indicate an emerging church structure that became full-blown in later years.

1:2 Grace and peace, jointly from God and Jesus Christ, attest to the deity and coequality of both.

1:5 Partnership (lit "fellowship") expresses participation, including giving (4:10-20) and sending Epaphroditus (2:25). From the first day shows Paul's continued joy in these believers, in spite of his initial difficulty in the city of Philippi (Ac 16).

1:9-10 Paul prayed two petitions: a growing love (v. 9) and complete character (v. 10). Love (Gk agape) is selfless action for another person. Knowledge and discernment provide the twofold environment that fosters love. "Knowledge" is both intellectual and experiential. "Discernment," unique in the Bible, is moral sensitivity. Love enriched by knowledge and moral discernment leads believers to experience what really matters. The word pure emphasizes personal integrity; blameless means good character that survives all accusations.

1:11 The phrase filled with the fruit of righteousness expresses how a person attains purity and blamelessness. Righteousness is the character of those whom God declares righteous.

1:12 Paul's attitude was that both good and bad promoted the gospel. Advancement meant to blaze a trail (e.g., for an army). Paul's difficult circumstances opened new opportunities for gospel witness.

1:13 The first opportunity (see v. 12 and note) for gospel witness involved the imperial guard, an elite military force charged with protecting the Roman emperor and his concerns. As the soldiers rotated shifts, each heard Paul's message. Paul's imprisonment was for Christ (lit "a prisoner of Christ"). The guard knew that Paul's commitment to Christ had led to his arrest and imprisonment.

1:14-17 The second opportunity for gospel witness involved the church itself. Responding to Paul's imprisonment, Christians divided into those who supported him and those who opposed him. Paul's imprisonment spawned renewed enthusiasm for preaching in both groups, but the group that opposed him preached the gospel out of envy and strife. They hoped to cause Paul greater difficulty, perhaps an unfavorable trial verdict. Their motivation was rivalry, intending to cause . . . anxiety by social turmoil. Paul does not say what drove the rivalry, but apparently they felt Christianity ought to have a different spokesperson than Paul. The group that supported Paul was motivated by good will and love. They realized Paul was appointed (lit "set") by God for defending the gospel, especially to Gentiles. Neither of these groups is identified. Both seem to have held correct doctrine and proclaimed Christ, yet their disparate treatment of Paul indicates that even "correct" believers can behave wrongly.

1:18 Paul accepted the message and work of both groups. Trusting God's sovereignty, he refused to condemn improper motivations as long as, in the end result, Christ was proclaimed.

1:19 Paul remained optimistic. Deliverance (lit "salvation") may recall Job's attitude (Jb 13:13-18). Paul expected exoneration because Christianity was not illegal throughout the Roman Empire at this time. Paul hoped for prayers, the "human" side, and help, divine assistance. "Prayers" implies intense intercession. God answers prayers with help (lit "supply"), either something the Holy Spirit provides (a resource), or the presence of the Holy Spirit (the "Comforter"). The grammar of this verse joins "prayers" and "help," indicating Paul's dependence on both working together.

1:20 Ashamed (lit “put to shame”) implies cowering, running from battle, or embarrassment. Paul expected that Christ would be highly honored in his body. The physical body symbolizes earthly life. On earth, if Christ is not glorified in the body, He is not glorified at all. Further, Paul hoped Christ would also be glorified in his death.

1:21-24 Living is Christ restates the theme of verse 20. If he carried on living, every aspect of Paul’s life would continue to reveal Christ, which would make his life fruitful and worthwhile. Likewise, his death would be gain since it would usher him into Christ’s presence. Paul felt pressured (lit “in a dilemma”), acknowledging the benefits of both outcomes. The phrase is more necessary for you expresses Paul’s servant heart. A selfish outlook would make Paul prefer glorification and reward (via death) over continued life and ministry, but his priority was that Christ be honored and glorified.

1:27-28 Live your life (lit “conduct yourselves as citizens”; cp. Ac 23:1) alludes to Philippi’s political history, reminding the church of its higher citizenship (in the kingdom of God). Paul’s primary concern, that you are standing firm in one spirit, reflected military pride. Roman armies stood ready for combat regardless of the enemy’s level of strength and preparedness or the distracting enticements of culture. The church must manifest the same readiness. “One spirit” expresses the believer’s unified attitude. One mind (lit “same soul”) means that believers share “life.” Together they prevent divisiveness like Paul witnessed at Rome (vv. 14-17). Standing firm involves working side by side. “Working” comes from athletics where teams contended for a prize (cp. 4:3). Harmony, not individualism, achieves God’s purposes. Standing also involves not being frightened . . . by your opponents. Soldiers used “frightened” to describe horses that might easily be startled.

1:29-30 Given (lit “by grace”) indicates that God “graces” Christians to believe and suffer on Christ’s behalf. Both contribute to Christ’s glory.

2:1-2 Four if statements in this verse form the basis of Paul’s appeal. These phrases express conditions that are assumed for the sake of argument. Both Paul and his readers will be inclined to believe the truth of these conditions. Fulfill my joy, not “make Paul happy,” reminded them that their steadfastness completed God’s call on his life. Four actions on the Philippians’ part explain what Paul meant. Two verbs translate the Greek word phroneo µ—thinking and focusing. Beyond mere “thinking,” this addresses values. The Philippians were to value the same way (lit “the same thing”) and the one goal (lit “a common objective”). Between these two, Paul included shared love and feelings (lit “the same “soul”).

2:3-4 These four habitual actions reveal themselves collectively through another four attributes. Rivalry or conceit recalls the problem Paul condemned (1:15,17). Humility, the antidote for wrong attitudes, results in considering others as more important. Additionally, humility considers the interests of others. Proper relationships include the contrast "not only but also." Personal responsibilities demand consideration, but the concerns of others are equally important.

2:5-11 This is one of the most difficult passages in the Bible, prompting various (Gk) kenosis (lit "emptying") theories attempting to describe what Jesus gave up in coming to earth. The text illustrates Christian humility. Because of its rhythmic character, it is often considered an early hymn, including two stanzas —verses 6-8 (on Christian humility) and verses 9-11 (on Jesus' ascension).

2:5 The phrase make your own attitude ("value"; cp. v. 2) commands the church to value Christ's character as a model.

2:6 The key thought of this verse is that Jesus did not consider (cp. v. 3) His own interests, thus allowing them to dominate His actions. Existing (lit "existing originally") should be "although existing" since it presents an apparent obstacle for Jesus to overcome in becoming human. Form (Gk morphâ) suggests His complete deity. Equality with God indicates His coequality with God and separate personality (the second person of the Trinity). To be used for His own advantage is capable of two connotations. It can mean "to grasp" (steal), but because of Jesus' deity it probably means "to clutch" (hang on to at all costs).

2:7-8 The phrase He emptied is much debated. Theologians ponder what Jesus emptied Himself of. It is certain that He did not divest Himself of deity or its attributes. Two statements accompany the verb. First, by assuming the form of a slave indicates that God the Son became a servant. "Form" (cp. v. 6) indicates true servanthood, as does the word "slave." Second, the likeness of men explains both emptying and servanthood. "Likeness" (Gk schema; "fashion") differs from "form" (vv. 6-7). Two statements explain the second verb humbled (cp. v. 3). First, when He had come as a man in His external form provides the time of His humility. "External form" (Gk scheyma) contrasts with the form of God (v. 6). Jesus was more than human, though He came to earth in the form of a man. Second, Jesus' humility came through becoming obedient. Servants or slaves obey; Jesus obeyed God, even to the point of dying on a cross.

2:9-11 God is described as acting in these verses. Again, two verbs organize the thought. First, God highly exalted Him ("super-exalted," occurring only here) suggests that God gave Jesus a new position, although some take it as superlative ("to the highest"). Second, God gave Him the name. This name that is above every name is Lord (v. 11, kurios = Yahweh). Every knee will bow and every tongue should confess state one result of God's exaltation (vv. 10-11). The posture and the confession imply submissive reverence. “Every” includes spatial dimensions: heaven . . . earth, and under the earth. Together they indicate the living and the dead (blessed and condemned). All bring glory to God. This teaches that Jesus mediates between God and humans. He is the focus of worship (Lord) and the administrator of God’s will on earth.

2:12-18 Three applications follow in this section: practical Christianity (vv. 12-13), positive steadfastness (vv. 14-16), and personal joy (vv. 17-18).

2:12-13 Obedience is directed to God, not Paul, who hoped his potential death would not dampen Christian enthusiasm. Work out means to apply salvation, not to earn it. Fear and trembling means to have proper respect in response to God’s blessing. True obedience comes from reverence, not fright. God . . . is working provides the deeper incentive: Christians are recipients of God’s initiatives of motivation and empowerment.

2:14-16 Grumbling and arguing come from selfishness and vainglory (1:15,17; cp. Dt 32:5). Blameless (complete Christian character) and pure (inoffensive living; cp. 1:10) introduce metaphors. First, believers are to be morally faultless in a world crooked and perverted by its failure to understand the word of God. Believers are straight models for distorted lives. Second, they are to shine like stars whose brilliance contrasts with the darkened world.

2:17-18 Drink offering recalls the OT sacrificial system. Paul was the substance being poured out for these believers. Sacrifice is the offering; service performed the ceremony. All of this brought Paul—and the Philippian believers—joy.

2:19-30 Paul in this section expressed his hope to visit some day, but he planned to send Timothy and Epaphroditus to the Philippians immediately.

2:19-24 On Timothy, see note at 1:1. Encouraged (lit “good souled”) means “cheered.” Like-minded (lit “equal souled”) means “soul mate or partner” in service. Paul characterized Timothy three ways: he genuinely cared for their interests (cp. vv. 1-4); he valued the things of Jesus Christ and others; and he had proven character (lit “tested by fire”), refined in the demands of the gospel ministry.

2:25-30 Epaphroditus shared Paul’s ministry (brother, coworker, and fellow soldier) and represented the church. Messenger (lit “apostle”) and minister (lit “religious servant”) indicate that the church expected Epaphroditus to care for Paul in Rome. Traveling to Rome, Epaphroditus suffered a near-fatal illness. He felt he had failed Paul and the church. The words welcome him (“appropriately”) and hold . . . him in honor reveal that Epaphroditus did not fail. He gave his best for the work of Christ. The words what was lacking refer to the churches’ care for Paul. Epaphroditus took it upon himself to make up that lack.

3:2 The Jews hated dogs. This word was often used of Gentiles, but in this context it refers to overly zealous Jewish teachers who were ravenous like scavengers. These evil workers attempted to gain salvation by keeping the law. Mutilate the flesh refers to their "circumcision." Paul used a play on the Greek words for "circumcision" and "mutilation." These "circumcisers" were actually "mutilators" who offered no spiritual benefits.

3:3 Those of the circumcision—"true Jews" or Christians—have three characteristics. First, they serve by the Spirit of God, not the works of the flesh (Gl 5:16-18). Second, they boast in Christ Jesus. "Boast" ("take pride in") means their highest treasure is Jesus. Third, they do not put confidence in the flesh. "The flesh" describes the values and activities of humanity unaided by the Holy Spirit.

3:4-6 Paul's fleshly confidence included heredity and accomplishments. On the issue of his heredity, circumcised the eighth day (lit "an eighth-day one") placed him in a special group whose parents scrupulously kept the law. A Hebrew born of Hebrews means he had impeccable credentials. This countered those who may have assumed otherwise because Paul was from Tarsus. Regarding achievement, he spoke of zeal and the law. Pharisee comes from a word meaning "separation," e.g., to honor the OT law. Zeal, evidenced by persecuting the church, was unnecessary even for Pharisees. Righteousness that is in the law means that Paul achieved all the law could promise. He had not failed by Jewish standards.

3:7-8 Paul evaluated his former life (vv. 7-8) and expressed his current aspirations (vv. 9-11). Considered occurs three times in these verses (cp. 2:5-11). The first (3:7) is a Greek perfect tense (past completed action with continuing results). The others (v. 8) are present, indicating a continuing reaffirmation of the attitude. The word loss and a synonym filth (lit "garbage" or "dung") are compared with gain three times. Paul's loss was for the sake of Christ (v. 7), for the surpassing value of knowing Christ (v. 8), and for gaining Christ (v. 8).

3:9-11 Paul described his new aspirations in three ways: gaining Christ and being found in Him, having a Christian righteousness, and attaining resurrection from the dead. Found refers to judgment day. Christ brings a righteousness through faith in Christ (imputed), not from works of the law (cp. v. 6). To know Him (personally, experientially) parallels and explains "found in him." It involves experiencing the power of His resurrection, resulting in Paul's own resurrection from death, and knowing the fellowship (lit "participation in") of His sufferings. Identification with Christ's suffering brings conformity to Jesus' death through refining obedience, and a believer attains the resurrection from among the dead.

3:12-16 These verses contain a call to follow Paul's pattern of living.

3:12-14 Paul acknowledged his imperfection. Reached the goal (lit "received") and fully mature (lit "been perfected") indicate the need for growth. Make every effort recalls the athlete's discipline and focus. Together these reveal that Paul had not yet achieved perfection. Take hold of it and have been taken hold translate the same Greek word, one active the other passive. Paul aspired to complete salvation through resurrection. Because presents the substance of Paul's hope—the perfection of the resurrection. Pursue (cp. v. 12), goal, and prize use athletic imagery of the runner's energy, focus, and reward. "The prize" is God's heavenly call (to heaven), like a referee calling a winner to the platform to receive the prize.

3:15-16 Paul exhorted the mature (lit "perfect"). The use of the same root word in verse 12 reveals that Paul addressed the false teachers who claimed perfection. Think this way is "value" (cp. 2:1-11; 3:15). Live up to means to walk in order, in rank like a soldier. Whatever truth we have attained is what brought previous success in Christian living.

3:17-21 First, Paul encouraged believers. Imitating me reveals his confidence that he lived correctly before God and man. He spoke with tears (the only record that Paul cried) because of the damage these false teachers brought to God's work. As enemies of the cross, they were inflated with their own spiritual abilities (cp. v. 3) rather than trusting Christ. Paul described them four ways. First, their end is destruction (not annihilation but eternal judgment). Second, their god is their stomach reflects their preoccupation with Jewish dietary laws. Third, their glory is in their shame means focusing inappropriately on the genitals (circumcision). Fourth, they focused on earthly things, unable to see beyond the present time.

True believers differ from these false teachers. Citizenship was rare and prized, and the Philippians were justifiably proud of their Roman citizenship. "Citizenship" in heaven reminded the church of the existence of a greater society and culture. Military images continue with the Savior from heaven. Roman citizens called the emperor "savior"; Christians expect their deliverer from heaven. The body of our humble condition refers to the body limited by earthiness, finiteness, and sin. Christ will change the body into the likeness of His glorious body. Physical bodies will become glorified bodies in the image of Christ. Salvation has three stages: conversion, moral perfection at death, and the transformation of the body through resurrection at the second coming of Christ.

4:1 Stand firm recalls Roman soldiers who never retreated for fear of being killed by their commanders.

4:2 Euodia and Syntyche were influential, like many women in the Philippian church (Ac 16). There is no evidence that they held offices. Urge occurs twice, once with each name, avoiding favoritism. Agree translates the Greek word phroneo μ, found so often in this epistle (esp. 2:1-11). This disunity may not have been a significant problem since Paul saved his exhortation for the end of the letter. It was not moral or theological.

4:3 Ask is less authoritative than "urge" (v. 2). True partner is singular. Someone in authority (the pastor) would be the mediator. "Partner" elsewhere is translated "fellowship." This is the yokefellow, one co-yoked in the work. Paul provided reasons to help these women. First, they contended with Paul (an athletic term). Second, they worked alongside Clement (unknown) and Paul's coworkers. The book of life, mentioned rarely in the NT (cp. Rv 3:5; 20:15; 21:27), refers to those listed among the saved.

4:4-9 In this section Paul approached peace from two perspectives—peace within troublesome circumstances (vv. 4-7) and constructing an environment of peace (vv. 8-9).

4:5 Graciousness implies selflessness and respect for others (cp. 2:1-4). Seldom mentioned in Paul's writings, graciousness is expected of believers and Christian leaders (cp. 1Tm 3:3; Ti 3:2). Be known indicates it is part of the church's reputation. The Lord is near reminded the Philippian believers of Christ's unseen presence.

4:6-7 Worry is anxiety (Mt 6:25-34). Prayer is the antidote for worry. Three words express different aspects of prayer: Prayer, a worshipful attitude; petition, a need; and requests, the specific concern. Thanksgiving shapes prayers with gratitude. In response, the peace of God brings power to endure. The peace surpasses knowledge, calming a troubling situation when explanations fail. Further, peace guards by keeping anxieties from hearts (choices) and minds (attitudes).

4:8-9 Seven qualities create an environment of peace. True is ethical "truthfulness." Honorable is "noble," to be respected. Just is giving people what they deserve. Pure is holy in relation to God. Lovely, mentioned only here in the NT, is attractive. Commendable, also used only here in the NT, is praiseworthy. Excellence refers to moral excellence. Praise is bringing God praise. The God of peace complements "the peace of God" (v. 7) in that life with these characteristics encourages God's presence.

4:10 Once again indicates that some time had elapsed between the Philippian believers' previous gifts to Paul (cp. 2Co 8) and their sending Epaphroditus to him in Rome (2:25-30). Since Paul had no need, they lacked the opportunity to give.

4:11 Learned (Greek perfect tense) implies a lesson resulting in better knowledge. Content (lit "self-reliant") is self-sufficiency that grows out of trust in Christ.

4:12 I know results from evaluating various circumstances. The difficult circumstances are have a little . . . hungry, and need. The contrasting good are a lot . . . well fed . . . abundance. Together these taught Paul how to be content.

4:13 All things refers to the economic fluctuations of life (v. 12). Through Him who strengthens me teaches that Christ empowers believers to live in God's will. Paradoxically, Paul was strong when he was weak; independent only when dependent. Such is the life of a disciple.

4:14 Sharing is the word for "fellowship" (1:5). Hardship is "tribulations." Real partners share difficulties.

4:15 The early days of the gospel refers to Paul's leaving Philippi to continue witnessing in Europe. Shared is, again, "fellowship" (v. 14; 1:5). Others had a one-way relationship, receiving but not giving. You alone reveals one reason why Paul loved the Philippian church. They did what others did not.

4:16 Paul entered Thessalonica after leaving Philippi, and the Philippian believers' gifts to him began immediately and continued consistently (several times).

4:17 With contentment (v. 11) and adaptability (v. 12), Paul did not seek the gift. That would abuse his converts and compromise servanthood. With a higher, spiritual motivation, Paul sought the profit that is increasing to your account. Using financial terms, Paul declared this "profit" accrued from an action. "Increasing" is the interest it would bear to the account of the Philippian believers. Giving, a physical and material act, is a spiritual transaction.

4:18 Continuing financial language, Paul had received everything in full. Any responsibility to him was paid. What Epaphroditus embodied was an abundance. Their material support was a fragrant offering and an acceptable sacrifice because it met Paul's needs and was pleasing to God (cp. Rm 12:1-2). Giving always benefits those who give more than those who receive.

4:21-22 Caesar's household indicates there were Christians in Rome related to the Roman emperor. "Household" probably indicates they were not immediate family; they were perhaps members of the civil service.

HCSB Translation gospel, good news Uses in Philippians 12
Uses in the NT 76

Focus passage Philippians 1:27

The Christian euangelion (gospel) is the universal message of God's saving grace through faith in Christ, and the message of His kingdom over which Jesus reigns. Jesus preached the good news of God's coming kingdom (Mt 4:23), and substantiated His message by miracles (Mt 9:35). This good news of the kingdom's arrival will be preached to the world (Mk 13:10) and is worthy of sacrificial labor (Mk 8:35). Paul believed the gospel was an extension of OT promises, where it lay hidden in mystery form (Rm 1:1-3; 16:25-26). Paul's gospel encompasses Jesus' entire life: His incarnation, sacrificial death, burial, resurrection, post-resurrection appearances, and ascension (Rm 1:1-6; 1Co 15:1-8; Php 2:9). It is the Spirit-empowered message (1Th 1:5) by which God calls the elect (2Th 2:13-14) and reconciles people to Himself (2Co 5:18-21). Men will one day be judged by it (Rm 2:16; 2Th 1:8).

chairo Greek Pronunciation [KIGH roh]
HCSB Translation rejoice Uses in Philippians 9
Uses in the NT 74
Focus passage Philippians 4:4

Chairo means to enjoy a state of gladness, happiness, or well-being. Scripture records numerous events that result in this joyful state: finding something formerly lost (Mt 18:13; Lk 15:5,32); the hope of reward from God (Mt 5:12 = Lk 6:23; Lk 10:20); Jesus' miracles (Lk 13:17; 19:37); His birth (Lk 1:14); His post-resurrection appearances (Jn 20:20); suffering (Ac 5:41, Col 1:24); the repentance of others (2Co 7:9); the faith of others (Col 2:5); the preaching about Christ (Php 1:18); and many other occasions. This state of rejoicing in God is commanded for Christians (Php 3:1; 4:4; 2Co 13:11; 1Th 5:16). Chairo also appears as part of a greeting expressing the wish for a person's happiness (Mt 26:49) and commonly appearing in the introduction to a letter (Ac 15:23; 23:26; Jms 1:1). In the context of miraculous encounters with the divine, chairo may mean Rejoice (Mt 28:9; Lk 1:28).

COLOSSIANS

Greeting

1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by God's will, [a] and Timothy [b] our [A] brother:

2 To the •saints in Christ at Colossae, who are faithful brothers.

Grace to you and peace from God our Father. [c]

Thanksgiving

3 We always thank God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, when we pray for you, 4 for we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of the love you have for all the saints 5 because of the hope reserved for you in heaven. You have already heard about this hope in the message of truth, [d] the gospel 6 that has come to you. It is bearing fruit [e] and growing all over the world, [f] just as it has among you since the day you heard it and recognized God's grace [g] in the truth. B, h 7 You learned this from Epaphras, [i] our dearly loved fellow •slave .
He is a faithful servant of the •Messiah [j] on your [k] behalf, 8 and he has told us about your love in the Spirit. [l]

Prayer for Spiritual Growth

9 For this reason also, since the day we heard this, we haven't stopped praying for you. We are asking [m] that you may be filled with the knowledge [n] of His will [o] in all wisdom and spiritual understanding, [C] 10 so that you may •walk worthy of the Lord, fully pleasing to Him, bearing fruit in every good work [p] and growing in the knowledge of God. [q] 11 May you be strengthened [r] with all power, [s] according to His glorious [t] might, for all endurance and patience, with joy 12 giving thanks to the Father, who has enabled you [u] to share in the saints' [D] inheritance in the light. [v] 13 He has rescued [w] us from the domain of darkness and transferred us into the kingdom [x] of the Son [y] He loves. [z] 14 We have •redemption , [a] the forgiveness of sins, in Him.

The Centrality of Christ

15 He is the image of the invisible God, [b]
the firstborn over all creation. [c, d] 16 For everything was created by Him, [e] in heaven and on earth,
the visible and the invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or authorities — all things have been created through Him and for Him. [f] 17 He is before all things, [g]
and by Him all things [h] hold together.
18 He is also the head of the body, the church;
He is the beginning, [i] the firstborn from the dead, [j] so that He might come to have first place in everything.
19 For God was pleased to have all His fullness [k] dwell in Him, [l] 20 and through Him to reconcile everything to Himself by making peace [m]
through the blood [n] of His cross [o, p] — whether things on earth or things in heaven.

21 Once you were alienated and hostile in your minds because of your evil actions. 22 But now He has reconciled you by His physical body [q] through His death, [r] to present you holy, faultless, [s] and blameless before Him [t] — 23 if indeed you remain grounded and steadfast in the faith [u] and are not shifted away from the hope [v] of the gospel that you heard. This gospel has been proclaimed in all creation [w] under heaven, [x] and I, Paul, [y] have become a servant of it.

Paul's Ministry

24 Now I rejoice in my sufferings [z] for you, and I am completing in my flesh what is lacking in Christ's afflictions for His body, [a] that is, the church. 25 I have become its servant, according to God's administration that was given to me for you, to make God's message fully known, 26 the •mystery hidden for ages and generations but now revealed to His saints. [27] God wanted to make known among the Gentiles the glorious wealth of this mystery, which is Christ [b] in you, the hope [c] of glory. [28] We proclaim Him, warning and teaching everyone with all wisdom, so that we may present everyone mature in Christ. [29] I labor for this, striving [d] with His strength that works powerfully in me. [e]

2 For I want you to know how great a struggle [a] I have for you, for those in Laodicea, [b] and for all who have not seen me in person. 2 I want their hearts to be encouraged [c] and joined together in love, so that they may have all the riches of assured understanding and have the knowledge of God's •mystery [d] — Christ. [e, f] 3 All the treasures of wisdom [g] and knowledge [h] are hidden in Him.

Christ versus the Colossian Heresy 4 I am saying this so that no one will deceive you with persuasive arguments. 5 For I may be absent in body, but I am with you in spirit, [i] rejoicing to see how well ordered you are and the strength of your faith in Christ.

6 Therefore, as you have received [j] Christ Jesus the Lord, [k] •walk in Him, 7 rooted and built up in Him [l] and established in the faith, just as you were taught, [m] overflowing with gratitude.

8 Be careful that no one takes you captive through philosophy and empty deceit based on human tradition, [n] based on the elemental forces of the world, and not based on Christ. [o] 9 For the entire fullness [p] of God's nature [A] dwells bodily [B] in Christ, 10 and you have been filled by Him, who is the head [q] over every ruler and authority. 11 You were also circumcised in Him with a circumcision not done with hands, by putting off the body of flesh, [r] in the circumcision of the •Messiah . [s, t] 12 Having been buried with Him [u] in baptism, you were also raised with Him [v] through faith in the working of God, who raised Him from the dead. [w] 13 And when you were dead in trespasses and in the uncircumcision of your flesh, He made you alive with Him and forgave us all our trespasses. 14 He erased the certificate of debt, with its obligations, that was against us and opposed to us, and has taken it out of the way by nailing it to the cross. [x] 15 He disarmed the rulers and authorities and disgraced them publicly;
He triumphed over them by Him. [C, y]

16 Therefore, don't let anyone judge [z] you in regard to food and drink [a] or in the matter of a festival or a new moon [b] or a Sabbath day. [D] 17 These are a shadow [c] of what was to come; [d] the substance is [E] the Messiah. [e] 18 Let no one disqualify you, [F, f] insisting on ascetic practices [g] and the worship of angels, claiming access to a visionary realm and inflated [h] without cause by his unspiritual [G] mind. 19 He doesn't hold on to the head, from whom the whole body, [i] nourished and held together by its ligaments and tendons, develops with growth from God.

20 If you died with the Messiah [j] to the elemental forces of this world, why do you live as if you still belonged to the world? Why do you submit to regulations:
21 “Don’t handle, don’t taste, don’t touch”? 22 All these regulations refer to what is destroyed by being used up; they are commands and doctrines of men. 23
Although these have a reputation of wisdom [k] by promoting ascetic practices, humility, and severe treatment of the body, they are not of any value in curbing self-indulgence. [H, l]

The Life of the New Man

3 So if you have been raised with the •Messiah , seek what is above, where the Messiah is, seated at the right hand of God. [a] 2 Set your minds on what is above, not on what is on the earth. [b] 3 For you have died, [c] and your life is hidden with the Messiah in God. 4 When the Messiah, who is your [d] life, is revealed, [e] then you also will be revealed with Him in glory. [f] 5 Therefore, put to death what belongs to your worldly nature: [A] sexual immorality, impurity, [g] lust, [h] evil desire, and greed, [i] which is idolatry. [j] 6
Because of these, God's wrath [k] comes on the disobedient, [l] 7 and you once •walked in these things when you were living [m] in them. 8 But now you must also put away [n] all the following: anger, [o] wrath, [p] malice, [q] slander, [r] and filthy language from your mouth. [s] 9 Do not lie [t] to one another, since you have put off [u] the old self [B,] [v] with its practices 10 and have put on [w] the new self. You are being renewed in knowledge according to the image of your [C] Creator. [x] 11
In Christ [D] there is not Greek and Jew, circumcision and uncircumcision, barbarian, Scythian, [y] •slave and free; but Christ is all and in all. [z]

The Christian Life

12 Therefore, God's chosen ones, holy and loved, [a] put on heartfelt compassion, kindness, [b] humility, [c] gentleness, [d] and patience, [e] 13 accepting one another and forgiving one another if anyone has a complaint against another.
Just as the Lord has forgiven you, so you must also forgive. [f] 14 Above all, put on love — the perfect bond of unity. 15 And let the peace of the Messiah, to which you were also called [g] in one body, control your hearts. Be thankful. 16 Let the message about the Messiah dwell richly among you, teaching and admonishing one another in all wisdom, and singing psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs, with gratitude in your hearts to God. 17 And whatever you do, in word or in deed, do everything in the name [h] of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through Him.

Christ in Your Home

18 Wives, be submissive to your husbands, as is fitting in the Lord. [i] 19 Husbands, [j] love your wives [k] and don't be bitter [l] toward them.
20 Children, [m] obey your parents in everything, for this pleases the Lord.
21 Fathers, [n] do not exasperate [o] your children, so they won't become discouraged.
22 Slaves, obey your human [p] masters in everything. Don't work only while being watched, in order to please men, but work wholeheartedly, fearing the Lord. [q]
23 Whatever you do, do it enthusiastically, [E] as something done for the Lord and not for men, [r] 24 knowing that you will receive the reward of an inheritance from the Lord. You serve the Lord Christ. 25 For the wrongdoer [s] will be paid back for whatever wrong he has done, and there is no favoritism.

4 Masters, [a] supply your •slaves with what is right and fair, since you know that you too have a Master in heaven.

Speaking to God and Others [2] Devote yourselves [b] to prayer; stay alert in it with thanksgiving. [3] At the same time, pray also for us that God may open a door [c] to us for the message, to speak the •mystery of the •Messiah , [d] for which I am in prison, [e 4] so that I may reveal it as I am required to speak. [5] Act wisely toward outsiders, making the most of the time. [f 6] Your speech should always be gracious, seasoned with salt, [g] so that you may know how you should answer
each person. [h]

Christian Greetings

7 Tychicus, [i] our dearly loved brother, faithful [j] servant, and fellow slave in the Lord, will tell you all the news about me. 8 I have sent him to you for this very purpose, so that you may know how we are [k] and so that he may encourage [l] your hearts. [m] 9 He is with Onesimus, [n] a faithful and dearly loved brother, who is one of you. They will tell you about everything here.

10 Aristarchus, my fellow prisoner, greets you, as does Mark, [o] Barnabas's [p] cousin (concerning whom you have received instructions: if he comes to you, welcome him), 11 and so does Jesus who is called Justus. These alone of the circumcision are my coworkers for the kingdom of God, and they have been a comfort to me. 12 Epaphras, [q] who is one of you, a slave of Christ Jesus, greets you. He is always contending [r] for you in his prayers, so that you can stand mature and fully assured [s] in everything God wills. [t] 13 For I testify about him that he works hard [u,] [v] for you, for those in Laodicea, [w] and for those in Hierapolis. 14 Luke, the dearly loved physician, and Demas [x] greet you. 15 Give my greetings to the brothers in Laodicea, and to Nympha and the church in her home. [y] 16 When this letter has been read among you, have it read also in the church of the Laodiceans; and see that you also read the letter from Laodicea. 17
And tell Archippus, [z] "Pay attention to the ministry you have received in the Lord, so that you can accomplish it." [a]

18 This greeting is in my own hand — Paul. Remember my imprisonment. [b]
Grace be with you. [c, d]

COLOSSIANS

Introduction

"For everything was created by Him, in heaven and on earth, the visible and the invisible . . . all things have been created through Him and for Him. He is before all things, and by Him all things hold together" (1:16-17). This shows the Milky Way against the background of a New Zealand coast.

Paul's letter to the church at Colossae is one of the prison letters (along with Ephesians, Philippians, and Philemon). Paul's desire with this letter was to correct the false teachings that were cropping up in the church. In doing so, Paul presented a clear picture of Jesus Christ as supreme Lord of the universe, head of the church, and the only One through whom forgiveness is possible.

Circumstances of Writing

Author: Colossians retains its place among the epistles of Paul, who identified himself as the author (1:1; 4:18). The church fathers unreservedly endorsed Pauline authorship (Irenaeus, Adv. Haer., 3.14.1; Tertullian, De Praescr. Haer., 7; Clement of Alexandria, Strom., 1.1; cp. Justin, Dialogue, 85.2; 138.2). A close reading of Colossians reveals a considerable number of lexical, grammatical, and theological similarities with the other Pauline writings (1:9,26; 2:11-14,16,20-21; 3:1,3,5-17). Also favoring the authenticity of Colossians as a letter of Paul is its close connection with Philemon, an epistle widely regarded as Pauline.

Background: During his ministry in Ephesus (Ac 19:10), Paul sent Epaphras to spread the gospel in the Lycus Valley. Epaphras subsequently established the church at Colossae (1:7; 4:12-13). The city's population consisted mostly of Phrygians and Greeks, but it also included a significant number of Jews. The church, likewise, was mostly composed of Gentiles (1:21,27; 2:13), but it also had Jewish members (2:11,16,18,21; 3:11). When Epaphras (Phm 23) informed Paul of certain heretical teachings that had spread there, Paul wrote the letter to the Colossians as a theological antidote.

Paul wrote Colossians during his first Roman imprisonment (4:3,10,18; cp. Ac 28:30-31; Eusebius, Hist. Eccl., 2.22.1) in the early A.D. 60s. Together with Philemon, Philippians, and Ephesians, Colossians is commonly classified as a "prison epistle." All four epistles share several personal links that warrant this conclusion (Col 1:7; 4:7-8,17; Eph 6:21-22; Phm 2,12,23).

Message and Purpose

Paul wrote to counter the "Colossian heresy" that he considered an affront to the gospel of Jesus Christ. The false teaching is identified as a "philosophy" (2:8), presumably drawn from some Hellenistic traditions as indicated by the references to "the fullness" (1:19); the "elemental forces" (Gk stoicheia; 2:8,20); "wisdom" (2:3,23); and "ascetic practices" (2:23). In addition, the false teaching contained Jewish elements such as circumcision (2:11; 3:11); "human tradition" (2:8); Sabbath observance, food regulations, festival participation (2:16); the "worship of angels" together with "access to a visionary realm" (2:18); and harsh human regulations (2:21-23). Paul addressed this syncretistic philosophy by setting forth a proper understanding of the gospel of Jesus Christ and by noting appropriate implications for Christian conduct.

The heresy is not identified, but several characteristics of the heresy are discernible. (1) An inferior view of Christ is combated in 1:15-20. This Christological passage implies that the heretics did not consider Jesus to be fully divine or perhaps did not accept Him as the sole source of redemption. (2) The Colossians were warned to beware of "philosophies" not built on Christ (2:8). (3) The heresy apparently involved the legalistic observance of "traditions," circumcision, and various dietary and festival laws (2:8,11,16,21; 3:11). (4) The worship of angels and lesser spirits was encouraged by the false teachers (2:8,18). (5) Asceticism, the deprivation or harsh treatment of one's "evil" fleshly body, was promoted (2:20-23). (6) Finally, the false teachers claimed to have special insight (perhaps special revelations) which made them (rather than the apostles or the Scriptures) the ultimate source of truth (2:18-19).

Scholars cannot agree on who these false teachers were. Some of the characteristics cited above seem to be Jewish; others sound like gnostic teachings. Some see the teachings of a Greek mystery religion here.

The theology of chapters 1 and 2 is followed by exhortations to live a Christian life in chapters 3 and 4. The commands to "put to death" (3:5) and "now you must also put away" (3:8) the things which will reap the wrath of God (3:5-11) are balanced by the command to "put on" (3:12) those things characteristic of God's chosen people (3:12-17). The changes are far from superficial, however. They stem from the Christian's new nature and submission to the rule of Christ in every area of life (3:9,10,15-17).

Rules for the household appear in 3:18-4:1. The typical first-century household is assumed; thus the passage addresses wives and husbands, fathers and children, masters and slaves. Paul made no comment about the rightness or wrongness of the social structures; he accepted them as givens. Paul's concern was that the structures as they existed should be governed by Christian principles. Submission to the Lord (3:18,20,22; 4:1), Christian love (3:19), and the prospect of divine judgment (3:24-4:1) must determine the way people treat one another regardless of their social status. It is this Christian motivation which distinguishes these house rules from those featured in Jewish and pagan sources.

Contribution to the Bible

Colossians provides one of the Bible's fullest expressions of the deity and supremacy of Christ. This is most evident in the magnificent hymn of praise (1:15-20) that sets forth Christ as the image of the invisible God, the Creator and sustainer of the universe, and the head of His body, the church. In Christ are all the "treasures of wisdom and knowledge" (2:3), because in Him "the entire fullness of God's nature dwells bodily" (2:9). The supremacy of Christ also has implication for believers' salvation (2:10,13,20; 3:1,11-12,17) and conduct (3:5-4:6). Colossians contributes to Scripture a high Christology and a presentation of its implications for the believer's conduct.

Structure

Colossians may be divided into two main parts. The first (1:3-2:23) is a polemic against false teachings. The second (3:1-4:17) is made up of exhortations to proper Christian living. This is typical of Paul's approach, presenting a theology position first, a position on which the practical exhortations are built. The introduction (1:1-2) is in the form of a Hellenistic, personal letter.

Notable in the final section are the mention of Onesimus (4:9), which links this letter with Philemon; the mention of a letter at Laodicea (4:16) that may have been Ephesians; and Paul's concluding signature which indicates that the letter was prepared by an amanuensis (secretary; see 4:18).

Timeline

Study Notes

1:1 Paul followed the customary format for epistolary greetings by introducing himself as the author and by identifying himself as an apostle belonging to Christ Jesus by God's will.

1:3-8 Paul offered a prayer of thanksgiving for the Colossian believers. In the original Greek, the prayer consists of a single sentence modifying the phrase, "we always thank God" (v. 3).

1:3 Paul's use of we probably included Timothy (v. 1) and possibly others (4:7-14). Paul expressed the frequency of his thanksgiving with the adverb always.

1:4 The reason for Paul's thanksgiving is rooted in reports he had heard about the Colossians' faith in Christ Jesus and love . . . for all the saints, which are the hallmarks of genuine Christianity.

1:5-6 The basis of the Colossian believers' faith and love is that they had a hope reserved for them in heaven. The triad of faith, love, and hope is a familiar Pauline formula (Rm 5:1-5; Gl 5:5-6; Eph 1:15; 4:2-5; 1Th 1:3; 2Th 1:3; Phm 5). This hope was the result of having heard and received the message of truth or more specifically, the gospel. Paul emphasized the power and effectiveness of the gospel by tracking its expansion, twice mentioning how the Colossians accepted the truth of the gospel.

1:7-8 Paul did not start the church at Colossae and had not yet visited there, so it was through Epaphras that he had learned of their condition. He endorsed Epaphras as a beloved fellow slave and a faithful servant (cp. 2:1; 4:12-13; Phm 23).

1:9 The opening phrase for this reason harks back to Epaphras's good report about the Colossian believers' faith in Christ. The word filled (the passive verb indicates God as causal agent) typically conveys the sense of "completeness" in Colossians (vv. 9,19,25; 2:9-10; 4:17). Paul asked that they receive full knowledge of His will. The phrase in all wisdom and spiritual understanding expresses the means through which this knowledge comes. This wisdom (v. 28; 2:3,23; 3:16; 4:5) and understanding are spiritual in nature.

1:10-12 The purpose of Paul's prayer was that the believers at Colossae might walk worthy of the Lord so that all their conduct would please Him. Christian behavior that pleases the Lord involves the performance of good deeds; continuous spiritual growth; dependence on His power resulting in endurance, patience, and joy; and expressing gratitude for all things because God enables believers to share in the saints' inheritance.

1:13-14 The reference to being rescued and transferred evokes OT imagery of God delivering His people from the grip of hostile oppressors (Ex 6:6; 14:30; Jdg 6:9; 8:34; Ps 18:19; 79:9; 86:14). Believers have been rescued from the realm of Satan's oppression (domain of darkness) by having been transferred to the realm of Christ, which is a kingdom "in the light" (v. 12). The means of this deliverance or exodus was accomplished at their redemption through the forgiveness of sins because of Christ's atoning work (vv. 15-22).

1:15-23 These verses are a poem or possibly a hymn expressing Christ's supremacy as Creator and redeemer. Paul's high Christology countered the false teaching that had infiltrated the Colossian church.

1:15 The word image refers to an exact visible representation of something or someone. Thus, Jesus the Son represented the invisible God of the OT (Jn 1:18). Jesus also represented sinless humanity (Gn 1:26-27). The title firstborn does not mean that Jesus was created (v. 16), but indicates His priority of rank as supreme over all the created order.

1:16 Christ is supreme over creation because He is the Creator. He is the one who created everything. Paul's mention of thrones . . . dominions . . . rulers, and authorities may refer to four classes of angelic beings (possibly directing human affairs). This may be a corrective against the false teaching promoting the worship of angels (2:18). Thus Paul asserted the supremacy of Christ over all creation because all things were created through Him and for Him.

1:17 All things refers to everything created (v. 16). The preposition before most likely is a temporal reference to the preexistence of Christ before creation. The phrase by Him all things hold together presents Christ as the one who sustains all creation.

1:18 Paul used the word head in both a literal and metaphorical sense (2:10,19). Literally, "head" implies authority, rule, and supreme rank. Metaphorically, it plays on the imagery of Christ's relationship to the church as head of the body (1Co 12:12-27; Eph 1:22; 4:15; 5:23). He is the head because He is the beginning and the firstborn from the dead. The parallel language to the creation (v. 15) identifies the church as part of the new creation that was inaugurated with the resurrection of Christ. His resurrection resulted in the fulfillment of God's purpose for Christ that He might come to have first place in everything.

1:19-20 God was pleased that His fullness, the entirety of God's being, would dwell in the Son. Thus Jesus was fully divine as well as fully human. God took pleasure in this because, through Christ, God would reconcile (reestablish a right relationship) all things to Himself on the cross (cp. Rm 5:11; 2Co 5:19).

1:21 Paul explained the need for reconciliation to God by appealing to the Colossian believers' spiritual condition before their salvation. Before they heard the gospel they were alienated from God. Corrupt thinking results in immoral behavior, which in turn produces more wrong thinking and further estrangement from God.

1:22 Paul contrasted the Colossian believers' former life with their current salvation. The reference to Jesus' physical body highlights His humanity, whereas verse 19 expresses His divinity. The purpose of this reconciliation is so that believers may be presented holy, faultless, and blameless before Him instead of being "hostile in mind" and practicing "evil actions" (v. 21).

1:23 The only way believers will be presented holy, faultless, and blameless is if they do not abandon their faith in Christ as presented in the gospel. Faith refers to the content of the gospel with Jesus as the object (vv. 4,23; 2:5,7,12). Paul warned the believers at Colossae about their adoption of syncretistic beliefs that perverted the true message of the gospel, subsequently abolishing their hope (v. 5).

1:24 Paul rejoiced in his sufferings (Rm 8:18; 2Co 1:5; Gl 5:24; Php 3:10) because they benefited the church. By suffering Paul was completing in his flesh what was lacking in Christ's afflictions. This enigmatic phrase cannot mean that something was lacking in Christ's atoning work (v. 20). Rather, Paul's sufferings benefited the church by promoting the spread of the gospel.

1:25 God's administration (Eph 1:10; 3:2,9) pertains to God's plan for Gentiles to receive salvation and to share in the inheritance of God's people. Paul's role was to make this message fully known (see note at v. 9).

1:26 The term mystery (cp. v. 27; 2:2; 4:3; Rm 11:25; Eph 1:9; 3:3-9) refers to something that was previously hidden in God's plan but has now been revealed. Here it relates to the inclusion of the Gentiles into the people of God.

1:27 The words glory and wealth jointly connote the wonder and blessings associated with this mystery. In you could mean "among you," or, more likely, refer to Christ's indwelling of believers (Rm 8:10; 2Co 13:5; Gl 2:20; Eph 3:17).

1:28 The words warning and teaching express the manner of their proclamation, which is further characterized as being in keeping with all wisdom. The purpose of this ongoing ministry was to present everyone mature in Christ in correspondence with Christ's purpose in reconciliation (v. 22).

1:29 Paul viewed his work along the same lines as Christ's work of purifying and maturing the church. This was not something that Paul accomplished in his own strength but in conjunction with the work of Christ operating in him.

2:1 On have not seen me in person, see note at 1:7-8.

2:2 Paul's struggle in the gospel ministry came from his purpose and desire to encourage and join their hearts together in love and in fully assured understanding (see notes at 1:9 and 1:26).

2:3 Christ is the only source required for wisdom and knowledge; the Colossians did not need to look to any other philosophy. Hidden does not mean secretive (1:26) but plays on the word treasures. Jewish writers often used this imagery to encourage seekers to dig deep when looking for truth.

2:4 For the first time in the epistle Paul directly stated his opposition to the false teaching. The words deceive and persuasive arguments imply the use of misleading or faulty reasoning, which is contrasted with the truth of the gospel (see note at 1:5-6).

2:5 Paul affirmed, I am with you in spirit (cp. 1Co 5:3-5), which may refer to the unity of the body of Christ made possible by the Holy Spirit (Eph 4:3).

2:6-7 Paul's primary concern was that believers would grow in spiritual maturity. The basis of their conduct is Christ's lordship (1:15-20) and indwelling (1:27). The command to walk in Him, as in 1:10, is followed by expressions of what this involved: (1) being rooted (denoting firmness; cp. Eph 3:17); (2) built up; (3) established in the faith (a legal term meaning "confirmed"); and (4) overflowing with gratitude (cp. 1:3,12; 3:15-17; 4:2).

2:8 Be careful is a strong warning to watch out so believers are not taken captive and enslaved to false doctrines through philosophy and empty deceit. "Human tradition" implies human origin (whether Jewish or Gentile) as opposed to the divine nature of the gospel. The elemental forces were most likely astral deities, spirits, and/or angels commonly associated with pagan worship, astrology, and magical practices.

2:9 On the fullness of Christ, see note at 1:19-20.

2:10 You have been filled denotes a completed act with ongoing results (see notes at 1:9 and 1:18).

2:11 The reference to circumcision indicates the Jewish nature of this false philosophy. Circumcision was established and mandated by God for entrance into the covenant community of His people. But the circumcision of the Messiah was spiritual and associated with "circumcision of the heart" (Dt 10:16; 30:6; Jr 4:4; Ezk 44:7; Rm 2:29). Here the reference is to the death of Christ, not the literal OT practice of circumcision.

2:12 Baptism relates to Christ's death and burial (Rm 6:3-8); it is not the NT equivalent of OT circumcision. Believer's baptism symbolizes union with Christ in death and complete separation from the former way of life. Likewise, believers are raised with Him through faith (1:23; Gl 2:20) according to God's power.

2:13 Prior to their faith in Christ, the Colossians were spiritually dead in trespasses (cp. Eph 2:1-3) and cut off from God's people because they were Gentiles (Eph 2:11-12). However, in Christ, God made them alive and forgave all their sins (Eph 2:4-8).

2:14 The certificate of debt may refer to a handwritten document or to the Mosaic law. Paul typically viewed the law's purpose as revealing the guilt of sinners (Dt 27:26; Rm 7:13; 1Co 15:56; Gl 3:10). Some Jewish writings, likewise, speak of God keeping records of people's sins as debts against them. God, however, has abolished those records through Christ's substitutionary atonement that was accomplished when He died on the cross.

2:15 The phrase disgraced them publicly relates to God humiliating these spiritual rulers in a public spectacle of shame and defeat. The word triumphed (see note at 2Co 2:14) evokes the imagery of a triumphal procession where a victorious general would lead a parade to display the booty and prisoners of war from his conquest.

2:16 Because God has completely reconciled believers to Himself, they are free from condemnation and from practicing customs required for God's covenant people in the past (Rm 8:1). Against this, the Colossian believers were apparently pressured by some in the church to observe Jewish dietary laws and holy days.

2:17 Paul used the words shadow and substance to contrast the incomplete nature of these former obligations with the fullness brought about by Christ. God instituted the dietary laws and holy days as a means to foreshadow the coming reconciliation in the Messiah. The actual contrast comes from Jewish eschatology (what was to come) rather than a Platonic dualism (material vs. immaterial). This is another way of saying that He is the fulfillment of the law (Rm 10:4; Heb 10:1).

2:18 The word disqualify comes from the athletic arena where a referee determined that an athlete had violated the rules and was barred from further competition. This threat of disqualification relates to practicing spiritual disciplines imposed by the false teachers. Ascetic practices translates the word "humility," but in the context of the false teaching it most likely refers to harsh treatment of the body (i.e., self-humiliation). The worship of angels may be understood as worship improperly rendered to angels, or as worship of God performed by angels. "Ascetic practices" and "worship of angels" are joined, suggesting that through asceticism the participants believed themselves to be partaking in angelic worship. This worship was conducted through entrance into the visionary realm. Paul, however, identified these visions as egotistical delusions of a carnal mind.

2:19 On Christ as the head, see note at 1:18 (cp. Eph 4:16). Paul's point is that these false teachers had no real authority over the Colossian church.

2:20 Since believers have died with Christ (v. 11) to the elemental forces (see note at v. 8) of this world, they are liberated from worldly rules. The word regulations means literally "obligation" (v. 14).

2:21 Paul quoted some of the purity and dietary laws imposed by the false teachers, who were judging and disqualifying believers.

2:22 These dietary regulations were merely physical and temporal because once food is consumed it is destroyed. Although the false teachers believed that their obligations promoted spirituality, Paul identified these regulations as human commands and doctrines (alluding to Is 29:13; see note at Col 2:8).

2:23 Paul conceded that these regulations had a reputation of wisdom in that they appeared to provide enlightened spiritual understanding (1:9), but in reality these practices offered no help in dealing with self-indulgence. The term for "self-indulgence" or gratification may play on the word "fullness." This false philosophy promised a fullness of wisdom through severe asceticism, but it failed to achieve its intended goal.

3:1-17 In 2:23, Paul criticized the asceticism of the false teachers by stating that such practices offered no help in curbing sinful fleshly desires. In these verses he offered positive advice on true spiritual living that effectively remedies sinful cravings of the flesh.

3:1-2 So if resumes the implications of believers' identification with Christ begun in 2:20. It signals a shift in the epistle from doctrinal instruction (chaps. 1-2) to practical application (3:1-4:6). The objects of believers' efforts and thoughts are the heavenly places where Christ dwells (Ps 110:1). These commands contrast true spiritual living with the false spirituality promoted by earthly "philosophy."

3:3 The basis for the commands (vv. 1-2) lies in believers' union with Christ. Hidden connotes that God fully completed the action in the past with permanent results.

3:4 At present Christ dwells at God's right hand in heaven and is hidden from the view of those living on earth. At some future point He will be revealed in the fullness of His glory. When this occurs, believers will also be gloriously revealed with Christ.

3:5 The command to put to death (2:20; Mt 5:29-30; Rm 8:13) refers to the practical outworking of seeking and thinking about heavenly things. Paul offered a fivefold catalog of vices explaining what he meant by what belongs to your worldly nature. These vices are listed moving from specific outward behavior to general inward inclinations and thoughts.

3:6 God's wrath indicates the severe consequences for these sins.

3:7 Once walked emphasizes the discontinuity between believers' new and former ways of life.

3:8 Put away literally means to "take off" or "remove" something and may evoke the familiar Pauline metaphor of changing clothes (Rm 13:12; Eph 4:22). All the vices listed relate to behaviors that disrupt interpersonal relationships.

3:9-10 The metaphor of changing clothes pertains to an actual observable change of behavior. The new self replaces the old but is also continuously being renewed to reflect the image of God. The reference to the new self applies to individuals but also carries corporate connotations relating to the body of Christ (1:15-20).

3:11 The old order was characterized by ethnic and social division, but the new order obliterates those distinctions in the body of Christ. The phrase Christ is all and in all refers to His supremacy (1:17) and indwelling presence in believers (1:27).

3:12 After commanding believers to "put away" worldly behaviors, Paul offered a series of positive commands to put on or to "clothe yourselves" (Rm 13:14) with behavior fitted for God's people. The adjectives chosen (Is 43:20; 65:9; Rm 8:33; 2Tm 2:10; Ti 1:1; 1Pt 1:1; 2:4,6,9), holy (Mk 1:24; Lk 4:34; Jn 6:69; 1Pt 2:9), and loved (Mt 3:17; Eph 1:6; 1Th 1:4; 2Th 2:13) were all applied to Israel, Jesus, and the church. The five virtues are just the opposite of the vices listed in verses 5 and 8.

3:13 The words accepting (cp. Rm 15:7; Eph 4:2) and forgiving (cp. Eph 4:32) express the habitual manner in which believers exhibit the stated virtues. Both verbs pertain to interpersonal relationships in the body of Christ. Just as the Lord has forgiven echoes Jesus' injunction to forgive because believers are forgiven (Mt 6:12,14-15; 18:23-35; Lk 7:42).

3:14 The imagery here suggests that the final and most important new article of clothing for God's people is love, the perfect bond of unity, that binds believers together in complete oneness (Eph 4:3).

3:15 The peace brought by Christ should control believers' hearts (Rm 8:6; 15:13; 2Co 13:11; Gl 5:22; Eph 2:14; Php 4:7; 2Th 3:16). Be thankful harks back to 1:3,12; 2:7 (cp. 3:17; 4:2).

3:16 The words teaching and admonishing express the means of how the gospel is to dwell among believers. Wisdom . . . singing, and gratitude characterize the manner of this teaching and admonishing.

3:18-4:1 Paul in this section showed how doing everything in the name of the Lord applies to every member of a household. Early Christians adopted and modified this format for describing appropriate behavior of members in a Christian household (Eph 5:21-6:9; Ti 2:2-10; 1Pt 2:18-3:7).

3:18 Paul exhorted wives to be submissive to their husbands (Eph 5:21-24). Paul always used this verb in the context of authority relationships (Rm 8:7; 10:3; 13:1,5; 1Co 14:34; 15:27-28; 16:16; Php 3:21; Ti 2:5,9; 3:1). This submission is not subservience but voluntary subordination. This disposition is based on the wife's relationship with Christ and her role within the family (as is fitting in the Lord) rather than on a false notion of inferiority (1Co 11:3,7-9; see note at Eph 5:22-24).

3:19 Coupled with his exhortation for wives, Paul admonished husbands to love your wives, with the additional warning not to become bitter toward them. "Love" refers to selfless sacrificial concern and care for the welfare of another person (Eph 5:25-33). "Bitterness" pertains to harsh treatment and could be translated as "to cause bitter feelings." Husbands must always care for their wives and never deal harshly with them (1Pt 3:7).

3:20 The word obey lacks the voluntary sense found in the command to be submissive. Children must be obedient to their parents (Ex 20:12; Dt 5:16; Eph 6:1-3); this is how they please the Lord. This obedience does not include immoral or idolatrous demands from a parent, because this is not behavior pleasing to the Lord.

3:21 Although the term Fathers could include both parents (Heb 11:23), fathers in particular are warned to not exasperate their children (Eph 6:4). "Exasperate" means to cause or provoke someone to harbor feelings of resentment. The reason for this injunction is so that children do not become discouraged or disheartened. Fathers must avoid dealing harshly with them.

3:22-25 Some interpreters believe slaves in the ancient world might have been habitually lazy since they did not profit personally from their labor. Why work hard when you gain nothing personally? Paul offered an extensive rationale for exhorting Christian slaves to obey their earthly masters in everything: (1) slaves are to work even when unsupervised, because they are ultimately serving the Lord rather than a human master; (2) their service to the Lord will be gloriously rewarded in eternity; and (3) God does not discriminate when it comes to punishing bad behavior.

4:1 Paul exhorted masters to deal justly with their slaves because they themselves are slaves of God.

4:2 Stay alert or "staying awake" refers to the mental attitude of expectancy and watchfulness.

4:3 An “open door” was a common expression for an opportunity for someone to do something (Ac 14:27; 1Co 16:9; 2Co 2:12). Paul asked believers to intercede for him so he could continue to spread the gospel. On mystery, see note at 1:26.

4:5-6 Paul’s final exhortation to the Colossians was that they would use wisdom in their interaction with unbelievers (1:9-10). The phrase making the most comes from a verb meaning “to buy up,” as if finding a bargain. Here it conveys the idea of making the most of one’s time spent with unbelievers.

4:7-8 Tychicus, a native of Asia, first joined Paul in Ac 20:4 and continued to serve alongside him (Eph 6:21; 2Tm 4:12; Ti 3:12). He may also have been the person who delivered this letter to the Colossians as well as the letter to the Laodiceans (see note at Col 4:16).

4:9 Onesimus, a native of Colossae, was a runaway slave (Phm 10). His name means “useful.”

4:10-11 Aristarchus, a native of Thessalonica, was one of Paul’s companions and his fellow prisoner (Ac 19:29; 20:4). John Mark, the Gospel writer, joined Paul and Barnabas on their first missionary journey (Ac 12:12,25). Paul and Barnabas parted ways because Paul did not want Mark along for their second journey (Ac 15:37-39). These verses provide evidence that at some point Paul became convinced again of Mark’s usefulness. Jesus called Justus was a fellow Jewish believer.

4:12-13 On Epaphras, see note at 1:7-8.

4:14 This is the only place in the NT where Luke’s profession is identified. Demas, one of Paul’s companions, later abandoned the gospel ministry because of his love for the world (2Tm 4:10).

4:15 Laodicea, 10 miles from Colossae, also had a fledgling congregation of believers. Paul specifically mentioned Nympha, who hosted the believers in her house (a common practice in the early church).

4:16 Once this letter had been read among the Colossian believers, they were to send it or a copy of it to Laodicea. Paul apparently wrote a letter to the Laodiceans that was also to be read in Colossae. The epistle to the Laodiceans was either another of Paul’s epistles (Ephesians?) or a letter that has not been preserved.

4:17 On Archippus, compare Philemon 2.

4:18 Although Paul probably used a secretary to write this epistle (Rm 16:22), he often signed his letters himself as a mark of their authenticity and his affection for the recipients (1Co 16:21; Gl 6:11; 2Th 3:17; Phm 19).

prototokos
Greek Pronunciation [proh TAH tah kahs]

HCSB Translation firstborn
Uses in Colossians 2
Uses in the NT 8
Focus passage Colossians 1:15,18

Prototokos (firstborn), derived from protos (first in time/rank) and -tikto (give birth to), appears eight times in the NT. All six occurrences in the singular refer to Jesus, and it is possible that prototokos was a title for the incarnate Christ (Heb 1:6). With the exceptions of Lk 2:7 and Heb 11:28, where prototokos clearly refers to firstborn children, the force of -tikto is lost in the NT. The term thus takes on the sense of "preeminence in rank or time." Jesus' preeminent status over His creation is seen in Col 1:15. As Creator "He is before all things" in supremacy (Col 1:17a) and is "the firstborn from the dead" (Col 1:18; Rv 1:5): the first to be resurrected and the One having authority over the resurrection of the dead. Additionally, Jesus' post-resurrection transfiguration is a preview of the glorious transfiguration of the saints in the future (Rm 8:29).

kleronomia
Greek Pronunciation [klay rah nah MEE ah]

HCSB Translation inheritance
Uses in Colossians 1
Uses in the NT 14
Focus passage Colossians 3:24

Kleronomia (inheritance) occasionally refers to promised possessions (Ac 7:5) or to the inheritance legally due an heir (Lk 12:13). More frequently, however, NT authors employ the term inheritance in a religious, spiritual sense to refer to the future, heavenly, imperishable, eternal salvation of which the saints will one day partake in the kingdom of God (Eph 1:14; Col 3:24; Heb 9:15; 1Pt 1:4). Jesus, in His Parable of the Wicked Tenants (Mt 21:38 = Mk 12:7 = Lk 20:14), loads the term with this deeper, spiritual referent, interpreting the inheritance as the kingdom of God (Mt 21:43). Paul speaks of inheritance only in this religious sense. Christians, as heirs of God through faith (Gl 3:26), have sole rights to this future inheritance (Eph 5:5). The sealing of the Holy Spirit upon believers is the Father's guarantee that He will grant His children their promised inheritance (Eph 1:13-14,18).

Paul’s Conduct

2 For you yourselves know, brothers, that our visit [a] with you was not without result. [2] On the contrary, after we had previously suffered, [b] and we were treated outrageously in Philippi, [c] as you know, we were emboldened by our God to speak the gospel of God to you in spite of great opposition. [3] For our exhortation didn't come from error or impurity [d] or an intent to deceive. [e] [4] Instead, just as we have been approved by God to be entrusted [f] with the gospel, [g] so we speak, not to please men, but rather God, [h] who examines our hearts. [i] [5] For we never used flattering speech, as you know, or had greedy [j] motives [k] — God is our witness [l] — [6] and we didn't seek glory [m] from people, either from you or from others. [7] Although we could have been a burden as Christ's apostles, [n] instead we were gentle [o] among you, as a nursing mother nurtures her own children. [8] We cared so much for you that we were pleased to share with you not only the gospel of God but also our own lives, because you had become dear to us. [9] For you remember our labor and hardship, brothers.
Working [p] night and day so that we would not burden any of you, we preached God's gospel to you. [10] You are witnesses, [q] and so is God, of how devoutly, righteously, [r] and blamelessly [s] we conducted ourselves with you believers.
[11] As you know, like a father with his own children, [t] [12] we encouraged, comforted, and implored each one of you to •walk worthy of God, [u] who calls you into His own kingdom [v] and glory. [w]

Reception and Opposition to the Message [13] This is why we constantly thank God, because when you received the message about God that you heard from us, you welcomed it not as a human message, but as it truly is, [x] the message of God, [y] which also works effectively in you believers. [14] For you, brothers, became imitators of God's churches in Christ Jesus that are in Judea, [z] since you have also suffered [a] the same things from people of your own country, [b] just as they did from the Jews [15] who killed both the Lord Jesus [c] and the prophets and persecuted us; [d] they displease God and are hostile to everyone, [16] hindering us from speaking to the Gentiles so that they may be saved. As a result, they are always completing the number of their sins, [e] and wrath has overtaken them at last. [A]

Paul's Desire to See Them [17] But as for us, brothers, after we were forced to leave you for a short time (in person, not in heart [f] ), we greatly desired and made every effort to return [g] and see you face to face. [18] So we wanted to come to you — even I, Paul, time and again — but Satan [h] hindered us. [19] For who is our hope or joy [i] or crown [j] of boasting [k] in the presence of our Lord [l] Jesus at His coming? [m] Is it not you? [n] 20 For you are our glory [o] and joy!

Anxiety in Athens

3 Therefore, when we could no longer stand it, we thought it was better to be left alone in Athens. [a] 2 And we sent Timothy, [b] our brother and God's coworker [c] in the gospel of Christ, [d] to strengthen and encourage you concerning your faith, 3 so that no one will be shaken by these persecutions. For you yourselves know that we are appointed to [A] this. 4 In fact, when we were with you, we told you previously that we were going to suffer persecution, and as you know, it happened. 5 For this reason, when I could no longer stand it, I also sent him to find out about your faith, fearing that the tempter had tempted you and that our labor might be for nothing.

Encouraged by Timothy

6 But now Timothy has come to us [e] from you and brought us good news about your faith and love and reported that you always have good memories of us, wanting to see us, as we also want to see you. [f] 7 Therefore, brothers, in all our distress and persecution, we were encouraged about you through your faith.
8 For now we live, if you stand firm [g] in the Lord. 9 How can we thank God for you in return for all the joy [h] we experience before our God because of you, 10 as we pray very earnestly night and day to see you face to face [i] and to complete what is lacking in your faith? [j]

Prayer for the Church

11 Now may our God and Father [k] Himself, and our Lord Jesus, [l] direct our way to you. 12 And may the Lord cause you to increase and overflow with love [m] for one another [n] and for everyone, just as we also do for you. 13 May He make your hearts blameless [o] in holiness [p] before our God and Father at the coming [q] of our Lord [r] Jesus with all His •saints . •Amen . [s]

The Call to Sanctification

4 Finally then, brothers, we ask and encourage you in the Lord Jesus, that as you have received from us how you must •walk and please God — as you are doing [A] — do so even more. [2] For you know what commands we gave you through the Lord Jesus.
[3] For this is God's will, [a] your •sanctification : [b] that you abstain [c] from sexual immorality, [4] so that each of you knows how to control his own body [B] in sanctification and honor, [5] not with lustful desires, [d] like the Gentiles who don't know God. [6] This means one must not transgress against and defraud [e] his brother in this matter, because the Lord is an avenger of all these offenses, [C] as we also previously told and warned you. [7] For God has not called us to impurity [f] but to sanctification. [8] Therefore, the person who rejects this does not reject man, but God, who also gives you His Holy Spirit. [g]

Loving and Working

9 About brotherly love: You don't need me to write you because you yourselves are taught by God [h] to love one another. [i] 10 In fact, you are doing this toward all the brothers in the entire region of Macedonia. [j] But we encourage you, brothers, to do so even more, 11 to seek to lead a quiet life, [k] to mind your own business, [D] and to work [l] with your own hands, as we commanded you, 12 so that you may walk properly [E, m] in the presence of outsiders [n] and not be dependent on anyone. [F, o]

The Comfort of Christ's Coming

13 We do not want you to be uninformed, brothers, concerning those who are •asleep , so that you will not grieve like the rest, who have no hope. [p] 14 Since we believe that Jesus died and rose [q] again, [r] in the same way God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep through [G] Jesus. [s] 15 For we say this to you by a revelation from the Lord: [H, t] We who are still alive at the Lord's coming [u] will certainly have no advantage over [I] those who have fallen asleep. [v] 16 For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, [J, w] with the archangel's [x] voice, and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ [y] will rise first. 17 Then [z] we who are still alive will be caught up together with them in the clouds [a] to meet the Lord in the air and so we will always be with the Lord.
18 Therefore encourage [K] one another with these words.

The Day of the Lord

5 About the times and the seasons: [a] Brothers, you do not need anything to be written to you. 2 For you yourselves know very well that the Day of the Lord [b] will come just like a thief [c] in the night. 3 When they say, “Peace and security,” then sudden destruction [d] comes on them, like labor pains come on a pregnant woman, and they will not escape. 4 But you, brothers, are not in the dark, for this day to overtake you like a thief. [e] 5 For you are all sons of light and sons of the day. We do not belong to the night or the darkness. [f] 6 So then, we must not sleep, like the rest, but we must stay awake and be serious. 7 For those who sleep, sleep at night, and those who get drunk are drunk at night. 8 But since we belong to the day, we must be serious [g] and put the armor [h] of faith and love on our chests, and put on a helmet [i] of the hope of salvation. 9 For God did not appoint us to wrath, but to obtain salvation through our Lord [j] Jesus Christ, [k] 10 who died for us, [l] so that whether we are awake or •asleep , [m] we will live together with Him. [n] 11 Therefore encourage one another and build each other up as you are already doing.

Exhortations and Blessings

12 Now we ask you, brothers, to give recognition [o] to those who labor among you and lead you in the Lord and admonish you, 13 and to regard them very highly in love because of their work. Be at peace [p] among yourselves. 14 And we exhort you, brothers: [q] warn those who are irresponsible, [A] comfort the discouraged, help the weak, be patient [r] with everyone. 15 See to it that no one repays evil for evil [s] to anyone, [t] but always pursue what is good for one another and for all. [u]

16 Rejoice [v] always!
17 Pray constantly.
18 Give thanks in everything, for this is God's will [w] for you in Christ Jesus.
19 Don't stifle the Spirit.
20 Don't despise prophecies,
21 but test all things. [x]
Hold on to what is good.
22 Stay away [y] from every kind of evil.

23 Now may the God of peace [z] Himself •sanctify you completely. And may your spirit, [a] soul, and body be kept sound and blameless for the coming [b] of our Lord [c] Jesus Christ. [d] 24 He who calls [e] you [f] is faithful, who also will do it.
25 Brothers, pray for us also. 26 Greet all the brothers with a holy kiss. 27 I charge you by the Lord that this letter be read to all the brothers. [g] 28 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

Introduction

The famed Arch of Galerius in Thessaloniki built in A.D. 305, celebrating Emperor Galerius's victory over the Persians in A.D. 297. It's located beside the Via Egnatia, one of the famous Roman roads used by Paul in his travels to spread the gospel.

Paul spent a very short time in the city of Thessalonica, but he was able to establish a church during his stay. There may have been little time for instruction of the new converts, so it is not surprising that Paul wrote a letter to address some questions.

Circumstances of Writing Author: No serious objections have been made to dispute that Paul was the author of 1 Thessalonians (1:1). The greeting also mentions Silvanus and Timothy. Sometimes Paul wrote from the team perspective, but he was the primary author (2:18; 3:2).

Background: About A.D. 50 the missionary team led by Paul and Silas left Philippi and traveled westward on the Roman road known as the Via Egnatia. They proceeded toward the strategic capital city of the Roman province of Macedonia—Thessalonica.

Thessalonica was a large port city on the Aegean Sea in modern-day Greece, with a population of about 200,000. The city was filled with pagan worshipers of idols, the full pantheon of Greek and Roman gods, and was well known for its emperor worship. Thessalonica was loyal to Caesar, and he had granted its citizens many privileges.

As was his custom, Paul found the local Jewish synagogue and started teaching there. For three Sabbaths he reasoned with the Jews from the Scriptures. He explained and demonstrated that the promised Messiah had to suffer and rise from the dead. After explaining the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus, he then stated boldly, “This Jesus I am proclaiming to you is the Messiah” (Ac 17:3). Some of the Jews were persuaded, along with some of the devout Greeks who were worshipers at the synagogue, and some of the prominent women. They joined Paul and Silas, and the church in Thessalonica was born.

There were Jews in the city who were not persuaded, and they became jealous of what Paul and Silas had done. They incited the people into an uproar and attacked Jason’s house where the missionary team had been staying. Wanting to drag Paul and Silas out before the crowd, they found only Jason and some new believers. They dragged these out before the city authorities. The rulers, not wanting more unrest, forced Jason and the rest of the brothers to make a financial payment of security to ensure that there would not be a repeat of such a disturbance. That very night the Thessalonian believers sent Paul and Silas away to Berea, where they could continue their ministry (Ac 17:1-9).

From Berea Paul went to Athens. He wanted to see the Thessalonians again. When he could endure the separation no longer, he sent Timothy to encourage the Thessalonian believers (1Th 3:2). Timothy came back with an encouraging report about the Thessalonian church (3:6). Paul wrote to them from Corinth in response to Timothy’s report. Based on the archaeological evidence of a dated inscription mentioning Gl lio, proconsul of Achaia, by name (Ac 18:12) and correlating this with Paul’s visit to Corinth when Gl lio was there, 1 Thessalonians can be reliably dated at A.D. 50 or 51. This would make 1 Thessalonians the earliest of Paul’s letters with the probable exception of the book of Galatians.

Message and Purpose Timothy reported to Paul that although the church at Thessalonica was suffering affliction, they were holding fast to the faith. And though they had some doctrinal misunderstandings, they were laboring for the Lord out of love, and patiently hoping for the return of Christ. Paul wrote to encourage the church in their faith, to remind them that sanctification was God’s will for them, and to correct misunderstandings about end-time events. First Thessalonians presents four major themes.

Paul’s conduct of his ministry: Paul’s ministry centered on two aspects—the impartation of the word of God and the sharing of his life (2:8). The gospel did not come in word only, but in power and deed as well. Paul’s motives were to please God (2:4; 4:1) and to express his concern for the Thessalonians' welfare (2:8). His message didn't come in error, uncleanness, and deceit but in purity and truth (2:3,10). Also, Paul didn't use his ministry as a cloak for covetousness (2:5). This was demonstrated by his working to provide for his material needs (2:9).

Persecution: The Thessalonian church was founded in the midst of persecution. Paul had to leave the city for that reason, and the church continued after he left (1:6; 2:14-15). Paul encouraged the believers there not to be shaken by these afflictions because Christians are certain to suffer (3:3-4).

Sanctification: Salvation isn't finished once a person believes in Christ and receives forgiveness of sins. Paul's prayer for the believers at Thessalonica in 3:13 was that God would establish their hearts blameless in holiness before God. He pointed out that God's will for them was to abstain from sexual immorality and to love one another (4:1-12). Paul used his example of work to encourage them in their own work so they would not be unnecessarily dependent on anyone (4:10-12; 5:14).

The second coming of Christ: Jesus' return is mentioned in every chapter of 1 Thessalonians. Specific attitudes, events, and encouragements about the "Day of the Lord" are given with the assurance that Christians are not appointed to God's wrath (5:9).

Contribution to the Bible First Thessalonians contributes to our understanding of the second coming of Christ. Paul wrote to correct some misunderstandings of this doctrine, and in the process he showed us that Christ's return gives us true hope. First Thessalonians and 1 Corinthians (chap. 15) are the only books that explicitly mention that Christians who are alive at Christ's return will be changed and will meet Christ in the air without dying.

Structure First Thessalonians follows the standard form for a first-century letter: greeting (1:1), thanksgiving (1:2-4), body (1:5-5:22), and farewell (5:23-28). The body of the letter does not follow Paul's typical structure of presenting doctrine first, followed by practical exhortation based on that doctrine. Instead, 1 Thessalonians moves back and forth between the doctrinal and the practical.

Outline I. Greeting (1:1) II. Commendation for the Thessalonians (1:2-10) A. Their work in the gospel (1:2-4) B. Their reception of the gospel (1:5-10) III. Conduct in Ministry (2:1-16) A. The missionaries' visit and example (2:1-12) B. Mixed responses to God's message (2:13-16) IV. The rapture of the saints (4:13-18) B. The Day of the Lord (5:1-11) VII. Concluding Exhortations and Blessings (5:12-28) Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Paul used the Latin version Silvanus (2Co 1:19; 2Th 1:1) for the person whom Luke referred to using the Greek name Silas (Ac 15:22). Silas was chosen by Paul to accompany him on his second missionary journey, replacing Barnabas (Ac 15:40). Silas participated in the work of planting the Thessalonian church (Ac 17:4) and was with Paul in Corinth at the time of the writing of this letter. Paul may have encountered Timothy at Lystra on his first missionary journey (Ac 14:8-18). On the second visit Timothy is described as a disciple who was ready to assist Paul in the missionary efforts after he was circumcised (Ac 16:1-3). Timothy is not explicitly mentioned as participating in the founding of the Thessalonian church (Ac 17:1-9), but Paul sent him from Athens to assist the newly formed and persecuted church when Paul realized he could not return to the Thessalonians (1Th 3:1-2). Timothy's encouraging report on the state of the Thessalonian church prompted Paul to write this epistle (3:6). The reference to church (Gk ekklesia) in NT times could refer generically to any gathering or assembly, but Paul specified it here as the local assembly at Thessalonica in God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

1:2 In his epistles Paul normally thanked God for those people to whom he was sending the letter and mentioned that they were in his prayers or offered a prayer for them. The only exception to this is Galatians, where he issued a strong rebuke.

1:3 Paul commended the Thessalonians for their work of faith, labor of love, and endurance of hope. He later singled out these three virtues as having special prominence for the Christian community (1Co 13:13). Their work and labor were evident in that the gospel had gone throughout not only their province of Macedonia but into the neighboring province of Achaia (vv. 7-8). Endurance would have been especially needed in the midst of persecution.

1:4 While the Thessalonians were commended for their work, Paul reminded them that God was the One who had brought about their election and that they were loved by Him. Election (Gk eklogon) carries the idea of God's choice or selection.

1:5-6 The gospel is more than a message of words. It is a message that comes in power and in the Holy Spirit. The basic meaning of gospel (Gk euangelion) is "good news." Paul often further specified that it was not just any good news but the good news that came from God (2:2,8,13). Even though the church at Thessalonica was founded in the midst of severe persecution, the message was warmly received with joy that came from the Holy Spirit. That God was working there was also evident since Paul and Silas were able to stay only for a short time before they were forced to leave and yet the church started and flourished anyway (Ac 17:1-9). What kind of men we were among you is further explained in 2:1-12.

1:7-9 The Thessalonians' faith and gospel message spread throughout Macedonia and Achaia. These two Roman provinces—Macedonia in the north and Achaia in the south—make up a large part of modern-day Greece. In NT times, these provinces included major cities such as Philippi, Athens, and Corinth. Thessalonica was the capital of Macedonia. It appears that Paul's missionary strategy worked. He evangelized the major cities with the expectation that the gospel would spread from there into the surrounding areas. The Thessalonians' predominantly Gentile background is evident from the false worship of lifeless idols, from which they turned to serve the living and true God.

1:10 While the Thessalonians were enduring persecution, they were also waiting for the coming Son from heaven—Jesus, who rescues us from the coming wrath. The "coming wrath" was not a persecution that Paul and the Thessalonians were experiencing or would experience from the unbelieving world, but a future time of God's wrath against the unbelieving world. Christians will be rescued from this (5:9). Paul introduced the fact of Jesus' resurrection here and later expressed the hope of the resurrection for Christians who had died (4:16).

2:1 Brothers (Gk adelphoi; vv. 9,14,17; 3:7; 4:1,10; 5:1,4,12,26) literally means "from the same womb." In this context it is an inclusive term referring to both men and women of the Christian faith. Christians have a new spiritual family relationship based on their common faith (Mt 12:46-50).

2:2 At Philippi Paul and Silas were beaten and imprisoned for casting a demon out of a slave girl. As Paul stated at that time, it was illegal to punish Roman citizens like this without a trial (Ac 16:16-40). Paul's statement also indicates that along with Paul, Silas was a Roman citizen. In spite of great opposition, which continued into Thessalonica, the gospel of God was faithfully proclaimed.

2:3 Paul's motives for ministry were to proclaim truth and to please God.

2:8 Paul's method of ministry was not only the impartation of the gospel but the sharing of his own life as well.

2:9 Paul preached God's gospel to the Thessalonians, not taking any financial support but working not to burden them. It was clear that Paul was not in the ministry for the money, and this helped testify to the truth of his message. Paul was a tentmaker by trade (Ac 18:3).

2:14 Though the Thessalonian church was founded in the midst of persecution, Paul pointed out that their sufferings were not unique. Starting with the crucifixion of Jesus and continuing into the churches of Judea, persecution was ever present in the early church. Persecution was usually initiated by hostile Jews trying to use the Roman authorities to help them. It was not until the later reign of Nero, following the great fire that burned Rome (A.D. 64), that the first major empire-wide persecution of Christians began as an official Roman policy.

2:15 They refers to the Jews of verse 14. This is the only place in Paul's writings where he identified those who were responsible for Jesus' death. Prophets appears to be a reference to the OT prophets who also suffered persecution at the hands of their countrymen (Ac 7:52). The pattern is clear—rejection of the message first, then persecution of the messenger.

2:16 Some Jews objected to offering the message of the gospel to Gentiles (Ac 13:46-50; 14:2; 17:5,13). Completing the number of their sins is literally "to fill up their sins." This phrase implies that God will tolerate only a certain number of sins before His judgment falls.

2:17-18 The intensity of Paul's desire to see the Thessalonians again is evident by these emphatic descriptions: greatly desired . . . made every effort . . . even I, Paul . . . time and again. The phrase Satan hindered us probably refers to the persecution Paul was experiencing or possibly an illness (2Co 12:7). Perhaps the security bond that Jason gave to the city officials to calm things down after persecution broke out in Thessalonica ensured that Paul himself would not return. In any case the Thessalonian believers had to send Paul and Silas quickly away at night (Ac 17:8-10). The name Satan means "adversary," as one who is opposed to God, His plan, and His people.

2:19 The reference to a "crown" carries the image of a laurel wreath worn on the head in reward for victory at a Greek athletic contest. Paul viewed the Thessalonian church as his crown of boasting, which would be evident at Jesus' coming.

3:1-2 Sent from Athens to help the Thessalonian church, Timothy could help these believers grow in the faith but not be as conspicuous as Paul or Silas. They were the prominent members of the missionary team and were well known by the hostile Jews and city officials.

3:3-4 Christians should not be shaken by persecution, because Paul stated we are appointed to this in God's plan. Jesus taught His disciples that if people persecuted Him, they as His followers would be persecuted as well (Jn 15:20). In Paul's case the persecution kept him moving from city to city. As a result many cities were able to hear the gospel from Paul's mouth. This would not have happened had Paul been warmly received among the Jews. Hence God allowed persecution to serve as a means of accomplishing His will.

3:5 For this reason refers back to the persecution of the Thessalonians mentioned in verse 4. Tempter is another reference to Satan as one who entices people to sin (Mt 4:1-11).

3:10-13 Paul was praying to see the Thessalonian believers in person in order to complete what was lacking in their faith. Verses 11-13 contain a prayer expressing just that desire. The prayer's request that the church overflow with love for one another and be blameless in holiness is an expression of desire for the Thessalonians' brotherly love and sanctification specifically addressed in the following two paragraphs (4:1-8,9-12).

4:3 Sanctification (Gk hagiasmos) could also be translated "holiness." Here it refers to the consecration of the believer to God in holy and proper behavior in regard to sexual purity. God's will is clear—to abstain from sexual immorality. The passage does not say to abstain from sex practiced in the context of marriage but sex that deviates from God's standards. This would include premarital sex, incest, homosexuality, bestiality, and adultery.

4:4 The phrase control his own body probably refers to the idea of controlling the body's lustful sexual desires that might lead a Christian to sin. An alternate but less likely view is that it refers to obtaining a wife.

4:6-8 When a person commits a sexual sin, the result is to transgress against and defraud one's brother. Brother in this context probably means a fellow Christian. A sexual transgression defrauds one's brother in the sense that sexual sin is a form of theft: you take something that does not belong to you. It defrauds both the partner of the illicit relationship as well as a spouse or future spouse who alone has rights in sexual matters. In this matter points back to the discussion of sexual purity in verses 3-5. Paul gave two reasons for Christians to abstain from sexual immorality. First is that the Lord is an avenger who will judge the offense. Second is that sexual impurity violates God's call to sanctification. The implication of God's giving us His Holy Spirit is that a person should not mix human sexual impurity with God's holy nature in the Holy Spirit, who dwells within the Christian (1Co 6:19).

4:9-12 The reference to brotherly love (Gk philadelphia) seems to govern the content of these verses in encouraging fellow Christians to lead a quiet life, mind one's own business, and work with one's hands. To do otherwise places a burden of dependence on the community of faith and gives a poor testimony to outsiders (5:14; 2Th 3:7-12). Paul demonstrated this work ethic by providing for his own needs (1Th 2:9).

4:13 The term asleep in this context is a metaphorical reference to Christians who have died. This metaphor is particularly appropriate because of the future resurrection of the body. Just as a sleeping person expects to rise up in the morning, Christians who have died will experience a bodily resurrection and will rise up once again (v. 16, Jn 11:11). Until this happened for deceased believers, to be out of the body is to be at home with the Lord (2Co 5:8). Apparently the cause of the Thessalonians' grief was related to the misunderstanding that dead Christians would miss the events and subsequent blessings associated with the Lord's coming. Paul corrected this misunderstanding by teaching that the dead in Christ will rise first (1Th 4:16). In contrast to unbelievers who grieve over the loss of loved ones, Christians who grieve over a fellow believer can do so with hope because of the future glorious resurrection.

4:14 Jesus' resurrection revealed what resurrection will be like for those who have fallen asleep through Jesus. We can partially understand the nature of our bodily resurrection by reading about His (Lk 24:36-43).

4:15-17 The revelation (lit "word") that Paul received relates to what has been called the rapture. It refers to the event when believers who are alive at the Lord's coming are caught up (Gk harpazo) in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. The term "rapture" is derived from rapturo, the Latin translation of the Greek term. The Greek term means "to snatch or take away suddenly." Paul referred to this event as a mystery (some truth previously hidden but now known) in 1Co 15:51-52 and said it will happen in the twinkling of an eye. We who are still alive implies that Paul thought the rapture could occur at any moment, even during his lifetime. The "archangel" or chief angel is probably a reference to Michael (Dn 10:13; Jd 9).

5:1 Times and seasons mentioned together refers to the end times (Ac 1:7).

5:2 The phrase Day of the Lord often signifies a time of God's wrath and judgment poured out in an uncommon way. Here the Day of the Lord refers specifically to the end-time period of God's judgment on the unbelieving world known as the great tribulation (Mal 4:5; Ac 2:20; 2Th 2:2; 2Pt 3:10). The description of the Day of the Lord coming as a thief in the night emphasizes that it will come unexpectedly (5:4; 2Pt 3:10).

5:3 It is notable that peace and security are what are often cited as currently needed in the world and especially in the modern state of Israel. Just before the Day of the Lord when people think they have this peace, sudden destruction will come upon them. The comparison of this destruction to the labor pains of a pregnant woman speaks of the increasing intensity of God's judgment and the certainty of its coming (Mt 24:8).

5:4-6 Paul contrasted brothers in the faith who are sons of light and day with the rest of the world who are of the night and darkness. Physical sleeping and drunkenness normally occur at night while it is dark, so Paul issued an encouragement for Christians as sons of light to be awake, meaning alert and morally ready. One's readiness is described with the military analogy of a soldier who prepares himself for war.

5:6-7 The Greek word for sleep in these verses (see also v. 10) is different than that in 4:13-15. In 5:6-7, "sleep" refers to moral lethargy. Some interpreters take "sleep" in verse 10 as a euphemism for death, but a good case can be made that the same Greek word in this context refers to moral lethargy as well. Thus Paul is saying in verse 10 that whether believers are alert or not for the Day of the Lord, we will still "live together" with the Lord.

5:9 Paul reminded the Thessalonians that as Christians they were not appointed to God's wrath but to salvation. The Day of the Lord will be a great outpouring of God's wrath from the very start (Rv 6:17), and Christians will be kept out of this worldwide hour of testing (Rv 3:10).

5:12-13 To give recognition means respect for the authority and work of church leaders.

5:15 Not to repay evil for evil but to pursue what is good reflects back on Jesus' teaching not to follow a retaliatory "eye for eye" ethic but to give a blessing instead (Mt 5:38-42).

5:17 To pray constantly does not mean continuous, uninterrupted prayer but frequent and regular prayers for a consistent prayer life.

5:19 One can stifle (lit "quench") the Spirit by not submitting to the Holy Spirit's leading or by committing other sins that would grieve the Spirit. In this context Paul may have had in mind listening to or allowing for prophecies (v. 20) that were not Spirit-given.

5:21 Test all things probably refers to the content of the prophecies that had to be evaluated with God's known truth as expressed by the OT, Jesus, and the apostles (1Jn 4:1-3).

5:23 The prayer for spirit, soul, and body to be kept sound and blameless teaches that God sees the whole person as important in living a life pleasing to God.

5:26 Greeting one another with a holy kiss, probably on the cheek, was a common first-century greeting that expressed love similar to a modern handshake (Rm 16:16). This ancient custom is still widely practiced in the Middle East.

Focus passage 1 Thessalonians 2:19

In the Gospels, stephanos (crown) refers exclusively to the thorny crown worn by Jesus during His Passion (Mt 27:29; Mk 15:17; Jn 19:2,5). Paul consistently exhorts the saints by using the promise of a crown as their future reward. Believers should run the Christian race to obtain an imperishable crown, even as athletes run for a perishable wreath (1Co 9:25; cp. Rv 3:11), and a crown of righteousness belongs to all who love the Lord's appearing (2Tm 4:8). Certain congregations are the crown with which Paul will appear before the Lord at His return (Php 4:1; 1Th 2:19). James speaks of a crown of life given to those who, despite persecution, maintain their love for God (Jms 1:12; cp. Rv 2:10), and an unfading crown of glory awaits elders who lovingly shepherd their congregations (1Pt 5:4). Crown appears frequently in the apocalyptic imagery of Revelation. There it is usually associated with pictures of authority, rule, dominion, power, and/or enablement for a task.

Focus passage 1 Thessalonians 4:17

Harpazo (catch up, snatch up) is often invested with the idea of force. In this sense, harpazo refers to an arrest (Ac 23:10) and to the near forceful capture of Jesus by a crowd (Jn 6:15). The term is not limited to the physical realm. The Evil One snatches away the message of the kingdom sown upon men's hearts (Mt 13:19), Jude exhorts believers to snatch some men from the fire (Jd 23), and no one is able to forcefully carry off the sheep belonging to the Good Shepherd (Jn 10:11,28-29). Elsewhere, the term is used of supernatural phenomena and does not carry the concept of force. Paul received glorious revelation after being caught up into paradise (2Co 12:2,4). The Holy Spirit carries Philip away and transports him to Azotus (Ac 8:39). Believers will one day be caught up to meet their returning Lord (1Th 4:17).

The Man of Lawlessness

2 Now concerning the coming [a] of our Lord [b] Jesus Christ and our being gathered to Him: We ask you, brothers, [2] not to be easily upset in mind or troubled, either by a spirit [c] or by a message or by a letter as if from us, alleging that the Day of the Lord [d, e] has come. [f 3] Don't let anyone deceive you in any way. For that day will not come unless the apostasy [A] comes first and the man of lawlessness [g] is revealed, the son of destruction. [4] He opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god [h] or object of worship, [i] so that he sits [j] in God's sanctuary, [B] publicizing that he himself is God.

[5] Don't you remember that when I was still with you I told you about this? [6]
And you know what currently restrains him, so that he will be revealed in his time. [k 7] For the •mystery of lawlessness [l] is already at work, but the one now restraining will do so until he is out of the way, [8] and then the lawless one will be revealed. The Lord Jesus will destroy him with the breath of His mouth [m] and will bring him to nothing with the brightness of His coming. [9] The coming of the lawless one is based on Satan's working, with all kinds of false miracles, signs, and wonders, [n 10] and with every unrighteous deception among those who are perishing. They perish because they did not accept the love of the truth in order to be saved. [o 11] For this reason God sends them a strong delusion so that they will believe what is false, [12] so that all will be condemned [p] — those who did not believe [q] the truth but enjoyed unrighteousness.

Stand Firm

13 But we must always thank God for you, brothers loved by the Lord, because from the beginning [r] God has chosen [s] you for salvation through •sanctification [t] by the Spirit and through belief in the truth. 14 He called you to this through our gospel, so that you might obtain the glory [u] of our Lord Jesus Christ. 15
Therefore, brothers, stand firm [v] and hold to the traditions you were taught, [w] either by our message or by our letter.

16 May our Lord Jesus Christ Himself and God our Father, who has loved [x] us and given us eternal encouragement and good hope by grace, 17 encourage your hearts and strengthen you in every good work and word.

Pray for Us

3 Finally, brothers, pray for us that the Lord's message may spread rapidly and be honored, just as it was with you, [a] 2 and that we may be delivered [b] from wicked and evil men, for not all have faith. [A] 3 But the Lord is faithful; He will strengthen and guard you from the evil one. [c] 4 We have confidence in the Lord about you, that you are doing and will do what we command. 5 May the Lord direct your hearts to God's love and Christ's endurance. [d]

Warning against Irresponsible Behavior [6] Now we command you, brothers, in the name [e] of our Lord Jesus Christ, to keep away from every brother [f] who •walks irresponsibly and not according to the tradition [g] received [h] from us. [7]
For you yourselves know how you must imitate [i] us: We were not irresponsible among you; [8] we did not eat [j] anyone's food [B] free of charge; [k] instead, we labored [l] and struggled, [m] working [n] night and day, so that we would not be a burden [o] to any of you. [9] It is not that we don't have the right [p] to support, but we did it to make ourselves an example to you so that you would imitate [q] us. [10]
In fact, when we were with you, this is what we commanded you: "If anyone isn't willing to work, he should not eat." [r] [11] For we hear that there are some among you who walk irresponsibly, not working at all, but interfering with the work of others. [s] [12] Now we command and exhort such people by the Lord Jesus Christ that quietly working, they may eat their own food. [C] [13] Brothers, do not grow weary [t] in doing good.

[14] And if anyone does not obey our instruction in this letter, take note of that person; don't associate with him, so that he may be ashamed. [15] Yet don't treat him as an enemy, but warn him as a brother.

Final Greetings

16 May the Lord of peace [u] Himself give you peace always in every way. [v]
The Lord be with all of you. [w] 17 This greeting is in my own hand [x] — Paul.
This is a sign in every letter; this is how I write. 18 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with all of you.

Introduction

Seagulls in Thermaikos Bay, Thessaloniki

Following up on his first letter to the Thessalonians, Paul wrote to give further clarification on how to live the Christian life in light of the coming return of Christ. The Thessalonians were called to stand firm and live useful lives, because the return of Christ might be in the distant future.

Circumstances of Writing

Author: Paul is stated to be the author of 2 Thessalonians (1:1). The greeting also mentions Silvanus and Timothy, but Paul was the primary author (3:17).

Background: See discussion under Introduction to 1 Thessalonians. While there are few indicators about the date and place of writing of 2 Thessalonians, it was probably written from Corinth around A.D. 50-51 shortly after 1 Thessalonians. The mention of Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy together in the salutation, as was the case with 1 Thessalonians (1Th 1:1), supports this conclusion. An additional support for this view is the mention of a previous letter, which was probably 1 Thessalonians (2Th 2:15).

Message and Purpose

Paul wrote in part to encourage the Thessalonian believers to stand firm for the truth in the midst of persecution and to assure them that God would judge those who were afflicting them (1:6-9; 2:13-15). Apparently the Thessalonians thought they were already in the Day of the Lord (2:2). Paul assured them that they were not, since certain end-time events had not yet taken place and one was currently restraining the "lawless one" from appearing (2:6-7). This appears to be the primary impetus for the letter. The fact that some people in the Thessalonian church had stopped working may suggest that their incorrect view was leading to lethargy and laziness (3:10-11).

The letter is not long, and it does not give us a definitive outline of the entire Christian faith. Paul wrote to meet a present need, and the arrangement of his letter focused on local circumstances.

The greatness of God: God loves people like the Thessalonians and has brought them into the church (1:4). He has elected them (2:13), called them (1:11; 2:14), and saved them. His purpose will continue to the end when they will be brought to their climax with the return of Christ and judgment. It is interesting to see so clearly expressed in this early letter these great doctrines of election and call, which meant so much to Paul. We also see his doctrine of justification behind the references to God counting the believers worthy (1:5,11) and, of course, in his teaching on faith (1:3-4, 11; 2:13; 3:2).

Salvation in Christ: Salvation in Christ is proclaimed in the gospel and will be consummated when Christ comes again to overthrow all evil and bring rest and glory to His own. This great God loves His people, and He has given them comfort and hope—two important qualities for persecuted people (2:16). The apostle prayed that the hearts of his converts would be directed to "God's love" (3:5), which may mean God's love for them or their love for God. Probably it is God's love for them that was the primary thought, but Paul also noted a mutual love from the new believers. There are repeated references to the revelation (1:7; 2:6,8). While the term is not used in quite the same way as in some other places, it reminds us that God has not left us to our own devices. He has revealed what is necessary and has further revelations for the last days.

The second coming: The second coming is seen here in terms of the overthrow of all evil, especially the "man of lawlessness." Paul made it clear that Christ's coming will be majestic, that it will mean punishment for people who refuse to know God and who reject the gospel, and that it will bring rest and glory to believers (1:7-10). In the end God and righteousness, not Satan and evil, will be triumphant.

Paul made it clear that the Day of the Lord had not yet occurred. Several things must happen first—for example, "the apostasy" that occurs and the revelation of "the man of lawlessness" (2:3). Paul did not explain either. He was probably referring to what he had told the Thessalonians while he had been among them. Unfortunately, we do not know what he said then, so we are left to do some guessing. That a rebellion against the faith will precede the Lord's return is a well-known part of Christian teaching (Mt 24:10-14; 1Tm 4:1-3; 2Tm 3:1-9; 4:3-4).

Life and work: Paul had a good deal to say about people he called "disorderly" and who appeared to be idle, not working at all (3:6-12). This may have been because they thought the Lord's coming was so close there was no point in working, or perhaps they were so "spiritual-minded" that they concentrated on higher things and let other people provide for their needs. Paul counseled everyone to work for their living (3:12). No doctrinal emphasis, not even that of Christ's return, should lead Christians away from work. People able to work should earn their daily bread. Believers are to work for their living and not grow weary in doing good.

Contribution to the Bible

Second Thessalonians continues and further amplifies some of the same themes as 1 Thessalonians: persecution, sanctification, and end-time events associated with the second coming of Christ. One important difference is that 2 Thessalonians describes the “man of lawlessness” who will be revealed in the end times and what restrains him from being revealed (2:1-12). The book also contains a lengthy discourse on the need for believers to have a proper work ethic to provide for their own needs (3:6-15).

Structure

The tone of Paul's second letter to the Thessalonians is markedly "cooler" than his first letter. In his first letter, Paul was enthusiastic about the Thessalonians' progress in the gospel, and he offered calm advice about congregational life (1Th 5:12-22). In this second letter, though, Paul expressed grave concern about the spiritual state of the Thessalonian believers. He gave them a sharp rebuke about congregational life (2Th 3:6-15). His style is typical of his other letters—a doctrinal section followed by practical exhortation.

Study Notes

1:1 On Silvanus and Timothy, see note at 1Th 1:1.

1:6-7 God will reward His people with rest and repay those who oppose Him at the future revelation of the Lord Jesus from heaven. Until then the believer must trust that God in His time will handle current situations that are unjust. Angels are often presented as participating in executing God's awesome judgments and thus are described as powerful (cp. Mt 25:31; Mk 8:38).

1:8 The phrase those who don't know God is a reference to unbelieving Gentiles (1Th 4:5). Those who don't obey the gospel is probably a reference to many Jews who had an opportunity to hear Jesus or the gospel through the ministry of the apostles but rejected it.

1:9 The penalty of eternal destruction is described as being away from the Lord's presence. The word "destruction" does not imply ceasing to exist or annihilation but separation from God in a miserable state. This is why it is described as eternal. There will be a time when God throws all His enemies into the lake of fire to be eternally judged (Rv 20:11-15).

1:10 The saints are the holy people of God. This term refers to all of those called in God's plan of salvation (1Co 1:2; 2Co 1:1).

2:1 Our being gathered to Him probably refers to the gathering of believers at the time of the rapture (1Th 4:13-18).

2:2 Paul taught the Thessalonians that they should not be troubled by a false message that they were in the Day of the Lord. That period of time would not come until two events occurred—the "apostasy" and the revealing of the "man of lawlessness" (v. 3).

2:3 The word apostasy (Gk apostasia) can also be translated "rebellion." It carries the idea of defection or departure from true religion. It probably refers to the widespread religious defection from worship of the true God that will intensify during the Day of the Lord through the workings of the man of lawlessness and Satan (vv. 3-9). An alternate view is that "apostasy" refers to an altogether different kind of departure: the departure of the church from the earth known as the rapture, which will take place before the Day of the Lord begins. The man of lawlessness is probably the end-time manifestation of God's enemy known as the antichrist (1Jn 2:18) or the beast from the sea (Rv 13:1-10). This particular title emphasizes that he is opposed to God and His law. He is the son of destruction or perdition in the sense that he is destined to be destroyed (v. 8).

2:4 The man of lawlessness (or "man of sin") is so blasphemous that he takes a seat in God's sanctuary, declaring that he himself is God and demanding worship (see Rv 13:4 where the beast from the sea is worshiped). This act appears to be what Daniel termed the "abomination of desolation" and what Jesus said would occur during the tribulation period (Mt 24:15; see also Dn 9:27). The reference to God's sanctuary or temple suggests that a future rebuilt temple will exist during this time in Jerusalem (Rv 11:1-2). The Greek word used here (naos) often refers to the inner sanctuary of the temple precincts.

2:5 Paul reminded the Thessalonians that he taught about these things when he was with them (Ac 17:1-13). Since Paul was with the Thessalonians for a relatively short time after he and the missionary team planted the church, this emphasizes the importance Paul placed on teaching about end-time events.

2:6-7 The identity of this restrainer has puzzled Bible interpreters for centuries. In verse 6 what. . .restrains him is in the neuter in Greek while in verse 7 the one. . .restraining is in the masculine. Some things are clear. First, the restrainer is holding back the actual manifestation of the man of lawlessness. Second, at some point the restrainer will cease this activity and the man of lawlessness will be revealed. One common view is that the neuter form refers to government, perhaps the Romans or possibly a future government, while the masculine refers to the leader of that government, perhaps an emperor. Paul elsewhere taught that one of the purposes of government is to promote the common good by restraining wrong (Rm 13:1-5). Possibly the restrainer is a future government and its leader. But since the lawless one's action and power stem from Satan's power (2Th 2:9), God's power and sovereignty are strongly suggested as playing a more direct role in the restraining force. A more appealing solution is to see the restrainer as God's Holy Spirit. The Greek word for Spirit (pneuma) is neuter, but since the Spirit is a person in Greek, He can be referred to in either the neuter or masculine. Also in verse 6 the reference could be to the restraining force of the Holy Spirit while verse 7 may refer to His personage. Either of these solutions could explain the shift in gender from verses 6 to 7. Another possible variation of this view is that the restrainer is the Holy Spirit working through the church. The phrase until he is out of the way would be a removal of the restraining force of the Holy Spirit through the rapture of the church prior to the Day of the Lord.

2:7 In Paul's writings, "mystery" refers to something not previously revealed but now made known. Paul taught that though the man of lawlessness is not currently revealed, the mystery of lawlessness is already at work. Satan's program of opposition to God and His standards of righteousness is a current and ongoing reality.

2:9 Miracles, signs, and wonders are not necessarily evidence of God's acts. Satan has the power to perform deceptive supernatural acts. We must examine the source of the act and the content of the message being promoted in order to avoid deception.

2:10-12 Satan's activities will result in wide-scale deception of the unbelieving world. First, however, Paul pointed out that unbelievers reject the truth that would save them. Therefore God will send them this strong delusion after they have already turned Him away. Their condemnation is based on the fact that they did not believe the truth.

2:15 The word traditions refers to God's truths passed on to the Thessalonians by Paul (1Th 4:1-2). Our letter refers to 1 Thessalonians.

3:2-3 Paul reminded the Thessalonians that the Lord is faithful even if wicked and evil men were troubling them.

3:6 It is irresponsible behavior for capable people not to work and expect the church to feed them. The view by some people in the Thessalonian church that they were in the Day of the Lord and thus Jesus was coming very soon (2:2) may have led them to stop their normal work activities. Or, this may have just been ordinary lazy behavior (1Th 5:14).

3:7-8 Paul had the right to receive financial support while working in evangelism and teaching, but he set an example for the Thessalonians by working to provide for his own needs so he did not burden them.

3:10 Whatever the reason for this behavior, Paul commanded, If anyone isn't willing to work, he should not eat (see Gn 3:18-19). Christian charity is to be directed at true need, not artificial need created by irresponsibility.

3:11 To compound the problem, not only did some Thessalonians not work, but they were interfering with the work of others, perhaps encouraging them not to work in order to focus on the Day of the Lord (see note at v. 6).

3:14-15 Paul wanted the Thessalonian church to not associate with this type of person and to warn him as a brother, with a view toward correcting the problem.

3:16 Paul referred to the Lord as the Lord of peace and prayed for God's granting of peace to them in every way. This was particularly important for a church under persecution.

3:17 The final greeting was written in Paul's own hand. This indicates a common ancient practice. The rest of the letter was written with the help of a skilled scribe, called an amanuensis, who was writing as Paul directed him.

parousia

Greek Pronunciation [pah roo SEE ah]
HCSB Translation coming, presence Uses in 2 Thessalonians 3
Uses in the NT 24
Focus passage 2 Thessalonians 2:8

Parousia means presence or coming. In the sense of presence, it refers to physical proximity. Paul speaks of the obedience of the Philippian church during both his presence and absence (Php 2:12) and of the presence of his fellow laborers (1Co 16:17). Elsewhere, parousia refers to the coming or arrival of men or events. Paul mentions the coming of Titus (2Co 7:6-7), and he hopes to come again to the Philippians (Php 1:26). Parousia occurs most often in relation to the coming of the Lord Jesus as human history moves to closure. His coming will be preceded by the coming of the "lawless one," the antichrist (2Th 2:8-9). The glorious coming of Jesus will be accompanied by the destruction of all His enemies, a resurrection of the dead in Christ, and a gathering of the saints still living (1Co 15:23-25; 1Th 4:15-16; 2Th 2:1).

Instructions on Prayer

2 First of all, then, I urge that petitions, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be made for everyone, 2 for kings and all those who are in authority, [a] so that we may lead a tranquil and quiet life in all godliness [b] and dignity. [c] 3 This is good, and it pleases God our Savior, [d] 4 who wants everyone [e] to be saved [f] and to come to the knowledge of the truth. [g]

5 For there is one God [h] and one mediator [i] between God and humanity, Christ Jesus, Himself human, [j]
6 who gave Himself — a ransom for all, [k]
a testimony at the proper time.

7 For this I was appointed a herald, an apostle [l] (I am telling the truth; [m] I am not lying), and a teacher of the Gentiles [n] in faith and truth.

Instructions to Men and Women

8 Therefore, I want the men in every place to pray, lifting up holy hands without anger or argument. o 9 Also, the women are to dress themselves in modest clothing, p with decency and good sense, not with elaborate hairstyles, gold, q pearls, or expensive apparel, 10 but with good works, r as is proper for women who affirm that they worship God. 11 A woman should learn in silence with full submission. s 12 I do not allow a woman to teach or to have authority over a man; instead, she is to be silent. 13 For Adam was created first, then Eve.
t 14 And Adam was not deceived, but the woman was deceived and transgressed. u 15 But she will be saved through childbearing, if she continues A in faith, love, and holiness, v with good judgment.

Qualifications of Church Leaders

3 This saying is trustworthy: [a, b] “If anyone aspires to be an •overseer , [c] he desires a noble work.” [2] An overseer, [d] therefore, must be above reproach, the husband of one wife, self-controlled, sensible, [e] respectable, hospitable, [f] an able teacher, [A 3] not addicted to wine, not a bully but gentle, not quarrelsome, not greedy [g] — [4] one who manages his own household competently, having his children under control with all dignity. [5] (If anyone does not know how to manage his own household, how will he take care of God’s church?) [6] He must not be a new convert, or he might become conceited and fall into the condemnation of the Devil. [h 7] Furthermore, he must have a good reputation among outsiders, so that he does not fall into disgrace and the Devil’s [i] trap.

[8] Deacons, [j] likewise, should be worthy of respect, not hypocritical, not drinking a lot of wine, not greedy for money, [9] holding the •mystery of the faith [k] with a clear conscience. [l 10] And they must also be tested first; if they prove blameless, then they can serve as deacons. [11] Wives, [m] too, must be worthy of respect, not slanderers, self-controlled, [n] faithful in everything. [12] Deacons must be husbands of one wife, managing their children and their own households competently. [13] For those who have served well as deacons acquire a good standing for themselves, and great boldness in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.

The Mystery of Godliness [14] I write these things to you, hoping to come [o] to you soon. [15] But if I should be delayed, I have written so that you will know how people ought to act in God’s household, [p] which is the church of the living God, [q] the pillar and foundation of the truth. [r 16] And most certainly, the mystery of godliness [s] is great:

He [t] was manifested in the flesh, [u] vindicated in the Spirit, [v] seen by angels, preached among the nations,
believed [w] on in the world,
taken up in glory. [x]

Demonic Influence

4 Now the Spirit [a] explicitly says that in later times [b] some will depart from the faith, [c] paying attention to deceitful spirits [d] and the teachings of demons, [e] 2 through the hypocrisy [f] of liars whose consciences [g] are seared.
3 They forbid marriage [h] and demand abstinence [i] from foods that God created [j] to be received with gratitude by those who believe and know the truth. 4 For everything created by God is good, [k] and nothing should be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving, [l] 5 since it is sanctified by the word of God [m] and by prayer.

A Good Servant of Jesus Christ

6 If you point these things out to the brothers, you will be a good servant of Christ Jesus, nourished by the words of the faith [n] and the good teaching that you have followed. [o] 7 But have nothing to do with irreverent and silly myths. [p] Rather, train yourself in godliness, [q] 8 for > the training of the body has a limited benefit, [r]

> but godliness is beneficial in every way, > since it holds promise for the present life > and also for the life to come. [s]

9 This saying is trustworthy and deserves full acceptance. [t] 10 In fact, we labor and strive [u] for this, because we have put our hope in the living God, [v] who is the Savior [w] of everyone, [x] especially of those who believe.

Instructions for Ministry

11 Command and teach these things. 12 Let no one despise your youth; instead, you should be an example to the believers in speech, [y] in conduct, [z] in love, [a, b] in faith, in purity. [c] 13 Until I come, [d] give your attention to public reading, exhortation, and teaching. 14 Do not neglect the gift that is in you; it was given to you through prophecy, [e] with the laying on of hands [f] by the council of elders.
15 Practice these things; be committed to them, so that your progress may be evident to all. 16 Pay close attention to your life and your teaching; persevere in these things, for by doing this you will save [g] both yourself and your hearers. [h]

5 Do not rebuke an older man, but exhort him as a father, younger men as brothers, 2 older women as mothers, and with all propriety, the younger women as sisters.

The Support of Widows

3 Support [A] widows [a] who are genuinely widows. 4 But if any widow has children or grandchildren, they must learn to practice godliness toward their own family first and to repay their parents, for this pleases God. 5 The real widow, left all alone, has put her hope in God [b] and continues night and day in her petitions and prayers; 6 however, she who is self-indulgent is dead even while she lives. [c] 7 Command this also, so they won't be blamed. 8 But if anyone does not provide [d] for his own, that is his own household, he has denied the faith [e] and is worse than an unbeliever.

9 No widow should be placed on the official support list [B] unless she is at least 60 years old, has been the wife of one husband, 10 and is well known for good works [f] — that is, if she has brought up children, shown hospitality, [g] washed the •saints ' feet, [h] helped the afflicted, [i] and devoted herself to every good work. [j] 11 But refuse to enroll younger widows, for when they are drawn away from Christ by desire, they want to marry [k] 12 and will therefore receive condemnation [l] because they have renounced their original pledge. 13 At the same time, they also learn to be idle, going from house to house; they are not only idle, but are also gossips [m] and busybodies, saying things they shouldn't say. 14 Therefore, I want younger women to marry, [n] have children, manage their households, and give the adversary no opportunity to accuse us. [o] 15 For some have already turned away [p] to follow Satan. 16 If any [q] believing woman has widows in her family, she should help them, and the church should not be burdened, so that it can help those who are genuinely widows.

Honoring the Elders

17 The elders who are good leaders should be considered worthy of an ample honorarium, [C] especially those who work hard [r] at preaching and teaching. 18 For the Scripture says:

Do not muzzle an ox
while it is treading out the grain, [s, t] and,
the worker is worthy of his wages. [u]

19 Don’t accept an accusation against an elder unless it is supported by two or three witnesses. [v] 20 Publicly rebuke those who sin, so that the rest will also be afraid. 21 I solemnly charge you before God and Christ Jesus and the elect angels to observe [w] these things without prejudice, doing nothing out of favoritism. 22 Don’t be too quick to appoint [D, x] anyone as an elder, and don’t share in the sins of others. Keep yourself pure. [y] 23 Don’t continue drinking only water, but use a little wine because of your stomach and your frequent illnesses. 24 Some people’s sins are obvious, going before them to judgment, [z] but the sins of others surface [E] later. 25 Likewise, good works are obvious, and those that are not obvious cannot remain hidden.

Honoring Masters

6 All who are under the yoke as •slaves must regard their own masters [A] to be worthy of all respect, so that God's name [a] and His teaching will not be blasphemed. 2 Those who have believing masters should not be disrespectful to them because they are brothers, but should serve them better, since those who benefit from their service are believers and dearly loved. [b]

False Doctrine and Human Greed

Teach and encourage these things. 3 If anyone teaches other doctrine and does not agree with the sound teaching of our Lord [c] Jesus Christ and with the teaching that promotes godliness, [d] 4 he is conceited, understanding nothing, but has a sick interest in disputes and arguments over words. [e] From these come envy, [f] quarreling, [g] slander, [h] evil suspicions, 5 and constant disagreement among people whose minds are depraved and deprived of the truth, who imagine that godliness [i] is a way to material gain. [j, k] 6 But godliness with contentment is a great gain. [l]

7 For we brought nothing into the world, and [m] we can take nothing out. [n] 8 But if we have food and clothing, [B]
we will be content with these.

9 But those who want to be rich fall into temptation, a trap, and many foolish and harmful desires, which plunge people into ruin and destruction. 10 For the love of money is a root [C] of all kinds of evil, and by craving it, some have wandered away from the faith [o] and pierced themselves with many pains.

Fight the Good Fight

11 But you, man of God, run from these things, and pursue righteousness, godliness, faith,
love, [p] endurance, [q] and gentleness.
12 Fight the good fight [r] for the faith;
take hold of eternal life [s] that you were called to and have made a good confession about in the presence of many witnesses.

13 In the presence of God, who gives life to all, [t] and of Christ Jesus, who gave a good confession before Pontius •Pilate , [u] I charge you 14 to keep the command without fault or failure until the appearing [v] of our Lord [w] Jesus Christ. 15 God will bring this about in His own time. [x] He is the blessed and only [y] Sovereign, the King of kings, [z]

and the Lord of lords, [a] 16 the only One who has immortality, dwelling in unapproachable light; [b]
no one has seen or can see Him, [c] to Him be honor and eternal might. [d]
•Amen . [e]

Instructions to the Rich

17 Instruct those who are rich in the present age not to be arrogant [f] or to set their hope on the uncertainty of wealth, but on God, [g] who richly provides us with all things [h] to enjoy. 18 Instruct them to do what is good, to be rich in good works, [i] to be generous, willing to share, [j] 19 storing up for themselves a good reserve [D] for the age to come, [k] so that they may take hold of life that is real.

Guard the Heritage

20 Timothy, guard what has been entrusted to you, [l] avoiding [m] irreverent, empty speech and contradictions from the “knowledge” that falsely bears that name. [n] 21 By professing it, some [o] people have deviated from the faith. [p]

Grace be with all of you.

1 Timothy

Introduction

Remains of the Basilica of St. John at Ephesus. When Paul left Ephesus for Macedonia, he left Timothy as pastor of the church at Ephesus and charged him to instruct certain people who were teaching false doctrines.

First Timothy, 2 Timothy, and Titus have been referred to as the “Pastoral Epistles” since the eighteenth century. It is reasonable to consider these letters together since they have striking similarities in style, vocabulary, and setting. These letters stand apart from the other Pauline letters in that they were the only ones written to Paul's gospel coworkers. The Pastoral Epistles deal with church structure issues and, unlike Paul's other letters, were addressed to men serving in pastoral roles rather than to churches. But we must also recognize that these are separate letters with their own distinctives. They were not written primarily to describe church structure or pastoral ministry (contrary to popular opinion), but to teach Christian living in response to the gospel.

A native of Lystra, Timothy may have been converted on Paul's first missionary journey (Ac 14:6-23). Paul was instrumental in Timothy's conversion. When Paul came to Lystra on his second journey, Timothy was a disciple who was well respected by the believers (Ac 16:1-2). Paul asked Timothy to accompany him. Timothy not only accompanied Paul but also was sent on many crucial missions by Paul (Ac 17:14-15; 18:5; 19:22; 20:4; Rm 16:21; 1Co 16:10; 2Co 1:19; 1Th 3:2,6).

Circumstances of Writing

Author: As stated in the opening of each letter, these letters were written by Paul (1Tm 1:1; 2Tm 1:1; Ti 1:1). However, many scholars today assume that Paul did not write them. This opinion is based on the differences from his other letters in vocabulary and style, alleged differences in theology, and uncertainties about where these letters fit chronologically in the life of the apostle. But the differences in style and vocabulary are not troublesome when one considers that authors often use different vocabulary when addressing different groups and situations. Rather than addressing churches in these letters, Paul was writing to coworkers who were in unique ministry settings. Hence we would expect different vocabulary. Also, the traditional view of the historical situation in which Paul wrote these letters is reasonable and defensible. Therefore, in spite of significant opposition by some scholars, there is a solid basis for accepting the Pastoral Epistles as Pauline.

Background: Paul most likely wrote these letters after the time covered in the book of Acts. Acts closes with Paul in prison. Traditionally it has been believed that Paul was released from this imprisonment, then continued his work around the Mediterranean, perhaps even reaching Spain (Rm 15:22-29). During this time, he visited Crete and other places. First Timothy and Titus were written during this period of further mission work. Timothy had been left in Ephesus to handle some problems with false teaching there (1Tm 1:3-4). Titus had been left in Crete after the initial work to set up the church there (Ti 1:5). Eventually Paul was imprisoned again, and this led to his execution. During this final imprisonment, Paul wrote 2 Timothy to request another visit from Timothy and to give final exhortations as he anticipated his martyrdom.

Message and Purpose

In each of these letters, Paul instructed one of his younger coworkers in living out his faith and teaching others to do the same. Each letter is concerned significantly with false teaching and its harmful effects in the church. In each letter Paul wrote to affirm his representative before the church, to hold up the standard of right doctrine, and to show that right doctrine must result in proper living.

In 1 Timothy Paul directed Timothy to actively oppose false teaching. He also gave instruction on the type of behavior that should characterize those in the church. The letter to Titus shows a similar purpose, albeit briefer in scope. As Paul addressed the character of church members, he presented it in light of the work of Christ. The message in 2 Timothy, Paul's final letter, is quite different. It is much more personal, a letter from one friend to another. Paul was preparing Timothy to carry on the work of ministry after he was gone. Several themes are found in these letters:

The gospel: Paul expressed a concern for the truth of the gospel. The terms that Paul used in describing the gospel in the Pastoral Epistles are not common in his other writings, but they are not unique to these letters. He referred to the gospel as "the faith" (1Tm 3:9 ; 2Tm 4:7 ; Ti 1:13 ); "the truth" ( 1Tm 4:3 ; 2Tm 2:25 ; Ti 1:1 ); sound or healthy teaching ( 1Tm 1:10 ; 2Tm 1:13 ; 4:3 ; Ti 1:9 ; 2:1 ); and godliness or sound religion ( 1Tm 3:16 ; 6:3 ; Ti 1:1). Paul may have used these terms because they represent the phrases used by his opponents. As he used them, however, he renovated them for his purposes by attaching new meaning to them.

The Christian life: Paul emphasized the importance of a response of holiness to God's act of salvation (1Tm 2:15 ; 4:12 ; 5:10 ; 2Tm 1:9 ; Ti 2:12 ). Holiness calls for behavior that is both positive ( Ti 3:8 ) and negative ( 2Tm 2:19) in emphasis.

Church government: The church is presented as a united family ministering to its constituency and organized for service. The church is the family of God (1Tm 3:5 ,15), and believers are brothers and sisters ( 1Tm 4:6 ; 5:1-2 ; 6:2 ; 2Tm 4:21 ). Paul charged the church with a responsibility to minister to the poor ( 1Tm 5:16 ) and to serve as a foundation of doctrinal and ethical truth ( 1Tm 3:15 ). Leaders of the church are known as overseers or elders ( 1Tm 3:1-7 ; 5:17-19 ; Ti 1:5-9 ), and they are assisted by deacons ( 1Tm 3:8-13).

Contribution to the Bible

These letters are rich theologically and ethically. One of their key contributions is the clear way they show the connection between doctrine and ethics, belief and behavior.

While these letters were not intended to provide a detailed account of church government, they do provide some significant insights on this topic. The lists of characteristics for overseers (1Tm 3:1-7; Ti 1:5-9) and deacons (1Tm 3:8-13) are the only such lists in the NT.

Structure

All three letters follow the typical pattern of a Greek epistle. While there are some lexical differences with many of Paul's other letters, keep in mind that these letters were written to specific individuals. One thing unique to the structure of these letters is the focus on church leadership.

Study Notes

1:1 The fact that this letter clearly claims to be written by Paul is an important point. If a person denies that Paul wrote 1 Timothy, this raises significant issues for his view of the reliability of the Scriptures.

1:2 Paul's normal greeting in his letters was grace and peace. Some interpreters wonder at the addition of mercy here, but Paul often introduced topics in the opening of his letters that he would refer to later on. The reference to "mercy" prepares for the discussion of Paul receiving mercy in verses 13,16.

1:3 At least one of Timothy's purposes in Ephesus was to address the false teaching that was troubling the church. We are not given enough information to determine exactly what the false teaching was. The concern here is not so much the identity of the false teaching but its effect—"empty speculations" (v. 4) and "fruitless discussion" (v. 6). This is in direct contrast to the goal of apostolic instruction in verse 5.

1:4 Myths is a negative term used to characterize something as fanciful or untrue. Thus it is used here (and elsewhere in the Pastoral Epistles; 2Tm 4:4; Ti 1:14) to critique false teaching as the stuff of "fairy tales." Genealogies seems to refer to speculative interpretations of the OT.

1:8 There is an important contrast here. The false teachers did not know what they were talking about (v. 7), but Paul and his coworkers (we) did know the truth about the law. Many Christians today think of the law as bad, but Paul clearly stated here that the law is good. Some have certainly misused the law (as the false teachers did), but the law itself was a gracious gift of God to Israel (Ps 119).

1:9-10 Paul stated that the law is not the basis for Christian living; rather, it works to expose sin. This is similar to his argument in Galatians 5.

1:11 Sound doctrine is what flows out of the gospel itself.

1:12 Having just mentioned being entrusted with the gospel (v. 11), Paul gave thanks because Christ was willing to appoint him to service in spite of his past sins. Paul marveled that God considered him worthy of His trust, even though he had previously been unbelieving and untrusting (v. 13).

1:13 Paul's ignorance was not the reason he had been shown mercy, as if ignorance excused sin or warranted mercy. The point is that his salvation was undeserved. He probably made this point to contrast with the false teachers. When Paul opposed Christ and persecuted the church in the past, he had not yet professed faith. These false teachers professed to follow Christ but still acted to undermine His influence. They were coming dangerously close to being cut off from God's mercy (Mt 12:31-32; Mk 3:28-30; Lk 12:10; 1Jn 5:16).

1:15-16 The designation of certain sayings as trustworthy is a particular distinctive of 1 Timothy, 2 Timothy, and Titus. Paul used this designation for emphasis. The apostle's earlier statements may sound as if his salvation was due to his own faithfulness or his ignorance, but these two verses make it clear that Paul marveled at his conversion since he knew himself to be so bad. He was an example of what true instruction was supposed to accomplish. He was the sort of person for whom the law was intended (1Tm 1:9-10). The result of the gospel in his life was not idle speculation but transformation.

1:18 The point here is that God had spoken through others to set Timothy aside for the task of ministry. The purpose of this assurance of divine call was to strengthen Timothy for the work (see note at 4:14).

1:19 The phrase shipwreck of their faith is strong language. It refers to someone who once professed faith but has now destroyed it, showing they were never truly converted.

1:20 Delivered . . . to Satan is a typical way of referring to excommunication, or being put out of the church (1Co 5:5). This language highlights the importance and protection of church membership since being put out of the fellowship makes a person more vulnerable to Satan.

2:1 Petitions, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings are several different terms for prayer. Paul was referring to "all sorts of prayer."

Bust of Nero, Roman emperor, A.D. 54-68, during whose reign both Paul and Peter were martyred. Paul instructed Timothy to pray "for kings and all those who are in authority" (2:1-2).

2:4 Come to the knowledge of the truth is a way of referring to being converted. "The truth" is often used in 1 and 2 Timothy and Titus as a synonym for the gospel.

2:5-6 These verses provide the theological basis for the preceding statement that God wants people to be saved.

2:8-9 The word therefore resumes the call to prayer from verse 1. Lifting up . . . hands was a typical posture for prayer in the Bible (Ex 9:29; 1Kg 8:22; Ps 28:2; 63:4; Is 1:15; Lk 24:50). With the words I want the men . . . also, the women, Paul addressed specific concerns in regard to each gender.

2:12 The phrase I do not allow is not simply a statement of Paul's personal wishes, but the statement of an authoritative position. He wrote with the authority of an apostle (1Th 4:1; 2Th 3:6). When Paul called for the women to be silent, he contrasted this with teaching. First Corinthians 11:5 assumes women do speak in the church assembly. This verse prohibits women from providing public teaching for men, but it does not prevent women from speaking in other circumstances.

2:13 The word for introduces the biblical basis for the preceding prohibition in regards to women. The order of creation was more significant in the mind of Paul than it is to most people today (1Co 11:8-9). Rooting the command in the order of creation makes this an abiding command rather than something that held only for Paul's culture and Paul's era. Gender roles are not the result of the fall but are rooted in creation and God's original purposes.

2:14 When Paul declared that Adam was not deceived, he did not excuse him for his sin. The point here is not blame but deception. That Adam sinned and bore the primary responsibility for the fall of humanity is clear in Rm 5:12-14.

2:15 This is a difficult verse. Paul did not believe people can earn salvation through childbearing or any other means. The verse is probably best understood as an affirmation of roles particular to women in contrast to the role prohibited to them in verses 11-14. People are saved as they persevere in the faith. This persevering is expounded here for women as including noble roles unique to them (such as childbearing).

3:1 The terms overseer, "elder," and "pastor" are all used in the NT to refer to the same office. "Overseer" emphasizes the task of watching over the congregation (Heb 13:17).

3:2-7 These verses do not give a job description for the pastor. They describe the character of a person who would serve in this office. The list is not intended to be exhaustive, but it envisions a person of mature Christian character.

3:2 The meaning of husband of one wife is widely debated. It probably does not refer to the issue of divorce. It could be a prohibition of polygamy, but most likely it refers to marital faithfulness in general. An able teacher is the one requirement in this list that is not necessarily required of all believers. It is also not required of deacons. Thus, it is a distinguishing mark of the pastor (Ti 1:9).

3:4-5 The management of one's own household is highlighted by the greater amount of discussion given to it. The home is the proving ground of Christian character. This complements the picture of the church as "God's household" (v. 15).

3:6 The point of this verse is not that new believers tend to be more proud, but that quickly elevating a new convert to a leadership position might result in sinful pride.

3:8 Deacons are the other office of the NT church, in addition to the pastor or elder. Likewise suggests a link between the lists of qualifications. There are striking similarities between the qualifications for pastor/overseer and for deacons. One key distinction is that deacons are not required to be able to teach.

3:9 The word mystery (Gk musterion) is a common Pauline word. It refers to the gospel (1Co 2:7; 4:1; 15:51; Col 1:25-26; 2:2; 4:3; Eph 3:4-13).

3:10 The testing described here would presumably be done by the church under the leadership of the overseers.

3:11 The Greek word behind wives here can mean "women" or "wives." Context (e.g., v. 2) suggests "wives" is the proper translation choice.

3:12 On husbands of one wife, see note at verse 2.

3:13 This verse highlights the value and importance of the office of deacon by stating two results of good service in this role. Good standing refers to respect and appreciation from the church toward those who serve the church in this way. Great boldness probably refers to the increase in confidence in the faith that comes from serving and seeing the truths of the gospel proven in ministry.

3:15 This is a significant verse in the letter. It states Paul's reason for writing and provides a threefold description of the church's identity and mission. Household refers to the church as God's family with reference to the governing of the family. The phrase church of the living God highlights the church as the gathering where God most clearly shows His presence. The church as the pillar and foundation of the truth means that God has entrusted to the church the task of promoting and protecting the gospel.

3:16 Again, the word mystery refers to the gospel (v. 9). This verse contains a poetic exposition of the gospel.

4:1 Just how the Spirit explicitly says is not made clear here. It is probably a reference to a prophecy (perhaps Paul's prediction in Ac 20:29-30). The later times in view here included Timothy's day. The last days are considered to have begun with the work of Christ.

4:10 The statement that Jesus is the Savior of everyone, especially of those who believe may seem to teach universalism, the belief that every person will eventually go to heaven regardless of whether they accept Christ. But the rest of Scripture clearly denies this idea. The Greek word translated here as "especially" expresses the sense of "particularly." The point is not that Jesus saves everybody and then saves believers even more. Rather, Jesus is the Savior for all—all who believe. Further, "everyone" pictures the trans-national scope of the gospel. Thus Christ is the "Savior" of people from every race and nation.

4:13 Public reading refers to the reading of Scripture in corporate worship (Ac 13:15; 2Co 3:14).

4:14 Gift probably refers to Timothy's calling and gifting for ministry indicated by God (through prophecy) and recognized by the church (laying on of hands by the elders).

4:15 These things that Paul called on Timothy to practice and be committed to are the things commanded in verses 12-13. These encompassed his behavior and teaching.

5:1 -2 The church is described in these verses in family terms (3:4-5,15).

Verse 1 does not prohibit the correcting of older men but speaks to the respectful manner in which this should be done.

5:8 The strong language in this verse indicates that provision for one's own household is a spiritual responsibility.

5:9 The phrase wife of one husband probably refers to marital faithfulness (see note at 3:2). If it forbids remarriage after the death of a husband (which seems unlikely), then Paul's advice in verse 14 would make those women ineligible.

5:10 This list (along with the last phrase of the previous verse) reviews the deeds of godly older women. These are examples to which younger women should aspire.

5:12-16 The issue in these verses is either that these widows who were being supported by the church had pledged to remain unmarried or that these younger widows might be tempted by their desires to marry unbelievers, thus turning away from the faith. Since these concerns were prompted by the fact that some have already turned away to follow Satan, Paul must have seen this as an important matter. It seems likely that his concern was over remarriage to an unbeliever, with the wife adopting the religion of her husband, as was a common custom in that era.

5:17 The phrase good leaders can also be translated as "those who rule well." The role of elder (pastor) involved authority, particularly in preaching and teaching. These elders were to be considered worthy of "double honor." The exact identify of this double honor is not clear, but plainly extra respect is due those who work hard in leading the church through preaching and teaching.

5:18 The command not to muzzle an ox is a quote from Dt 25:4. An owner was commanded to allow his ox to eat of the grain it was grinding. The idea is that a person who works for something should be able to benefit from it. The worker is worthy of his wages is a direct quote from Lk 10:7. This indicates that Paul was already referring to the recorded statements of Jesus as authoritative Scripture.

5:20 The people to be publicly rebuked were elders who sinned. The rest who would fear to sin as a result of this rebuke included the rest of the elders and probably the rest of the congregation as well.

5:23 How this verse connects to the rest of the paragraph is not clear. It appears to be a qualification to the call for purity in verses 22 and 24, clarifying that there would be nothing wrong with Timothy using a little wine.

5:24-25 After the aside of verse 23, Paul returned to the issue of appointing elders to serve the church. These verses illustrate why it is wise to be patient and thorough in assessing potential elders.

6:2 The chief motive for service, even for a person who is a slave, is love.

6:9-10 What is condemned here is harmful desires, not the possession of things. The warning is not simply that love of money can be harmful, but that this craving has led some people to deny the faith and show themselves to be unbelievers.

6:11-12 Fleeing sin is paired with chasing down virtue. The picture is of a vigorous pursuit of virtue. This corresponds to the call to fight . . . for the faith and to take hold of eternal life.

6:13 The appearance of Pontius Pilate here may seem odd. He appears as a backdrop for Jesus' good confession, which is the model for the "good confession" of believers (v. 12).

The magnificent theater in Ephesus had a seating capacity of 25,000. It was first constructed during the reign of Lysimachus, one of Alexander the Great's generals who succeeded him. It was enlarged during the Roman period. Paul's life was endangered by a riot in this theater. This theater bears witness to the wealth of Ephesus during the years that Paul planted the church there. Paul had left Timothy as pastor of the church at Ephesus. In this first letter to Timothy, Paul charges Timothy to "instruct those who are rich in the present age not to be arrogant or to set their hope on the uncertainty of wealth but on God, who richly provides us with all things to enjoy" (6:17).

6:20 The phrase what has been entrusted to you refers to the gospel. The knowledge that falsely bears that name refers to the false teaching addressed elsewhere in the letter.

Word Studies

diakonos
Greek Pronunciation [dee AH kah nahs]
HCSB Translation deacon, servant
Uses in 1 Timothy 3
Uses in the NT 29
Focus passage 1 Timothy 3:8,12

Diakonos frequently refers to a servant who attends to others' needs. Those responsible for serving a meal (Jn 2:5,9) and the attendants of a king are servants (Mt 22:13). The person desiring a position of greatness must become a servant (Mk 10:43). One can also serve a spiritual power. False apostles are called servants of Satan (2Co 11:15), and Paul is a servant of the gospel (Eph 3:7). Governing authorities are servants of God, for they dispense justice (Rm 13:4). Elsewhere, diakonos retains the idea of service, while adopting the more technical sense of a church leadership position (i.e., deacon). Paul may use this technical sense when he calls Phoebe a servant of the church in Cenchreae (Rm 16:1). In 1Tm 3:8-13, Paul delineates the qualifications for holding the diaconate. Lastly, diakonos may refer to a promoter. Paul rhetorically asks if Christ is one who promotes sin (Gl 2:17).

soter
Greek Pronunciation [soh TAYR]

HCSB Translation Savior
Uses in 1 Timothy 3
Uses in the NT 24
Focus passage 1 Timothy 4:10

Outside the NT, the title soter (savior, deliverer) was applied to deserving men, leading officials, rulers, or deities (e.g., of Roman emperors Julius Caesar, Nero, and Vespasian). The term had connotations of "protector," "deliverer," "preserver," or "savior." In the NT, soter refers exclusively to Jesus Christ and to God the Father, with a focus on their saving, delivering character as expressed through their actions. As Savior, Christ grants repentance and forgiveness of sin (Ac 5:31), protects and saves the church (Eph 5:23), will come again to deliver His people from this world (Php 3:20), has made possible the outpouring of the Spirit (Ti 3:6), has abolished death (2Tm 1:10), and has authority in His kingdom (2Pt 1:11). God is "the Savior of everyone, especially of those who believe" (1Tm 4:10), and "wants everyone to be saved" (1Tm 2:4). He manifested His love in His saving acts toward the church (Ti 3:4), He poured out the Holy Spirit (Ti 3:6), and He deserves praise and adoration (Jd 25).

epiphaneia
Greek Pronunciation [epih FAH nay ah]

HCSB Translation appearing Uses in 1 Timothy 1
Uses in the NT 6
Focus passage 1 Timothy 6:14

Outside of the NT, the term epiphaneia (appearing, manifestation) was often used as a religious technical term to denote the visible manifestation of a deity. This divine manifestation occurred either in the form of a personal appearance or by some work of power. Within the NT, epiphaneia appears exclusively in Pauline literature. Paul employs this religious technical sense of the word to refer to the appearing or manifestation of Jesus Christ. This appearing of Jesus can refer to His first coming to earth (2Tm 1:10). More frequently, however, Paul refers to the second appearing of Jesus, at which time He will come to destroy the antichrist and dispense righteous judgment (2Th 2:8; 2Tm 4:1,8). It is this second appearing of the Lord Jesus that is the "blessed hope" of the believer (Ti 2:13).

Be Strong in Grace

2 You, therefore, my son, be strong in the grace [a] that is in Christ Jesus. 2 And what you have heard from me [b] in the presence of many witnesses, commit to faithful [c] men who will be able to teach others also.

3 Share in suffering as a good soldier of Christ Jesus. [d] 4 No one serving as a soldier gets entangled in the concerns of civilian life; he seeks to please the recruiter. 5 Also, if anyone competes as an athlete, he is not crowned unless he competes according to the rules. 6 The hardworking farmer ought to be the first to get a share of the crops. [e] 7 Consider what I say, for the Lord will give you understanding in everything.

8 Keep your attention on Jesus Christ as risen from the dead [f] and descended from David. This is according to my gospel. 9 I suffer for it to the point of being bound like a criminal, but God's message is not bound. 10 This is why I endure [g] all things for the elect: [h] so that they also may obtain salvation, which is in Christ Jesus, with eternal glory. [i] 11 This saying is trustworthy: [j]

For if we have died with Him, [k]
we will also live with Him;
12 if we endure, we will also reign [l] with Him;
if we deny Him, He will also deny us;
13 if we are faithless, He remains faithful,
for He cannot deny Himself.

An Approved Worker

14 Remind them of these things, charging them before God [m] not to fight about words; [n] this is in no way profitable and leads to the ruin of the hearers. 15 Be diligent to present yourself approved to God, a worker who doesn't need to be ashamed, correctly teaching the word of truth. [o] 16 But avoid irreverent, empty speech, for this will produce an even greater measure of godlessness. [p] 17 And their word will spread like gangrene; Hymenaeus [q] and Philetus are among them. 18 They have deviated from the truth, saying that the resurrection has already taken place, [r] and are overturning the faith of some. [s] 19 Nevertheless, God's solid foundation stands firm, having this inscription: [t]

> The Lord knows those who are His, [u, v] and > Everyone who names the name [w] of the Lord > must turn away from unrighteousness. [x]

20 Now in a large house there are not only gold and silver bowls, [y] but also those of wood and clay, some for honorable [A] use, some for dishonorable. [B, z] 21 So if anyone purifies himself from anything dishonorable, [C] he will be a special [D] instrument, set apart, useful to the Master, prepared for every good work. [a]

22 Flee [b] from youthful passions, and pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace, [c] along with those who call on the Lord [d] from a pure heart. 23 But reject foolish and ignorant disputes, knowing that they breed quarrels. 24 The Lord's [e] •slave must not quarrel, [f] but must be gentle to everyone, able to teach, [E] and patient, 25 instructing his opponents with gentleness. [g] Perhaps God will grant them repentance [h] leading them to the knowledge of the truth. 26 Then they may come to their senses and escape the Devil's trap, [i] having been captured by him to do his will. [j]

Difficult Times Ahead

3 But know this: Difficult times will come in the last days. [a] 2 For people will be lovers of self, [b] lovers of money, [c] boastful, proud, [d] blasphemers, disobedient to parents, ungrateful, unholy, [e] 3 unloving, irreconcilable, slanderers, [f] without self-control, brutal, without love for what is good, [g] 4 traitors, [h] reckless, [i] conceited, [j] lovers of pleasure [k] rather than lovers of God,
5 holding to the form of godliness but denying its power. [l] Avoid these people!
[m]
6 For among them are those who worm their way into households and capture idle women burdened down with sins, led along by a variety of passions, [n] 7 always learning and never able to come to a knowledge of the truth. [o] 8 Just as Jannes and Jambres [p] resisted Moses, [q] so these also resist the truth, men who are corrupt in mind, [r] worthless [s] in regard to the faith. 9 But they will not make further progress, for their lack of understanding will be clear to all, as theirs [t] was also.

Struggles in the Christian Life 10 But you have followed my teaching, conduct, purpose, [u] faith, patience, love, [v] and endurance, 11 along with the persecutions and sufferings [w] that came to me in Antioch, [x] Iconium, [y] and Lystra. [z] What persecutions I endured! Yet the Lord rescued me from them all. 12 In fact, all those who want to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted. [a] 13 Evil people and impostors will become worse, deceiving [b] and being deceived. 14 But as for you, continue in what you have learned and firmly believed. You know those who taught you, [c] 15 and you know that from childhood you have known the sacred Scriptures, [d] which are able to give you wisdom for salvation [e] through faith in Christ Jesus. 16 All Scripture is inspired by God [A, f] and is profitable for teaching, for rebuking, for correcting, for training in righteousness, 17 so that the man of God may be complete, equipped for every good work. [g]

Fulfill Your Ministry

4 I solemnly charge you before God and Christ Jesus, who is going to judge [a] the living and the dead, [b] and because of His appearing and His kingdom: [c] 2 Proclaim the message; persist in it whether convenient or not; rebuke, correct, and encourage with great patience and teaching. 3 For the time will come when they will not tolerate sound doctrine, [d] but according to their own desires, will multiply teachers for themselves because they have an itch to hear something new. A 4 They will turn away from hearing the truth and will turn aside to myths. [e] 5 But as for you, be serious about everything, endure hardship, do the work of an evangelist, [f] fulfill your ministry.

6 For I am already being poured out as a •drink offering, [g] and the time for my departure is close. 7 I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. 8 There is reserved for me in the future the crown [h] of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, [i] will give me on that day, and not only to me, but to all those who have loved His appearing. [j]

Final Instructions

9 Make every effort to come to me soon, [k] 10 for Demas [l] has deserted me, [m] because he loved this present world, and has gone to Thessalonica. [n] Crescens has gone to Galatia, [o] Titus [p] to Dalmatia. 11 Only Luke [q] is with me. Bring Mark [r] with you, for he is useful to me in the ministry. 12 I have sent Tychicus [s] to Ephesus. 13 When you come, bring the cloak I left in Troas [t] with Carpus, as well as the scrolls, especially the parchments. 14 Alexander [u] the coppersmith did great harm to me. The Lord will repay him according to his works. 15 Watch out [v] for him yourself because he strongly opposed our words.

16 At my first defense, no one stood by me, but everyone deserted me. [w] May it not be counted against them. 17 But the Lord stood with me and strengthened me, so that the proclamation might be fully made through me and all the Gentiles might hear. So I was rescued from the lion's mouth. 18 The Lord will rescue me from every evil work and will bring me safely into His heavenly kingdom. [x] To Him be the glory forever and ever! •Amen .

Benediction

19 Greet Prisca and Aquila, [y] and the household of Onesiphorus. [z] 20 Erastus [a] has remained at Corinth; I left Trophimus [b] sick at Miletus. [c] 21 Make every effort to come before winter. Eubulus greets you, as do Pudens, Linus, Claudia, and all the brothers.

22 The Lord be with your spirit. Grace be with you.

Study Notes

1:1 As Paul wrote, awaiting death, he reminded Timothy that the purpose of his apostleship had been to proclaim the gospel, the promise of life.

1:3-5 Paul and Timothy both had a heritage of faith. When Paul said he prayed for Timothy continually night and day, he used a common expression for continual prayer. Timothy was on his mind and in his prayers throughout each day.

1:6 The phrase keep ablaze the gift of God did not mean that Timothy had "let the fire go out." It was a call to action lest sluggishness set in. On "gift of God," see note at 1Tm 4:14. The laying on of . . . hands probably refers to Timothy's ordination (1Tm 4:14). This passage focuses on Paul's part in the event while 1Tm 4:14 focuses on the involvement of the full group of elders.

1:7 Spirit here probably refers to the Holy Spirit. The Greek word translated fearfulness is used in extrabiblical literature to refer to a person who fled from battle. It is a strong term for cowardice. Boldness, not cowardice, is a mark of the Holy Spirit (Pr 28:1; Ac 4:31).

1:9-10 These verses summarize the gospel for which believers suffer. They serve as a reminder of the power of God on whom we rely. The use of exalted language suggests that Paul was also arguing that so glorious a message was worth suffering for.

1:12 The phrase these things refers to Paul's imprisonment and impending death. He was confident that God would protect either the gospel (what has been entrusted to me) or his own soul ("what I have entrusted to Him"; lit "my entrustment"). Either way, it was this confidence in God that prevented Paul from being ashamed. His boldness came not from self-confidence but from God-confidence.

1:14 That good thing entrusted to you was the gospel.

1:15 Asia was the name of the Roman province in which Ephesus was located. Key people who could have supported Paul had failed to do so. We know nothing about Phygelus and Hermogenes. This highlights the bleak situation in which Paul found himself. Perhaps this is one reason why Timothy, the faithful one, was such a source of joy for Paul at this time.

1:16-18 Onesiphorus was also an example of faithfulness, in contrast to those who had abandoned Paul. Verse 18 is an expression of Paul's desire that Onesiphorus persevere, continuing in faithfulness, not being pulled away by the false ways of others.

2:1 This verse is a continuation of the call to Spirit-empowered boldness which began in 1:6.

2:4-6 In these three analogies, Paul expounded the call to service and suffering. Verse 4 calls for single-minded desire to please God. Verse 5 declares that a person must obey God's rules in order to succeed. Verse 6 encourages hard work by holding out the promise of blessing.

2:7 This verse is a call to contemplation of what has been written, not a promise of complete knowledge or understanding.

2:8 The phrase descended from David is a reminder of Jesus' messianic credentials.

2:11-13 The trustworthy statement moves from comfort to challenge and back to comfort. Verse 12 is a clear statement on the necessity of perseverance. As Jesus said, only the person who endures will be saved (Mt 10:22). Verse 13 is a reminder of God's preserving power and faithfulness. In this context, to deny Him envisions a more serious offense than being faithless. To "deny Him" envisions apostasy, whereas "faithless" refers to a lapse in trust, which is something every believer does at some point.

2:14 It is clear that Paul was willing to confront people when the gospel was at stake. For example, he opposed Peter to his face (Gl 2:11). What he had in mind here was meaningless argument.

2:15 Be diligent could also be translated, "Be zealous." Paul had in mind a zealous pursuit of God's approval. One way to do this is to make sure we handle Scripture correctly.

2:17 Hymenaeus was mentioned as a false teacher previously in 1Tm 1:20, but Philetus is not mentioned elsewhere.

2:18 The idea that the resurrection has already taken place is similar to what Paul discussed in 1 Corinthians 15. Apparently some people were teaching that believers had already entered the glorified post-resurrection state. We do not know much about this heresy.

2:19 In spite of the work of these evildoers and evil teachers, God's church still stands firm. The inscription emphasizes both divine sovereignty (preserving) and human responsibility (persevering).

2:22 The word passions in this context refers to sinful desires in general. The desires that are particularly characteristic of youth could include sexual desires, the longing for novelty, or perhaps even impulsiveness (v. 24). It is significant that fleeing wrong is combined with pursuing right. Also, the pursuit of right is not to be done alone but along with other believers.

2:23 On ignorant disputes, see note at verse 14.

2:24 With the word slave, Paul referred to those who preached the gospel, e.g., Paul himself (Rm 1:1; Gl 1:10; Ti 1:1) and Epaphras (Col 4:12).

2:25 The knowledge of the truth is salvation.

2:26 Paul often described humanity as enslaved by the Devil and in need of rescue (2Co 4:4).

3:1 The words last days are more than a prediction. They are also an assessment of what was happening in Paul's time (1Tm 4:1).

3:5 These false teachers had the external trappings of godliness but not the real essence.

3:6 Because of their guilt from their past, these women burdened down with sins were particularly susceptible to the asceticism and legalism of these false teachers.

3:8 Jannes and Jambres were the names given in early Jewish nonbiblical writings to the Egyptian magicians who opposed Moses (Ex 7:8-13). Though the names do not appear in the Hebrew Bible, they would have been familiar to Timothy from Jewish writings about Moses.

3:10 The words but you set verses 1-9 in contrast with verses 10-17. The false teachers lived and taught one way, but Paul provided a totally different model for Timothy.

3:11 Antioch, Iconium, and Lystra were the cities that Paul visited on his first missionary journey. Thus, when looking for examples of his sufferings Paul referred to his earliest mission work. Some have questioned why he would refer so far back, especially since this would have been before Timothy joined Paul. But Lystra was Timothy's hometown, so he was probably aware of what had happened to Paul there. In effect Paul is saying: "Timothy, you have known from your earliest awareness of me that suffering is a part of the gospel work."

3:14 The phrase those who taught you probably refers to Timothy's mother and grandmother (1:5), especially since verse 15 mentions the teaching he received in childhood.

3:15 The phrase give you wisdom for salvation means that Scripture could lead Timothy to the "knowledge of the truth" (2:25; 1Tm 2:4). Scripture has the power to bring people to faith.

3:16-17 Inspired means "breathed out by God" (see textual footnote on 3:16).

Because Scripture comes from God Himself, it is profitable in many ways, ultimately leading us to righteousness, maturity, and service. All Scripture refers to the OT, but by implication to the writings of the NT as well (1Tm 5:18; 2Pt 3:15-16).

4:1-8 These verses flow naturally out of 3:10-17. The strong statements about the saving and edifying power of Scripture in 3:15-17 lead to the command to proclaim this Word (4:1-4).

4:1 The solemnity of the charge is heightened by references to living before the gaze of God, to the fact that this God is judge, to Christ's second coming (appearing), and to the reality of His present reign over His Kingdom.

4:3 Since Paul exhorted Timothy in how to respond when these things occurred, it is apparent that he did not refer only to some time in the distant future, but to a situation he expected Timothy to face or was already facing.

4:4 The word myths does not refer to the content of the false teaching. It characterizes the teaching as fanciful and without a serious basis (1Tm 1:4).

4:6 By referring to a drink offering, Paul used OT sacrificial language to refer to his own death (Gn 35:14; Ex 29:40-41; Lv 23:13; Nm 15:5-10). This suggests he saw himself as laying down his life for the sake of the gospel.

4:8 Crown of righteousness probably means "the crown which consists of righteousness," referring to the final righteous state of believers. Thus, it will be given not only to Paul but to all those who have loved His appearing, a reference to all believers.

4:10 Paul persevered in spite of suffering (1:11-12; 2:8-13) because he had an eternal perspective (4:6-8), but Demas abandoned Paul because he loved this present world.

Interior of the Mamertine Prison. This second imprisonment was far more severe than the house arrest Paul experienced when he first came to Rome (Ac 28:30-31). Some of his friends deserted him at this time (2Tm 4:10). Onesiphorus was not ashamed of Paul's chains. He searched him out, came to the prison, and ministered to Paul (1:13-18).

4:11 In spite of his earlier disapproval of Mark (Ac 15:36-40), Paul now desired Mark's presence and considered him useful . . . in the ministry.

4:14 The Alexander mentioned here cannot be identified with certainty. Paul mentioned an Alexander in 1Tm 1:20 as a person who had been excommunicated. He may have still been in Ephesus causing trouble. Or, since he is identified as a coppersmith, and there is evidence of a guild of coppersmiths in Troas, this may refer to a different man living in Troas. This would explain his appearance here after Paul asked Timothy to visit Troas.

4:16 In his forgiveness of others, Paul followed the teaching and model of Jesus (Lk 23:34), the practice of Stephen whom Paul saw die (Ac 7:60), and his own teaching (1Co 13:5).

4:17 Deliverance from a lion's mouth was a common biblical metaphor for rescue from great danger (Ps 22:21).

4:19 Prisca is a variant of Priscilla. This is a reference to the Priscilla and Aquila often mentioned in connection with Paul (e.g., Rm 16:3; 1Co 16:19).

4:21 This verse repeats the essence of verse 9. Travel in the Mediterranean area was usually suspended during winter because the weather resulted in dangerous conditions on land and sea. Therefore, if the trip were not completed by then, Timothy would be delayed and not be able to come "soon" (v. 9).

4:22 Paul used the phrase be with your spirit also in his closing in Gl 6:18, Php 4:23, and Phm 25. There does not appear to be any significant difference in meaning from his more common "be with you" (Rm 16:20; 1Co 16:23; 2Co 13:13; 2Th 3:18).

aphtharsia
Greek Pronunciation [ahf thahr SEE ah]
HCSB Translation immortality
Uses in 2 Timothy 1
Uses in the NT 7
Focus passage 2 Timothy 1:10

The apostle Paul uses aphtharsia (incorruption, immortality) in reference to two concepts: physical state and temporal aspect. With respect to physical state, aphtharsia refers to the state of not being subject to perishing or decay (i.e., incorruption). For example, in 1Co 15, Paul uses aphtharsia four times to refer to the resurrection body. So, the Christian's corruptible, earthly body will be changed to incorruption (i.e., the state of being imperishable) through resurrection from the dead (1Co 15:42,50,53-54). Naturally, that which is incorruptible is also immortal. The relationship of these two concepts provides the bridge to the temporal aspect of aphtharsia , in which the term refers to a continuous state or process (immortality). Christ Jesus abolished death and brought life and immortality (i.e., continuous life) to light through the gospel (2Tm 1:10).

epitimao
Greek Pronunciation [eh pee tih MAH oh]
HCSB Translation rebuke, warn
Uses in 2 Timothy 1
Uses in the NT 29
Focus passage 2 Timothy 4:2

Epitimao (to rebuke) appears almost exclusively in the Gospels (27x) and typically refers to a threatening command or rebuke with negative implications for the one rebuked. Jesus rebuked the wind and sea (Mt 8:26), a fever (Lk 4:39), and demons (Mt 17:18 = Mk 9:25; Lk 4:35,41). He rebuked James, John (Lk 9:55), and Peter (Mk 8:33). However, epitimao may have positive implications for the one rebuked when that rebuke is intended to prevent improper behavior. In such cases, it may be translated to rebuke, warn, or correct. Jesus commanded His disciples to rebuke a sinning brother (Lk 17:3), and warned them to keep His identity secret (Mt 12:16; Lk 9:21). Peter inappropriately rebuked Jesus (Mt 16:22 = Mk 8:32). The disciples rebuked those bringing their children to obtain Jesus' blessing (Mt 19:13 = Mk 10:13 = Lk 18:15). Outside the Gospels, rebuking is part of the pastoral role (2Tm 4:2).

The Bible and Women

Mary A. Kassian

The Bible highly esteems women. It teaches that they are co-bearers of the image of God—that He crowned them with honor and glory, and gave them charge to exercise dominion over the earth. Women, along with men, have the enormous dignity, privilege, and responsibility to put the glory of God on display (Is 43:6-7). The Bible highly esteems women, but unfortunately, women do not always highly esteem the Bible. Some disregard it—they are apathetic and lackadaisical, unwilling to exert the effort to sharpen their Bible study habits, and unconcerned about applying the word of God to their lives. Others disrespect it—they think that they have the right to choose which parts are or are not applicable to women today. Others deride it—claiming that since the writers were exclusively men, Scripture is flawed and insufficient for women. The tendency for women to disrespect and deride the Bible is particularly prevalent in our post-feminist society, even amongst those who claim to follow Christ.

Two women who had an enormous respect for the Bible were Eunice and Lois, Timothy's mother and grandmother. Paul credits them with Timothy's conversion (2Tm 1:5). He also credits them with carefully teaching Timothy Scripture and doctrine. Timothy's father was not a believer, so he didn't contribute to Timothy's spiritual training (Ac 16:1). It was Eunice and Lois that acquainted Timothy with "the sacred Scriptures," taught him what they meant, instructed him in the ways of the Lord, and ensured that he received instruction for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus (2Tm 3:14-15).

Paul reminds Timothy about his mother's and grandmother's attitude toward Scripture and their skill in studying, understanding, and applying it. He wrote the well-known verses about all Scripture being inspired by God and "profitable for teaching, for rebuking, for correcting, for training in righteousness," to make us competent and equipped for every good work, in the context of the outstanding job that Eunice and Lois did equipping Timothy (2Tm 3:14-17). These two women did not disregard, disrespect, or deride the Bible. They held it in highest esteem.

In order to influence for Christ those who are in our relational sphere, women need to have the same regard for Scripture that Eunice and Lois had. We need to be students of the Bible and diligently study it, so we can correctly teach the word of truth (2Tm 2:15). "Correctly teaching" (Gk orthotomounta ; "cutting straight, holding a straight course, doing right, rightly dividing") suggests the imagery of a farmer cutting a straight furrow, a builder cutting a stone, or a tentmaker cutting the cloth. Precise, faultless workmanship is indicated. Women have a responsibility to develop their ability to handle Scripture correctly. Those who fail to do this are susceptible to error (2Tm 3:6). Women who highly esteem the Bible and have a good grasp of doctrine will be able to "teach what is good" and will have a tremendous impact in mentoring their children and friends in the ways of the Lord (Ti 2:3-4).

TITUS

Greeting

1 Paul, [a] a •slave of God [b] and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to build up [A] the faith of God's elect [c] and their knowledge of the truth [d] that leads [B] to godliness, [e] 2 in the hope of eternal life [f] that God, who cannot lie, [g] promised before time began. [h] 3 In His own time He has revealed [i] His message [j] in the proclamation that I was entrusted [k] with by the command [l] of God our Savior: [m] 4 To Titus, [n] my true son [o] in our common faith.
Grace and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Savior. [p]

Titus's Ministry in Crete

5 The reason I left you in Crete [q] was to set right what was left undone and, as I directed you, to appoint elders [r] in every town: 6 one [s] who is blameless, [t] the husband of one wife, having faithful [C] children not accused of wildness or rebellion. 7 For an •overseer , [u] as God's administrator, must be blameless, not arrogant, not hot-tempered, not addicted to wine, not a bully, not greedy for money, 8 but hospitable, loving what is good, sensible, righteous, holy, self-controlled, 9 holding to the faithful message as taught, [v] so that he will be able both to encourage with sound teaching [w] and to refute those who contradict it.
10 For there are also many rebellious people, full of empty talk and deception, especially those from Judaism. [D] 11 It is necessary to silence them; they overthrow whole households by teaching what they shouldn't in order to get money dishonestly. 12 One of their very own prophets said,

Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons. [x]

13 This testimony is true. [y] So, rebuke them sharply, [z] that they may be sound in the faith 14 and may not pay attention to Jewish myths [a] and the commands of men who reject the truth. [b] 15 To the pure, everything is pure, but to those who are defiled and unbelieving nothing is pure; in fact, both their mind and conscience [c] are defiled.
16 They profess to know God, [d] but they deny Him by their works. [e] They are detestable, disobedient, and disqualified for any good work. [f]

Sound Teaching and Christian Living

2 But you must say the things that are consistent with sound teaching. [a]
2 Older men [b] are to be level headed, worthy of respect, sensible, and sound in faith, love, [c] and endurance. 3 In the same way, older women [d] are to be reverent in behavior, not slanderers, not addicted to much wine. They are to teach what is good, 4 so they may encourage the young women to love their husbands and to love their children, 5 to be self-controlled, pure, homemakers, kind, and submissive [e] to their husbands, so that God's message [f] will not be slandered.

6 In the same way, encourage the young men [g] to be self-controlled 7 in everything. Make yourself an example of good works with integrity and dignity [h] in your teaching. 8 Your message is to be sound beyond reproach, [i] so that the opponent will be ashamed, having nothing bad to say about us.

9 •Slaves are to be submissive to their masters [j] in everything, and to be well-pleasing, [k] not talking back 10 or stealing, but demonstrating utter faithfulness, so that they may adorn the teaching of God our Savior [l] in everything.

11 For the grace of God has appeared with salvation [A] for all people, [m] 12 instructing us to deny godlessness [n] and worldly lusts [o] and to live in a sensible, righteous, [p] and godly [q] way in the present age, 13 while we wait for the blessed hope [r] and appearing of the glory [s] of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ. 14 He gave Himself for us [t] to •redeem us from all lawlessness and to cleanse for Himself a people for His own possession, [u] eager to do good works.

15 Say these things, and encourage and rebuke with all authority. Let no one disregard [B] you.

Christian Living among Outsiders

3 Remind them to be submissive [a] to rulers and authorities, to obey, to be ready for every good work, 2 to slander no one, to avoid fighting, and to be kind, always showing gentleness [b] to all people. 3 For we too were once foolish, disobedient, deceived, enslaved by various passions [c] and pleasures, [d] living in malice and envy, hateful, detesting one another.

4 But when the kindness of God our Savior and His love for mankind appeared, [e] 5 He saved us [f] — not by works of righteousness that we had done, [g]
but according to His mercy, [h] through the washing of regeneration [i] and renewal by the Holy Spirit. [j] 6 He poured out this Spirit on us abundantly [k]
through Jesus Christ our Savior, 7 so that having been •justified by His grace, [l]
we may become heirs with the hope of eternal life. [m]

8 This saying is trustworthy. [n] I want you to insist on these things, so that those who have believed God might be careful to devote themselves to good works.
These are good and profitable for everyone. 9 But avoid foolish debates, [o] genealogies, [p] quarrels, [q] and disputes about the law, for they are unprofitable and worthless. 10 Reject a divisive [r] person after a first and second warning, [s] 11 knowing that such a person is perverted and sins, being self-condemned.

Final Instructions and Closing

12 When I send Artemas or Tychicus to you, [t] make every effort to come to me [u] in Nicopolis, for I have decided to spend the winter there. 13 Diligently help Zenas the lawyer and Apollos [v] on their journey, so that they will lack [w] nothing.

14 And our people must also learn to devote themselves to good works for cases of urgent need, so that they will not be unfruitful. [x] 15 All those who are with me greet you. Greet those who love us in the faith. Grace be with all of you. [y]

Study Notes

1:1 Slave is sometimes translated "servant," but the stronger word used here is better. The stark terminology is intentional. Paul often used this term as a designation for himself (Rm 1:1; Gl 1:10; Php 1:1) and other Christians (1Co 7:22; Eph 6:6; Col 4:12; see also 2Pt 1:1; Jd 1; Rv 2:20). This terminology is common for leaders in the OT as well. To build up translates a difficult phrase. The idea is that the purpose of Paul's apostleship was to see people come to faith and grow in faith and knowledge of the truth. The word "truth" refers to the gospel specifically, and this gospel leads to godliness.

1:5 On elders, see notes at 1Tm 3:1 and 3:2-7.

1:6 On husband of one wife, see note at 1Tm 3:2. Having faithful children assumes, but does not require, that such men will likely have children at home still under their authority. The word "faithful" can also be translated "believing." This raises an important question about whether pastors are required to have Christian children or children who are more generally "faithful" or obedient. This word and its related forms in 1 Timothy, 2 Timothy, and Titus most often refer to having saving faith and not merely to being "faithful." But context is the primary issue in understanding which nuance of the word is intended. The emphasis of the context here is on a man fulfilling his duties well. No father can guarantee the conversion of his own children. He can better insure that they act in a "faithful" way while they live under his supervision. Also, the parallel passage in 1 Timothy 3 speaks only to the children being well behaved, not to their conversion. Thus, Paul was requiring pastors to govern the behavior of their children, not allowing them to be characterized by wildness or rebellion.

1:9 It was common for ancient authors to emphasize one item in a list by placing it at the beginning or end and then giving it significantly longer treatment than the other items. This is what Paul does here. While he spent only a few words on the items in verses 6-9, his treatment of this last subject is both long and grammatically complex. By this means he emphasized the importance of an "overseer" (v. 7) being able to teach. The reason for this is clear from what follows (vv. 10-16).

1:12 Crete was known in the ancient world for its moral decadence. The ancient historian Polybius wrote that it was "almost impossible to find . . . personal conduct more treacherous or public policy more unjust than in Crete" (Histories, 6.47). Cicero also stated, "Moral principles are so divergent that the Cretans . . . consider highway robbery honorable" (Republic, 3.9.15).

1:14 On myths, see note at 1Tm 1:4. The specific content of the "myths" and command Paul had in mind in the present verse is unstated, but the false teaching in Titus is more explicitly tied to a Jewish background (v. 10) than that referenced in 1 and 2 Timothy.

1:15 This statement echoes Jesus' teaching (Lk 11:41) and Paul's earlier writing (Rm 14:20). In light of the Jewish origin of the false teaching and contexts of the earlier use of similar wording by Jesus and Paul, the issue here was probably Jewish food laws. The false teachers seemed to be concerned with this ritual purity, but were nevertheless defiled by their own unbelief and sin.

1:16 The actions (works) of these people proved conclusively that they were unbelievers, although they claimed to know God. Paul was not hesitant to make such a judgment. The three descriptors at the end of the verse summarize the behavior that proved they did not know God.

2:1 The intentional contrast but you must not be missed. While some people's deeds disprove their claim to know God, Titus in contrast was to teach the people to live in a way consistent with sound teaching—in a way that would affirm rather than deny their claim to know God. The instruction addressed typical groups within the family structure (older men, older women, younger women, younger men, and slaves).

2:3-5 The teaching in these verses is practical and focuses on the domestic sphere. Paul emphasizes that older women can help model for young women what it means to be a wife and mother.

2:5, 8, 10 In each of these verses important statements are made about the desired result of "gospel living." Such living keeps us from providing a basis for the gospel (God's message) to be slandered. Such living also highlights the attractiveness of the gospel.

2:11-14 This paragraph provides the theological basis for the lifestyle commended in verses 1-10. Christians should live sanctified lives because the grace of God that saves us also instructs us to live in a new way. A person cannot claim to be a recipient of God's saving grace if he is not also a trainee in the lifestyle made possible by grace.

2:11 This verse has sometimes been misunderstood as saying that all people will be saved. However, such a reading is not made necessary by the words here, and it flatly contradicts other portions of Scripture. The force of all people is to emphasize the universal offer of the gospel. The offer of salvation is proclaimed not just to one group but to all peoples.

2:12 Godlessness refers to behavior that is not in accordance with God's ways. Lusts refer not only to sexual desires but to sinful desires in general.

2:13 The verb used here for wait often carries a connotation of eagerness. The eager expectation of the return of Christ mentioned here is not just the time of the instruction of grace ("while we wait"); it is also the way grace teaches us to renounce sin and live in a "godly way" (v. 12). Setting our minds on the truth of Christ's return impels us to holiness (1Jn 3:2-3). The blessed hope is the appearing of . . . Christ. The reference to Jesus as God and Savior is a strong affirmation of His deity.

2:14 The phrase people for His own possession translates an unusual phrase with intentional echoes from the OT (Ex 19:5; Mal 3:17). The phrase expresses the sense of "prized, treasured possession" (1Pt 2:9).

2:15 This verse is an unmistakable call for authoritative teaching in the church.

3:1 The phrase ready for every good work refers back to 1:16 and 2:14. The false teachers were "disqualified for any good work" (1:16). One of the purposes of the cross was to create a people "eager to do good works" (2:14). And here, in contrast to the false teachers, Titus was to teach the people to be "ready for every good work." The qualities encouraged here (vv. 1-3) are in contrast to the description of the false teachers in 1:10-16.

3:3-7 These verses provide the doctrinal basis for the teaching in verses 1-2.

3:4 The words goodness of God and His love for mankind stand in stark contrast to the description of lost humanity in verse 3. The difference is due to the appearance of God our Savior, Jesus Christ.

3:5 Salvation comes not by works but through the washing of regeneration and renewal by the Holy Spirit. Some interpreters have understood this as saying that baptism ("the washing") causes salvation, but in the context human deeds are clearly downplayed and the emphasis is on divine action and initiative. The washing described here is the spiritual cleansing that is symbolized outwardly by water baptism.

3:8 The command to insist on these things is similar to 2:15. Note the emphasis on good works as a mark of believers (v. 1; 1:16; 2:14).

3:9 As elsewhere in the letters to Timothy and Titus, the exact nature of these debates and quarrels is not clear (e.g., 1:10-14). The point is that these disputes were worthless.

3:10-11 As the marginal readings for these verses indicate, this is a reference to the final stage of church discipline. A divisive person who refused to repent and change after being confronted showed himself to be twisted by sin; thus, he was self-condemned.

3:14 Having emphasized the importance of good works throughout the letter and having just called for the assistance of fellow laborers (v. 13), Paul paused once more to emphasize the importance of good works. The opportunity to assist Zenas and Apollos was another example of how Titus could be involved in "good works."

3:15 The plural greeting grace be with all of you appears odd in a letter addressed to an audience of one (Titus), but it shows Paul's awareness (and likely his intention) that the letter, though written primarily to Titus, would be read to the entire congregation.

Uses in Titus 1
Uses in the NT 5
Focus passage Titus 1:7

By the time of the NT, episkopos already enjoyed a long history of usage, referring to deities or community officials, rulers, or leaders. In the NT, however, the term takes on a clearly religious overtone, appearing as a title meaning an overseer (apparently synonymous with presbuteros [elder] ; Ac 20:28; Ti 1:7). In the early church, the Holy Spirit commissioned each overseer through apostolic selection and appointment (Ac 14:23, 20:28; Ti 1:7). The overseer held a vital service role within the congregation (1Tm 3:1). This necessitated high moral standards and management skills (1Tm 3:2-7; Ti 1:7-9). Several overseers were responsible for shepherding and managing the affairs of their local congregation (Ac 20:28; Php 1:1; Ti 1:7). Jesus, to whom belongs the church, is the "shepherd and guardian" par excellence (1Pt 2:25).

Greeting

1 Paul, [a] a prisoner [b] of Christ Jesus, [c] and Timothy [d] our brother:

To Philemon our dear friend and coworker, [2] to Apphia our sister, [e] to Archippus [f] our fellow soldier, [g] and to the church that meets in your home. [h]
[3] Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

Philemon's Love and Faith [4] I always thank my God when I mention you in my prayers, [5] because I hear of your love [i] and faith toward [A] the Lord Jesus and for all the •saints . [6] I pray that your participation in the faith may become effective [j] through knowing every good thing [k] that is in us [l] for the glory of Christ. [7] For I have great joy and encouragement from your love, because the hearts of the saints have been refreshed [m] through you, brother.

An Appeal for Onesimus

8 For this reason, although I have great boldness in Christ to command you to do what is right, 9 I appeal to you, instead, on the basis of love. I, Paul, as an elderly man [B] and now also as a prisoner [n] of Christ Jesus, 10 appeal to you for my son, [o] Onesimus. [C, p] I fathered [q, r] him while I was in chains. 11 Once he was useless to you, but now he is useful both to you and to me. 12 I am sending him back to you as a part of myself. [s, D] 13 I wanted to keep him with me, so that in my imprisonment for the gospel he might serve me in your place. 14 But I didn't want to do anything without your consent, so that your good deed might not be out of obligation, but of your own free will. 15 For perhaps this is why he was separated from you for a brief time, so that you might get him back permanently, 16 no longer as a •slave , but more than a slave — as a dearly loved brother. He is especially so to me, but even more to you, both in the flesh [t] and in the Lord. [u, v]

17 So if you consider me a partner, accept [w] him as you would me. 18 And if he has wronged you in any way, or owes you anything, charge that to my account. [x] 19 I, Paul, write this with my own hand: [y] I will repay it — not to mention to you that you owe me even your own self. 20 Yes, brother, may I have joy from you in the Lord; refresh my heart in Christ. 21 Since I am confident of your obedience, I am writing to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say. 22 But meanwhile, also prepare a guest room for me, for I hope that through your prayers I will be restored to you.

Final Greetings

23 Epaphras, [z] my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, greets you, and so do 24 Mark, [a] Aristarchus, [b] Demas, and Luke, [c] my coworkers.
25 The grace of the Lord [d, e] Jesus Christ be with your spirit. [f]

PHILEMON

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes

Introduction

The Lycus River Valley as seen from Colossae. Philemon came to faith in Christ when Paul was in Ephesus. At the time this letter was written, the church at Colossae met in the home of Philemon, his wife, Apphia, and their son, Archippus.

Philemon is Paul's only letter of a private nature. It concerns a runaway slave, Onesimus, who had robbed his master, Philemon, and escaped from Colossae to Rome. There Onesimus met the imprisoned apostle Paul. Paul wrote to Philemon concerning Onesimus. Paul sent both the letter and Onesimus back to Colossae. By comparison to Paul's other letters, Philemon is little more than a postcard, but it comes from the tender heart of a friend writing as a friend rather than as an apostle exercising his authority.

Circumstances of Writing

Author: During Paul's two-year imprisonment in Rome (Ac 28:30), probably during A.D. 60-61, he wrote four "prison epistles," one of which was Philemon (the others were Colossians, Ephesians, and Philippians).

Background: References to Paul's being in prison at the time of writing are found in verses 1,9-10,13, and perhaps 23. Paul was kept under house arrest—what the Romans called "free custody"—in his own rented house as he awaited trial (Ac 28:30).

Although Paul addresses the letter to Apphia, Archippus, and the church that meets in Philemon's house (vv. 1-2), the main addressee is Philemon himself, for "you" or "your" (vv. 2,4-21,23) is singular and refers to Philemon. Apparently he was a prosperous businessman living in Colossae (implied in Col 4:9) whose household included several slaves and whose house was large enough to accommodate meetings of the young church. He had been converted through Paul's ministry, perhaps by Paul himself (vv. 10,19), and had become Paul's "dear friend and coworker" (v. 1) and "partner" (v. 17) in the gospel service. Although the letter is basically Paul's personal appeal to Philemon, the plural "you" (vv. 3,22) and "your" (vv. 22,25) indicate that the whole church would have listened to its reading and thus been witnesses of Philemon's response to Paul's requests.

Onesimus had apparently run away and taken with him some of his master's money or possessions (vv. 15,18). Perhaps attracted by the anonymity of a large, distant city, he traveled to Rome seeking a life of freedom. His path crossed Paul's, and he became a Christian (vv. 10,16) and a useful helper to Paul (v. 11).

An alternative view denies that Onesimus was a runaway looking for freedom. It instead suggests that he left Philemon and looked for Paul so that Paul could become his advocate regarding some serious loss Philemon had experienced. All along Onesimus had intended to return to his master's household. Paul was therefore not guilty of harboring a fugitive slave. But on this view we would expect Paul to reassure Philemon that Onesimus had always intended to return.

Message and Purpose: This letter has served as an inspiration for the liberation of slaves. Paul's clear preference was to keep Onesimus with him (v. 13), but he recognized that Philemon was his legal owner and decided to send him back (v. 12) so Philemon could either reinstate him as a slave who was now also a Christian brother (vv. 15-16) or else set him free for further service to Paul back in Rome (vv. 13,20-21). Onesimus returned to his master with this letter, knowing that Paul was confident of Philemon's "obedience" (v. 21) but also knowing that neither forgiveness nor reinstatement nor emancipation was guaranteed.

Contribution to the Bible: Although it is the shortest and most personal of Paul's letters, Philemon was included in the New Testament canon for several reasons.

First, it illustrates the breaking down of social and cultural barriers that occurred between Christians (see Gl 3:28). Paul, a highly educated Roman citizen, takes up the cause of a poor runaway slave whose life was in danger because of his theft and flight (Phm 18). Social and cultural barriers are eliminated in Christian fellowship.

Second, it reflects early Christian attitudes towards slavery. Although Paul accepts (but does not endorse) slavery as an existing social condition and as a legal fact (see v. 12), he emphasizes Onesimus's higher identity as a Christian brother and sets the master-slave relationship on a new footing (v. 16) and so ultimately undermines the institution of slavery. This contrasts with dominant views of the ancient world. For instance, Aristotle defined a slave as "a living tool, just as a tool is an inanimate slave" (Nicomachean Ethics viii. 11. 6).

Third, it shows a skillful pastor at work: Paul gives up his apostolic right to issue commands (vv. 8-9) and prefers to appeal to Philemon's free choice (vv. 10,14) to follow his Christian conscience in deciding how his love should be expressed (vv. 5,7); he identifies with Onesimus, his spiritual son (v. 10), calling him "a part of myself" (v. 12) and guaranteeing to repay his debts (vv. 18-19); and he gives his requests to Philemon in the hearing of the whole local church (vv. 1-3,22-25).

Fourth, it pictures the heart of the gospel (vv. 16-19). When we come to God in repentance and faith, He gives us a new status and welcomes us as if we were Christ. What we owe God, He has debited to Christ's account. Christ assumed personal responsibility for the full repayment of our debt to God.

Study Notes

vv. 1 On prisoner, see Introduction. In the phrase of Christ Jesus, “of” may mean “belonging to,” “for the sake of,” or “because of [my service for].” Or perhaps all three senses are involved. Timothy is associated with Paul as co-author or co-sender, but the letter is primarily Paul’s own intercession with Philemon on behalf of Onesimus, for only the singular “I” (not “we”) is found in verses 4-22.

vv. 2 Apphia was probably Philemon’s wife and Archippus their son. There is no evidence of special buildings being used for church activities until the third century. Until that time houses served as meeting places. NT references to house churches and their hosts are: Gaius at Corinth (Rm 16:23); Aquila and Priscilla at Ephesus (1Co 16:19) and at Rome (Rm 16:3,5); Lydia at Philippi (Ac 16:15,40); Nympha at Laodicea (Col 4:15); Philemon at Colossae (Phm 2); and probably Mary at Jerusalem (Ac 12:12) and Jason at Thessalonica (Ac 17:5-6).

vv. 4 Paul’s letters usually begin with prayers of thanksgiving for his readers’ spiritual life and progress (e.g., Rm 1:8; 1Co 1:4-7; Php 1:3-5).

vv. 5 Because believers do not have faith . . . for all the saints, the word-order may be a literary technique called “chiasm” where words or phrases correspond to one another crosswise (A-B-B-A), like the Greek letter chi (X). Thus the verse means, “your love for all the saints and faith toward the Lord Jesus.”

vv. 11 Through the conversion power of the gospel (see “my son” in v. 10), a person who had previously been useless (Gk achrestos) had become useful (Gk euchrestos), now living up to his name (Onesimus means “useful” in Greek).

vv. 12 A runaway slave who was returned to his rightful owner could face a variety of punishments, including flogging, branding, chains, or even crucifixion.

vv. 15-16 Whatever his personal hope (see vv. 11-12), Paul seriously reckons with the possibility that Philemon might decide to retain the services of Onesimus as a slave permanently. Paul implies (v. 15) that Onesimus’s separation from Philemon, which was caused by the slave’s unlawful departure, was encompassed within the gracious, providential will of God. Upon his return, Onesimus would be even dearer to Philemon than he was to Paul because their dual relation as slave and master (in the flesh) and as Christian brothers (in the Lord) would be experienced within the intimacy of a single household.

vv. 18 The wrong that Onesimus had done may have been some misconduct before he ran away, a theft when he disappeared, or the loss Philemon suffered by Onesimus's unlawful absence.

vv. 19 Unlike his usual practice of dictating his letters to a scribe (see Rm 16:22), Paul may have written this short and intensely personal letter by his own hand. In any case, Paul here is giving a promissory note, a signed statement of indebtedness (Gk cheirographon in Col 2:14), by which he formally and legally assumes all of Onesimus's indebtedness toward Philemon. This is a remarkable promise when we remember that Paul was poor (2Co 6:10).

vv. 21 By your obedience, Paul could have meant obedience to God's will, obedience to his own requests as a friend and "prisoner of Christ Jesus" (v. 1), or obedience to "what is right" (v. 8). The undefined and climactic you will do even more could refer to the forgiveness of Onesimus and his reinstatement as a slave in Philemon's household. More probably it refers to the setting free (manumission) of Onesimus, allowing him to enter Christian service there at Colossae or at Rome with Paul.

vv. 22 The request for a guest room suggests Paul expected to be released from prison and pay Philemon a visit to see how his letter had impacted the relationship between Philemon and Onesimus.

vv. 23-24 For these names, see Col 4:10,12,14.

vv. 25 All of Paul's letters begin and end with a reference to grace (Gk charis), God's unsought and undeserved favor, His free and unmerited saving action. Salvation and all its associated blessings were brought by Christ (2Co 8:9; 12:9). Although in Paul's benedictions Christ is the sole source of charis, in his salutations (as in Phm 3) God the Father and Christ are generally mentioned as the joint and unified source of charis .

HEBREWS

The Nature of the Son

1 Long ago God spoke [a] to the fathers by the prophets [b] at different times and in different ways. [c] 2 In these last days, [d] He has spoken to us by His Son.
God has appointed Him heir of all things and made the universe [A, e] through Him. 3 The Son is the radiance [B] of God's glory and the exact expression [C] of His nature, sustaining all things by His powerful word. After making purification for sins, [f] He sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high. [D, g] 4 So He became higher in rank than the angels, just as the name He inherited is superior to theirs. [h]

The Son Superior to Angels

5 For to which of the angels did He ever say, You are My Son; today I have become Your Father, [E, i] or again, I will be His Father, and He will be My Son? [j, k] 6 When He again [F] brings His firstborn into the world, [l] He says, And all God's angels must worship Him. [m, n] 7 And about the angels He says:

He makes His angels winds, [G]
and His servants [H] a fiery flame, [o, p]

8 but to [I] the Son:

Your throne, God,
is forever and ever,
and the scepter of Your kingdom is a scepter of justice. [q] 9 You have loved righteousness and hated lawlessness;
this is why God, Your God, has anointed You with the oil of joy [r]
rather than Your companions. [J, s]

10 And:

In the beginning, Lord,
You established the earth,
and the heavens are the works of Your hands; [t]
11 they will perish, but You remain.
They will all wear out like clothing; [u] 12 You will roll them up like a cloak, [v]
and they will be changed like a robe.
But You are the same,
and Your years will never end. [w, x]

13 Now to which of the angels has He ever said:
Sit at My right hand
until I make Your enemies Your footstool? [K, y, z] 14 Are they not all ministering spirits sent out to serve those who are going to inherit salvation? [a]

Warning against Neglect

2 We must, therefore, pay even more attention to what we have heard, so that we will not drift away. 2 For if the message spoken through angels was legally binding A, a and every transgression and disobedience received a just punishment, b 3 how will we escape if we neglect such a great salvation? It was first spoken by the Lord and was confirmed to us by those who heard Him. c 4 At the same time, God also testified by signs and wonders, various miracles, and distributions of gifts from the Holy Spirit according to His will. d

Jesus and Humanity

5 For He has not subjected to angels the world to come that we are talking about. 6 But one has somewhere testified:

What is man that You remember him, or the son of man that You care for him?
7 You made him lower than the angels
for a short time;
You crowned him with glory and honor [e]
8 and subjected everything under his feet. [f]

For in subjecting everything to him, He left nothing that is not subject to him.
As it is, we do not yet see everything subjected to him. [g] 9 But we do see Jesus — made lower than the angels for a short time so that by God's grace
He might taste death for everyone — crowned with glory and honor [h] because of His suffering in death. [i]

10 For in bringing many sons to glory, it was entirely appropriate that God — all things exist for Him and through Him — should make the source [B] of their salvation perfect through sufferings. [j] 11 For the One who •sanctifies and those who are sanctified all have one Father. [C] That is why Jesus is not ashamed to call them brothers, [k] 12 saying:

I will proclaim Your name to My brothers;
I will sing hymns to You in the congregation. [l, m]

13 Again, I will trust in Him. [n] And again, Here I am with the children God gave Me. [o, p]

14 Now since the children have flesh and blood in common, Jesus also shared in these, so that through His death He might destroy the one holding the power of death — that is, the Devil [q] — 15 and free those who were held in slavery all their lives by the fear of death. [r] 16 For it is clear that He does not reach out to help angels, but to help Abraham's offspring. 17 Therefore, He had to be like His brothers in every way, so that He could become a merciful and faithful high priest in service [D] to God, to make •propitiation [s] for the sins of the people. [t] 18 For since He Himself was tested and has suffered, He is able to help those who are tested.

Our Apostle and High Priest

3 Therefore, holy brothers and companions in a heavenly calling, consider Jesus, the apostle and high priest of our confession; [a] 2 He was faithful to the One who appointed Him, just as Moses was in all God's household. 3 For Jesus is considered worthy of more glory than Moses, just as the builder has more honor than the house. 4 Now every house is built by someone, but the One who built everything is God. [b] 5 Moses was faithful as a servant [c] in all God's household, as a testimony to what would be said in the future. 6 But Christ was faithful as a Son over His household. And we are that household if we hold on to the courage and the confidence of our hope. [d, e]

Warning against Unbelief

7 Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says:

Today, if you hear His voice,
8 do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion,
on the day of testing in the wilderness, 9 where your fathers tested Me, tried Me,
and saw My works 10 for 40 years.
Therefore I was provoked with that generation and said, “They always go astray in their hearts, and they have not known My ways.”
11 So I swore in My anger,
“They will not enter My rest.” f, g

12 Watch out, brothers, so that there won’t be in any of you an evil, unbelieving heart that departs from the living God. 13 But encourage each other daily, while it is still called today, so that none of you is hardened by sin’s deception. h 14 For we have become companions of the •Messiah if we hold firmly until the end the reality A that we had at the start. i 15 As it is said:

Today, if you hear His voice,
do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion. j, k

16 For who heard and rebelled? Wasn’t it really all who came out of Egypt under Moses? l 17 And who was He provoked with for 40 years? Was it not with those who sinned, whose bodies fell in the wilderness? m 18 And who did He swear to that they would not enter His rest, if not those who disobeyed? 19 So we see that they were unable to enter because of unbelief.

The Promised Rest

4 Therefore, while the promise to enter His rest remains, let us fear that none of you should miss it. [A] 2 For we also have received the good news just as they did; but the message they heard did not benefit them, since they were not united with those who heard it in faith [a, b] 3 (for we who have believed enter the rest), in keeping with what [B] He has said:

So I swore in My anger,
they will not enter My rest. [c, d]

And yet His works have been finished since the foundation of the world, 4 for somewhere He has spoken about the seventh day in this way:

And on the seventh day
God rested from all His works. [e, f]

5 Again, in that passage He says, They will never enter My rest. [g] 6 Since it remains for some to enter it, and those who formerly received the good news did not enter because of disobedience, [h] 7 again, He specifies a certain day — today — speaking through David after such a long time, as previously stated:

Today, if you hear His voice,
do not harden your hearts. [i, j]

8 For if Joshua [k] had given them rest, God would not have spoken later about another day. 9 Therefore, a Sabbath rest remains for God's people. 10 For the person who has entered His rest has rested from his own works, just as God did from His. [l] 11 Let us then make every effort to enter that rest, so that no one will fall into the same pattern of disobedience.

12 For the word of God is living and effective [m] and sharper than any double-edged sword, [n] penetrating as far as the separation of soul and spirit, joints and marrow. It is able to judge the ideas and thoughts of the heart. [o] 13 No creature is hidden from Him, but all things are naked and exposed to the eyes of Him to whom [p] we must give an account.

Our Great High Priest

14 Therefore, since we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens — Jesus the Son of God — let us hold fast to the confession. [q] 15 For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but One who has been tested in every way as we are, [r] yet without sin. [s] 16 Therefore let us approach the throne of grace with boldness, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help us at the proper time.

The Messiah, a High Priest

5 For every high priest taken from men is appointed in service [A] to God for the people, to offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins. [2] He is able to deal gently with those who are ignorant and are going astray, since he is also subject to weakness. [a] [3] Because of this, he must make a sin offering for himself as well as for the people. [b] [4] No one takes this honor on himself; instead, a person is called by God, just as Aaron was. [c] [5] In the same way, the •Messiah did not exalt Himself to become a high priest, but the One who said to Him, You are My Son;
today I have become Your Father, [d, e] [6] also said in another passage, You are a priest forever in the order of Melchizedek. [f, g]

[7] During His earthly life, [B] He offered prayers and appeals [h] with loud cries and tears [i] to the One who was able to save Him from death, and He was heard because of His reverence. [8] Though He was God's Son, He learned obedience through what He suffered. [j] [9] After He was perfected, He became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey Him, [10] and He was declared by God a high priest in the order of Melchizedek.

The Problem of Immaturity [11] We have a great deal to say about this, and it's difficult to explain, since you have become too lazy to understand. [12] Although by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you the basic principles of God's revelation again. You need milk, not solid food. [k] [13] Now everyone who lives on milk is inexperienced with the message about righteousness, because he is an infant. [14] But solid food is for the mature — for those whose senses have been trained to distinguish between good and evil. [l]

Warning against Regression

6 Therefore, leaving the elementary message about the •Messiah , let us go on to maturity, not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, faith in God, [a] [2] teaching about ritual washings, [A] laying on of hands, the resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. [b] [3] And we will do this if God permits.

[4] For it is impossible to renew to repentance those who were once enlightened, who tasted the heavenly gift, became companions with the Holy Spirit, [c] [5] tasted God's good word and the powers of the coming age, [6] and who have fallen away, because, [B] to their own harm, they are recrucifying the Son of God and holding Him up to contempt. [d] [7] For ground that has drunk the rain that has often fallen on it and that produces vegetation useful to those it is cultivated for receives a blessing from God. [8] But if it produces thorns and thistles, it is worthless and about to be cursed, and will be burned at the end. [e]

[9] Even though we are speaking this way, dear friends, in your case we are confident of the better things connected with salvation. [10] For God is not unjust;
He will not forget your work and the love [f] you showed for His name when you served the •saints — and you continue to serve them. [g] [11] Now we want each of you to demonstrate the same diligence for the final realization of your hope, [12] so that you won't become lazy but will be imitators of those who inherit the promises through faith and perseverance. [h]

Inheriting the Promise

13 For when God made a promise to Abraham, since He had no one greater to swear by, He swore by Himself:

14 I will indeed bless you, and I will greatly multiply you. [i, j]

15 And so, after waiting patiently, Abraham [C] obtained the promise. 16 For men swear by something greater than themselves, and for them a confirming oath ends every dispute. 17 Because God wanted to show His unchangeable purpose even more clearly to the heirs of the promise, He guaranteed it with an oath, [k] 18 so that through two unchangeable things, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we who have fled for refuge might have strong encouragement to seize the hope set before us. [l] 19 We have this hope as an anchor for our lives, safe and secure. It enters the inner sanctuary behind the curtain. [m] 20 Jesus has entered there on our behalf as a forerunner, [n] because He has become a high priest forever in the order of Melchizedek. [o]

The Greatness of Melchizedek

7 For this Melchizedek —

King of Salem, priest of the Most High God, who met Abraham and blessed him
as he returned from defeating the kings, 2 and Abraham gave him a tenth of everything;
first, his name means king of righteousness,
then also, king of Salem,
meaning king of peace;
3 without father, mother, or genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but resembling the Son of God [a] — remains a priest forever.

4 Now consider how great this man was — even Abraham the patriarch [b] gave a tenth of the plunder to him! 5 The sons of Levi who receive the priestly office have a command according to the law to collect a tenth from the people [c] — that is, from their brothers — though they have also descended from Abraham. [A] 6 But one without this [B] lineage collected tenths from Abraham and blessed the one who had the promises. [d] 7 Without a doubt, [C] the inferior is blessed by the superior. 8 In the one case, men who will die receive tenths, but in the other case, Scripture testifies that he lives. [e] 9 And in a sense Levi himself, who receives tenths, has paid tenths through Abraham, 10 for he was still within his ancestor [D] when Melchizedek met him.

A Superior Priesthood

11 If then, perfection came through the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the law [f]), what further need was there for another priest to appear, said to be in the order of Melchizedek and not in the order of Aaron? [g] 12 For when there is a change of the priesthood, there must be a change of law as well. 13 For the One these things are spoken about belonged to a different tribe.
No one from it has served at the altar. 14 Now it is evident that our Lord came from Judah, [h] and Moses said nothing about that tribe concerning priests.

15 And this becomes clearer if another priest like Melchizedek appears, 16 who did not become a priest based on a legal command concerning physical [E] descent but based on the power of an indestructible life. 17 For it has been testified:

You are a priest forever
in the order of Melchizedek. [i, j]

18 So the previous command is annulled because it was weak and unprofitable [k] 19 (for the law perfected [l] nothing), but a better hope is introduced, through which we draw near to God. [m]

20 None of this happened without an oath. For others became priests without an oath, 21 but He became a priest with an oath made by the One who said to Him:

The Lord has sworn,
and He will not change His mind,
You are a priest forever. [n, o]

22 So Jesus has also become the guarantee of a better covenant. [p]

23 Now many have become Levitical priests, since they are prevented by death from remaining in office. 24 But because He remains forever, He holds His priesthood permanently. 25 Therefore, He is always able to save [F] those who come to God through Him, since He always lives to intercede [q] for them.

26 For this is the kind of high priest we need: holy, innocent, undefiled, separated from sinners, and exalted above the heavens. [r] 27 He doesn't need to offer sacrifices every day, as high priests do — first for their own sins, then for those of the people. He did this once for all when He offered Himself. [s] 28 For the law appoints as high priests men who are weak, but the promise of the oath, which came after the law, appoints a Son, [t] who has been perfected [u] forever.

A Heavenly Priesthood

8 Now the main point of what is being said is this: We have this kind of high priest, who sat down at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, [a] 2 a minister of the sanctuary and the true tabernacle that was set up by the Lord and not man. [b] 3 For every high priest is appointed to offer gifts [c] and sacrifices; therefore it was necessary for this priest also to have something to offer. 4 Now if He were on earth, He wouldn’t be a priest, since there are those [d] offering the gifts prescribed by the law. 5 These serve as a copy and shadow [e] of the heavenly things, as Moses was warned when he was about to complete the tabernacle. For God said, Be careful that you make everything according to the pattern that was shown to you on the mountain. [f, g] 6 But Jesus has now obtained a superior ministry, and to that degree He is the mediator [h] of a better covenant, [i] which has been legally enacted on better promises. [j]

A Superior Covenant

7 For if that first covenant had been faultless, there would have been no occasion for a second one. 8 But finding fault with His people, [A] He says: [k]

Look, the days are coming, says the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah — 9 not like the covenant that I made with their ancestors on the day I took them by their hands to lead them out of the land of Egypt.
I disregarded them, says the Lord,
because they did not continue in My covenant.
10 But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel
after those days, says the Lord:
I will put My laws into their minds and write them on their hearts.
I will be their God,
and they will be My people. [l]
11 And each person will not teach his fellow citizen, [m] and each his brother, saying, “Know the Lord,” because they will all know Me, from the least to the greatest of them. [n] 12 For I will be merciful to their wrongdoing, and I will never again remember their sins. [o, p, q]

13 By saying, a new covenant, He has declared that the first is old. And what is old and aging is about to disappear. [r]

Old Covenant Ministry

9 Now the first covenant also had regulations for ministry and an earthly sanctuary. 2 For a tabernacle was set up, and in the first room, which is called the holy place, were the lampstand, the table, and the presentation loaves. [a] 3 Behind the second curtain, the tabernacle was called the most holy place. [b] 4 It contained the gold altar of incense and the ark of the covenant, covered with gold on all sides, in which there was a gold jar containing the manna, Aaron's staff that budded, and the tablets of the covenant. [c] 5 The •cherubim of glory were above it overshadowing the •mercy seat. It is not possible to speak about these things in detail right now. [d]

6 With these things set up this way, the priests enter the first room repeatedly, performing their ministry. [e] 7 But the high priest alone enters the second room, and he does that only once a year, and never without blood, which he offers for himself and for the sins of the people committed in ignorance. [f] 8 The Holy Spirit was making it clear that the way into the most holy place had not yet been disclosed while the first tabernacle was still standing. [g] 9 This is a symbol for the present time, during which gifts and sacrifices are offered that cannot perfect the worshiper's conscience. [h] 10 They are physical regulations and only deal with food, drink, and various washings imposed until the time of restoration. [i]

New Covenant Ministry

11 But the •Messiah has appeared, high priest of the good things that have come. [j] In the greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hands (that is, not of this creation [k]), 12 He entered the most holy place once for all, not by the blood of goats and calves, but by His own blood, having obtained eternal •redemption. [l] 13 For if the blood of goats and bulls and the ashes of a young cow, sprinkling those who are defiled, sanctify for the purification of the flesh, [m] 14 how much more will the blood of the Messiah, who through the eternal Spirit [n] offered Himself without blemish to God, cleanse our [o] consciences from dead works to serve the living God? [p]

15 Therefore, He is the mediator [q] of a new covenant, [r, s] so that those who are called might receive the promise [t] of the eternal inheritance, because a death has taken place for redemption from the transgressions committed under the first covenant. [u] 16 Where a will exists, the death of the one who made it must be established. 17 For a will is valid only when people die, since it is never in force while the one who made it is living. 18 That is why even the first covenant was inaugurated with blood. 19 For when every command had been proclaimed by Moses to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and goats, along with water, scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled the scroll itself and all the people, [v] 20 saying, This is the blood of the covenant that God has commanded for you. [w, x] 21 In the same way, he sprinkled the tabernacle and all the articles of worship with blood. [y] 22 According to the law almost everything is purified with blood, and without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness. [z]

23 Therefore it was necessary for the copies of the things in the heavens to be purified with these sacrifices, but the heavenly things themselves to be purified with better sacrifices than these. [a] 24 For the Messiah did not enter a sanctuary made with hands (only a model [A] of the true one) but into heaven itself, so that He might now appear in the presence of God for us. [b] 25 He did not do this to offer Himself many times, as the high priest enters the sanctuary yearly with the blood of another. [c] 26 Otherwise, He would have had to suffer many times since the foundation of the world. But now He has appeared one time, at the end of the ages, [d] for the removal of sin by the sacrifice of Himself. [e] 27 And just as it is appointed for people to die once — and after this, judgment [f] — 28 so also the Messiah, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, [g] will appear a second time, [h] not to bear sin, but [B] to bring salvation to those who are waiting for Him. [i]

The Perfect Sacrifice

10 Since the law has only a shadow of the good things [a] to come, and not the actual form of those realities, it can never perfect the worshipers by the same sacrifices they continually offer year after year. 2 Otherwise, wouldn't they have stopped being offered, since the worshipers, once purified, would no longer have any consciousness of sins? 3 But in the sacrifices there is a reminder of sins every year. 4 For it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins.

5 Therefore, as He was coming into the world, He said:

You did not want sacrifice and offering,
but You prepared a body for Me.
6 You did not delight
in whole burnt offerings and sin offerings.
7 Then I said, "See — it is written about Me in the volume of the scroll —
I have come to do Your will, God! " [b, c]

8 After He says above, You did not want or delight in sacrifices and offerings, whole burnt offerings and sin offerings (which are offered according to the law [d]), 9 He then says, See, I have come to do Your will. [e] He takes away the first to establish the second. 10 By this will of God, we have been •sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once and for all. [f]

11 Every priest stands day after day ministering and offering the same sacrifices time after time, which can never take away sins. [g] 12 But this man, after offering one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down at the right hand of God. [h]
13 He is now waiting until His enemies are made His footstool. [i] 14 For by one offering He has perfected forever those who are sanctified. 15 The Holy Spirit also testifies to us about this. For after He says:

16 This is the covenant I will make with them
after those days, says the Lord:
I will put My laws on their hearts and write them on their minds,

17 He adds:

I will never again remember their sins and their lawless acts. [j, k]

18 Now where there is forgiveness of these, there is no longer an offering for sin.

Exhortations to Godliness

19 Therefore, brothers, since we have boldness to enter the sanctuary through the blood of Jesus, [l] 20 by a new and living way He has opened for us through the curtain (that is, His flesh [m]), 21 and since we have a great high priest over the house of God, [n] 22 let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, our hearts sprinkled •clean from an evil conscience and our bodies washed in pure water. [o] 23 Let us hold on to the confession of our hope without wavering, for He who promised is faithful. [p] 24 And let us be concerned about one another in order to promote love and good works, 25 not staying away from our worship meetings, as some habitually do, but encouraging each other, [q] and all the more as you see the day drawing near.

Warning against Deliberate Sin

26 For if we deliberately sin after receiving the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins, [r] 27 but a terrifying expectation of judgment and the fury of a fire about to consume the adversaries. [s] 28 If anyone disregards Moses' law, he dies without mercy, based on the testimony of two or three witnesses. [t] 29 How much worse punishment do you think one will deserve who has trampled on the Son of God, regarded as profane [A] the blood of the covenant by which he was sanctified, and insulted the Spirit of grace? [u] 30 For we know the One who has said, Vengeance belongs to Me, I will repay, [v, w] and again, The Lord will judge His people. [x, y] 31 It is a terrifying thing to fall into the hands of the living God! [z]

32 Remember the earlier days when, after you had been enlightened, you endured a hard struggle with sufferings. [a] 33 Sometimes you were publicly exposed to taunts and afflictions, and at other times you were companions of those who were treated that way. [b] 34 For you sympathized with the prisoners [c] and accepted with joy the confiscation of your possessions, knowing that you yourselves have a better and enduring possession. [d, e] 35 So don't throw away your confidence, which has a great reward. [f] 36 For you need endurance, so that after you have done God's will, you may receive what was promised. [g]

37 For yet in a very little while,
the Coming One will come and not delay.
38 But My righteous one [h] will live by faith;
and if he draws back,
I have no pleasure in him. [i, j]

39 But we are not those who draw back and are destroyed, but those who have faith and obtain life.

Heroes of Faith

11 Now faith is the reality [A] of what is hoped for, the proof [B] of what is not seen. [a] 2 For our ancestors won God's approval by it.
3 By faith we understand that the universe was [C] created by God's command, [D], [b] so that what is seen has been made from things that are not visible.
4 By faith Abel offered to God a better sacrifice than Cain did. By faith he was approved as a righteous man, because God approved his gifts, and even though he is dead, he still speaks through his faith. [c] 5 By faith Enoch was taken away so he did not experience death, and he was not to be found because God took him away. [d] For prior to his removal he was approved, since he had pleased God. [e] 6 Now without faith it is impossible to please God, for the one who draws near to Him must believe that He exists and rewards those who seek Him.
7 By faith Noah, after he was warned about what was not yet seen and motivated by godly fear, built an ark to deliver his family. By faith he condemned the world and became an heir of the righteousness that comes by faith. [f]
8 By faith Abraham, when he was called, obeyed and went out to a place he was going to receive as an inheritance. He went out, not knowing where he was going. [g] 9 By faith he stayed as a foreigner in the land of promise, living in tents with Isaac and Jacob, co-heirs of the same promise. [h] 10 For he was looking forward to the city that has foundations, whose architect and builder is God. [i] 11 By faith even Sarah herself, when she was unable to have children, received power to conceive offspring, even though she was past the age, since she [E] considered that the One who had promised was faithful. [j] 12 Therefore from one man — in fact, from one as good as dead — came offspring as numerous as the stars of heaven and as innumerable as the grains of sand by the seashore. [k] 13 These all died in faith without having received the promises, but they saw them from a distance, [l] greeted them, and confessed that they were foreigners and temporary residents on the earth. [m] 14 Now those who say such things make it clear that they are seeking a homeland. 15 If they were thinking about where they came from, they would have had an opportunity to return. 16 But they now desire a better place — a heavenly one. Therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for He has prepared a city for them. [n] 17 By faith Abraham, when he was tested, offered up Isaac. [o] He received the promises and he was offering his unique son, 18 the one it had been said about, Your •seed will be traced [F] through Isaac. [p], [q] 19 He considered God to be able even to raise someone from the dead, [r] and as an illustration, [G] he received him back.

20 By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau [s] concerning things to come. 21 By faith Jacob, when he was dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph, and he worshiped, leaning on the top of his staff. [t, u] 22 By faith Joseph, as he was nearing the end of his life, mentioned the exodus of the Israelites and gave instructions concerning his bones. [v]

23 By faith, after Moses was born, he was hidden by his parents for three months, because they saw that the child was beautiful, and they didn't fear the king's edict. [w] 24 By faith Moses, when he had grown up, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter 25 and chose to suffer with the people of God rather than to enjoy the short-lived pleasure of sin. [x] 26 For he considered the reproach because of the •Messiah to be greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt, since his attention was on the reward. [y]

27 By faith he left Egypt behind, not being afraid of the king's anger, for Moses persevered as one who sees Him who is invisible. [z] 28 By faith he instituted the •Passover and the sprinkling of the blood, so that the destroyer of the firstborn might not touch the Israelites. 29 By faith they crossed the Red Sea as though they were on dry land. When the Egyptians attempted to do this, they were drowned. [a]

30 By faith the walls of Jericho fell down after being encircled by the Israelites for seven days. 31 By faith Rahab the prostitute received the spies in peace and didn't perish with those who disobeyed. [b]

32 And what more can I say? Time is too short for me to tell about Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, [c] David, Samuel, and the prophets, [d] 33 who by faith conquered kingdoms, [e] administered justice, obtained promises, shut the mouths of lions, [f] 34 quenched the raging of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, gained strength after being weak, became mighty in battle, and put foreign armies to flight. [g] 35 Women received their dead — they were raised to life again. Some men were tortured, not accepting release, so that they might gain a better resurrection, 36 and others experienced mockings and scourgings, as well as bonds and imprisonment. [h] 37 They were stoned, [i, j] they were sawed in two, they died by the sword, they wandered about in sheepskins, in goatskins, [k] destitute, afflicted, and mistreated. 38 The •world was not worthy of them. They wandered in deserts and on mountains, hiding in caves and holes in the ground.

39 All these were approved through their faith, but they did not receive what was promised, [40] since God had provided something better for us, so that they would not be made perfect without us. [l]

The Call to Endurance

12 Therefore, since we also have such a large cloud of witnesses [a] surrounding us, let us lay aside every weight and the sin that so easily ensnares us. Let us run with endurance [b] the race that lies before us, [2] keeping our eyes on Jesus, [A] the source and perfecter [B] of our faith, who for the joy that lay before Him [C] endured a cross and despised the shame [c] and has sat down at the right hand of God’s throne.

Fatherly Discipline

3 For consider Him who endured such hostility from sinners against Himself, so that you won't grow weary and lose heart. [d] 4 In struggling against sin, you have not yet resisted to the point of shedding your blood. 5 And you have forgotten the exhortation that addresses you as sons:

My son, do not take the Lord's discipline lightly or faint when you are reproved by Him, 6 for the Lord disciplines the one He loves and punishes every son He receives. [e, f]

7 Endure suffering as discipline: God is dealing with you as sons. For what son is there that a father does not discipline? 8 But if you are without discipline — which all [g] receive [D] — then you are illegitimate children and not sons. [h] 9 Furthermore, we had natural fathers discipline us, and we respected them. Shouldn't we submit even more to the Father of spirits and live? [i] 10 For they disciplined us for a short time based on what seemed good to them, but He does it for our benefit, so that we can share His holiness. [j] 11 No discipline seems enjoyable at the time, but painful. Later on, however, it yields the fruit of peace [k] and righteousness to those who have been trained by it. [l]

12 Therefore strengthen your tired hands and weakened knees, [m] 13 and make straight paths for your feet, so that what is lame may not be dislocated [E] but healed instead. [n]

Warning against Rejecting God's Grace 14 Pursue peace with everyone, and holiness [o] — without it no one will see the Lord. [p] 15 Make sure that no one falls short of the grace of God and that no root of bitterness springs up, causing trouble and by it, defiling many. [q] 16 And make sure that there isn't any immoral or irreverent [r] person like Esau, who sold his birthright in exchange for one meal. [s] 17 For you know that later, when he wanted to inherit the blessing, he was rejected because he didn't find any opportunity for repentance, though he sought it with tears. [t]

18 For you have not come to what could be touched, to a blazing fire, to darkness, gloom, and storm, 19 to the blast of a trumpet, and the sound of words.
(Those who heard it begged that not another word be spoken to them, 20 for they could not bear what was commanded: And if even an animal touches the mountain, it must be stoned! [u, v] 21 The appearance was so terrifying that Moses said, I am terrified and trembling. [w, x]) 22 Instead, you have come to

Mount •Zion , to the city of the living God (the heavenly Jerusalem), to myriads of angels in festive gathering, [y] 23 to the assembly of the firstborn whose names have been written [F] in heaven, to God who is the Judge of all, to the spirits of righteous people made perfect, [z] 24 to Jesus (mediator [a] of a new covenant [b]), and to the sprinkled blood, which says better things than the blood of Abel. [c]

25 Make sure that you do not reject the One who speaks. For if they did not escape when they rejected Him who warned them on earth, even less will we if we turn away from Him who warns us from heaven. [d] 26 His voice shook the earth at that time, but now He has promised, Yet once more I will shake not only the earth but also heaven. [e, f] 27 This expression, “Yet once more,” indicates the removal of what can be shaken [g] — that is, created things — so that what is not shaken might remain. 28 Therefore, since we are receiving a kingdom that cannot be shaken, let us hold on to grace. [G] By it, we may serve God acceptably, with reverence and awe, [h] 29 for our God is a consuming fire. [i]

Final Exhortations

13 Let brotherly love [a] continue. 2 Don't neglect to show hospitality, for by doing this some have welcomed angels as guests without knowing it. [b] 3 Remember the prisoners, as though you were in prison with them, and the mistreated, as though you yourselves were suffering bodily. [A] 4 Marriage must be respected by all, and the marriage bed kept undefiled, because God will judge immoral people and adulterers. [c] 5 Your life should be free from the love of money. Be satisfied with what you have, for He Himself has said, I will never leave you or forsake you. [d, e] 6 Therefore, we may boldly say:

The Lord is my helper;
I will not be afraid.
What can man do to me? [f, g]

7 Remember your leaders who have spoken God's word to you. As you carefully observe the outcome of their lives, imitate their faith. [h] 8 Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever. [i] 9 Don't be led astray by various kinds of strange teachings; for it is good for the heart to be established by grace and not by foods, since those involved in them have not benefited. [j] 10 We have an altar from which those who serve the tabernacle do not have a right to eat. [k] 11 For the bodies of those animals whose blood is brought into the most holy place by the high priest [l] as a sin offering are burned outside the camp. [m] 12 Therefore Jesus also suffered outside the gate, [n] so that He might •sanctify [B] the people by His own blood. 13 Let us then go to Him outside the camp, bearing His disgrace. [o] 14 For we do not have an enduring city here; instead, we seek the one to come. [p] 15 Therefore, through Him let us continually offer up to God a sacrifice of praise, that is, the fruit of our lips that confess His name. [q] 16 Don't neglect to do what is good and to share, for God is pleased with such sacrifices. [r] 17 Obey your leaders [C] and submit to them, for they keep watch [s] over your souls as those who will give an account, so that they can do this with joy and not with grief, for that would be unprofitable for you. 18 Pray for us; for we are convinced that we have a clear conscience, wanting to conduct ourselves honorably in everything. [t] 19 And I especially urge you to pray [D] that I may be restored to you very soon.

Benediction and Farewell

20 Now may the God of peace, who brought up from the dead our Lord Jesus — the great Shepherd of the sheep [u] — with the blood of the everlasting covenant, [v] 21 equip [E] you with all that is good to do His will, working in us what is pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ. Glory belongs to Him forever and ever. [w, x] •Amen .

22 Brothers, I urge you to receive this message of exhortation, for I have written to you briefly. 23 Be aware that our brother Timothy has been released. If he comes soon enough, he will be with me when I see you. 24 Greet all your leaders and all the •saints . Those who are from Italy greet you. 25 Grace be with all of you. [y]

HEBREWS

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies | Essays

Introduction

Representatives of the Greek city states had competed in the Olympic Games (Olympiakoi Agones) for nearly 850 years when the book of Hebrews was written. The writer of Hebrews had likely seen these kinds of competitions and drew on his readers' experiences of such events when he encouraged them to recall the large cloud of witnesses surrounding them as they ran. He urged them to "lay aside every weight and the sin that so easily ensnares us. Let us run with endurance the race that lies before us, keeping our eyes on Jesus" (12:1-2).

The epistle to the Hebrews is a tribute to the incomparable Son of God and an encouragement to the author's persecuted fellow believers. The author feared that his Christian readers were wavering in their endurance. The writer had a twofold approach: (1) He exalted Jesus Christ, who is addressed as both "God" and "the Son of Man," and is thus the only One who can serve as mediator between God and man; and (2) he exhorted his fellow Christians, "Let us go on to maturity," and live "by faith."

Circumstances of Writing Author: The text of Hebrews does not identify its author. What we do know is that the author was a second-generation Christian, for he said he received the confirmed message of Christ from "those who heard" Jesus Himself (2:3). Because Paul claimed his gospel was revealed directly by the Lord (1Co 15:8; Gl 1:12), it is doubtful that he was the author of Hebrews. The author was familiar with Timothy, but he referred to him as "our brother"

(13:23), rather than as "my true son in the faith," as Paul did (1Tm 1:2).

Scholars have also proposed the following persons as authors: Luke, Clement of Rome, Barnabas, Apollos, Timothy, Philip, Peter, Silas, Jude, and Aristion. Ultimately it does not matter that the identity of the author is now lost. We should be satisfied with the fact that early Christians received the letter as inspired and authoritative Scripture and that its value for Christian discipleship is unquestioned.

Background: The author of Hebrews knew his recipients well since he called them "brothers" (3:12; 7:5; 10:19; 13:22) and "dear friends" (6:9). Like the writer, they were converts who had heard the gospel through the earliest followers of Christ (2:3). Scholars have speculated that those to whom the book was written were a breakaway group such as a house church that had separated from the main church. Another theory holds that the recipients were former Jewish priests who had converted to Christianity, and that they were considering a return to Judaism (at least in conformity to certain practices) in order to avoid persecution from fellow Jews. Another theory holds that the group was not necessarily Jewish since Gentile Christians also revered the OT as Scripture.

Regarding when the book was written, it is clear that the fall of Jerusalem (A.D. 70) had not yet occurred. The destruction of the temple would have been mentioned if it had already occurred, for it would have strengthened the letter's argument about Christ's sacrifice spelling the end of the temple sacrificial system. The public persecution mentioned in 10:32-34 implies one of two possibilities for dating the book. We know that the Roman emperors Nero and Domitian in (A.D. 64-68 and 81-82 respectively) persecuted Christians. Most likely Hebrews was written during the persecution under Nero, perhaps just before the destruction of the temple.

Message and Purpose The author of Hebrews wanted to exalt Jesus Christ. A verbal indication of this desire is the consistent and repetitive usage of the Greek word kreitton, which means "more excellent," "superior," or "better." This word is the common thread that binds together the complex and subtle theological argumentation of the book. In comparison to everything else in the divine plan for creation and redemption, Jesus Christ is superior. The author described the superiority of the new covenant to the old covenant because he wanted his readers to remember that Jesus Christ is the fulfillment of the law and God's promises in the OT. In this light, readers should be careful about "recrucifying the Son of God and holding Him up to contempt" (6:6). The author wanted to move these believers from their arrested state of development into a pattern of growth in their relationship with Jesus Christ.

Contribution to the Bible No other book in the NT ties together OT history and practices with the life of Jesus Christ as thoroughly as the book of Hebrews. Just as Jesus Christ taught that the OT was fulfilled in Himself (Mt 5:17-18; Lk 24:27), so the author of Hebrews taught that the old covenant was brought to completion in the new covenant (7:20-8:13). Hebrews also shows that because the old covenant has been fulfilled in the new covenant, the new covenant is actually "better" (7:22). The new covenant was made superior by the ministry of Jesus Christ.

Structure

In concluding the book of Hebrews, the author wrote, “Brothers, I urge you to receive this message of exhortation, for I have written to you briefly” (13:22). If the literary style of Hebrews indicates anything, it is that it is a written theological sermon. It is not so much a letter—although it certainly ends like one—because it has no opening subscription, as was the norm with ancient letters. Hebrews instead begins with an introductory essay about the superiority of Jesus Christ (1:1-4). However, its capacity to encounter the reader’s soul indicates it is more than just a literary essay. Indeed, it has a definite sermonic character since it expounds the Scriptures at length in order to challenge the reader to faith and faithfulness. The sustained development of a complex, holistic theology of covenant indicates that Hebrews is a written theological sermon that discloses the broad sweep of God’s grand redemptive plan for humanity.

Timeline
Study Notes 1:1-2:18 Everything in creation and everything in redemption history is centered in Jesus Christ, the Son of God and the Son of Man. The author was convinced that Jesus was the focal point of all that God had done and, therefore, that He was the focal point of the faith of the church. Jesus Christ is the agent of creation, the height of revelation, the mediator of redemption, and the judge of history.

1:1-2 a These verses relate the revelation of Jesus Christ to God's previous revelation to the OT prophets. God spoke in past ages by the prophets in a variety of ways and times, but He has now progressed past this former revelation and spoken directly to mankind by His Son. The doctrine of progressive revelation recognizes the prophets' words as divine revelation, but their words pointed ahead to the promise of a Messiah. This Messiah has now come—Jesus Christ.

1:2 b - 4 Seven praises start the letter's argument that Jesus Christ and everything connected with Him is superior to all that had come before and all that will come after Him. (1) Jesus Christ is the heir of creation for whom all things have been made. (2) He is the Creator through whom all things have come into existence. (3) He is the radiance of the divine glory toward which all of creation looks for fulfillment. (4) He is the exact expression (Gk charakteyr) of the "nature" (Gk hupostaseos) of God the Father. This means the Son participates in the divine nature with the Father. (5) He is the "Word" of God, the only prophet of God who is also God Himself. (6) He is the priest of God who has provided the perfect sacrifice for all human sins. (7) He is the king who sits on the throne at the right hand of the Father. Jesus is, therefore, higher in rank and superior to those high beings of creation known as angels.

1:5-14 The author teaches his readers about the divine and human natures of the Son of God by establishing His superiority to the angels and to Moses. It would have shocked the typical Jewish reader to hear that a man was higher in rank than angels. Jesus Christ was fully human, but He was fully divine. This makes Him superior to the angels.

Drawing on a series of OT quotations attributed to God, the author demonstrated how God the Father had addressed His Son as divine. God the Father addressed Him uniquely as My Son (2Sm 7:14; 1Ch 17:13; Ps 2:7), "God" (Ps 45:6-7), and "Lord" (Ps 102:22). Moreover, God the Father attributed divine activities to His Son. He is the firstborn and "begotten" Son who was brought into the world so that all the angels must worship Him (Dt 32:43; Ps 97:7). He is the Son who made the angels His angels and His servants (Ps 104:4). He is the Son who sits on the divine throne and rules with the divine attribute of righteousness (Ps 45:6-7). He is the Son who created heaven and earth in the beginning, and who will remain the same when creation is consummated, because He shares in the divine attribute of the eternal (Ps 102:25-27). These examples show that God the Father declared Jesus Christ, the promised Messiah, to be the eternally begotten Son of God.

2:1-18 In this chapter the author turned to the consideration of Jesus as a human being. He is the Son of Man just as surely as He is the Son of God. Believers err if they emphasize one reality to the neglect of the other. The author uses the fact that the law was binding to introduce the first of several strong exhortations in the book (3:7-19; 5:11-6:3; 10:26-31; 12:1-2,14-29). He warned his readers about the danger of drifting away from participating in the gospel mission by standing on the sidelines as God's plan for history moves forward. The gospel was verified to its first hearers by signs and wonders, various miracles, and distributions of gifts from the Holy Spirit as the church was in its foundational stages. The Word of God is now verified by the internal testimony of the Holy Spirit, so there seems no further need for such spectacular acts of verification.

2:5-9 The author demonstrated that the eternal Son entered creation to become a man and thereby temporarily became lower than the angels. Psalm 8, on one level taken to be a reference to mankind and the dominion conferred on him by God, also applies to the son of man as Jesus Christ. Psalm 8 is a look backward to Genesis as well as a look forward to events disclosed in the book of Revelation, where God subjects all things to humanity by subjecting them to Jesus. Jesus was crowned with glory and honor by God because He suffered death for everyone. Like Paul, the author noted that the coronation of Jesus Christ as King of kings followed His humiliating crucifixion in obedience to the Father (Php 2:8-9).

2:10-18 In these verses the author showed why it was necessary that the eternal Son became a man. First, it was appropriate that the Son should have a ministry completed in suffering, which all humans experience, so that he might identify with us and bring many sons into the presence of God. People who have accepted Christ's sacrifice on their behalf can be referred to as "children" of God because the Son of God has made them His brothers. The author quoted three OT verses to show that the Son is present in the gathered church (Ps 22:22), that the Son trusts the Father (Is 8:17), and that the church can come before the Father because it is united with Christ (Is 8:18). Second, the Son became a man and suffered death so that He could destroy the one holding the power of death —that is, the Devil. It is by virtue of Christ's death on our behalf that we are freed from the fear of death. Third, the Son became a man and suffered death so that He could serve as a faithful high priest in service to God. The only person who can serve as a mediator between God and man is the One who is both God and man. It is by reason of His faithfulness as a man who was tested and suffered that He could make propitiation for the sins of the people. Not only did He suffer divine retribution on our behalf, but He is able to help us because He is like his brothers in every way except sin.

3:1-4:16 In these chapters the author turned from demonstrating the Son's superiority over the angels to demonstrating that the Son is superior to Moses, the mediator of the law, and Joshua, the conqueror of the promised land. The common thread through these chapters is faithfulness. By explaining that Jesus was faithful (3:2), the author hoped to persuade the readers to hold fast (4:14) until the end.

3:1-6 The author appealed to his commonality with the readers, addressing them as holy brothers and companions who had received the same calling from God as he. He asked them to turn their minds and hearts toward the Savior and consider Jesus. God had identified Moses as the one who was uniquely faithful . . . in all God's household (see Nm 12:7). His faithfulness was for the sake of showing the superiority of the faithfulness of Christ, since Christ was faithful as a Son over His household. Jesus was faithful "over" the "household" of which Moses was a part. Although Moses was faithful in relaying God's law, his appointed role was to point toward the coming Son of God. Jesus, who was faithful in His role of bringing the gospel to those under the condemnation of the law, is therefore worthy of more glory.

3:7-19 Having established the superiority of the gospel of Christ to the law of Moses, the author proceeded to explain the meaning of Psalm 95. His purpose was to warn his readers that if the punishment for disobedience of the law was severe, then punishment for faithlessness to the gospel would be far worse. The judgment of God is described in Ps 95:7-11 on the disobedient Israelites in the wilderness. God did not allow that faithless generation to enter the promised land because they hardened their hearts against Him. The lesson is that those who hear the voice of God should not harden their hearts against God's Word and disobey His commands. The result of such unbelief is divine judgment. They would not enter God's rest.

4:1-16 The author now drew the readers into examining their own personal faith as the Word of God shines its penetrating light upon the inner man. Faithfulness begins with a proper internal disposition. The living and effective Word of God probes into the deepest part of a person like a surgeon's knife to discern his innermost ideas and thoughts. God's Word reveals to him both his ingrained wickedness and the saving way of faith. At that critical point, when the divine judge reveals Himself through His Word, the hearer must make every effort to enter the divine rest by believing.

If the result of unbelief and disobedience to God is exclusion from divine rest, then the result of true faith and faithfulness to God is entrance into everlasting divine rest. Such a rest was not available through the ministry of Joshua in the OT since it was reserved for the ministry of the NT "Joshua." The name "Jesus" is a Greek derivative of the Hebrew name Joshua, which means "the LORD is salvation." The ministry of Joshua did not bring people Sabbath rest. Only through the superior ministry of Jesus the Son of God may a person enter divine rest. Only through the great high priest, who has come from heaven and identified with man in his weakness, may we approach the throne of grace with boldness.

5:1-6 : 20 In these chapters the author established the superiority of Jesus as priest over Aaron as priest. The Son's superior work as a high priest serves as the basis for a call to Christian maturity.

5:1-10 Aaron was the high priest of Israel who had been called by God, thus establishing his authority. His purpose as a priest was to offer to God sacrifices for sins on behalf of the people, and to deal gently with the ignorance and waywardness of the people on behalf of God. The problem with Aaron's priesthood was Aaron himself; since he was a sinner, he had to make a sin offering for himself as well as for the people.

Like Aaron, Jesus was called by God, but according to Ps 110:4, God gave Him a unique calling as a high priest in the order of Melchizedek. Christ's priesthood was on an entirely different level than that of Aaron. Like Aaron, he offered prayers and appeals, but unlike Aaron, Christ was heard because of His reverence. Unlike Aaron, Christ learned obedience through suffering. Unlike Aaron, the salvation that Christ brought was eternal.

5:11-6 : 3 In this section the author paused to consider the theological and moral state of his readers. He expressed concern that they might not understand the difficult doctrines he was explaining (5:11). Because of their immaturity, they needed to be warned about failure and encouraged toward maturity. The author listed six basic principles of the elementary message about the Messiah that serve as the foundation of the Christian faith and life. These principles may be divided into three groups of two each. (1) Repentance from sinful actions and faith toward God (6:1) are the two sides of conversion that begin the Christian life. (2) The baptism of new believers who have received the gospel and laying on of hands for Christian leaders (6:2) to proclaim the gospel are fundamental components of church life. (3) The good news of the resurrection and the prospect of eternal judgment (6:2) are essential components in the gospel that the church preaches.

6:4-20 Verses 6-9 have been the subject of much debate. There are several possible interpretations regarding the author's intentions and the identity of those who have fallen away. First, some say those who had "fallen away" were genuine Christians who had forsaken Jesus and reverted to Judaism. A second view says they were hearers who had understood the gospel but had not become true believers. A third interpretation identifies the things connected with salvation as sanctification rather than justification. A fourth interpretation holds that the writer is speaking about apostasy as a possibility rather than a reality.

The first interpretation neglects the author's claim that he was speaking in a rhetorical way and was confident of the better things regarding his readers. The second interpretation must overcome the language of conversion (those who were once enlightened, who tasted the heavenly gift, became companions with the Holy Spirit, and who tasted God's good word and the powers of the coming age). These phrases indicate something beyond a mere hearing of the gospel. The third interpretation does not adequately deal with the fact that the apostate cannot renew his repentance once he has chosen the way of faithlessness.

Because of problems with the first three views, the fourth interpretation—that the author was speaking of an unfulfilled possibility rather than a concrete reality—seems most acceptable. Indeed, he used the warning against apostasy as a rhetorical means to call his readers to demonstrate the same diligence they had shown before. He was confident of something better than apostasy in their lives because he saw their prior love for Christ and faithful service in His name. The author was not detailing a doctrine of apostasy; he was calling his readers to progress toward maturity. Every succeeding statement promotes this goal. Like Abraham, who obtained the promise of God after waiting patiently, the readers should seize the hope before them because God has guaranteed His promise with an oath. And because Jesus has entered the inner sanctuary of God's presence, the Christian has a sure and firm anchor for the soul. There is not a hint of wavering in the author's voice about either God's will or the final outcome for his "dear friends."

7:1-10 : 39 These chapters are an extended discourse on the superiority of the priesthood of Christ as demonstrated by the superiority of His order, His covenant, His ministry, and His sacrifice.

7:1-19 The Levitical priesthood of the Jews was grounded in the order of Aaron, but the priesthood of Jesus Christ is grounded in the order of Melchizedek. The mysterious Melchizedek appeared in Gn 14:18-20 and was not mentioned again until the messianic promise was made in Psalm 110. The author of Hebrews drew from the OT witness to show that the order of Melchizedek was eternal in origin and scope. Melchizedek participated in the divine attributes of eternity, righteousness, peace, and sovereignty. His eternality is evident in that he was a priest forever—without beginning or end. His righteousness is evident in His name since Melchizedek is Hebrew for "king of righteousness." His peace is evident in the fact that he was also declared to be the King of Salem, which means "king of peace."

Finally, Melchizedek's sovereignty was recognized by Abraham, who paid this priest-king a tithe of all he had when he returned victorious from war. If Abraham recognized Melchizedek's superiority by paying him a tithe, then Israel must, too. The author argued that the Levitical priesthood was inferior to that of Melchizedek because the inferior is blessed by the superior. The sovereignty of Melchizedek is reflected in the sovereignty of the Son of God, because while the Levitical priesthood was authorized by a legal command, the priesthood of Christ was authorized by the power of an indestructible life.

7:20-8:13 The author addressed next the authorizing sources of the two priesthoods. Typically, authority was granted to an agreement or a covenant through the confirmation of an oath. Citing Jr 31:31-34, the author noted the old covenant between God and Israel was dependent on the oath of man; unfortunately, they did not continue in this covenant. But the new covenant promised through Jeremiah was different, because the oath here was made entirely by God. Because God swore to the new covenant, it was eternally guaranteed. He said He would be merciful to them and place His laws in their minds and hearts. Because of the divine oath, the new covenant is a better covenant. The first covenant is old and aging and about to disappear.

The priesthood based on the old covenant was filled with priests who could not remain in office because they died, but the new covenant priest always lives to intercede. The old covenant priesthood was filled with priests who were weak (7:28), but the new covenant priest was perfected forever through Jesus' obedient suffering. The old covenant priest had to offer sacrifices every day, but the new covenant priest offered a sacrifice once for all. The old covenant priest sacrificed for both himself and his people, but the new covenant priest, being sinless, offered Himself on behalf of the people.

9:1-28 The author turned his attention to a comparison of the ministries of the old and new priesthoods. The regulations for ministry given through the old covenant were for an earthly sanctuary that represented the transcendence of God insomuch as the people could not enter the holy place in the tabernacle. Only the high priest could enter the most holy place, and he did so only once per year. The sacrificial ministry of the old priesthood was unable to perfect the worshiper's conscience. While the old priesthood was incomplete, the sacrificial ministry of the Messiah is able to cleanse our consciences. This perfect cleansing enables the followers of the Messiah to engage in works that serve the living God.

The ministry of the Messiah is that of a new covenant mediator. His ministry is superior because He does not enter an earthly sanctuary, but into heaven itself, and thus into the very presence of God. Unlike the high priest who entered annually into the most holy place, the Messiah entered into the most holy place once for all. Unlike the old covenant that was inaugurated by the death of animals that had no choice in the matter, the new covenant was inaugurated by the Messiah's voluntary death. Unlike the old priesthood that offered the blood of animals, the Messiah offered His own blood. Unlike the old priesthood that offered sacrifices continually without effect, the blood of the Messiah obtained eternal redemption.

10:1-18 Bringing his comparison of the new and old priesthoods to an end, the author in these verses focused on the superiority of the sacrifice of Christ. The old sacrifices were only a shadow of the actual form of the blessed realities that come from the personal sacrifice of the Messiah. Citing Ps 40:6-8, the author demonstrated that God was no longer interested in the whole burnt offerings and sin offerings of the old covenant. The old sacrifices had to be offered continually, and they did not accomplish anything beyond ritual purification because they could not take away sins. This is why it was prophesied that the Messiah would come to do God's will. Jesus the Messiah offered one sacrifice for sins forever by offering Himself. Afterwards, He sat down at the throne of God. By His blood atonement, He has perfected forever those who are sanctified. The old sacrifices are no longer necessary because He offered the perfect sacrifice that perfects believers.

The temple veil is a curtain that separated the most holy place from the holy place (2Chr 3:14). Only the high priest was allowed to pass through the veil and then only on the Day of Atonement (Lv 16:2). At Jesus' death the temple veil was ripped from top to bottom, illustrating that in Christ, God had abolished the barrier separating humanity from the presence of God (Mt 27:51; Mk 15:38; cp. Lk 23:45). Hebrews 10:20 uses the tabernacle veil, not as the image of a barrier, but of access. Access to God is gained through the flesh of the historical Jesus (cp. Jn 10:7).

10:19-39 The author again exhorted his brothers to faithfulness (see 6:4-20 and note there). This exhortation contains commands, a warning, an encouraging reminder, a promise, and an expression of confidence. Due to the boldness that believers have to enter the divine presence through the perfect sacrifice of Christ, he commanded his brothers to (1) draw near to God with assurance; (2) hold on to their confession without wavering; and (3) be concerned for one another and not forsake the gathering of the church. The warning is a reminder that there is no effective sacrifice for sin apart from that provided by Christ. If Christians turn their backs on Jesus, they have no hope—only the expectation of terror.

11:1-40 This chapter compares the faith of the OT fathers with the faith exercised by Christian believers. Faith is defined as the reality of what is hoped for and the proof of what is not seen. The Greek word for "reality" is hypostasis. It has been used previously to describe the relationship of Christ to God (1:3) and the firm confidence that believers possess (3:14). Faith is not fleeting but substantial enough to generate confidence. The Greek word for "proof" is elegchos, indicating an inner conviction that is not based on visible matters. Divine approval is the primary consequence of faith. Other results of faith are the declaration of righteousness, the ability to look forward to the heavenly city of God, the ability to understand that faith is possible only because God is faithful, the ability to accomplish great things in the world, and the ability to see that even when believers are persecuted and murdered, beyond this world is a better resurrection.

Throughout the chapter, the author provided examples of people in the OT who exercised faith. He focused most heavily on Abraham and Moses. To complete the list with a crescendo, he recounted an inspiring litany of the fruit of faith displayed in the virtuous life, faithful death, and anticipated resurrection of numerous OT heroes. However, although their faith was approved, they did not receive what God had promised. The purpose of this delay was to ensure that they would not be perfected apart from Jesus Christ.

12:1-2 Because Jesus Christ is the source and perfecter of the Christian faith, the author called on Christians to keep their eyes on Jesus. The Christian who has faith will lay aside every sinful weight and run toward Christ. Just as Jesus endured a cross and despised the shame in order to attain the joy of rejoining the Father on His throne, so should Christians run their race with endurance.

12:3-29 In these verses the author encouraged his readers not to lose heart, but to consider Jesus and His example. They should struggle against sin and run toward heaven even if they must do so through intense persecution.

12:3-13 Familial language appears throughout the book of Hebrews. The First Person of the Trinity is God the Father, and the Second Person of the Trinity is His Son. The Son became a human being in order to unite Himself with His believing "brothers." The Son can then bring His brothers into the presence of the Father, who will consider them His "sons." Citing Pr 3:11-12, the author argued that because believers in Christ are sons of God, they have a superior source of comfort. They are more than mere servants; God addresses them as sons. And yet, a father displays his love for his sons by disciplining them. Just as the readers have accepted discipline from their natural fathers, so too should they receive discipline from the Father of spirits. God does not discipline His sons to harm them, but to bless them. The benefit of the Father's discipline is fellowship in His holiness and receiving His peace and righteousness.

12:14-29 The sovereign grace of the Father displayed in discipline is the source from which the Christian finds strength to move forward. Salvation is by grace, but it demands a human response. Loving discipline is evidence of the Father's grace, and His children should hold on to grace. Christians should move toward peace and holiness, and they should warn one another against falling short of God's grace or allowing a root of bitterness to spring up within them. The church does not exist on Mount Sinai with its terrifying law that commands and condemns. Rather, the church is moving toward Mount Zion where it should dwell in the presence of God, Jesus, angels, and the righteous people who have been perfected by the sprinkled blood of Christ.

13:1-25 In the final chapter of the book, the author addressed the benefits and responsibilities of life lived in the church.

13:1-6 Under the general theme of allowing brotherly love to reign within the church, the author addressed five specific activities in which Christians should engage: (1) show "hospitality" toward strangers, (2) visit prisoners, (3) minister to the mistreated, (4) honor marriage, and (5) free themselves from the love of money.

13:7-19 The author addressed seven specific ways in which Christians should revere church leaders. (1) Christians should observe the lives of their leaders and imitate their faith. (2) Christians should remember that Christ is always the same and judge every teaching according to the gospel. (3) Christians should recognize their church may not be appreciated by the world because the Christian community is gathered to worship their Lord, whom the world despises. (4) Christians should continually offer their own sacrifice of praise in appreciation for the sacrifice of Christ by confessing His name. (5) The church should be active in doing good works and sharing with one another. (6) Christians should obey their leaders and submit to them, because they are accountable to God for caring for Christian souls. (7) Christians should pray for their leaders to have clear consciences, conducting themselves with honor in everything.

13:20-25 The author prayed for his brothers in the church to be blessed. Recounting the sacrificial work of Christ, he prayed that God would equip them to do His will. He asked them to receive this message of exhortation, meaning this theological sermon (the book of Hebrews) that he had written for their benefit. After bringing greetings from the Italian community and news about Timothy, he ended with a blessing, Grace be with all of you.

"Now may the God of peace, who brought up from the dead our Lord Jesus—the great Shepherd of the sheep—with the blood of the everlasting covenant, equip you with all that is good to do His will, working in us what is pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ" (13:20-21).

Focus passage Hebrews 2:10

The verb teleioo (perfect) has several meanings in the NT. In certain texts, teleioo sometimes means to complete , finish , or accomplish in the sense of fulfilling a task by bringing it to a desired end. In this sense, Jesus was sent to finish the works of His Father (Jn 4:34), a task He faithfully completed (Jn 17:4).

Paul, in his speech to the Ephesian elders, expressed a desire to accomplish the ministry he had received from God (Ac 20:24). In other texts, teleioo speaks of bringing something to an end or perfecting something . In this sense, teleioo refers to the process or action of overcoming an imperfect or incomplete state with a more perfect or complete one. By virtue of His earthly sufferings, Jesus has been perfected (qualified, brought to His goal) to minister as high priest forever (Heb 2:10; 5:9; 7:28). Abraham's faith was perfected by means of his works (Jms 2:22). The old covenant law could never perfect the worshipers who continually offered sacrifices (Heb 7:19; 10:1).

Focus passage Hebrews 4:1,3,5,10,11

In the NT, katapausis (rest) has multiple referents. Luke makes reference to a temple for God, the place where He would rest and live (Ac 7:49). Hebrews refers to rest as the Christian's future destination, the place of God's blessing. That rest is available to every generation of saints, but its realization comes only through obedience (Heb 4:2,6,11). God's rest at creation (Heb 4:4) points past Joshua and David (4:7-8) to this final rest for believers (Heb 4:9). For Moses and his generation, that rest was the Promised Land, the place of God's blessing (Heb 3:11,16-19). Unfortunately, that generation missed it (Heb 3:19). For the Christian, rest is the final place of God's heavenly blessing, which they will receive if they hold fast their confession (Heb 4:14). The author of Hebrews strongly exhorts his audience to strive in obedience and perseverance to ensure they attain that future rest (Heb 4:1,11).

Focus passage Hebrews 5:10

In the Gospels and Acts, archiereus refers to the Jewish high priest, who served as president of the Sanhedrin, the Jewish supreme court (Mt 26:3,57; Ac 24:1). The plural (chief priests) indicates members of the priestly aristocracy from which the high priest was chosen. These priests were key figures in the Sanhedrin and belonged to the Sadducean party (Mk 14:55; Ac 5:17). In Hebrews, archiereus refers primarily to Christ's priestly ministry, which came from God (Heb 5:5,10) and was superior to that of any earthly priest (Heb 7:27-28). Christ is high priest of the new covenant, having accomplished the ultimate sacrifice (Heb 8:1-6). He passed through the heavens, entered the true sanctuary, offered Himself as the one final sacrifice, and sat down at God's right hand (Heb 4:14; 6:20; 7:27; 8:1-2; 9:12). Jesus is able to deal mercifully with His people because He was fully human (Heb 2:17; 4:15; 5:1-10).

Focus passage Hebrews 7:3

Apator means without father and appears once in the NT (Heb 7:3), in reference to the genealogy of Melchizedek, Salem's king. In Classical Greek, apator generally meant one without a father. It could refer to a deity who had no father (Orphicha, Hymni 10.10), the fatherless or orphans as those separated from a father (Sophocles, Trachiniae 300), or one who is disowned by a father (Plato, Leges 929a). Elsewhere, apator referred to a person of unknown father (Plutarchus, Moralia 2.288e) or of illegitimate birth. In the latter case, apator was followed by the mother's name (e.g., "the illegitimate (apator) daughter of Tanephremmis"). In Hebrews, apator is followed by ametor (without mother), highlighting that Melchizedek was not born illegitimately but that he had no traceable genealogical origin! The OT lists no genealogy for Melchizedek (Gn 14:18-20; Ps 110:4), who, as a type of Christ, remains a priest forever (Heb 7:3).

Focus passage Hebrews 9:4

A covenant (diatheke) is a legal arrangement between two parties (Gl 3:15) or a document transferring property from the deceased to an heir (Heb 9:16). The Greek OT influenced the use of diatheke in the NT, where the covenant was an agreement by which God's people related to Him. The NT frequently mentions three OT covenants: (1) the Abrahamic covenant (Gn 12:1-3; 15:1-21; 17:1-27), (2) the Mosaic covenant (Ex 20:1-24:8), and (3) the new covenant (Jr 31:31-34), and it often focuses on the relationship between the Mosaic and new covenants (e.g., 2Co 3:6,14). Over half of the occurrences of diatheke occur in Hebrews, where Jesus is portrayed as mediator of the new covenant, a covenant superior to the Mosaic covenant (Heb 7:22; 8:6,8-10; 9:15). As the Mosaic covenant was inaugurated with blood, so the new covenant was inaugurated with Jesus' blood (Heb 10:18-28; 13:20; cp. Mt 26:28; 1Co 11:25).

Focus passage Hebrews 10:10,14,29

In the NT, hagiazo has three distinct shades of meaning. First, it may indicate the action of dedicating something to the service of God (consecrate, set aside as holy) . This may involve the consecration of objects (Mt 23:19; 1Tm 4:5) or persons (Ac 20:32; 26:18; 1Co 6:11; 7:14; Eph 5:26; Heb 9:13; 10:14) for holy service unto God. Second, hagiazo may mean to treat as holy . Jesus prays that the Father's name be honored as holy (Mt 6:9), and Peter urges believers to set apart Messiah as Lord in their hearts (1Pt 3:15). Third, hagiazo may mean to purify or make someone holy , in the sense of causing someone to have the quality of holiness . Paul prays that God would sanctify the Thessalonian believers (1Th 5:23), and John closes his apocalypse with the heavenly exhortation that the holy should go on being made holy (Rv 22:11).

Pistis carries a spectrum of meanings in the NT. It can refer to something completely trustworthy . Christ's resurrection is the proof (i.e., trustworthy evidence) that God will one day judge the world (Ac 17:31). Pistis may also refer to a solemn promise (1Tm 5:12). It sometimes means the state of being faithful or trustworthy . God's faithfulness ensures He will fulfill His promises (Rm 3:3). Pistis may express belief with complete trust . The NT refers to the faith of OT characters (Rm 4:9,11-13,16; Heb 11:4-33,39) and of Christians (Heb 6:1; 10:39). In the Gospels, faith is often expressed as reliance on the Lord's power over nature, illness, and spiritual powers (Mt 8:10; Mk 2:5; Lk 8:25). Christian piety involves faith accompanied by works (Jms 2:14,17, etc.). Finally, pistis may refer to the doctrine one believes. Christians should contend for the faith (i.e., the body of apostolic doctrine) delivered to them (Jd 3,20).

Focus passage Hebrews 12:22

Epouranios (heavenly) can refer to objects in the sky. Paul speaks of heavenly bodies like the sun, moon, and stars (1Co 15:40-41). Epouranios also refers to things related to or located in the spiritual realm. God dwells in the heavenly Jerusalem (Heb 12:22), and Christ is seated at God's right hand in the heavens (Eph 1:20). Other spiritual beings are located in the heavens (Eph 3:10). Paul mentions spiritual forces of evil that battle in the heavens (Eph 6:12). All spiritual forces in heaven will pay homage to Jesus (Php 2:10). Positionally, believers are seated in the heavens with Jesus (Eph 2:6). Hebrews speaks of heavenly realities, after which the earthly sacrificial system was modeled (Heb 8:5; 9:23). The saints of old aspired to a heavenly homeland (11:16). Additionally, epouranios may refer to things originating from God. Thus, Christians share in a heavenly calling (3:1).

thusia Greek Pronunciation [thew SEE ah]
HCSB Translation sacrifice Uses in Hebrews 15
Uses in the NT 28
Focus passage Hebrews 13:15

Thusia (sacrifice) refers to what is sacrificially offered up on an altar to God. As prescribed under the Law, Joseph and Mary offered a sacrifice to dedicate their firstborn son Jesus (Lk 2:24). Under the OT sacrificial system, God was not impressed with outward sacrifice when such acts excluded inward obedience (Mt 9:13; 12:7; Mk 12:33). Christ offered Himself on a cross to God as the perfect and final sacrifice for sin (Eph 5:2; Heb 9:26; 10:12). In a figurative sense, thusia refers to the spiritual act of offering something unto God. Paul speaks of himself as a drink offering being poured out upon the sacrifice of the faith of the Philippians (Php 2:17). The financial gifts of the Philippian church to Paul are called a sacrifice (Php 4:18). Both verbal confession of praise to God and Christian acts of kindness are referred to as sacrifices (Heb 13:15-16).

Essays Jesus and Atonement in the Old Testament Eugene H. Merrill

The word "atonement" occurs frequently in the Old Testament (OT) and represents a key concept of OT theology. Christians maintain that Jesus is the fulfillment of the OT, especially the human need for atonement from sins. But what is atonement, and what does Jesus have to do with it?

Many Christians think atonement in the OT originated with the Mosaic law, but in reality humans recognized their need for atonement long before the time of Moses. When Adam and Eve committed the first sin, they hid from God because they were ashamed (Gn 3:8). Rather than giving them up as hopeless,

God initiated a plan of atonement whereby the ruptured fellowship between Himself and humanity could be restored. Our English word “atonement” (at-one-ment) explains well the theology behind such restoration, for it suggests that God and humanity can relationally be “at one” again.

How does atonement work? The first (indirect) OT reference to atonement occurs when God provided animal skins to cover Adam and Eve’s nakedness, an act necessitating the death of a sinless animal and hence the shedding of its blood on their behalf (Gn 3:21). This introduces a theme that runs throughout the Bible: atonement involves an innocent party taking the punishment that was due to a guilty party.

The Hebrew word translated “atonement” is kaphar, meaning “to cover.” This suggests that through the act of atonement sin is covered so that God no longer sees it. Throughout the OT the covering is achieved, ostensibly at least, with the blood of an innocent animal whose innocence renders the repentant sinner innocent as well (Lv 1:4-5; 17:11). The New Testament (NT) term hilasterion, “propitiation,” continues this OT concept, again in contexts of blood sacrifice (Rm 3:25).

What does any of this have to do with Jesus? While animals served as provisional sacrifices for human sins during the OT era, they could not ultimately atone for humans (Heb 4:10). Humanity needed one of their own, one who knew no sin, to stand in and take the punishment that is due to all sinners. Genesis 3:15 gives the first prophetic glimpse at God’s final solution to this need and hints at the central role Jesus plays in that solution. Speaking ultimately of Jesus and His role in redemption, it asserts that the seed of the woman would be crushed, but that He would in turn crush the head of the serpent (the Devil), achieving victory over sin and death. The crushing mentioned here is reminiscent of the crushing experienced by the Suffering Servant in Isaiah 52:13-53:12, a passage that has atonement as its central theme. Jesus Christ is both the subject and fulfillment of Isaiah’s prophecy. In the events that unfolded during His trial, crucifixion, and resurrection, Jesus was the Suffering Servant on our behalf. Though innocent of all sin, Jesus stood in our place to take our punishment, shedding His blood to atone for us. “He entered the most holy place once for all, not by the blood of goats and calves, but by His own blood, having obtained eternal redemption” (Heb 9:12). “By the sacrifice of Himself ” (Heb 9:26) Jesus satisfied God’s wrath against sin.

That OT atonement finds its culmination in Jesus Christ is put beyond question by John the Baptist who, seeing Jesus, proclaimed, “Here is the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!” (Jn 1:29).

Salvation in the Old Testament

Paige Patterson

The concept of salvation in the Old Testament (OT) features a variety of applications, including deliverance, rescue, safety, and even welfare. In Exodus 14:30, Yahweh "saved" Israel from the hand of the Egyptians. This usage of the term is typical of the times when salvation focuses on physical deliverance from a specific danger. Another nuance involves forensic or legal rescue, which is observed in passages like Deuteronomy 22:27 where a woman who is the subject of sexual attack in a field has no one to rescue her. But the most significant use of the concept and the one most commonly perceived is the soteriological emphasis in which the fallen spiritual nature of humankind stands in need of salvation or redemption by God.

Implicit in all uses of "salvation" are the perceptions of need and even inability. As often as not, God is featured as the only One who can effect a rescue or bring salvation, which is especially true of the eternal salvation of the individual. Passages such as Isaiah 51:8 contrast the ephemeral nature of physical realities with a salvation that is for all generations. In the famous passage magnifying the beauty of those who bring good news and proclaim salvation, the rescue in view seems to be spiritual and eternal (Is 52:7). Isaiah 59:17 employs language later invoked by New Testament authors such as Paul, who speaks of "righteousness like armor on your chest" and "the helmet of salvation" (Eph 6:14,17). In Jonah's prayer from the belly of the great fish, he declares that "salvation is from the Lord !" (Jnh 2:9). While it could be argued that the prophet's thought is only about his abysmal physical circumstance, most would see a more profound avowal, anticipating God's sovereign redemption of the soul.

Salvation in the OT is also linked with other concepts such as redemption, atonement, and righteousness. Such ideas express the means of salvation (atonement), the goal of salvation (righteousness), or the nature of salvation (redemption). For example, the Passover was designed not only to depict the exodus from Egypt but also to remind the Israelites of the more profound significance of the role of sacrifice in salvation. A lamb dies and its blood is sprinkled on the doorposts so that the death angel will pass over, sparing the life of the firstborn (Ex 12:1-14). The rituals associated with the Day of Atonement also focused on a vicarious, substitutionary atonement for the sins of the people (Lv 16:1-34).

Isaiah 53 conveys the message of a sacrificial act on the part of the Suffering Servant, who made His life an offering for sin that would "justify many" (v. 11). By His stripes we are healed and the iniquity of us all was laid on Him as He was struck by God for the transgressions of us all.

God is the sole author of salvation. The human family, horribly marred by sin, cannot effect salvation even by the keeping of the law. This raises the question of how salvation is appropriated in the OT. Genesis 15:6 declares that "Abram believed the LORD , and He credited it to him as righteousness." Paul makes this passage central to his whole argument in Romans 1-8. "For what does the Scripture say? Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him for righteousness" (Rm 4:3).

While there seems to be general recognition among Christians that righteousness and holiness are required to stand before God, many erroneously believe that salvation was attained in the OT by the keeping of the law. Both Genesis and Romans agree in declaring that salvation may be attained only through faith (believing God). As the sacrificial system perpetually illustrated, atonement must be made. Isaiah 53 presented the Suffering Servant as the One who would ultimately make that atonement. Paul demonstrates explicitly what is always implicit in the OT—the law could save no one. Salvation is extended in any era on the basis of God's grace appropriated by the faith of human beings.

JAMES

Greeting

1 James, [a] a •slave of God [b] and of the Lord Jesus Christ:
To the 12 tribes [c] in the Dispersion. [d, e]
Greetings. [f]

Trials and Maturity

2 Consider it a great joy, my brothers, whenever you experience various trials, [g] 3 knowing that the testing of your faith produces endurance. 4 But endurance must do its complete work, so that you may be mature and complete, lacking nothing.

5 Now if any of you lacks wisdom, he should ask God, who gives to all generously and without criticizing, and it will be given to him. [h] 6 But let him ask in faith without doubting. For the doubter is like the surging sea, driven and tossed by the wind. 7 That person should not expect to receive anything from the Lord. 8 An indecisive [A] man is unstable in all his ways. [i]

9 The brother of humble circumstances should boast in his exaltation, 10 but the one who is rich should boast in his humiliation because he will pass away like a flower of the field. [j] 11 For the sun rises with its scorching heat and dries up the grass; its flower falls off, and its beautiful appearance is destroyed. In the same way, the rich man will wither away while pursuing his activities. [k]

12 A man who endures trials [B] is blessed, because when he passes the test he will receive the crown [l] of life that God [m] has promised to those who love Him.
[n]

13 No one undergoing a trial should say, “I am being tempted by God.” For God is not tempted by evil, [C] and He Himself doesn’t tempt anyone. 14 But each person is tempted when he is drawn away and enticed by his own evil desires. [o] 15 Then after desire has conceived, it gives birth to sin, and when sin is fully grown, it gives birth to death. [p]

16 Don’t be deceived, my dearly loved brothers. [q] 17 Every generous act and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights; with Him there is no variation or shadow cast by turning. [r] 18 By His own choice, He gave us a new birth by the message of truth [s] so that we would be the •firstfruits of His creatures. [t]

Hearing and Doing the Word 19 My dearly loved brothers, understand this:
Everyone must be quick to hear, slow to speak, and slow to anger, [u] 20 for man’s anger does not accomplish God’s righteousness. 21 Therefore, ridding yourselves of all moral filth and evil, [D] humbly receive the implanted word, which is able to save you. [E, v]

22 But [w] be doers of the word and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves. 23
Because if anyone is a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like a man looking at his own face [F] in a mirror. 24 For he looks at himself, goes away, and immediately forgets what kind of man he was. 25 But the one who looks intently into the perfect law of freedom and perseveres in it, and is not a forgetful hearer but one who does good works — this person will be blessed in what he does. [x] 26 If anyone [y] thinks he is religious without controlling his tongue, [z] then his religion is useless and he deceives himself. 27 Pure and undefiled religion before our [G] God and Father is this: to look after orphans and widows [a] in their distress and to keep oneself unstained by the •world . [b]

The Sin of Favoritism

2 My brothers, do not show favoritism as you hold on to the faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ. [a] 2 For example, a man comes into your meeting wearing a gold ring and dressed in fine clothes, and a poor man dressed in dirty clothes also comes in. 3 If you look with favor on the man wearing the fine clothes and say, “Sit here in a good place,” and yet you say to the poor man, “Stand over there,” or, “Sit here on the floor by my footstool,” 4 haven’t you discriminated among yourselves and become judges with evil thoughts?

5 Listen, my dear brothers: Didn’t God choose the poor in this world [b] to be rich in faith [c] and heirs [d] of the kingdom that He has promised to those who love Him? 6 Yet you dishonored that poor man. [e] Don’t the rich oppress you and drag [f] you into the courts? 7 Don’t they blaspheme the noble name that was pronounced over you at your baptism? [g]

8 Indeed, if you keep the royal law prescribed in the Scripture, Love your neighbor as yourself, [h, i] you are doing well. 9 But if you show favoritism, [j] you commit sin and are convicted by the law as transgressors. 10 For whoever keeps the entire law, yet fails in one point, is •guilty of breaking it all. [k] 11 For He who said, Do not commit adultery, [l] also said, Do not murder. [m, n] So if you do not commit adultery, but you do murder, you are a lawbreaker.

12 Speak and act as those who will be judged by the law of freedom. [o] 13 For judgment is without mercy to the one who hasn’t shown mercy. [p] Mercy triumphs over judgment.

Faith and Works

14 What good is it, my brothers, if someone says he has faith but does not have works? Can his faith [A] save him?
15 If a brother or sister is without clothes and lacks daily food 16 and one of you says to them, “Go in peace, keep warm, and eat well,” but you don’t give them what the body needs, what good is it? [q] 17 In the same way faith, if it doesn’t have works, is dead by itself.
18 But someone will say, “You have faith, and I have works.” [r] Show me your faith without works, and I will show you faith from my works. [s, t] 19 You believe that God is one; you do well. The demons also believe — and they shudder. [u]
20 Foolish man! Are you willing to learn that faith without works is useless? 21 Wasn’t Abraham our father justified by works when he offered Isaac his son on the altar? 22 You see that faith was active together with his works, and by works, faith was perfected. [v] 23 So the Scripture was fulfilled that says, Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him for righteousness, [w, x] and he was called God’s friend. [y] 24 You see that a man is •justified by works and not by faith alone. 25 And in the same way, wasn’t Rahab the prostitute also justified by works when she received the messengers and sent them out by a different route?
[z] 26 For just as the body without the spirit is dead, so also faith without works is dead.

Controlling the Tongue

3 Not many should become teachers, my brothers, knowing that we will receive a stricter judgment, [a] 2 for we all stumble in many ways. [b] If anyone does not stumble in what he says, [A] he is a mature man who is also able to control his whole body. [B, c]

3 Now when we put bits into the mouths of horses to make them obey us, [d] we also guide the whole animal. [C] 4 And consider ships: Though very large and driven by fierce winds, they are guided by a very small rudder wherever the will of the pilot directs. 5 So too, though the tongue is a small part of the body, it boasts great things. [e] Consider how large a forest a small fire ignites. 6 And the tongue is a fire. The tongue, a world of unrighteousness, is placed among the parts of our bodies. It pollutes the whole body, [f] sets the course of life on fire, and is set on fire by •hell .

7 Every sea creature, reptile, bird, or animal is tamed and has been tamed by man, 8 but no man can tame the tongue. It is a restless evil, full of deadly poison. [g] 9 We praise our [D] Lord and Father with it, and we curse men who are made in God’s likeness with it. [h] 10 Praising and cursing come out of the same mouth. My brothers, these things should not be this way. 11 Does a spring pour out sweet and bitter water from the same opening? 12 Can a fig tree produce olives, my brothers, or a grapevine produce figs? Neither can a saltwater spring yield fresh water.

The Wisdom from Above

13 Who is wise and has understanding among you? He should show his works by good conduct with wisdom's gentleness. [i] 14 But if you have bitter envy and selfish ambition in your heart, don't brag and deny the truth. [j] 15 Such wisdom does not come from above but is earthly, unspiritual, demonic. [k] 16 For where envy and selfish ambition exist, there is disorder and every kind of evil. 17 But the wisdom from above is first pure, then peace-loving, gentle, compliant, full of mercy and good fruits, without favoritism and hypocrisy. [l] 18 And the fruit of righteousness [m] is sown in peace by those who cultivate peace.

Proud or Humble

4 What is the source of wars and fights among you? Don’t they come from the cravings [a] that are at war within you? [A] 2 You desire and do not have. You murder and covet and cannot obtain. You fight and war. You do not have because you do not ask. 3 You ask and don’t receive because you ask with wrong motives, so that you may spend it on your evil desires. [b]

4 Adulteresses! [c,] [B] Don’t you know that friendship with the •world is hostility toward God? So whoever wants to be the world’s friend becomes God’s enemy. [d] 5 Or do you think it’s without reason the Scripture says that the Spirit who lives in us yearns jealously? [C,] [e]

6 But He gives greater grace. Therefore He says:

God resists the proud,
but gives grace to the humble. [f,] [g]

7 Therefore, submit to God. But resist the Devil, and he will flee from you. [h]
8 Draw near to God, and He will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, sinners, and purify your hearts, double-minded people! [i] 9 Be miserable and mourn and weep. Your laughter must change to mourning and your joy to sorrow. [j] 10 Humble yourselves before the Lord, and He will exalt you.

11 Don’t criticize one another, brothers. He who criticizes a brother or judges his brother criticizes the law and judges the law. But if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge. [k] 12 There is one lawgiver and judge [l] who is able to save and to destroy. But who are you to judge your neighbor? [m]

Our Will and His Will

13 Come now, you who say, “Today or tomorrow we will travel to such and such a city and spend a year there and do business and make a profit.” [n] 14 You don’t even know what tomorrow will bring — what your life will be! For you are like smoke that appears for a little while, then vanishes. [o]

15 Instead, you should say, “If the Lord wills, we will live and do this or that.”
16 But as it is, you boast in your arrogance. All such boasting is evil. [p] 17 So it is a sin for the person who knows to do what is good and doesn’t do it. [q]

Warning to the Rich

5 Come now, you rich [a] people! Weep and wail over the miseries that are coming on you. 2 Your wealth is ruined and your clothes are moth-eaten. [b] 3 Your silver and gold are corroded, and their corrosion will be a witness against you and will eat your flesh like fire. You stored up treasure in the last days! [c] 4 Look! The pay that you withheld from the workers [d] who reaped your fields cries out, and the outcry of the harvesters has reached the ears of the Lord of •Hosts . [A, e] 5 You have lived luxuriously on the land and have indulged yourselves. You have fattened your hearts [f] for [B] the day of slaughter. [g] 6
You have condemned — you have murdered — the righteous man; he does not resist
you. [h]

Waiting for the Lord

7 Therefore, brothers, be patient until the Lord’s coming. See how the farmer waits for the precious fruit of the earth and is patient with it until it receives the early and the late rains. [i] 8 You also must be patient. Strengthen your hearts, because the Lord’s coming is near. [j]

9 Brothers, do not complain about one another, so that you will not be judged.
Look, the judge stands at the door! [k]

10 Brothers, take the prophets who spoke in the Lord’s name as an example of suffering and patience. 11 See, we count as blessed those who have endured. [C]
You have heard of Job’s endurance [l] and have seen the outcome from the Lord.
The Lord is very compassionate and merciful. [m]

Truthful Speech

12 Now above all, my brothers, do not swear, either by heaven or by earth or with any other oath. [n] Your “yes” must be “yes,” and your “no” must be “no,” so that you won’t fall under judgment. [o]

Effective Prayer

13 Is anyone among you suffering? He should pray. Is anyone cheerful? He should sing praises. p 14 Is anyone among you sick? He should call for the elders of the church, and they should pray over him after anointing him with olive oil in the name of the Lord. q 15 The prayer of faith will save the sick person, and the Lord will restore him to health; if he has committed sins, he will be forgiven. r 16
Therefore, confess your sins to one another and pray for one another, so that you may be healed. The urgent request of a righteous person is very powerful in its effect. s 17 Elijah was a man with a nature like ours; yet he prayed earnestly that it would not rain, and for three years and six months it did not rain on the land. t 18 Then he prayed again, and the sky gave rain and the land produced its fruit. u

19 My brothers, if any among you strays from the truth, v and someone turns him back, w 20 let him know that whoever turns a sinner from the error of his way will save his •life from death and cover a multitude of sins. x

Introduction

"Though the tongue is a small part of the body, it boasts great things. Consider how large a forest a small fire ignites. And the tongue is a fire . . . It pollutes the whole body, sets the course of life on fire" (3:5-6).

The book of James is a wonderful companion piece to the teachings of Jesus as recorded in the four Gospels. James has a strong ethical emphasis that is consistent with the moral teachings Jesus gave to His disciples. James also mirrors the sometimes harsh denunciations that Jesus spoke against religious hypocrisy. Like Jesus' teachings, the book of James is both a source of exhortation and comfort, reproof and encouragement. Finally, James is known for being extremely practical, yet it contains some of the most profound theological truths of the New Testament.

Circumstances of Writing Author: James is named as the author in 1:1. A number of NT personalities were named James, but only three are candidates for the authorship of this book. James the son of Zebedee died in A.D. 44, too early to have been the author. No tradition names James the son of Alphaeus (Mk 3:18) as the author. This leaves James the brother of Jesus, also called James the Just (Mk 6:3; Ac 1:14; 12:17; 15:13; 21:18; 1Co 15:7; Gl 2:9,12), as the most likely candidate.

This James is identified as the brother of Jesus in Mt 13:55; Mk 6:3; and Gl 1:19. Though he was not a follower of Christ during His earthly ministry (Jn 7:3-5), a post-resurrection appearance convinced James that Jesus is indeed the Christ (Ac 1:14; 1Co 15:7). James later led the Jerusalem church (Gl 2:9,12), exercising great influence there (Ac 1:14; 12:17; 15:13; 21:18; 1Co 15:7; Gl 2:9,12).

Background: James was probably written between A.D. 48 and 52, though nothing in the epistle suggests a more precise date. James's death in A.D. 62 or 66 means the epistle was written before this time. Similarities to Gospel traditions and Pauline themes are suggestive. If Mark was written around A.D. 65 and time is allowed for the events of Acts 15 and 21 to have occurred between Paul's first and second missionary journeys, a date between A.D. 48 and 52 seems most likely.

The reference to "the 12 tribes in the Dispersion" (1:1) suggests the letter was written to Jewish Christians living in or around Palestine. James led the Jerusalem church, so it is likely that the audience lived in that area (including Antioch). The reference to a synagogue in 2:2 also suggests that his audience were Jewish Christians. References to their circumstances (e.g., oppression by wealthy landowners; 5:1-6) could refer to congregations anywhere in the Roman Empire. However, Semitic word order, quotations from the Septuagint, and the overall dependence of the epistle on the Jewish wisdom tradition suggest a specifically Jewish Christian audience.

Message and Purpose As a general epistle, James was addressed to a broad audience (Jewish Christians) rather than a specific audience (e.g., Christians at Ephesus only). There is an obvious concern to address internal and external difficulties being faced by Jewish Christian congregations. Externally they were facing trials (1:2), particularly oppression of various sorts exerted by wealthy landowners. It does not appear that the oppression was religious in nature. Internally it appears that dissension was caused by a lack of self-control (1:13-17), uncontrolled speech, and false teachings that led to a misunderstanding of true religion (1:19-27; 2:1-4; 3:1-8), favoritism toward the wealthy (2:1-13), and selfish ambition that led to murder and criticism (4:1-12).

James addressed these issues primarily through the application of principles defined by the OT wisdom tradition. The solutions he named reflected the wisdom from above that comes from the "Father of lights" (1:17) who gives wisdom generously to those who ask for it. Wisdom is required for proper speech in worship and in determining who ought to teach (1:19-27; 3:1-8). Wisdom is also needed to avoid internal conflicts that create dissension within congregations (3:13-18; 4:1-12). The theme of faith in action is also important (1:19-27; 2:14-26); James demonstrated that faith that does not express itself in good works is useless. Another theme of the epistle is ethics, especially social justice (2:1-13; 4:1-12; 5:1-12).

Contribution to the Bible James continually called for obedience to the law of God. He never referred to the ceremonial law, but to the moral law. While some people think James is at odds with Paul about the Christian's relationship to the law, both authors actually combine to give us a solid understanding of the OT law. Paul showed believers that Christ met the demands of the law and, thus, brings us to salvation. James showed believers that their obedience to God's moral standards is an indication of a living faith, which is a life lived in step with the One who met the demands of the law. Some choose to oversimplify the distinctions between the OT and the NT and say the OT is grounded in works and the NT is grounded in faith, but James brings both testaments together to show that faith and works are integrally related in both the old and new covenants.

Structure The book of James is a letter (an epistle), though only the greeting conforms to the ancient Greek form exemplified in Paul's letters, especially Gl atians. The greeting identifies the author as James, includes a title demonstrating the source of his authority ("a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ"), names the recipients ("the 12 tribes in the Dispersion"), and conveys "Greetings" (1:1). Epistles were often used as a means of spurring the recipients to a change in behavior or belief based on the authoritative word and guidance of the sender.

The book of James has been compared to OT Wisdom literature. While there are wisdom elements in James, such as comparing the wisdom of the world with the wisdom that comes from God, it also contains exhortations and prophetic elements not common to Wisdom literature.

Study Notes 1:1 The use of slave indicates James's humility and total devotion in service to his Lord. As a "slave" of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, James's words bear authority, for he does his master's bidding and speaks as His representative (2Pt 1:20-21). The 12 tribes in the Dispersion refers symbolically to Jewish Christians scattered abroad (see note at 1Pt 1:1-2).

1:2 The phrase whenever you experience various trials assumes that trials are a normal part of the Christian life. In fact, trials are a given for a faithful disciple (2Tm 3:12). The Jewish wisdom tradition held that the experience of "trials" was proof of a person's faithfulness. Joy suggests an eschatological (end times) hope of deliverance from trials. The joy with which a believer endures trials in the present is a sign of their hope for future relief.

1:3 Knowing (or "because you know") modifies "consider" in verse 2. Knowledge that the testing of your faith produces endurance is the basis for joy. "Endurance" is the ability to persevere through increasing levels of testing or suffering.

1:4 Endurance indicates that further work must be done for the purpose of making the believer mature and complete, lacking nothing. Immaturity and incompletion are not acceptable long-term states for the Christian disciple.

1:5 The world's harsh treatment tempts us to withdraw and refuse to expose our lack of wisdom for fear of being shamed by our peers, but God gives to all generously and without criticizing. Thus he who lacks wisdom should ask God freely.

1:6-8 A person should ask for wisdom in faith without doubting. The basis for confidence here is not just the fact that we exercise faith, but the person in whom we place our faith—God.

1:9-11 James offered two illustrations of people facing trials: the brother of humble circumstances (the poor) and one who is rich. In relation to eternity, neither the poor nor the wealthy have anything to boast about; they are equals before God.

1:12 Blessed reflects the understanding that a person who walks in the paths set by the Lord sees his plight in terms of the eschatological hope that awaits him. Set within this context, his current troubles seem fleeting.

1:13-18 The term trial (v. 13) connects this group of verses to the preceding section (vv. 2-12). God's relationship to temptation is made clear by two kinds of statements. On the one hand, there are assertions that clarify what God is not or does not do: God is not tempted . . . and He Himself doesn't tempt. On the other hand, there are assertions as to what things do come from God: every generous act and every perfect gift.

1:13-14 The twofold negative stance (God is not tempted and He Himself doesn't tempt anyone) emphatically denies that God leads people into temptation. The source of temptation is one's own evil desires. "Desires" focuses on the immediacy that carnal desire creates, spurring a person to act, to be drawn away and enticed like a fish is baited to bite a hook and is then pulled from the water.

1:17 Father of lights refers to God (v. 5), who created the lights that rule days and seasons (Gn 1:14-19). No variation or shadow cast by turning alludes to the fact that God's nature is unchanging and that His promises are secure.

1:18 Message of truth refers to the gospel, by which new birth comes. Firstfruits refers to the best that the harvest produces. God gives good gifts that yield wondrous fruit, not temptation that leads to death through wayward desires.

1:19-27 The focus of this section is on proper Christian conduct, especially regarding use of the tongue.

1:21 Implanted word refers to the gospel as received by the believer.

1:22 The presence of the "implanted word" should produce more than idle listening. True worship leads to putting gospel exhortations into action.

1:23-25 In the contrast between the hearer of the word who looks at his own face in a mirror and yet forgets, and the doer of the word who looks intently into the perfect law of freedom and perseveres, the distinction is found in whether the one who looks allows "the perfect law of freedom" (the gospel) to shape his life's course. The person who hears and does "the word" puts faith into action and is blessed; his worship influences his life.

1:26-27 James made an observation about true religion. Just as the hearer looks in a mirror and forgets his own face, so the person who refuses to hold his tongue is deceived about his faith. He hears and talks, but he does not act on what he has heard. James's definition of pure and undefiled religion is based on action, not heedless hearing and meaningless lip service.

2:1-26 In this chapter James discussed worship in the synagogue. References to the treatment of the wealthy versus the poor are reminiscent of 1:9-11. The focus on the ethics of true spirituality is linked closely with chapter 1.

2:1 The phrase show favoritism is addressed four times in the NT (cp. Rm 2:11; Eph 6:9; Col 3:25), each time indicating that God does not show favoritism. When we sin by showing "favoritism" we imply that God did not make all men and women equal. Thus anyone who shows favoritism is guilty of having "evil thoughts" (Jms 2:4).

2:2-3 James portrayed favoritism by illustrating contrasting attitudes toward a wealthy man and a poor man who enter the meeting (Gk sunagogeyn). The attendance of a wealthy man promises financial advantage since his tithes and offerings may be large, thus the people in the assembly look with favor on him. "Look with favor" is related in meaning to "showing favoritism" in verse 1.

2:4 James condemned favoritism with a rhetorical question (haven't you discriminated among yourselves and become judges with evil thoughts?), to which his audience could only answer, "Yes." The word "discriminated" suggests that pandering had created divisions within the fellowship of the synagogue. Probably neither the wealthy man nor the poor man was a member of the synagogue.

2:5 God's choice of the poor here is not favoritism because the choice was not based on bias. Discrimination occurs when one ignores the fact that the "law of freedom" (1:25) applies to all people, obligating us to treat everyone equally.

2:7 The noble name refers to Jesus Christ. Blaspheme means that the wealthy blaspheme either by speaking against Christ directly or through their actions against the members of the assembly.

2:8-11 Attitudes among Christians should be based on the royal law, which says Love your neighbor as yourself (Lv 19:18; Mt 19:19; 22:39; Mk 12:31; Rm 13:9; Gl 5:14). Favoritism violates this command, thus convicting those guilty of its practice as transgressors of the law.

2:12-13 James exhorted his readers to have proper attitudes. The phrase speak and act refers to "hearing and doing" and tempered speech, as in 1:19-27. The law of freedom, or the gospel, will serve as the basis for eschatological judgment (1:2-12).

2:14-26 In this section James continues with the theme of "being hearers and doers of the word" (1:19-27) by focusing on the relationship between faith and works.

2:14 Can his faith save him should be understood to mean, "Can a faith that does not express itself in good works be a saving faith?" The answer is no.

2:15-17 Giving a blessing to someone in need without offering tangible aid is useless. If faith is not accompanied by works, it is dead by itself.

2:18 The argument turns to the relationship between faith and works. Beginning in this verse James answered a "straw man" argument (but someone will say) against his assertion that faith without works is dead.

2:19-20 The demons also believe—and they shudder is an answer to the mistaken assertion that belief in God by itself is sufficient for salvation. Demons believe, but it is impossible for them to be saved. Saving faith entails more than mere knowledge. It includes trust and obedience, for faith without works is useless.

2:21-23 The example of Abraham and his offer of Isaac as a sacrifice (Gn 22:1-19) affirms James's teachings about faith. What exactly a biblical author means by justified depends on the context in which he uses it. For instance, Paul (Rm 4:1-5; Gl 3:6-14) argued that "works of the law" cannot make one "justified" because he wished to make clear that salvation is a gift given only through faith. Abraham believed God, and his trust in God was counted as righteousness (Gn 15:6; Gl 3:6). James focuses more on the role good works play in proving faith genuine. Abraham's faith was proven genuine by his obedience to God's command. His faith made his good works possible.

2:24-26 James's declaration that man is justified by works and not by faith alone may seem to contradict Rm 3:28, but note that Paul was writing about "works of the law," meaning the Mosaic law, whereas James spoke only of "works," which has in view good deeds. James's references to law are to "the law of freedom" (the gospel; see 2:12) and to "the royal law" (v. 8; Lv 19:18), both of which affirm his assertion that true faith is expressed through good works.

3:1-12 In this section James continued to address the issue of misguided speech (2:16-18). The focus is on how errant teaching might adversely affect the congregation.

3:1 Many people desire to be teachers because this is an important role in the church. Yet the proliferation of untrained teachers can allow false teachings to arise within congregations, leading some astray. Teachers receive a stricter judgment and should not be appointed carelessly.

3:2 The most difficult thing for a teacher to control is the tongue. Body (Gk soma) carries a dual meaning here. It refers to the physical body and the role the tongue plays in it, but it also refers to the body of believers in the synagogue and the influence that teachers have in it.

3:3-6 Like horse bits and ship rudders, the size of the tongue is disproportionate to the influence it holds. False teaching (expressed by "the tongue") is a world of unrighteousness. It pollutes the whole body (an individual or a congregation) and determines the destiny of all who follow it.

3:9-12 James pointed out the contradictory nature of the tongue. Out of the same mouth comes blessing of God and cursing of fellow humans who are made in God's likeness, a violation of the "royal law" (2:8).

3:13-18 In these verses James continued addressing the role of teachers, particularly their spiritual maturity. Speech plays a role here (don't brag and deny the truth), but the larger issues are envy and selfish ambition. Far from being minor character flaws, these traits are earthly, unspiritual, and demonic.

3:13 The wise teacher should show his works (see note at 2:18). As faith is demonstrated by works, so also wisdom is demonstrated by good conduct and gentleness.

3:14-15 The phrase bitter envy and selfish ambition contrasts with "good conduct and wisdom's gentleness" in verse 13. Denial of truth is a constant threat in churches that tolerate false teachings.

3:16-18 James contrasted the two types of wisdom in terms of their sources. Teachers who teach on the basis of "earthly" wisdom produce disorder and every kind of evil. Teachers who possess wisdom from above produce virtues that fulfill the "royal law" (2:8) and promote unity within the congregation.

4:1 While pride and selfishness are natural to fallen humanity and often serve as a basis for advancement in worldly rank, James names them as the source of wars and fights within the congregation. "Wars and fights" indicates physical conflict among members and/or factions within the congregation. The source of conflict was the cravings . . . at war within you. "Cravings" refers to the pleasures of life, the pursuit of which leads to conflicts.

4:2-3 Two statements distinguished by paired opposites (desire . . . do not have and murder and covet . . . cannot obtain) and two direct assertions (fight and war and do not have because you do not ask) describe the problem to which the circumstances had led. People were actually killing one another to appease their misplaced desires! Their desires were unappeased because they were asking with wrong motives. The source of conflict was selfish desire and envy run amok (3:13-18).

4:4-5 Adulteresses refers to the congregation's unfaithfulness to God. Self-centeredness is cast as diametric opposition (hostility) to God. The phrase the Spirit who lives in us yearns jealously plays off "the cravings . . . at war within you" in verse 1, demonstrating the difference in attitude between a Spirit-filled life and one enslaved by selfish cravings.

4:6 The phrase but He gives greater grace introduces the main point—God's grace is able to overcome unfaithfulness. The exhortation to repent is backed by a stark reality expressed in Pr 3:34 and quoted here by James: God resists the proud. "Resist" is a military term used to describe an army arrayed for battle. To remain in sinful pride is to invite God's battle array against you. In contrast to this, God gives grace to the humble (1:17).

4:7-9 James issued ten commands needed to resolve the conflict within the congregation. The theme is repentance and forgiveness. The use of imperatives followed by and suggests that the result of each command is conditioned by the response to it, which yields the idea, "if you do X, then Y results." Submit to God carries the idea of self-humbling; resist the Devil suggests an active resistance against temptation. Sinners and double-minded people are parallel ideas that characterize both the teachers and the congregation. "Double-minded" recalls the doubter of 1:8.

4:10 The words humble yourselves . . . and He will exalt you summarize the path to having forgiveness from God as well as reconciliation among members of the congregation.

4:11-12 Criticism is malicious, judgmental speech toward others. It violates the "royal law" (2:8) and by extension the Mosaic law. Since the One who gave the law also judges according to it, there are never grounds for critical speech directed toward another member of the congregation.

4:13-17 In this section the issue is boastful speech that indicates arrogance. It is unclear whether the merchants of verse 17 were all Christians, but verse 15 suggests that some were.

4:13-14 In a hypothetical but realistic scenario, James accused a merchant who had big designs on making a profit of leaving God out of his plans. Neglecting to entrust our hopes and plans to God and His counsel is paramount to arrogance and unbelief. If He is really the Lord of our lives, we see all things as coming from His hands and we speak of plans and outcomes accordingly.

4:15-16 The phrase you should say and what follows indicate that it is God's will that conditions the course of life. The merchants did not recognize this; they were boasting, but such boasting is arrogance and evil.

5:1-6 Oppressive landowners and people who put their trust in riches were commonly addressed in prophetic and apocalyptic speech, including by Jesus Himself (e.g., Lk 6:24). People who use their wealth to oppress others may seem to go unpunished in this lifetime, but James warns that miseries are coming in the future judgment.

5:2-3 Wealth is often measured in terms of quality foods, clothes, and silver and gold. Besides referring to moth-eaten clothing, the phrase wealth is ruined could indicate that food is perishable and thus not a measure of lasting wealth. Technically speaking, silver and gold do not corrode; James's statement about them corroding is paradoxical, emphasizing that even "incorruptible" commodities are destined to perish. Last days emphasizes the eschatological nature of the pronouncement against greed. Stored up (or hoarded) wealth will become the undoing of greedy persons.

5:4 In ancient times payment for work performed was due at the end of the workday. Greed motivated some landowners to withhold these wages. Withheld could be translated "defrauded." Lord of Hosts is an OT reference to God as a warrior (1Ch 11:4-9; Is 2:12ff). The plight of the poor and oppressed worker is known to God.

5:6 Condemned is a legal term suggesting that the wealthy took land and wages through decisions rendered in dishonest courts. He does not resist you (see 4:6) indicates the helplessness of the poor.

5:7-8 In light of the certainty of God's coming judgment on their oppressors, James encouraged his audience to be patient and to await the Lord's coming. The phrase strengthen your hearts is an expansion on "be patient," signifying firm resolve in light of the coming of the Lord and in spite of trying circumstances.

5:9 To complain about one another constitutes being judgmental, already prohibited in 4:11-12. The immediacy of the Lord's return brings judgment to the person who judges, just as it does for the oppressors.

5:12 Do not swear is an exhortation to truthfulness, not a universal prohibition against oath-making (see Rm 1:9; 2Co 1:23; Gl 1:20: Php 1:8; 1Th 2:5,10, where Paul used oaths; cp. Mt 5:33-37).

5:13-14 James used a series of questions followed by commands as an effective way of exhorting the congregation to prayer and worship. Suffering in verse 13 is not a reference to physical illness; it is instead a spiritual burden caused by misfortune or poor choices. Elders, who functioned in various capacities in the early church, should anoint any sick person with olive oil and pray over him. Olive oil was considered a cure-all ointment in the ancient world, but for James the real healing power is in prayer.

5:15 The prayer of faith echoes 1:5-8. Save refers to physical healing (as in Mk 5:23,28,34; 10:52; Jn 11:12). The Lord will restore him to health does not indicate that death is at hand (v. 14), but that once healed by the power of God the sick person could get up and walk (Mt 9:5-7; Mk 1:31; 2:9-12; 9:27; Ac 3:7). He will be forgiven indicates that perhaps the illness was connected with sin, and the prayers of the elders could bring spiritual healing as well.

5:16 Pray for one another echoes the prayers of the elders, and these should lead to both physical and spiritual healing (i.e., forgiveness). Prayer is not a magical incantation or a guarantee of healing, but when offered fervently by a righteous person, God will respond in a way that best fits His good purposes.

5:17-18 James cited a biblical personality, Elijah, who prayed effectively. The illustration is intended to encourage his audience that their prayers could lead to similar results.

5:19-20 James turned to the priority of reclaiming those who had strayed from the faith. Someone turns and whoever turns both reflect an effort to bring a straying believer back to an authentic Christian faith and lifestyle.

HCSB Translation gentleness Uses in James 2
Uses in the NT 11
Focus passage James 3:13

Prautes (gentleness, humility) always appears as a positive quality in the NT. Christians are encouraged to receive with submission (a humble attitude toward) the implanted word able to save their lives (Jms 1:21). This inward attitude of gentleness always manifests itself outwardly. There is no such thing as a gentle attitude that does not express itself in gentleness with relation to others. Therefore, good conduct should operate in the gentleness that wisdom requires (Jms 3:13). Gentleness is a fruit of the Spirit (Gl 5:23). Christians are to clothe themselves with gentleness not only toward one another (Col 3:12) but also toward all people (Ti 3:2). Sinners are to be restored in a spirit of gentleness (Gl 6:1). The servant of God is not to quarrel even with his opponents. Rather, he is to instruct them in gentleness with a view to their repentance (2Tm 2:24-25; cp. 1Pt 3:16).

huperephanos Greek Pronunciation [hoo pehr AY fah nahs] HCSB Translation proud Uses in James 1
Uses in the NT 5
Focus passage James 4:6

In the NT, huperephanos appears exclusively in an unfavorable sense, referring to one who is haughty or arrogant , always in relation to other people. Thus, men show their pride by foolishly refusing to submit to God and authorities. Consequently, God opposes them (Lk 1:51; Jms 4:6). God is opposed to the proud believer who resists those in authority and acts arrogantly toward his fellow brothers and sisters (1Pt 5:5). Thus, huperephanos represents a pride of heart that manifests itself through a state of demeaning others. Paul's use of huperephanos supports this conclusion. Twice he lists the term in a vice-list (Rm 1:30; 2Tm 3:2). From the list in Rm 1:30, the range of meaning of huperephanos appears to overlap with that of hubristas (a violent, insolent man) and alazones (an empty boaster) such that the term appears to be a link between empty verbal boasting and violent action.

Essays Faith and Works Mark DeVine

Whenever "faith" is set beside "works" it recalls the theological conflicts that shaped the Reformation of the sixteenth century. To this day these conflicts largely account for the division of the western church between Roman Catholic and Protestant. Martin Luther's rediscovery of the gospel included a recovery of the apostle Paul's insistence that "no one will be justified in His [God's] sight by the works of the law" (Rm 3:20). Instead, "you are saved by grace through faith, and this is not from yourselves; it is God's gift—not from works, so that no one can boast" (Eph 2:8-9).

The faith that saves, Luther realized from his study of the Bible, is not mere historical faith (Gk fides), a bare belief that what the Bible declares as true is in fact true, a faith that, according to John Calvin, merely "flits in the brain" and saves no one. Of such faith James could say: "The demons also believe—and they shudder" (Jms 2:19). No, the faith that saves the soul is trusting faith (Gk fiducia), so that salvation comes by grace alone through faith alone in Christ alone. This trusting faith is the "faith in His [Christ's] blood" (Rm 3:25) of which Paul spoke; faith that relies upon the death of Jesus Christ on the cross in the place of sinners. There Jesus bore the punishment of sinners upon Himself so that now God promises to treat as righteous those who believe in His name. Just as "Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him for righteousness" (Rm 4:3), so now all who repent of their sins, abandon hope of being made right with God on the basis of their own good works, and trust only in the mercy of God offered in the death of Jesus Christ in their place, will be saved.

Then what of good works? Have they no place in the Christian life? James anticipates and answers this question: "But someone will say, 'You have faith, and I have works.' Show me your faith without works, and I will show you faith from my works" (Jms 2:18). While God's salvation is all of grace, including the faith that saves, which "is not from yourselves; it is God's gift—not from works so that no one can boast" (Eph 2:8-9), Paul follows this assertion with a word about works: "For we are His [God's] creation, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared ahead of time so that we should walk in them" (Eph 2:10). So good works follow saving faith. Salvation is not gained through works but rather good works are the fruit of saving faith in Jesus Christ.

Sinners saved by grace through faith rest their confidence before God neither in their works nor their faith, as if faith itself were a source of pride. Faith derives its saving power from its object, Jesus Christ. A believer's good works are no grounds for boasting, for the works stem from Christ Himself. The apostle Paul described this mystery as follows: "I have been crucified with Christ and I no longer live, but Christ lives in me" (Gl 2:19-20). Good works are performed by believers due to Christ working in them. Thus a believer's confidence in their salvation is based on Christ, not their performance of good works. With the apostle Paul believers long to "be found in Him [Christ], not having a righteousness of my own from the law, but one that is through faith in Christ—the righteousness from God based on faith" (Php 3:9). They know that "without faith it is impossible to please God" (Heb 11:6).

The Living Stone and a Holy People

2 So rid yourselves of [a] all malice, all deceit, hypocrisy, envy, and all slander.
[b] 2 Like newborn infants, desire the pure spiritual milk, [c] so that you may grow by it for your salvation, [d] 3 since you have tasted [e] that the Lord is good.
[f, g] 4 Coming to Him, a living stone — rejected by men but chosen and valuable to God — 5 you yourselves, as living stones, are being built into a spiritual house for a holy priesthood to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God [h] through Jesus Christ. 6 For it is contained in Scripture:

Look! I lay a stone in •Zion , [i] a chosen and honored [A] cornerstone, [B, j] and the one who believes in Him will never be put to shame! [C, k] , [l]

7 So honor will come to you who believe, but for the unbelieving,

The stone that the builders rejected —
this One has become the cornerstone, [m, n]

8 and

A stone to stumble over, [D] and a rock to trip over. [E, o] , [p]

They stumble because they disobey the message; they were destined [q] for this.

9 But you are a chosen race, [F, r] , [s] a royal priesthood, [t, u] a holy nation, [v, w] a people for His possession, [x, y] so that you may proclaim the praises [G, z] , [a] of the One who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light. [b] 10 Once you were not a people, but now you are God’s people;
you had not received mercy, [c]
but now you have received mercy.

A Call to Good Works

11 Dear friends, I urge you as strangers and temporary residents [d] to abstain [e] from fleshly [f] desires that war against you. [H, g] 12 Conduct [h] yourselves honorably among the Gentiles, [I] so that in a case where they speak against you as those who do what is evil, they will, by observing your good works, glorify God on the day of visitation. [i, j]

13 Submit [k] to every human authority [J] because of the Lord, whether to the Emperor [K] as the supreme authority [l] 14 or to governors as those sent out by him to punish those who do what is evil and to praise those who do what is good. 15 For it is God's will [m] that you silence the ignorance [n] of foolish people by doing good. 16 As God's •slaves , [o] live as free people, but don't use your freedom as a way to conceal evil. [p] 17 Honor everyone. Love [q] the brotherhood. [r] Fear God. [s] Honor the Emperor. [L]

Submission of Slaves to Masters

18 Household slaves, submit with all fear [t] to your masters, [u] not only to the good and gentle but also to the cruel. [M, v] 19 For it brings favor [w] if, mindful of God's will, [x, N] someone endures grief from suffering unjustly. 20 For what credit is there if you sin and are punished, and you endure it? But when you do what is good and suffer, [y] if you endure it, this brings favor with God.

21 For you were called to this, because Christ also suffered [z] for you, leaving you an example, [a]
so that you should follow [b] in His steps.
22 He did not commit sin, [c] and no deceit [d] was found in His mouth; [e, f] 23 when He was reviled,
He did not revile in return;
when He was suffering,
He did not threaten
but entrusted Himself to the One who judges [g] justly.
24 He Himself bore our sins [h] in His body [i] on the tree, [j] so that, having died to sins, [k]
we might live for righteousness; [l]
you have been healed by His wounds. [m, n] 25 For you were like sheep going astray, [o, p] but you have now returned to the Shepherd [q] and Guardian [O] of your souls.

Wives and Husbands

3 In the same way, wives, [a] submit yourselves to your own husbands so that, even if some disobey the Christian message, [b] they may be won over [A, c] without a message by the way their wives live [d] 2 when they observe your pure, reverent lives. [e] 3 Your beauty should not consist of outward things like elaborate hairstyles and the wearing of gold ornaments [B] or fine clothes. [f] 4 Instead, it should consist of what is inside [C] the heart [g] with the imperishable quality of a gentle [h] and quiet [i] spirit, which is very valuable in God's eyes.
5 For in the past, the holy [j] women who put their hope [k] in God also beautified themselves in this way, submitting to their own husbands, 6 just as Sarah [l] obeyed Abraham, calling him lord. You have become her children when you do what is good and are not frightened by anything alarming. [m]

7 Husbands, [n] in the same way, live with your wives with an understanding of their weaker nature [D, o] yet showing them honor as co-heirs of the grace of life, so that your prayers will not be hindered.

Do No Evil

8 Now finally, all of you should be like-minded and sympathetic, should love believers, [E,] [p] and be compassionate [q] and humble, [r] 9 not paying back evil for evil [s] or insult for insult but, on the contrary, giving a blessing, [t] since you were called for this, so that you can inherit a blessing.

10 For the [u] one who wants to love life and to see good days must keep his tongue from evil [v] and his lips from speaking deceit, [w] 11 and he must turn away [x] from evil and do what is good.
He must seek peace [y] and pursue it,
12 because the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous and His ears are open to their request.
But the face of the Lord is against those who do what is evil. [z]

Undeserved Suffering

13 And who will harm [F] you if you are deeply committed to what is good? [G]
14 But even if you should suffer for righteousness, [a] you are blessed. Do not fear what they fear [b] or be disturbed, [c, d] 15 but honor [H] the •Messiah [e] as Lord in your hearts. Always be ready to give a defense to anyone who asks you for a reason [I] for the hope that is in you. [f] 16 However, do this with gentleness and respect, keeping your conscience clear, [J, K] [g] so that when you are accused, [h] those who denounce your Christian life [L] will be put to shame. 17 For it is better to suffer [i] for doing good, if that should be God's will, [M] than for doing evil.

18 For Christ also suffered [j] for sins once for all, [k, l]
the righteous for the unrighteous, [N] that He might bring you [m] to God, [n] after being put to death in the fleshly realm [O, o]
but made alive in the spiritual realm. [P]

19 In that state [Q] He also went and made a proclamation to the spirits [p] in prison [q] 20 who in the past were disobedient, when God patiently waited in the days of Noah [r] while an ark was being prepared. In it a few — that is, eight people [R, s] — were saved through water. 21 Baptism, which corresponds to this, now saves you (not the removal of the filth of the flesh, [t] but the pledge [S] of a good conscience toward God) through the resurrection of Jesus Christ. [u] 22 Now that He has gone into heaven, [v] He is at God's right hand [w] with angels, authorities, and powers subject to Him. [x]

Following Christ

4 Therefore, since Christ suffered [a] in the flesh, [b] equip [A] yourselves also with the same resolve [B] — because the one who suffered in the flesh has finished [c] with sin [C] — 2 in order to live the remaining time in the flesh, no longer for human desires, [D] but for God's will. [d] 3 For there has already been enough time spent in doing what the pagans choose to do: [E] carrying on in unrestrained behavior, evil desires, [e] drunkenness, orgies, [f] carousing, and lawless idolatry. 4 So they are surprised that you don't plunge with them into the same flood [F] of wild living — and they slander you. 5 They will give an account to the One who stands ready to judge the living and the dead. [g] 6 For this reason the gospel was also preached to those who are now dead, [h] so that, although they might be judged by men in the fleshly [i] realm, [G] they might live [j] by God in the spiritual realm. [H]

End-Time Ethics

7 Now the end of all things is near; [k] therefore, be serious and disciplined [l] for prayer. 8 Above all, maintain an intense love [m] for each other, since love covers a multitude of sins. [n, o] 9 Be hospitable [p] to one another without complaining.
10 Based on the gift each one has received, use it to serve others, [q] as good managers of the varied grace of God. 11 If anyone speaks, it should be as one who speaks God's words; if anyone serves, it should be from the strength God provides, [r] so that God may be glorified through Jesus Christ in everything. To Him belong the glory and the power forever and ever. •Amen .

Christian Suffering

12 Dear friends, don't be surprised when the fiery ordeal [I] comes among you to test you as if something unusual were happening to you. [s] 13 Instead, rejoice as you share in the sufferings of the •Messiah , [t] so that you may also rejoice with great joy at the revelation [u] of His glory. 14 If you are ridiculed for the name of Christ, [v] you are blessed, because the Spirit [w] of glory and of God rests on you. [x] 15 None of you, however, should suffer as a murderer, a thief, an evildoer, or a meddler. [J] 16 But if anyone suffers as a "Christian," he should not be ashamed but should glorify God in having that name. 17 For the time has come for judgment [y] to begin with God's household, [z] and if it begins with us, what will the outcome be for those who disobey the gospel of God?

18 And if a righteous person is saved with difficulty, what will become of the ungodly and the sinner? [a, b]

19 So those who suffer according to God's will should, while doing what is good, entrust themselves [c] to a faithful Creator.

About the Elders

5 Therefore, as a fellow elder and witness [a] to the sufferings of the •Messiah and also a participant in the glory about to be revealed, [b] I exhort the elders among you: [2] Shepherd God's flock among you, [c] not overseeing [d] out of compulsion but freely, according to God's will; [e] not for the money but eagerly;
[3] not lording it over those entrusted to you, but being examples to the flock.
[4] And when the chief Shepherd [f] appears, you will receive the unfading crown [g] of glory.

[5] In the same way, you younger men, be subject to the elders. And all of you clothe yourselves with [A] humility toward one another, because

God resists the proud
but gives grace to the humble. [h, i]

[6] Humble [j] yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand [k] of God, so that He may exalt you at the proper time, [B] [7] casting all your care on Him, because He cares about you. [l]

Conclusion

8 Be serious! [m] Be alert! [n] Your adversary the Devil [o] is prowling around like a roaring lion, looking for anyone he can devour. 9 Resist him [p] and be firm in the faith, knowing that the same sufferings are being experienced by your fellow believers throughout the world.

10 Now the God of all grace, who called you to His eternal glory [q] in Christ Jesus, will personally [C] restore, establish, strengthen, and support you after you have suffered a little. [D] 11 The dominion [r] belongs to Him forever. [s] •Amen .

12 I have written you this brief letter through Silvanus [E, t] (I know him to be a faithful brother) to encourage you and to testify that this is the true grace of God.
Take your stand in it! 13 The church in Babylon, [u, v] also chosen, sends you greetings, as does Mark, my son. 14 Greet one another with a kiss of love. [w]
Peace [x] to all of you who are in Christ. [y]

Introduction

Nevsehir is the capital of the region of Cappadocia where some of the recipients of Peter's first letter lived. From Acts 2:9 we know that Jews from Cappadocia were in Jerusalem when Peter preached at Pentecost. Those converted to Christianity that day must have given a good witness when they returned home. Cappadocians lived in a harsh environment as is evident from this photo. Three prominent fourth-century theologians were Cappadocians. Basil, his brother, Gregory of Nyssa, and their friend, Gregory of Nazianzus, made substantial contributions to the development of the doctrine of the Trinity.

First Peter is considered one of the General Epistles. This epistle provided encouragement to suffering believers living in northern Asia Minor who faced intense persecution. The letter encourages faithfulness while under oppression.

Specifically, God's holy people should lead distinctive lifestyles as temporary residents in a foreign land. Although they will suffer for Christ while in this non-Christian world, they should remember that heaven is their future homeland.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The author of 1 Peter identified himself as "Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ" (1:1). He viewed himself as a divinely ordained, directly commissioned, authoritative representative of the Lord Jesus Himself. Several statements in the letter indicate that the Peter who plays a prominent role in the Gospels is the author. For example, he called himself an "elder and witness" to Christ's sufferings (5:1). Further, he described Christ's crucifixion with an intimate knowledge that only a disciple would have of that event (2:21-24).

Several expressions in 1 Peter reflect Peter's experiences with Jesus. For example, the exhortation for elders to "shepherd God's flock" (5:2) evokes the charge that Jesus gave Peter in Jn 21:15-17. Moreover, the command to "clothe yourselves with humility" (5:5) may recall the episode in Jn 13:2-17 where Jesus washed the disciples' feet.

Several themes in 1 Peter can also be found in Peter's sermons in the book of Acts. For example, God is "the One who judges impartially" (1:17; cp. Ac 10:34) and who raised Christ from the dead and gave Him glory (1:21; cp. Ac 2:32-36). Christ is "the stone that the builders rejected" (2:7-8; cp. Ac 4:10-11).

Objections to the letter's authorship by Peter are inconclusive and cannot be proven. The claim that someone wrote this letter using the apostle's name as a pseudonym cannot be sustained. A number of early church leaders— e.g., Irenaeus, Tertullian, and Clement of Alexandria—accepted the letter as authentic. Further, the early church soundly rejected the practice of writing under an apostolic pseudonym as forgery. In light of the above, the epistle should be accepted as genuinely written by the apostle Peter. Silvanus may have in some fashion helped Peter write the letter while serving as his secretary (Gk amanuensis), but more likely he was merely the letter carrier (5:12).

Background: The recipients of 1 Peter are identified in 1:1. Peter wrote to "the temporary residents dispersed in Pontus, Gl atia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia." These were Roman provinces located in the northern part of what is now modern Turkey, unless Gl atia includes the Gl atia in the southern region of Asia Minor. These people were likely persecuted Gentile Christians. They had earlier been involved in idolatry (4:3), were ignorant (1:14) and "empty" (1:18) before they came to Christ, and formerly were "not a people" but now were "God's people" (2:9-10).

The reference in 1 Peter 5:13—"The church in Babylon, also chosen, sends you greetings”—suggests Rome as the place of the letter’s origin. “Babylon” was used cryptically to refer to a place of exile, but specifically for Rome. Other possibilities for Babylon include the cities of Babylon in Mesopotamia and Egypt, but these places are highly unlikely because we have no record of Peter ever being in those places.

First Peter was probably written sometime between A.D. 62-64. While Paul was under house arrest from A.D. 60-62, he did not refer to Peter in Rome. Peter likewise did not mention Paul as being in Rome; only Silvanus and Mark were his companions (5:12-13). These facts suggest that Peter wrote 1 Peter some time after A.D. 62 and before the writing of 2 Peter.

The theme of suffering appears throughout 1 Peter. The recipients of the letter are the sufferers in four of its five chapters. Given a composition date of about A.D. 62-64, 1 Peter was written during the persecution of Christians under Nero’s reign. The persecution arose in Rome and was spreading into Asia Minor.

Message and Purpose Peter wrote to encourage suffering believers in Asia Minor to stand firm for Christ in the midst of persecution. He urged them to do so by focusing on their spiritual privileges and, more specifically, the place where their rights and privileges lay: the next life. Believers in Jesus are “temporary residents” (Gk parepidēemoi; 1:1; 2:11) and “strangers” (Gk paroikoi; 2:11) in this world, a land of sojourn where they have no real rights or privileges. Inheritance rights, privileges, and justice for Christians really belong to another realm to which God has delivered believers—heaven, their ultimate home.

First Peter emphasizes that suffering is normal for believers because they are temporary residents in this world. As such, they lack rights and receive no justice in this foreign land. Though suffering occurs on earth for temporary residents, their inheritance and exaltation await them in their eternal homeland.

Contribution to the Bible Peter’s intent in writing was to strengthen believers in the midst of the suffering and persecution they were facing. His message to them continues to speak to modern believers, reminding us of our heavenly hope and eternal inheritance in the midst of our sufferings. We are called to holiness and a life of love. We are also called to glorify God in our daily lives and to imitate Christ.

Structure The structure of 1 Peter has been the subject of discussion from the earliest history of the church. The diversity of outlines illustrates that the task of exegesis is not merely a science but also an art. Peter wrote this letter with a typical opening for a letter (1:1-2) and then began the next major section (1:3-2:10) with a blessing (1:3). The two succeeding sections are marked by "dear friends" (Gk agapēetoi, 2:11; 4:12), and as noted earlier the segment from 2:11-4:11 concludes with a doxology and "amen." The fourth section of the letter also ends with a doxology and "amen" (5:11) before the closing.

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1-2 Peter identified himself as an apostle of Jesus Christ. The apostles were Christ's divinely ordained, directly commissioned, authoritative representatives in the early church. The recipients to whom Peter wrote were the temporary residents dispersed. The term "temporary residents" (Gk parepideye µ mois; v. 1; 2:11) refers to people living in a region that is not their permanent place of residence—in this case, the five Roman provinces located in what is now modern Turkey. Heaven is the true home of believers. The "Dispersion" means a "scattering" and usually refers to God's people scattered outside of their homeland. Divine foreknowledge is the basis on which a believer is chosen (i.e., "elect"). It is more than just God's prior knowledge of everything; it also includes His predetermination. Set apart by the Spirit is the means by which being "chosen" is made a reality. The phrase for obedience and for sprinkling with the blood of Jesus Christ describes the aim and purpose of election (Ex 24:3-8). Christians were chosen by God to have a covenant relationship with Him that is characterized by obedience; Christ's blood brings believers into this relationship.

1:3-12 This section begins with praise to God for the privileges He has bestowed on believers. Peter encouraged his readers by reminding them that through the resurrection of Christ, God had caused them to be born again. The result of this new birth is that they have acquired an eternal inheritance reserved in heaven. Believers will be delivered to heaven, their eternal home, through their faith in the gospel.

1:3-5 Peter informed his readers that God rebirthed (Gk anagennao) them to an inheritance that will never perish, be defiled, or fade—indeed a sure salvation.

1:6-9 Peter further encouraged his readers with the fact that Christians can rejoice in this imperishable inheritance and sure salvation, though they are tested by persecution and suffering while in this world.

1:10-12 The OT people of God did not specifically know Christ or the gospel, but they did believe the promises of God that pointed to Christ (Heb 11:13). Peter conveyed to his readers that the good news of salvation that the prophets sought and looked forward to had now been revealed. Salvation in Christ is so great and the blessings so tremendous that angels desire to look into these things. The gospel excites their interest so much that they want to study it intently.

1:13-2:10 In this section Peter informed his readers that they were always to fix their hope on the "grace" that would be theirs at the second coming of Christ.

1:13-21 As resident aliens sojourning in this world, Christians are to live distinctively as those who belong to God.

1:13 The grace to be brought to you at the revelation of Jesus Christ refers to the culmination of God's redemptive activity in Jesus that will occur at His return (v. 5).

1:14 The phrase former ignorance means "without knowledge of God" and suggests that the recipients of this letter were mostly Gentiles who, before coming to Christ, practiced pagan religions.

1:15-16 God is the Christian's standard for holy living (Lv 11:44-45; 19:2; 20:7).

1:19 The metaphor of a lamb without defect or blemish points to Christ's sinlessness (Lv 22:19-25). He is the sacrificial Lamb of God (Jn 1:29; Rv 5).

1:20 The plan for Christ's sacrifice on behalf of sinners was fixed in eternity past, a sure reality set to unfold at a divinely appointed time in history (Gl 4:4).

1:22-25 Peter exhorted his readers to love their brothers (i.e., other believers; v. 22) as those who are born again through the living and enduring word of God, the gospel.

2:1-3 As newborn infants, believers are to avoid acts of dissention and feed on the spiritual milk of the word. "Spiritual milk" is a metaphor that refers to the divine sustenance drawn from the gospel. The statement you have tasted that the Lord is good (cp. Ps 34:8) means they had found God to be gracious. This realization begins at conversion.

2:4-10 Jesus is called the living stone and the cornerstone, but also the rejected stone and the stone to stumble over. Peter taught his readers that they are God's valuable possession, but like Jesus believers will be rejected by men. Believers are living stones built into a spiritual house. They are part of a living temple that is the corporate people of God, His unique possession. A chosen race (v. 9; cp. vv. 4,6; Is 43:20) seems to refer to the corporate unity of believers. In Christ, believers of all races are unified. They are also a royal priesthood—a collective company of priests—who offer up spiritual sacrifices to God (v. 5).

2:11-4:19 In this section Peter explained further how his readers might maintain their distinctiveness as holy aliens and temporary residents in this fallen world.

2:11-12 Peter commanded his readers to live honorably as holy strangers or temporary residents so that even hostile Gentile residents of the earth might come to glorify God.

2:13-17 Peter exhorted his readers to be subordinate and respectful to every human authority because of the Lord. He commanded them to submit to governmental and civil authority, acting as free people. The foolish people refers to the Gentiles mentioned in verse 12.

2:18-25 Peter commanded household slaves to submit to their masters by doing good, even though they might suffer unjustly. Such behavior brings favor with God. While doing so they are to remember Christ's example, who suffered unjustly while submitting to God's will. The phrase by His wounds (cp. Is 53:5; sometimes translated elsewhere as "stripes") refers to the death of Christ and not to the flogging He suffered at the hands of Roman soldiers (Jn 19:1). By His death believers are healed spiritually.

3:1-6 Peter instructed wives to submit to their husbands because they bear distinctive witness to them through their God-honoring lifestyles. The statement you have become her children means that Christian wives in essence show themselves to be Sarah's spiritual children when they do . . . good and are not frightened by anything alarming.

3:7 Peter commanded husbands to live in harmony with their wives and to show them honor as coheirs of the grace of life, or to treat them as fellow inheritors of salvation and its privileges. Weaker nature denotes physical weakness and should not be taken to mean that wives are morally or intellectually inferior to their husbands. Husbands are typically stronger physically.

3:8-12 In climactic fashion, Peter commanded Christians ("temporary residents," 1:1) not to return evil for evil so they could receive God's blessing. The apostle's teaching here (v. 9) reflects that of Christ elsewhere (Mt 5:43-44; Lk 6:27-28).

3:13-4:19 Believers are commanded in this section to distinguish themselves by doing good, even when faced with pagan hostility, because God will vindicate the righteous.

3:13-17 Believers are commanded to suffer only for the doing of good and not for evil among those who call this world their home.

3:13-14 Doing what is good will harm no one, though believers may suffer for it—in which case they should count it a privilege to suffer for a lifestyle that pleases God (Jms 1:2).

3:15 Honor . . . in your hearts means "to acknowledge as holy" from the center of one's being. This inner reverence for Christ should lead believers to always be ready, especially in the midst of persecution and suffering, to give a frank defense of the hope within them. On "hope," cp. v. 5; 1:3,21.

3:18-22 Peter pointed to Christ's example of innocent suffering at the hands of this world's citizens. Jesus' innocent suffering, death, and resurrection/exaltation are the foundation for the salvation and vindication of believers.

3:19 - 20a The statement that Christ made a proclamation to the spirits in prison who in the past were disobedient is extremely difficult to interpret. According to one plausible view, the term "spirits" refers to the souls of people who died in the great flood (Gn 6-7). The "proclamation" was made by the pre-incarnate Christ through Noah's preaching to his disobedient contemporaries. This preaching of repentance occurred while Noah made preparations for the flood. Peter could refer to Noah's contemporaries as the "spirits in prison" because when he wrote this letter they had long been dead, were incorporeal spirits, and were under confinement awaiting God's final judgment. The position taken in the text of the HCSB is that Christ after His death and resurrection made a proclamation of victory over the demonic spirits. In this view the "spirits" are evil angels.

3:20b-21 Noah and his family were saved through water, or brought safely through the floodwaters, whereas the wicked were destroyed (Gn 7:22-23).

Baptism in the NT corresponds to this OT event in that both involve breaks from past lives and a fresh start and entrance into new life. Water cannot save, but baptism with water does symbolically depict the changed life of a person whose conscience is at peace with God through faith in Christ. That the act of "baptism" is viewed symbolically and does not actually save us is explained by Peter in the latter half of verse 21 with the words not the removal of the filth of the flesh.

4:1-6 Peter commanded believers as temporary residents who looked to Christ as their example to suffer and separate themselves from the practices of those who slandered them. God will condemn the slanderers and vindicate believers in heaven's court.

4:5 The living and the dead means anyone who has ever lived, or people of all generations.

4:6 Those who are now dead seems to refer to deceased believers in Christ. When they were alive, the gospel was preached to them. While on earth they were judged by men in the fleshly realm, or condemned and martyred on account of the gospel. But they now live by God in the spiritual realm, heaven.

4:7-11 Peter commanded believers to maintain their unity while doing everything to God's glory.

4:8 The phrase love covers a multitude of sins means that love repeatedly forgives (Pr 10:12).

4:9 When being persecuted, it is easy to snipe and complain even at other believers; thus Peter's command to be hospitable to one another.

4:10 The words based on the gift each one has received refer to a spiritual gift. Spiritual gifts are divine endowments that God entrusts to believers as stewards.

4:11 Christians should manage and use their spiritual gifts to God's glory, just as God intends.

4:12-19 Peter declared that believers are to rejoice in the test that suffering brings for being members of God's household. Suffering for Christ in this world characterizes believers as strangers, with heaven as their future place of eternal residence.

4:15-16 Peter encouraged his readers to live in such a way that their sufferings were caused by their devotion to Christ and not by any evil acts; they would glorify God by doing so.

4:17 If even believers in Christ will be judged, then what terrible punishment must surely await unbelievers, who pay no heed to the gospel of Christ?

4:18 Because Christians suffer (v. 16) and will be judged (v. 17), they live out their salvation with difficulty (cp. Pr 11:31).

5:1-11 In this closing exhortation, Peter encouraged his readers who were suffering to be responsible. The word therefore in verse 1 shows that what follows in this section grows out of the preceding verses.

5:1-4 Peter encouraged elders to be exemplary, responsible servants. The term "elders" refers to the office of pastoral leaders in the church. The word appears to be used interchangeably here with "shepherds/pastors" and elsewhere with "overseers" (Ti 1:5,7). Peter's appeal was based on the fact that he was a fellow elder and witness to Christ's sufferings. This helped him identify fully with the "elders" he was addressing and gave added support for his plea. He commanded them to be shepherds of God's flock. In other words, they were to nurture, lead, and protect God's people without lording it over them. Elders who have served faithfully, despite suffering while on earth, will receive glory in heaven from Christ, the chief Shepherd.

5:5 a Here the term elders may refer to age, not office.

5:5b-7 Peter encouraged all believers to practice humility and trust God with their cares. Humility commends us to God and fellow humans, which is the opposite effect of arrogance and conceit.

5:8-9 Peter warned believers to be aware of Satan's deceitful practices and to resist him firmly. Such behavior is fitting for temporary residents of this world. Peter strengthened his readers with the knowledge that other Christians were also suffering.

5:10-11 God will strengthen and honor in heaven those who endure suffering for their faith while on earth.

5:12-14 Silvanus (Silas, v. 12) may have helped Peter write this letter as his secretary (amanuensis), but more likely he was the letter carrier. Peter conveyed greetings to his readers from the church in Rome, i.e., from the church in Babylon, and also from Mark, my son—Peter's son in the faith, not his biological son. The kiss of love was a customary form of greeting in the first-century church. Peace is the sense of well-being and blessedness that believers have because of their relationship with Christ. This benediction is an appropriate ending to the letter because when Christians are being persecuted on earth, heaven's peace cannot be taken from them.

HCSB Translation priesthood Uses in 1 Peter 2
Uses in the NT 2
Focus passage 1 Peter 2:5,9

Hierateuma (priesthood) first appears in written literature in the Greek OT (Ex 19:6; 23:22), where the translators of that document used it. If Israel obeyed God, she would be His treasured possession (Ex 23:22) and would function as a royal priesthood through which God would dispense His blessing to the whole earth (Ex 19:5-6; 23:22). In the NT, Peter makes direct reference to Ex 19:6 and 23:22 and applies the fulfillment of this OT concept of royal priesthood to the church (1Pt 2:9), which now exists to serve God through worship with her words and deeds. She is being built into a spiritual temple where believers perform the role of a holy priesthood by offering "spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ" (1Pt 2:5). The church also serves God through the proclamation of the praises that belong to Him (1Pt 2:9).

makrothumia Greek Pronunciation [ma krah thew MEE ah]
HCSB Translation patience Uses in 1 Peter 1
Uses in the NT 14
Focus passage 1 Peter 3:20

Makrothumia refers to patient perseverance in withstanding a difficult situation. The patience of the faithful witnesses and martyrs of old is an example for present day believers (Heb 6:12; Jms 5:10). Paul prayed that the Colossian church would be strengthened for all patience (Col 1:11). Elsewhere, makrothumia speaks of patience within the context of personal relationships, referring to the patience of people toward one another or of God toward humanity. Paul exhorts Timothy to encourage his congregation with patience (2Tm 4:2), and believers should demonstrate patience toward each other (Col 3:12). In reference to God, makrothumia always indicates His slowness in bringing about judgment. God's patience waited while Noah prepared an ark (1Pt 3:20), and God's patience in bringing judgment provides present opportunity for repentance (Rm 2:4). Similarly, the patience of Jesus in bringing judgment should be considered as a present opportunity for salvation (2Pt 3:15).

Hupsoo refers to lifting something to a higher location. As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, Christ was lifted up on the cross (Jn 3:14). This concept of lifting up is figuratively extended to mean to exalt or honor (raising something to a position of higher status). In the example above, the lifting up of Jesus referred to His crucifixion (cp. Jn 8:28) but also to His exaltation (cp. Jn 12:32). The One who possesses higher authority must do any real exaltation to a higher status. Hence, God is often the One who exalts others (Lk 1:52; Ac 2:33; Jms 4:10; 1Pt 5:6). He exalted (made great in number and power) the people of Israel in Egypt (Ac 13:17), and He exalts the humble (Mt 23:12 = Lk 14:11; Lk 18:14). Elsewhere, Paul humbled himself so that those in the Corinthian church might be honored (2Co 11:7).

The Judgment of False Teachers

2 But there were also false prophets [a] among the people, just as there will be false teachers [b] among you. They will secretly bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Master who bought [c] them, and will bring swift destruction on themselves. 2 Many will follow their unrestrained ways, and the way of truth will be blasphemed because of them. [d] 3 They will exploit [e] you in their greed [f] with deceptive words. Their condemnation, [g] pronounced long ago, is not idle, and their destruction does not sleep.

4 For if God didn't spare [h] the angels who sinned but threw them down into Tartarus [i, j] and delivered them to be kept in chains [k] of darkness until judgment; [l] 5 and if He didn't spare the ancient world, but protected Noah, [m] a preacher of righteousness, and seven others, [A, n] when He brought a flood on the world of the ungodly; 6 and if He reduced the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah [o] to ashes and condemned them to ruin, [p] making them an example to those who were going to be ungodly; [q, r] 7 and if He rescued righteous Lot, [s] distressed by the unrestrained behavior of the immoral 8 (for as he lived among them, that righteous man tormented himself day by day with the lawless deeds he saw and heard [t]) — 9 then the Lord knows how to rescue [u] the godly from trials and to keep the unrighteous under punishment until the day of judgment, [v] 10 especially those who follow the polluting desires of the flesh and despise authority. [w]

Bold, arrogant people! They do not tremble when they blaspheme the glorious ones; 11 however, angels, who are greater in might and power, do not bring a slanderous charge against them before the Lord. [x] 12 But these people, like irrational animals — creatures of instinct born to be caught and destroyed — speak blasphemies about things they don't understand, and in their destruction they too will be destroyed, 13 suffering harm as the payment for unrighteousness. They consider it a pleasure to carouse in the daytime. They are spots and blemishes, delighting in their deceptions [y] as they feast with you. 14 They have eyes full of adultery [z] and are always looking for sin. They seduce unstable people and have hearts trained in greed. Children under a curse! [a] 15 They have gone astray by abandoning the straight path [b] and have followed the path of Balaam, [c] the son of Bosor, [d] who loved the wages of unrighteousness [e] 16 but received a rebuke for his transgression: A donkey that could not talk spoke with a human voice and restrained the prophet's irrationality. [f]

17 These people are springs without water, mists driven by a whirlwind. The gloom of darkness has been reserved for them. [g] 18 For by uttering boastful, empty words, [h] they seduce, with fleshly desires and debauchery, people who have barely escaped [B] from those who live in error. 19 They promise them freedom, but they themselves are •slaves of corruption, since people are enslaved to whatever defeats them. [i] 20 For if, having escaped the world's impurity through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, [j] they are again entangled in these things and defeated, the last state is worse for them than the first. [k] 21 For it would have been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness [l] than, after knowing it, to turn back from the holy command [m] delivered [n] to them. [o] 22 It has happened to them according to the true proverb:

A dog returns to its own vomit, [p, q] and, "a sow, after washing itself, wallows in the mud."

The Day of the Lord

3 Dear friends, this is now the second letter [a] I have written to you; in both letters, I want to develop a genuine [b] understanding with a reminder, 2 so that you can remember the words previously spoken by the holy prophets and the command of our Lord and Savior given through your apostles. 3 First, be aware of this: Scoffers will come in the last days [c] to scoff, living according to their own desires, 4 saying, “Where is the promise of His coming? [d] Ever since the fathers fell •asleep , [e] all things continue as they have been since the beginning of creation.” 5 They willfully ignore this: Long ago the heavens and the earth were brought about from water and through water [f] by the word of God. [g] 6 Through these waters the world of that time perished when it was flooded. [h]
7 But by the same word, [i] the present heavens and earth are stored up for fire, being kept until the day of judgment [j] and destruction of ungodly men.

8 Dear friends, don’t let this one thing escape you: With the Lord one day is like a thousand years, and a thousand years like one day. [k] 9 The Lord does not delay His promise, [l] as some understand delay, but is patient with you, not wanting any [m] to perish [n] but all to come to repentance. [o]

10 But the Day of the Lord [p] will come like a thief; [q, r] on that day the heavens will pass away [s] with a loud noise, the elements will burn and be dissolved, [t] and the earth and the works on it will be disclosed. [u] 11 Since all these things are to be destroyed in this way, it is clear what sort of people you should be in holy conduct and godliness 12 as you wait for and earnestly desire the coming [A] of the day of God. [v] The heavens will be on fire and be dissolved because of it, and the elements will melt with the heat. 13 But based on His promise, we wait for the new heavens and a new earth, [w] where righteousness will dwell. [x]

Conclusion

14 Therefore, dear friends, while you wait for these things, make every effort to be found at peace with Him without spot or blemish. [y] 15 Also, regard the patience of our Lord as an opportunity for salvation, just as our dear brother Paul has written to you according to the wisdom given to him. [z] 16 He speaks about these things in all his letters in which there are some matters that are hard to understand. The untaught and unstable twist them to their own destruction, [a] as they also do with the rest of the Scriptures.

17 Therefore, dear friends, since you know this in advance, be on your guard, [b] so that you are not led away by the error of lawless people and fall from your own stability. 18 But grow in the grace and knowledge [c] of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To Him be the glory both now and to the day of eternity. [B, d]
•Amen . [e]

Introduction

First century A.D. ruins outside the synagogue (fourth century A.D.) at Capernaum with Peter's memorial in the background. The memorial is built on what may have been Peter's house.

Second Peter, one of the General Epistles, emphasizes practical Christian living. To this end, Peter wrote to warn against false teachers and the negative influence they can have on moral living. The letter emphasizes true knowledge of God while facing false teaching and encourages readers to maintain Christian virtue in the midst of the world's vice.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The author of 2 Peter plainly identified himself as the apostle Peter (1:1). He called himself "Simeon Peter" (1:1), a name not generally used of the apostle (elsewhere only in Ac 15:14). The spelling is Semitic and lends a sense of authenticity to Peter's letter. Moreover, it was natural for Peter, as a Semite, to use the original form of his name. Peter designated himself as "a slave and an apostle of Jesus Christ." He viewed himself as a servant submitted to Christ's lordship and as a divinely ordained, directly commissioned, authoritative representative of the Lord Jesus Himself.

The letter contains several personal allusions to Peter's life. He mentioned that his death was close (1:14), described himself as an eyewitness of the transfiguration of Jesus (1:16-18), quoted the words of the voice from heaven at this event (1:17), indicated that he had previously written to the letter's recipients (whom he called “dear friends” in 3:1), and also called Paul “our dear brother” (3:15). This suggests that the author was close to Paul. Such references point to Peter as the author.

Many contemporary scholars, however, reject Peter as the author of this letter. They argue, for example, that (1) the personal references to Peter’s life are a literary device used by someone who wrote under the apostle’s name in order to create the appearance of authenticity; (2) the style of Greek in 2 Peter is different from that of 1 Peter; (3) the reference to Paul’s letters as a collection (3:15-16) points to a date later than Peter’s lifetime; and (4) 2 Peter was dependent upon Jude. If this is true, Peter’s authorship is problematic.

In response to these objections, one should consider that (1) the early church soundly rejected the practice of writing under an apostolic pseudonym, regarding it as outright forgery; (2) Peter may have had help in writing 1 Peter (1Pt 5:12) and not in writing 2 Peter, which would lead to different styles in his Greek; (3) rather than the whole collection, Peter may have referred only to those Pauline letters that were known at the time of writing; and (4) Peter may have borrowed some from Jude, or both may have used a common source. All of these evidences suggest that 2 Peter should be accepted as authentic.

Background: Unlike 1 Peter, 2 Peter does not mention specific recipients or refer to an exact destination. The apostle referred to his epistle as the “second letter” he had written to his readers (3:1). If the letter written prior to 2 Peter is 1 Peter, then he wrote to the same recipients (“the temporary residents dispersed in Pontus, Gl atia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia”; 1Pt 1:1). But if the previous letter is a reference to some other epistle that is now unknown, we cannot determine with certainty to whom or to where 2 Peter was written.

Peter likely wrote 2 Peter from Rome, where church tradition placed the apostle in his latter days. Because he mentioned that his death was near (1:14), it seems the letter was written just before his death. Tradition places the date of Peter’s martyrdom at about A.D. 67 during Nero’s reign (ruled A.D. 54-68).

Second Peter’s literary relationship with Jude is debated. What one decides about this issue inevitably affects the authorship and date of each letter. Both epistles are strikingly similar in content. Thus, if 2 Peter borrowed from Jude and the latter book was written somewhere between A.D. 65 and 80, the apostle Peter could not have been the author of 2 Peter. The use of 2 Peter by Jude, however, poses no problem for authorship or dating. Jude may have borrowed from 2 Peter, or both authors may have used a common source.

Peter wrote this letter shortly before he died (1:14) and though not mentioned, possibly while in prison. He wrote to Christian friends confronted with the threat of false teachers who were denying Christ’s saving work and second coming. As an eyewitness of Jesus' life (1:16-18), Peter sought to affirm for his readers the reality of Christ's return and to remind them of truths they might otherwise forget (3:1).

Message and Purpose Peter cautioned believers to beware of false teachers with their bogus doctrines and licentious lifestyles. The temptation to a sinful lifestyle so concerned Peter that shortly after his first letter, he followed up with this one. Peter also warned against denials of Christ's return with its accompanying judgment. He urged his readers to make every effort to grow in the knowledge and practice of the Christian faith.

Contribution to the Bible Peter made strong connections with the OT and challenged his audience to live authentic Christian lives. Peter had been with Jesus when Jesus first spoke of His return (Mt 24-25), and he gave emphasis to the surety of the second coming.

It is the word of God that holds the forefront of this short letter. Peter does this in chapter 1 by emphasizing knowledge (vv. 3,5,6,8,12,20-21) and its divine origin; in chapter 2 by showing its historicity (vv. 4-8); and in chapter 3 by indicating Paul's letters are equal with "the rest of the Scriptures" (vv. 15-16). Peter insisted on the importance of Scripture for guiding and preserving our faith.

Structure Second Peter is a general letter with the typical features of a salutation, main body, and farewell. What is missing is an expression of thanksgiving. Its style is that of a pastoral letter, driven by the needs of the recipients, rather than some type of formal treatise.

Study Notes 1:1-2 Peter called himself Simeon Peter, a name not generally used of him (elsewhere only in Ac 15:14). The spelling is Semitic and may have lent authenticity to his letter. Moreover, it was more natural for Peter to use the original form of his name rather than a later form. He further identified himself as a slave and an apostle of Jesus Christ. He saw himself as a servant submitted to Christ's lordship. As an "apostle," he was one of Christ's divinely ordained, appointed, authoritative representatives in the early church. Though he surely had a specific group of people in mind, Peter named neither specific recipients in his letter nor their precise geographic location. The recipients are described simply as those who have obtained a faith of equal privilege with ours.

The reason for this equality of privilege between Peter's readers and the apostles is the righteousness of our God and Savior Jesus Christ. Through the righteousness that finds its source in Jesus, all believers have equal standing and share the same blessings. Peter described Jesus as both "God and Savior," which is not surprising since elsewhere Jesus is called God (Jn 1:1,18; 20:28; Rm 9:5; Ti 2:13; Heb 1:8). The description of Jesus as "God" in no way denies the Trinity, as if Peter meant to say Jesus is both Father and Son. Peter wished his readers multiplied grace and peace. "Grace" is God's unmerited favor displayed toward sinners who trust Christ for salvation. "Peace" is the sense of well-being and the attendant blessings that a person enjoys because of a right relationship with Christ. Peter emphasized the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord to remind his readers that a person experiences grace and peace only through knowing Christ.

1:3-4 Peter next reminded his readers of the resources they had through knowing Christ. He provides believers everything they need for life and godliness. "Life" (Gk zoe) is eternal life, whereas "godliness" (Gk eusebeia) is godly living; the latter cannot be obtained without the former. The divine call of believers served as a foundation for Peter's appeal for godly living. Christ calls to Himself those whom God has saved, and this calling is brought about by His own glory and goodness. Christ's "glory" (Gk doxa) and "goodness" (Gk arete) combine and seem to refer to the moral excellence of Christ. By these—by Christ's glory and goodness—He has given us very great and precious promises. The content of these great promises includes sharing in the divine nature. Peter did not mean that believers become gods or that they share in the divine nature of God in every way. He meant that they participate in God's moral excellence and will one day be morally perfected. Participation in the divine nature is possible only after escaping the corruption in the world because of evil desires. Jesus Christ offers the only way of escape from the rebellion of this evil world system that is opposed to and alienated from God.

1:5-7 Because of God's generous provision in Christ, Peter encouraged his readers to build upon their foundation of faith—their initial acceptance of God's love—with the Christian virtues of goodness . . . knowledge . . . self-control . . . endurance . . . godliness . . . brotherly affection, and love. These graces, sometimes called the "ladder of faith," are the fruit of sharing in the divine nature. Each successive quality seems to spring from the previous one.

1:8-9 Useful and fruitful Christians have an abundance of the qualities mentioned in verses 5-7. On the other hand, those who lack them are blind and shortsighted because they have forgotten the cleansing from their past sins; they deliberately forget the background from which God delivered them. "Past sins" refers to sins committed before professing faith in Christ.

1:10-11 Because of God's grace, gifts, and the knowledge of Christ (vv. 3-9),

Peter commanded his readers to make every effort to prove the reality of their calling and election to salvation; they would do so by godly living (vv. 5-7). Two results follow: (1) they will never stumble, or they "will be spared a disastrous coming to grief" (Green, 2 Peter & Jude, 83); (2) they will receive a glorious entry into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

1:12-13 On the basis of the future hope of entry into the eternal kingdom, Peter determined always to remind his readers of teachings that they might otherwise lay aside despite his conviction that they were well-grounded in the truths they had been taught. Though they were established Christians, their lifestyles apparently left much to be desired. As long as he was in this bodily tent—alive in the human body, a temporary dwelling place for this life—Peter determined to continue stimulating his readers by way of reminder.

1:14-15 The apostle knew that his death was near, and he committed to make every effort to arrange that his readers would be able to recall his teachings at any time. This seems to refer to a written witness since it could be consulted "at any time." Peter might have been referring to Mark's Gospel. In the early second century, Papias called Mark "Peter's interpreter" (cp. Eusebius, Hist. eccl., 3.39.15), meaning Mark's Gospel was based on eyewitness information given by Peter.

1:16-18 Peter's words were not based on cleverly contrived myths. He emphasized that he had been an eyewitness of Jesus' transfiguration (Mt 17:1-7; Mk 9:2-9; Lk 9:28-36).

1:19-21 Peter argued that the prophetic Scriptures affirmed the apostolic witness. In essence he was saying, "If you don't believe me, go to the Scriptures." The metaphor of the prophetic Scriptures as a lamp shining in a dismal place means that they act as a torch that shines in this dark world, exposing the dirt and defilement of sin and making it possible to get rid of it. Believers live by Scripture's torchlight until the day dawns and the morning star rises, which seems to refer to Christ's return. In your hearts may refer to the glowing hope that occurs in believers' hearts when they see clear signs of the Lord's return. Peter further explained that Scripture is trustworthy because it has a divine origin; men moved by the Holy Spirit wrote the prophetic statements of the OT.

2:1-3 Not only were Spirit-moved men of God present in OT Israel, but false prophets (Gk pseudoprophetai) also arose among the people, just as false teachers (Gk pseudodidaskaloi) were even now present among Peter's readers. Peter's warning describes these "false teachers" as those who spread destructive heresies, or teachings destructive to the faith. The effect of their teaching was so far-reaching that they even denied the Master ("sovereign Lord"; Gk despotes) who bought them. Though many followed the heretics' shameful immorality and the way of truth was blasphemed, little did the false teachers realize that denying the Lord would bring swift destruction on themselves (cp. v. 3). Driven by greed, the false teachers invented deceptive stories (the exact opposite of Peter in 1:16) with which they exploited their listeners.

2:4-10a In order to warn his readers and urge them to action, Peter recalled three examples of God's judgment and deliverance: (1) God judged the angels who sinned (cp. Gn 6:1-4). Tartarus is a Greek name that means a subterranean place of punishment lower than Hades and reserved for the wicked. (2) God also judged the ancient world at the time of the flood (cp. Gn 7:17-23), but protected Noah and seven others (cp. Gn 7:13-16). (3) He judged the immoral cities of Sodom and Gomorrah (cp. Gn 19:23-29), yet rescued righteous Lot, who was distressed and tormented by the immoral behavior of the ungodly (cp. Gn 19:29). Peter then pointed out to his readers that God was capable of delivering them, the godly, from the destructive false teachings of heretics in their midst. Peter further assured his readers that despite the false teachers' immorality, the unrighteous, especially those who followed the polluting desires of the flesh and despised authority, would not escape God's sovereignty or punishment.

2:10b-22 Peter further described the false teachers. They were rash, arrogant, and, in contrast to the behavior of the more powerful angels, slanderously insolent. They were brute-like and irrational in their understanding, blasphemous, and ruled by lust and greed. Peter compared the false teachers to Balaam (Nm 22-24). Like Balaam, these false teachers had abandoned the straight path, were consumed by greed, and would receive the wages of their unrighteousness; Balaam's donkey showed more moral sense than Balaam did. The false teachers are described as springs without water and mists driven by a whirlwind. In other words they were unsatisfactory and unstable. As punishment, the gloom of darkness was reserved for them. With their empty boastful words, and despite their promises of freedom to others, these false teachers led their hearers into the same spiritual slavery and corruption to which they themselves were enslaved. Although these heretics had once claimed to know Christ and even experienced some freedom from sin, they returned to their old practices and became entangled again. They were worse off in the end with their rejection of Christ than they were at the beginning when in a state of ignorance; indeed, it would be better for them not to have known the way of righteousness. Just as a dog returns to its own vomit and a pig returns to wallow in the mud, so also these false teachers reverted to the immoral lifestyles they preferred by nature. The immoral behavior of the false teachers shows that they had never been genuinely converted.

3:1-2 Peter referred to his epistle as the second letter he had written to his readers. Presumably the previous letter was 1 Peter (see Introduction). In both letters Peter reminded his readers not to forget the teachings they had received through the prophets and apostles. The command may refer to the revelation of God in Christ through the apostles, or possibly to specific warnings about false teachers.

3:3-4 The teaching of which Peter spoke included accepting Christ's return, which had been rejected by the false teachers. The apostles expected the presence of scoffers and their activities, and Peter warned his readers that scoffers will come in the last days to scoff. They were on the scene in Peter's day; they would also be present in the future. The "last days" refers to the period of time between Christ's incarnation and His return. The scoffers mocked Christ's return because many years had passed and it had not yet occurred: Ever since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they have been since the beginning of creation. "The fathers" probably refers to the OT patriarchs given the mention of "the beginning of creation." Because the false teachers distorted the OT Scriptures, Peter countered them by alluding to the OT.

3:5-7 The heretics argued that the world was unchanging, that it would remain so, and thus that the Lord would not return. To counter this charge, Peter took his readers' thoughts back to creation to show them that the world had not always been orderly and that the source of the world's order was God. Peter appeared to speak of water as the element out from which God formed the earth. By the word means "by God's decree"—He spoke and it happened. To counter the false teachers' claims, Peter also reminded his readers of the great flood that took place in Noah's day when the earth was destroyed. So God does demonstrate His power and intervene in judgment in a world that otherwise seems unchanging. By the same word, He will do it again when Christ returns.

3:8 What seems like a delay makes the Lord's return no less certain. Peter noted that God views time differently than human beings do. Christ will return in accordance with the divine timetable, not ours. Dear friends recalls the recipients of the letter (1:1).

3:9 The Lord has not yet returned, says Peter, because He is patient with you, not wanting any to perish. "You" is variously interpreted as a reference to the letter's Christian recipients (identified in 1:1) or else more broadly as all people. In chapter 1 "you" and "your" both refer back to the recipients identified in 1:1 (see 1:2,4,5,8,10,11,12,13,15,16,19,20). Peter's later use of "dear friends," (3:1,8,14,17) seems also to point back to those identified in 1:1.

3:10 God's patience toward sinners is not inexhaustible. The Day of the Lord will be sudden and will catch many people unprepared, as when a burglar sneaks in and robs a house (cp. Mt 24:43-44; Lk 12:39-40).

3:11-14 Peter insisted that the anticipation of the Lord's return and its accompanying events of judgment should rouse Christians to holy living. Evil will be completely destroyed when Christ returns, and righteousness will permanently dwell in the new heavens and a new earth (cp. Is 32:16).

3:15-16 Peter notes that the teaching in Paul's letters said that the Lord's patience provided opportunities for salvation (Rm 2:4). Peter grouped Paul's letters together with the rest of the Scriptures. This reference does not necessarily mean that Paul's letters were already circulating as a complete collection. Peter may simply have been referring to the Pauline letters that were widely known and accepted as Scripture at the time he wrote 2 Peter. In any event, Peter clearly affirms the God-given authority of Paul's writings (1:20-21; see note at 1:19-21).

3:17-18 Since Peter's readers had now been warned about the false teachers in their midst, he instructed them to be on their guard and not be led astray. He also encouraged them to grow in the grace and knowledge of Jesus Christ (cp. 1:2-11). He closed with a doxology in which he ascribed glory to Christ both now and forever.

Word Studies tartaroo Greek Pronunciation [tahr tah RAH oh]

HCSB Translation throw down into Tartarus Uses in 2 Peter 1
Uses in the NT 1
Focus passage 2 Peter 2:4

The verb tartaroo means to throw down into Tartarus . Its only NT occurrence (2Pt 2:4) refers to God casting disobedient angels into Tartarus , an idea with a Homeric parallel. Well before NT times, Homer (ca 8th c. B.C.) spoke of Tartarus as a subterranean place of punishment where Zeus banished the Titans (a family of ruling gods; Hom. Il. 14.279). Hesiod (ca 8th c. B.C.) remarked that "a brazen anvil falling from earth nine nights and days would reach Tartarus upon the tenth" (Hes. Theog . 724-5). It is a dark, dank place "under misty gloom," surrounded by a bronze fence—a place "which even the gods abhor" (Hes. Theog . 730, 739). Eventually, tartaroo made its way into Jewish apocalyptic literature, retaining the idea of a place of punishment. It appears closely equivalent to Jewish gehenna [hell] (Syb. Or. 4:186), that supplies the Jewish background alluded to in 2Pt 2:4.

Essays The Historical Reliability of the New Testament Craig L. Blomberg

The New Testament (NT) contains four biographies of Jesus (the Gospels), one history book of the early church (Acts), twenty-one letters (Romans to Jude), and an apocalypse (Revelation). While the letters and the apocalypse contain references to historical events, the Gospels and Acts are written as straightforward historical narratives. These are the NT books about which it makes particularly good sense to ask the question, "Are they historically reliable?" Twelve lines of evidence converge to suggest strongly that the answer is "yes."

First, we have over 5,700 Greek manuscripts representing all, or part, of the NT. By examining these manuscripts, over 99 percent of the original text can be reconstructed beyond reasonable doubt. We also discover that no Christian doctrine or ethic depends solely on one of the doubted texts. These facts do not prove that the NT is true, but it does mean we know what the original writers wrote. Without this assurance, the question of historical reliability is pointless.

Second, the authors of the Gospels and Acts were in an excellent position to report reliable information. Matthew and John were among the twelve disciples Jesus Himself chose; Mark was a close companion of Peter and Luke (who also wrote Acts) and traveled extensively with Paul. Even critical scholars who doubt the traditional attributions of authorship agree that these five books were written by followers of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, which still puts them in a good place to tell the stories accurately.

Third, these five books were almost certainly written in the first century, within sixty to seventy years of Jesus' death (most likely in A.D. 30). Conservatives typically date Matthew, Mark, and Luke-Acts to the 60s and John to the 80s or 90s. Liberals suggest slightly later dates, typically placing Mark in the 60s or 70s, Matthew and Luke-Acts in the 80s, and John in the 90s. Even if one accepts the later dates, the amount of time separating the historical events and the composition of the five books is very short as compared to most ancient historical and biographical accounts, where many centuries could intervene between events and the books that narrated them.

Fourth, ancient Jews and Greeks meticulously cultivated the art of memorization, committing complex oral traditions to memory. Even before the Gospels or any other written sources about Jesus were compiled, Jesus' followers were carefully passing on accounts of His teachings and mighty works by word of mouth. This kept the historical events alive until the time they were written down.

Fifth, the ancient memorization and transference of sacred tradition allowed for some freedoms in retelling the stories. Guardians of the tradition could abbreviate, paraphrase, prioritize, and provide commentary on the subject matter as long as they were true to the gist or meaning of the accounts they passed on. This goes a long way to explaining both the similarities and the differences among the four Gospels. All four authors were true to the gist of Jesus' life, yet they exercised reasonable freedom to shape the accounts in ways they saw fit.

Sixth, the fact that these writers had distinct ideological or theological emphases does not mean they distorted history, as is often alleged. Oftentimes the very cause that a historian or biographer supports requires them to write their accounts accurately, for they know that their cause will be undermined if they are charged with bias or distortion. The first Christians had the uphill battle of promoting a crucified Messiah and His bodily resurrection. Had they been known to have falsified the details of their accounts to any significant degree, their movement would have been squelched from the outset.

Seventh, Luke's prologue (Lk 1:1-4) closely parallels the form and content of other works of generally reliable historians and biographers of antiquity, most notably Josephus, Herodotus, and Thucydides. The Gospel writers clearly believed that they were writing historically accurate works, not fiction or embellished history.

Eighth, the so-called hard sayings of Jesus support their authenticity. If the Gospel writers felt free to distort what Jesus originally said in order to increase the attractiveness of Christianity, why would they preserve unmodified His difficult and easily misunderstood teachings about hating family members (Lk 14:26) or not knowing when He would return (Mk 13:32)? The fact that they let these teachings stand indicates their faithfulness to recount true history.

Ninth, the fact that the NT does not record Jesus speaking about many of the topics that arose after His earthly life, during the time of the early church, supports its historical accuracy. For instance, early Christians were divided over how or whether the laws of Moses applied to Gentile converts (Ac 15). The easiest way to settle the controversy would be to cite Jesus' teachings on the matter, but the Gospels record no such teachings. This silence suggests that the Gospel writers did not feel free to play fast and loose with history by putting on the lips of Jesus teachings that could solve early church controversies.

Tenth, the testimony of non-Christian writers supports the details of the Gospels and Acts. About a dozen ancient Jewish, Greek, and Roman writers mention Jesus. Taken together, their writings attest to the basic contours of Jesus' life. Many names of people and places, as well as the exploits of first-century political and religious leaders, are attested in other writings of the day.

Eleventh, archaeology regularly confirms details about geography, topography, customs, artifacts, buildings, tombs, inscriptions, and graffiti that are mentioned in NT—the Gospels and Acts in particular.

Twelfth, the portions of the NT that were written before the completion of the Gospels and Acts confirm the historicity of these five books. For instance, Paul, James, and Peter show multiple signs of quoting or alluding to teachings and actions of Jesus in letters they wrote before the Gospels were written. Their quotes and allusions agree with what we find in the Gospels. This indicates that the Gospels are in tune with the very earliest writings about Jesus—the NT epistles. These earliest writings were in turn dependent on the authoritative oral traditions that were passed on by eyewitnesses to Jesus' life. Paul expresses this in 1Co 15:3-8, where he lists the beliefs he had "received" from these eyewitnesses when he became a Christian no more than two years after Jesus' death and resurrection. These are no late, slowly developing legends he is reporting!

2 My little children, I am writing you these things so that you may not sin. But if anyone does sin, we have an •advocate [a] with the Father — Jesus Christ the Righteous One. 2 He Himself is the •propitiation [b] for our sins, and not only for ours, but also for those of the whole world. [c]

God's Commands

3 This is how we are sure [d] that we have come to know Him: by keeping His commands. [e] 4 The one who says, "I have come to know Him," yet doesn't keep His commands, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. 5 But whoever keeps His word, [f] truly in him the love of God is perfected. [A] This is how we know we are in Him: [g] 6 The one who says he remains in Him [h] should •walk just as He walked.

7 Dear friends, I am not writing you a new command [i] but an old command that you have had from the beginning. The old command is the message [j] you have heard. 8 Yet I am writing you a new command, which is true in Him and in you, because the darkness is passing away [k] and the true light [l] is already shining. [m]

9 The one who says he is in the light but hates his brother [n] is in the darkness until now. 10 The one who loves his brother [o] remains in the light, and there is no cause for stumbling in him. [B] 11 But the one who hates his brother [p] is in the darkness, walks in the darkness, [q] and doesn't know where he's going, [r] because the darkness has blinded his eyes.

Reasons for Writing

12 I am writing to you, little children, because your sins have been forgiven
because of Jesus' name. [s] 13 I am writing to you, fathers, because you have come to know
the One who is from the beginning. [t]
I am writing to you, young men, because you have had victory over the evil one. [u] 14 I have written to you, children, because you have come to know the Father.
I have written to you, fathers,
because you have come to know
the One who is from the beginning.
I have written to you, young men,
because you are strong,
God's word [v] remains in you,
and you have had victory over the evil one.

A Warning about the World

15 Do not love the •world [w] or the things that belong to [C] the world. If anyone loves the world, love for the Father is not in him. 16 For everything that belongs to [D] the world — the lust of the flesh, [x] the lust of the eyes, [y] and the pride [z] in one's lifestyle — is not from the Father, but is from the world. 17 And the world with its lust is passing away, [a] but the one who does God's will [b] remains forever. [c]

The Last Hour

18 Children, it is the last hour. [d] And as you have heard, “Antichrist [e] is coming,” even now many antichrists have come. We know from this that it is the last hour. 19 They went out from us, but they did not belong to us; for if they had belonged to us, they would have remained with us. However, they went out so that it might be made clear that none of them belongs to us.

20 But you have an anointing [f] from the Holy One, [g] and all of you have knowledge. [h] 21 I have not written to you because you don’t know the truth, but because you do know it, and because no lie comes from the truth. 22 Who is the liar, if not the one who denies that Jesus is the •Messiah ? [i] This one is the antichrist: the one who denies the Father and the Son. 23 No one who denies the Son can have the Father; [j] he who confesses the Son has the Father as well. [k]

Remaining with God

24 What you have heard from the beginning must remain in you. If what you have heard from the beginning remains in you, then you will remain in the Son [l] and in the Father. [m] 25 And this is the promise that He Himself made to us: eternal life. [n] 26 I have written these things to you about those who are trying to deceive you.

27 The anointing you received from Him remains in you, and you don't need anyone to teach you. Instead, His anointing teaches you about all things [o] and is true and is not a lie; just as He has taught you, remain in Him. [p]

God's Children

28 So now, little children, remain in Him, so that when He appears [q] we may have boldness and not be ashamed before Him at His coming. [r] 29 If you know that He is righteous, you know this as well: Everyone who does what is right [s] has been born of Him. [t]

3 Look at how great a love [A] the Father has given us that we should be called God's children. And we are! The reason the •world does not know us is that it didn't know Him. 2 Dear friends, we are God's children now, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. [a] We know that when He appears, we will be like Him [b] because we will see Him as He is. [c] 3 And everyone who has this hope [d] in Him purifies himself just as He is pure. [e] 4 Everyone who commits sin also breaks the law; [B] sin is the breaking of law.
5 You know that He was revealed so that He might take away sins, [f, g] and there is no sin in Him. [h] 6 Everyone who remains in Him [i] does not sin; [C, j] everyone who [D] sins has not seen Him or known Him.
7 Little children, let no one deceive you! The one who does what is right is righteous, just as He is righteous. 8 The one who commits [E] sin is of the Devil, for the Devil has sinned from the beginning. The Son of God [k] was revealed [l] for this purpose: to destroy the Devil's works. 9 Everyone who has been born of God [m] does not sin, [F] because His [n] seed [o] remains in him; he is not able to sin, [G] because he has been born of God. 10 This is how God's children — and the Devil's children — are made evident.

The Command to Love

Whoever does not do what is right is not of God, especially the one who does not love his brother. [p] [11] For this is the message you have heard from the beginning: We should love one another, [12] unlike Cain, [q] who was of the evil one [r] and murdered [H] his brother. And why did he murder him? Because his works were evil, and his brother's were righteous. [13] Do not be surprised, brothers, if the world hates [s] you. [14] We know that we have passed from death to life because we love our brothers. The one who does not love remains in death. [t] [15] Everyone who hates his brother [u] is a murderer, [v] and you know that no murderer has eternal life residing in him.

Love in Action

16 This is how we have come to know love: He laid down His life [w] for us. [x]
We should also lay down our lives for our brothers. [y] 17 If anyone has this world's goods [z] and sees his brother in need [a] but closes his eyes [b] to his need — how can God's love reside in him? [c]

18 Little children, we must not love with word or speech, but with truth and action. [d] 19 This is how we will know we belong to the truth [e] and will convince our conscience in His presence, 20 even if our conscience condemns us, that God is greater than our conscience, and He knows all things. [f]

21 Dear friends, if our conscience doesn't condemn us, we have confidence before God 22 and can receive whatever we ask from Him because we keep His commands [g] and do what is pleasing in His sight. 23 Now this is His command:
that we believe in the name [h] of His Son Jesus Christ, and love one another as He commanded us. 24 The one who keeps His commands remains in Him, [i] and He in him. And the way we know that He remains in us [j] is from the Spirit [k] He has given us.

The Spirit of Truth and the Spirit of Error

4 Dear friends, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits [a] to determine if they are from God, because many false prophets have gone out into the world.
2 This is how you know the Spirit of God: Every spirit who confesses that Jesus Christ has [A] come in the flesh [b] is from God. [c] 3 But every spirit who does not confess Jesus [d] is not from God. This is the spirit of the antichrist; [e] you have heard that he is coming, and he is already in the world now.
4 You are from God, little children, and you have conquered them, because the One who is in you [f] is greater than the one who is in the world. [g] 5 They are from the •world . [h] Therefore what they say is from the world, and the world listens to them. 6 We are from God. Anyone who knows God listens to us; [i] anyone who is not from God does not listen to us. From this we know the Spirit of truth and the spirit of deception. [j]

Knowing God through Love

7 Dear friends, let us love one another, because love is from God, and everyone who loves has been born of God [k] and knows God. 8 The one who does not love does not know God, because God is love. 9 God's love was revealed among us in this way: [B] God sent [l] His •One and Only Son [m] into the world so that we might live [n] through Him. 10 Love consists in this: not that we loved God, but that He loved us [o] and sent His Son to be the [C] •propitiation [p] for our sins. 11 Dear friends, if God loved us in this way, we also must love one another. [q] 12 No one has ever seen God. [r,] [s] If we love one another, God remains in [D] us and His love is perfected in us.

13 This is how we know that we remain in Him [t] and He in us: He has given assurance to us from His Spirit. [u] 14 And we have seen and we testify that the Father has sent His Son [v] as the world's Savior. 15 Whoever confesses [E,] [w] that Jesus is the Son of God — God remains in him and he in God. 16 And we have come to know and to believe the love that God has for us. God is love, and the one who remains in love remains in God, and God remains in him.

17 In this, love is perfected with us so that we may have confidence in the day of judgment, [x] for we are as He is in this world. [y] 18 There is no fear in love; instead, perfect love drives out fear, [z] because fear involves punishment. [F] So the one who fears has not reached perfection in love. [a] 19 We love [b] because He first loved us. [c]

Keeping God's Commands

20 If anyone says, "I love God," yet hates his brother, [d] he is a liar. [e] For the person who does not love his brother [f] he has seen cannot love the God he has not seen. [g] 21 And we have this command from Him: The one who loves God must also love his brother.

5 Everyone who believes that Jesus is the •Messiah has been born of God, [a] and everyone who loves the Father also loves the one born of Him. 2 This is how we know that we love God's children when we love God and obey [b] His commands. 3 For this is what love for God is: to keep His commands. Now His commands are not a burden, [c] 4 because whatever has been born of God conquers the •world . This is the victory that has conquered the world: our faith.
5 And who is the one who conquers the world [d] but the one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God? [e]

The Certainty of God's Testimony 6 Jesus Christ — He is the One who came by water and blood, not by water only, but by water [f] and by blood. [g] And the Spirit is the One who testifies, [h] because the Spirit is the truth. 7 For there are three that testify: [i, j] 8 the Spirit, [k] the water, and the blood [l] — and these three are in agreement. 9 If we accept the testimony of men, God's testimony [m] is greater, because it is God's testimony that He has given about His Son. 10 (The one who believes in the Son of God has this testimony within him. The one who does not believe God has made Him a liar, [n] because he has not believed in the testimony God has given about His Son.) 11 And this is the testimony: God has given us eternal life, and this life is in His Son.

12 The one who has the Son has life. [o] The one who doesn't have the Son of God does not have life. 13 I have written these things to you who believe in the name [p] of the Son of God, so that you may know that you have eternal life.

Effective Prayer

14 Now this is the confidence we have before Him: Whenever we ask [q] anything according to His will, He hears us. [r] 15 And if we know that He hears whatever we ask, [s] we know that we have what we have asked Him for. [t]

16 If anyone sees his brother committing a sin that does not bring death, he should ask, and God [A] will give life to him — to those who commit sin that doesn't bring death. There is sin [B] that brings death. I am not saying he should pray about that. 17 All unrighteousness is sin, and there is sin that does not bring death.

Conclusion

18 We know that everyone who has been born of God does not sin, but the One [u] who is born of God keeps him, [v, C] , [w] and the evil one does not touch him.

19 We know that we are of God, and the whole world is under the sway of the evil one.

20 And we know that the Son of God has come [x] and has given us understanding so that we may know the true One. [y] We are in the true
One — that is, in His Son Jesus Christ. [z] He is the true God and eternal life.

21 Little children, guard yourselves from idols.

1 JOHN

Introduction

An ancient baptistry in Ephesus, the city in which John ministered late in the first century.

John's first letter addresses a setting in which some people in the local church had departed the fellowship (2:19), apparently because their doctrine, ethics, devotion, or some combination of these conflicted with those of the church. John wrote in part to stabilize the situation. He reaffirmed and enlarged on key theological truths, particularly the doctrine of Christ. He extolled love and emphasized the necessity for belief to be matched by action. A personal relationship with Christ is the foundation of the Christian life, and out from this grows obedience to divine commands. True faith, proactive ethics, fervent love for God and people—most of the epistle revolves around one or more of these three emphases as the author instructed, admonished, and encouraged his readers.

Circumstances of Writing

Author: Ancient manuscripts are unanimous in naming “John” as the author of 1 John. This was understood to be John the son of Zebedee, the “beloved disciple” who was also the author of the Fourth Gospel. The style and vocabulary of 1, 2, and 3 John are so close to that of John’s Gospel that they beg to be understood as arising from the same person. Some contemporary scholars theorize that an “elder John” (see 2Jn 1; 3Jn 1), not the apostle, may have written the letters. Others speak of a “Johannine school” or “circle” as the originators of the epistles of John (and perhaps Revelation too). But the view with the best support is that Jesus’ disciple John was the author.

Background: Second-century sources reported that around A.D. 70, the year the Romans destroyed Jerusalem and the temple, John left Jerusalem where he was a church leader and relocated to Ephesus. He continued his pastoral work in that region and lived until nearly A.D. 100. Ephesus is probably the place where John wrote the three NT letters that bear his name. They could have been composed at any time in the last quarter of the first century.

Message and Purpose

John made four purpose statements. First, he wrote to promote his readers' fellowship and joy. "We are writing these things so that our joy may be complete" (1:4).

Second, he wrote to help readers avoid the pitfalls of sin, yet find forgiveness when they stumbled. "My little children, I am writing you these things so that you may not sin" (2:1).

Third, he wrote to protect believers from false teachers. "I have written these things to you about those who are trying to deceive you" (2:26).

Finally, he wrote so they might know they had eternal life. "I have written these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, so that you may know that you have eternal life" (5:13). This last purpose statement governs the other three and brings them together in a unifying theme.

In summary, 1 John was written to confirm Christians in true apostolic Christianity by helping them avoid the destructive beliefs and behaviors to which some had fallen prey.

Contribution to the Bible

First John maps out the three main components of saving knowledge of God: (1) faith in Jesus Christ, (2) obedient response to God's commands, and (3) love for God and others from the heart. This epistle shows how Jesus expects His followers to honor Him in practical church life and wherever God calls His people to go and serve.

Structure

It is widely agreed that 1 John does not logically, methodically, or rigorously set forth and develop its arguments. For this reason scholars are divided on the best way to structurally outline the letter. It is the least letter-like of the three Johannine epistles because of its lack of identification of the sender and the recipient. It is more like an unsystematic treatise. It often makes assertions along thematic lines, moves to related or contrasting themes, and then returns to the earlier topic, or perhaps takes up a different subject altogether.

Study Notes 1:1 The words what was from the beginning echo both Gn 1:1 and Jn 1:1. God's purpose in His Son has an eternal dimension. John wrote as an eyewitness. Christ was not just a spiritual vision but an actual human being. Christ is the Word made flesh (Jn 1:14) who gives eternal life to all who believe in Him.

1:2 God made Christ known. Human hearts and minds require God's aid to see His truth (Mt 16:17; Jn 3:3). The Son, the second Person of the Trinity, has always existed alongside the Father.

1:3 The phrase we also declare to you shows that John passed on faithfully to his readers what the apostolic generation had received. Fellowship refers to the close ties of kinship that God extends to His people.

1:4 A major reason why John wrote this epistle was so our joy may be complete. There is great happiness in knowing the forgiveness of sins and pursuing the will of God. God is the One who acts to complete a believer's joy.

1:5 John had divine guidance in the message he related. As an apostle he actually lived alongside the Son of God. Darkness had crept in among the readers whom John addressed. To dispel it John testified to Him who is light. God sent the light of the world, Jesus (Jn 8:12).

1:6 The words if we say may indicate that John was paraphrasing false views that needed to be exposed and corrected. To walk in darkness is to persist in sin. Since God is light (v. 5), His people are called and enabled to live by the light of His wisdom, truth, and love.

1:7 To walk in the light is to live consistent with God's commands and character. Fellowship, the shared knowledge of God's light and love, is one of life's deepest satisfactions. With the phrase the blood of Jesus, John identified the focal point of Christ's saving work in the cross.

1:8 In both Scripture and church history, people have excused their wrongful deeds by claiming to be right with God. John diagnosed an ancient and recurrent human tendency.

1:9 Confessing our sins does not mean a shallow reciting of misdeeds. It means owning up to wrongdoing and bringing our lives into line with God's goodness and commands. God can forgive and cleanse us from terrible transgressions.

1:10 Since God is light and there is no darkness in Him (v. 5), to claim to be without sin is to claim to be on par with God, but God says there is no one like Him (Is 45:18). If His word is not in us, the saving message of Christ has not taken root. There may be surface knowledge of Christian religion, but the heart has not been transformed.

2:1 Jesus' death was not the end of His ministry but the move to a new phase.

Now He serves as our advocate or helper and mediator at the Father's right hand.

2:2 Jesus' perfect obedience and sacrificial death satisfied God's just demand for sin to be punished (propitiation). But His punishment was for others, not for Himself. The phrase for those of the whole world does not mean the salvation of all people. It does mean that, in keeping with God's promise to bless all the nations through Abraham and his descendants (Gn 12:3), Jesus' saving death extends the offer of salvation to all nations.

2:3 John taught an understanding of Christian faith that includes profound assurance, not just the "maybe" of spiritual optimism.

2:4 The words His commands mean the same thing as "His word" in verse 5 and Jesus' example in verse 6 ("just as He walked"). The true follower of Jesus is not just a talker but a doer (Jms 1:22).

2:7 Dear friends is literally "Beloved." This was a favorite term of address for John (3:2,21; 4:1,7,11). It is a reminder that Christians are what they are —"beloved"—because God has loved them (4:10). The love command was intensified and perfected in its expression by Jesus. Yet it is old, rooted in God's love and His commands in the OT (Lv 19:18; Dt 6:5).

2:8 God is light (1:5), and Christ has come into the world. This means the gloom of present evil and sin is giving way as the true light is already shining.

2:9-11 Relationships with fellow believers are key indicators of whether one is walking in the light or in darkness. Walks, here and elsewhere in 1 John, is a metaphor for the course of a person's life.

2:12-14 While 1 John lacks a formal personal address in its opening lines, the author used two terms of endearment in these verses (little children, v. 12; children, v. 14). Then he included all readers with the inclusive terms fathers and young men.

2:13 The One who is from the beginning could refer to either the Father or the Son. They share the attribute of eternality (Jn 1:1; 17:5).

2:14 Believers are strong not in themselves but because of the One in whom they have placed their trust. God's word refers to the saving gospel message that Christ brought, now embodied in the Bible.

2:15 Things that belong to the world are not just material objects. They are things that absorb human love for the Father to an undue degree, even to the point of supplanting God (see John's warning about idols in 5:21 and note there).

2:16 John warned against what the body desires, what the eyes itch to see, and what people work hard to acquire. These are not from the Father but from the world.

2:17 Like the darkness in verse 8, the world with its lust is passing away because of the coming of Christ. This opens the way for doing God's will and establishing fellowship with Him forever.

2:18 John warned against many antichrists. This is probably a reference to misguided or diabolical individuals who were guilty of the sins that he described and condemned. They opposed and sought to replace the true Christ.

2:19 The phrase they went out from us shows there had been a division among the church members to whom John wrote. But not all who were in the church were authentic believers. Their departure from the fellowship and the apostolic truth was proof of this.

2:20 The anointing in this verse could be the Holy Spirit, but it more likely refers to the gospel or the saving message—the teaching that believers had received.

2:21 A mark of those who truly know is the ability to admit their lack of knowledge and their desire to learn more. True believers are always "disciples" (learners).

2:22 The error John referred to here was not ethical but theological—false teaching about the Father and the Son.

2:23 This verse affirms the unity and identity of God the Father and the Son. Yet it also affirms their distinctiveness.

2:24 The phrase from the beginning refers to the earliest exposure of John's readers to gospel teaching. There is a direct tie between what they have heard and the status of their souls as residing (or not residing) in the Son and in the Father.

2:25 Despite John's earlier ethical warnings to remain faithful, salvation is a matter of God's faithfulness, not human achievement.

2:26 God's people cannot always avoid conflict; usurpers and destroyers arise, trying to deceive.

2:27 On anointing, see note at verse 20. John was content to entrust his readers to the powerful message they had received.

2:28 Ashamed refers to the guilt and terror of judgment by God. Those who remain in Him avoid this grim prospect.

2:29 The doctrinal knowledge of John's if statement sets up the ethical response implied by does what is right, but the response is a function of spiritual rebirth (born of Him) and not human effort.

3:1 John marveled at God's love because of its effect—sinners can be called God's children.

3:2 The world may think little of God's children now, but at Christ's return things will change. Believers will be transformed because they will see Him as He is.

3:3 Knowing that the Lord will return is a strong incentive for believers to live in ways that are pleasing to Him.

3:4 Sin is a grave matter because God has revealed His moral character in His holy law, and sin is the breaking of law. It is a personal offense against God.

3:6 John was aware that Christians sin (2:1). They can receive forgiveness through Jesus' death (1:7) as they confess their sins (1:9). By everyone who sins has not seen Him or known Him, John had in mind flagrant sin by false "believers" whose confession of Jesus was false (2:23), whose love was set on the world rather than God (2:15), and whose obedience was lacking (2:4). Jesus Himself warned about people who called Him "Lord" and did great things in His name, but ultimately were not genuine disciples (Mt 7:21-23).

3:7 Satan continually seeks to subvert and deceive God's people. We must be vigilant always.

3:8 When believers forsake sin, they thwart the Devil's aims and further God's kingdom.

3:9-10 On does not sin, see note at verse 6. God's seed is the gospel message. Believers are born of God by the work of His word, and this makes them able to do "what is right" (v. 7). Not able to sin means freedom from bondage to breaking God's law and freedom to live as God's children. John spoke of what spiritual rebirth makes evident—not sinless perfection but a life surrendered fully to God.

3:11 Apostolic preaching emphasized that faith in a God of love moved believers to become people who love one another.

3:12 On Cain, see Gn 4:1-16. John assumed his readers were familiar with this grim OT account.

3:13 The phrase if the world hates you shows that the division in 2:19 (see note there) may have left hard feelings. Jesus foretold that His followers would not always be well received (Jn 16:2).

3:14 Our assurance of salvation rests in part on the love that God gives us for our brothers (meaning "fellow believers"). If we have this love, it is a sign of our salvation. If not, we are warned to examine our hearts before God.

3:15 There is no middle ground. Love is the gospel mandate (Jn 13:35). The person who neglects to love hates his brother. This signals absence of eternal life.

3:16 Jesus' death is not only the source of forgiveness of sin (1:7); it is also the yardstick by which believers gauge their own love for other believers (our brothers).

3:17 Selfishness and God's love are mutually exclusive.

3:18 With the phrase with truth and action, John declared that faith which is only talk is false faith.

3:19 In His presence refers to God's observation of our lives. Faithful living results in confident hearts rather than guilt, evasion, or fear.

3:20 Human hearts can be self-deceived, but God who knows all things can grant assurance.

3:22 We will receive whatever we ask in prayer if our prayer is within God's will (5:14). If we keep His commands, we will have no desire to request what God does not wish.

3:23 His command and faith in His Son Jesus Christ are not different things but two aspects of a single, undivided love of God.

3:24 The role of the Holy Spirit has been assumed all along in this epistle, but He is mentioned outright here for the first time.

4:1 God gives the Spirit (3:24), but there are counterfeits in the form of many false prophets. Discernment is a critical characteristic for Christian disciples.

4:2 God's Spirit does not condone false doctrine. By the end of the first century a view of Christ arose that denied His true humanity. In this view, the Son of God assumed human form for a time, but the divine Christ departed from the earthly Jesus before the crucifixion. John insisted that Christ had come in the flesh. God was truly and fully incarnate in Jesus of Nazareth.

4:3 The words spirit who does not confess Jesus show that John was aware of people speaking by the power of spirits other than the Holy Spirit.

4:4 The one who is in the world probably refers to the Devil, whether in person or as represented by his spiritual and human servants.

4:5 Spiritual deception is more attractive and plausible to non-Christians than the truth of the gospel message.

4:8 God is love does not mean that love is God. Love is an attribute of God, like righteousness and goodness. Those who truly know Him share in this attribute.

4:9 The phrase live through Him means not just biological existence, but the spiritual high road of eternal life.

4:10 On propitiation, see note at 2:2. The standard of love is not what humans feel but what God has revealed in Christ's life and death on the cross.

4:11 The phrase God loved us in this way means that Jesus was obedient to the point of death.

4:12 John used the phrase no one has ever seen God to refer to God the Father in His heavenly splendor, but God the Son makes the invisible Father clearly known (Jn 1:18).

4:13 His Spirit plays a crucial role in assuring and convincing believers. That is why it is so important not to tolerate the presence of false spirits (v. 1).

4:14 Like the "we" of the opening verses of 1 John, this we refers to John and other apostles. Few if any of John's readers would have actually seen Jesus in the flesh.

4:15 Confession of the truth about the Son is a condition for a relationship with God the Father.

4:16 In some verses John emphasized the ethical side of saving faith; in others he stressed doctrinal fidelity. Here his emphasis is on the devotion of the passions and heart—love.

4:17 The "He" in we are as He is could refer to either Jesus or God the Father. If the reference is to Jesus, John was saying that as the Son lived in this world, loved others, and pleased God, so can His followers. If the "He" refers to the Father, John meant that as God dwells with His people and moves them to reflect His love, they have complete confidence in view of the coming judgment.

4:18 With the words no fear, John was speaking of the terror of final judgment (v. 17) and eternal punishment. He was not rejecting the healthy "fear of the Lord" that other biblical writers commend (e.g., Pr 1:7).

4:19 Because God first loved us, our wills and affections are transformed so that love replaces our selfishness.

4:20-21 Followers of Christ love God and love others—or they are not true disciples of Christ.

5:1-21 The previous chapter emphasized love. John affirmed in this chapter that the road to love is paved with faith.

5:3 Love for God is not separate from keeping His commands. God's commands teach His people how to do what God accepts as pleasing (Rm 12:1-2). Knowledge of God transforms the human will, making what was once a burden light and easy to carry (Mt 11:30).

5:4 Whatever has been born refers to people transformed and made new through faith.

5:6 The words came by water and blood probably refer to Jesus' baptism and His death. The Spirit . . . testifies through John's witness to the meaning of these events in Jesus' life. John was present at both the baptism and the crucifixion of Jesus. Moreover, Jesus promised the Holy Spirit to John and other believers to aid their understanding (Jn 16:13).

5:9 Both Jewish and Roman law depended on witnesses who bore clear testimony to establish the facts of a legal case.

5:10 By speaking of the testimony God has given, after writing that it is the Spirit who testifies (vv. 6,8), John affirmed that the Holy Spirit is God.

5:11 John spoke of the testimony that is in the believer (v. 10). Believers have growing conviction of the gift they have received (eternal life) and its source (His Son).

5:12 There is no salvation outside of faith in Christ.

5:13 Assurance was one of John's major goals in writing this epistle.

5:14-15 The deepest answer to prayer is to know that He hears us. To know this is to have what we have asked Him for. For believers, prayer seeks communion with the Father more than the acquisition of favors or the satisfaction of desires.

5:16 A sin that does not bring death (cp. v. 17) is a sin for which forgiveness is possible (1:9). Sin that brings death may be the flagrant offenses against God that so much of 1 John warns against. John may have been speaking about apostasy (falling away from Jesus; denying the apostolic truth). John called on his readers to leave these offenses and offenders in God's hands rather than agonizing in prayer about them. "Death" means spiritual death and eternal separation from God.

5:18 On does not sin, see note at 3:6.

5:19 We know refers both to apostles like John and to his readers. The whole world is under the sway of Satan, but his reign is fleeting and fading (2:8,17).

5:20 With the phrase He is the true God, John clearly affirmed the full divinity of Christ.

5:21 This closing verse of the epistle has puzzled interpreters for centuries. Idols may be John's shorthand for all the lies, errors, hate, and rebellion that his letter warned against—in the hope that his readers would satisfy their souls with true knowledge of Christ.

Ephesus, the fourth largest city in the world in the late first century, is probably the city from which John wrote his three letters. The carved paving stone from ancient Ephesus was probably an advertisement for a brothel. As John wrote to young Christians he reminded them that "everything that belongs to the world— the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride in one's lifestyle —is not from the Father, but is from the world. And the world with its lust is passing away, but the one who does God's will remains forever" (2:16-17).

Word Studies koinonia

Greek Pronunciation [koy noh NEE ah]

HCSB Translation fellowship
Uses in 1 John 4
Uses in the NT 19
Focus passage 1 John 1:3,6,7

Koinonia most often carries the sense of communion or fellowship, referring to an association involving close mutual relations. This idea of mutual involvement is seen in extrabiblical usage, where koinonia can refer to marriage (3Macc 4:6). Because of a common Spirit, Christians have fellowship with God and one another (1Jn 1:3,6,7). This kind of intimate fellowship was displayed among the sharing community of the early church (Ac 2:42). Koinonia may also refer to the way in which this fellowship is portrayed, namely, through sharing, generosity, or participatory-feeling. Paul speaks of the Corinthian church's generosity in sharing a financial gift (2Co 9:13). By extension, koinonia may refer to the financial contribution itself (Rm 15:26). It may also express participation or common fellowship in a task or cause. Thus, believers have a common participation in the faith (Phm 6) and in Christ's body and blood (1Co 10:16).

homologeo
Greek Pronunciation [hah mah lah GEH oh]

HCSB Translation confess Uses in 1 John 5
Uses in the NT 26
Focus passage 1 John 4:2-3,15

Homologeo (to confess) functions in a number of ways in the NT, and it plays an important part in John's theology (nearly 40 percent of its occurrences appear in John's writings). Most often, homologeo means to assert , confess or declare publicly (Mt 7:23; Mt 10:32 = Lk 12:8; Jn 9:22; 12:42; Ac 23:8). This outward confession is viewed as a window into the person's actual beliefs (Rm 10:10). In this sense, homologeo may refer to a public declaration of agreement with some religious confession or set of doctrines (Jn 1:20; Ac 24:14; Rm 10:9,10; 1Tm 6:12; Ti 1:16). The confession spoken of in 1Jn 1:9 appears to be private but does not exclude public confession. Elsewhere, homologeo stresses the idea of an agreement or acknowledgment about something (Heb 11:13), and it may mean to assure or promise (Mt 14:7; Ac 7:17) and also to praise (Heb 13:15).

eidolon
Greek Pronunciation [AY doh lahn]

HCSB Translation idol
Uses in 1 John 1
Uses in the NT 11
Focus passage 1 John 5:21

In the Greek OT, eidolon (idol) refers to the physical representation of a god (Ex 20:4, Dt 5:8). By extension, it points not only to that physical representation, but to the supposed existing god behind that form. The worship of these idols was evidence of that fact (Ex 20:5, Nm 25:2, Dt 5:9) and some were even understood to have demonic powers (Dt 32:17). This usage provides the background for the NT use of eidolon . Paul regards idols as false gods, powerless compared to the true God (1Th 1:9). He acknowledges the existence of demonic powers behind idols but understands them to have no real power over the Christian, who knows that idols are but false gods (1Co 8:4-7; 10:19-21). Christians are exhorted to abstain from association with idols and the false gods they represent (Ac 15:20; 1Jn 5:21), for there is only one God (1Co 8:7).

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes

Introduction

The harbor at Kusadasi, Turkey, the gateway to Ephesus.

The second epistle of John advises “the elect lady” (either a reference to a congregation or to a woman who owned a house where the congregation met) to be fervent in Christian love (v. 5) and watchful of deceivers (v v. 7-8). The writer planned to visit the congregation soon (v. 12).

Circumstances of Writing

Author: “The Elder” (v. 1) is a title that the apostle John applied to himself late in life. (The apostle Peter referred to himself the same way; 1Pt 5:1.) No one other than the apostle John was ever suggested by the early church as the writer of 1 John. Since there are so many similarities between 1 and 2 John, it is generally accepted that John also wrote the second letter.

Background: Second John likely was written during the last two decades of the first century. During this era, John gave pastoral leadership to churches in the area of Ephesus. We have no way of precisely dating 2 John, but it is reasonable that it was written around the same time as 1 John or slightly afterwards. Its tone reveals it to be a highly personal letter that reflects John’s affection for these believers and his deep concern for their welfare.

Message and Purpose

Like Jesus, who wept over Jerusalem (Lk 19:41), and Paul, who wrote of "the daily pressure" of his "care for all the churches" (2Co 11:28), John was concerned about this congregation. Would they neglect to embody God's love for one another? Would they fall prey to false teachers? Second John was apparently written to help readers follow through on their commitment to follow Christ.

John used six key words to tie together this epistle. He repeatedly used the words "trust" (five times), "love" (four times), "commandment" (four times), "walk" (three times), "teaching" (three times), and "children" (three times). John's message is clear: He told his children to (1) walk in the truth, (2) obey God's commandments, (3) love one another, and (4) guard the teachings of Christ and they would not be deceived by the antichrist. John confirmed the spiritual safety of the believing community with a beginning and ending reference to their election by God (vv. 1,13).

Contribution to the Bible

It is easy for congregations to get off track. Second John reminds readers of the high priority of the most basic Christian outlook and activity—mutual love. Yet another priority is no less critical—true Christian teaching. This epistle strikes a short but strong blow for steadfastness, assuring that attentive readers would take the right steps to "receive a full reward" (v. 8).

Structure

Second John is an excellent example of hortatory or exhortation discourse, which has the intent of moving readers to action. It follows the normal NT pattern for a letter with an opening, main body, and closing. There are only two commands in this short letter: a call to "watch yourselves" (v. 8) and the command, "do not receive" those who plant false teaching (v. 10). There is the reminder to "love one another" in verse 5. This bears the force of an imperative, in part because of the close proximity of the word "command," which occurs four times in verses 4-6.

Study Notes

vv. 1 The Elder is the self-designation of the aged apostle John. Elders were pastoral leaders of local churches (Ac 11:30; 14:23). John may have had regional oversight, like Titus did under Paul (Ti 1:5). Elect lady is an unusual term of address. It probably refers to a congregation since John often addressed his readers in the plural form (vv. 6,8,10,12; see Introduction). When he used the singular (vv. 1,4,5,13), he was speaking collectively. Early Christians knew themselves to be "elect" or "chosen" by the Lord (Rm 16:13; 1Pt 1:1; 2:9).

vv. 2 Truth is a favorite word in John's Gospel (used more than two dozen times) and his epistles (used about 20 times). In John's epistles, "truth" frequently refers to the gospel of Jesus Christ and the realm of eternal life that believers have entered through their trust in Him.

vv. 3 John was confident of the presence of grace, mercy, and peace as tokens of God's favor. John did not mention the Holy Spirit in the opening of this epistle, and yet he elsewhere makes clear the Spirit's divinity and His role of calling attention to the Son, Jesus Christ (see Jn 15:26).

vv. 4 John had heard good things about the members (children) of this congregation. "Children of God" as a title for Christians is rare elsewhere in the NT but appears in John's writings (Jn 1:12; 11:52).

vv. 5 Just as it takes effort to keep love fresh in a marriage, love in a congregation must be nurtured and protected (now I urge you). Jesus declared that love among believers is a primary means of their witness to the world (Jn 13:35).

vv. 6 For John, love was not sentimental affection but an ethical expectation. The definition and standard for love is found in Scripture's teaching, not personal attraction or preference.

vv. 7 In Greek this verse begins with the conjunction gar ("because"). Love and obedience are critical because deceivers always stand ready to mislead and disrupt congregations that grow slack or rebellious. Jesus assumed human form and nature to the full (in the flesh). Some early false teachers taught that Jesus was fully divine but not fully human. John declared in his first letter that many antichrists had gone into the world (1Jn 2:18). They sought to sow seeds of confusion about Jesus' full divinity and full humanity.

vv. 8 It is dangerous to become lethargic in Christian living or to take God's favor for granted. Assurance should look like diligence, not presumption.

vv. 9 There are always new ways to apply Christ's teaching, but the foundations were established by His coming and the instruction He gave to His followers. John called for dynamic love and creative faithfulness while warning against perverting the apostolic teachings about Jesus.

vv. 10 In 3Jn 5-8, John encouraged support for traveling Christian ministers, but this assumed their teachings were true. If they taught falsity, believers were called to discernment and instructed to withhold support from their destructive mission.

vv. 11 The believer is not to "condemn himself by what he approves" (Rm 14:22). To give hospitality to false teachers is to approve of them (shares in his evil works).

vv. 12 On don't want to do so with paper and ink, see note at 3Jn 13.

vv. 13 The phrase children of your elect sister probably refers to the congregation in which John served when he wrote this epistle to a "sister" congregation.

Introduction

Temple of Hadrian in Ephesus. This structure was built in the generation after John's death. It was built by P. Quintilius and dedicated to the Emperor Hadrian.

The shortest book in the New Testament, 3 John is a letter with a kind but business-like tone. "The Elder" sought to encourage Gaius, who was perhaps a pastor under his oversight. The epistle gives mostly positive counsel but also warns against a power-hungry leader named Diotrephes. Truth, love, and the goodness of God are predominate themes.

Circumstances of Writing

Author: Same as the author of 1 and 2 John (see Introductions there).

Background: Same as 2 John (see Introduction there). The two short epistles of 2 and 3 John are often described as “twin epistles,” though they should be viewed as fraternal and not identical. There are some significant similarities worth noting. In both epistles the author described himself as “the Elder” (2Jn 1; 3Jn 1), and the recipients were those whom he loved “in truth” (2Jn 1; 3Jn 1). The recipients were a cause for great rejoicing by John (2Jn 4; 3Jn 3). They were “walking in the truth” (2Jn 4; 3Jn 3), and the elder has received good reports about them (2Jn 4; 3Jn 3,5). Both letters contain a warning (2Jn 8; 3Jn 9-11), and the Elder desired to see the recipients face-to-face (2Jn 12; 3Jn 14). Finally, both letters convey greetings from others (2Jn 13; 3Jn 14).

Message and Purpose

Third John is a personal letter that revolves around three individuals: (1) Gaius, the recipient of the letter; (2) Diotrephes, the one causing trouble; and (3) Demetrius, who was probably the bearer of the letter. The purpose was to give a word of exhortation to Gaius and encourage him not to imitate the bad example of Diotrephes. Instead, Gaius was to continue the good work he was doing in receiving and supporting the traveling teachers or missionaries.

Contribution to the Bible

This brief letter of apostolic instruction underscores certain central Christian convictions: love, truth, faithfulness, the church, and witness. It also testifies to the God-centeredness of apostolic faith (vv. 7,11). Jesus and the Spirit are not mentioned specifically (unless "the truth itself" in v. 12 refers to Jesus; see Jn 14:6; 1Jn 5:20). But in the writer's view, Jesus and the Spirit were undoubtedly included in the reference to "God" whose "truth" this epistle appeals to so frequently (3Jn 1,3,4,8,12).

Structure

The letter follows the basic epistolary pattern with an introduction (vv. 1-4), body (vv. 5-12), and a conclusion (vv. 13-14). Though verses 1-4 clearly function as the salutation, it is also possible to outline the letter around the four personalities of the book. Verses 1-8 contain a multifold commendation of Gaius. Verses 9-10 condemn the highhanded and malicious autocracy of Diotrephes. Verses 11-12, taken as a unit, praise the godly Demetrius. Verses 13-14 close with a glimpse into the heart of the Elder. Four men and their reputations (growing out of their behavior) are the sum and substance of 3 John's subject matter. John constructed this letter with the building blocks of key-word repetition: "dear friend" (vv. 1,2,5,11); "truth" or "true" (vv. 1,3,4,8,12). Third John provides insight into a personality conflict that arose at the end of the first century and the strategy adopted by the Elder to resolve it.

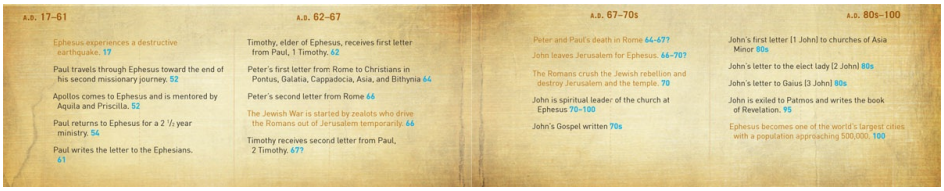
Timeline



Study Notes

vv. 1 Dear friend is literally "beloved." Because God has set his affection on believers, believers are to care deeply for one another (1Jn 4:11). Nothing certain is known about Gaius. The name was common in Roman times, and he was probably not one of the persons by that name mentioned elsewhere in the NT

(Ac 19:29; 20:4; 1Co 1:14).

vv. 2 On dear friend, see note at verse 1. Good health is valued in every age, but in ancient times it was even more valued since medical care could be ineffective and life expectancy was low. Letters surviving from the period commonly contain this practical good wish, which John reinforced with the words I pray.

vv. 3 Joy is a feature of the opening of all John's letters (1Jn 1:4; 2Jn 4). John's concerns did not rob him of his delight in Christian faith.

vv. 4 On joy, see note at verse 3. My children may point to the fruit of John's patient and faithful pastoral labors. These may have been converts, or they may have been believers who were encouraged by his ministry. Walking in the truth means living in a way that honors and pleases God. It could even refer to living "in Christ" since He is "the truth" (Jn 14:6; 1Jn 5:20).

vv. 5 On dear friend, see note at verse 1. Faith is not merely mental but is demonstrated by how believers live. Jesus taught that His followers should be gracious to everyone, including strangers, and not just to their friends and relatives (Mt 5:43-48).

vv. 6 Send them on their journey includes physical and monetary provision, not just verbal good wishes. These laborers for the Lord deserved to be supported in a manner worthy of God because they were doing God's work (Mt 10:10).

vv. 7 The Name could refer either to God Himself or to Jesus. Jesus taught that to believe in Him is to believe in the One who sent Him (Jn 12:44). These workers relied on the Lord and His people, the church, not on pagans, or nonbelievers, for their support.

vv. 8 A privilege of Christian identity is to be coworkers with the truth—in sync with what God is doing as well as with fellow servants who are giving their all to do God's bidding.

vv. 9 Wrote something probably refers to a letter that has not been preserved, although some think it could refer to 1 John. There have always been struggles for power and status in the church (Mk 10:37). Diotrephes should have deferred to the authority of the apostle John.

vv. 10 The phrase refuses to welcome the brothers contrasts with those who did great things "for the brothers" in verse 5. Diotrephes must have been a person with some power in his congregation.

vv. 11 On dear friend, see note at verse 1. John did not want Gaius to be like Diotrephes (do not imitate what is evil). A person like Diotrephes might profess Christian faith, but the profession can be bogus (Mt 7:21-23).

vv. 12 Possibly Demetrius was supposed to deliver this epistle, so John assured Gaius of his character.

vv. 13 With the words don't want to write, John indicated that this epistle was a stopgap measure until he could pay a personal visit to his readers.

vv. 14 Peace harks back to the Hebrew word shalom, indicating God's living presence and blessing. Greetings and greet . . . by name are reminders that one of the great joys of the household of God is the fellowship of shared commitment to Jesus Christ.

JUDE

Greeting

1 Jude, [a] a •slave of Jesus Christ and a brother of James:
To those who are the called, [b] loved [c, d] by God the Father and kept by Jesus Christ. [e]
2 May mercy, peace, and love be multiplied to you. [f]

Jude's Purpose in Writing

3 Dear friends, although I was eager to write you about the salvation we share, [g] I found it necessary to write and exhort you to contend for the faith [h] that was delivered [i] to the •saints once for all. 4 For some men, who were designated for this judgment long ago, [j] have come in by stealth; [k] they are ungodly, [l] turning the grace of our God into promiscuity and denying [m] Jesus Christ, our only Master and Lord.

Apostates: Past and Present

5 Now I want to remind you, though you know all these things: The Lord [n] first [o] saved a people out of Egypt and later destroyed those who did not believe; [p] 6 and He has kept, with eternal chains in darkness for the judgment of the great day, the angels [q] who did not keep their own position but deserted their proper dwelling. 7 In the same way, Sodom and Gomorrah [r] and the cities around them committed sexual immorality and practiced perversions, [A] just as angels did, and serve as an example by undergoing the punishment of eternal fire. [s]

8 Nevertheless, these dreamers likewise defile their flesh, reject authority, and blaspheme glorious ones. [t] 9 Yet Michael [u] the archangel, [v] when he was disputing with the Devil [w] in a debate about Moses' [x] body, did not dare bring an abusive condemnation against him but said, "The Lord rebuke you! " 10 But these people blaspheme anything they don't understand. What they know by instinct like unreasoning animals — they destroy themselves with these things. 11 Woe to them! For they have traveled in the way of Cain, [y] have abandoned themselves to the error of Balaam [z] for profit, and have perished in Korah's rebellion. [a]

The Apostates' Doom

12 These are the ones who are like dangerous reefs [B] at your love feasts. [b] They feast with you, nurturing only themselves without fear. They are waterless clouds carried along by winds; [c] trees in late autumn — fruitless, twice dead, pulled out by the roots; 13 wild waves of the sea, foaming up their shameful deeds; wandering stars [d] for whom the blackness of darkness [e] is reserved forever! [f]

14 And Enoch, [g] in the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied about them:

Look! The Lord comes [C] with thousands of His holy ones [h] 15 to execute judgment on all and to convict them [D]
of all their ungodly [i] acts that they have done in an ungodly way, and of all the harsh things ungodly sinners have said against Him.

16 These people are discontented grumblers, •walking according to their desires; [j] their mouths utter arrogant words, flattering [k] people for their own advantage.

17 But you, dear friends, remember what was predicted by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ; 18 they told you, “In the end time [l] there will be scoffers [m] walking according to their own ungodly desires.” 19 These people create divisions and are unbelievers, [E, n] not having the Spirit.

Exhortation and Benediction

20 But you, dear friends, as you build yourselves up in your most holy faith and pray in the Holy Spirit, [o] 21 keep yourselves in the love of God, [p] expecting the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ for eternal life. 22 Have mercy on those who doubt; 23 save others by snatching them from the fire; [q] have mercy on others but with fear, [r] hating [s] even the garment [t] defiled by the flesh.

24 Now to Him [u] who is able to protect you from stumbling [v] and to make you stand in the presence of His glory, blameless [w] and with great joy, 25 to the only [x] God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, [y] be glory, majesty, power, and authority before all time, [z] now and forever. •Amen .

JUDE

Introduction

"These are the ones who are like dangerous reefs at your love feasts. They feast with you, nurturing only themselves without fear. They are waterless clouds carried along by winds; trees in late autumn—fruitless, twice dead, pulled out by the roots; wild waves of the sea, foaming up their shameful deeds; wandering stars for whom the blackness of darkness is reserved forever!" (Jd 12-13) The letter of Jude, one of the General Epistles, is very short. Until recently scholars neglected it more than any other New Testament book. Jude sought to protect Christian truth and strongly opposed heretics who threatened the faith. The letter's message is relevant to any age because believers should defend the gospel vigorously. Jude bears an obvious similarity in content with 2 Peter, a book that also deals firmly with false teachers who were infiltrating the church.

Circumstances of Writing

Author: Jude called himself "a slave of Jesus Christ and a brother of James" (v. 1). The James to whom Jude referred is not the son of Zebedee. He can be ruled out of consideration because he was martyred at an early date (Ac 12:1-2). The James to whom Jude refers is surely the well-known leader of the Jerusalem church (Ac 15:13-21; Gl 2:9). This is significant, for this James was the brother of Jesus (Mk 6:3). If Jude was a brother of James, then he was also a brother of Jesus. Rather than call himself Jesus' brother outright, Jude chose humbly to designate himself as Christ's slave.

Background: Jude wrote to those who are "the called, loved by God the Father and kept by Jesus Christ" (v. 1). This designation is general enough to apply to Christian believers anywhere. But Jude clearly had a specific group in mind because he called them "dear friends" (vv. 3,17,20) and addressed a situation that affected them. The readers were probably Jewish Christians because of Jude's several references to Hebrew history. Beyond this information we do not know exactly who the recipients of the letter were.

Jude is difficult to date precisely. If Jude the brother of Jesus was the author, the letter must be dated sometime within his lifetime. Any date for the letter's writing must also allow time for the false teachings to have developed. Jude may be dated reasonably somewhere between A.D. 65 to 80. Nothing in the letter points to a date of writing beyond this time. A date within Jude's lifetime rules out the viewpoint that the false teaching in question was second-century Gnosticism.

Message and Purpose

Jude had originally meant to write a letter on salvation to his friends. But he changed his plans when he learned of false teachers who had infiltrated the church (vv. 3-4). Because of their influence he instead urged his readers to contend for the faith (v. 3). Jude reminded his readers that they shared a common salvation and alerted them to the need for vigilance in contending for the faith. The reason the church must contend for the faith is that intruders were troubling the church.

In verse 4, Jude introduced his readers to the opponents, pronounced judgment upon them, and outlined their vices. Verses 5-16 provide the evidence for what is said in verse 4. Three examples of God's judgment in the past are relayed in verses 5-7, and in verses 8-10 Jude stated that the opponents deserved judgment because of their lifestyle. In verse 11 the opponents are compared to three men who went astray in the past: Cain, Balaam, and Korah. Verses 12-13 clarify that the character of the opponents placed them in the same category as these infamous figures. Jude closed this section with the prophecy of Enoch, which promises judgment on the ungodly (vv. 14-15). Jude correlated the lives of the adversaries with those who would experience judgment (v. 16).

Contribution to the Bible

Jude is often overlooked because of its brevity. The book is also neglected because of unexpected features such as its quotation of 1 Enoch and its allusion to the Assumption of Moses. Some readers wonder how a canonical book could cite noninspired, nonbiblical writings. Furthermore, the message of Jude is alien to many in today's world because Jude emphasized that the Lord will judge evil intruders who are attempting to corrupt the church. The message of judgment strikes many people today as intolerant, unloving, and contrary to the message of love proclaimed elsewhere in the NT.

Nevertheless, some of the Bible's most beautiful statements about God's sustaining grace are found in Jude (vv. 1,24-25), and they shine with a greater brilliance when contrasted with the false teachers who had departed from the Christian faith.

The message of judgment is especially relevant to people today. Jude's letter reminds us that errant teaching and promiscuous living have dire consequences. Jude was written so believers would contend for the faith that was transmitted to them (v. 3) and so they would not abandon God's love at a crucial time in the life of the church.
